Hogard, Samuel Poynter, and Massey (Freemason) were among the other brethren who were present, who numbered altogether above 600.

Grand Secretary, after lodge was opened, read the circular convening the lodge.

Lord Carnarvon then directed Grand Secretary to read the report of the Special Committee.

Grand Secretary thereupon read the following report:—

The Committee have carefully considered the matters submitted to them, and beg to report as follows:—

1st. That the sum of £4000 be voted for the Royal National Lifeboat Institution for the purpose of founding two lifeboat stations in perpetuity, and in such localities on the English coast as the sub-committee hereafter mentioned shall decide.

2nd. That a Sub-Committee, consisting of the Most Worshipful the Pro Grand Master, the Rt. Worshipful the Dep. Grand Master, and the Right Worshipful the Senior Grand Warden, be appointed to wait on the Secretary of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, with full powers to arrange all matters as to locality, detail, &c.

3rd. That a memorial tablet be erected in Grand Lodge in commemoration of the event.

The Earl of Carnarvon then rose, and was received with loud and long-continued applause. He said, Brethren—as you all know well, my general duty in this chair, and my general desire when I am there, is to discharge simply the duty of a speaker, so to say, in this Grand Lodge. I desire as a rule to offer no personal opinion and to influence in no degree the resolutions to which you may ultimately come. My general duty, to which I desire to confine myself is, so to regulate the order of your proceedings that they may be conducted with that propriety and that dignity which befits this, the general and the great meeting in which the whole of Freemasonry in England is represented and finds its voice. (Hear, hear.) This evening, under very exceptional circumstances, I pass beyond that limit, and take upon myself, as the Chairman of a Special Committee appointed by you, to make a special and exceptional recommendation to this Grand Lodge. And I am quite certain, from my long experience in Grand Lodge, that I shall not—that I need not ask you to give me, under these exceptional circumstances, all that cordial support which I have invariably met with at your hands, and which on such an occasion as this I am entitled I think, to ask for. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, you appointed at the last Grand Lodge a Special Committee to consider a difficult, and I may even add a delicate question, which you referred to it. That committee met. I was naturally in the chair; and I wish in the first instance to do simple justice to that committee when I say that no enquiries could have been fuller, no discussions could have been more exhaustive, no attention could have been more patient, than that which the committee gave to this question. No doubt they were a committee which represented, I think, very fully the opinions of the Craft. Each separate question was raised by them; each separate opinion that could find favour with the Craft, either in its general body or in its individual sections, was fully brought forward and discussed; and I have now, as the Chairman of that committee, to present you with the resolutions which embody, in fact, the report which you have heard read by the Grand Secretary. And first let me state, brethren, that the cause of your attendance here together is due simply and solely to myself. I felt, and felt strongly, that in a matter of this sort, of this importance, and where, as I am free to confess, a course exceptional and unusual is proposed—I felt that it was due to the Craft that every conceivable opportunity of discussion should be afforded—that the fullest publicity should be granted, and that no one should have a right hereafter to say that that course which was unusual in itself was adopted without the full knowledge and the full sanction of the Craft as represented here in Grand Lodge. (Hear, hear, and applause.) And this has been the reason, and this must be my excuse, why I have put you to the inconvenience and trouble of meeting me here in an especial Grand Lodge for you will see that the resolution which you will adopt to-night is simply a resolution recommending this matter to the next Grand Lodge, and further, after and beyond that Grand Lodge, affording still an opportunity of a confirmation of the minutes for any subsequent reconsideration. I sincerely hope that there will be no division of opinion on this subject. (Hear, hear.) I do not ask it for myself, though I am entitled to look for your support (cheers), but I ask it in consideration of the importance of this question, and, above all, of the illustrious person in whose name and for whose sake we are now proposing it. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, it is not so long since His Royal Highness made that most remarkable progress through India that I need recal any of its special incidents to you; it is doubtless fresh in your minds how His Royal Highness passed through the length and breadth of that wonderful—I might almost say that fabulous—Empire which it is the boast and the glory of the English crown to hold as its own. You will remember how he passed from one native State to another; how the whole pageantry, so to speak, of Indian pomp was unrolled before him; and how he, the first of English Princes, became acquainted, as it were, both with the public and the private life of the great chiefs of that vast dependency. (Great applause.) It was not merely a matter of private interest, and of legitimate curiosity; he fulfilled, from my point of view, a great public duty (hear, hear); he learned a lesson that no books, that no public offices, that no documents, could possibly have taught him; he saw the inner life of India; and he returned more fitted to advise, more fitted to govern, than when he left these shores. (Hear, hear.) He discharged a great public duty, and he discharged it well. And when he returned to this country he met with a welcome and a reception such as no Prince of Wales ever met with before. (Cheers.) From one end of the country to the other there ran a thrill of congratulation that he had been preserved through all the difficulties and the perils of that long journey, and that he had been restored to us, as we truly hope, for the good and the welfare of this country. And if that was the welcome throughout the length and breadth of the land, nowhere was it more strongly felt, nowhere was it more heartily expressed, than it was among the Freemasons of England. (Hear, hear, and great cheering.) Brethren, our object to-night is to find some means by which we can, so far as we are concerned, erect a memorial of that successful progress of our illustrious Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and at the same time record our thankfulness to the Great Architect of the Universe that it has pleased Him to preserve H.R.H. through all those perils and difficulties and restore him back to us in England. (Hear, hear.) Now, brethren, there is no difficulty, I venture to think, so far as the mere question of finance is concerned. (Hear, hear.) Happily for us, unlike almost every other society—happily for us, this difficulty does not exist. Our funded property affords us the means of being just and even generous. (Hear, hear.) Our annual surplus is not less than £3000 a year; on this head, therefore, there is no difficulty. The difficulty rather is, according to a French proverb, the embarrassment that proceeds from an excess of wealth. Our difficulty is to select the object to which our money should be appropriated. Well, brethren, all of you who were present at the Grand Lodge when this question was discussed will remember that there was considerable division of opinion. Those who were members of the committee over which I had the honour to preside will remember also that there was much division of opinion among us in the first instance—though I wish to record emphatically here, this remark, that ultimately we were unanimous in our opinion. (Hear, hear, and great cheering.) Brethren, there are many different schemes, all of them admirable in themselves, which might be proposed for this object: It was proposed here in Grand Lodge to devote a certain sum to the restoration and decoration of certain old churches that were more or less connected with Masonry. It was proposed at another time to devote a certain portion to the foundation of scholarships. (Hear, hear.) It was proposed also—and I own that the proposition found for a long time great weight with me—it was proposed to appropriate it to the Charities. (Hear, hear, and general applause.) Brethren, I perfectly understand that cheer, and I heartily sympathise with it. Had I seen my way to propose to you to devote this money to the Charities I should have been the first to have come forward and give my voice in favour of it. (Hear, hear.) But it was not from want of consideration, it was not from want of predilection for that course that I have come to a different conclusion. You will observe that if you were to appropriate this money to the Charities you must appropriate it at least in one of three ways:—either you must create a new Charity—(cries of "No, no")—which found, let me say, a great many, and many zealous, and many able advocates—or you must appropriate it to one of the old Charities exclusively—("No, no")—or you must divide it among the three old Charities. (Cheers.) And I venture to observe that those are the only three courses which were possible if you dealt with it for the Charities. Well, so far as the foundation of a new Charity is concerned, I see already that Grand Lodge feels how great would be the difficulty. (Hear, hear.) I need not go into that argument. Again, I feel equally certain that Grand Lodge would not be prepared to devote this sum of money, whatever it may be, exclusively to one single Charity. (Hear, hear.) That I see equally. Then there remains only the last course, which is to divide it amongst all three equally. Now, brethren, observe what would be the consequence of that. It could be but a small—I will even say a paltry—sum that you could distribute to each. You would fritter away that which may be a grand and lasting memorial—(hear, hear)—amongst the Charities. (Great cheering.) There could be nothing permanent, there could be nothing special in that. And, brethren, I would go further, and entreat you, in the name of and for the sake of those Charities, not to adopt what I should think so fatal a course as that. (Loud applause.) Brethren, the charities of this great Order are among the highest honours that we can show in our Masonic Crown. (Hear, hear.) When any one of those charities needs money, what is done? We appeal to the Craft, and we get what we want. (Cheers.) Brethren, I would venture to state my own personal case. Two years ago, I filled the chair at the festival of the Boys' School. I believe on that occasion over £13,000 was realised. (Hear, hear.) Do you mean to tell me, or to tell anyone else, that the Boys' School needs the paltry addition of £1500 or £2000? (Hear, hear) scraped together out of another circumstance and another occasion, with which it has no definite connection, in order to give it funds? Why, I know perfectly well, if the Boys' School needs funds we have nothing to do, but, as I did on that occasion, to appeal to the Craft at large for what we want. (Great applause.) Brethren, I therefore say, in the name of these great charities, do not do them the wrong and the injustice of applying this money to them or in any way stopping the fountain, the free-flowing fountain, which runs in their behalf. (Cheers.) Brethren, I cannot sufficiently remind you on this particular point, that our object to-night is not to find money for any one of our great Masonic Charities, but it is to record a particular event in the history of this country and in the history of Masonry, in which our Grand Master went out to India, discharged a great public duty, and returned here to the hearty and full satisfaction and amongst the unanimous welcome of the whole Craft. (Loud and long continued cheering.) Well, then, brethren, if that be so (and I think you have gone along with me so far), let me ask you what are the objects to which we should look in this particular case? They are, to put them very briefly, first of all, that any memorial which we create, so to speak, on this occasion, should be special and definite; secondly, that it should be lasting, and more than lasting, that it should be permanent; thirdly, that it should be somehow inseparably connected and bound up with some great object of charity; fourthly, that it should range even beyond the limits of the Craft, and it should for once in a way embrace in its great compass the whole nation (cheers); and, lastly, I would ask, as quite supplementary, but which still I think comes from us gracefully, that it should be such an object as that in which His Royal Highness has been known to take a lively interest, and in which he has himself taken an active part. Brethren, if you can find any one object which comprises all these different conditions, I think you will not have done amiss, you will not have gone far astray, you may be satisfied that you have, so far as it is given to human knowledge and human wisdom to do so, solved a problem which was not before solved. Well, now, the proposal I have to make to you on behalf of the committee is simply this: it is that we should establish—not for a few years, not at the mere sport of the wind and waves, to be worn and torn away, and to disappear after a time, even after a brief career, but to last in perpetuity, and to record so long as the waters wash the shores of Great Britain, the intention and the purpose of this Grand Lodge—that we should establish two lifeboats in honour of the return of the Prince of Wales. Brethren, I have gone carefully into the matter, and I find that by an arrangement with that most admirable and patriotic Institution, the Life Boat Association, it is in the power of this Grand Lodge to found no less than two life-boats in absolute perpetuity. (Hear, hear, and loud applause.) The cost of a lifeboat will interest Grand Lodge, and therefore I will give them the figures. The cost of a lifeboat is assumed to be £550. The transport of it, with certain other incidents, to the place where it is to be maintained, is set down at £150. There are contingencies. It is then necessary to erect for it buildings so that it may be permanently housed from decay. That represents the sum of £350 more. In all, £1000. But there then comes the question of maintenance; and the maintenance cannot be put at much less than £70 a year; in other words about £2000 additional, assuming money at 3½ per cent. You perceive therefore that at that rate two lifeboats would cost no less than £6000. But if you adopt those figures it is clear that the cost of two lifeboats would amount to no less than £6000. But, by private communications which I have had with the Lifeboat Institution, they, whose operations of course extend over a very much larger area, can afford it at a cheaper rate than we could if we undertook to supply two lifeboats for ourselves. They are therefore willing to pledge themselves on the strength of their whole funds for £1000 to maintain each lifeboat. Therefore the cost of one lifeboat being assumed to be £1000, and the maintenance in perpetuity being another £1000, it will be possible if Grand Lodge agrees to this vote of £4000, for the two lifeboats to be maintained for ever and a day, in honour of the Prince of Wales' return from India. (Great cheering.) Brethren, I am not at all surprised at the liberality of the Life Boat Institution in this matter. At the same time I venture to say to Grand Lodge, it is a very satisfactory bargain for us to have made, and one which I, for my part, cordially recommend to Grand Lodge. Now, brethren, I am quite aware, as every one must be, that as regards this memorial of the safe journey and return of His Royal Highness, there may be—there are perhaps—many opinions (hear, hear). One person would like one thing; another person would like another. I would merely put it to them, that each person be content in this matter to forego to a certain degree his own individual opinion. (Hear, hear.) We are met together for a great purpose; we have no private and no selfish interests or objects in it. Let us endeavour for once to act with absolute and entire unanimity. (Loud and prolonged applause.) I think that the foundation in perpetuity of these two lifeboats does satisfy all the conditions at least which I mentioned to you. It is something special and definite; it is something lasting and permanent; it is unquestionably charitable (hear, hear, and applause); it is national as well as Masonic; and no one can doubt that His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has taken the liveliest interest in it, because, on one occasion at least, he presided at the great anniversary of the Institution. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, it is possible that it may be said that in this recommendation we are venturing out of the beaten track, and that we should confine ourselves exclusively to something Masonic. Well, let me remind those who think so that even on board of many a ship, labouring in many a gale, there may be many a brother Mason. (Hear, hear, and cheers,—which lasted for some time.) Those who have heard the howling of the wind during this last week, while we have been enjoying the festive season; those who still more have listened to the touching service in many of our churches, "For those who are in peril at sea,"—still more, those who under such circumstances have had father or mother, brother or sister, relation or friend, on board those ships, will feel that such a grant as I now ask you to make does not really fall beyond the circle of Masonry. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, it is true that in a certain sense such a vote as this appeals beyond Masonry to the whole outward world; and I for one rejoice when, once in a way, exceptional as it is in this case, we can put forth a hand to the outer world—that we can show that we are united to it by common ties of humanity and sympathy; that we can give the lie to the calumnies which have been so often urged against our Order, that it is a mere selfish body, actuated by selfish motives and selfish feelings. Brethren, I rejoice to give a practical proof in refutation of such a vile calumny as that. (Hear, hear.) It is said sometimes that Masonry is a mere benefit society. We who know its principles better; we who see its workings more intimately, know that there is no truth whatever in such a representation; and I venture to think those who to-night record by their vote their assent to this proposal will have done a great and signal service to English Freemasonry throughout the whole of the world. (Cheers.) Brethren, I have but one more word to say, and it is this: this proposal may be better, may be worse; I believe it to be one of the very few proposals which could be made that on the whole comprises all the conditions that I have mentioned, and which recommends it alike to Freemasonry and to the objects which it has in view. But I venture to put it to this Grand Lodge that this vote should be absolutely unanimous. (Hear, hear.) I trust sincerely that there will be no one single voice raised in opposition at least to this. Under ordinary circumstances I court criticism; I rejoice in criticism; but I will ask you, having remitted this in a certain sense to a committee, that committee having given the fairest, the fullest, the most impartial consideration they can to it, I would ask you to forego as far as you conscientiously can the individual desire, which I admit is perfectly legitimate in every one, and if possible give it a cordial and unanimous approval. Brethren, I ask this not for the sake of the committee, not for the sake of the chair from which I now address you, but specially for the sake of the particular object we have in view, and for the illustrious person, our Grand Master, with whom that object is indissolubly connected, and for whose sake I would not have, if it was possible, the slightest difference of opinion on the subject.

Lord Leigh, Prov. G.M. for Warwickshire in seconding the motion said he had not the slightest idea when he came to the hall that evening from the country, that he should have had the honour to do so, but owing to the absence of the Dep. G.M., which they all regretted very much, the duty was placed in his hands. The resolution had been proposed so ably, so feelingly, and so exhaustively by the Pro Grand Master that he confessed he was pleased to have the honour. His task was an easy one; the Pro Grand Master having so fully, ably and feelingly gone into the whole subject. Although he would have to say but very few words the brethren must permit him on his own part, and on behalf of the province over which he had the extreme honour of presiding for some 26 years past. (Cheers.) To express the great pleasure it had given him to hear the resolution that had been proposed, and which emanated from the committee which was formed to take into consideration this very important subject. He entirely and completely agreed with the remark that the Pro Grand Master had made towards the end of his admirable address when he said he rejoiced to think the Freemasons stepped beyond Masonry in the proposed memorial in honour of the return of their illustrious Grand Master to this country after his long voyage. He rejoiced with the P.G.M. that the proposition went a little beyond Masonry. He quite agreed with the Pro Grand Master that this was an unusual subject and that they ought to show the great world beyond Freemasonry that they were capable of stepping out of Masonry, and associating their great body with the outer world. The three great Masonic Charities were ably supported, and if they wanted more support they did not require a paltry £3000 or £4000. He also entirely and completely agreed with the Pro G.M. when he said that there were some Masons on the ships at sea: but he went beyond the Pro Grand Master, and said there were thousands and tens of thousands of our brethren on the broad seas, that required their assistance, and therefore he appealed to the brethren to support most cordially the proposition of the Pro G.M., as he could not conceive a more English mode of assisting charity, than for the Masons of a great maritime country like England to assist their brethren on the seas. He might add, on behalf of himself, and he might say on the part of his own province, which comprised a very large number of Freemasons, that he believed they all most cordially agreed with the proposition that had been made. (Loud applause.)

Bro. W. R. Marsh here rose to speak, but was met with general cries of "Vote." The Pro Grand Master appealed to the brethren to hear Bro. Marsh, but trusted that in anything that brother might say he would have the good feeling to say nothing which would lead to any discussion. Bro. Marsh then proceeded, expressing his surprise that after what had taken place in the Grand Lodge in September, the present resolution should have been proposed. He objected to it, and would move at once, as an amendment, that £1500—

Bro. A. E. J. McIntyre, G.R., said this could not be done, as notice of motion must be given at the Board of Masters. Bro. Marsh might move a direct negative, that the motion be not affirmed, or that it be referred to the Special Committee to re-consider their report.

Bro. Marsh, after some few remarks, moved that this matter be referred back.

Bro. Baxter Langley, amidst strong marks of dissent, seconded the amendment, and after passing a high compliment to the Earl of Carnarvon for the way in which he had introduced the original motion, and the eloquence with which he had supported it, stated that the brethren knew nothing of this motion before they came into the hall. He had not met with a single brother with whom he had conversed who did not condemn the proposition of the committee. He then advocated the cause of the charities, and said that schemes had been suggested for benefitting them. He thought that a permanent memorial would be a scholarship for the Boys' School, a new wing for the Girls' School, or a new wing for the Benevolent Institution. He then explained that although he was a member of the Special Committee he knew nothing about the recommendation, because he was not able to attend. (Laughter.)

After some remarks from Grand Registrar, the Rev. R. J. Simpson, and the Rev. J. E. Cox, Bro. Marsh withdrew his amendment, and Bro. Baxter Langley withdrew his seconding of it.

The Earl of Carnarvon said: Brethren, I shall make of course no comment on what has passed, but I shall fitly, I think, express the feeling of this Grand Lodge, when I say that they appreciate the good feeling which induces both the worthy brethren who have lately spoken to withdraw from moving this amendment. It is, therefore, my duty to submit to the Grand Lodge the following resolution, which I trust may be recorded as having been unanimously passed,—“That this report be now received and adopted, and that the scheme which it proposes be recommended for adoption to the next Quarterly Communication.

The motion was carried unanimously.

The Earl of Carnarvon: I have to state that I request the Grand Secretary to take formal note of it, that this resolution has been accepted unanimously.

Grand Lodge was then closed in ample form.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

OLD CONCORD LODGE (No. 172).—The installation meeting of the Old Concord Lodge was held on Tuesday evening, at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. George Hockley, W.M., presided. He was supported by all his officers and a very large body of Freemasons. Bro. Harris was first raised to the Third Degree; after which Messrs. Thomas John Lewis, John Richard Doubleday, and E. Richmond Farrow were separately initiated. The ceremonies were performed by the W.M., who, with all his officers, discharged the duties most admirably. The ceremonies had the assistance of musical brethren, who gave great impressiveness and grace to them. Bro. John Emmens, P.M., P.G.P., then ascended the chair and installed Bro. Ward, W.M., elect, as Master of the lodge. After his installation, Bro. Ward, in investing Bro. George Hockley as I.P.M., addressed that brother, and said that though he felt the high honour of being Master of the lodge very much, he nevertheless regretted that the lodge would be deprived of having such an excellent W.M. as Bro. Hockley had proved himself to be. It was, however, a satisfaction to him to know that in the performance of his duties he would have on his left hand so able a brother to assist him when he wanted that assistance as the Immediate Past Master. Bro. Hockley thanked the W.M., and said that whatever assistance he could render to the W.M. he should give with the greatest pleasure. The officers were afterwards appointed: Bros. Alfred Dottridge, S.W.; W. P. Goosey, J.W.; Hancock, Treas.; John Emmens, Sec.; Gaubert, S.D.; Hoadley, J.D.; Gladwell, I.G.; George King, P.M., D.C.; and C. T. Speight, Tyler. Before the lodge was closed the W.M. presented a splendid Past Master's jewel to Bro. George Hockley, and in doing so said it was one of the first duties that devolved upon a Master who was newly appointed like himself, and one of the most pleasing duties he had to perform during his year of office, to present in the name of the lodge to their I.P.M. the jewel which had been awarded to him for the services he had rendered to the lodge during that year of office. He was quite sure that no remarks on his part could increase the pride which all the brethren felt in their I.P.M. They would all agree that the zeal, the assiduity, the courtesy and the gentlemanly demeanour that Bro. Hockley had shown during his year of office had been a pleasure not only to themselves, but to every visitor who had come to that lodge. Bro. Hockley had carried out his year of office in a most satisfactory manner to the brethren; and it must be a proud moment to himself when in the name of the Old Concord Lodge Bro. Hockley was invested by the W.M. with that jewel he now placed on his breast. He trusted Bro. Hockley would keep it in remembrance of his having successfully worked the lodge for the past year, and that he would not feel greater pride in any other jewel he might wear. (Hear, hear.) Bro. Hockley in acknowledging the gift said he could assure the brethren that it was no mere figure of speech on his part when he said that he could scarcely find words (in fact, he could not find words) sufficient to express his gratitude for this last and crowning mark of the brethren's favour. He felt like a man who had undertaken a journey, and who at last had arrived at his destination, only with this difference, that some men undertook journeys under very arduous and difficult circumstances; but he could say that his journey, if they would allow him to use the simile, in that lodge from the time that he was Inner Guard to the present moment had not been of a difficult kind, for it had been one of the most pleasing description, indeed, it had been so from the time he was initiated six years ago! for he had enjoyed—and he believed he enjoyed now—the confidence and esteem also as he went on of every brother in that lodge. They had given him repeated proofs of it. He had in his turn to the best of his ability, and with their kind consideration in overlooking a little fault in the first instance—he had been enabled to accomplish the height of his ambition—to occupy the chair of his mother lodge. As the W.M. had said he hoped he would not feel greater pride in any other jewel he might wear, he could only say that he possessed no other jewel than this, and he desired to possess no other. He should transmit it to his posterity in the hope that they would attempt to become in due course what he considered every man might be or should be—a good Mason. Although he had passed the chair of this lodge he should in no way, if the Great Architect of the Universe gave him health and strength, dissociate himself from it. During the next year he should endeavour to the utmost of his ability to give the W.M. every assistance that lay in his power. He knew perfectly well that there were times when, however capable a Master was of performing his duties, a word, or some little assistance thrown in, might be gratefully received by the W.M. Such would be his place. He would always, on every occasion he possibly could, be on the W.M.'s left hand, and anything else he could do to advance the interests of this lodge he would do to the utmost of his ability. For this last mark of the brethren's favour, and every other they had shown him during his Mastership of the lodge, and in every office he had filled, he returned them his hearty and sincere thanks. (Cheers.) The lodge was afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Dawkins, manager of the Freemasons' Tavern. The toasts were subsequently proposed. Bro. S. Rawson, P.D.G.M. of China, responded for the Grand Officers, and in the course of his speech stated that in his many years' experience he had never seen the Entered Apprentice's Degree worked with more effect by all the officers, from the I.G. up to the W.M. He would like to pay a compliment to one officer in particular. He had never in his life seen the office of Junior Deacon more beautifully performed than it had been by Bro. Gaubert, Bro. Cooper Smith, P.J.G.D. for the province of Oxford, replied for "The Visitors," and the other toasts were afterwards duly honoured. In the course of the evening a beautiful musical entertainment was given, the artistes being Miss Jessie Royd, and Bros. Henry Parker, Stedman, and Thurlay Beale. Among the brethren present during the evening were Past Masters Bros. Gurton, Holland, Jackson, Dixon, Silk, Morrin, Vorley, Geo. King, Emmens, Hockley; and visitors Bros. Cooper Smith, Prov. G.J.W. Oxford; Walker, 862; Gallant, W.M. 813; Crauford, W.M. Union Lodge, Margate; H. Massey (Freemason), besides a very large company of other visitors.

MONTEFIORE LODGE (No. 1017).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street. The W.M., Bro. Blum, presided, and initiated Messrs. Sampson, Samuel and Aaron Marks. The J.W., having undertaken the office of Steward of this lodge for the next festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the lodge voted the sum of fifteen guineas to be placed, in the name of the lodge, on his list. The lodge was then called off, and on its resumption, Bro. S. V. Abrahams, P.M., installed Bro. Victor M. Myers, S.W. and W.M. elect, as W.M. for the year ensuing. The officers appointed were Bros. Blum, I.P.M.; Gulliford, S.W.; J. Lazarus, J.W.; Salomons, S.D.; Hochfeld, J.D.; Lewis Jacobs, Treas.; E. P. Albert, G.P., P.M., Sec.; Ellis, I.G.; Matthias Levy, D.C.; Davis, Steward; Simmons, Wine Steward; and George Smith, Tyler. Before the business of the lodge was concluded, Bro. S. V. Abrahams, P.M., rose and said that he had a very pleasing task to perform. He had been requested, in the name of the lodge, to acknowledge the admirable manner in which the I.P.M. had performed the duties of his office for the past year. He had every satisfaction in making that acknowledgment, because he knew that it was not his own words only that he expressed, but that they were endorsed by the sincere feelings of all the brethren of the lodge. The brethren, anxious to evince to the I.P.M. the regard they had for himself personally, and the manner in which he had discharged his duties, had asked him (Bro. Abrahams) to present to him a jewel as a token of their esteem, which he might wear as a reminder of the efficient performance of his duties. The jewel did not represent in value the feelings which the lodge entertained towards the I.P.M., because it would have been a difficult matter to have a jewel which would properly express it; but, as he knew, Bro. Blum valued the sentiments of the lodge not by the weight of gold or the number of diamonds, but rather for the good fellowship which was evinced by asking his acceptance of the jewel. He knew Bro. Blum would receive it in the true and Masonic manner in which it was given, as a slight acknowledgment of the way in which he had conducted the business of the chair. He (Bro. Abrahams) had been asked to make the presentation, and he could not but congratulate Bro. Blum on having passed through a year highly successfully, particularly so, in more ways than one. They had had the opportunity of initiating into the Order many highly worthy men, who hereafter would shine in the Craft and be truly deserving of any high position they might attain to. In addition to this he might be permitted to say that Bro. Blum's entrance into the chair was marked by an act of charity on the part of the lodge, by giving, as far as it could, assistance to the institutions of the Order. On his leaving the chair the brethren had the happiness of saying they could again assist the Masonic institution; and this was a result most satisfactory to the brethren. Words of flattery and adulation would be unpalatable to Bro. Blum, but if he (Bro. Abrahams) was wanting in any way in expressing what ought to be done on an occasion like the present, Bro. Blum would not attribute it to a want of intention but to a want of ability. The brethren had expressed in presenting that jewel much more than he (Bro. Abrahams) could say, and more than the most eloquent man could express, but he requested to be allowed to say that he hoped the brethren would have the pleasure of seeing Bro. Blum for many years to come. In placing the jewel on the breast of the recipient he felt that, although the jewel might shine itself, there was, a jewel beneath, which shone much brighter—a truly Masonic breast. (Cheers.) Bro. Blum in replying said: I fully appreciate the honour you have conferred upon me to-night; and really I do not think I am able to express my feelings at this moment; but be assured that whatever I have done towards this lodge I have done with a true heart and with the fullest intention to give every satisfaction to you. When I first accepted the office—the high office I may say—you so generously conferred upon me, I promised that I should do my best according to my ability to satisfy you; and I am sure if I have succeeded in that I am retiring with the utmost pleasure. The honour and the good fellowship which you have shown me to-night, expressed by our Past Master Abrahams so ably, really overpowered me; and though this might be the proper place I am not fit to respond to those able words in proper form at this moment, but I am sure were I to speak for hours I could not express more than I shall in these few words—brethren, I fully acknowledge the honour you have done me, and I thank you. (Hearty applause.) The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet at the Café Restaurant Royal. The customary toasts followed. Bro. Thomas Fenn, P.G.D., and Bro. E. P. Albert, G.P., responded for "The Grand Officers." The W.M. in proposing "The Initiates," said that those brethren had already evinced their practical feeling of Freemasonry by contributing handsomely to the Benevolent Fund of the lodge. Bros. Marks and Samuel replied, and Bro. Blum proposed "The W.M.," and stated with what pleasure he had seen that brother gradually go up the ladder of promotion till he reached the highest honour the lodge could bestow on any of its members. The W.M. having replied, Bro. Blum's health was proposed by the W.M., and Bro. Blum in replying observed: I said before in the lodge that I was somewhat at a loss to respond to the words which P.M. Abrahams spoke in my favour. I am afraid I am in a somewhat similar position at this moment, for you, brethren, have almost excelled him in flattering me. I have done no better than others. I am sure I have done nothing else but my duty. You, brethren, appointed me to that elevated position which I have occupied for twelve months, and I am sure no man ever felt more proud of that position than I did during the time I occupied the chair. But at this present moment, when I have passed it, I feel that though it was somewhat of a trouble, that trouble was a pleasure to me, because I knew that every brother would forgive any shortcomings, as they promised me the first night. If it had not been for the very judicious selection of my officers and the very eminent assistance which I have received from my immediate and other Past Masters I could never have fulfilled the duties as ably as I have done. This is an occasion when I may publicly announce to them my grateful thanks for their able assistance rendered to me during my year of office; and I know that whatever I may say now is not sufficient to express what I feel. You have evinced your good will towards me by presenting me with a beautiful jewel. Believe me, this will be a sweet recollection to me as long as I shall live. I shall always, if I am in this or any other country, remember that this has been presented by the members of the Montefiore Lodge from their esteem and good will towards me. And let me assure you, once and for all, that I shall always do my best to maintain and uphold the dignity of the Montefiore Lodge. Allow me to resume my seat by returning you my most sincere thanks, W.M., for proposing in such an eloquent manner my health, and you, brethren, for responding to the same in such a cheerful manner as you have done, one and all. (Cheers.) The other toasts were then proposed and responded to, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated. An excellent selection of music was given in the course of the evening by Bro. Grove Ellis, Bro. Grove Ellis, jun., Mr. Field, and the Misses Fanny and Clara Perfit.

GUERNSEY.—Doyle's Lodge of Fellowship (No. 84).—The usual meeting for the installation of the W.M. for the coming year was held at the Masonic Hall, Guernsey, on the 27th ult. The members having at a former meeting decided that they could not entrust the management of this lodge to a more courteous or more capable director than their present excellent W.M., Bro. Captain Highton Wilkins, a re-election resulted, and necessarily therefore the installation ceremony of the 27th ult. was of a purely formal character. After a few appropriate remarks from the W.M., Bro. Captain Highton Wilkins proceeded to name his officers. The selection was a very judicious one, and the well-known character and utility of the brethren so chosen is a guarantee for the successful working of the lodge for the next year. Bro. C. K. Corbin was named S.W.; Bros. Captain Corbin, J.W.; Lieut.-Col. W. M. Jones, S.D.; J. W. Ozanne, J.D.; and Bucktrout, I.G. The appointments of Treasurer and Secretary continue in the hands of our long and steady supporters of the interests of this lodge, namely, Past Masters Bros. J. Guilbert and F. Clarke. After the lodge was closed the brethren repaired to Bro. Gardner's Hotel on the Esplanade, where a splendid banquet was served, to which some forty of the brethren did ample justice. Amongst the brethren present at lodge and banquet we noticed Bros. James Galliene, P.D.P.G.M.; G. F. La Serre, P.D.G.M. Central District of Canada, and Past Grand H. of Canada; Balfour Cockburn, 31°, and P.D. G.S.W. of Gibraltar; Past Masters Stickland, Randall, Martin, Colonel Guerin, Inman, &c.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the festival of St. John on Wednesday, 28th December, when their Senior Warden for the past year, Bro. Robert Sharpe, Past Provincial Grand Organist, was installed the Worshipful Master for the year ensuing. Despite the exceptionally wet weather and the Christmas holidays, a goodly number of the brethren attended, the Board of Installed Masters numbering twelve, and including two of the oldest Past Masters of this ancient and influential lodge. The ceremony of installation was performed in the most impressive manner by the Grand Secretary of the Province of Hants and the Isle of Wight, and one of the Past Masters of the lodge, Bro. Le Feuvre, who at the close received the cordial thanks of the brethren for his very efficient and skilful working. Bro. Sharpe invested his officers as follows:—Bros. C. J. Phillips, S.W.; C. W. A. Jellicoe, J.W.; Rev. E. Y. Nepean, Chaplain; J. E. Le Feuvre, P.M., Treas.; J. R. Weston, P.M., Sec.; J. Cole, S.D.; Jennings, J.D.; H. M. Pike, Organist; Robertson and Obree, Stewards; Biggs, Tyler; and Headland and Vare, Assistant Tylers. In thanking the lodge for their confidence, the W.M. said: In placing me in the very proud position of W.M. of this old and flourishing lodge you have conferred upon me an honour which I esteem and value most highly. To-day, I may say, I have attained through your kindness the summit of my Masonic ambition, for I cannot conceive any position in the Masonic world on which a brother can look with more longing eyes or greater pride than that of W.M. of a lodge with such a past history and present influence as that of the Royal Gloucester. I am not unmindful of the very great and grave responsibilities incurred by me in undertaking the duties of this chair; at the same time, with the assistance and support which has been so kindly promised me on every hand, I am hopeful of being able to carry out those duties in such a manner as not to forfeit your confidence and esteem. My earnest desire shall be to promote the prosperity of the lodge and the comfort of its members, and if I fail in any particular—believe me, failure shall only emanate from the head and not the heart—I have confidence in the belief that I shall not appeal in vain to your forbearance and consideration. The lodge subsequently voted £10 to one of the Masonic Charities, and a Past Master's jewel to Bro. W. Hickman (son of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master) in recognition of his services as W.M. of the lodge during the year just closed. At the banquet, which was served later in the evening by Bro. Dartnall, the customary toasts were given. Bro. Ogden, of the Beaureper Lodge, Belper, 787, and Bro. Geo. Passenger, jun., S.W. of the Southampton Lodge, 394, responding to that of "The Visitors;" Bro. C. A. Dyer, the W.M. of the Peace and Harmony Lodge, 359, acknowledging "Sister Lodges;" and P.M. Abraham, the Mayor of Southampton, responding for "The Past Masters." In acknowledging the toast of "The Worshipful Master," Bro. Sharpe said, the duty before him was one of such great responsibility that he failed to think of words which would adequately convey his gratitude to Bro. Hickman, the I.P.M., for the kindness which had prompted him to speak so generously of him, the W.M., and to all the brethren for the cordiality with which they had received the toast. There was one thing for which at the outset of his year of office he asked them to pardon him for not doing, viz., the perpetuation of those flights of oratory with which the lodge had been favoured from the chair during the past few years. He was painfully conscious of his own utter weakness and inability as an orator, and he hoped they would in this respect accept deeds in lieu of words. If the same unanimous goodwill and brotherly kindness was manifested towards him in the future as at the present, he had no doubt they would have a fairly prosperous and withal a happy year, which he heartily wished them one and all. During the evening several songs were sung, including, by Bro. Senior Warden, a Masonic song, composed on the occasion of the centenary of the lodge several years since by the Worshipful Master, to words by his father-in-law, Past Master G. M. Passenger, P. Prov. G.S.W.; nor must the masterly performances of the W.M. on the fine harmonium of the lodge be forgotten, as among some of the pleasanter memories both at this and other Royal Gloucester gatherings now through some years.

HANLEY.—Menturia Lodge (No. 418).—The St. John's Festival of this lodge was held on the 17th ult. Lodge was opened in due form, in the lodge-room at the Mechanics' Hall, by Bro. Pitchford, the retiring W.M., and that brother, with the assistance of Bro. Taylor, P.P.S.G.W., and Bro. Montford, installed, with the ancient ceremonies Bro. James Wain as W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The newly elected W.M. afterwards appointed the following as his officers:—Bros. Thomas Ashworth, S.W.; John Beardmore, J.W.; Spencer Lawton, S.D.; Titus Jones, J.D.; W. J. Carr, I.G.; John Bromley, Steward; the Rev. Joseph Westbury, Chaplain; Stringer, Organist; Thomas Bickley, P.M., P.G.J.D., Treasurer; Fred Brandon, Secretary; James Montford, P.M., D.C. The banquet was served at the Queen's Hotel, in Bro. Gofton's exquisite style. After the banquet, the loyal toasts were given from the chair, and were musically supplemented, Bro. Taylor singing the solos. The principal Masonic toasts were also given from the chair. Bro. Rogers (Birmingham), who was received with considerable applause, proposed "The R.W. the Earl of Shrewsbury, P.G.M.," mentioning that on the occasion of the installing of Bro. the Prince of Wales, the Earl had placed his house in Dover-street at the service of the Staffordshire brethren. At the dejeuner a table was allotted to each lodge in the province, and vehicles were provided to convey the Staffordshire brethren to the scene of the great ceremony. The toast was given with Masonic honours, vigorously led by Bro. Rodgers, as father of the lodge. The song, "The fine Masonic Brother," was sung by Bro. Greatbach. Bro. Montford proposed "The R.W.D.P.G.M. and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Past and Present," several of whom, he observed, were present. At this stage, Bro. Rodgers, being forced to leave to catch a train, was treated to a hearty round of cheering, which he feelingly acknowledged, congratulating the lodge on its present evident vitality as compared with its state in the far away past. The glee "Mynheer Van Dunk" was capably sung by Bros. Taylor, Montford, Brandon, and Wain on the brother's departure. Bro. Bickley acknowledged the toast of "The P.G. Officers." Bro. Marsh also responded. Bro. Pitchford, the Past W.M., proposed "The W.M.," whom it had been a satisfaction to him to install, and who he was quite sure would maintain the dignity of the office. Bro. Wain, in responding, said he hoped to maintain the dignity of the lodge and its prestige, and at the end of his year of office to resign the office as untarnished as he found it. Bro. Crapper proposed "The Visiting Brethren," to which several brethren responded. Bro. Bradford proposed "The Host, Bro. Gofton," alluding in congratulatory terms to Bro. Gofton's recent marriage. Bro. Gofton, in responding, said he had recently entered another lodge, the lodge of matrimony, and had just returned from a short consequent holiday, but he could assure the brethren that nearly the whole time he had been absent he had had that day's banquet on the brain, and was gratified to learn that it had given satisfaction. Bro. Hales, proposing "The I.P.M.," said the thanks of the lodge were due to Bro. Pitchford for the exertions he had put forth during his year of office. Bro. Pitchford, responding, said he had as Master discharged the duties to the best of his ability, and though he was conscious of many failures, he carried out of office many pleasant reminiscences of his official year. Bro. Hamshaw proposed "The Officers of the Lodge," and the toast was acknowledged by the S.W. Bro. Piercy proposed "The Masonic Charities," observing that Menturia stood second to no lodge in the province in respect of support of the charities. Bro. Taylor, in responding, said that the lodge numbered something like a score of life subscriberships, and whoever had been instrumental in securing this result might feel proud, for their charities stood first and foremost of charities in the world. Some complained that too good an education was imparted in their schools; they, however, did not regard the children as waifs and strays, but as children of gentlemen, and treated them accordingly, the education given being above that of any other charity. But in this province, besides supporting the school and other general charities of the Order, they were now supporting and educating at home thirteen fatherless children of the province, besides otherwise assisting the widowed mothers. The Tyler's toast, proposed by Bro. Palmer, closed the programme. In the course of the evening, songs were contributed by Bros. Brandon, Mountford, Taylor, and White.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The Christmas meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, Dec. 27th, when there were present Bros. Col. Stuart, P.G.S.W. England, W.M.; Wilkinson Finlinson, P.M., S.W.; Capt. Colburn, J.W.; Coombs, S.D.; Allan, J.D.; Thody, I.G.; Reynolds, Tyler; Dr. Prior, P.M., Sec.; Alderman Sergeant, Treas.; Alderman Bull, Steward; Rev. C. Brereton, B.C.L., R.D., Chap.; Capt. Green, I.P.M.; and other brethren to the number of nineteen; seventeen of whom sat down after labour to a very good supper. The routine business having been disposed of, the I.P.M. read a communication that he had received when W.M. from the Luton, Leighton-Buzzard, and Dunstable Lodges, stating that those three lodges had passed a resolution in favour of petitioning Grand Lodge to create Bedfordshire a province, and asking the Stuart (Bedford) Lodge to co-operate with them in this object. After some discussion it was proposed, seconded, and carried unanimously that the question should be referred to a committee, consisting of the P.M.'s and officers of the lodge, which should report upon the whole subject to the lodge at some future meeting. The general feeling seemed opposed to the measure, but the brethren deemed it better to obtain more information before coming to a definite conclusion upon so important a subject.

Mark Masonry.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 1).—The January meeting of the above lodge was held on Tuesday last, at the Masonic Rooms, Little Britain. Present: Bro. Charles Hursley, W.M.; E. H. Thielley, S.W.; Thomas Cubitt, P.M.; H. C. Levander, P.M., Treas.; George Kenning, P.M., Sec.; T. Burdett Yeoman, P.M.; George Newnham, W. E. Newton, and John Gilbert, Tyler. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The candidate for advancement was unable to be present. There being no other business, the lodge was closed in due form.

Scotland.

AUCHTERADER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 46).—This lodge celebrated the festival of St. John on Wednesday, 27th ult. In the evening the brethren met in their lodge, where they formed themselves into a procession, and headed by the band of the 15th Perth Rifles and a number of torch-bearers, marched through the town. There having been no procession by the Masons for a long number of years, their turn-out on Tuesday night attracted much attention. It was no easy task for the processionists to march through the "lang town" amongst deep snow. Lately a large number of new members joined the society. A business meeting was afterwards held, and the following appointed office-bearers:—Messrs. P. Malcolm, P.W.M.; Josiah Smitton, P.M.; John Sinclair, D.M.; Andrew Miller, G.M.; Dr. M'Fec, G.W.; T. Caw, J.W.; Robert Miller and David M'Ewen, Stewards; A. G. Reid, Secretary; James Smitton, Treasurer; George Mailer, jun., J.W.; George Mailer, sen., Chaplain; David Martin, Tyler; and James M'Culloch, Hall-keeper. The brethren afterwards dined together.

BEITH.—St. John's Lodge (No. 157).—The annual festival of this lodge was held on the evening of Wednesday, 27th ult. Bro. Wm. Grey, W.M., occupied the chair. The brethren were pleased to receive a deputation of the Royal Blues, from Kilbirnie, headed by Bro. M'Queen; a deputation from Blair Dalry, headed by Bro. Thorburn; and a deputation from the Mother Kilwinning, headed by Bro. Wylie. The brethren, with a display of lighted torches, preceded by the instrumental band, escorted the W.M. from his residence to the lodge-room. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and responded to, the evening was spent in toast, song, and sentiment, and selections by the band were given at intervals.

JOHNSTONE.—Houston St. Johnstone Lodge (No. 242).—This lodge celebrated the anniversary of St. John on the 27th ult., in the Cross Keys Hotel, which belongs to Mr. David Stevenson. There was no public promenade with music. The weather was very inauspicious. The brethren spent the evening very felicitously.

GRANGEMOUTH.—Zetland Lodge (No. 391).—The annual festival of St. John was celebrated by this lodge on Wednesday night, the 27th ult., in the Royal Hotel. Previous to the banquet the following office-bearers were installed:—Bros. James Kennedy, W.M.; James Baxter, P.M.; Andrew Taylor, S.M.; Eml. Christensen, D.M.; William Peddie, S.W.; E. Voigt, J.W.; James Walls, Sec.; George Young, Treas.; Thomas Osborne, S.D.; John Houston, J.D.; Theo. Dunkel, S.S.; George Palmer, J.S.; Peter Buchanan, B.B.; Rev. A. Falconer, Hon. Chap.; John Gibson, Bard; John Lawson, Architect; Iver J. Klovberg, Foreign Correspondent; S. Selstrim, I.G.; George Wilson, Tyler. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts followed, and also songs from several of the brethren. A very pleasant evening was spent.

EDINBURGH.—Lodge Caledonian (No. 392).—The brethren of this lodge met in the Albert Street Hotel, Hanover-street, Edinburgh, on Wednesday, 27th December, 1876, for the election and installation of office-bearers for the ensuing year. There was a very large attendance of the brethren, and all the Past Masters were present, except one. The lodge was opened by Past Master Bro. Donald Swanson, and, after the office-bearers who had been previously nominated had been elected, he conducted the installation of the Right Worshipful Master, Bro. Robert Bryce. The newly elected and installed W.M. then proceeded to install the remainder of the office-bearers in the following order:—Bros. A. D. Cairns, P.M. and Treas.; Donald Swanson, D.M.; Geddes Calder, S.W.; William Archibald, J.W.; Robert Lumsden, Sec.; Rev. A. Stewart Muir, Chaplain; John Macpherson, S.D.; Robert Steele, J.D.; W. B. Brodie, Architect; Jas. Gray, 1st Std. Br.; Wm. Donaldson, 2nd Std. Br.; John Gray, G.S.; J. Breckenridge and J. Kirk, Stewards; Charles Robertson, Bard; Alexander Peacock, B.B.; R. M. Kerr, Physician; A. Burnet Reid, I.G.; David Young, Tyler. Committee—Bros. W. W. Wotherspoon, P. R. Haddow, David Sang, Robert Cumming, C. J. Paton, William Marshall, A. R. Macqueen, John Fletcher. The installation ceremonial having been concluded, the lodge was closed, and the brethren having unclothed, repaired to the banqueting-room, where a sumptuous dinner was in waiting for them. Justice having been done to the good things, they proceeded to the robing-room, and being again duly clothed, re-assembled in the lodge room, when the lodge was again opened by the W.M. for the purpose of receiving deputations, and of sending deputations to the various lodges of the city, as is usual on the Festival of St. John the Evangelist. The usual routine toasts having been disposed of, deputations were sent out, and those from other lodges received, the brethren at the head of which gave brief congratulatory addresses. At a later period of the evening a deputation appeared, headed by Bro. Donald Macgregor, M.P. for the Leith Burghs; and it was proposed by the R.W. Master, Bro. Bryce, that as Bro. Macgregor had done good service in the Craft he should be affiliated a member of the Lodge Caledonian, which motion, having been seconded by Bro. Chalmers J. Paton, Past Master, was unanimously agreed to. The lodge being called from refreshment to labour, Bro. Macgregor advanced to the altar and was duly affiliated. During the evening a number of very pleasant songs were sung and recitations given. The lodge was closed in due form by the W.M.

ROTHESAY.—St. John's Lodge (No. 392).—This lodge celebrated their anniversary on Wednesday, 27th ult., by a supper in the Victoria Hotel, Bro. Alexander Duncan, W.M., presiding. About 50 brethren were present, and a very harmonious evening was spent.

MILLPORT.—Lodge Kelburne (No. 459).—At the meeting of this lodge on St. John's-night, the following brethren were elected office-bearers for the ensuing year, namely:—Wm. Wishart, W.M.; Matthew Swan, P.M.; Rev. H. H. Richardson, D.M.; Dr. McGowan, S.M.; John Cunningham, S.W.; James McConnochie, J.W.; William McGraw, D.C.; James Ross, Treas.; John Jowill, Sec.; Alex. Gibb, S.D.; James Paterson, J.D.; Wm. Orr, B.B.; John McLaughlin, S.B.; Wm. McLaughlin, I.G.; Thos. Hunter, Tyler; Alex. Houston, J. Montgomery, J. Pattison, and Wm. Dickson, Stewards. The installation was unavoidably postponed, on account of the indisposition of Bro. Wm. Wishart, the new W.M., who was seriously injured by being blown off the roof of his house during a severe storm which occurred about a month ago. The lodge having been closed in ancient form, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment. It was intimated that the lodge would shortly receive an official visit from Bro. Charles Dalrymple, M.P., and other officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for giving them a hearty reception. It may be mentioned that the Rev. H. H. Richardson has been elected P.G. Chaplain, and Alexander Hunter, P.G.J.D. Both are members of the Lodge Kelburne.

DUBLIN.

On Saturday last, previous to the meeting of the corporation, the Liberal members held a meeting, pursuant to a circular which had been issued, to consider what steps should be taken to censure the Lord Mayor for having recently entertained in the Mansion House sixty gentlemen at a private dinner, to which a Masonic character has been attributed. The circular represented the question to be one of vital importance to the Liberal interests. After prolonged deliberation, the meeting determined to permit the Lord Mayor to leave the Mansion House uncensured. Among those present were at least three brethren.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual new year's entertainment to the inmates of the Asylum at Croydon was given on Wednesday last, and, in spite of the very bad weather, several of the friends and supporters of the Institution made the journey, in order to assist in giving the old folks a day's enjoyment. Among the ladies and brethren who attended were Bro. Dr. Strong, honorary surgeon of the Institution; Mrs. Strong; Bro. James Terry, P.M., Prov. G. Dir of Cers. Herts., Secretary of the Institution; Mrs. Terry, Master J. E. Terry, Miss Terry, Bro. John Newton, W.M. 1607; Bro. Wallington, P.M. 860; Bro. W. Cook, J. Killick, C. Gibson, E. G. Legge, Treasurer 1607; C. H. Webb, 174; Baldwin, Mrs. Baldwin, Bro. W. Lane (Collector), Mrs. Lane, Bro. W. H. Main, P.M. 860, and Mrs. Main; Bro. R. H. Halford, J.D. 228; Mrs. Halford; Bro. R. Pearcey, 228; Miss Pearcey; Bro. C. Reepe, Bro. H. Massey (Freemason), Mrs. Massey, Bro. J. Stock, S.D. 1178, Mrs. Stock, Mr. Robinson, and Mrs. Cooksey.

The proceedings commenced at two o'clock, when the whole party of visitors and inmates sat down to a splendid repast, consisting of Christmas cheer. The hall was beautifully decorated with emblems of the season, among which where the "Merry Christmas," "A Happy New Year," and "Welcome." There were also some Masonic devices on the walls, and wreaths of artificial flowers. The flowers and choice plants on the table were lent by Dr. Strong, who took the head of the table, having on his left Mrs. Terry. Bro. Terry took the vice-chair, and the visitors assisted in ministering to the comforts of the old people. All the provisions were presented by some of the visitors. Mrs. Strong presented the plum puddings, Mrs. Terry the mince pies, and Bro. Terry the turkeys and fowls.

After the dinner, the inmates of the asylum were presented with packets of tea and tobacco, given by Bro. W. Hale, of Drury Lane; and Bros. Legge and Webb presented each inmate with a quart bottle of fine whiskey.

Bro. Fowler, 754, sent a case of Lorne whiskey, and Bro. James Hill, S.W. 228, a case of cherry brandy.

After dinner the ladies paid a series of visits to the annuitants' residences, took tea with them, and kept them cheerful till the entertainment of the evening commenced.

At seven o'clock they all assembled in the hall, where the company were treated to a display of dissolving views, the expense of which exhibition was defrayed by Bros. Halford, Pearcey, Reepe, and Stock.

During the interval between the two parts of the exhibition the company were regaled with cake and wine. The whole of the arrangements, which gave general satisfaction both to the annuitants and visitors, were ably conducted from beginning to end.

Mrs. Cooksey presided at the piano, which was played at intervals during the evening, and Miss Terry as she always does on these occasions, delighted the company with some choice performances of vocal music.

The dissolving views showed different scenes in old and new London, and were wonderfully faithful productions. After having been shown old and new London, the visitors were taken by surprise by an exact representation of the asylum in which they were then sitting, and the closing piece was a likeness of Bro. James Terry, the Secretary, on the appearance of which the company immediately struck up, "For he's a Jolly Good Fellow."

In the course of the evening Bro. Norris, the Warden of the Asylum, presented to Dr. Strong, in the name of the inmates, a handsome gold lever hunting watch, which had been subscribed for by the annuitants. The following inscription in the case of the watch explains the presentation: "Presented by the residents in the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Croydon, to Henry John Strong, Esq., M.D., in grateful appreciation of many acts of loving kindness evinced by him as honorary surgeon for thirteen years, during which time he faithfully and assiduously ministered to their comforts and alleviated their sufferings in every way. 3rd January, 1877." The presentation was accompanied by a neat little speech, in which Bro. Norris set forth the many particulars in which the annuitants were indebted to Dr. Strong. There was also presented to the Doctor a handsome mahogany case for microscopical objects, with a somewhat similar inscription to that on the watch. There was also presented to Mrs. Strong a beautiful gold locket, with her monogram on it in burnished gold. Both Dr. Strong and Mrs. Strong acknowledged the gifts in appropriate terms. A vote of thanks was awarded to the founders of the feast, and Bro. Terry's services were acknowledged by a vote of thanks. In the course of his reply Bro. Terry informed the company that he had received from the province of West Lancashire a very handsome donation to defray the expenses of the entertainment of that day; and he was informed that Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M., was amongst the contributors to this donation.

The brethren and ladies returned to town late in the evening, after wishing all the inmates of the Asylum a 'Happy New Year.'

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The first meeting of the Board of Stewards for the forthcoming festival of 12th February, was held on Thursday, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. The brethren present were Bros. S. Rawson, Geo. Lambert, W. Hale, G. Verry, G. M. E. Snow, S. Rosenthal, Joseph Tanner, J. M. Case, Rev. R. J. Simpson, H. R. Cooper Smith, Rev. W. Taylor Jones, S. G. Foxall, J. W. Baldwin, Jas. Faulkner, W. J. Ferguson, G. H. Wright, C. W. Gray, Geo. Roper, James Shilcock, Walter Wellsman, W. Hicks, S. H. Webb, C. J. Livett, A. Durrant, J. M. Lockwood, John P. Probert, Geo. Corble, Chas. H. Turner, F. Pendred, John S. Merick, J. Knight, J. Hassock, Chas. Daniel, Col. H. Somerville Burney, C. Creedy, Chas. W. Clark, Joseph Clever, Robt. Grigg, Nelson Reed, J. Hutchinson, Robert E. Stevenson, W. Knight, J. T. Robertson, H. Higgins, Thos. Smith, Thos. Hastings, Samuel H. Rawley, W. S. Cantrell, W. Toye, Robt. Secker, Geo. J. Row, E. H. Thielay, B. Carter, Capt. W. Reg. W. Williams, H. A. Stacey, Geo. R. Saper, and S. R. Lambie.

Bro. Terry announced that the 14th of February, which day the Prince of Wales had appointed for the festival, being Ash Wednesday, that was pointed out to Prince Leopold, who had consented to take the chair, and His Royal Highness altered the day for the festival to Monday, the 12th.

Bro. J. M. Case, J.G.D., was elected president of the Board; S. Tomkins, G.T., Treas.; and James Terry, Sec. Bro. Terry said he had already 220 stewards. The board then settled the bill of fare for the festival with Bro. Dawkins, the manager of Freemasons' Tavern. The price of the ladies' tickets was fixed at 10s. 6d. each; the gentlemen's tickets one guinea. Authority was given for printing 750 tickets; to be sent to each steward. Twenty complimentary tickets were authorised. Directions were given for applying to the Board of General Purposes for the use of the Temple. The Steward's fee was fixed at two guineas. Thirty guineas were authorised to be disbursed for music. The Musical Committee was appointed, Bros. H. M. Levy, S. Rosenthal, C. J. Livett, and Martyn being elected, Bro. Case being president of that committee. The toasts of last festival were arranged to be on the programme for this year. The board then adjourned to the 29th inst. at 4 p.m.

"Twenty years of the Life of a City Buyer," which will be full of home and continental incidents, is in the press.

Masonic and General Tidings.

Her Majesty the Queen has been graciously pleased to confer the Grand Cross of the Star of India on Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn.

A presentation was made at Sandringham on Monday, the 1st inst., to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales by the clergy and tenantry of the estate, "in commemoration of his safe and happy return to his country home, after a most successful visit to British India." The casket, specially designed and manufactured by Bro. Emanuel, of the Hard, Portsea, is in the repoussé style, and of oriental character, depicting scenes connected with the Prince's visit, and bears his portrait. The presentation, which took place at the hall, was made by the Rev. Wm. Lake Onslow on behalf of the donors, who were present on the occasion.

The Archbishop of Canterbury proposes to leave Addington Park for three weeks. Letters for his Grace to be addressed to the Chaplain, Lambeth Palace. All communications respecting the vacant diocese of Truro to be addressed to the Vicar-General's Office, Doctors'-commons.

The Town Council of Southampton have resolved to support the memorial to the Government for the establishment of the India Museum upon the Thames Embankment.

We are given to understand that a prose work will shortly be published with the somewhat strange title of "Peregrinations in Hell." Two D.D.'s of the Church of England will write the preface.

We understand that Bro. T. Burdett (Yeoman) is about to publish his Masonic and other poems, by the request of many brethren. It is his intention to devote the profits to the Masonic Charities. We wish him success.

The Quarterly Meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire will be held in the Masonic Hall, Leeds, on Wednesday, the 10th January.

We think it right to state that the translation of the "Symbol Tafel," which appeared in our Christmas number, is taken from a paper in the Bauhütte by Bro. Dr. R. Schoener.

Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge of Instruction, No. 1602, meets every Friday evening, at 25, King Edward-street, Liverpool-road, N., at half-past seven. Bro. W. H. Lee, W.M. 975, P.M. 1524, has been elected Preceptor.

The first meeting of the Great Northern Lodge of Instruction, No. 1287, was held on Thursday evening, at the Berwick Arms, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and was well attended. The new lodge will meet regularly every Thursday evening, at eight o'clock.

BELGRAVE LODGE OF INSTRUCTION.—In our late notice of the removal of this lodge from the Lyceum Tavern, 354, Strand, and the consequent opportunity afforded brethren for establishing one or more lodges in this central locality, the name of the Proprietor was inadvertently misspelt. Our attention having been called, we correct same by stating that Bro. Charles Cann, 192, is the Proprietor.

WALTERS TESTIMONIAL.—A final meeting of the committee took place on Saturday last, at the offices of Dr. Baxter Langley, and we are happy in being able to state that the amount subscribed has already reached the handsome sum of £170. The testimonial will assume the form of a purse, and the presentation will take place at Anderton's Hotel on Saturday, the 27th inst.

CIVILIZATION OF AFRICA.—We learn that the Prince of Wales has declined, on advice, to accept the presidency of the British committee intended to co-operate with the association formed under the presidency of the King of the Belgians for the purpose of promoting the exploration and improvement of Africa.

Mrs. Brassey, relict of the late Mr. Brassey, the railway contractor, and mother of Bro. Thomas Brassey, M.P. for Hastings, died at the Victoria Hotel, St. Leonards, on Wednesday afternoon.

A special meeting of the members of the Eastern Star Lodge of Instruction will be held on the 15th inst., to determine on the future of the lodge.

EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES.—One of those gatherings, marking the interest taken by some of our large firms, in catering for the amusement and instruction of their employes, took place on Wednesday evening, the 3rd inst., at Messrs. Oetzmann & Co.'s, the well-known house furnishers, of Hampstead-road, in connection with the mutual improvement society and library established on the premises, when a lecture was delivered to an audience of about five hundred, in one of their large show-rooms, by the Rev. Jackson Wray, entitled, "The Wisdom of Aesop." The lecture, which is one of the course delivered to the Young Men's Christian Association at Exeter Hall, is full of the mirth and wisdom of the old fabulist, and well adapted to the occasion and the present season.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Few persons are so favoured by circumstances or so fortified by nature as to enable them to pass unscathed the sore trials of an inclement season. With catarrh, coughs, and influenza everywhere abounding, the ointment, diligently rubbed upon the chest, checks the worst assaults of these maladies and securely wards off more grave and dangerous diseases of the throat and lungs. The truth of this assertion must remain unquestioned in the face of thousands of unimpeachable living attestors, who have personally derived the utmost possible benefit from this simple treatment when their present sufferings were appalling, and their prospects most disheartening. Both remedies act admirably together.—ADVT.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, JAN. 6, 1877.

THE NEW YEAR.

With the new year we beg to offer to our many readers, in all parts of the known world, our hearty good wishes for a happy new year and as they say, "many of them." The passage of time has ever been a favourite theme for the moralist and the sentimentalist, as well as for the serious philosopher, or the impressive teacher. Indeed it is, we think, almost impossible for any one, unless entirely deadened to every sense of general or personal teaching, of external or internal impressions, not but to feel often much moved by the remembrance of the flight of time, the departure of an old year, the advent of a new one. For time has a deep and abiding interest for us all alike, inasmuch as it constitutes the span and the limit of our own little evanescent life. As we look back to-day in our minds on the "years that are past," as we count each yearly calendar which makes up our own humble chronicle, as we survey the onward march of events, and the changes and perturbations of the world in which we live, we see how swiftly time has sped away, amid those hurrying years which we have called our own. We were young and active, and hale and strong, but yesterday, as it were, in the panorama of life, and now we are weak and weary, tempest-tossed and time-tried old men to-day. Youth and maturity have yielded to the tottering steps of age, and our sands are running out apace. For us the change from the old to the new year must have many awakening considerations, may have some special and lasting concern. And even those of us on whom no signs of decrepitude or decadence as yet appear, to whom life is still given in ample measure, and in happy powers, even they must feel, we think, that every new year has a personal message full voiced if loving for them. We do not propose to preach a sermon, and therefore we will merely add, without too much of sentimentality, that each new year reminds us necessarily of the old—of old friends, old days, old scenes, old dreams. It is a very curious fact, alike in our human physiology and our human psychology, that we are none of us the same as the years pass over our heads. We seem to be so; we go about our wonted duties; we eat, sleep, speak, move, act like other men, and yet for us all a change, often imperceptible, is coming on us year by year. But amidst all this tendency to physical and moral change, remember, one thing ever clings to us all—the humanity of our being. For us, unless we are hopeless unbelievers, or dreary materialists, this world has ever a two-fold interest, in that it calls us for a time to a passing present, in that it is the pathway to another and a better, and an eternal existence. The friends we love, the hopes we cherish, the affections we prize, the home we count so dear, the pleasant attractions which surround our pathway, and make life so welcome and so enjoyable to us all, in its purest aspects—in all these things we have a most living interest and concern, even though we know that they are at the best but "passing shadows" which fall upon "this fitful scene." Still, without them life would not be life. Wanting them, man would know neither happiness nor hope, neither refreshment nor rest here. And within due bounds, not only is our regard for these earthly ties and sympathies allowable, most allowable, but some of the best emotions of man's nature come from this full play of the tidal waves of love, tenderness, devotion, reverence, affection. And if, as we said before, they, alas! "perish with the using," if they still are earthly and decaying, yes, and dying all, yet there lingers with them the breath of primeval innocence, there resides in them a germ of eternal growth and fruition. Yes, Hope, like a meteor star, and with uplifted hand, points ever through this world to the next, from time to eternity, amid blighted hopes and faded hours, and broken hearts, and haunting sorrows, to that far off land, where the "wicked cease from troubling," where the "weary are at rest," and where all that was good and true, and beautiful here, is destined to adorn and beatify we humbly hope and believe the eternal destiny of our moral being. What a wonderful thing, then, is Time, how full of temporal responsibilities, how pregnant with immortal aspirations. If to-day we look back on past hours with a sigh, remembering faded years, and parted friends, if we regard the new year with mingled feelings of doubt and fear, as ignorant of what remains for us behind Time's mysterious veil, we still can learn, in faith and trust, to look on, through all these outer signs and things, to that greater future, when all shall be made plain and enduring for evermore. Each new year tells us that we have reached another milestone on our journey, another turning on our road. How much longer we shall travel on who of us all can say? Leave, then, we must, and leave we will, the future pathway of our feet to the infinite goodness and wisdom of the G.A.O.T.U., and amid the tumults of time, the revolutions of the world, the progress of years, the passing away of those we love, amid the inevitable changes and chances of this most mortal state, we as faithful Craftsmen can commit, without a fear or hesitation, all our plans and hopes and joys and longings, and our future and present life to the good Providence of an Eternal God.

TIME AND CHANGE.

It is impossible, though we be purely Freemasons, and in no sense of the word, however remote, politicians, that we cannot but feel deeply interested in those general events of public life which the old and new year bring before us all. Without expressing opinions, we still can deal with facts, and these facts, in our view, are very weighty ones, indeed! We leave 1876, and enter on 1877, in the midst of anxious solicitude for the peace of Europe. A cruel war has devastated some fair provinces, and deeds of license and barbarism, always evoked by the ruthless genius of war, have made humanity shudder, and left us a tale of horror which other generations will denounce and deplore. In the interest of Peace, all Europe seems at last agreed, and we can only trust that by some well-adjusted measures the Conference at Constantinople will secure the pacification and good government of Bulgaria and the Herzegovina, and the tranquil progress of Servia and Roumania. Not only this, but we, who that in Turkey itself identical rights may be meted out to all creeds and classes, and that good government and uncorrupt legislation may be the heritage of Mussulmans and Christian and Hebrew equally. It is impossible but as Freemasons we should desiderate the prevalence of peace, and fervently pray that in the great cause of civilization and humanity, the sword will be sheathed which has wrought such havoc amid an innocent and suffering people, and that for the future any repetition of the dreadful atrocities which have afflicted us all alike so greatly, may become an utter impossibility in the history of man. May our hopes and wishes all be realised, alike humanitarian and Masonic in the New Year, now before us, and may Peace, with its benign blessings and brighter progress, efface the sad memories of the past year, and restore hope and safety to now desolated and ravaged regions, and give relief to Europe, and spread good will amongst mankind.

BRO. CAUBET'S REMARKS ABOUT BRO. HERVEY.

In the Monde Maconique for December occur the following, in our opinion, very foolish remarks of Bro. Caubet at page 346. Having given the able and seasonable speech of our distinguished brother the Grand Secretary in extenso, Bro. Caubet says, after a good deal very little to the purpose:—"Thus we are warned. If the French Masons do not get rid of the unbelievers who are among them, if they do not make a sufficient provision of Bibles, (there exists in England a society which will furnish them at the cheapest price), they must expect to be excommunicated by English Masonry, and the United Grand Lodge of England will have nothing for them but contempt, perhaps worse, so long as Bro. Hervey is the all-powerful Grand Secretary." Now, we wish to say at once, that Bro. Caubet, in writing in this way, commits a grave "betise," to use a French expression, and shows alike bad manners and an un-Masonic temper. It is this overhand bullying position, assumed by a bellicose party in the Grand Orient, that all Anglo-Saxon Masons object to and protest against. Let Bro. Caubet rest assured that Bro. Hervey represents the unanimous feeling of all Freemasons in this country, for it is quite clear that Bro. Caubet is little aware how very much the unwise proceedings of the Grand Orient of France have alarmed all sincere Masons, who are zealously attached to their good old Order. These proceedings, let him bear in mind, are regarded by all thinking Masons as a miserable playing into the hands of the Ultramontane faction, by the folly and restlessness of an able but advanced party, which is resolutely bent on fulfilling Bishop Dupanloup's prophecy, and declaring French Freemasonry before the world "Sans Dieu." We have heard lately of the "Morale sans Dieu," now we are to have "La Maçonnerie Sans Dieu," severed, from that profession of faith in the G.A.O.T.U. which is an universal formula of Freemasons, and a necessary pre-requisite of admission all through the world into our religious and Masonic brotherhood. We would earnestly advise Bro. Caubet, in all good will, to change his tone when he speaks again of one so highly respected as Bro. Hervey is amongst us, and to listen to his warning words while there is yet time. The English Grand Lodge is not at all likely to excommunicate French Freemasons or any one else, and no one has a right to speak in its name, or say what it will do, or what it will not do, until it acts "proprio motu," and "proprio vigore." Bro. Hervey, who is not only the most clear but the most cautious of speakers, did not profess to address his brethren officially, but only as Bro. John Hervey. It is needless to add, not only how weighty always are his words, replete with sound good common sense and Masonic teaching, but how much they are valued by his brethren all. We who doubt, as does Bro. Hervey, if the Grand Orient deliberately removes the words relating to the existence of God and the immortality of the soul, from its formulæ, whether English, Scotch, Irish, Canadian, or American Freemason will enter its lodges. The isolation spoken of by Bro. Behr and others, in the Grand Orient will become assuredly a "fait accompli," for French Freemasonry, and we therefore hope, that, before it is "trop tard," the dominant party in the French Grand Orient will see the great unwisdom of the step they have taken. We thank Bro. Hervey for his courageous and seasonable observations, and we feel sure that there will be but one sentiment of approval of and agreement with Bro. Hervey by all who heard them, by all who have perused them, by any who now read these humble remarks of ours.

THE STATISTICS OF MASONRY.

The statistics of Freemasonry are very interesting to the Masonic student, and though it has been said that you can prove anything by statistics, yet despite the sarcasm of some, and the objections of others, they are very important adjuncts to all proper studies of civilized life, just as they point out to us, to a great extent at any rate, the true condition of peoples and the onward progress of the world. It has occurred to us that it would not be an uninteresting topic on this our first issue of the New Year, if we called attention to the desirability of Masonic statistics generally. It would be a very good thing, we shall all agree, if we could have a synoptical view of the statistics of our great Masonic family. We are not aware, however, of any authoritative list of the number of English, Scotch, or Irish Masons, or of our dependencies, and therefore all that we can put forward at present is but a quite approximate calculation at the best. It is just possible that we might from the provincial returns obtain an account of all our brethren in the provinces, but we are not aware of any metropolitan returns, nor do we know of any Scotch or Irish returns, or Colonial returns. In West Yorkshire, indeed, we know that there are 63 lodges and 3047 brethren, and, as we said before, we might no doubt easily multiply these returns. If the West Yorkshire returns may be taken as an average representation of lodge strength amongst us that would give us a little under 50 members per lodge. Whether this average is a little too high or a little too low is, we think, an open question. As at this moment we are well forward to 1700 lodges, under the English Constitution, we fancy that we are not far wrong if we consider 100,000 to represent the members of our English Constitution. Some, however, say that the numbers range much higher. We doubt it. In Scotland there are 506 lodges nominally, (not all, we fear, in Masonic life), and in Ireland 1014 is the last on the list, though many intervening lodges are dormant and wanting. It is therefore difficult to speak positively, but we fancy that about 20,000 in each country will represent the actual Masonic members. Some think this estimate too high. We shall be glad to have, therefore, correct returns. In India, for instance, as a proof of the difficulty of the question, we believe that there are lodges under the three Constitutions, though the exact number is not so far accurately made out. As an approximate numeration, we understand that there are between 90 and 100 warranted lodges in India proper, and the adjacent eastern countries. In the United States and Canada the following seem to be reliable statistical returns.—

In France there are 298 lodges under the Grand Orient, and in all probability about from 20,000 to 30,000 Masons. There is also the Grand Lodge of Misraim and the A. and A. Rite, so that it has been said that there are in France from 50,000 to 60,000 Masons of all categories. We think the number exaggerated. In Belgium the lodges only number 7, and there are about 1200 brethren. In Holland there are about 80 lodges, and it is said from 6000 to 9000 brethren. In Germany there are, we believe, under the 8 Grand Lodges and 5 independent lodges, in round numbers altogether about 330 lodges and about 37,000 brethren, but when we come to consider the Grand Lodges of "Alpina," Hungary (2), Denmark, Sweden and Norway, Spain, Portugal, Greece, the Grand Orient of Egypt, Peru and Brazil, Venezuela, Liberia, the several bodies in Italy, the Argentine Republic, Columbia, South Africa, Hayti, Mexico, New Grenada, we see the need of reliable statistical returns. We shall be most happy, then, to receive any returns that our readers and brethren are kind enough to send us, and to publish them carefully in the Freemason. We think all will agree with us that the time has come when we should be able, without exaggeration or error, to point with just confidence to the correct "numbering" of our great Masonic family in all parts of the known world.

ESPECIAL GRAND LODGE.

We are unable to do more than record in another page the proceedings of the Special Grand Lodge on Wednesday evening. We shall devote a leader to the important subject next week.

RETURNS OF OUR CHARITIES.

We call attention in another column to an "outside" article representative of the result of our Masonic charitable exertions for 1876, and, though we have alluded to the subject before, we deem it so important and interesting to the brethren that we shall advert to it again next week.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The annual Twelfth-Night entertainment to the children who remain in the school during the Christmas holidays, was given on Friday evening. We shall give a full report of the proceedings in our next issue, as they took place too late for the present number of the Freemason.

Reviews.

THE HISTORY OF THE PIANOFORTE. By EDGAR BRINSMEAD.—Cassell, Petter, and Galpin.

We have perused this little book with much pleasure. It gives us a great deal of interesting information on a subject about which few of us know much. Remembering to what a pitch of excellence the pianoforte has reached among us, will it surprise some of our readers to hear that it is a very modern invention? But we recommend our brethren to purchase the little book for themselves; we can guarantee them a pleasant hour of reading, a good deal of information, kindly told, about what "a fellow ought to know."

DIGEST OF THE ELEMENTARY EDUCATION ACT. By BRO. H. MARTIN GREEN.—Shaw and Sons.

We can conscientiously recommend this carefully compiled Digest of the Elementary Education Act, by Bro. Green to the notice of all who are interested in that most important question. It contains a great deal of valuable information in a very little space, and will be a great help to all who dislike to wade through the sections of an Act of Parliament, and rather distrust their own power to understand the technicalities of our legislative English. As these sometimes puzzle our judges, they may well alarm those who are not lawyers, and we therefore thank Bro. Green for his useful manual, which we commend to the notice of all who have anything to do with school-boards in particular or education in general.

EAST ANGLIAN HAND-BOOK. Argus Office, Norwich.

We received this annual hand-book last year, and can repeat our favourable opinion and commendation of it. It will be especially interesting and useful to agriculturists, and we think we can fairly predict for it a large circulation. We wish it all success.

SCOTTISH MASONIC CALENDAR FOR 1877.

Our publisher has put out this useful little Calendar, price 3d., by post 4d., for our brethren in the "Land o' Cakes." It is very well arranged and printed. It ought to have a large sale, and every member of the fraternity in Scotland ought to buy one at once. "Verbum sat sapienti latomo."

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am almost afraid that the report I forward [in another column] may be rather late, but still I shall be much pleased to have it inserted in your next issue, if possible. Our association has now been established six and a half years, and the success it has met with may, if reported in your valuable paper, be the means of similar ones being formed. When we established it we numbered five members, and our anticipations led us to hope we might ultimately reach fifty members, and we now number over three hundred, and we are still increasing, and we are now making from fifty to sixty life subscribers per annum to the various Charities in London; besides which we are now partially educating thirteen children at home with their mothers, who we cannot hope to get into the schools in London. This we do from a separate fund, called the Benevolent Fund, which is nearly all subscribed by the lodges and chapters of the province. As Vice-President, I shall be pleased at any time to give any information as to our method and rules to any brethren who are anxious to form a similar association.

Yours fraternally,

T. TAYLOR.

WASHINGTON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to say that in 1859, when President of the Mess Committee of Her Majesty's 46th Regiment of Foot, then stationed at Mooltan, in the Punjab, I had charge of an old Bible, part of the property of the officers of the regiment, in which it was recorded that it was the identical book on which Washington was made a Mason.

I understood that there was formerly a lodge in the regiment; that all the lodge paraphernalia had been captured in the American war, but restored to the regiment by the commander of the enemy's forces; that they were again captured by the French in the West Indies, and that this Bible only escaped.

Some years ago, when the 46th Regiment was stationed at Everton, this Bible was carried in a Masonic procession in Liverpool, and much veneration paid to it on account of its reputed connection with Washington.

An old officer of the regiment has written an account of the Bible, and I believe that a copy is in the library of the A. and A.R., at Golden Square.

Yours fraternally,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

MASONIC TOKENS, BY BRO. HUGHAN.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the Masonic Magazine for January, 1877 (the New Year number) I have, as you know, an article on Masonic Tokens, with several capital illustrations. Would you kindly have it reprinted in the Freemason, as a fitting supplement to the correspondence on the subject, which occurred some months since. I am quite certain it would interest many of your readers.

Fraternally yours,

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

[We should like to do so much, but at present the overwhelming mass of current Masonic news forbids us the hope of doing so.—Ed.]

THE GRAND MASONIC INSTALLATION PICTURE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Doubtless the subscribers to the grand historical and Masonic picture now in preparation by our esteemed Bro. Hart, W.M. 1201, will be satisfied, as I am, with the explanation as to the delay afforded by the artist and engraver, but inasmuch as some of the subscribers will not see the Freemason, and as several even of your readers might overlook the letters from Bro. Hart on the subject, may I suggest that he either sends a marked copy of the Freemason, or a reprint of the letters in question, to every subscriber, so that all may know why the picture cannot be finished as early as was originally intended and promised. We are all anxious to see it, but are ready to make all allowances for a work of such magnitude.

Fraternally yours,

WM. JAMES HUGHAN, P.G.D.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION AND THE PROVINCE OF DEVON.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Observing in your issue of the 23rd ult. a letter from Bro. Charles Godtschalk, relative to some remarks that had been made at a meeting of the Committee of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution concerning the support given by our Provincial Grand Master and the Province of Devon to that noble institution,

I can fully bear out the letter of Bro. Godtschalk, that the Freemasons of Devon, as well as its esteemed Provincial Master, are alive to the wants of our aged brethren. I will just state what the Sun Lodge, No. 106, Exmouth, has done. At the festival in 1873, Bro. W. H. Peters attended from this lodge as Steward, subscribing £10 himself; two other subscriptions of £10 each were entered on his list. The Sun Lodge being an annual subscriber of £1 to the Male Fund, and £1 to the Female Fund, remitted this year £5 to the Male Fund as a first instalment for a governorship, and £1 to the Female Fund. In 1874 the second instalment of £6 was paid, and the annual subscription of £1 to each fund. I likewise forwarded the sum of £39 as subscriptions from members and friends of the Sun Lodge, one brother—A. B. Webber—paying £5 in addition for a life governorship. In 1875 the lodge subscription of £2 was paid. In 1876 I forwarded £18 from members and friends, and the usual £2 from the lodge, thus making together in four years the sum of £104, for which we had an annuitant two quarters, £18, and the widows, nine quarters, £40 10s., together £58 10s. The present year 1877 we shall follow in the same way, for at our installation on the 10th instant we intend to subscribe for another life governorship, after which the Sun Lodge will have three life governors to the Male and Female Fund, and three life governors to the Male Fund only amongst its members, which I think must show that although the Freemasons of Devon draw largely, they are also liberal supporters of the Institution.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

ALFRED A. CARTER,
P.M. and Secretary 106.

Exmouth, Jan. 1, 1877.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Now that the Grand Conclave, after deep thought and consideration, have decided that they are a Masonic body, or, as I take it, an imitation got up by Masons who have been practising an imposture for above a century, I should like to ask the energetic body who have obtained this decision what they have to do with the Order of Malta, who have a branch here? I merely ask the brethren, as an historical student, to consider the anomalous position in which they are placed, for I wish no quarrel with the Order since they have abrogated the un-Masonic and triply unjust Tripartite Treaty.

JOHN YARKER.

FREEMASONRY IN AMERICA.

To the Editor of the "Northern Echo."

Dear Sir,—

I notice that some remarks which I made at the Druids' dinner the other evening, relative to Freemasonry in America, have been commented upon by a correspondent in your paper, and, as I also hear, by other Freemasons of this town. I wish, therefore, to repeat what I said on that occasion, viz., that I have no wish to say a word against any kindred society, besides which I had no opportunity whatever of judging how far certain accusations brought forward by those with whom I conversed were capable of proof, but what I wished to show was that such a society as that of the Druids would keep itself above suspicion by having nothing whatever to do with politics or any matters foreign to the legitimate business of a friendly society. As I before remarked, I know not what faults may be fairly attributed to American Freemasons, but I think no one will doubt but that in this country they are worthy of all respect, and perform their important duties in a manner most creditable to themselves as a body; and, although those who accuse them appear sincere in their own views, it is highly probable a want of knowledge leads to incorrect assumptions. In conclusion, I desire to apologize to the Freemasons if I have said anything tending to annoy them, and thanking you in advance for giving me space for this letter.

I remain, yours truly,

HENRY FELL PEASE.

Brinkburn, Darlington, Dec. 28th, 1876.

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE—No. 1.
ELECTION OF W.M.

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

The election of W.M.'s of lodges is so often conducted contrary to the Book of Constitutions that I have taken that subject as No. 1 of the series on Masonic Jurisprudence. Nominations are clearly illegal, although very many by-laws provide accordingly. The laws of the Grand Lodge are quite clear and distinct respecting the mode of procedure, namely, that the Master is to be elected at the one meeting and (provided the minutes be confirmed in respect thereof) installed at the next assembly of the lodge, according to the bye-laws of the lodge. Nominations of Masters are never alluded to in any way, and for the sufficient reason that they are not only unnecessary, but positively opposed to the instructions laid down for our guidance. I know of several lodges, whose bye-laws provide for the nomination of a Master (say) in November, the election in December, and the installation at the third meeting, making thus three meetings before the installation has been completed.

Now, as all the Past Masters and Past Wardens, as well as the W.M. and Wardens, are eligible for election as Master, evidently to nominate one or more brethren at the meeting (say) in November, and in December to proceed only to ballot for those so nominated, to the exclusion of all others, is illegal, because in direct opposition to the laws of the Grand Lodge, which plainly declare that all are equally eligible.

I have the highest authority for stating that the nomination of brethren for the office of W.M. before the meeting of the lodge at which the election of W.M. is to take place, and then at such period of election only submitting the names of the nominated brethren for election, is illegal. At the time of election every member of the lodge has a right to vote for any brother who is duly qualified to serve the office of Master in that lodge. Every member of the lodge who is a P.M. or Past Warden who has served the office of Warden for one year in an English lodge, is eligible for the office of Master.

I fraternally invite the attention of Provincial Grand Masters, and Provincial Grand Secretaries especially, to this important subject, as should the nominations be persisted in after any member of a lodge has given notice of their illegality, it will be competent for such brother or brethren to object to the election of the W.M. so nominated, and undoubtedly his protest would be supported at head-quarters. The bye-laws being approved by a Prov. Grand Master cannot set aside the rights conferred by the Book of Constitutions in any respect whatever. I suggest the following as the method of election, so as to secure simplicity and certainty.

ELECTION OF W.M.

The W.M. shall be elected on the regular lodge night in accordance with the mode of electing the W.M. shall be as follows:—The Secretary shall supply every member present qualified to vote with a printed or written list of all the brethren eligible for the office of Master. Each member so qualified shall place a X or other distinctive mark opposite the name of the brother for whom he desires to vote, and drop the paper (when folded) in the balloting box, and the member having the greatest number of votes shall be declared duly elected. An absolute majority of those voting is not essential, the first ballot being final unless the votes are equal, when should the presiding officer decline to give a casting vote the ballot must be again taken.

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

The sixth annual meeting of this association was held on Dec. 12th at the Queen's Hotel, Hanley, under the presidency of the R.W.P.G.M., Bro. the Earl of Shrewsbury. The majority of the lodges in the provinces were represented, and this was regarded by the Committee as an indication that the brethren are zealous in support of the Masonic Charities, nearly half the brethren in the province being subscribers to one or other of the excellent institutions supported by the Order. A ballot was taken for twenty-five subscriptions, in accordance with rule, and some routine business followed. The dinner was of the "Queen's" type, the R.W.P.G.M. presiding. After the loyal observances, "The Staffordshire Masonic Charitable Association" was given and warmly honoured. Bro. F. Derry (Handsworth), in proposing "The Masonic Charities," met the argument for Masonic charities stopping at home, the support of that argument being that the general Masonic charities were expensively managed. By the frequency of this accusation, he had been led to make close inquiry. He had heard it said that 60 and even 70 per cent. had been expended in managerial cost, but, after inquiry, he did not hesitate to contradict the charge of excessive managerial expenditure. He had taken steps to ascertain the exact per centage of cost of management as compared with the total income, and he was pleased to be able to assure the brethren that the Benevolent Institution, which was divided into two parts—one for old men, the other for old women—only cost five and a fraction per cent. for management, and when it was recollected that there was a "must" in connection with the payment of certain officers, he regarded that as by no means an extravagant rate. Then, again, in the Girls' School, the rate was 8 or 8½ per cent. Before complaining, brethren should obtain data, and make allowance for the circumstance that there was no fundal property to rely on. As to the schools, he could challenge comparison with similar institutions. In the Girls' School, the cost for lodging, clothing, maintenance, and superior education was only £36 per head per annum. The cost per head per annum in the Boys' School was something higher—the total cost being about £43 per head. His hope was that the brethren would take more interest in their institutions, so that they might be sure—as they would be—that every penny was advantageously expended. Bro. Thomas Taylor (Hanley) asked permission to supplement the remarks of the proposer of the toast by referring to the class of education in the Masonic schools. His own knowledge of this—derived from personal observation—was that the education was superior. English, French, Italian, German, and music were taught, and it had been a positive treat to him at one festival to listen to the music contributed by boys of the school. Bro. Bromley (Hanley) responded. Bro. Hales (Hanley), proposing "The Vice-Presidents," said there was a feeling in the minds of many that £43 per head was a higher rate than generally they could afford to expend on the education of their own children. He associated with the toast the name of one who had displayed much of patience and energy on behalf of the Masonic Charities—Bro. Taylor. Bro. Taylor responded, assuring the company that he was proud of the success that had followed his efforts. Bro. Marsh, P.P.S.G.W., proposed "The Committee," which was acknowledged by Bro. Huet, of Manchester.

THE MASONIC INSTITUTIONS.

During the year just closed the total receipts of the three Masonic Charitable Institutions amounted to £39,335 7s. 6d. Of this sum £15,359 5s. 4d. was received by the Boys' School; £12,540 15s. 7d. by the Benevolent Institution; and £11,435 6s. 7d. by the Girls' School. These are the largest totals ever yet reached, and the aggregate amount exceeds that of former years by some £7,000. Great efforts are being made by the Secretaries of the Institutions to obtain in the present year even a larger total, and they come before the Craft with an excellent plea that the claims on their Institutions are daily increasing. The Benevolent Institution in the past year paid £8,972 in annuities to aged Masons and widows; the Boys' School maintains, clothes, and educates 189 boys; and the Girls' School 162 girls. These figures, however, do not represent a fixed maximum, but are constantly increasing.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

JOPPA LODGE (No. 188).—The installation meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday, 1st inst., at the Albion, Aldersgate street, Bro. A. G. Dodson, W.M., Messrs. Althorp and Banks were initiated into the Order; after which Bro. Dodson installed Bro. L. Lazarus as Master of the lodge for the ensuing year. The officers appointed were Bros. Dodson, I.P.M.; Miller, S.W.; M. Speigel, J.W.; L. Auerhaan, Treasurer; E. P. Albert, P.M.; G.P., Secretary; H. Berkowitz, Chaplain; H. Hyman, S.D.; Campion, J.D.; P. Baker, I.G.; E. P. Van Voorden, Organist; H. P. Isaac, D.C.; S. Genese, Steward; Snelling, Steward; and Bro. Woodstock, T. The petition for the relief of a brother was read by the Secretary, and a sum of money was voted for his relief. Several communications having been read by the Secretary, Bro. Davis gave notice of motion for next meeting of the lodge that a testimonial be presented to Bro. Auerhaan, who for 18 years has discharged the duties of Treasurer of the lodge. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where an elegant repast was prepared for them by Bro. Silver, the lodge cook, and Bro. W. G. Jennings, the manager of the Albion. About 130 brethren sat down, under the presidency of Bro. L. Lazarus, W.M., who was supported on his right by visitors, Bro. J. Wright, P.G.P.; Friedrich, 1017; J. Austin, P.M. 933; E. Williams, 933; J. Anshell, 1404; J. S. Sweasy, jun., 1423; Victor Myers, W.M. 1017; J. Gaskill, P.M. 1076; Ridler, 219; S. M. Lazarus, P.M., late 188; S. Gompertz, 205; Asher Myers, 185; J. Lawrence; S. Webb, P.M. 193 and 1287; A. Melhuish, 55; J. Davis, 205; G. J. Baker, 869; Partridge, 1445; J. D. Barwell, W.M. 185; A. La Room, 1365; Brooke, 1381; Fletcher, 180; W. Tait, 534; Yeakin, P.M. 1139; Barton, 1538; J. Botibol, 1201; E. Willie, 1305; Emanuel, 156; B. Grover, 1613; S. Genese, P.M., late 205; Capt. Evens, late 1017; Walter Joyce, Southern Star; and on his left by Past Masters Bros. L. Alexander, S. Hickman, H. Berkowitz, M. Levy, Obed Roberts, Isaac Abrahams, M. Alexander, and H. Massey (Freemason). After grace had been said the cloth was cleared, while the brethren adjourned for a short period, during which dessert was laid. On the return of the brethren the toasts were proposed, and in the interval between them some interesting music, vocal and instrumental, was performed by Miss Alma York, Madame Veney, Bro. A. Thomas, Bro. H. Brearton, Bro. Benyon, and Herr Heino Hugo, under the able direction of Bro. P. E. Van Voorden. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," and "The M.W. G.M.," had been proposed and honoured, the W.M. gave that of the "Pro Grand Master, the Dep. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers," to which Bros. E. P. Albert and Joseph Wright responded. Bro. Albert in the course of his reply, said that the Grand Officers honestly and faithfully discharged their duties, and while unanimity and concord of feeling prevailed in the Lodge of Joppa, Grand Lodge of England would have no cause to regret any of the brethren of this lodge being Grand Officers. Bro. J. Wright said that it was no light task now to be a Grand Pursuivant, and to perform that officer's duties properly, for unless Grand Pursuivants got other brethren to assist them as scrutineers, the work could not be executed satisfactorily. When he went into office he thought it was a nice comfortable position; but the brethren who attended Grand Lodge soon became so numerous that the duties of scrutineer became onerous. There used to be about 150 brethren at Grand Lodge, and then the task was not difficult. They rapidly went up to 600 or 800, and as every one of these brethren had to be ascertained as entitled to attend, and as there was only one book to refer to the labour was arduous. Next Wednesday evening, when the Special Grand Lodge would be held, no doubt the number of brethren attending would be enormous; and there were so many country members who now came up, that it required most of the Past Grand Officers to be present to recognise them. The Grand Officers, however, worked with a will, and they were amply repaid for the duties they performed when they had such a cordial reception as they met with in the Lodge of Joppa. (Hear, hear.) The next toast was "The Benevolent Fund of the Lodge of Joppa," to which Bro. L. Alexander, P.M., President of the Fund, responded. He said that as far as his humble judgment went, the Committee and Vice-Presidents of this fund thoroughly deserved the honour which they had just received, for no body of men could possibly pay more attention to any matter that could be entrusted to them than they did. Perhaps he ought to dilate to a certain extent upon the origin and progress of the Joppa Benevolent Fund, for the benefit of those brethren who had recently been initiated, although it might appear somewhat unnecessary to say anything about it to those brethren who had belonged to the lodge for some time. The fund was instituted in 1849, by Bro. Garnstead, and he might say of it that, though God forbid, none of the brethren present might ever have to apply for relief from it, no one had ever done so in vain, and in no case had the applicant's name been disclosed. So that the initiates must bear in mind it was never made public, whoever might apply: it was kept simply within the committee. In the past year, he had the melancholy pleasure to say, two applicants had been relieved from the fund, and in both cases they received a larger sum than they expected. The fund was as much for widows as for brethren, and the widow who had been relieved in the past year had in expressing her thanks, also given the committee reason to believe that what they had awarded her would be a lasting service to her. The Committee always, while being very careful of the funds entrusted to them, gave liberal sums, sometimes as much as £100. But they always saw that the money was well laid out. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. said the fund now amounted to £1269 4s.; which showed a steady increase in the fund, after deducting £80 given in relief. They had not entrenched on the funded property. A list of contributions was then read out by Bro. Albert, the total of which amounted to £17 1s. 6d. Bro. Dodson, I.P.M., proposed "The W.M." It afforded him great pleasure to have the honour of doing so, for he was delighted to find him on his right hand that evening. For many years they had been working together to get from the bottom of the tree to the top; and he hoped the W.M. would have health and strength to carry him through his year of office, and that the brethren might have many opportunities of passing an evening in his company. He felt satisfied that the Lodge of Joppa would not find they had been out of order in electing him to the chair. (Cheers.) The W.M. replied. The brethren might imagine what a pleasure it was to him when some six years ago he had to respond to the toast of the only initiate. When he came to look back upon that short period and found that he was now in the proud and honourable position of W.M. it was a still prouder moment; and he felt it a great gratification to have been supported so well by his friends, many of whom had been his associates from childhood. He begged that the brethren would accept his assurance that it was his earnest desire and wish to endeavour to discharge the duties of his honourable position to the best of his ability. Nothing should be wanting on his part to give the brethren every satisfaction, and he hoped that at the end of his term of office they would say that he had fulfilled their highest expectations. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the P.M., Bro. Dodson," a brother whom all the members of the lodge had been pleased to see in the position which he had occupied during the past year. Of the manner in which he had filled the office of Master it was unnecessary to speak, further than to say that he had satisfied the brethren, and that they had evinced this feeling by presenting him with a massive and valuable Past Master's jewel. Bro. Dodson replied. He took that opportunity of thanking the brethren personally for their kind consideration towards him all the time he had been in the chair of the lodge. Whatever he had done during that time had been done with the best intention; and by the testimonial the brethren had just presented to him, he felt that his endeavours to please them had not been entirely unsuccessful. A proverb said, "We should live twice to know how to live." Were it possible for his year of office to come over again, he might do something that would please them more. He was rather full in the throat just now, and could scarcely express his feelings, but he could assure them that he thanked them very much for their kindness and also for their testimonial. Bro. Victor M. Myers, W.M. Montefiore, 1017, replied to the toast of "The Visitors" in a short pithy speech. Bro. Morris Alexander, P.M., replied to the toast of "The P.M.'s," and said it was just six years ago that he had the pleasure of initiating the present W.M., and it was with feelings of very great gratification that he now saw him in the distinguished position of Master of the Lodge of Joppa. Bros. Miller and Speigel responded to the toast of "The Principal Officers." Bro. H. Massey (Freemason), who was specially called upon by the W.M. to reply for "The Press," expressed his gratification that the journal he represented had so exerted itself for the good of the Order as to have won the high encomiums which the W.M. had passed on it, and which the whole body of the brethren of the Lodge of Joppa had endorsed by their warm reception of the toast. Bro. Auerhaan, Treasurer, and Bro. Albert, P.M., Secretary, responded to the toast of "Treasurer and Secretary." The other officers responded to the toast, drank in their honour, and the brethren, after partaking of tea and coffee, separated. The proceedings of the evening fully sustained the well-known character of this lodge for cheerful and hearty enjoyment.

POLISH NATIONAL LODGE (No. 534).—At the annual meeting of this lodge, held at Freemasons' Hall, on Thursday, 14th ult. Bro. F. Rath, was duly installed in the chair of K.S. There were over 40 brethren and visitors present. The following brethren were appointed and invested by the W.M., Bro. F. Rath, viz:—Bros. L. H. Cumming, S.W.; I. E. Ebner, J.W.; J. Aspinall, S.D.; J. F. Taylor, J.D.; G. E. Jackson, M.C.; A. F. Jagielski, I.G. Business over the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The W.M. on placing the jewel of the lodge on the breast of the initiates said: Brethren, in addressing you, which I do with a pleasure only known to those who can feel like a Pole, and the brethren of the Polish National Lodge, in giving into your custody the "jewel" of our lodge, and by placing the same on your breast, I am conferring on you an honour of which you may be justly proud. There are not many lodges in England (in short, I do not know of another) or elsewhere which are so distinguished, and the "Jewel of the snow-white Eagle," with wings spread out heavenwards, is a token of so exceptional character, also a favour, that when you come to understand its real meaning you will be doubly proud to wear it. A "White Eagle" is but an heraldic symbol, but through its being the "Polish National Eagle" must in your hearts signify the token of honour, for steady resistance unto death and to all oppressors of liberty, witness our brotherhood. Let its "symbolic wings," always remind you of the undying spirit of Freedom, Love, and Charity, for all men of whatever nationality, or creed; let its "silvery white colour" be a mark of singleness of purpose, disinterestedness of aim and purity of motives. Let the fact of its being an eagle remind you that it is the "kingly bird" which was privileged to stand by the side of "Jupiter," and to carry the "thunder," and whilst it is strong and mighty, it soars superior of low passions and narrow-minded motives; let it be the emblem of the purest motives to your actions, for the eagle is above meanness and paltriness of motives. If any one asks you the meaning of it, you will tell them to look at it, and if they have understanding they will read its signification from its shape. Brethren, I shall not walk in the beaten track of toast-giving, but follow my own convictions to-night. I cannot be an imitator. I give you "The Queen." Listen to my toast. If I were an Englishman I should feel on this occasion simply justified in saying the "Queen," and all would know that that expression includes everything that it is useful to say. Many who, like myself, find themselves in a position, give loyal toasts, as "a very clever variation" on customary perorations but I, not being an Englishman born, and being apprehensive lest my brevity might be construed into indifference, I do not state that here I shall make a clean variation, but state with all my heart and in all the sincerity with which my earnestness is capable of. I call upon you to show your loyal devotion to the Queen, whom I call the sublime standard of peace, progress, humanity, and a supporter of our brotherhood, a surety for the security and liberty of the world, by being a barrier against barbarous aggressions. By the side of the Queen, Freemasons are sometimes said to be the vanguard of humanity; if this is so this is the time to show it. With us there should be no wavering, no more than there should be amongst the people of these realms who are united in loyalty to Her Majesty, who now bears the destinies and freedom, not only of England, but of the whole world on her hands, and may the Great Architect of the Universe bless her and her noble and lofty endeavours. The toast was drunk with Masonic honours, enthusiastically given. The W.M. then said: I give you "The Health of the Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family." I feel as if my thoughts were like wings expanding, for he is the worthy Son of a most worthy Queen, and whilst we bless the Queen for past favours and present security, we cannot but concentrate all our hopes in him as belonging to the future. The rest of the Royal Family are more or less engaged in the service of the country, and which is not a lazy one at this moment; thus they justify their worthiness (by their readiness) for the lofty station which they occupy in the first ranks of this noble country. Brethren, "The Health of all the Royal Family." The toast was received with Masonic honours. Brethren,—The next toast is that of "Our Most Worshipful Grand Master." You all know my great partiality for the administration of our M.W.G.M., who on several occasions has given us cause for believing him worthy of the trust we have reposed in him. I look upon him as a shining light in darkness. He is to me, and I trust also for all of us, the personification of a lofty principle and a firm leader, in whose steps we delight to follow. Young though he may seem to be for holding the lofty position, the Masonic throne, we are all witnesses of his happy qualifications and gracious tact. He leaped, as it were, like a British lion with one bound to this pinnacle of greatness, in which he is firmly seated, and, like "Kaiser" Barbarossa, he seems to have been seated there for centuries past; may he long continue to do so. The next toast is "The M.W. Pro Grand Master." Brethren, as we descend in our toasts from the higher regions we get into the sphere of representative men, so we come to a pleasant and agreeable resting place, whereby we can see and appreciate the high merits of our Pro Grand Master. He is like one of those mighty lieutenants of the wars of history who had to bear the brunt of battle. Personally I am of a progressive turn of mind, consequently I may not agree in all things the Earl of Carnarvon approves, but I am proud to have the pleasure to give expression to my feelings for his practically upholding the principles of Freemasonry, in his efforts to drive out darkness and slavery, which otherwise might have settled down for years to come. It is a great pleasure to find that with all his national duties he can find time to do honour to an old and most devoted servant of Freemasonry, it is made more honourable by the gracefulness of his own personal presence. In presenting the testimonial to our worthy and illustrious Bro. Hervey, our universally beloved Grand Secretary, I am certain that every one here believes that it was a mark of the very highest respect, and an acknowledgment that for 30 years he has worked for the well-being of humanity. The W.M. then gave "The Deputy G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers." This is our next toast in the scale of descending, and the resting-place reminds me very much of paradise, since we are going to speak of the exalted regions of Freemasonry, viz., the Grand Lodge and its officers, one of whom is a very giant, a colossus, or he could not hold his position which is as much as to say one foot in paradise and another heaven knows where. Thus think the brethren of the Polish National: we have every confidence in this particular giant and in his ability and strength, in much that whilst we of the lower strata are condemned to wander about the outside regions, through imperfections; and before we can be admitted into the inner court of secrets, and the pure atmosphere of Masonic wisdom of Grand Lodge, without further laudatory remarks, I shall call upon Bro. John Boyd, belonging to this superior assembly, to tell us in responding how far we are indebted to the M.W.D.G.M., Lord Skelmersdale, with the rest of the Grand Officers, for upholding the ancient land marks of our Craft to an admiring brotherhood. Bro. John Boyd, in a speech replete with common sense, said, that no position was gained as a rule unless worked for; he himself might be a slight exception to the general rule, simply from his connections with Grand Lodge through the Grand Secretary's office. It is a position any one might be proud, and especially so to that man being a Mason. The whole atmosphere there was made up of good will, and through every invisible yet visible particle of which this atmosphere is composed of you breathe nothing but order, through which shines the highest of all virtues, charity towards the brethren in acts, in words, in sympathy. In conclusion he believed that the safest road to high honours was that of always doing your duty (applause). He begged to thank them for the hearty manner they had drank the health of the Grand Officers. The I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M." in very glowing terms, and said his language would fail to convey what he should in respect wish to say of the genuineness of the W.M. He trusted that good health and prosperity would ever wait upon him. A good "fire" was given—all splendid. The W.M. replied as follows:—Brethren, I am very sensible of the honour you have done me in noticing aught that I have done in connection with this lodge, and I am delighted that it meets with your approbation. The most excellent brother whom you have entrusted as your minister extraordinary to convey to me your kindly sentiments has done so heartily; so much so as to move my heart to sincere thanks. Let me say that when I entered upon the duties involved in this chair I had some misgivings as to being able to perform satisfactorily the power given to me. I am by nature warm and impulsive in disposition, but your encouraging suffrages imbued me with courage, which regard as an acknowledgment of past labours. I always was of opinion that the government of a body of highly principled and educated persons required something more than a visible agency, and that there must be a mutual sympathy between the governed and the ruler; there must be the electrical current of understanding both with head and heart, and if these are supported by the feelings of love, mirth, and evenness of temper, the visible result will be happiness—a beautiful word with a beautiful ending. The illustration is that in this lodge we are thoroughly happy with one another. Brethren, I thank you for your generous sentiments towards me. In giving the toast of "The I.P.M.," the W.M. said: Gratitude is one amongst the phalanx of virtues, therefore it would ill become me if I did not pay that tribute of respect due to the Immediate Past Master. His brotherly aid has never failed me, and his excellences are well-known to you all. Let me therefore do honour to him to whom honour is due, therefore I will thank you to charge your glasses and drink "The Health of our I.P.M. and Masters." This toast was drunk with Masonic honours. In proposing "The Initiates," the W.M. said: Whenever I am called upon to draw your attention to this toast I feel that I am trenching upon the foundation and threshold of our Grand Order; the future of its continuation depends upon our initiates, to whom be all due respect and honour. You may depend upon it, that the unsurpassed principles which are written in flaming letters upon our standard can never be translated into the flesh and blood of nations unless they are bodily practised both by princes and people, and we of this lodge, with all others, must ever be the standard bearers of these soul-minded views by practice. The W.M. then proposed "The Visitors" in the following terms: To bid welcome to those who come from far and near to see us, is a pleasure, which is nowhere more deeply felt than in the Polish National Lodge, for it is a true "Temple of Solomon," and if they are not all imbued with the wisdom of this monarch, they all do their utmost by example and precept, to get nearer to the Highest. Brother visitors, I particularly call upon our brother T. Burdett Yeoman, to respond to this toast. Why? because he certainly is distinguished as a poet amongst us, and I think he ought to be our laureate. Have you not read his "Song of Triumph" of our Grand Master's visit to India? If not I should advise you to get the Masonic Magazine for October. Who has not seen his songs of every degree and grade in connection with our Holy Order. Bro. Burdett Yeoman in reply said: W.M. and brethren,—Permit me to say that I am not worth a tithe of the encomiums heaped upon me, at the same time I should like to launch out upon the ocean of Masonic beatitudes, but I will not do so; although I must think that our beautiful themes cannot be too prominently kept before our eyes and in our minds. In my humble opinion I know of no creed, exceptionally, none that can approach it, I know of nothing loftier, save the ethics which are taught from the Book upon which our foundation is built, there is no institution on the face of the earth so pregnant for doing good as ours. Witness our Boys', Girls', and Benevolent Institutions, well backed up by the Grand Lodge of Benevolence; regard these, and the small number in proportion of subscribers as per contra against some of the boasted communities of this land or any other land. Brethren take courage, and look at our Order full in the face, and you will see beauties in it that you have never seen before. God speed the Craft, and make it if possible more universally known than it at present is. W.M. and brethren, my thanks individually. Several others of the visiting brethren also spoke, warmly and enthusiastically. The healths of the Secretary and Treasurer were then proposed and responded to, with the usual amount of complete satisfaction, when the names of the brethren are mentioned comment is useless on their behalf, viz., Bros. John Boyd and W. Pass. The next toast, "The Officers of the Lodge," was warmly responded to, and eulogy was duly and properly awarded. Each officer answered for himself. The Tyler's toast brought to a close one of those enjoyable evenings that can only be found amongst Freemasons.

CHAUCER LODGE (No. 1540).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, December 27th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark. Bro. J. C. Wilson, W.M., presided. He in an efficient manner raised Bro. W. Carter, passed Bro. H. Ward, and initiated Mr. John Simpson into Masonry. One gentleman was proposed as a candidate for initiation at the next lodge meeting. The summons calling the Especial Grand Lodge on 3rd January was read. Business ended, the lodge was closed. Slight refreshment followed labour. There were present besides W.M. Bros. E. S. Slide, jun., S.W.; W. G. Kemp, J.W.; T. J. Sabine, P.P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M.; Treasurer; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M.; Sec.; C. W. Hudson, S.D.; H. Faija, J.D.; A. J. Hawkes, I.G.; C. Graham, G.S.; W. M. Phillips, Harding, C. Winstanley, and some others. The visitors were Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 1423, &c.; J. W. George, S.W. 1309; T. W. Adams, S.W. 1123; F. Knight, 1326, and others.

NORWICH.—Union Lodge (No. 52).—The senior lodge in the province held its anniversary meeting at the Norfolk Hotel, Norwich, on Tuesday, 2nd January, when Bro. W. A. Tyssen Amherst was installed W.M. for ensuing year, the ceremony being performed by the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. Major Penrice. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. G. B. Kennet, I.P.M.; Lieut.-Col. Boileau, S.W.; J. Bond Cabbell, J.W.; G. S. Stevens, Secretary and Treasurer; Rev. W. Cholmeley, Chaplain; G. Cubitt, S.D.; G. Patman, J.D.; and J. Sainty, I.G. Amongst the brethren present were Sir F. G. M. Boileau, Bart., R. T. Gurdon, Cecil Montgomerie, Lieut.-Col. Bignold, Captain Boileau, R.N.; G. Marsham, H. Barwell, Prov. G.S.; C. R. Gilman, J. B. Pitt, G. L. Coleman, J. B. Aldis, J. B. Pearce, M. Walker, J. Marshall, &c. The Hon. H. Manners Sutton was initiated by the W.M. The "working" was succeeded by a banquet.

IPSWICH.—British Union Lodge (No. 114).—The regular meeting of that old established lodge, the British Union, and Festival of St. John the Evangelist, was held at the elegant little Masonic Hall, Brook-street, Ipswich, on Thursday, the 28th, Dec., 1876, when there was a large attendance of the brethren, some forty being present. Amongst others were V.W. Bros. John Hervey, Grand Secretary; V.W. Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., and D.P.G.M. Designate of Suffolk; the Rev. J. J. Burton, W.M., P.P.G.D.C. Cambs.; Rev. J. B. Tweed, S.W., W.M. elect, P.G. Chap. Suffolk; Bros. W. Spalding, P.M., Sec.; Peter de Lande Long, P.M., Vice-President Board of General Purposes; W. Elliston, M.D., P.M.; W. Boby, P.P.S.G.W.; P. Cornell, P.P.S.G.D.; A. J. Barber, P.P.G.O.; Emma Holmes, P.P.G.R., and P.P.G.D.C. Suffolk; C. Cobbold, M.P. for Ipswich; Capt. Parsons, R.N., commander of H.M.S. Porcupine; Dr. Meadows, P.G.S.; Rev. T. G. Beaumont, P.P.G.C.; Rev. Nelson Godwin, H. D. George, P.G.R.; H. Ribbans, R. Butter, and others. Amongst the visitors we observed Bros. Dr. Muir, P.M. 593; Dr. Fleming, P.P.G.S.W.; W. D. Paine, P.G.A.D.C.; G. Cresswell, P.M. 959; N. Tracy, P.P.G.S.W.; J. H. Staddon, P.P.G.S.D.; W. Daking, W.M. 225; T. R. Elkington; H. Bevan, P.G.S.W.; and others. Bro. W. Clark, P.G. D.C., who is W.M. of Lodge Prince of Wales, 959, and also a member of this lodge, very efficiently conducted the proceedings as Master of the Ceremonies. The lodge having been opened in due and ancient form, the lodge was raised to the Third Degree, and all the brethren below the chair having retired, a lodge of Installed Masters was opened, when no less a number than twenty-three Past Masters were present, the largest number we have ever seen in a provincial lodge on such an occasion. The W.M. having resigned the gavel into the hands of the Grand Secretary, that eminent brother proceeded with the impressive ceremony of installation, and inducted Bro. J. B. Tweed, rector of Chapel St. Mary, Suffolk, into the time-honoured chair of K.S., with all the formalities incident thereto. The brethren being re-admitted, the new W.M. was saluted in ancient form, and the customary addresses to the Wardens and brethren were delivered very ably by the Grand Secretary. At the conclusion of the interesting ceremony, a cordial vote of thanks was voted to that distinguished brother for his services. The W.M. appointed and invested the following as his officers for the ensuing year: Rev. J. J. Burton, I.P.M.; Bro. Boby being invested as proxy, in the absence of H. Miller, as S.W.; C. Casley, J.W.; C. Schuler, Treas.; W. Spalding, Sec.; G. S. Elliston, S.D.; S. Shortridge, J.D.; S. W. Butter, I.G.; Rev. J. G. Beaumont, Chap. Bro. P. de Lande Long, P.M., in a short speech, asked the lodge to accept a handsome plumb-rule, which had been presented to him in his capacity as Vice-President of the Board of General Purposes in connection with the Masonic Institution for Girls. Lodge having been closed in ancient form, and the customary hearty good wishes of the visitors having been proffered the British Union from the different lodges represented on the occasion, the brethren retired for the banquet, which was served in the adjacent dining-hall. Bro. G. Spalding was as usual the caterer, and provided very well for the guests, who did ample justice to the viands. The W.M. presided, and was supported on his right by the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., D.P.G.M.; the V.W. the Grand Secretary, and Dr. Alfred Meadows, P.G.S.; and on his left by Bro. P. de L. Long, V.P. B. of

G.P.; Rev. J. J. Burton, I.P.M.; and C. Cobbold, M.P. Nearly the whole of the brethren present in lodge attended the banquet. The usual toast list was gone through, Bro. Tweed making a very genial chairman, Bro. C. J. Martyn, who was very cordially received, responding to the toast of "The Grand Officers," as also to that of "The D.P.G.M. Designate." Bro. Martyn, in thanking the brethren for their flattering reception, said that he was at one time a member of the British Union Lodge, but living at the other side of the county, and being so seldom able to attend, he was compelled to resign membership, especially as he was a member of some twelve other lodges. He felt it very hard to come after their late venerated D.P.G.M. (Bro. Rev. E. I. Lockwood), but if the brethren would only bear with him he would do his utmost to prove himself worthy of the office which the P.G.M. had asked him to fill. Bro. Martyn made some very sensible remarks about visiting the lodges in the province, and said he intended making a point of doing so, and he hoped the P.G. Officers would accompany him, as he thought such visits were very desirable, and tended to produce confidence in the P.G. Officers, and to promote a feeling of cordiality amongst the brethren. He had received so many letters of congratulation from the various lodges that he could not but be pleased to feel that his appointment had been so popular with the brethren as it was agreeable to the P.G.M. In responding to the toast of the evening, that of "The Very Worshipful the Installing Master," Bro. Hervey, Grand Secretary, (who, on rising, received quite an ovation, said it gave him great pleasure to visit so distinguished a lodge as the British Union. He had never visited a Suffolk Lodge before, and he could not but be gratified with the cordial reception he had met with that evening. He was particularly pleased to instal the W.M. that evening because he was a clergyman. He thought that the connection between Masonry and religion should be kept up. He had been called upon to account for sundry remarks he had made on the subject elsewhere, but he felt so strongly on the subject he must speak. It was feared that the Grand Orient of France had practically divorced religion and Masonry, and it was a very grave question as to whether the Grand Lodge of England would not have to refuse to admit as visitors brethren under that jurisdiction, whose opinions would prevent their being admitted as candidates for initiation. Indeed, the youngest Grand Lodge recently formed, the Grand Orient of Egypt, had already taken the initiative in this matter. It had sought recognition by the Grand Orient of France, but had now withdrawn its application, and disowned the Grand Orient. Our popular and urbane brother spoke with great earnestness upon this dallying with atheism on the part of France, and his remarks were listened to with great attention, and applauded as they deserved to be. Bro. Rev. J. B. Tweed, in responding to the toast of "The W. Master" spoke with great modesty of his qualifications, but assured the brethren he would do his utmost to maintain the dignity of the chair. Bro. Boby replied to the toast of "The Charities," and descended with his usual fervid eloquence on those great Masonic institutions, reminding the brethren of the obligations they were under to support them adequately, remembering that they got a good deal more from them in Suffolk than the lodges contributed to the funds. Bro. C. Cooke presided at the pianoforte, and played admirably. Bros. A. D. George, Dr. Muir, P. Cornell, Emma Holmes, and Clarke contributed to the harmony of the evening, and we were particularly delighted with the singing by Dr. Muir of Sullivan's charming song "Sweethearts," and Ascher's beautiful "Alice, where art thou?" An original song by Bro. Clarke, called "Merry Words," containing some apposite Masonic allusions, was well given by that brother. Altogether the evening was one not likely to be soon forgotten by those who were privileged to be present, and all we say is, when next Bro. John Hervey comes down to instal the W.M. of the British Union "may we be there to see."

WARRINGTON.—Lodge of Lights (No. 148).—On Thursday, December 28th, the brethren of this lodge met in the Masonic Rooms, Sankey-street, to celebrate their one hundred and eleventh anniversary, and to instal in the chair of K.S. Bro. Thos. Tunstall, Past S.W. A large number of members and visitors assembled to do honour to the new Master, who, though the youngest Mason who has filled that office for many years, gives great promise of being a most efficient Master, and one in whom the brethren have great confidence that the prestige and usefulness of the lodge will not deteriorate under his supervision. The lodge was opened in due form at three o'clock p.m. by Bro. Wm. Robinson, the retiring W.M., assisted by Bro. Henry Poynter, W.M. 948, P.M. 1087, P.P.G.P., Prov. G. Reg. Berks and Bucks, Z. 948, &c., as S.W., and Bro. D. W. Finney, P.M. 148, P.M. 1250, P.Z. 148, &c., as J.W. The Board of Installed Masters was opened in ample form, and the ceremony of installation was most efficiently performed by Bro. Robinson, who is the first retiring Master that has exercised his privilege in this respect for very many years. Bro. Jno. Bowes, P.M. 148, P.J.G.W. Cumberland and Westmoreland, assisted Bro. Robinson, and gave the addresses to the Master, Wardens, and brethren in that emphatic and perfect style for which Bro. Bowes is so widely known and so deservedly famous. Before the lodge was closed, the Treasurer's accounts for the past year were read and passed, and ordered to be printed and circulated, and we were pleased to notice that although large sums had been voted to the central and provincial charities a good balance was left in the hands of the bankers. The brethren passed a unanimous vote of thanks to Bro. Robinson, and a Past Master's jewel was cordially voted to him for his able conduct while in the chair. Bro. Hannah, who had faithfully filled the office of Tyler for about ten years, now resigned that position, and was unanimously elected an honorary member of the lodge. The lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren separated in harmony. Among the members present were Bros. T. Tunstall, W.M.; W. Robinson, I.P.M.; J. Pickthall, S.W.; Jno. R. Young, J.W.; J. Armstrong, Treas.; Jno. Bowes, P.M., Sec.; Dr. Alfred H. Young, S.D.; Jas. Paterson, J.D.; T. M. Pattison, Org.; G. W. Joseph, I.G.; Thos. Domville, Tyler; Jas. Hepherd, P.M.; Jno. Harding, P.M.; C. E. Hindley, T. Grime, T. W. Thorpe, E. Edwardson, Chas. Skinner, Jno. Laithwaite, A. Peake, J. Dimmelow, J. Jones, H. Ferguson, C. Savage, C. Ekkert, E. P. Sherwood, Jno. Pierpoint, Robt. Gibbons, Jas. Hannah. Visiting brethren:—Bros. R. Brierley, P.M. 1250; J. Kenworthy, 1565; W. S. Hawkins, P.M. 1250; D. W. Finney, P.M. 148, P.M. 1250, P.Z. 148; H. Poynter, W.M. 948, Z. 948, Prov. G. Reg., &c.; F. C. Hunt, P.M. 43; L. R. Barnes, P.M. 113; W. Richardson, P.M. 1250; and others. At five o'clock p.m. the brethren re-assembled at the Lion Hotel for their annual banquet, which was of the most recherché description, and served by Bro. and Mrs. Pratt in their best style. Upon the removal of the cloth, the W.M. gave the toast of "The Queen." The next toast was that of "The Prince and Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family." The W.M. then entrusted his gavel to Bro. Hepherd, P.M., who proposed, in the most glowing terms, "The Health of the M.W.G.M. of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales." In the course of his remarks Bro. Hepherd alluded to the great gratification it had afforded him in being present at the installation of H.R.H., and his efficient conduct in the Grand Master's chair on that occasion, and impressed on the brethren the fact that the Craft generally did not want patronage, yet was glad to receive support from those who were high in authority and position. The toast of "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master," was proposed in suitable terms by Bro. Robinson, who afterwards proposed "The Health of Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Prov. G.M., the Hon. F. A. Stanley, R.W.D.P. G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers." Bro. Pickthall, S.W., proposed in most laudatory terms "The Health of the Prov. Grand Masters of East Lancashire, Cumberland, and Westmoreland, Cheshire, and other neighbouring Provinces," coupling with the toast the names of Bros. Bowes, P.G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmoreland, and Poynter, Prov. G. Reg. Berks and Bucks. Bro. Bowes, in response, thanked the brethren for the uniform kindness he received from the lodge, and said he felt no little pride in being a member of so old and distinguished a lodge as 148, and of the training he had received in that lodge. He had filled all the offices and done all the ceremonies, and felt inward satisfaction that his services had been so highly appreciated by the officers and brethren, and that he should always feel happy in placing his services at the command of the W.M. Bro. Poynter, who upon rising was greeted with applause, thanked the brethren both on behalf of himself individually for the kindness he always received when he came amongst them, on behalf of the Lodge 948, of which he was the present Master, for the post of honour they had accorded to him in the lodge that afternoon, and on behalf of the Province of Berks and Bucks, which he represented. He remarked that Sir Daniel Gooch, Prov. G.M., and the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Dep. Prov. G.M., were good men and true Masons. They had the good of Freemasonry at heart, and worked hard to further the interest of the lodges which were under their supervision, and who dispensed honours to the different lodges in the province without fear or favour. With regard to Lodge 948, it was one that was doing its work faithfully and well, but was greatly indebted to this Lodge 148 for the very able and efficient Installing Master, Bro. Bowes, of whose services in that capacity the Lodge of St. Barnabas was glad to avail itself at the last annual meeting, and who has promised to repeat his visit for a similar purpose next year. The toast of the evening was "The Health of the New W.M., Bro. Thos. Tunstall," proposed by Bro. Robinson, I.P.M., who complimented him on his accession to the chair, which had hitherto been filled by Masters much older both in years and in Masonry. But the efficient discharge of his duties in the minor offices was a guarantee that the office of W.M. would be well and ably filled during the next twelve months. Bro. Tunstall, who on rising to respond was greeted with several rounds of applause, said that though young in years he was not deficient in Masonic zeal. He should endeavour to hand down the office of W.M. to his successor with the same lustre as he had received it. He hoped the brethren would not expect too much from him, but would render him all the assistance they could in his new office, and it would be his constant aim and pleasure to enhance the interests of the lodge and the comfort of the brethren while he presided over them in the capacity of W.M. Before sitting down he proposed "The Health of the Past Masters and Officers of the Lodge of Lights, 148," which was suitably replied to by Bro. Robinson. The toast of "The Visiting Brethren" was proposed by the W.M., which was responded to by each visiting brother respectively. "The Success of the Masonic Charities" was given by Bro. Bowes, P.M., &c., and responded to by Bro. Gibbons, who remarked that next to the Gospel Freemasonry taught the grandest principles under the sun. He felt thankful that the Craft so well looked after the aged, and took such care of the sons and daughters of deceased brethren, and concluded by recommending the Masonic Charities to the increased support of the members of the Craft. The Tyler's toast brought this very pleasant gathering to a close.

NEWPORT.—Albany Lodge (No. 151).—On Thursday the 28th ult., the brethren of this lodge held a meeting at their Masonic Hall, Newport, I.W., for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. John Parkes, P.P.G.S.B., the S.W. of the lodge, Bro. Charles Thomas Allée, P.M., presiding as Installing Master. When introducing the W.M. elect, Bro. George Wyatt, P.M., expressed the very great pleasure he felt in presenting a young member so much respected by the brethren of the Albany Lodge. The old friend whom Bro. Allée had proposed, initiated, passed and raised, and was now about to install as Worshipful Master for the ensuing year, who from his punctual attendance and the efficient manner in which he had discharged the duties of the lodge during the years of his Wardenship, there could be no doubt that his Mastership would also be marked by the same punctuality and steady efficient working which he had hitherto evinced. The Installing Master remarked that it was most gratifying to have the privilege of installing his old and valued friend, whom he had initiated, and who had so zealously worked up to the position in which he stood as W.M. elect, and would shortly be enrolled amongst the rulers of the Craft, and the eighth W.M. he (Bro. Allée) had installed in the chair of the Albany Lodge, and as Installing Master he felt sure that he should place in the chair one who would diligently attend to the interests of the lodge, and emulate the good working of his predecessors. The W.M. invested Bro. D. S. Pring as S. W.; the Chaplain, Bro. Rev. H. E. M. Hughes, M.A., J. W.; Bro. Isaac Golden, S.D.; Bro. W. Tilley, J.D.; Bro. C. O. Harriss, I.G.; Bro. Thos. Kentfield, Junr., Organist. Bro. Treasurer, George Wyatt, P.P.G.S.W.; and Bro. H. F. Dashwood, P.P.G.T., as Tyler, were re-installed for their seventeenth year of office. The visitors were Bros. Captain G. M. Burt, W.M. of the recently resuscitated Yarrow Lodge, 551, Ventnor, I.W.; Mark Linfield, P.M. 551; T. N. J. Petherick, Org. 551 (officiating on the occasion); J. Cabell, 551; Captain F. Newman, P.M. 175 and 608; George Pack, S.W. 175; J. Gentiffe, 35; F. P. Patet, 35; H. Fox, 35; J. Alford, 918; H. T. Way, P.M. Economy, 76. After the ancient ceremonial, the usual banquet took place at the Star Hotel, the residence of Bro. A. E. King, where thirty-four brethren re-assembled.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on the 2nd inst. The W.M., Bro. W. R. Denne, was unavoidably absent during the early part of the meeting, whereupon the lodge was opened by Bro. Dixon, P.P.G.D.C., assisted by Bros. Wilson, Treasurer (acting) S.W.; C. D. Hume, J.W.; The Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, D.P.G.M. of the Province, Chaplain; J. G. Carter, I.P.M., P.G.D.C., Sec.; Roberts, S. D.; Schiemann, J.D.; Nicholes, I.G.; Strange, P.M.; P.P.G.D., Dir. of Cer.; Pullin, P.M., P.P.G.D.; Hopwood, P.M.; Long, P.M.; Bryett, P.M.; Evans, Radclyffe, Larkin, Cousins, Pitts, Robinson, Blizard, Prince, Mitchener, Wilkins, Duffield, Hamper, Hiscock, Willoby, and others. Visitors:—Major General Brownrigg, P.G.M. of the Province of Surrey; W. Biggs, Prov. G. Sec.; Scott, P.M. 101; Hartleton, P.M. 101; Thompson, P.M. 742; Cox, P.M. 742; Land, P.M. 642; Blundell, 742; Berry, P.M. 179; Stokes, 60 (Canada); Cutler, W.M. 771; Powell, P.M. 771; Bingham, 771; Tolley, P.M. 771; Cantrell, W.M. 1501; Nash, P.M. 865; Cockburn, P.M. 820; Worthington P.M. 834 and 858; Chorley, W.M. 865, and others. Bros. Robinson and Larkin were passed to the degree of F.C. by Bro. Dixon, P.M. Bro. J. G. Carter, I.P.M., then assumed the collar of the W.M., and installed the W.M. elect, Bro. C. D. Hume, J.W. The Board of Installed Masters consisted of twenty-five W.M.'s and P.M.'s. The officers of the lodge for the ensuing year are as follows:—Bros. Roberts, S.W.; Schiemann, J.W.; the Rev. J. Studholme Brownrigg, Chaplain (re-invested); Wilson, P.M., Treas. (re-invested); Carter, P.M., Sec. (re-invested); Nicholes, S.D.; Pears, J.D.; Cousins, I.G.; Strange, P.M., Dir. of Cer. (re-invested); Evans, Steward; Kent, Tyler. The addresses to the W.M. and Wardens were given by Bro. Wilson, P.M., and to the brethren by Bro. Carter, P.M. The first official act of the new Master was to invest his predecessor, Bro. Denne, with the usual P.M.'s jewel. A candidate for initiation, and one as a joining member having been proposed, the lodge was closed in due form. The banquet was held at the White Hart Hotel, and gave universal satisfaction. The usual toasts were proposed in eloquent terms by the W.M. A special toast was introduced, viz., that of Major General Brownrigg, as Prov. G.M. of the Province of Surrey, who in responding spoke of the great pleasure it afforded him to attend the Etonian Lodge, not only on account of the connection of his son with the lodge as Chaplain, but the very name of the lodge brought back to his recollection many happy days at Eton. He warmly praised the "working" of the lodge, and said he looked forward with pleasure to another visit. The musical brethren (Bro. Large from Westminster Abbey, Briggs and Tolley from St. George's Chapel) added considerably to the pleasure of the evening by singing a capital selection of songs and glees in an admirable manner. Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Bro. Dick Radclyffe for his splendid table decorations, which he presented to the lodge, he having personally conducted the arrangement of several elegantly filled epergnes &c., and created an effect impossible to describe. The Prov. G.M. Bro. Sir D. Gooch, Bart., M.P., and the Prov. G.M. of the Province of Middlesex, Bro. Colonel Burdett were unavoidably absent.

NEWPORT.—Silurian Lodge (No. 471).—The brethren of this lodge met on Wednesday, 3rd inst., at the Masonic Hall, Newport, to instal Bro. Gibbs as W.M. There was an excellent attendance of P.M.'s and brethren, amongst whom were Bro. Capt. S. Geo. Homfray, P.A.G. D.C. and D.P.G.M. of the province; Bros. W. Pickford, P.G.S.W.; H. J. Grate, P.G.J.W.; C. Rowe, P.G. Sec., and other distinguished visitors. The ceremony of installation was most ably performed by Bro. Chas. Lyne, son of the P.G.M., who distinguished himself in this, as he has done in every ceremony during his year of office. A sum of ten guineas was unanimously voted to support the worthy D.P.G.M., Steward for the Benevolent Institution on 12th February next. The lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to banquet.

STOKESLEY.—Cleveland Lodge (No. 543).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held in the lodge-room, at the Golden Lion Hotel, Stokesley, on Monday evening last, when there was a good attendance, most of the members having travelled for several miles to be present. The W.M. elect, Bro. Coulson, was duly installed by Bro. Richardson, P.M.; after which the following officers were invested, viz., Bros. W. S. Dixon, S.W.; D. Dixon, J.W.; W. Sharp, S.D.; Hanson, J.D.; J. H. Handyside, P. Prov. G.J.W., Sec.; R. Watson, P.M., Treas.; John White, I.G.; H. Fawcett, P.M., Org.; and W. Harrison, Tyler. The banquet was fixed for Thursday the 25th inst. The newly-installed Master then initiated Mr. Thomas Fenney into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, and a Cleveland vicar was proposed as a candidate, after which the lodge was closed in peace and harmony. The brethren all expressed themselves much pleased with the manner in which the new W.M. had gone through the ceremony of initiation for the first time.

NEWPORT.—Isca Lodge (No. 688).—On Thursday, 4th January, a lodge of emergency was held at the Masonic Hall, Newport, by the brethren of this lodge to initiate Samuel George Homfray, the son of the D.P.G.M., who had to return to Newcastle-on-Tyne, where he now resides. The brethren assembled in goodly numbers to support their worthy D.P.G.M., Bro. Captain S. George Homfray, P.A.G.D.C., who performed the ceremony in a most able and impressive manner. He then thanked the W.M. for having entrusted him with his gavel, and afforded him the privilege of initiating his son in his mother lodge, and he felt confident that he would become an ornament to the Craft.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Lodge (No. 824).—A specially interesting meeting of this lodge was held on the 20th ult. at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, where there was a very large gathering of brethren. Bro. Wm. Wilson, W.M., occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Bros. J. Houlding, S.W.; H. Ashmore, J.W.; W. J. Lunt, P.M., Treas.; G. Turner, P.M., P.G. Treas.; J. Holland, P.M., DD.; W. Boulton, P.M.; W. Cottle, P.M.; T. Shaw, P.M.; with about sixty brethren. The visitors were Bros. W. T. May, P.M. 673; J. J. Rose, P.M. 249; W. Shortis, P.M. 724; W. Pugh, P.M. 1182; W. Wood, W.M. 1620; F. H. Evans, P.M. 1393; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673; and others. The business included the Second Degree, after which Bro. W. Wilson, W.M., gave a highly interesting lecture on geometry, with special reference to architecture, founded as a science in Egypt. He gave a vivid and lucid explanation of the 47th problem in Euclid, deducing therefrom many valuable and pointed moral lessons and deductions. The lecture was listened to with marked attention by all the brethren present, and the peculiarly talented manner in which Bro. Wilson had framed his lecture elicited the admiration and commendation of every one. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren separated after a true intellectually Masonic treat.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street, on Wednesday evening, January 3rd. The lodge was opened at 7 p.m. The circular having been read and the minutes of the past lodge read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for the W.M. elect, Bro. W. Heathcote, S.W., was unanimously elected. The next business was to elect a Treasurer for the ensuing year, when Bro. W. H. Bobart was unanimously re-elected. Bro. Bobart, having held the office of Treasurer to this lodge for a number of years was greeted in a very warm manner by the brethren generally. Bro. Slinn was re-elected as Tyler. Mr. Alfred George Sayer was initiated into Freemasonry in ancient and solemn form. Bro. Walters was raised to the sublime degree of M.M. in a very impressive manner by the W.M. Lodge being resumed in the First Degree, Bros. Worsnop and Mantou were appointed to audit the Treasurer's accounts to the 30th December, 1876. The W.M. having received the hearty good wishes from a number of the brethren, the lodge was closed in due form, when the majority of the brethren adjourned to supper; after which followed the usual Masonic toasts, which were given and duly honoured. The musical talent of several of the brethren enhanced very considerably the evening's enjoyment. The brethren present were as follows:—Bros. S. Pipes, W.M.; Wm. Heathcote, S.W.; J. O. Mantou, as J.W.; J. H. Biggs, as S.D.; Josh. Heathcote, J.D.; M. H. Bobart, Treas.; Geo. Pipes, Sec., as Org.; Wm. Butterfield, as I.G.; Thos. Slinn, Tyler. Bros. Pakeman, Russell, Mills, Pragnell, Geo. Hill, Steele, Parkins, Walters, Gore. Visitors: Bros. R. Bennett, W.M. 731. Frazer, 731.

WOOLSTON.—Clausentum Lodge (No. 1461).—On Monday, 18th ult., Bro. F. A. Rosoman was installed the W.M. for the year ensuing of the Clausentum Lodge by the Prov. G.M., Bro. W. W. B. Beach, M.P., assisted by the Deputy Prov. G.M., Bro. W. Hickman. The W.M. subsequently invested his officers as follows:—Bros. Captain Martin, R.N., I.P.M.; Geo. G. Tilling, S.W.; R. R. L. Rosoman, J.W.; Capt. R. W. Evans, Treas.; H. Phillips, P.M., Sec.; E. A. Andrews, S.D.; W. H. Chapman, J.D.; J. Methven, I.G.; E. Waters, D.G.; and Vare, Tyler. After the installation the brethren adjourned to the Woolston College (kindly lent for the occasion by Bro. Methven), and sat down to a banquet supplied by Bro. Dartnall, where a most enjoyable evening was spent. The room was very handsomely decorated with flags, &c., and the table with a very choice array of flowers, ferns, &c., from the Hazelkirk conservatories. The whole proceedings were carried out in a most successful manner, and the number of brethren present showed how flourishing this young lodge has become.

DUNNING.—St. John's Lodge (No. 174).—The annual festival of St. John the Evangelist was held by this lodge on the afternoon and evening of Wednesday the 27th ult. About 2 p.m., a double sleigh, gaily decorated with evergreens, and containing a deputation of the brethren of the lodge, arrived at the Forteviot Station, there to await the arrival from Perth, per 1.55 train, of the Installing Officer, Bro. Dr. Cowan, Past Master of Eastern Bengal Railway Lodge No. 444, of Calcutta, and of Great Western Lodge, No. 47 of Canada, and Past Substitute Provincial Grand Master of Perthshire (East), who had volunteered his services on this occasion, as well as at other times, to aid in restoring to good working order an old and respected lodge. On arriving at Dunning a good muster of brethren was found ready to greet them at the old Kirkstyle Hotel, where ample provision had been provided for the wants of the brethren, by their Steward, Bro. Stewart. At 3.30 p.m., by request of the Right Worshipful Master, Bro. Henry Menzies Bro. Dr. Cowan opened lodge in due and ancient form. The work on the trestle-board was the annual election and installation of officers. This was at once proceeded with, by open vote, when the following brethren were declared to be duly and unanimously elected to fill the respective offices during the ensuing year, viz:—Bros. James Holmes Morrison, M.D., R.W.M.; Henry Menzies, P.M.; John Taylor, sen., D.M.; John Morton Buchanan, M.B., S.B.; James Wilson, S.W.; William Bruce, S.W.; John Pollock, Treas.; Andrew Matthew, Sec.; James Rae, Chap.; Andrew Chalmers, S.D.; James Whyte, J.D.; John Taylor, jun., Jeweller; William Jones, Bible Bearer; John Stirling, Sword Bearer; David Fenton, Marshal; Alex. Stewart, Steward; Andrew Mailer, I.G.; Robert Cunningham, Tyler. Immediately after the election, the Installing Officer administered the usual obligations to the W.M. elect, Bro. Dr. Morrison, after which, he was inducted into the chair in the presence of the brethren, and duly proclaimed Master of the Lodge with all the usual rites and ceremonies. The remaining officers were then obligated and installed seriatim into their respective offices. The whole ceremony was performed by Bro. Dr. Cowan in an imposing, impressive, and correct manner, and was calculated to make a deep and lasting impression upon the minds of the brethren present, from the many and valuable instructions conveyed. As soon as the ceremony (which occupied altogether over an hour) was over, the lodge was adjourned. The brethren were then formed, under direction of the Marshal, Bro. Fenton, into Masonic Order of Procession, and, headed by an excellent new fife and drum band, under the able leadership of Mr. Peter Flockhart, and lighted on their way by a great number of torches, by boy torch-bearers, marched away from the Hotel, and paraded the principal streets of the ancient town, creating a great sensation in the otherwise usually quiet place, where such a sight had not been witnessed for very many years. Unfortunately, the weather was very unfavourable, rain falling in torrents. After the return of the procession to the hotel they adjourned to the dining-room, and, after grace had been said by the officiating Chaplain, sat down to a most excellent dinner, provided by Bro. Stewart. The Steward of the lodge, whose kindness and attention to all was much appreciated. Then followed about two hours of pleasant sociality, including speeches, songs and sentiments. The W.M., Bro. Dr. Morrison, who occupied the chair, was assisted by his S.W., Bro. James Wilson, and J.W., Bro. William Bruce, who acted as croupiers. After the usual loyal toasts had been given, the Chairman rose and proposed "The Health of Bro. Dr. Cowan," the guest of the evening, paying that brother a handsome compliment for coming forward on so many occasions to assist the lodge in its work, and stated that it was greatly due to his efforts on their behalf that St. John, No. 174, was now in so flourishing a condition. The W.M. concluded by calling upon his officers and brethren to dedicate with him a bumper to the long life, health, and happiness of the "King of Masons," Worshipful Bro. Dr. Cowan, which was responded to with full Masonic honours and deafening cheers. Bro. Dr. Cowan, in reply, said that it always gave him great pleasure to forward the course of Masonry. He believed in so doing he was doing a great, good, and useful work. He had seen much of Masonry in every country and clime, and wherever he had been he had seen nothing which more tended than it did to bind good men together. He had always, ever since he became acquainted with their worthy P.M., Bro. Menzies, and with themselves, had the greatest pleasure in coming to Dunning to aid the good work. Bro. Menzies, though old in years, was yet young in energy, and young in heart, and was a good and worthy citizen and Mason, and he (Dr. Cowan) thought they ought to be proud of having such a man in their midst, and from what he had seen of his and their working so well and so amicably together, he had no doubt they would work equally amicably and well with their new Master and Ruler, Bro. Dr. Morrison. He was pleased to see on a late occasion when he visited their Lodge, No. 174, that they were on such friendly terms with their nearest Sister Lodge, No. 46, St. John of Auchterarder. On that occasion there was a deputation from that lodge consisting of seven members, headed by their present W.M., Bro. Malcom, and Bro. Dr. Macfar, S.W. He was always pleased to see brethren of different lodges working amicably together, and being on close terms of intimacy and friendship, and thus showing to the external world that there is the amount of love and harmony in Masonry which we all profess. These reunions and visitations did great good. He begged to return to the R.W. Master, Bro. Dr. Morrison, his most hearty thanks for the very kind, even magnificent, reception he and his lodge had given him, and for the masterly and very kind manner in which he had spoken of his humble efforts on their behalf, and also for the very hearty way in which they had responded to the toast of his health. Bro. Cowan then asked permission from the R.W. Master to propose the next toast, which was granted. He said: R.W. Master, Wardens, and brethren, the toast which I have to offer for your acceptance is that of a very old, very worthy and distinguished member of your lodge, your Immediate Past Master, Bro. Henry Menzies. I need not say how well he is beloved by you all, nor how well he deserves it. Suffice it to say, that even for the very short time which I have known him, which is barely twelve months, I have learned to appreciate his worth, his kindness and courtesy to all men, and his energy, zeal, and enthusiasm in the cause of Masonry, which are truly wonderful at his years, which are now over threescore and ten. You, R.W. sir, have been pleased to allude to my efforts on behalf of this lodge, and even to say that it is chiefly due to me that the lodge is now beginning to prosper and "flourish as a green bay tree;" but allow me to correct you, and to say that no effort of mine, and no efforts of any one outside of your own lodge, could have again raised it from its long dormant state. The wonderful vitality into which your lodge has sprung from a state of almost hopeless torpor, is due chiefly, I may say almost entirely, to the energy and zeal of your new members, encouraged by the great kindness, largeness of heart, and hospitality of your Past Master, Bro. Menzies. He has not only given you his own services, his time, and his money to awaken you, but he has done what very few men, even in our large-hearted and liberal Craft, would have done; he has placed his own private residence at your disposal, to enable you to instruct yourselves in Masonry, and to render yourselves perfect in the rites and ceremonies of an ancient and honourable Craft. To such a man and such a brother you owe a very high debt of gratitude far such great and unvaried love as he has displayed for our Order and for you, and he deserves from all of us our warmest affection and love, and our most grateful and heartfelt thanks. The toast was drunk with great enthusiasm, and all the honours. Bro. Menzies made a brief but pertinent reply. Bro. Menzies then proposed "The Health of their present R.W.M., Bro. Dr. Morrison." He asked them to drink "The Health of their Newly-installed Master," and this with all the Masonic honours. The W.M. made a neat and appropriate reply, thanking the brethren kindly for their good wishes, and hoped by-and-by to be more fully deserving of them. The Past Officers' healths, and thanks for their services, were then proposed from the chair, and duly responded to by Bro. William Bruce. After this there followed other toasts, and songs, and sentiments. A most agreeable social evening was spent until about 11 p.m., when the party adjourned downstairs to the ball-room, where the wives, sweethearts, and friends of the brethren had gathered in goodly numbers. The ball was very much enjoyed by all, and kept up with spirit to the excellent music of the band until nearly a p.m., when all retired to their respective homes highly delighted. In the course of the evening, a telegram was despatched to the sister Lodge of Auchterarder, and duly acknowledged.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The monthly meeting of the Committee of this Institution was held on Wednesday at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Colonel Creaton presided. The other brethren present were Bros. S. Rawson, Griffiths Smith, H. Muggeridge, William Hale, Henry G. Warren, John Constable, Thos. Cubitt, J. Newton, John G. Stevens, J. A. Farnfield, James Brett, W. Stevens, C. A. Cottebrune, Frederick Adlard, G. Bolton, W. Hilton, Charles Lacy, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, and Terry.

The death of one annuitant was reported, after having received £242. The Wardens report for the past month was read, expressing the gratitude of the residents at the Asylum at Croydon for an extra sack of coals delivered at Christmas time. The Wardens report also referred to the entertainment given last week at the Institution, and conveyed the old peoples' expression of pleasure at the amusements of the evening. The report also recorded the presentation of the gold watch to Dr. Strong and the gold locket to Mrs. Strong.

Bro. Terry read the report of the Finance Committee, which showed that during last year the gross receipts of the Institution amounted to £12,540 15s. 7d. The report was ordered to be entered on the minutes. Bro. Terry then brought up the Special Report of the House Committee, which recommended that the field in front of the building should be rented. This was agreed to.

25 petitions were read and considered, and 23 were received. The remaining two were deferred to next month for further information.

Dr. Erasmus Wilson gave notice of motion for the annual meeting in May to alter the amount hitherto paid for the qualification of individuals and lodges as Life Governors of the Institution from pounds to guineas; the other subscriptions of 5s., 10s., and 15s. to remain as hitherto.

Bro. Terry mentioned to the committee that for the next election there were 35 male candidates, and only 8 vacancies; and 35 female candidates, and only 2 vacancies.

The committee adjourned, after sitting an hour and a-half.

We notice that Bro. Edgar Towell's (professionally known as Edgar Anderson) Variety Company, will open at the Town Hall, Walthamstow, on Monday next. The entertainment will consist of operatta, comedy, and tragedy.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We draw the attention of the Craft to the fact that for the next election of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution there are 35 male and 35 female candidates. For the former there are but 10 vacancies, the latter but 2.

By the Queen's command the sum of £250 has been forwarded to the Lord Mayor from the Royal Bounty Fund in aid of the distress caused by the recent inundations. Her Majesty has also Contributed £50 towards the relief of the suffering which has been caused in Windsor through the overflowing of the Thames.

On Tuesday, by the request of her Majesty, a number of the members of the Royal Household were vaccinated at Windsor Castle by Dr. Fairbank, the Queen's surgeon. Those who had had small-pox, or who had been vaccinated within the last seven years, were exempted.

The memorial church to the late Bishop Summer has been consecrated at Farnham. The Bishop of Winchester, the Bishop of Guildford, and the Venerable Archdeacon Jacob took part in the proceedings.

The total rainfall measured at Greenwich Observatory last week was 1.34 inch.

At a meeting of Churchmen held on Monday last at Sheffield, the Archbishop of York presiding, it was resolved to erect one additional church each year for five years. A fund of £50,000 is to be raised, of which £22,003 was announced at the meeting.

The marriage of Lieutenant-Colonel E. Chaplin, M.P., and Lady Gwendolen Talbot is fixed to take place at Ingestre on the 18th January.

It is officially announced that the Address in the House of Commons in answer to the Queen's Speech will be moved by Lord Galway, M.P. for North Nottinghamshire, and seconded by Mr. Torr, M.P. for Liverpool.

We have much pleasure in recording the fact that on Christmas-day Bro. T. Burdett Yeoman, with a few young ladies and young gentlemen, provided a real English Christmas dinner for 297 necessitous poor. The joints consisted of sirloins of beef, legs of mutton, shoulders of mutton, and legs of pork, with boiled and baked potatoes, plum puddings, and stout. "If ye love me feed the hungry." The above is worthy of all Masons.

Bro. D. Murray Lyon is now editing "Ayr in the Olden Time," to be shortly published by John Tweed, 16, South Portland-street, Glasgow. We recommend the work to all archaeologists.

The infant daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh was christened at the Palace of St. Antonio, at Malta, on Jan. 1, and received the names Victoria Melita. The Queen was one of the sponsors.

The Jubilee Ball of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, which consists of 170 houses, chapel, chaplain's residence, &c., will take place at St. James's Hall, on Thursday, the 18th inst.

The Mansion House Inundation Relief Fund now exceeds £2500. The Premier has declined to receive a deputation on the subject of the floods in Lambeth, and has referred the memorialists in that borough to the Metropolitan Board of Works.

The Bishop of Exeter is to be presented with a pastoral staff, in recognition of his generosity in diverting £800 a year from his income to the see of Truro.

The Duke of Marlborough made his public entry into Dublin on Wednesday, as Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland, in succession to the Duke of Abercorn.

LIVERPOOL MASONIC BALL.—This enjoyable and largely patronised festive gathering of "the Craft" and their friends in and around Liverpool took place at the Town Hall on Tuesday evening, the 9th inst., the proceeds being again intended for the benefit of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution. A full report of the ball will appear in our next issue.

A meeting of the Committee of the Benevolent Fund of the Joppa Lodge, No. 188, was held on Monday, 8th inst., for the purpose of electing a President for the ensuing year, when Bro. Lewis Alexander, Senior P.M., was re-elected.

COVENT GARDEN THEATRE.—The ever-popular hero of Defoe's well-known story, "Robinson Crusoe," gives many opportunities to playwrights for supplying a thoroughly good Christmas pantomime. The version given at this noble theatre is very amusing and enjoyable. The scenery is magnificent, and the accessories most brilliant. Bro. Charles Rice, the energetic manager, deserves very great praise for the liberal manner in which he has placed this gorgeous annual upon the stage, and also for the very efficient company engaged to portray each character. We may safely predict a most successful run for this pantomime, for the magnificent scenery, splendid costumes, good music, dancing, and clever artists will certainly draw thousands of all ages to witness the adventures of their great hero of fiction, "Robinson Crusoe."

The installation meeting of the St. James's Lodge, No. 448, took place at Freemasons' Hall, Halifax, on the 2nd inst. A report of the proceedings is unavoidably postponed, through pressure on our columns, until next week.

LINCOLNSHIRE PORK PIES.—These celebrated pies are really very excellent, fresh, tasty, and well-made. Heads of families will find them a serviceable addition to the luncheon or supper table. They are equal to, if they do not excel others, and certainly deserve a trial. Bro. George Broadway, of 24, Steep Hill, Lincoln, is the manufacturer.

CONSECRATION OF THE STARKIE LODGE, No. 1634.

On Wednesday, 20th ult., the anniversary of the festival of St. John, a new lodge was consecrated and constituted at the Railway Hotel, Ramsbottom. Hitherto there had been no Masonic lodge in Ramsbottom, and brethren resident there had to travel a number of miles, either to Bury on the one hand, or Haslingden on the other, in order to participate in the proceedings incident to the mystic Craft. Wednesday's ceremony was numerously attended, and passed off with great ac/ai. About ninety of the brethren were present from different parts of the province of East Lancashire, including the following Provincial Grand Officers:—Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Prov. G.M.; William Harrison, S.G.W.; Thomas Chorlton, G.Reg., Manchester; John Tannah, Grand Sec., Bolton; W.O. Walker, S.G.D., Bury; John Pelling, G. Superintendent of Works, Bacup; C. M. Jones, G. Dir. of Cers., Rochdale; J. H. Sillitoe, Assiat. ditto, Manchester; James Mills, G.S.B., Heywood; Thomas Hargreaves, G. Org., Haslingden; Westray Benn, Assiat. G. Pursuivant Bacup; Rawdon Ashworth, P.G.S.; Joseph Handley, P. Prov. G. Treas.; Henry Maiden, P. Prov. G.S.B., Bury.

The proceedings commenced about half-past two o'clock in the afternoon. Bro. S. Porritt, P.M., opened a Craft lodge to the Third Degree, after which the R.W. Prov. Grand Master and his officers were admitted in procession, and Bro. Le Gendre Starkie having taken his seat in the W.M.'s chair, the ceremony commenced, and was performed in a most impressive manner.

Bros. A. Wroe, S. Bailey, J. Simpson, and Kershaw, of Bury, sang the anthems and musical responses most effectively, Bro. J. R. Fletcher, of Bury, officiating as accompanist. The petition and warrant of the new lodge—which bears the name "Starkie," No. 1634—having been read, and the petitioning brethren having signified their approval of the officers named in the warrant,

The Prov. Grand Master delivered a short oration on the nature and design of Freemasonry. In the course of his remarks he said he hoped that the brethren composing this new lodge would maintain the dignity and unity which were so essential in Masonry, and which would not only be a credit to themselves, but would show to the outer world that there was something more than mere banquets. Far be it from him to say they should not have their banquets and convivial meetings. He did not see, in their own precepts, nor yet in any system of morality, why men should not meet together to enjoy themselves; but when they had certain rules laid down, as they had in Freemasonry, that those enjoyments should be fraternal and rational, a Mason who outstepped them and traduced his obligations was much more culpable than the man who had never been taught them or had the principle brought before him. He wished them to be very careful concerning character and antecedents, as to who they elected into this lodge, so that no trouble need be experienced by having among them persons who joined Masonry for ultimate ends of their own and not for the good of society. This Christmas of 1876 had brought to them the nativity of their lodge, and he hoped it would be a Christmas hereafter which to the poor might be a benefit, to the oppressed a solace, and to the well-doing a source of brotherly association, whereby they might receive benefit.

The remaining portion of the ceremony was then proceeded with, and the consecration being completed, the Prov. Grand Master vacated the chair in favour of the Installing Master, Bro. W. O. Walker, who installed Bro. Henry Heys as the W.M. of the lodge, following which Bro. Jos. Handley invested the W.M.'s officers, viz., Bros. Thomas Peak, S.W.; Samuel Porritt, J.W.; George J. Cottrill, S.D.; Samuel Wilson, J.D.; Samuel Horrocks, I.G.; Lawrence Stead, C.; John Spencer, D. of C.; George Thorpe, Treasurer; Hazell Ineson, Secretary; Henry Lees Sladin, Organist; John Schofield and Thomas Smith, Stwds.; Abel Booth, Tyler.

This being completed, the Prov. Grand Master returned his hearty thanks to the Provincial Grand Officers for the assistance they had given him, and especially acknowledged his obligation to Bros. W. O. Walker and Jos. Handley for the admirable manner in which they had performed the installation and investiture respectively. They were not, he was happy to say, under the necessity of procuring extraneous aid from other provinces. It was an honour and credit to the province to have brethren who could perform the ceremony as it had been performed that day, and it was no small gratification to him to know that he had officers under him who were capable of doing their duty, and ever willing to do it, in a manner that could not be beaten by the officers in any other province.

The Prov. Grand Master and his officers then retired, and the W.M. closed the lodge in due form, announcing that the regular meetings will be held on the third Wednesday in every month. It may be stated that the lodge furniture, &c., was of an unusually rich and costly description, and excited much admiration on the part of the visitors.

The brethren subsequently adjourned to St. Paul's School-room, which had been appropriately adorned with a variety of festoons, mottoes, &c., and where a most substantial banquet was served to a company of 93 by Bro. John Rostron, of Bolton. The chair was occupied by Bro. Heys, who was supported by the Prov. Grand Master and his officers. In the course of the evening a number of choice songs, duets, and glees were given by the vocalists already named as sustaining the musical part of the consecration ceremony, a song of Bro. J. R. Fletcher's, sung by Bro. Ware—"Here's to his Health"—being enthusiastically encored.

The W.M. proposed in succession "The Queen," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master," "H.R.H. the Princess of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro Grand Master; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. Deputy Grand Master, and the Grand Officers Past and Present," and "Colonel Le Gendre N. Starkie, R.W. Provincial Grand Master." In giving the latter toast he referred in terms of high praise to the good qualities of Bro. Starkie, and said that they must all feel that the lodge No. 1634 had not been misnamed in being styled after him. (Cheers.)

The Prov. Grand Master, in rising to respond, met with a perfect ovation. After some preliminary observations, he said Masonry was a system which, if properly and duly studied, would elevate a man in his social position—would elevate his thoughts and inspire him with ideas whereby he could not only ameliorate himself but also be of great advantage to his brother citizens. Freemasonry was open to the world—to all who believe in Him who is the Great Architect of the Universe. An atheist or deist could not conscientiously enter within the precincts of their Order, but a man was allowed that grand liberty of conscience whereby he could make himself known to be a good citizen, a moral man—and there was no morality without a certain amount of religious feeling—and an obedient citizen to the civil law. Everything noble, generous, and sublime that a man could wish constituted the elements of the great cardinal virtues, the basis and bulwarks of their orders faith, hope, and charity. Would anyone tell him that in this large province of East Lancashire over which he ruled—with its muster roll of 3,880 to 4,000 brethren—Freemasonry had not done good? As this was the christening day of one of the junior members of his provincial family of 84, he thought it would not be inopportune if he gave them a few statistics relative to their numerical position. There were 41 Provincial Grand Lodges in England and Wales, and 37 District Grand Lodges in the colonies and foreign parts, giving a total of 78 under the Grand Lodge of England. There were on the register of the Grand Lodge of England 1648 lodges, dividing which by the 78 Provincial or District Grand Lodges they had an average of 21 lodges to each province or district. How did they stand in the province of East Lancashire? Why they had 84 lodges, or nearly one-twentieth of the whole of the lodges under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of England. Taking Lancashire as a whole—84 in the East, and 74 in the West province, or a total of 158 lodges—they had nearly one tenth of the whole of the lodges on the roll of the Grand Lodge of England. He did not think the accusation had ever been made of Lancashire people that they were wanting either in enterprise or acumen; they did not take things up with a futile notion. It was with great pride when he came through those valleys to see how his friends had made fortunes for themselves by their industry and enterprise and knowledge of commerce; and when he found those men likewise great advocates of Freemasonry, it was still more gratifying to him that he held the high and honourable position which he had among them, because they must have taken up Masonry in a very earnest and proper sense, or he should not have found their lodges so strong and flourishing. This portion of Christmastide had been one of the happiest days he ever spent in his life, and he thought that if Dickens, the great master of Christmas literature, had been a Freemason, and could have been with them that day, and have described the proceedings of that day, it would have formed a chapter that would have been eagerly perused by the Masons of Lancashire, and never have been forgotten. It was likewise the festival of St. John, and he had never spent a happier St. John's festival than this one. He congratulated Bro. Heys upon being the first Master of this new lodge, and he must also congratulate them upon the lodge furniture. He was a sort of provincial octogenarian, and he trusted that his family of 84 lodges might thrive apace, and that his rule over them might be long. He trusted they might steer clear of all shoals, and that they would keep their charities well supplied with funds, remembering that charity should begin at home. Let not the outer world have to accuse them of indifference or neglect in respect to poor and distressed Masons or their children. They had to be judged by the world, and the world judged very fairly by men's actions. Let them show an example to others, proving by their actions that they wished to enhance the value of morality, pay respect to religion, obey the civil law, and, whatever their political or religious opinions, prove themselves loyal and true to those who were above them; so that as they passed away they might be remembered as men who worked for the good of their country, their neighbours, and the Almighty. (Cheers.)

Bro. Peak proposed "The Health of George Mellor, Esq., W. Deputy Prov. Grand Master, and the Prov. Grand Officers, Present and Past," and Bro. Harrison responded. Bro. Hargreaves proposed "The New Lodge," and Bro. L. Stead responded. The Prov. G.M. gave the next toast, "The Newly-installed Master," and expressed much pleasure at the selection which had been made, and the W.M. responded in appropriate terms. "The Officers of the Lodge" was proposed by Bro. Geo. O'Neil, P.M. 191, Bury, and responded to by Bro. Peak; "Masonic Charities," proposed by Bro. Heywood, of Clayton-le-Moors, and responded to by Bro. Spencer; "The Visiting Brethren," proposed by Bro. Porritt, and responded to by Bro. Smethurst; and the Tyler's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR.—This indispensable guide to all who take an active part in Freemasonry, has again been issued by Mr. George Kenning, of Fleet-street, with the necessary corrections and additions for the present year. Comprising as it does a diary and pocket-book, as well as a comprehensive book of reference on all matters relating to the Craft and the other bodies in connection with the mystic science throughout the globe, it is well worthy of recommendation.—Morning Post, Roan, Gilt Edges, Elastic Band or Tuck; Post free 2/2 Bound in Silk 3/8.—Adv.

The South Eastern Railway Company conveyed from London, via Folkestone and Boulogne, en route for Milan, on Wednesday, 948 cases of silkworm's eggs, weighing 26 tons 11 cwt. The eggs were imported at Liverpool from Japan.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Sores, wounds, ulcerations, and other diseases affecting the skin, are amenable by this cooling and healing unguent. It has called forth the loudest praise from persons who have suffered for years from bad legs, abscesses, and chronic ulcers, after every hope of cure had long passed away. None but those who have experienced the soothing effect of this Ointment can form an idea of the comfort it bestows, by restraining inflammation and allaying pain. Whenever this Ointment has been once used it has established its own growth, and has again been eagerly sought for, as the easiest and safest remedy for all ulcerous complaints. In neuralgia, rheumatism, and gout, the same application, properly used, gives wonderful relief.—Adv.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Freemason has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198 Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

THE ESPECIAL GRAND LODGE.

The proceedings of the last Especial Grand Lodge, if they do not altogether accord with the individual wishes of many, must be admitted by all impartial persons to be alike most interesting, and dignified, and creditable in the extreme to our great Order. He must be a very narrow-minded or very perverse person who does not enter into all that is involved in the elevated truth and judicial fairness of Lord Carnarvon's eloquent address. As we follow that distinguished brother and able statesman through his lucid utterances, we see, perforce, how difficult was the problem which the Special Committee had to solve. We rejoice to think that some humble remarks of ours at the time when the Grand Lodge committed the great mistake of rejecting Bro. Havers' befitting motion, have received practically, in his own more eloquent language, the approval and enforcement of our Pro Grand Master. We ventured then to point out that as Freemasons we had to avoid the opposing dangers of making a bad precedent by an unfitting grant, and the popular imputation of selfishness by limiting our "grant of recognition" to our own Charities. We were, however, told by some wiseacres, if we remember rightly, that such remarks were "nonsense," "twaddle"—anything you like—and we were all but denied the exercise either of common sense or a Masonic mind, in putting forward such a theory and such a proposition. Well "Time," they say, always brings its "revenges," and here to-day we are glad to record, that the humble arguments we ventured to shadow out, so to say, have procured the approval and support of one of our most distinguished and respected leaders; above all, the concurrence of Grand Lodge itself. That something might be said in favour of a grant to our Charities, as an appeal "ad Latomos," we never denied; and that a proposal which suggested a special grant, under special conditions, to all our Charities, might commend itself to many minds, we never sought to deny or dispute. But we preferred then, as we prefer still, the more public and national expression of our gratitude as a body corporate, than any effort simply to record it even by specific grants to our noble Charities. For that, at any rate, was the only legitimate form such a suggestion could take, as any resolution to vote simply so much to each charity, was condemned, as Lord Carnarvon's argument will show, by the very facts of the case, inasmuch as during the past twelve months the Charities have received from a generous and open-handed Craft a larger amount than they have ever received before. It might have been possible to create special scholarships for the Boys' and Girls' Schools, and to contribute to a special wing for the Benevolent Asylum, or create special annuities, but none of these proposals are without difficulties, to which we need not now allude. The Grand Lodge had condemned the desire of many to perpetuate the old historical landmarks of the operative and speculative brotherhood, and to assist in two great works, which, though in one sense no doubt sectarian, were in another national, as bound up with the history of religion, art, and Freemasonry in this country. And, therefore, in our opinion, the special committee did perfectly right, and Grand Lodge most properly supported them, in putting forward a grant which was both national and humanitarian, a credit to our Grand Master and Grand Lodge, inasmuch as it conclusively evidenced to all within and without Freemasonry, that as Freemasons, we are neither swayed by selfish motives nor mere beneficiary aims, but raising ourselves above any claims of sectarian influence, devoted a large sum of money to the best interests of humanity. We may all then, as it appears to us, feel very proud of the position which our Grand Lodge has taken, and specially grateful for those wise counsels that have led up to a result creditable to all alike. To Lord Carnarvon we all must feel that we owe a debt of abounding gratitude, in that leaving the absorbing duties of his high office for a time, he has shared our difficulties and aided our deliberations. We who have ever spoken honestly and bonâ fide, in the pages of the Freemason, rejoice to think that 1877 has opened for us all as Masons with this striking proof of the large-heartedness, and unselfishness of our Order, of its sympathy with the necessary wants and daily dangers of a suffering humanity. In loyalty to its royal chief, in charity with all men, our good old brotherhood commences another year of Masonic work and sympathy, and moves on undaunted and unruffled by denunciation or anathema, honestly and humbly seeking to fulfil in the good providence of T.G.A.O.T.U. its sacred mission for the peaceful union and humanitarian relief of our brethren and sisters of the dust.

OUR CHARITABLE RETURNS FOR 1876.

A modest paragraph in our last Freemason (at page 6) gives us a very striking and synoptical view of the charitable efforts of our great Fraternity in 1876, as connected with our metropolitan charities, though these are, as we have often had occasion to notice before, but a part of what Freemasons give to those who need. By that summing up, it would appear that the Boys' School had received £15,359 5s. 4d.; the Girls' School, £11,435 6s. 7d.; and the Benevolent Institution, £12,540 15s. 7d.; in all, £39,335 7s. 6d. This is the largest sum that has ever been collected for our charities, and tells its own tale, and points its own moral for all who will take the trouble to think over the reality of beneficence thus presented to their notice. In the first place, at 3 per cent. this amount represents the interest of considerably over a million of money, and reflects, we venture to think, the greatest credit, not only on our benevolent brotherhood in general, but on those energetic officers of the Institution, like our good brothers the three able and indomitable Secretaries, the Committees of the Institutions, the Stewards and numerous kind friends of the charities themselves, alike in the provinces and in the metropolis. When we remember that within 25 years a few hundreds were considered "liberal returns," not only do we and must we feel how great and how successful has been the charity movement in our midst, but how very remarkably our brethren realize what is, after all, the true end of Freemasonry. We are not going to day in a cynical or morbid spirit to denounce the "social theory," or to lay down a too ascetic and exalted view of what Freemasonry is and ought to be, for we are quite aware that in estimating earthly affairs aright, we should always make allowance for the inevitable wants and harmless conditions of human nature itself. Men will be men, and Masonry will be Masonry to the end of time. Nay we will say more. Hyper-asceticism, and hyper-profession have never done any good in the world, and Freemasonry, like religion, would teach us a lesson of moderation in all things, not of despotism negation of the wishes and wants of some, not of intolerant interference with the liberty of the individual, or the rights of the personal judgment. To denounce Masonic social gatherings is alike an act of fanaticism and illiberalism, to declare dogmatically against all allowable and innocent recreation, is either a proof of a shallow mind, or of an unsound judgment. But still, making every allowance you like, giving the fullest margin you can for the requisite conditions of social assembly and befitting entertainment we fear it cannot be denied that there are still "spots" in our "feasts of charity," which require alteration and removal. Many of our lodges are in debt to the Treasurer; many of our lodges "outrun the constable;" many of our lodges have no available balance at the close of the year, and shuffle on, so to say, as well as they can. Large bills for comestibles and drinkables have to be paid, and when that is done the balance is so small that the lodge can vote nothing away. How then are all the wonderful figures of our charitable returns brought about? To the last- ing credit of our fraternity, by the zealous labours and liberal sacrifices of individual brethren in London and our provinces, and our dependencies alone. But then this evil, which is a growing one, supervenes. The burden is laid upon the willing horse, and year after year, as our good Secretaries know, the same warm-hearted brother hands over his kindly subscription to this charity or that. Now we have often said before, and we repeat it to-day, that our lodges and chapters ought, quâ lodges and chapters, to do more than they yearly have done in the past, or do at the present. Every lodge and chapter ought at least to be a life governor of all our institutions—nay a Vice-President. It is impossible to say off hand, what an amount of increased power and usefulness might be given to the charities, if lodges and chapters would qualify according to the rules, or add also according to the rules, to the amount they have already subscribed. For we must bear in mind, that with each year more petitions appear for our charities, and that with our wonderful material prosperity, we have necessarily concomitant claims for relief and aid. We must then look out for the future, and we have no hesitation in saying, (as the result of our own Masonic growth remember alone), that our charities, despite the apparent greatness of last year's return, will require even increased, yes increased returns in the years which are to come. And yet we have ourselves personally no fear as to the issue, humanly speaking. So great is the liberality and so fervent the warm-heartedness of our excellent brotherhood, that they will rise equal, we feel persuaded, to the emergency, and so far from slackening their zeal or holding their hands, they will still pour into the treasury of our Masonic charities, the offerings of sympathy, the fraternal donations of true Masonic hearts. And so let them say of us what they like. Let them abuse us as they will, denounce, curse, condemn, as they please. In the year of grace 1876, we poor benighted, disloyal, irreligious, English Freemasons, Masonic "Goose Clubs," as we are, according to Monsignore Nardi, sent up to our Metropolitan charities the goodly charitable gift of £39,335 7s. 6d. and we fully expect that 1877 will exhibit another proof to the gain-sayer and to the profane world, of the zeal and truth, the brotherly love, and sympathetic benevolence, which so strikingly distinguish our kindly and compassionate Craft.

MIGHTY KIND.

A little bit of information from Ireland, published in our last impression, will, we think, suggest some serious, some amusing, considerations to all our readers. Serious, indeed, will some be, inasmuch as the trifling tale serves to show how strong and vital is the power of intolerance. It appears that the Lord Mayor had invited 60 "gentlemen" to dinner at the Mansion House, to which private assembly "a Masonic character had been attributed" by somebody or other, whereupon we are told, (we would fain hope that the statement is incorrect), the "liberal members," beaded, of the corporation "held a meeting, pursuant to a circular which had been issued, to consider what steps should be taken to censure the Lord Mayor." What for? For such an act of distinct impropriety? Whether this impropriety consisted in giving a dinner, (which we do not suppose), or that certain persons were not asked, which is much more likely, we are not told. Of course, there can and could be no offence in giving a dinner, a good dinner, but it was truly shocking that Masons should be invited to partake of it. And so these liberal and sapient persons met in "caucus," to censure the hospitable Lord Mayor. Liberals indeed! why their act is the worst representation of illiberalism and intolerance which we have ever heard of. And this in Ireland too, where, whatever their faults may be, Irishmen are "gregarious animals," always social and hospitable in the extreme, and particularly fond of a good dinner. But these little "straws," show us how the Ultramontane wind is blowing, and that in the depth of their childish animosity, in the fervour of their mistaken partizanships, there are no lengths which bigotry will not lead some, or loud-voiced, dark-minded fanaticism will not conduct others. And here comes in the amusing side of the story, not so much, that this assembly of so-called liberals made geese of themselves, but that they thought "discretion was the better part of valour," and that they did not censure the kindly and pleasant entertainer of "hungry and thirsty souls." The report says, further on this important topic, they "permitted him to leave the Civic Chair uncensured." Now is it not "mighty kind" of that august body of men not to fulminate a vote of disapproval against the Lord Mayor, who had given a dinner, some Masons being among the guests, and who were observed to enjoy their entertainment very much, as Masons are wont to do. Must we not all admit that this judicious reticence of anathema, this wise hesitation to condemn a friendly host, does infinite credit to the discernment and the discretion of these far-seeing and truly liberal-minded men. Can any Irish brethren throw any light on this interesting little episode? We should positively rejoice to hear that it was a nice little "canard," and say so in our pages. As it is, we wish these "liberal members" of the Dublin Town Council, who met to denounce a Lord Mayor because he had given a good dinner to some harmless Freemasons, a little more common sense for the future, a little more real liberalism in their dealings with their fellow men, and above all, the exercise of that great moral virtue in which Ultramontanes just now are sadly deficient—Toleration.

THE COLOURED QUESTION IN OHIO.

By the official report of the proceedings of the Grand Lodge of Ohio, in the session beginning October, 17, 1876, at Columbus, it seems that this "vexata quæstio" is for the moment apparently shelved. Bro. E. Carson brought in the report of the Special Committee, and Bro. Waters a resolution of recognition, which was met by an amendment by Bro. Cunningham, D.G.M., regarding, as a point of order, the proposal as an amendment of the constitution, which would require notice, &c. The G.M., Bro. C. A. Woodward overruled the constitutionality of the amendment on the point of order. On appeal to the Grand Lodge, the Grand Master's ruling was not sustained by 389 votes to 329. In consequence, the movement has to begin "de novo" in the Grand Lodge of Ohio.

EARLY HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY IN ENGLAND.

We beg to call the attention of our brethren to a most interesting collection of "excerpts" from the London papers relative to this important subject, and contained in a letter of Bro. W. J. Hughan to the Grand Lodge of Ohio, and now in course of publication in the Masonic Magazine for February. We wish that we could make room for them in the Freemason.

ESPECIAL GRAND LODGE.

The name of our esteemed Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Middlesex, P.S.G.W., and Representative from the Grand Lodge of Ireland, was inadvertently omitted in our report of the proceedings at the Especial Grand Lodge, which appeared in our last.

BOULINIKON.—From the samples submitted for our approval, adapted to the use of Masonic Halls, Clubs, Lodges, Hotels, etc., we have little hesitation in saying, that the Boulinikon or Buffalo Hide Floor Cloth, is one of the best and most durable, that we have inspected; and for general excellence and design cannot be surpassed. Warm, noiseless, and thoroughly damp proof, we can readily understand that at manufacturing centres like Manchester and Leeds such qualities would be appreciated by prize awards; and we note also, that at the Philadelphia Exhibition special award was made for design, general excellence, and durability. We commend this Buffalo Hide Floor Cloth to the attention of our readers, and suggest a visit to the London Warehouse, 76, Queen-street, Cheap-side; where the Floor Cloth, in every variety of design and finish, can be seen and valued.

Original Correspondence.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to W. M. C. N. I beg to state—

1. This question is partly answered by the Constitutions under the head of "Masters and Wardens," par. 9. There seems no reason why death and resignation should not be added to dismissal.
2. It is certainly customary in many lodges (some of them old ones), to appoint to vacant offices at any time, from the Senior Warden downwards.
3. A Tyler may be elected at any time, should the office be vacant. This is evidently implied in "Of Tylers," par. 1.
4. The regulations say that Masters and P.M.'s of lodges shall wear on their aprons "perpendicular lines upon horizontal lines, thereby forming three several sets of two right angles." They are therefore worn by design. The ignorance rests with W. M. C. N.
5. This part of the ritual differs in different lodges more than any other part, so much so, as hardly to be recognized as the same form, it is difficult therefore to give a date to its origin.

AN OLD MASONIC SPEECH.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your last issue of the Freemason I observe the brethren of York Lodge No. 236, are on the Eve of their centenary, and having in my possession a speech delivered by the Junior Grand Warden at a Grand Lodge held at Merchants Hall, in the City of York, on St. John's day, Dec. 27th, 1726, just one hundred and fifty years ago I think a reprint of that speech at the present time might be interesting, not only to the brethren of No. 236, but to your readers in general.

If you should think it worth while, I will write it out and send it you.

Yours fraternally

M.M., No. 1089.

LORD CHESTERFIELD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In the "Memoirs of Lord Chesterfield," under date of 1732, I find the following:—

"During Lord Chesterfield's residence at the Hague, the Duke of Lorraine, the intended husband to the Emperor's eldest daughter, and afterwards emperor himself, made a tour through England and Holland. This young prince treated our ambassador with particular marks of distinction and friendship, on account of his warm solicitations in favour of the house of Austria. This attachment extended even to his social hours, so far, that he chose to be made a Freemason by Lord Chesterfield, in a lodge composed of his excellency, Mr. John Stanhope his brother, Mr. Strickland nephew to the Bishop of Hamur, Dr. Desaguliers, and one of his friends."

And in a note,

"The doctor received on this occasion the present of a gold snuff-box from the grand Duke."

Lord Chesterfield was ambassador to the United Provinces in 1732.

Was the lodge worked under the English Constitution, and is anything further known about it?

I am, yours fraternally,

LIMERICK.

STATISTICS OF THE CRAFT.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,

As you have asked for the actual numbers of Masonic members, I have much pleasure in giving below the numbers of the subscribing members of the Province of Dorset, as made out by me from the latest official returns in September last.

The numbers given are those of the actual brethren, although many are subscribing members to two or more lodges, and is exclusive of honorary members.

PROVINCE OF DORSET, 13 Lodges; Total Subscribing Members 509.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

ROBERT CASE, W.M., 417,
P.P.G. Sec., Dorset.

STAFFORDSHIRE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Our worthy Vice-President, Bro. T. Taylor in his letter in your columns last week, has fallen into a slight error, unimportant in itself, but which, enshrined in the Freemason, becomes history, and history should be accurate. The number of members enrolled at the formation of this Association was fifteen and not five, and eight of these (including among them our other Vice-President Bro. E. Starey) were present at the first meeting in June, 1871. It is quite true that success followed more rapidly than the original founders ventured to hope, for at the meeting of December, 1872, when Bro. Taylor joined, the numbers had risen to ninety-three and since that time have been steadily increased, thanks chiefly to our worthy and zealous brethren in the Potteries district. Had the cause been as warmly espoused in South Staffordshire a very much greater return would have occurred. I think, too, it ought to be stated that in the local advantages, the worthy example has been followed of the neighbouring province of Cheshire whose Educational Association has long been doing an excellent work. I am happy to be able to add that North Wales and Shropshire this year inaugurated successfully an association in emulation of her neighbours' efforts in both these directions—central and local.

Yours fraternally,

JNO. BODENHAM,
Treasurer.

THE INSTALLATION PICTURE.

To the Editor of the Freemason.

Dear Sir and Brother,

Allow me to join Bro. Hughan in claiming grace for Bro. Hart in his arduous undertaking.

If any brother will just glance at a little sketch history the Art Union of London, just issued, he will find that their two engravings of Wellington and Nelson, after the Westminister wall-paintings, took five years each; knowing this, surely no brother will urge Bro. Hart to a haste, which may perhaps prove detrimental to the success of the picture, and therefore the best interests of the subscribers.

Faithfully and fraternally yours,

WILLIAM TREBS.

THE LANCASHIRE FREEMASONS AND THE PRINCE OF WALES.

After the ceremony of installing to the office of Worshipful Master of the Lodge of Unanimity, in the province of West Lancashire,

Bro. Wm. Harrison, F.S.A., of Samlesbury Hall, one of the Grand Officers for East Lancashire, said that some time ago he had the pleasure of offering for the acceptance of that lodge a portrait of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the Most Worshipful Grand Master of England. They did him the honour of accepting that offer, and now he appeared to make the formal presentation complete. They would have had the portrait long ago but for the difficulties which they had encountered in not having a really good room of their own to meet in. He had the greatest possible pleasure in presenting the portrait of their Most Worshipful Grand Master, as he was on the memorable occasion in London, when he was installed, an installation which no one who was present would ever forget. They were now living in the golden days of Freemasonry, when they had the benefit of a Prince of the blood royal ruling over them, and that Prince the future King of England. It was true that some old Masons might remember that in former times there was a Prince of the blood ruling over the destinies of Freemasonry in the person of the Duke of Sussex, but though a Prince of the blood he was not the future King of England. They, however, now had the future monarch of these realms at their head, and they felt the benefit of having such a ruler in the amount of prosperity they had attained as Freemasons. He mentioned this because most of the older Masons had not the advantage of such countenance, and he hoped they would really exult in the fact of their living in such halcyon days. He hoped the presentation of that portrait would lead to some of the brethren putting their heads together, and striving to get a Masonic Hall in the town of Preston. He did not see why it could not be done. He was perfectly sure that if Bros. Fryer, Johnston, and Nevett would consult on the subject, and get three good trusty men and brethren from each of the other lodges in Preston, the thing could be effectually done. He believed that great province of East Lancashire was the second on the list of all England. East Lancashire stood at the very top of the list with 87 lodges, whilst West Lancashire had 74 lodges. They had as many lodges in one of the provinces of Lancashire as there were together in the great county of York, North, East, and West Ridings. That was a fact of which Lancashire men might well feel proud, and he was certainly proud to be able to say it. Uniting West and East Lancashire, and comparing them with the number of lodges in Great Britain, the colonies, and in foreign countries, he found that those two provinces numbered one-ninth of the whole. The time could not be far distant when, as regarded both West and East Lancashire, there would have to be another division, and the provinces called North-East and East, or North-West and West, for there were 30 lodges in the neighbourhood of Liverpool alone, whereas in Bristol, where they had the Earl of Limerick at their head, they had had only eight lodges, and the number had dwindled down to three. Considering the 87 and 74 lodges in East and West Lancashire, the time could not be far distant when there would have to be another separation; and looking to the future in that respect, he thought they would see the necessity for taking steps to erect a Masonic Hall in Preston. He knew what it was to wait for Provincial Grand rank. It took him sixteen years to become a Provincial Grand Officer, and twenty-three years before he attained the position he now held as Grand Senior Warden for the Province of East Lancashire. If they had to wait so long in attaining such provincial offices, they must all appreciate the dignity and importance of the offices held in the Grand Lodge of England, over which His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was the Most Worshipful Grand Master. He had the greatest possible pleasure in presenting the portrait of His Royal Highness to the Lodge of Unanimity, 113.

The portrait represents the Prince of Wales in Masonic costume, with all the jewels appertaining to his office in the Grand Lodge, painted in oil. The frame is surmounted by His Royal Highness's plumes, and further adorned by Masonic emblems. The whole is enclosed in an elaborate oak case.

Bro. Colonel Birchall, Senior Grand Deacon of England, P.M. of 113, said he had the grateful duty of accepting Bro. Harrison's very handsome, liberal, and appropriate present in the name of the officers and members of the Lodge. He regretted with Bro. Harrison that that handsome and truly Masonic decoration could not be placed on the walls of a hall specially devoted to Masonic purposes. He did think that in a large and important town like Preston, possessing four lodges, as well as other Masonic Orders, if they put their shoulders to the wheel they might raise a proper Masonic hall and institution. They had often heard of the great want of public spirit which there was in Preston. He would not call it want of spirit, but rather a sluggishness in putting a thing in motion, because he believed that when a movement was fairly launched by influential parties, there was no town in which any great and important work was more liberally and effectually carried on than in Preston. They had had numerous instances of it in the large sums which had been raised for public institutions, and in other ways. If interested parties and judicious managers were to take the matter in hand they might raise funds for a Masonic hall. He considered it a disgrace when he saw that other towns not so large as Preston could boast of a Masonic hall, whilst Preston had none. Lancaster, which was a much smaller place than Preston, and not containing the same number of lodges, had a very nice, not a very large, but still an exclusively Masonic hall. He was reading the Freemason on Saturday, and was very much struck with the fact that at a very small place in the remote and distant county of Cornwall—Redruth—they had just laid the foundation stone, and were engaged in building a Masonic hall. In these small towns Masons had succeeded in making themselves a home, and if the Masons of Preston were united and combined they could succeed in raising a structure worthy of the Craft, and of the large, important, and respectable character of the members of the Order in that town. His duty now was to accept, which he was sure they all did with the utmost pleasure, the portrait of their Most Worshipful Master, and also to return their cordial and heartfelt thanks to Bro. Harrison for his judicious liberality. He was sure that that liberality sprung from the hearty interest he took in the Order, and of the Craft. He trusted they would more often have the pleasure of meeting him. He only regretted that the portrait of His Royal Highness did not hang in a hall more exclusively devoted to Masonic purposes, and where it could remain uncovered, and always be accessible for the inspection of the brethren. However, as it was, he hoped that on all Masonic occasions they would never fail to have it open. It would be a great pleasure to him if he found that Bro. Harrison's commencement was followed by other liberal and influential brethren.

Bro. H. Johnston moved that a record be entered upon the books of the lodge conveying the thanks of the officers and members of Lodge Unanimity, No. 113, to Bro. Wm. Harrison, Prov. Senior Grand Warden for East Lancashire, for his gift of a portrait of the Most Worshipful the Grand Master of the Order, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

The proposition was seconded by Bro. Nevett and agreed to.

Bro. Harrison, reverting to the subject of a Masonic hall, said that if they were determined to proceed in the matter he would take up 100 shares of £5 each.

At the succeeding banquet the newly-installed Master, Bro. Coltam, proposed "The Health of the Queen." In all assemblages of Englishmen, and particularly of Freemasons, the toast was heartily received, and he now submitted it with double force, because Her Majesty had just been proclaimed Empress of India.

In proposing other toasts, the Worshipful Master said they all knew and esteemed H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and he grew in favour with the people daily. The Princess of Wales was beloved by every one; she had engrafted her kindly nature into their hearts. Long might they continue to live and enjoy that esteem. In the accession of the Prince of Wales as their Grand Master, Masonry had received a grand and glorious impetus, and His Royal Highness's Grand Officers had been wisely and judiciously selected.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The monthly meeting of the General Committee of this institution was held on Saturday last in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John Symonds presided. The other brethren present were Jesse Turner, John Boyd, William Mason, Robt. B. Webster, George Bolton, Henry Bartlett, W. F. Collard Moutrie, George M. E. Snow, G. J. Row, S. Rosenthal, C. F. Matier, F. Adlard, J. G. Chancellor, William Roebuck, H. Massey (Freemason), J. W. M. Doseil, the Rev. S. Morris, A. Durrant, John W. Dennison, W. Hyde Pullen, George Free, Charles Horsley, William Lane, George J. Palmer, H. C. Levander, and F. Binckes, (Secretary).

On Bro. Binckes reading the minutes of the last meeting of the Committee it was observed that there had been a misunderstanding as to the conclusion come to on the office of Collector of the institution. Bro. Binckes had recorded as the committee's decision that the office of Collector was abolished. This was not so; the office of Collector as a separate office was abolished; but the Secretary having expressed his willingness to undertake the collection of all subscriptions he was to be the Collector, the offices of Secretary and Collector being combined in him. Bro. Symonds pointed out to the committee that it had been shown that the Secretary really had received the greater part of the subscriptions during the year. The minutes were then altered in accordance with the actual circumstances.

Seven petitions for as many boys to be placed on the list for election in April were then read and passed, and in the course of the reading the Chairman suggested that there should be some modification of the requirements of the certificate as to the candidate's capacity to read. He thought the form of the requirements should be assimilated to those of the School Board code. At present, when candidates were provincial candidates, the committee were never quite sure that the certificate granted by the clergyman or schoolmaster of the neighbourhood was accurate.

Bro. George Snow gave notice of his intention to move at the next Quarterly Court, on Monday, the 15th inst., that the buildings surrounding the playground at the Institution at Wood Green be raised one storey, for the purpose of providing thereon sleeping accommodation for 50 boys extra to those at present in the school. He also gave notice of motion for the same Court, "That at the October election we proceed to elect 50 boys for admission to our school extra to those now in the building." He said that the boys now educated there cost £90 per annum. (Laughter.)

Bro. Binckes: No, no.

Bro. Snow said that must be so, if they had received £15,000 last year and had 189 boys in the school.

It was explained to Bro. Snow that the £15,000 had not been spent.

Bro. Snow, however, insisted that his figures were correct, and his deduction a proper one.

Bro. A. Durrant afterwards said that he should at next committee meeting move, in conformity with Rule 70, that £20 be granted to one of the ex-pupils who had just left the school and proceeded to the university, for the purpose of enabling him to carry on his university education.

Bro. Binckes said that in the case of a lad from the institution obtaining a situation and asking for a grant, it was usual to obtain from his employers a certificate of his good conduct before the grant was made; and he apprehended that it would be requisite in this case to obtain some certificate of the necessity for the grant.

The Chairman remarked that it would be desirable to follow the usual course; and perhaps in the present instance a letter should be laid before the committee stating the circumstances. The committee would then deal with it, and the letter would be preserved to show the circumstances under which the grant was made.

Bro. Durrant said he would be prepared with the requisite letter.

The subject then dropped.

Bro. Binckes next said that as the committee were now about to settle a list of candidates for next election he might observe that at the last election there were forty-two unsuccessful candidates. Of these there were two now disqualified on account of their having attained eleven years of age. This left forty; and there had been since the last election eleven petitioners placed on the list. To-day there had been absolutely seven more, making the whole number fifty-eight.

It was then arranged that there should be ten vacancies, and ten vacancies were thereupon declared for the April election.

Bro. Binckes afterwards informed the committee that the total amount of subscriptions and donations actually received by this institution during the last year was £13,231 4s. 10d. The receipts from other sources amounted to £3128 0s. 6d. The total amount was therefore £15,359 5s. 4d. £400 was still outstanding on the Stewards' lists of the last festival. The balance in hand was £2554 14s. 9d. on the 5th January. £5000 was invested. Kent House had been purchased during the last year; the money had been paid for it, and all the costs of improvements in it had been discharged. (Cheers.)

The committee adjourned, after passing a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

TWELFTH NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT AT THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

Twelfth Night was celebrated here on Friday, the 5th inst., in lieu of Saturday, for the general convenience of the visitors, as well as of those in and about the school. The bad weather made no difference in the number of visitors, the same ladies and brethren defying the elements, who have so often exhibited this courage on other similar occasions. Among those who attended were Bros. Col. Burdett, Joshua Nunn and Mrs. Nunn, Benj. Head, Louis and Mrs. Hirsch, J. A. Rucker, W. Rucker, A. H. Tattershall, R. B. Webster, W. F. C. Moutrie and Miss Moutrie, Thos. Kingston and Mrs. Kingston, Edward Cox and Mrs. Cox, H. Massey (Freemason), Mrs. and two Misses Massey, H. Levy, Thomas Massa and Mrs. Massa, Major Finney, John George Marsh, John Boyd, J. Faulkner, R. W. Little (Secretary) and Mrs. Little, Mrs. Binckes and two Misses Binckes, William Lane and Mrs. Lane, Mrs. Pepper, H. Muggeridge and two Misses Muggeridge, Thomas W. White, H. A. Dubois, Herbert Dicketts and two Masters Dicketts, and F. J. Cox. The company began to arrive at four o'clock, at which time the building was lighted up, and presented a most cheerful and pleasing appearance. The different apartments, including the school-room, the dining-hall, the exercise-room, the matron's, head governess's, and committee rooms, with the long halls and passages leading thereto, were gracefully decorated, and had on them an abundance of coloured festoons, and here and there the Christmas emblems of "Welcome," "A Happy New Year," and "A Merry Christmas." All these decorations had been designed and executed by the little girls, numbering in all 34, who had not gone home to their friends and relatives to spend their Christmas holidays. On arrival the visitors met with a cordial reception from the children, as well as from Miss Jarwood, the matron, Miss Sheppard, the matron's assistant, and the assistant governesses, Miss Jane Rumbow, Miss Triggs, and Miss Buck. All the visitors are very well known at the school, as they seldom allow an opportunity to pass which affords them the pleasure of looking on the bright, happy faces of the children, and witnessing the admirable arrangements which have grown up from time to time to perfection for the health, happiness, education, and comfort of these Masons' daughters. It was not long before tea was served, and at five o'clock the visitors sat down together in the House Committee room, where the chief table was presided over by Miss Jarwood, who had Mrs. Joshua Nunn on her left hand, and Mrs. Massey on her right. The other tables were superintended by Miss Sheppard, Miss Rumbow, Miss Triggs, and Miss Buck, who were assisted in the discharge of their functions by Bros. Edward Cox and Joshua Nunn, most of the other brethren also lending a helping hand. After tea the children in the school and the visitors were entertained with some excellent dissolving views, which had been kindly provided by Bro. F. J. Cox, the optician, of Ludgate Hill. These represented a very large variety of scenes of home, continental, Indian, Chinese, and American travel, interspersed with some of those lively slides of magic lantern notoriety, which, while supremely ridiculous, are on that account the more amusing. Some of the most beautiful of the series—the serious scenes—were those moonlight sketches which showed Winchester Cathedral lighted up, the country village covered with snow, the Matterhorn, and a splendid development of the fog bow witnessed in that dangerous region. As the Grand Master of Freemasons has been so lately in India, sketches of Indian life were also exhibited, and the children had the pleasure of seeing the modes of travelling in high life, on the backs of elephants, which are adopted in that vast dependency. The story of "Lord Bateman" was highly amusing, if we might judge from the hearty laughter which succeeded each little scene in the career of that intelligent nobleman. After the dissolving views, the children partook of cake and wine, both of which refreshments, however, seemed to have for them not half the attraction possessed by the bon-bons, with their mottoes and the amusing head dresses with which every girl was very soon equipped. Extraordinary as some of these were, they nevertheless were very becoming to most of the pupils. All the visitors cracked bon-bons with the children, and assisted most heartily in making the evening a children's evening. While the children were partaking of their refreshments, Master Dicketts, as the only gentleman sitting down with the pupils, drank to the health of all the little ladies, a feat which was received with hearty cheers and laughter by the visitors, and gracefully bowed to by the subjects of the toast. Dancing followed refreshment, and in the interval between the quadrilles, polkas, valse, &c., some of the visitors became entertainers. Bro. John Boyd, who had sent a large box of oranges for the children, produced the little figures made of pasteboard, representing the "Cure," "Harlequin," and "Dancing Sailor," which he made to perform in first rate style, both to the amusement and astonishment of even older people than the scholars. Bro. J. G. Marsh sang, Bro. Levy improvised "Mrs. Brown's visit on Twelfth Night to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," and Bro. Edw. Cox sang "Simon the Cellarer." The pupils played the piano; and music and dancing left no space of time unoccupied. It is doubtful whether the children or the visitors were the happiest; but we may safely say that the visitors spent a few hours of unalloyed pleasure, and the children, on the visitors' departure, regretted the parting moment as much as the visitors themselves.

HOW OUR V.P.C.* RAN UP AGAINST HIMSELF, AND HIS AFTER REFLECTIONS THEREUPON.

"Moley's the only wear."—Such were my reflections the other night at Grand Lodge; but I must not begin in the middle of my story, or I shall leave out the point of the whole, although the whole might well be pointed in more senses than one by my opening remark, which, by the way, when I come to think of it, is not mine at all, but that of one of whom a "melancholy gentleman did much remind me" in the course of the evening, one of whom it might have well been said, as of that his other self, that—

"They that were most galled with his folly,
They most did laugh."

It was not only a Grand Lodge, but also a Special Grand Lodge, and as I look upon myself as a "Special" as well as a "V.P." correspondent, I considered it my duty to be there to supply that special information which might perhaps escape the quick-running pen of the ordinary reporter.

Taking warning by the discomfort of a somewhat late arrival on a former occasion, and having been kindly recommended by an "Under-Bow-Bells" brother to secure a seat in advance, I dropped in at the Hall early in the day. My London brother must have been mistaken, for I found that the courteous attendant would not book my seat. He recommended me, however, to "come early."

Meanwhile, the intervening time, which I had fondly hoped to have spent either in my place in Grand Lodge or at least in the conscious security that one was in waiting for me, must be got through somehow, and so I thought I would do "one of the sights of London;" but at the same time an inward monitor warning me that there were duties which must on no account be neglected, I was led to combine "one of the comforts" of the town with one of its lions. Now, as I am an implicit believer in the statements of those who forestall my every want in those columns of the public prints which, as I take it, are the most interesting reading, I determined to pass at least some part of this spare time in a place close to the Hall, which is declared by its proprietor to combine the before-mentioned advantages.

Accordingly, I turned into "the Holborn" for my luncheon, and then met with the little adventure, a succinct description of which forms the heading of this, my communication. Turning into the passage to the restaurant, which leads from Little Queen-street, I first nearly stumbled down the steps into the stand-up-and-eat department, but as this is opposed to my most cherished notions of "comfort," I turned sharply to the right, intending to take the passage which skirts the handsome central hall. The corner here was somewhat dark, and I had only just time, by stepping aside, to avoid a collision with an individual coming rapidly in the opposite direction; a quick step to the right, another equally rapid to the left, then straight forward—an "I beg your pardon"—a bump—a wondering exclamation, "How very like me that person is,"—a flash of light (metaphorical of course), and then the consciousness of the absurd position that your "V.P.C." had (of course in a mirror) run up against himself.

A capital luncheon, well served, in a beautiful room, with every appliance to gratify the eye, secured your correspondent's comfort, and made entire amends for the loss of self-respect entailed upon him, at least in his own eyes, by his want of acumen in having thus let a mere mirror, and that a London one, thus play him a practical joke. After having been thus gratified in both purse and person, I hid me back to the Hall, determined to be in good time, and so I was—5 o'clock sharp, Grand Lodge being summoned for 6.

I had no idea that I should have been so well known as to be, as I found myself, quite an object of interest to those brethren who act as Scrutineers and take care of our hats and coats.

The time seemed long, but passed at length, "For all things here must have an end," and so had my period of waiting. Of the opening of Grand Lodge I need say nothing, nor of the affection with which our worthy chief was greeted. To his speech, replete with the true spirit of Masonry and humanity, and full of loyalty and nationality, I can add no lustre of praise, nor shall I dwell upon the next, which was as brim-full of hearty good will to all mankind as is the thoroughly jolly English utterer. But upon that which followed it, in defiance of the wishes of all (or within two or three of it) of the brethren present, I must say that I think it was not only uncalled for, but in exceedingly bad taste, as it was forced upon an evidently unwilling body of listeners. However, it was like "the brook"—

"Men may shout, and men may vote, and so I believe the speaker would have done, only that he unexpectedly hit upon a thing so evidently true and practical that the brethren thought it unnecessary to trouble him further, which practical utterance was that "we had come there to vote." This worthy brother having at last sat down, another, equally irrepressible, arose, but although he talked an interminable time there were but few things he said with which I could agree, one of these, however, was that his course of proceeding in thus speaking to our Pro Grand Master's proposition was "uncourteous and rude." With the necessity for it I could not sympathise, although it was, the speaker assured, as essential to vindicate his honesty, which I really should not have known was in such sore need of a defender if he had not so urgently pressed the notice of the fact upon us more than once. Anyhow, the speaker seemed determined to let us know that he had discovered, and that we had before us, that rarity of rarities—an honest man. If only the brethren present had taken the same view, what an opportunity of spending a little of our surplus cash, there might have been, in buying a glass case for this unique specimen, bearing of course, the inscription of the poetess so friendly to our order:—
But I go on for ever."

"Honesty
Is like the phantom sprites in grandam's tales—
Much oftener prated of than seen."

A little bird sitting by me—if not the one to "make a summer," it must at least have told a "hummer,"—here whispered in my ear the startling words—"The Purple."

One thing more I could agree with in the concluding words of the speaker, which was that scholarships, new wings, &c., would be a "permanent memorial." Indeed they would, but a permanent memorial of such unmitigated selfishness that no "honest" Craftsman would ever afterwards reflect, but with the deepest regret and self-loathing, upon our Thankoffering, whilst the outside world, eager to see what would be the outcome of our lofty utterances, would smile at our fiasco, and write as its epitaph—

"Parturient Masons, Nascitur ridiculus fust!"

And here I reflected, if there could be but a mirror provided in this dark corner in which we were groping, we might see how selfish we were in danger of becoming in thus bowing to ourselves, and what was more, see how wofully we should be running up against ourselves, by which I mean, depriving ourselves of just the one opportunity that this generation may afford us of showing ourselves not to be the selfish, narrow-minded people that our enemies would fain have the outside world regard us.

I was going on to think—when, somehow, here our respected Registrar came down upon the bold orator, scattering all his eloquence to the winds by pointing out that the member now impugning the action of the Committee was himself a member of that Committee, but had not chosen to attend its meetings.

Those who represented themselves having been thus far patiently borne with, those who represented the Craft proceeded to register a vote which in your "V.P.C.'s" humble opinion will show them to be truly thankful to the Great Architect for his merciful preservation to them of their Royal Grand Master and as truly unselfish in their national mode of shewing it.

THE ROMAN CATHOLICS AND FREE-MASONRY.

We learn from the first Roman Catholic authority that Archbishop Vaughan has delivered an important lecture on "Masonry," under the title of "Hidden Springs," at Sydney. It is said that the lecture "has created quite a sensation in New South Wales." The lecture has since been published, and occupies eighty pages, and from it we learn that the governing principles of the past, the present, and the future may be summed up in three words—Paganism, Supernaturalism and Materialism. He dwells at considerable length on Materialism, which he calls the hidden spring of the future, and whose prime movers are the members of the International Society of Masonry. We who are innocent of the mysteries of the Craft have thought that Masonry is a cosmopolitan combination of men animated with good intentions towards each other in particular, and towards the human family in general. If what Archbishop Vaughan says be true, we have been labouring under an extraordinary delusion. He tells us that the field of operations of the International Society, from which flows the hidden spring of the Materialism of the future, "is as wide as the human family itself. It adopts many instruments to promote its end. Its ambition soars to the highest class and the foremost intellects, and embraces all ages and conditions, from the philosopher to the artisan, from the statesman and civil ruler to the roughs in a country town. The pen and tongue are its two main engines, and it strives with sleepless energy to enlist in its service those who can work them with the most powerful effect." Whether this is a correct representation of the Freemasons we must leave them to say, provided they think it worth while to say anything on the subject. We should consider it simply a silly exaggeration. Why are Roman Catholics so easily scared? Why do they see a hobgoblin in every bush? In Italy they attribute all the evils which offend modern Society to that sleepless foe of the Church—the Revolution. And now a voice comes from Australia saying that the prime movers of the hidden spring of the Materialistic future is the "International Society," not the European International Society of Working Men, but another society which wields all other societies for malignant ends.—Echo.

JUVENILE FETE AND BALL.

It was a "happy thought" that suggested itself to some of the gentlemen who are interested in the success of the Surrey Masonic Hall, to devote an evening at this time of the year for the amusement of the young folks. Such a one was held on Thursday evening, when a large party of juveniles, accompanied by their parents or friends, were assembled. The hall was very handsomely and elaborately decorated with evergreen, mottoes, &c. The children also participated in the healthful recreation of dancing, which was kept up with much spirit during intervals of the evening. The Kentucky troupe of minstrels also appeared, and this evening to a much larger audience than on the night previously. The laughter of the audience was excited by the droll performance of the troupe, and old and young were alike delighted. Some very comic business is introduced by this company, and this was fully appreciated. Refreshments, tea, coffee, orange, sweets, &c., were liberally provided, and this, of course, kept the little ones busy during the evening. A magic lantern was exhibited, which represented the hard lot that befel Cinderella. The reader who described the history of our unfortunate little friend explained that he understood it was essentially a child's party, and he did not expect the elder ones would find much amusement in the representation; but the adults evidently enjoyed it as much as any one. The galvanic battery had its fair share of customers, and the contortions of some who were operated on were ludicrous in the extreme. The evening's amusements were prolonged till nearly eleven o'clock, when the "National Anthem" brought the proceedings to a close, and by the happy faces of those for whom this treat was organised, we are satisfied that they were highly delighted.

Obituary.

BRO. THOMAS WILLIAMS.

Much interest was excited on Thursday, the 14th ult., by the attendance of the brethren at the funeral of the late Bro. Thomas Williams, foreman in the shop of Mr. Lewis Lewis, draper, Bridge-street, Carnarvon. He died suddenly, after a very brief illness, and being highly esteemed by the brethren of the Segontium Lodge, in which he was a junior officer, a large number of the fraternity assembled to pay him the last mark of respect in their power. The lodge having been duly opened in the Castle, the brethren marched two-and-two to Bridge-street, the van being led by two officers, with drawn swords, while the rear was brought up by four Past Masters, bearing the Holy Bible on a cushion, with the W.M. in close attendance behind. In this order they headed the long procession through the town to the cemetery at Llanllyfni, where the W.M., standing at the head of the grave as chief mourner, was permitted, by the kind courtesy of the authorities, to recite the special Masonic office customarily used at the interment of a deceased brother. The ceremony being concluded, the brethren returned in the same order, when the lodge, was closed in due form.

CAPITULAR MASONRY IN CANADA.

On the 12th ult., in the Royal Albert Chapter Rooms, Montreal, a duly assembled convention of representative Royal Arch Masons harmoniously united in forming a Supreme Royal Arch Chapter for the province of Quebec. This important action was taken with the hearty fraternal concurrence of the newly organised Grand Chapter of Quebec: whose exclusive jurisdiction will hereafter be over the flourishing province of Ontario. The following are the first principal officers of the newly organised Grand Chapter of Quebec: John H. Graham, LL.D., &c., Richmond, Most Excellent First Principal, Z.; George H. Borlase, Q.C., Montreal, Right Excellent Second Principal, H.; James Dunbar, Q.C., Quebec, Right Excellent Third Principal, J.; R.E. Comp. Thomas Milton, Supt. Montreal District; R.E. Comp. Christopher Staveland, Quebec District; R.E. Comp. H. W. Wood, M.D., E. T. District; R.E. Comp. T. J. McMinn, Montreal, Scribe E.; R.E. Comp. John McLean, Scribe N.; R.E. Comp. Isaac Henry Stearns, Montreal, Grand Treas.; R.E. Comp. C. W. Woodford, Grand Reg.; R.E. Comp. James Gibson, G. Principal Sojourner. The Montreal companions manifested a most commendable interest in this new movement. The Grand Chapter of Quebec has been inaugurated under most favourable auspices.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

ECLECTIC LODGE (No. 1201).—This lodge has entered upon a new career, and has made a change which brings it within the lines of true fellowship with the brethren of our social Order. The Eclectic was founded by certain brethren who vainly imagined they could improve upon our ancient institution by forming a lodge in which there should be no social enjoyment, in which there should be only "work" and no refreshment. The thing worked only for a little time, and was soon found to be out of harmony with the principles of the Craft, and on the 12th January the installation of its new Master, our respected Bro. Edward J. Harty, saw a new order of things begun, with the warm approval of all the brethren. The lodge is held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and was opened in the largest room (which was thronged) by Bro. J. H. Watts, the W.M., the Senior Warden's chair being filled by the W.M. elect, and Bro. A. E. Taylor in the Junior Warden's, with Bros. Saul and Lee as Deacons. After the unanimous confirmation of the minutes, the W.M. initiated Dr. C. T. Pearce, M.R.C.S., a ceremony which was greatly enhanced by the excellent working of all, and by the splendid music of the Organist, Bro. P. M. Higgs. The newly-made brother, later in the evening, made it evident to all that the beauty of the ceremonial was fully appreciated by him, as it was by all who witnessed it. Among those present, and there were nearly fifty visitors, was a deputation from Ireland, who had come to see a countryman installed, including Bros. Spence, P.M. 75, of the Irish Constitution; Thomas Fenn, P.G.D.; J. Terry, P.G.D.C. of Herts; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; Haigh, P.G.S.; Kelly, P.G.S., P.M. 46; Smallpeice, Sec. of Lodge of Emulation; J. Stevens, P.M. The Great City Lodge, 126; Scott, P.M. of the Belgrave; Burrell, P.M. of Mount Edgcombe; Wright, W.M. of the Royal Standard; Dr. Norton, W.M. elect of the Maybury; While, P.M. of United Strength (Freemason); Hilton, Ancient Union, 203, Liverpool; Gardner, S.D. 749; John Constable, P.M. 185; G. Brooke, S.W. 23; E. W. Brain, J.W. 1471; C. Whewell, 1287; W. C. Clarke, 3; J. Perry Godfrey, W.M. elect, 1261; T. E. Tallant, P.M. 186; J. C. Adams, 811; H. Purdue, 834; Taylor, 1273; A. Stewart, J.D., 1158; W. H. Baswell, 1339; G. Davies, I.G. 167; A. Botbol, 188; N. M. Lomberg, 188; H. Beadle, 65; E. Hemman, 1423; Reid, 186; Fletcher, J.W. 190; Papprile, 180; B. J. Tolmie, S.D. 861; H. D. Blackman, Alexandra Palace, and others. Assisted by Bro. P.M. Manders, the W.M. proceeded with the installation of the worthy and distinguished brother in due form, and the ceremony was excellently performed, the brethren evincing the utmost satisfaction that the retiring Master was thus able to complete the work of his year by placing his successor in the chair. The officers appointed were: A. E. Taylor, S.W.; G. W. Saul, J.W.; J. Mander, P.M.; Treas. W. H. Barber, Sec.; W. S. Lea, S.D.; F. Dobbing, J.D.; Higgs, P.M.; Organist; G. Moss, I.G.; C. Pochin, D.C.; S. Lloyd, W.S.; T. Davis, A.W.S. The lodge was closed, and then the brethren retired to the Prince's Saloon, Holborn Restaurant, where an excellently served banquet rewarded the brethren after their arduous labours. The toast of "The Queen and the Craft" was prefaced by the W.M. with the remark that Her Majesty was the mother of a Grand Master, daughter of a Grand Master, and the niece of a Grand Master, and the fervent wish was expressed that she might long live to reign over us. The toast was received with all honours, and then the W.M. proposed the toast of "His Royal Highness the Grand Master," who had endeared himself to all his fellow countrymen by his open, frank, and generous nature. This toast was honoured in the manner observed among Masons, as were the toasts of "The Pro Grand Master," "The Deputy Grand Master, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," to which the name of Bro. T. Fenn was attached, and of that distinguished brother the W.M. said that the name of Bro. Fenn would ever remain connected with the grandest ceremony the world had ever seen—the Royal Installation in the Albert Hall. Bro. Fenn's services were mainly instrumental in rendering that day so completely successful. Bro. Fenn, who was received with warm cheers, thanked the W.M. and brethren on the part of the Grand Officers for the toast, and on his own part for the very flattering manner in which his name had been coupled with it. By the way in which it had been received he hoped the lodge appreciated the efforts of the Grand Officers, whose services were always, he said, at the disposal of the Craft. Perhaps, he added, some present might not be aware that he was an honorary member of the Eclectic Lodge. He consecrated the lodge and installed the first Master, and though the circumstances connected with some of the many occasions upon which he had discharged this duty had been effaced from his memory, yet he should long remember the circumstances surrounding the birthday of the Eclectic. He remembered that after performing the very exhaustive ceremony he felt thirsty, and mentioning this he was told that there was some "water in the next room." (Laughter.) He did not like water under such circumstances, especially London water—(a laugh)—and for his refreshment after labour he proceeded to his own lodge, and spent a very pleasant evening there. It was not from the point of view of his own personal experience of the system upon which the Eclectic was started being unpleasant that he looked at it, and he only mentioned the matter to point out that he considered the original plan of the Eclectic to be a deviation from the fundamental principles of Freemasonry. He thought on the night when he consecrated the Eclectic that the founders had made a great mistake, and the gathering on this occasion of Bro. Harty's installation was a noble correction of this mistake. (Cheers.) Freemasonry was a social institution (cheers), for in an old oration which he had often heard Bro. James Terry give there was a passage which said, "Freemasonry is a moral Order, instituted by virtuous men with the praiseworthy design of keeping in remembrance the most sublime truths in the midst of the most innocent and social enjoyments." (Cheers.) For himself, Bro. Fenn said: Indeed I go so far as to believe that "labour and refreshment" were instituted as inseparable principles in Masonry by our Grand Master, King Solomon himself. For does he not say in the book of Ecclesiastes, "There is nothing better for a man than that he should eat and drink, and that he should make his soul enjoy good in his labour. This also I saw, that it was from the hands of God." And how could men thus make their souls rejoice unless they met after labour? How could the members of a lodge who did not meet after labour form friendships any more than could the members of a church? (Hear, hear.) Innocent social intercourse was urged upon Freemasons after the ceremonies, and yet the Eclectic had been founded upon the principle of working the ceremonies and parting without a word. In the course of lodge business discussions would arise, but these discussions, instead of conducing to friendship, too often create differences and asperities, which would be melted like snow before the sun by the convivial dinner and the social glass. (Hear, hear.) It was generally accepted as a truth that no assemblies acted more unbrotherly than boards of guardians and vestries. (Hear, hear, and a laugh.) No bodies of men displayed more anger and personality than these "local authorities," and this probably arose from the circumstance that at some meeting some difference had arisen, and so carried a rankling for weeks. Now, if these gentlemen dined together after their meetings these feelings would not exist, for personal wrongs would in most cases be forgotten and forgiven. (Hear.) The brethren of the Eclectic might depend upon it, that any attempt to improve the ancient landmarks of Freemasonry would prove to be a mistake and end in discomfort; and he was glad to see this lodge return to practice those ancient charges which say, "You may enjoy yourselves with innocent mirth, treating one another according to ability, but avoiding all excess, or forcing any brother to eat or drink beyond his inclination, or hindering from going when his occasions may call him . . . for this would blast our harmony and defeat our laudable purposes." (Cheers.) It was pleasant to see the cheerful hospitality the Eclectic displayed on this occasion. He hoped the lodge would have prosperity, and would be always able to afford the means of dispensing that hospitality over which Bro. Harty presided so gracefully. (Cheers.) The W.M. then proposed the toast of "The Initiate, Bro. Pearce," who, in reply, made one of the most eloquent speeches which perhaps ever fell from the lips of a brother placed in a similar position, a speech to which print fails to render complete justice from the fact that it is as impossible to convey the manner of an address as it is for an artist to paint the dying groan. Bro. Pearce said: Worshipful Master and Brethren,—Had I been called upon yesterday to address this assemblage, I should have had to speak to you as "fellow citizens," as "gentlemen," or as "friends;" to-day, I am proud to say, that I can address you by the holy name of "brothers." (Cheers.) This will be a memorable day in my existence, short though that may be, and though I may be, as the Worshipful Master says, the youngest Mason in the room, I have seen many years, and I have only one regret—that I have lived until the autumn leaves seem to be gathering around my brow before I have joined an association which does honour to God and to humanity. (Cheers.) I have been deeply impressed by my initiation into this honourable brotherhood, and, I trust, that late in life as I am before I have joined you, I shall not be thought less able to appreciate its beauties, or less able to feel that you have honoured me in initiating me into your mysteries. It is customary, when a child is born of Christian parents, to call it a Christian child. I might in the same way say that I was born a Mason, for my late father, who has been dead 47 years, was a Mason in a Sussex Lodge, therefore he stood at some time in the position in which I stand to-night, and if there are footsteps which it is an honour to follow, I think to-night I am following his footsteps. (Cheers.) To-day is, therefore, in many respects a memorable one to me, and I trust that my future experience of the Craft may be marked by that purity of religion which I have seen—a religion above all priestcraft (cheers), a religion which cultivates the communion between the Almighty Architect of the Universe and Man, and breathes the faith that His grace will always live in our hearts if we seek Him. (Cheers.) I am no stranger to Freemasonry in the points of its history and antiquity. I know that it has outlived races, nations and creeds, that religionisms have failed, but that Freemasonry has lived, lives because it unites man to his Maker; that it is characterised by a boundless charity, which pours the healing balm of consolation into the bosom of the afflicted, as I have heard addressed to-night; which forgets not the widow, or the orphan of a brother, though that brother had the only one tie to the fraternity, that he lifted up his heart to the same God we worship. (Cheers.) I feel by my initiation to-night I have entered upon a new crisis in my history. I trust that during the remaining years of my life I shall practice its teachings, knowing no sect, holding brotherhood with all, of whatever clime or country, who are within its circle, or who are bound in the one bond which exemplifies the greatest of all religions, true charity and brotherly love. (Cheers.) Yesterday I was a man, to-day I can clasp my breast and say "Am I not a man and a brother?" (Cheers.) Past Master J. H. Watts then proposed the toast of "The W.M.," and spoke of Bro. Harty's well-known abilities as an artist, and said that it was an honour for the lodge to have a brother in the chair who was doing the great service to Masonry which Bro. Harty was doing, in perpetuating the great ceremony at the Albert Hall, when our Royal Grand Master was installed. The W.M. replied to the toast, speaking of himself as a bashful Irishman, and stated that "the little change" brought about that night in the usual conduct of the lodge had been mainly carried out by himself after consultation with the Past Masters, and he promised that hospitality should be a prominent feature in the "Eclectic" in the future. The Irish deputation replied with the eloquence natural to the natives of the sister island, to the toast of their health, and Bro. Stevens replied for the visitors. Bro. While (Freemason), responded on behalf of the press. Bros. Terry and Binckes, spoke for the charities. Bro. Terry referred to the forthcoming festival for the R.M.B.I., and said if every brother subscribed 5s. a year, and every lodge gave £1 a year, there would not be so many poor old men and women sent empty away. The W.M., in proposing the Past Masters, presented Bro. Watts, I.P.M., with the Past Master's jewel. "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Officers of the Lodge," and the toast of the Tyler concluded the evening at a time when it is hard to say whether it was night or morning. Congratulations to the W.M., and apologies for absence were received from the Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey, from the District Grand Master of China, Bro. S. Rawson, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Bro. W. Spencer, 31st, and others.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—An excellent gathering of the members of this lodge took place on the 2nd inst. at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval. Amongst those present were Bros. G. Everett, W.M. (P.M. 177); Higgins, S.W.; Reeves, J.W.; Walls, S.D.; Speedy, I.G.; Marston, W.S.; Robinson, A.W.S.; Gardner, I.P.M.; Page, P.M., &c., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; W. Mann, P.M.; Drysdale, P.M.; and Ellis, Org. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bros. Bavin and Landan, the ceremony being well performed. The ballot was then taken on behalf of Bro. Honnerwell, P.M. Dobie, &c., as a joining member, and declared unanimous. The election of W.M. then followed, and resulted unanimously in favour of Bro. Higgins, S.W., who returned thanks for the honour conferred. Bro. Page, P.M., was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Longstaffe re-appointed Tyler. Bros. Robinson, Webster and Stranger having been elected Auditors, and a jewel voted to the outgoing Master, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a collation, well catered for by Bro. F. Trotman. This being an "off night," the customary toasts were given very briefly by the W.M. Bro. Page, P.M., &c., of the Grand Stewards' Lodge, having returned thanks for "The Grand Officers" in a few well-chosen words, "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., who, in the course of his remarks, stated that Bro. Everett's year of office had passed off with great eclat. He had been well supported by his officers, his working had been admirable, and his manner whilst presiding at the banquet table most urbane. He had been unanimously elected to fill the high position of W.M., and had succeeded in discharging its duties by well ruling and governing the lodge without a single hitch, and had given universal satisfaction. The W.M., in the course of a very humorous reply, said that his year of office had been a most pleasant one, which happy state of affairs was equally due to the attention and assistance he had received from the officers. He was also greatly indebted to the Past Masters, and as that was his last appearance in the character of W.M., which role he had sustained for more than two consecutive years in that and the Domestic Lodge, he took the opportunity of most heartily thanking them all. In conclusion he said that although his business requirements were great, he should endeavour, as far as possible, to attend the meetings of the lodge, and to enhance its prosperity in every way. "The Health of the Joining Member" followed, and having been duly honoured, was acknowledged by Bro. Honnerwell in a very neat speech. The next toast, that of "The W.M. Elect," gave the W.M. an opportunity of paying a very high compliment to the Masonic abilities of Bro. Higgins, who, in his response, stated that he was very proud at having been elected to the position of W.M. in so good a lodge as the Kennington was, and although he could not hope to discharge the duties of the chair so well as Bro. Everett had done, yet he would do his best to please the brethren. The toast of "The Past Masters" followed, and was acknowledged by the I.P.M. The next toast, a most important one, was "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary." In introducing this toast, the W.M. stated that the lodge was very fortunate in having two such worthy brethren and distinguished Past Masters as Bros. Page and Stuart occupying those positions. The manner in which the funds of the lodge were administered by the Treasurer, and the care and attention displayed by the Secretary in his department were most praiseworthy. Bros. Page and Stuart having briefly replied, "The Health of the Officers" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Higgins, S.W.; Reeves, J.W.; Marston and Robinson, Stewards, upon behalf of themselves and absent colleagues. During the evening Bros. Honnerwell, Reeves, Walls, Sirgood, Stokes, Webb, and others, instrumentally and vocally entertained the brethren. The Tyler's toast at eleven terminated the proceedings, and the brethren adjourned until the first Tuesday in February, when Bro. Higgins, S.W., will be duly installed into the chair.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—A regular meeting was held on Thursday, January 4th, at the Masonic Hall. It was attended by Bros. Brown, W.M.; Cooper, as I.P.M.; Carey, P.M.; Capt. Floyd, P.M.; Rubie, P.M.; B. Little, P.M.; Turner, P.M.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M., and P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire; F. Wilkinson, S.W.; Falkner, J.W.; Wilton, P.M., and Dir. of Cers.; C. Wilkinson, Sec.; Braham, S.D.; Robinson, as J.D.; Gummer, I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler; Hunt, Steward; Styles, as Steward; Mercer, Baldwin, Wheeler, Tanner. As visitors, Major Ramsay, District Grand Master of the Punjab, India; C. Pegler, P.M. 14, 304, 837, West Yorkshire; Collins, 53; Jas. Wilson, 53. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Mr. Harris as a candidate for initiation, which was unanimously favourable. Messrs. Albert Holmes and Thomas Ames were introduced, properly prepared, and initiated by the W.M., Bro. Cooper giving the charge, and the S.W. explaining the symbolism of the working tools. Bro. F. Wilkinson was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. Ashley, P.M., as Treasurer; and Bro. Bigwood, Tyler. By permission of the W.M., Bro. Dr. Hopkins, P.M., read an address recently delivered at a meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Devon by Bro. Metham, D.P.G.M., forcibly recommending care and enquiry into the character and motives of candidates for admission into the Order, with illustrations of the result of neglect of such caution drawn from experience. A vote of thanks was passed to the visitors for the sanction of their presence, which was acknowledged by Bros. Ramsay and Pegler, the former especially remarking on the impressive delivery of the charge, and the latter on what was to him a novelty, namely, the working of an old form of ritual which is peculiar to this lodge. Arrangements having been made for the annual festival, the lodge was closed at 10 o'clock.

NORTH WALSHAM.—Unanimity Lodge (No. 102).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge, for the installation of the W.M. for the ensuing year, was held at the King's Arms, North Walsham, on Monday, Jan. 1st. Lodge was opened in the First Degree by the Acting W.M., Bro. Colonel Duff, M.P., with Bros. R. Wortley, I.P.M.; G. Wilkinson, S.W.; E. Parr, J.W.; B. B. Sapwell, S.D.; F. Clowes, J.D.; and J. R. Dewhurst, I.G. The Rev. H. Lubbock and Mr. G. Walker, two initiates, were admitted. When the lodge had been duly opened in the Third Degree, the Acting W.M. proceeded to instal as W.M., in succession to the Right Worshipful Prov. G.M., Bro. Right Hon. Lord Suffield, K.C.B.; Bro. G. Wilkinson, who appointed the following brethren to the several offices:—Bros. J. B. Bond Cabbell, S.W.; B. B. Sapwell, J.W.; G. Smith, Secretary and Treasurer; F. Clowes, S.D.; J. R. Dewhurst, J.D.; and Rev. H. Neville White, I.G. After the "working," which was of the most satisfactory character, the officers being well up in their duties, the brethren adjourned to a handsome banquet, which worthily sustained the reputation of the King's Arms cuisine. The newly-installed W.M. presided, the S.W.'s chair being filled by Bro. R. S. Baker, Bro. Bond Cabbell unfortunately being obliged to leave after the closing of the lodge. All the other lodge officers were present, and also Bros. J. Hales, J. Shepherd, R. Wortley, Rev. H. T. Griffith, E. D. Horsford, Braithwaite (Yorkshire), G. Ives, W. Smith, W. T. Coy, P. Powell, Rev. H. Lubbock, G. Walker, H. J. Martin (Norwich), J. Chapman, &c. After Masonic honour had been paid to "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. the G.M. of all England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and "The R.W. the Prov. G.M., the Right Hon. Lord Suffield, K.C.B." whose absence was much regretted, Bro. R. S. Baker proposed "The W.M.," speaking in high terms of the manner in which Bro. Wilkinson discharged the duties of that office some years since. The toast was drunk with the customary honours. In responding, the W.M. said it was so long since he served the office that he felt somewhat green at the work. The last two or three years had been years of unexampled prosperity for the lodge, and he hoped during the ensuing year it would make further strides in the same direction, and advance the cause of Masonry, so that it would long continue to hold its present high position in the province. For the confidence they had again reposed in him he thanked them. He then proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Colonel Duff, M.P.," to whom the lodge was under considerable obligation for the masterly manner in which for the last two years he had performed the duties of the chair. The toast having been fully honoured Bro. Col. Duff, M.P., returned thanks. He said that it was at considerable inconvenience that he had sometimes attended the meetings of the lodge, but had the trouble to which he had been put been much greater, he should have felt amply repaid by the kindness with which they had always received him. During the two years he had been in office—one year as Master the other as Acting Master—they had been good enough to say that he had done his duty, but he was bound to remark that he should himself have been able to do but little had it not been for the assistance of those brethren who had held office with him. He was particularly pleased to think that the lodge was worked and carried on as well as any in the province, all the officers knowing their duties and faithfully performing them. He was sorry that the Prov. Grand Master was not able to be with them on this occasion, for had he been they might have heard from him when the Prov. Grand Lodge would be held, and also some information on the subject of the Masonic Charities of England. Lord Suffield's opinion was that the subscriptions sent up from Norfolk were not what they ought to be in comparison with the benefits received by the province, or which it ought and might receive. The income of the Masonic Charities in England last year amounted very nearly to £40,000, showing an increase upon the previous year of upwards of £7000. Of this sum between £8000 and £9000 went in pensions to aged women and men. When they saw the way in which the money was laid out, and the good that was done by the several charities, the county of Norfolk—especially as it was the residence of the M.W. the G.M. of all England—should come forward in a more worthy and liberal spirit. The province, he believed, did give a good deal of money in one way or another, but the amount was nothing like what it should be, and the matter was not only about to be taken up by the Prov. G.M., but he had signified his intention of taking the chair at the festival of one of the charities (the Girls') when he hoped the Masons of Norfolk would give him every possible support. The W.M. having given "The Initiates," for which Bros. the Rev. H. Lubbock and G. Walker responded, proposed "The Visitors," coupled with the names of Bros. Brathwaite, of Yorkshire, and H. J. Martin, of Norwich. Both these brethren responded to the toast, which was drunk with honours. Bro. Martin referred to the subject of the charities, mooted by Bro. Colonel Duff. He stated that the part which the province of Norfolk had hitherto played in this great cause was simply disgraceful, as he proposed to show from statistics in his possession. He asked if the brethren of the province could possibly be aware that the gross amount contributed by Norfolk to the several charities during the last three years was only £322 4s. The facts had only to be known, and he felt that this province would not lag behind in a work which was especially dear to all true Masons. During the past three years the contributions from Norfolk had been as follows:—Boys, 1874, £56 14s.; 1875, £38 17s.; 1876, £18 18s.; total, £114 9s. Girls, 1874, £16 16s.; 1875, £28 7s.; 1876, £12 12s. The aged Masons for the three years had received about £100; and the Widows £50. Let the brethren contrast this discreditable record with the advantages derived by the province. There had been three and there were now four boys in the Boys' School, involving an expenditure of £1500; one girl (from this very lodge) was in the Girls' School, involving an outlay of £209; three annuitants (men) were in receipt of £40 a year each, and two annuitants (women), £32 each, making a total under this head of £184 per year. To remedy the existing state of things Bro. E. Baldwin, a subscribing member in 213, was making praiseworthy efforts for the establishment of a Masonic Charitable Association, by which almost every brother would be enabled to obtain a life governorship in one or all three of the charities, and he commended this movement to the earnest consideration and cordial approval and co-operation of the brethren throughout the province. An association having a similar object had been established in Essex, and he believed had worked with marked success and corresponding benefit to the charities. "The Health of Bro. Baker," proposed by Bro. Hales, and "The Secretary's toast" were drunk during the evening, and a general opinion expressed that the subject of the charities demanded the attention of the brethren of the province.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The first meeting under the new W.M. was held in the Masonic Hall on Monday, January 8th, by whom the lodge was opened at 8 p.m. The following brethren were present:—Bros. H. Gore, W.M.; Cook, I.P.M.; Cooper, P.M. 41, as Chaplain; Phillips, P.M.; H. C. Hopkins, S.W.; Dickenson, J.W.; Dr. Hopkins, P.M. and P.P. S.G.W., as S.D.; Dutton, P.M., as J.D.; Bush, P.M., as Dir. of Cers.; Baldwin, I.G.; Gazzard, Tyler; and others. As visitors, besides those already named, Bros. Pegler, P.M. 14, 304, 837; General Doherty, C.B., P.M. 906; Hunt, 329; Harrington, 37; Aberdeen; Townsend, 1363; Marillier, 53; Reynolds, 41. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, and the report of Bro. Cook, Treasurer, was presented. The W.M. read a circular relative to a proposed memorial in honour of the eminent Masonic author, the late Dr. Oliver, consideration of which was postponed. A ballot was taken for three candidates for initiation, which proved clear in their favour, of whom, however, only one was present. Bro. Phillips, P.M., then took the chair. Mr. Francis Bell was introduced, properly prepared, and duly admitted as a member of the Order. The charge was given by Bro. Dr. Hopkins. A vote of thanks was passed to the visitors for their attendance, which was duly acknowledged. A candidate for initiation was proposed and seconded by the Wardens. The lodge was closed at 10 o'clock.

DORCHESTER.—Lodge of Faith and Unanimity (No. 417).—This lodge held its annual installation meeting on Monday, the 3rd inst., the W.M., Bro. W. Osmond, occupying the chair. Notwithstanding the very wet weather and almost impassable roads, there was a very full attendance of the brethren of lodge 417, as well as several visiting brethren from neighbouring lodges, who had to come "thru' flood and fen" to be present. Bro. Robert Case, P. Prov. G. Sec., Dorset, the W.M. elect, was presented and obligated in due form. Brethren below the chair having withdrawn, a Board of Installed Masters (nine in number) was opened, and Bro. Robert Case duly placed in the chair of K.S. The Board of Installed Masters having been closed, the brethren below that rank were re-admitted and saluted the W.M. in ancient form. The W.M. then appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. W. Osmond, I.P.M.; T.S. Biggs, S.W.; W. E. Brymer, J.W.; Rev. T. Russell Wright, Chap.; W. Chick, P.M., Treas.; Rev. H. Everett, Sec.; T. Beavis, S.D.; T. M. Dron, J.D.; G. J. G. Gregory, P.M., M.C.; J. Robinson, P.M., Org.; A. H. Lock, I.G.; Charles Parsons, P.M., and W. H. Dean, Stewards; J. Lovelace, Tyler; W. Talbot, Asst. Tyler. The Installing Officer of the evening was Bro. W.S. Gillard, P.M. 1168, and P. Prov. G.J.D. Dorset, who very kindly undertook the office on the sudden indisposition of Bro. W. P. Cockeram, and performed the ceremonies in a most admirable manner. Bro. W. Osmond also assisted in the installation ceremony very satisfactorily. Before the lodge was closed two very interesting events took place to signalise the W.M.'s accession to the chair. Bro. W. E. Brymer, the J.W., having presented the lodge with a very good and powerful harmonium, which was used for the first time this evening, and a letter was read from W. Bro. John Symonds, P.G.A.D.C., regretting his inability to leave town to be present at his lodge, and asking the brethren to accept from him 16 volumes of the Freemasons' Magazine as an addition to the lodge library. Cordial votes of thanks to Bros. Brymer and Symonds were carried by acclamation, and the lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a banquet, under the presidency of Bro. Case, and the usual loyal Masonic toasts were given. During the course of the evening the W.M. alluded to the fact that the Past Masters of the lodge, as well as the Junior Wardens, were either Life Subscribers or Life Governors of one or the other of the Masonic Charities, thus proving that the watch-words of the order, Loyalty and Charity, were in good keeping in Lodge 417. Amongst the visitors present were W. Bros. H. C. Burt, P.P.G.J.W., Dorset; A. J. Budden, W.M. Lodge 622, and Prov. G.S.D., Dorset; J. Whitehead Smith, P.M. Lodge 622, and P.P.G.C., Dorset; John Cook, P.M. Lodge 386, and others.

HALIFAX.—St. James's Lodge (No. 448).—The annual installation festival was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Halifax, on Tuesday, January 2nd, at which an unusually large number of brethren were present. The lodge was opened in due form in the Three Degrees at 3 p.m., and after the ordinary business was concluded Bro. Christopher Tate Rhodes was installed W.M. for the ensuing year in a masterly and impressive manner by Bros. G. Normanton, P.P.G.D., and James Charnock, P.M. 307. The newly installed W.M. then invested the following brethren as his officers for 1877:—Bros. Thos. Whitaker, P.M. 307, as S.W.; N. W. Scholefield, J.W.; W. F. Wilkinson, P.M., Treas.; George Taylor, Sec.; William Swale, S.D.; G. H. Radcliffe, J.D.; Councillor J. B. Brierley, M.C.; A. H. Booke, Org.; Walter Walshaw, I.G.; R. Worsick, P.M. 307, J. G. Lee, J. C. Crocker, and T. L. Ogden, Stewards; Jno. Greenwood, P.M. 308, Tyler; Bro. R. Jessop, P.M., being appointed Almoner, and Bro. T. Wheelhouse, Charity Steward. The Rt. W. Prov. G.M., Bro. Lieut.-Col. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., J.P., D.L., then presented in complimentary terms on behalf of the brethren a very chaste P.M.'s jewel to Bro. Taylor Wheelhouse, as a small token of appreciation of his services in the chair during the past year; after which the lodge was closed by the new W.M. in harmony and due form. The brethren, about sixty in number, adjourned to the large dining hall, which has been recently very tastefully decorated, and also specially prepared for this occasion, to partake of a sumptuous banquet, which reflected the highest credit upon the purveyor, Bro. J. C. Crocker, of the White Swan Hotel. Bro. C. T. Rhodes presided, and was supported by the Rt. W. Prov. G.M. of West Yorks., Bro. Lieut.-Col. Sir H. Edwards, Bart., J.P., D.L.; Bros. T. W. Tew, J.P., W. Dep. Prov. G.M.; Henry Smith, Prov. G. Sec.; Jno. Fisher, P.M. 61, and Prov. G. Prior of West Yorks., &c.; T. Perkinson, P.M. 61, 448, and Prov. G.M.M. of West Yorks., &c.; Councillor F. Whitaker, P.P.J.G.D.; Geo. Normanton, P.P.G.D.; Edwin Walshaw, P.G. Std.; Taylor Wheelhouse, I.P.M.; James Charnock, P.M. 307; W. F. Wilkinson, P.M.; Josh. Gankroger, W.M. 61; Wm. Parker, P.M. Airdale Lodge, Shipley; Jno. Forth, P.M.; Jno. Seed, P.M. 1302; Henry Moseley; Thos. Woodhead; J. Y. Rideal, P.M.; Geo. Battinson, W.M. elect 61; Wm. Gankroger, J.W. 61; T. G. Knowles, P.M.; W. B. Spencer, P.M.; Rev. R. Jessop, P.M.; and numerous other P.M.'s and brethren from Bradford, Huddersfield, &c. The usual loyal toasts having been ably proposed from the chair, and suitably responded to, the W.M. next gave "The M.W. the G.M. of England, the Prince of Wales; the M.W. the Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon; the Dep. G.M. Lord Skelmersdale, and the Officers of the Grand Lodge, Past and Present," remarking that the Craft were exceedingly proud of their Royal Master, and though he was not the only Royal personage who had not thought it derogatory to his dignity to exchange the sceptre for the trowel, to patronise our mysteries and join in our assemblies, still none who had preceded him had been more popular, and it was very gratifying that he had been pleased to become a Freemason and accept the chief position in this our secret society, and thus ascertain for himself that we were not plotters who ought to be excommunicated, but rather the most loyal and patriotic of the Queen's most loving subjects. He (Bro. Rhodes) was present at the never-to-be-forgotten ceremony of the installation at the Albert Hall, performed so nobly by the Earl of Carnarvon, who with Sir Albert Woods as G.D.C., were deserving of the highest praise, the vast assemblage on that occasion being conducted as if by clockwork. Lord Skelmersdale was very popular, more especially amongst the Lancashire brethren, and he well merited the distinction which had been conferred upon him. In proposing the toast of "The Right Worshipful Prov. G. Master of West Yorks, Lieut.-Col. Sir H. Edwards, Bart., and the Provincial Grand Officers," the W.M. said that it was an old stereotyped phrase to say that "the right man was in the right place," but he would ask the brethren present if any man ever filled his position more exactly than did the R.W.P.G.M. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales had made an excellent choice in selecting Sir H. Edwards, who was one of the most popular men in the county, was extensively known as a thorough English gentleman in every sense of the word, kind and courteous to every one with whom he came in contact, had a large heart and a liberal mind; his popularity and the esteem in which he is held by the Craft in general were shown by his selection as President at the last Girls' School festival. The R.W. Dep. G.M., Bro. Tew, was a very active brother, and wished to do all that he possibly could for the benefit of Freemasonry in the province. He (the W.M.) felt it a great compliment to the lodge that the R.W. Prov. G.M. had become a joining member, and to himself that he, along with the W.D. Prov. G.M. and so many provincial officers, had honoured him with their presence at his installation. The R.W. Prov. G.M. and the W. Dep. P.G.M. both replied in feeling terms at some length, which he condense would be to spoil, and we therefore refrain. The I.P.M., Bro. Taylor Wheelhouse, then rose and gave what he considered as the toast of the evening, that of "The W.M., Bro. C. T. Rhodes," saying he was a brother who well deserved the position he had been so unanimously chosen to occupy; it was a position of great responsibility, but he believed he would discharge the important duties devolving upon him with great credit to himself and honour to the Craft. He was quite sure there was no brother in the lodge better versed in the ritual and ceremonies than Bro. Rhodes. The W.M., who on rising to respond was greeted with loud and long continued applause, said that if anything was calculated to unnerve him at all, it was the very pleasing and flattering reception that had just been accorded him. He thanked them most heartily for the exalted position in which they had placed him, the highest honour which it was possible for the lodge to bestow upon any brother, to elect him as W.M. with an unanimous voice. In a lodge numbering nearly 100 members it was indeed something to be proud of, and were he to repeat his thanks a thousand times he could not impress upon them how he appreciated the honour. It was an honour to be elected President out of 100 of any body of men, but more especially when each one of them had been tried and tested by the tongue of good report. He felt assured that he had the good wishes of the brethren. He candidly expressed that the honour had not come upon him unexpectedly, as he had worked for it steadily and perseveringly, and believed that he had the position in strict accordance with the Book of Constitutions, and not by the kissing which goes by favour. He had commenced when initiated as an Assist. Steward, and at his own wish had not passed over the head of any brother, but had steadily climbed the ladder year by year from the lowest to the uppermost stave, filling every office, having had his eye upon the chair since he first became a Freemason, and to reach it by the unanimous vote of the brethren had been the dream of his Masonic life. As directed by the charge in the First Degree, he had endeavoured to make a practical and daily advancement in Masonic knowledge, that he might be the better enabled to fulfil the serious duties of the position at which he was aiming. Hitherto he had felt comparatively easy and comfortable in the offices he had from time filled, but now feeling the grave responsibility resting upon him he hoped by the help of the G.A.O.T.U., and the generous support and kind consideration of the brethren to discharge the duties satisfactorily to all concerned. If any brother had any complaint or suggestion to make he trusted that he would make them to him direct, when they should at all times have his best consideration. He intended to adhere to the ancient landmarks of the Order, and whilst hoping for plenty of work during the ensuing year, he trusted that the brethren would refrain from recommending any one to a participation of our secrets unless they had strong grounds for believing they would ultimately reflect honour on our choice; he did not mean that they should have none but those rich in this world's good, but good sterling honest men, who were in a fair position in life, so that there was no probability of their preying upon our noble charities. There had been quite a rush of candidates, especially since the Prince of Wales was made Grand Master, and he (the W.M.) was afraid that admissions had been too indiscriminate, and without due enquiry in many cases. Let the outside world know and feel that it is a great honour and privilege to be admitted into the brotherhood. He strongly recommended them to read the Freemason and keep themselves posted with what was doing in Masonry around them, and that every one should read the remarks on the election of W.M.'s in the Christmas number, and also the observations of Bro. J. Hervey, G.S., at the Carnarvon Lodge a few weeks ago, on the duties of officers. He had found it a very difficult task to please all in selecting his officers, but by the assistance of the P.M.'s, who advised with him on the subject, he hoped that general satisfaction would be felt, and strongly urged the brethren, and officers especially, to attend the instruction meetings, and post themselves well in the ceremony, for it was a sorry sight to see a candidate conducted by the Deacon to the J.W. or S.W., and then find that neither of them knew what to say, thus making the whole appear a ridiculous farce to the candidate himself. He trusted the lodge would maintain the character it had gained as one of the best working lodges in the province, though he did not think that Freemasonry consisted solely in working the ritual and ceremonies inside the lodge, but that occasions like the present festive scene formed a part of the whole, when they could fraternise and know and understand each other better, be cemented together in one grand bond of brotherhood, and be fitted to uphold and carry out the grand principles of our Order. The other toasts were

"The Past W. Dep. Prov. G.M., Bro. Bentley Shaw, D.L., and Past Prov. Grand Officers;" "The Visiting Brethren" heartily proposed by the Rt. W.P.G.M., Sir H. Edwards; "The Installing Officers," "The S.W., J.W., and Officers of the St. James's Lodge;" "The P.M.'s of St. James's Lodge and the Officers for the Past Year;" "The Two Sister Lodges in the town;" "The Management Committee of the Freemasons' Hall;" "The various Masonic Charities;" "Lady Edwards and the Ladies," responded to by the Rt. W.P.G.M., and the final toast. During dinner selections of music were given by Mr. C. W. Eastwood's band, and the glees, songs, &c., given during the evening contributed greatly to the enjoyment of what was undoubtedly one of the most successful festivals ever held in connection with the lodge. Letters of apology for unavoidable absence were received from Bros. Bentley Shaw, P. Dep. Prov. G.M. of West Yorks.; Isaac Booth, P.G. J.W.; J. Sutcliffe, Rt. W.P.G.M.M. of Lincolnshire; Jack Sutcliffe, Grimsby, and other brethren of eminence in the Craft.

BIRKENHEAD.—Mersey Lodge (No. 477).—The festival of St. John was duly celebrated by the brethren of this lodge at the Masonic Chambers, Argyle-street, Birkenhead, on Thursday, the 11th inst. There were upwards of 100 members and visitors present, and amongst the latter were Bros. M. McNeerney, W.M. 605; J. Mathews, W.M. 721; James Salmon, P.M. 425; R. C. Mellor, P.M. 304; J. Wilton Patson, W.M. 1289; T. Shaw, S.W. 605; and others. The Installing Officer was Bro. Gracie, P.M. The following is a list of the new officers of the lodge: Bros. W. Pulford, W.M.; J. G. Adams, I.P.M.; R. Gracie, P.M. and Sec.; D. Fraser, P.M., Treas.; Samuel Jones, P.M., Sec.; John Dutton, S.W.; Thomas Brown, J.W.; William Worrall, jun., S.D.; W. Bennett, J.D.; R. Ridyard, I.G.; Geo. Dicken, D.C.; R. Hamilton and J. Woolley, Stewards. In the course of the business it was decided to establish a limited liability company for the erection of a Masonic Hall in Birkenhead, and the lodge agreed to take up 500 shares at £1 each. The members afterwards dined at the Ranelagh Hotel.

SOUTHPORT.—Lodge of Unity (No. 613).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on St. John's Day, the 27th ult., in the Masonic Hall, Neville-street. At the opening of the lodge, which took place about 3.30 p.m., the chair was taken by the esteemed W.M., Bro. T. S. Cory, there being a good muster of the brethren present. After the lodge had been duly opened and the minutes of the preceding regular meeting confirmed, the auditors' report was read, which showed that the lodge was in a flourishing condition, and that the year 1876 had been the most successful of any since the foundation of the lodge in 1853. Bro. S. Kerrhaw was elected as Treas., and Bro. G. Rockliffe was appointed Tyler for the ensuing year. A ballot was taken for Bro. Rev. R. W. P. Montgomery, who was elected a joining member. The chair was now taken by Bro. J. Bowes, P.M. 148, Prov. G.J.W. Cumberland and Westmoreland, &c., and Bro. George Bailey was presented by Bro. Cory as his successor, for the benefit of installation. The ceremony of installation was duly performed in a most solemn and effective manner by Bro. Bowes, who also gave the charges; the whole performance gaining for him the approbation of all present. The following brethren were appointed as officers and invested with their respective insignia by the W.M.:—Bros. T. S. Cory, I.P.M.; J. Hatch, S.W.; J. H. Barrow, J.W.; W. H. Marsden, Chap.; S. Kershaw, Treas.; J. H. T. Cottier, Sec.; J. Sutton, S.D.; J. D. Ainsworth, J.D.; W. H. Johnson, I.G.; J. P. Griffiths, P.M., D.C.; J. S. Gardner, Org.; G. Rockliffe, Tyler. On the motion of the W.M., seconded by Bro. Duggan, a vote of thanks was given to Bro. Bowes for the praiseworthy manner in which he had performed his duties as Installing Master. The newly installed W.M. in the name and on behalf of the lodge presented to Bro. Cory, the I.P.M., a beautiful P.M.'s jewel, as a token of the respect and esteem in which he is held by the lodge, and for the efficient discharge of his duties as W.M. Bro. Bowes was ably assisted by Bros. H. Poynter, W.M. 948, P.P.G. Reg. Berks. and Bucks.; D. W. Finney, P.M. 148, who acted as Wardens. Among other visitors present were Bros. G. W. J. Fowler, P.M. 86, P.P.G.D.C.; W. Robinson, W.M. 148; Phillips, P.M. The festival of St. John was subsequently held at the Scansbrick Arms, when upwards of forty of the brethren sat down to a recherche banquet, provided by Bro. R. Watson, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were drunk. The toast of "Prov. G. Officers" was responded to in a telling speech by Bro. J. F. Roberts, P.M. 1313, P.G.D.C. Bro. T. Parker, P.M. 613, responded on behalf of the P.M.'s, and alluded to the work which the W.M. had done in previous years for the lodge, in the various offices he had held. Several brethren performed a choice selection of instrumental music and songs, and this together with the good will and harmony which prevailed enhanced the enjoyment of the evening.

PLUMSTEAD.—Pattison Lodge (No. 913).—The wonderful vitality and strength of Masonic feeling and brotherhood in the district was fully exemplified on Thursday, the 4th inst., when the regular monthly meeting of the above lodge was held under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. W. T. Vincent, the large room of Bro. Tucker's house, the "Lord Raglan," Burrage-road, being almost inconveniently filled with the members of the lodge, and visiting brethren from the neighbouring lodges of Woolwich, and other parts of the province of Kent, as will be seen by the following visitors' list: Bros. W. Hicks, P.M. 77, and P.P.G.S.B., Kent; W. Weston, W.M. 1536; T. Butt, W.M. 700; T. Hastings, W.M. 829; T. Ward, P.M. 700; F. J. Dawson, P.M. and Treas. 700; J. Donnelly, J.D. 706; Eugene Sweeney, I.G. 706; W. Murphy, Treas. 1536; W. G. Picken, J.W. 1536; G. Tedder, 11 and 1107; C. Buckland, 700; J. B. Hanson, 700; W. Crane, 907; E. Wilson, 700; G. Pilcher, 1472;

E. W. Fisher, 700; G. W. Kennedy, 1536; W. Harris, 700; and others. The other officers present beside the W.M. were Bros. A. Penfold, I.P.M.; C. Coupland, P.M. and P.G.J.W. Kent; J. McDougall, P.M.; T. Smith, P.M. and P.P.G.P. Kent; E. Denton, P.M. and Sec., and P.P.G.P. Kent; H. Butler, S.W.; J. D. Hayes, J.W.; A. Jessup, Treas.; W. B. Lloyd, S.D.; J. Chapman, J.D.; R. J. Cook, I.G.; C. Cooke, Org.; and R. Lester, O.G. The business before the lodge was the balloting for W. T. Beamish, who was unanimously approved of and duly initiated. Bros. W. Rees and F. Johnson, were then passed to the Second Degree, and Bros. Brock, Keeble, Stabback, and Letton, received the benefit of the Sublime Degree. Nothing could exceed the earnest impressiveness with which the esteemed W.M. worked the whole of the ceremonies, or surpass the ability of his officers in their arduous duties. Upon the lodge being resumed, the W.M. drew attention to the wise decision to which Grand Lodge had arrived in memorializing the safe return of our Royal and beloved G.M. from his Indian tour, and hoped the two lifeboats to be devoted to that purpose, would be the means of saving many an unfortunate fellow creature from a watery grave. He then introduced Bros. Smith and Hastings, who would tell them something of the Charities, for which they stood stewards. Bro. Smith thanked the lodge for its gift of ten guineas to each of the charities, and for the munificent sum collected in the lodge on their last monthly meeting, the amount being £45, and he hoped with Bro. Hastings to take up to the next festival a goodly show of the charitable feeling of the Masons of the district. After the appropriation of four guineas to the subscription about to be raised among the lodges and chapters of the district, for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to the esteemed and reverend Bro. Hill, P.G. Chaplain for Kent, for his kindness in delivering an oration on the occasion of the erection of our late Bro. Graden's Memorial at Wickham Cemetery, and many other acts of brotherly love on his part, not only to that lodge, of which he was the Hon. Chaplain, but throughout the province generally; the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to supper, and upon re-assembling paid the usual loyal and Masonic compliments to all concerned. The speeches were excellent and the toasts as hearty in their geniality as ever.

SOUTHEND.—Priory Lodge (No. 1000).—The regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Thursday, the 28th ult., at the Middleton Hotel, Southend. The W.M., Bro. E. E. Phillips, P.M. 379, Prov. J.G.D., presided. The W.M., Treasurer, and Tyler for the ensuing year being elected at this meeting, a good number of brethren were present, amongst whom were the following, viz.: Bros. A. Lucking, P.M. 160, Prov. A.G.D.C., I.P.M.; Rev. S. R. Wigram, G. Chaplain, S.W.; F. D. Grayson, acting J.W.; F. Wood, P.M., P.P.S.G.W., Treas.; J. A. Wardell, P.M. 160 and 1000, P.P.G.D., Sec.; W. Chaplin, S.D.; W. P. Belliss, J.D.; J. C. Johnstone, P.M. 20 (I.C.) D.C.; W. J. Chignell, I.G.; Mountain, Tyler; H. Rowley, P.M., P.P.S.G.D.; H. Briggs, H. Luker, G. G. Jones, B. J. Mackel, W. Waterhouse, G. Berry, P. Benton, jun., G. F. Wood, J. English, W. D. Merritt, F. Cantor, H. Smith, and others. Visitor: Bro. R. Abbott, 318. After the usual preliminary business, Bro. W. R. Marsh, P.M. 9 and 933, was balloted for as a joining member, which proved unanimous in his favour. The brethren then proceeded to the election of the W.M., when Bro. Rev. S. R. Wigram, Grand Chaplain, P.M. and P.Z. 214, P.Z. 1000, was unanimously chosen for that important office. The worthy father of the lodge, Bro. F. Wood, was again unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Mountain re-elected Tyler. The usual Past Master's jewel was voted to the retiring W.M. for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of the chair during the past year. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, presided over by the I.P.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. The toast of the W.M. elect was very cordially received. Bro. Wigram thanked the brethren for the compliment, and assured them he would endeavour to merit the confidence they had placed in him. The Tyler's toast brought a very pleasant evening to a close, and the brethren separated until the installation meeting on the 25th inst.

LIVERPOOL.—Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1035).—This prosperous lodge at the north end of Liverpool celebrated its anniversary on Thursday, the 11th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Kirkdale, where there was a large representation of members and visitors. Bro. J. F. Newell, P.M., was the Installing Master, and he placed Bro. A. Willis in the chair of the W.M. in a highly effective manner. The following were the other appointments: Bros. J. W. McWean, S.W.; J. McWean, J.W.; G. Morgan, P.M., Treasurer; R. R. Forshaw, Sec.; W. Donkin, Asst. Sec.; John Whaites, S.D.; J. P. Bryan, J.D.; W. Forrester, I.G.; J. Smith and George, Stewards; Turley, P.M., P.P.G.J.D., Master of Ceremonies; A. Forshaw, Org.; and Cruce, Tyler. After the ceremony the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was served in good style by Bro. Casey. Among those who were present at the installation, most of whom remained, were Bros. H. S. Alpass, Prov. Grand Secretary; Ibbis, P.P.G.S.B., 1473; Lunt, P.M. 873; Knight, W.M. 1325; Ashmore, P.M. 1325; Jos. Bell, W.M. 1609; Jones, P.M. 220; and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. Bro. Alpass, P.G. Sec. responded to the toast of "Bro. Lord Skelmersdale and the Provincial Grand Officers," and congratulated the brethren on the state of the lodge and the good working which he had that day witnessed. He rejoiced to see such a pleasant gathering of brethren, was happy to find that the finances of the lodge were in such a prosperous condition, and wished to bring under their notice the educational institutions of Masonry, as a means of disbursing their surplus funds. He concluded by bearing strong testimony to the personal and Masonic virtues of both Lord Skelmersdale and the Hon. F. Stanley, R.W.D. Prov. G.M., and wished the Prince of Wales Lodge every prosperity.—"The Health of the Installing Master" was then proposed by Bro. Morgan, P.M., and "The Health of Bro. Bunting," late Treasurer, by Bro. Newell, P.M., who spoke in eulogistic terms of the eight years' service which the Treasurer had rendered. Bro. Bunting replied in feeling terms. After a most enjoyable evening the brethren separated. The musical talent of the lodge was reinforced by Bros. J. Barlow Foulkes, 1325; J. Queen, 1505; and Hobart, 1505, by whom a capital programme was gone through, under the direction of Bro. J. P. Bryan.

BIRMINGHAM.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1474).—This lodge held its regular meeting on the 11th inst. Bros. S. Lyon, W.M.; J. Silverstone, S.W.; B. Lazarus, J.W.; Rev. J. G. Emanuel, B.A., Chap.; J. Harris, S.D.; Paul Roberts, J.D.; H. Wood, I.G.; David Lowenstein, Sec. There was a very large attendance of the members, also several visitors, in consequence of a notice of motion which stood on the circular in the name of their much esteemed Chaplain. Bro. G. S. Emanuel, B.A., Chaplain, moved, pursuant of notice, and Bro. B. Lazarus, J.W., seconded, and it was passed unanimously, "That the attention of the Rt. Hon. and R.W. Lord Leigh, P.G.M. of Warwickshire, be called to the fact that the 15th Section of the Constitution of the Three Globes, the Grand Lodge of Germany, excludes Jews, as Jews, from membership in any of its affiliated lodges. This proceeding being opposed to the principles of True Masonry and being calculated to limit the privileges of English Masons professing the Jewish faith, the Officers and members of the Lodge of Israel entreat the Rt. Hon. and P.G.M., Lord Leigh, to call the attention of the Grand Lodge of England to the subject, with the view of inducing the Grand Lodge of Germany to abolish this section (165), so illiberal and anti-Masonic, and further appoint the W.M., Wardens, and Chaplain of this great and flourishing Lodge of Birmingham, to forward the resolution to Lord Leigh at the next meeting of the Provincial Grand Lodge."

BATH.—Tynte Chapter (No. 379).—A meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Tuesday, Jan. 9th, at 8 p.m. Among those present were Ex. Comps. Reeves, Z.; George Parfitt, P.Z. 41, as H.; Watts, J.; Phillips, Z. 1000, as I.P.Z.; Dutton, N. As visitors, Ex. Comps. Tompson, Z. 41; Colonel Ford, P.Z. 53; Dr. Hopkins, 41, and P.Z. 328, 586, 710; Walker, P.Z. 53; The chapter having been opened by the Principals, the companions admitted, and the minutes of the previous meetings read and confirmed, the following were elected to office for the ensuing year by ballot: Phillips, Z.; Watts, H.; Dutton, J.; Becket, P.Z., N.; Loder, E.; Davis, P.Z., Treas.; H. Gore, P. Soj. Comp Gazzard was re-elected Janitor. Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins then installed each of the three Principals, as he had previously been requested to undertake the duty, and concluded by proclaiming them in the usual form. A cordial vote of thanks to him was proposed and seconded by the Z. and I.P.Z., and carried by acclamation, which was duly acknowledged. A similar vote to the visitors was passed, which was responded to by Col. Ford. Ex. Comp Phillips expressed great pleasure at his appointment as Z. in the chapter in which he had been exalted, and, though now residing at a great distance, promised a regular attendance to perform his duties. Other private business was transacted, and the proceedings were brought to a close at a quarter to ten.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Chapter (No. 1356).—A convocation of this young and prosperous chapter was held in the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, on Wednesday, the 27th Dec., at 6 o'clock; the special business for transaction being the installation of Principals for the ensuing year. The chapter was opened by Comps. B. B. Marson, Z.; J. Bell, H.; and R. Brown, J., when the outgoing Z. completed a most successful year by exalting two brethren to this Supreme Degree. Comp. J. W. Baker, Past Z. of Chapter 241, performed the ceremony of installing the chiefs in his usually impressive and efficient manner, viz., Comps. Joseph Bell, as Z.; Richard Brown, as H.; and J. A. Edginton, as J. The M.E.Z. then invested the following:—Comps. B. B. Marson, P.Z.; J. W. Baker, D.C.; A. Woolrich, Treas. (for the second time); C. Arden, S.E.; A. D. Hesketh, S.N.; W. J. Chapman, P.S.; J. Keet and Lindo Courtenay, Asst. Sojs.; J. L. Houghton and E. George, Stewards; and P. Larsen, Janitor. Twelve worthy companions having been proposed for exaltation, and nothing further appearing for the good of the Order, the chapter was duly closed. The companions, numbering about thirty, then adjourned to the old lodge-room, where a most excellent banquet was served. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been duly honoured, and "The Health of the Newly-installed Chiefs" received with hearty greeting, the M.E.Z., Comp. Bell, in proposing "The Health of Comp. B. B. Marson, P.Z.," in the name of the chapter, presented him with a very handsome P.Z. jewel as a token of esteem and kindly feeling entertained towards him by its members. Comp. Marson, in responding, thanked the companions for their valuable recognition of his services as one of the founders and first Z. of No. 1356. Songs and recitations followed, bringing a most enjoyable evening to an agreeable end, the companions separating at an early hour.

MOUNT LEBANON CHAPTER (No. 73).—This chapter was held at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Thursday, January 11th, Comp. H. A. Dubois, Z., presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read, unanimously confirmed, and signed by the M.E.Z. The bye-laws were read. The elections resulted unanimously in favour of Comps. J. W. Baldwin, being Z.; John Mason, H.; James Cattle Mason, J.; T. J. Sabine, P.G.S. Middlesex, P.Z., Treas. (re-elected); F. Walters, P.P.G. 1st A.S. Middlesex, P.Z., S.E. (re-elected for 13th time); M. D. Loewenstark, S.H.; B. Isaacs, P. S.; W. Y. Laing, Janitor. The bye-laws were altered. The exaltation fee was increased from 3 to 4 guineas, and the subscription from 32s to 42s. The meetings were decreased to three. Notice of motion was given to present the usual five-guinea P.Z.'s jewel to Comp. H. A. Dubois. A splendid banquet followed. The only visitor was Comp. R. P. Tebb, 176.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The annual meeting of this lodge for the nomination and election of office-bearers for the ensuing year was held on Thursday, 11th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. Bro. John Baird, Prov. Grand Substitute Master, presided, supported by the following office-bearers of the Prov. Grand Lodge:—Bros. James Gillies, Treas.; John Morgan, Interim Sec.; George Thallon, S.D.; J. Miller, J.D.; Robert Robb, Marshal and President of Stewards; Alexander Bain, Bible Bearer; Jas. Balfour, Dir. of Cers.; David Reid, I.G.; and George Sinclair, Treasurer and Convener of the Benevolent Fund; John Kinnaird, W.M. 73, was acting S.W., and James Booth, W.M. 87, acting J.W. The lodge having been opened in due form, the Chairman said he had that day received a note, dated the previous day from Queenshill, from the R.W. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Montgomerie Neilson, asking him (Bro. Baird) to be kind enough to mention at that meeting that he (the Prov. Grand Master) hoped to be able to be with the brethren at their next quarterly communication (Thursday, 25th inst.), and that very likely he might have occasion to call a special meeting before that date. This, the Chairman said, would argue that Bro. Neilson had considerably recovered from his protracted indisposition, which they would all be glad to hear. He then reminded them that this was a special meeting called for a special purpose, and therefore that no business could be brought forward that evening other than the nomination of their office-bearers. He added that he had just had put into his hands a commission from the Prov. Grand Master, appointing to the office of P.G. Secretary Bro. W. H. Bickerton, of Lodge St. Augustine, No. 942 (E.C.), and affiliated member of Lodges No. 34, and No. 360 (S.C.); and, at the request of the acting S.W. he read the same to the meeting. The nomination was then proceeded with, two of the offices being contested, namely, those of P.G. Jeweller and P.G. Inner Guard. For the former, Bro. Robert Jack, W.M. St. John's, Shettleston, 128, was proposed by Bro. W. Phillips, W.M. Clydesdale, 556, and seconded by another brother; while the re-appointment of Bro. A. Allison, who has held the office for a couple of years, was moved by Bro. John Miller, P.G.J.D., and seconded by Bro. J. Gillies, P.G. Treas. On a show of hands being taken, the majority was held up for Bro. Jack. For the office of Inner Guard there were three candidates—namely, Bros. Geo. McDonald, I.P.M. No. 73; James Booth, W.M. No. 87; and William Harper, I.P.M. Clyde, No. 408. The appointment fell to Bro. Booth by the small majority of two over Bro. McDonald. Bro. Rev. Dr. Penney was unanimously re-appointed Asst. Chaplain—Bro. Rev. Dr. Burns, of the Cathedral, being P.G. Chaplain by commission of the Prov. Grand Master. The other offices also in his commission, and which he has yet to fill up, are his Depute and Substitute Masters, and two Wardens. Apart from these, the revised list of P.G. office-bearers is now as follows:—J. Gillies, Treas.; W. H. Bickerton, Sec.; John Morgan, S.D.; John Miller, J.D.; James Ritchie, Architect; Robert Robb, Marshal and President of Stewards; Robert Jack, Jeweller; Alexander Bain, B.B.; James Balfour, Dir. of Cer.; Thomas Halkett, Dir. of Music; David Reid, Swd.Br.; James Booth, Inner Guard; John Burton Hardie, Tyler. Bro. George Sinclair was unanimously re-appointed Treasurer and convener of the P.G. Benevolent Fund. The election having been concluded, the Chairman said he had to thank the brethren for the orderly manner in which the business of the evening had been conducted, and the lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Star (No. 219).—The first harmony meeting for the new Masonic year of this lodge was held within their own hall, at No. 12, Trongate, on Monday, 8th inst., and was a completely successful one, there being a numerous attendance of members and visiting brethren. In the latter category were no fewer than five W. Masters of other lodges. Bro. Jasper Martin, W.M. of the lodge, presided, with Bros. James Horn and David Mearns, S.W. and J.W. respectively. Supporting the Master on the dais were Bros. John S. Allan, W.M. 28; John Kinnaird, W.M. 73; James Booth, W.M. 87; William Hart, W.M. 178; David Reid, W.M. 465; John Fraser, P.M. 87; Alexander Bain, P.M. 103, and P.G. Bible Bearer; John Morgan, P.M. 219; John Fyfe, D.M. 465; Garth, S.M. 219; James Annand, S.W. 465; and James Houston, 354. The lodge having been opened in due form, and put under the charge of the J.W., the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The Three Grand Lodges," and "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," were successively given from the chair, and received with highest honours. The last-mentioned was coupled with the name of Bro. A. Bain, P.G.B.B., and by him duly acknowledged. The toast of "Sister Lodges" was given by Bro. John Morgan, I.P.M., who, in so doing, referred with much pleasure to the large turn-out of W. Masters and Past Masters of sister lodges on the dais who had favoured them with their company on the occasion of their first harmony meeting of the new year, on the success of which he thought they might all congratulate themselves. The toast was replied to by Bro. William Hart, W.M. 178, who remarked that he might say for himself—and he thought others would say with him—that there was an undoubted pleasure in visiting Lodge Star, where they found at all times a thorough spirit of friendship and good cheer. The toast of "Health and Prosperity to Lodge Star, No. 219," was proposed by Bro. Bain. There was not, he said, within the Province of Glasgow a more harmonious working lodge than Lodge Star, either in working the degrees or when upon harmony. And perhaps that agreeable state of matters was in no small degree owing to P.M. Bro. Morgan, who, although he had left the chair, seemed to have left the odour of his mairmanship behind him. In replying to the toast Mr. W.M., Bro. Martin, generously endorsed this remark of Bro. Bain. The latter, he said, had spoken the truth as regarded Bro. Morgan, and he, Bro. Martin, declared it would be a long time before they had such another chairman. For himself he thanked them most cordially for the way in which they had coupled his name with the toast of "prosperity" to the lodge. Chief amongst the contributors to the musical element of the evening was Bro. James Houston (No. 354), the well-known Scottish vocal comedian; and, on the motion of Cthe chairman, a hearty vote of thanks was accorded him by the brethren for his services in this respect. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Houston said he might tell them plainly that whenever he entered that lodge he felt as happy and welcome as if sitting down at his own fireside, and he could say that was happy enough. He had been asked to come that evening by Bro. Morgan, and when Bro. Morgan asked you to come you could not resist it. He had felt great pleasure in being present, and in seeing round him some old faces, and he hoped to be able to be oftener with them than he had been. Subsequently the brethren were recalled to labour for a short time, when honorary affiliation to the lodge was conferred upon Bro. Houston, on the motion of Bro. Morgan, by whom also the obligation was administered. Bro. Houston having briefly returned thanks for the honour bestowed upon him, the lodge was closed after a memorably agreeable sederunt.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The quarterly meeting of the subscribers to this Institution was held at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. J. M. Clabon presided, and among the other brethren present were Bros. Colonel Creaton, S. Rawson, A. H. Tattershall, H. A. Dubois, B. Isaacs, H. Massey, (Freemason), T. Bartlett, A. L. Dusek, Raynham W. Stewart, Geo. Free, W. Roebuck, H. W. Hunt, Edward A. Sacré, Dr. Ramsay, G. M. E. Snow, H. Hacker, H. W. Binckes, Dr. Edward Jones, R. B. Webster, Donald M. Dewar, A. Durrant, S. W. Baldwin, Charles Swan, A. D. Loewenstark, W. Mann, Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Walter Hopekirk, Thomas Cubitt, Thos. S. Hill, Edwd. Moody, H. Moore, T. J. Sabine, Joseph D. Spencer, H. Browne, Jas. Terry, J. W. Dennison, Thos. Meggy, James Stevens, Isaac Turner, S. A. Wills, Matthew Miles, Geo. Bolton, G. Jewell, Thos. Knott, R. H. Williams, W. R. Lash, Octavius N. Pearce, R. Pawson Hooton, C. Burmeister, M. D. Loewenstark, W. F. Collard Moutrie, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

While Bro. Binckes was reading the minutes of the different Courts and committees, Bro. Symonds enquired whether the preparatory school had yet received the sanction at any special or general court of the Institution.

Bro. Binckes replied that it had been named at the House Committee and General Committee, and had been approved.

Bro. Symonds. But not at the General Court.

Bro. Binckes. No, we cannot do that yet; the money is not in hand.

After the minutes had been read and approved, twelve vacancies were declared for next election, and 59 candidates were stated to be on the list.

Bro. Meggy then brought on his motion for admitting H. P. Wisby to the school, who was the first excluded candidate at the last election.

Bro. Binckes read the letter of Bro. Meggy to the committee, which has already appeared in our columns, stating the circumstances under which he made the motion.

The Chairman stated that the whole of the facts were now before the Court, and Bro. Meggy had called their attention to them and the report of the scrutineers, which showed that if all the votes polled for the candidate had been recorded, there would still have been 17 against him. Without going into that matter he, as Chairman, must say that considering the question of form (and he had considered the case very carefully, for his attention had been previously called to it) while law 58 of the institution remained part of their laws, it was quite impossible that this Court could resolve to put a candidate into the school. That rule stated that the elections should be in April and October, and also that it should be by ballot. If Bro. Meggy's motion was carried it would be a contravention of the law. He based his decision on a case which came before Grand Lodge some time ago, when on a grant being proposed, an objection was taken by the President that the funds were to be administered in a certain manner by the committee of the Lodge of Benevolence. The Grand Master ruled that the motion could not be put, because it was exactly contrary to the rules of the Institution.

Bro. Meggy said he had been informed that the lowest successful candidate would not go into the school, and on that ground he asked if his candidate should take that place.

The Chairman, however, ruled that Bro. Meggy's motion could not be put, and the subject dropped.

Bro. A. H. Tattershall, in the absence of Bro. J. J.

Hooper Wilkins, moved that a pension of £120 a year be granted to Bro. Edward Harris, who, after twenty years' service, had resigned his position of Collector to the Institution. He thought that from Bro. Harris's long service he was entitled to this pension.

Bro. H. B. Webster seconded the motion.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart opposed it, and moved, as an amendment, that the pension be £100 a year. He argued that whilst the brethren had regard for the Collector, they must have regard to the brethren who subscribed largely to the Institution. Bro. Harris had not been so long a Collector of this Institution as Bro. Muggeridge had been of the Girls' School; and he also stated that Bro. Harris was in receipt of a pension from the Corn Meters' Society, which increased. Bro. Harris's time had not been exclusively devoted to this Institution, and therefore he did not think he was entitled to so large a pension as was proposed.

Bro. George Free, from his knowledge of the facts, was sure that there was no probability of Bro. Harris obtaining so much as £110 a year from the Corn Meters' Society. It might rise to £80 a year; but at present it was only £73. He would like to ask Bro. Binckes what Bro. Harris had received in the shape of commission.

Bro. Binckes replied from £140 to £160 a year.

Bro. Jesse Turner thought the brethren should be generous. With respect to Bro. Muggeridge, no doubt he was a very popular brother, and had obtained more money than Bro. Harris. The brethren might take that matter into consideration; but he could not but think that the Institution would be acting nobly and generously by paying £100 a year to Bro. Harris. Bro. Binckes had said that Bro. Harris had been receiving £140 to £160 a year, and the brethren should look on the matter as commercial men. If a clerk in the employ of commercial men had been receiving £140 or £160 a year as commission, they would think him liberally pensioned on £100 a year. Let the brethren look at it in this light. The Institution was not so flourishing or so rich that it could afford to pay money broadcast. They were about to seek money for a preparatory school, and they hoped for assistance from the Craft. He thought the case would be fairly met by a grant of £100 a year. A brother had mentioned that Bro. Harris was entitled to a pension in another quarter, but that had really nothing to do with the question. Bro. Harris's labours had been great; he had worked hard; but he had not given the whole of his time to this Institution. Nevertheless, it was not easy work to collect the money, as he himself could testify, having been a Steward on many occasions.

Bro. George M. E. Snow contended that the Collectors had been overpaid. The brethren must remember that before very long Bro. Binckes would be resigning. (Loud Laughter.) His services had been great, and he would be wanting a pension. The matron, Miss Hall, would retire and want a pension (laughter), and so it would be with other officers; and they would all want a pension worth two thirds of their full pay. (Laughter.)

Bro. Walter Hopekirk said that a Collector after 20 years' service should have some respect shown to him. Bro. Binckes had said that Bro. Harris's services had given satisfaction. Of course they had, or the brethren would have exercised their power and removed him. It was but a few years that Bro. Harris could enjoy his pension, and he thought they should recognise his services and reward a faithful servant.

Bro. H. Hacker supported Bro. Stewart's amendment.

Bro. T. J. Sabine spoke in favour of the original proposition. When Bro. Harris was in better health and stronger than he was now his services were very great, and he was then receiving about £200 a year in commission. They had heard a great deal that day to the effect that Bro. Harris did not devote the whole of his time to this Institution. At any rate, he did all that he was required to do in a satisfactory way, and that for a period of twenty years. He had discharged his duties to the satisfaction of the brethren, and he was entitled to have those services recognised. Bro. Harris would not have resigned his position but for his failing health, and considering the number of stairs he had had to ascend and descend from the basement to the third floor in collecting subscriptions—the single guineas, not the £80 or £100 at a time—his failing health was not to be wondered at. He did not think it would be otherwise than derogatory to a great Institution like this if the brethren did not grant Bro. Harris an ample pension. He (Bro. Sabine) thought Bro. Stewart should withdraw his amendment. Whatever demands might be made on the Boys' School should be fully met.

Bro. A. Durrant thought they ought to consider the age of Bro. Harris, and the number of years he had been Collector, which he understood was not twenty, but fifteen years.

Bro. Binckes said he had been Secretary for sixteen years, and he knew Bro. Harris had been Collector some three or four years before that time. Being asked for a return of Bro. Harris's commission for six years back, Bro. Binckes gave the following figures:—1876, £156 6s. 9d.; 1875, £176 6s. 9d.; 1874, £129 8s. 1d.; 1873, £113 18s. 5d.; 1872, £98 18s. 9d.; and 1871, £147 17s. 10d.

The Chairman then put the amendment, which was lost, and the original motion being put, was carried without a dissentient.

Bro. Clabon, having another engagement, left the chair, and a hearty vote of thanks to him was adopted unanimously.

Bro. John Symonds was called to the chair, and

Bro. George M. E. Snow brought on his motion for raising the buildings round the playground one storey, for the purpose of giving sleeping accommodation to 50 extra boys; and also that such 50 extra boys be elected in October, and argued that on the 9-inch wall already surrounding the play-ground the Metropolitan Buildings Act would allow an additional 10 feet of building to be erected, as it would only raise the wall to 19 feet, while the Act would allow 30 feet in height to be erected. He knew that he was going to be told that the accommodation was not sufficient for the additional number of boys, but he knew that it was quite sufficient. If it was not quite sufficient to let all the boys dine at once, let the senior boys dine with the junior masters at 5 o'clock (Great laughter), or at some other time that might be selected.

Bro. Binckes remarked that the assistant masters did not dine at 5 o'clock, but between 12 and 1 o'clock.

Bro. Snow went on to observe that there were several rooms at the school which might be utilised, such as the Secretary's room and the Board room.

Bro. A. Durrant seconded the motion. They had been receiving for some years £12,000 to £15,000 a year, and had been going on in the old jog-trot way and doing nothing with it. (Expressions of dissent.) As to the school room and kitchen accommodation, he thought this question deserved much consideration, the brethren should show a disposition to make an increase in the number of boys, as there was increasing support given by the Craft, some additional boys should be taken at the October Election.

The Chairman said that with reference to the subject of the preparatory school, that had not been agreed to by any of the Courts, whether quarterly or special; under the present circumstances all subscriptions for that object were completely unauthorised.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart said that though he should like to see an increase in the number of boys, he did not consider that the Court was in a position to accept the proposition of Bro. Snow. No doubt the subject required mature consideration; but these Courts being called for the middle of the day, when brethren wished to be in their businesses, they could not give the time to it that they could desire; he would like the Courts to be called for 4 or 5 o'clock, when they could devote more time to the business of the Institution. That, however, was not the question, but as the question deserved consideration, he would move that it be proposed at that day twelvemonths.

Bro. Jesse Turner seconded the amendment. The Building Act would settle the question in a minute. The District Surveyor would never allow the proposed building to be raised on the 9-inch wall.

Bro. Durrant: I do not think he would. He is a very able individual.

Bro. Jesse Turner insisted that the Building Act was sufficient to stop the proposed works. He spoke as an architect and as a practical builder, and though he should be glad to see the school enlarged in a practicable, reasonable, and proper way, the present idea was Utopian, and should be put on one side.

The Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, wished to say a few words on the subject, which had attracted attention in many parts of England. Bro. Durrant had said the subject should be carefully considered. He (Bro. Woodford) also thought the Committee should take into careful consideration the course they were going to pursue. There was a very grave point, indeed, to be considered, whether it was advisable to commence the preparatory school, supposing such to be in contemplation (which scheme they had heard was not sanctioned at present) before they had filled up the original school to the total number which was intended at the outset. Bro. Binckes would be able to inform them that this number was 300.

Bro. Binckes: No, 200.

Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford: Well, 200. But in all probability the same provision which was made for 200 would be sufficient for 300, with some little addition of dormitory accommodation. It was the feeling of many brethren (and he expressed the sentiments of a very large number of brethren, he felt sure) when he said that if they had 189 boys in the school, and commenced a building for 100 junior boys, they would put it out of the power of the brethren to increase the original building for the reception of the 200 or 300 boys for whom it was first intended. Let them admit first the 200 or 300 boys, and then afterwards if they found it necessary they could build a preparatory school for 100 boys. That would be the time to commence it; and though he did not speak now in any spirit of opposition to the scheme, he thought that before the Committee put out any official programme for a preparatory school they should bear in mind that they would not be able to increase the number in the original school, and they could not commence a preparatory school. He could not support Bro. Snow's proposition, which Bro. Jesse Turner had truly said was more or less Utopian in its conception. All the brethren wished to see a permanent increase in the number of boys in the school, economically and properly provided for. But before starting a preparatory school he ventured to express the hope that the Committee of this Institution, in whom the brethren had the greatest confidence, would give every consideration to the propriety of filling up the original school before commencing a new one.

Bro. Binckes said he should like to say something with respect to an observation made by Bro. Durrant that they had done nothing with the large amounts they had received. It was only very recently the Institution had released itself from debt. They had formerly borrowed money, and they had had to pay that off. Then there were perpetual presentations from Lancashire and Yorkshire, and more recently one from Cheshire. Those moneys had been invested, and as soon as the Institution had released itself from debt it invested £2000. The last year had been the most successful they had ever had, the receipts having been £15,300 odd. They had relieved the infirmity of the School by the purchase of Kent House for £3000, and they had met the taunts of the brethren of what had become of the purchase money for the presentations. They found they could not invest it without bringing themselves under the powers of the Charity Commissioners. They had covered the whole of those purchase presentations, and also Bro. Winn's £525 for the prize fund and Bro. Edward Cox's gift; and in addition they had carried forward £2554 to the current year. They did not know what might take place this year. If war broke out, and the income tax was increased, they could not be sure that they would be so fortunate as to obtain large subscriptions. As to the extension of the School he could only assure them that they had been well advised by Bro. Dennison, the architect, that they could not extend it in the way proposed by Bro. Snow, even a square yard, without detriment to light and ventilation. The playrooms were originally only constructed as a shed. Then came a large and lofty gymnasium, which was only lighted by lanterns in the roof; and then there were the urinals. As a matter of health it was utterly impossible to add to the present buildings without going to an enormous expense. They were now in a healthy neighbourhood, and they maintained 187 boys in the School. He hoped no brother would wish to have the buildings raised as proposed by the motion, but the matter might be referred back to the House Committee.

Bro. Walter Hopekirk said he felt sure that if the matter was left in the hands of the committee they would bring forward a scheme that would give satisfaction to the Freemasons throughout England. He was sorry to say that at the elections now, there were many candidates left out in the cold.

Bro. Raynham Stewart would venture to put his amendment in this form—that the whole question of extension or addition be referred to the House Committee.

Bro. Walter Hopekirk seconded the motion in this form.

The Chairman said he was afraid they were getting very irregular with regard to the expenditure upon the building or the increase in the school. He would ask the question of Bro. Binckes whether a circular had gone out to all lodges and chapters asking for the collection of subscriptions on behalf of the preparatory school.

Bro. Binckes: No; and they will not go out after this discussion.

The Chairman remarked that it would place this Institution in an awkward position if funds were collected for that purpose, and the Court should afterwards decide that there should be no such scheme. It was too important a subject to be settled in that way—by a side wind. If the scheme was to be carried out (he expressed no opinion at present) the Court might be of opinion that it should only be after full discussion at the Quarterly or Special Court. Did he understand that Bro. Snow accepted the amendment?

Bro. Snow signified his assent.

The Chairman: Then the question is that the whole question of increased accommodation at the school be referred to the House Committee to report through the General Committee to a Quarterly Court.

The amendment was carried unanimously, and a vote of thanks to the Chairman closed the proceedings.

Obituary.

BRO. W. H. FRANCIS.

We have the melancholy duty of announcing the death of our esteemed Bro. W. H. Francis, of Liskeard, on the 27th ult., who was for some years Treasurer of the Warrior Lodge, 1276, Seacombe, Cheshire. The interment took place at Wallasey Church, at 3 p.m., on the 30th ult. There was a very numerous attendance, he being much beloved, not only by his Masonic brethren, but by a large circle of friends, having been for thirty-two years District Secretary of the I.O.O.F.M.U.. He bore an upright and desirable reputation, as a friend and brother in the moment of sorrow and affliction, his sympathies will be long remembered by many a grateful friend.

THE POPE AND THE EMPRESS EUGENIE.—We learn on good authority from Rome that the young Prince Louis Napoleon has been initiated by Prince Humbert into the mysteries of Italian Freemasonry. The Pope is very dissatisfied with the conduct of the ex-Empress Eugenie and her son. Pius IX. had advised the young Prince to quit Italy as soon as possible. This judicious advice, however, has not been followed; on the contrary, the Empress has been very assiduous in her visits to the Quirinal, and is in constant intercourse with those of the noble families in Rome who are partisans of King Victor Emmanuel. For these reasons the Pope refused to dispense with his own hands the Holy Communion both to the Empress and the Prince. As the Empress Eugenie's request was made to him the Pope said, "Anche, l'altro prese la Santa Comunione a Sant'Anna dorata." By the "other" the Pope meant Napoleon III. The Pope held up as an example to the Empress and the Prince the conduct of Don Carlos, who, on his recent visit to Rome, sought the Apostolic blessing, and on advice at once took his departure from Italy.—Westminster Gazette.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—At the beginning of the year, countless causes are at work to lower the tone of the nervous system, which will be followed by ill health unless proper means be employed to avert that evil. Holloway's far famed preparations apply a faultless remedy for both external and internal complaints connected with the changes of seasons. All affections of the skin, roughness, blotches, pimples, bronchial and deeper seated inflammations, erysipelas, rheumatic pains and gouty pangs, alike succumb to the exalted virtues of Holloway's Ointment and Pills. The maladies most prevalent in winter, to wit: chest complaints and stomacal ailments, daily bear witness to the potential influence of this treatment, which saves suffering and spares disaster.—ADVT.

IS FREEMASONRY MATERIALISM?

From the Antipodes comes to us a far-off cry of Ultramontane folly and intolerance. The Roman Catholic Archbishop Vaughan has edified the faithful in New South Wales with a vehement lecture, and has made a notable discovery. So much so, that we are specially informed he has "created quite a sensation in New South Wales" with an "important lecture on Masonry," which he called "Hidden Springs," and which he delivered to a startled audience "at Sydney." He has since, it appears, published this lecture of 80 pages, and from the "precis" of it, for which we are indebted to the Echo, if such account be correct, it is indeed a wonderful production, worthy the genius and literary character of a Roman Catholic Archbishop. Archbishop Vaughan's theory is this, that the "governing principles of the past, present, and future" are "Paganism, Supernaturalism, and Materialism." Historically it is quite clear that the Archbishop is utterly wrong in any such dogmatic assertion, and has jumbled up together the annals of the past, like a kaleidoscope, in "beautiful confusion." Let us try and realize the absurdity of any such contention, especially by a Roman Catholic Archbishop, that, looking at the history of the past and present, from our standpoint of to-day, the two great governing principles of the world, have been Paganism and Supernaturalism. What will Cardinal Manning say to such a proposition as this, most startling in its naked simplicity? That Paganism and Supernaturalism, or rather Supernaturalism or Paganism, have played a great part in the past ages and present history of man is true, with some careful limitations; but that the whole of the past and present is to be summed up in those two words, and in such an order of thought and action is the most preposterous contention we have ever listened to, even from a Roman Catholic Archbishop, and is really too ridiculous almost for controversy or consideration. But the truth is, that the Archbishop only uses these high-sounding expressions, this precious bit of abstract and concrete nonsense, to influence the minds of his hearers, already seriously alarmed at such hard words, and to pave the way for a "bonne bouche," as the French say, viz., his pet argument, that Freemasonry is another word for Materialism, and that Materialism is to be the "hidden spring," the controlling law of the future. And so he goes on to say that the "prime movers" in this dreadful materialistic movement are the "members of the International Society of Masonry." As the writer in the Echo well says, "We who are ignorant and innocent of the mysteries of the Craft have thought that Masonry is a cosmopolitan combination of men animated with good intentions towards each other in particular, and towards the human family in general. If what Archbishop Vaughan says be true, we have been labouring under an extraordinary delusion." Most true is this remark from a "non-Mason," inasmuch as we who are Masons utterly deny the correctness of the Archbishop's unwise words. But how does he prove such an astounding statement, do you ask? Listen carefully! The Archbishop goes on to prove his little proposition by asserting, first, that the "field of operation" of this "Masonic International Society" is as "wide as the human family itself"—this surely is a very remarkable fact; secondly, that "it adopts many instruments to promote its end;" thirdly, that "its ambition soars to the highest class and foremost intellects, and embraces all ages and conditions, from the philosopher to the artizan, from the statesman and civil ruler to the roughs in a country town" (most correct Archbishop!); fourthly, that the "pen and tongue are its two main engines," and that it "strives with sleepless energy to enlist in its service those who can work them with the most powerful effect." Marvellous fact! Our contemporary leaves us to say "whether this is a correct representation" of our Order, if indeed as Freemasons we "think it worth while to say anything on the subject." And most certainly we have no hesitation in replying, that a more meaningless and childish attack never was made on Freemasonry. Freemasonry has nothing to do with materialism, and knows nothing about it whatever. Freemasonry, as the Archbishop must perfectly well know, has no concern with the passing affairs or political questions of the world; it is simply a philanthropic sodality, based on reverence to God and love for man. As for interfering with the current course of human matters, the social or political life of nations, it is absolutely neutral as regards everything outside of Freemasonry, even everything in which, as men and citizens of the world, we might naturally take an active interest. As for "wielding the forces of other societies for malignant ends," the charge is as untrue as it is unjust, for we cannot too often repeat, that, as Freemasons, we know absolutely nothing in our lodges, either of the aims of politicians or the contests of party. Such attacks defeat themselves through their own patent absurdity and unfairness. They are, however, a very sad proof not only to what lengths educated and kindly men will go in their desire to malign and to harm their fellow creatures, for the good of a so-called infallible faith, but demonstrate only too surely what rubbish will now best tickle the Ultramontane palate, and what turgid nonsense and untruthful assertions can be palmed off upon the "faithful" as the product of scientific argument and historical truth, as the result of faithful study or profound wisdom. So important is the general subject, however, in its wider aspects, and special bearing on the age in which we live, that we shall conclude our considerations on this topic next week.

THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

At the Quarterly Court on Monday, the 15th, after the usual routine and other business, Bro. John Symonds in the chair (Bro. Clabon having had to leave for another meeting), Bro. Snow brought on his motion to increase the accommodation at the School for fifty boys, by altering the present playground, etc. It soon became quite clear, however, that our worthy Bro. Snow had not gauged fully the real bearing of his important motion, as there were grave objections "à priori" and "à posteriori," as the schoolmen say, to what Bro. Jesse Turner called Bro. Snow's "Utopian scheme." But though Bro. Snow's proposal could not be supported, Bro. Snow's theory of increase has a good deal to say for itself. And it, moreover, became equally clear, as the discussion progressed, that the necessity and desirability of increase were generally admitted; the only question being, the "how," and "where." As a "set-off," so to say, against any such proposal "in present," allusions were made to a proposed preparatory school for 100 boys, but as Bro. Symonds observed, any such scheme was unofficial, no such proposal having yet been formally made to the House Committee or General Committee. The result of the meeting was unanimously to refer the consideration of the question of increased accommodation to the House Committee to report upon to the General Committee. Thus, then, the whole question will probably now be carefully considered, and in due time submitted to the subscribers. In the meantime, it may be well to bear in mind that these questions are in themselves of grave importance, and must seriously affect in one way or other the future and finances of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. They cannot be lightly dealt with or hastily treated. If £10,000 are to be spent on the accommodation of 100 new boys, as has been said, with staff, &c., we shall have unavoidably an annual increase of at least £5000 per annum, while the great school will only contain 189 boys. The estimate of £10,000 to build a permanent school for 100 boys seems open to animadversion, and every such proposition ought to be supported by detailed information and architectural details. There is indeed, as was said at the meeting, another alternative of increasing the present accommodation at the Boys' School up to 200, or even 300, and then, and not until then, commencing a preparatory school. Of course a great deal must depend on the possibility of materially increasing the accommodation at the existing Boys' School at all. Bro. Binckes seemed to think that we had already nearly reached the limit of possible accommodation there, and if that fact is made clear to the apprehensions of the brethren, no one will wish to overcrowd the boys. On every ground, sanitary, as well as disciplinary, Freemasons would be the last persons in the world to wish to mar the success of a great Institution by a petty instance of ill-placed economy, but at present the impossibility of increased accommodation at the Boys' School is assumed rather than proved. If nothing can be done at the existing school, the Craft will, we think, readily concur in the proposal to begin a preparatory school. We trust, however, that the House Committee will turn their attention carefully to the subject, and let us have a clear and an official statement as soon as possible. The brethren and the subscribers only ask for legitimate information, and sure are we of this, that if the necessity be proved of the extension somehow and somewhere, of the Boys' School, the Executive will not appeal to a liberal-minded fraternity in vain. The Boys' School is one of the most useful and valuable Institutions of our Order, and deserves alike our sympathetic countenance and our steady support.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

At the next election for this excellent Institution, eight males will be elected out of thirty-five candidates, and only two widows can be received out of thirty-five applicants. Let our brethren note this. We feel sure that we shall but express the wishes of all our brethren, when we add that we earnestly hope that the Committee and Bro. Terry will find some means of reducing this dead-weight of unsuccessful applications, especially among the widows. Thirty-three widows who cannot be elected for another twelve months, when by that time a large additional number of applicants will have come forward, is a sorry sight, an unwelcome reflection for the Masonic philanthropist. Many of these poor sisters of ours are old and infirm, and a proportion of them probably will not be able to apply again, and to many of them practically, this is, humanly speaking, their last chance. We feel persuaded that it will add greatly to the success of Bro. Terry's praiseworthy efforts, and to the prestige even of the Anniversary Festival, to be presided over by our Royal Brother, Prince Leopold, if the Craft could be assured by authority, that a special effort was going to be made, by those in authority, to do something above the ordinary routine, to reduce considerably the list of unsuccessful candidates. The last year's return of the Institution amounted to the noble sum of £12,550 15s. 7d., and 1877 may witness a still larger return. If Bro. Terry then could at once announce, that the Committee, relying on the present, as well as grateful for the past support of the Craft, and in commemoration of H.R.H. Prince Leopold's honoured Presence, added ten to the men and fifteen to the women to be elected, there can, we apprehend, be no room for doubt, but that our Brotherhood would at once respond to such an appeal and such a fact, with increased efforts, and enthusiastic offerings.

A CORRECTION.

Our esteemed Bro. R. W. Little sends us a correction, as he terms it, which we publish elsewhere to-day, of the statement we reprinted the week before last, and commented on last week, though we do not exactly understand the error to which the zealous and able Secretary of the Girls' School calls attention. Still we fancy that we understand what, to use a common expression, Bro. Little is "driving at." He wishes to point out to the Craft, that though there has been an increase in 1876, it is not so large as might popularly be inferred from the little synoptical view of the returns for the three charities to which we have alluded, inasmuch as the accounts of the Girls' School vary from year to year, and that even though there has been a large increase in the Girls' School returns for 1876, to be of any real good to the school such increase must be continued, nay, even added to, in 1877. If our good brother means anything else, perhaps he will favour us with another letter on the subject. We have already pointed out, that so far from such returns tending to slacken our zeal, they should serve to augment it in the cause of our metropolitan charities, inasmuch as each successive cycle of twelve months will, in the present state of our Order bring upon us fresh applicants for our fraternal aid. It is idle, then, for brethren to say that we are either giving too much, or that we must at any rate remain in "statu quo." The law of progression affects our Masonic Charities as well as all other human interests, and therefore we feel bound to impress upon our readers that, so far from our charities doing with less, they will require more, if they are to rise to the level of our charitable wants, if they are fitly to respond to the claims of those who have a "fair claim upon our true-hearted Masonic benevolence." Let us dismiss from our minds, then, any petty questions, either of useless doubt or hurtful debate, and let us set ourselves with a "will," and we shall find a "way" to give in 1877 a still more striking proof of our real Masonic unselfishness, in that, by our donations and subscriptions to our charities we shall prove to the world that we are perfectly in earnest, and that Charity, true Charity, is not merely with us a name or a word, but a sustaining axiom, a vital principle, a manifest and practical reality.

GRAND LODGE OF ROME.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The following letter, addressed to me by the Grand Master (Signor Giuseppe Mazzoni) and the Deputy Grand Master (Signor Giorgio Tamajo) of the Grand Orient of Rome, in acknowledgment of the paper I published in the last number of the Masonic Magazine, will be of interest to its readers.

I should have mentioned in that paper that the three English brethren who accompanied me on my visit to the Freemasons of Rome were Bro. James Peddie Steele, M.D., an English physician of high culture and wide research, who is settled in Rome; Bro. Rudolph Gustavus Glover, Past Master of the Universal Lodge and Past Provincial Grand Deacon of Middlesex; and Bro. Cobham, of the Accountant and Comptroller General's Department, Somerset House, who is Past Master of a London lodge. These three brethren will, I am sure, endorse, if necessary, my statements respecting the condition of Freemasonry in Rome.

The following is a translation of the original letter received from Signors Mazzoni and Tamajo, which has been forwarded me from Rome by our Bro. Dr. Steele, at the request of the before-named distinguished brethren.

Yours fraternally,

J. C. PARKINSON.

"Rome, 6th January, 1877.
"Dear and Illustrious Brother,—We have received through Bro. Steele the number of the Freemason, in which we read with peculiar gratification the admirable article on our Masonry in Rome. It has given the greatest pleasure, not only to us, but to all the brethren, who still remember your noble words, and your dear presence. The satisfaction felt by an English Mason with the manner in which our Grand Orient of Italy is conducted, and with the respect which it displays towards the ancient and venerable traditions of the Order, will serve as a powerful stimulus to our persevering evermore in the path of goodness and virtue. We most ardently wish that our brethren of the United Kingdom may pay us many visits, in order that reciprocal affection may be evermore cemented, and that their long experience may help to confirm us in the good and accepted observances of the Craft, which cannot properly attain its end, without the unanimous concurrence of all the brethren, to whatever nation they belong.

"It was with the liveliest regret that we learned that this admirable accord of feeling and observance was threatened by a divergence, which we hope may yet be reconciled, confident as we are that the profound sentiment of charity and of Masonic brotherhood will prove stronger than any divergence, arising in a speculative field, which, if it can flatter and satisfy the freethinker, is always barren of good points, and too often the parent of fatal discord.

We still cherish the hope that the Grand Orient of France and Belgium have no wish to act so as to alienate from the Craft the believers in the Supreme Being and in the life beyond the grave. This cannot surely be their intention. In any case, Italian Masonry, while openly affirming its own principles of ample toleration and of philosophical and religious freedom, notably in the assemblies of 1869 and 1872, will remain ever faithful to the ancient and glorious formula, which places the humanitarian laws of liberty, equality, and fraternity under the aegis of the Supreme Architect of the Universe. And to this it will be ever true, because it believes that in this formula every sound philosophical and religious opinion can, and does, find the synthesis of its own fundamental conception, and that in it stands the largest guarantee of that loving and fraternal toleration which, in the calamitous times of superstition and persecution, made of Masonry the sacred ark of religious, civil, and political freedom.

"The Grand Orient of Italy, anxious for the integrity of the universal Masonic brotherhood, will co-operate with all the means which the most fraternal love can suggest to it to make cease, wherever it may arise, all ground of dissent or difficulty, and its voice will, we hope, gain a hearing, because in it will speak only the unlimited affection for the brethren of nations so dear to it, and the impartial judgment which the profound conviction of the truth will dictate to it.

"Accept, dear and illustrious brother, our most affectionate and most fraternal greetings,

"GIUSEPPE MAZZONI, D.P.G.M. 33.

"GIORGIO TAMAJO, G.C. 33.

"To the Illustrious Bro. J. C. PARKINSON, London."

THE DUTIES OF STEWARDS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Would you kindly inform me what the duties of a Steward of a lodge are? The reason I ask is—

I am one of the Stewards of a lodge which has been consecrated during the last twelve months, and at the consecration banquet, and upon another occasion, when some of the Grand Officers were present, I and my brother Steward waited at table, and ourselves dined afterwards.

Upon ordinary occasions, however, we have a tea, then labour, and after that an hour's sociality. Neither I nor my brother Steward have been in the habit of waiting at the tea (except to see that visiting brethren are supplied, &c.), because there are waiters belonging to the establishment in the room, but we have invariably after lodge arranged the festive board, and generally looked after the creature comforts of our brethren. Our not waiting at the tea-table as waiters, however, has, I am sorry to say, been the cause of some very ill-natured public remarks by one of the brethren, as to "neglect of duty," &c. Now, if it be part of our duty we are ready to perform it, but if, as we venture to think, it is not, then, I think the amende honorable will be due to us from our "crusty" brother, and so to you fraternally we leave the question.

We are, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

THE STEWARDS.

BRO. HIGGINS'S "ANACALYPsis."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I should like to draw the attention of Masonic students and Secretaries of Masonic libraries to the fact that Bro. Higgins's grand work, the "Anacalypsis," is being reprinted by J. Burns, in sixteen parts of half-a-crown each. Each part contains 112 pages (4 parts being already issued) of closely printed matter, and is certainly a credit to both printer and publisher. I understand that the whole of the valuable drawings and plates are to be reproduced in fac simile, and therefore when the volumes are completed subscribers will be in possession of a more handsome edition of the "Anacalypsis" than that originally issued, and certainly in a much handier form.

As a subscriber from the commencement, I have taken great interest in its publication, and I believe that the publisher will avail himself of the columns of the Freemason to make known the particulars as to its issue, and the various inducements he offers to immediate subscribers. I feel certain of one fact, that it will be the Masonic body that takes the present edition, but I fear that unless our brethren in Great Britain rapidly send in their subscriptions the impression will go abroad, as with many other Masonic rarities and curios. I have already alluded at length to this learned work by Bro. Higgins, and have not always agreed with the able author in his estimate of some of our Masonic legends and traditions, but I cannot fail to appreciate the great extent of his researches into the origin of languages, nations and religions, and which certainly have made for him a name far in advance of all competitors in his own peculiar department. Several of his contributions to the history of Freemasonry at York are most interesting, and until the visits of Bros. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, M.A., and J. G. Findel to that celebrated Masonic city, Bro. Higgins's work was the only available one on the subject. Unfortunately, the author had no confidence in the sale of his work; or, at all events, under-estimated the number of his readers, for only some two hundred copies were printed, the consequence of which has been that whenever a copy occurs for sale quite fabulous prices are given, and I have seen it offered at from twelve to fifteen guineas. Judging from its value, as compared with many other works of its kind, it would not be dear at that, but the "price current" removes it far from the reach of many, hence the publication herein alluded to of the "Anacalypsis" in a cheap (yet really handsome) form is a boon to all Masonic students the "wide world" over, and I hope that the publisher will have no reason to regret his so doing.

WM. JAMES HUGHAN.

THE POLISH NATIONAL LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your report of the meeting of the Polish National Lodge on the 14th ult., I am made to say something very extraordinary as to a connection with the Grand Secretary's office, which statement I hasten to correct.

being totally at a loss to understand how so absurd an error could have been made.

In proposing "The D.G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers," the W.M. was pleased to couple my name with the toast, and said that he should like to hear from me how Grand Lodge honours were obtained, a question which no doubt presents itself to many of an inquiring turn of mind. In replying to this part of his speech, my words were, as I now remember them, something after the style of the celebrated Mrs. Glasse, "First catch your hare."—&c.

"You must first of all become a Mason, then attend your lodge with the greatest regularity; prepare yourself by hard work for any office, that in the course of time you may be appointed to; always act as a gentleman and a Mason in or out of your lodge. Be ready and willing if called upon to take the duties of a superior officer, if absent or incompetent, and if you are fortunate enough to become Master of your lodge, set a good example to your officers by punctual attendance, and attention to your own duties; then, so far as your means may allow you without injury to yourself, endeavour to find a trifle to give in support of the Masonic Institutions, for every little helps. Then, having gone so far, wait patiently for the arrival of any honours that may be offered, and if by any extraordinary and fortunate circumstance, after twenty or twenty-five years, your name should find its way into the Grand Secretary's Office, as mine did, you will be very lucky, the chances being some thousands to one against it; but never expect to be so fortunate, or so favoured, then you are the less likely to be disappointed."

How the words in italics could be so misconstrued is a marvel and a mystery; they embody in your report an impertinence that, I think, I am not likely to be guilty of, my only connection with the Grand Secretary's Office arising from my visits as Treasurer of different lodges and chapters, to pay dues and rent.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN BOYD.

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The figures quoted in the Freemason, from the daily papers, with reference to the receipts of the Masonic Charitable Institutions in 1875 and 1876, are calculated to mislead the Craft. In 1875 the total announced, so far as the Girls' School is concerned, was simply the amount collected in donations and subscriptions from lodges and brethren, viz., £8664 16s., excluding grants from Grand Lodge, &c., dividends, sums paid for purchased admissions (£714 alone), and other miscellaneous receipts amounting to £2086 10s. 3d., in all £10,751 6s. 3d. In 1876 the subscriptions, &c., the only real test of progress, rose to £10,000 17s. 3d., while the miscellaneous receipts, owing to there being no purchase cases, declined to £1434 9s. 4d., making the total quoted £11,435 6s. 7d.

LORD CHESTERFIELD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to Lord Limerick, I beg to give an extract from the Constitutions of 1738, page 194.

"Deputations Sent beyond Sea."

"LOVEL Grand Master granted one to noble Brother CHESTERFIELD Lord Ambassador at the Hague, for holding a Lodge there, that made his Royal Highness FRANCIS Duke of Lorraine (now Grand Duke of Tuscany) an Enter'd Prentice and Fellow Craft."

Yours fraternally,

ASTLEY TERRY,
Captain 60th Rifles,
W.M. 533.

Park Hill, Congleton,
14th Jan., 1877.

Mulum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

LORD CHESTERFIELD AND FREEMASONRY.

In the Rev. Dr. Anderson's Constitutions of 1738 is an account of the initiation and passing of H.R.H. Francis, Duke of Lorraine (Grand Duke of Tuscany), which occurred in 1731, under the Grand Mastership of Lord Lovel. The deputation was granted to the Rev. Dr. Desaguliers, P.G.M., as W.M., and Bros. Stanhope and Holtzendorf, as Wardens, and at the reception, the Earl of Chesterfield, Lord Ambassador, also the nephew of the Bishop of Namur and others were present.

It was not a regular, but only an occasional lodge which was held, and ceased when the purpose for which it was convened had been accomplished. In the list of deputations at the end of Constitutions, 1738, it is stated that the authority to receive H.R.H. into Freemasonry was conveyed to the Earl of Chesterfield, though Dr. Desaguliers acted as Master. The Duke of Lorraine was subsequently raised as a Master Mason, at another occasional lodge held at Sir Robert Walpole's house in Norfolk (with the Duke of Newcastle), the Grand Master, Lord Lovel, being the Master.

In "Illustrations of Masonry" (Spencer's edit., 1861, page 175), Bro. Preston declares the foregoing to have been "the most remarkable event of Lord Lovel's administration," as it was undoubtedly.

Bro. Findel in his "History of Freemasonry" (a really excellent work) has a special chapter on "Masonry in the Netherlands," which seems to favour the opinion that 1734 witnessed the constitution of the first regular lodge in that country. In our list of lodges, A.D. 1734, Masonic Magazine, Nov., 1876, will be found a register of 127, French Flanders, but no other for the north. In my "Centennial letter," however, to the Grand Lodge of Ohio, I give some excerpts from old newspapers, 1730—50, in which it is stated:—

The Post, Holland, Nov. 4th, 1734.—"Besides the lodge of English Freemasons at Rotterdam, another is erected at the Hague, depending on the Grand Lodge here (London), where six members were admitted on the 19th inst., N.S."

Other extracts I might give, but as the whole are to be reproduced in the Masonic Magazine for February, I forbear.

Yours fraternally,

WILLIAM JAMES HUGHAN.

With reference to Lord Limerick's enquiry respecting the lodge at the Hague, on turning to the Freemasons' Calendar for 1778, I find the following entry, at page 34, among the "Remarkable Occurrences in Masonry":—"Francis, Duke of Lorraine, late Emperor of Germany, initiated at the Hague, and afterwards exalted to the degree of a Master Mason in England, 1731." The lodge in which the Duke was initiated was doubtless one of the "occasional lodges" usually held for the admission of illustrious personages at that time, and for years afterwards. I cannot find any record of his advancement in the minutes of Grand Lodge, which alone possessed the power to pass and raise brethren in 1731, according to a note at page 35 of the same Calendar.

GRAND MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The Masonic enthusiasm which so largely exists in Liverpool, as the centre of the Craft in the province of W. Lancashire, was again clearly shown in that town on Tuesday, the 9th inst. when the 28th annual festive gathering of the fraternity took place at the Town Hall. The ball was in nearly every respect as enjoyable as any which had preceded it, and fully sustained the well merited prestige which invariably attaches itself to these festive gatherings of the brethren, to which the public are welcomed with cordiality. Of this privilege "outsiders" are not slow to avail themselves, and the general verdict has always been that the "Masonic" is the jolliest and most genial of all the balls of the season. That for '77 formed no exception to the rule, and if it was not quite so largely patronised as some of its predecessors, this slight shortcoming was attributable to various outside causes, which were quite apparent, amongst these being the near approach of various other assemblies. The existence of the Masonic Ball for more than a quarter of a century has given the promoters an amount of experience which they invariably turn to good use, in the direction of admirable arrangements and satisfactory carrying out of details, which go so much to make these gatherings successful and popular, and the result of the labours of the committee entrusted with this year's organization of the ball must have given complete satisfaction to most frequent visitors to these annual pleasant assemblies, as well as to those whose expectations might be more than usually high pitched. Following the example of previous years, the committee again made pleasure go hand-in-hand with charity, which is so dear to every true-hearted Mason, and the chief object in view, apart from the social and brotherly aspect of the gathering, was to add to the funds of the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution, a charity which stands to the front amongst the like organisations of the Craft, and is most justly looked upon with pride by all the brethren in the province where it has been born, nurtured, and reared, until it has now become so sturdy and well developed. During its existence this institution has done an immense amount of good in giving education to the children of distressed and deceased Masons, and at present more than 100 little ones are reaping the benefits of the charity. The income for the past year amounted to £636, the invested funds realised £515, and after making all necessary payments there had been added to the accumulated capital the sum of £868, making a total invested fund of £12,683 17s. 8d. The continued and increasing demands on the institution, however, still call for the continued cordial support of the brethren in the province, and as it is in contemplation to widen the benefits to the children who receive education, this support is all the more necessary.

The ball enjoyed the following highly distinguished patronage, giving it all the greater weight and significance:—

Lady Patrons: The Mayoress; Right Hon. the Countess Bedvice; Right Hon. Lady Skelmersdale; the Hon. Lady Constance Stanley. Patrons: His Worship the Mayor of Liverpool, Mr. Alderman Walker; Bro. Right Hon. Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master England; Bro. Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. England, R. W. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Bro. Major Starkie, R. W. Prov. G.M. East Lancashire, P.G.W. England, W.P. Prov. S.G.W. of West Lancashire; Bro. Right Hon. Lord De Tabley, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cheshire; Bro. Hon. Frederick A. Stanley, W.D. Prov. G.M. West Lancashire; Bro. Sir Gilbert Greenall, M.P., P.S.G.W. England, and W.P. Prov. S.G.W. of West Lancashire; Bro. Major Horner, W. Prov. S.G.W.; Bro. William Sharp, Esq., W. Prov. J.G.W.; Bro. Sir James Ramsden, W.P. Prov. G.S.W. West Lancashire; Bro. Lieutenant-Colonel Birchall, W.P. Prov. G.J.W.; Bro. John Prescott, Esq., W.P. Prov. G.J.W.; Bro. Earl Bedvice, R.W. Prov. G.M. Cumberland and Westmoreland; Bro. Sir W. W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., R.W. Prov. G.M. Shropshire and North Wales; Bro. John Pearson, Esq.; W. Rathbone, Esq., M.P.; Right Hon. Viscount Sandon, M.P.; Colonel Ireland Blackburne, M.P.; J. Torr, Esq., M.P.

The committee consisted of Bro. Lord Skelmersdale, P.G.M., President; Bro. the Hon. Frederick Stanley, M.P., D.P.G.M., Vice-President; Bro. R. Wilson, P.P.G.S.D., Chairman; Bro. H. Nelson, P.M., 673 and 1505, Vice-Chairman; and Bro. J. Pemberton, P.G.S. of W., Treasurer.

The guests began to arrive shortly before nine o'clock, and about midnight, when the splendid ball-rooms were crowded with about 700 guests, the effect was very brilliant, especially as all the brethren appeared in full dress Masonic clothing, with the jewels and insignia of their rank and office. The ladies' dresses generally were in exquisite taste, and the general effect of the gathering was striking in the extreme. His Worship the Mayor (Mr. Alderman Walker) honoured the ball with his presence, and after supper, when his health was proposed by Bro. Wilson, Chairman of Committee, his worship spoke in glowing and eulogistic terms of the many advantages possessed and produced by the noble Order of Freemasonry.

The music was furnished by the quadrille band of Bro. G. W. Philipps; and Bro. H. Molyneux, P.M. 823, again gave his valuable services as Master of the Ceremonies. Bro. W. S. Vines, P.M. 220, provided supper and refreshments, and his catering gave general satisfaction. Bro. R. Brown, P.M. 241, was the Captain of the Stewards; Bros. G. Broadbridge, P.P.G.D.C., and H. Firth, Sec. 667, Assistant Captains, who were assisted by a strong corps of Stewards.

The badges for this useful body of brethren, who did their work remarkably well, attracted universal admiration by the artistic way in which they were got up. Much of the hard work of the ball fell upon Bro. G. Hutchin, W.M. 241, the Honorary Secretary, and he deserves honourable mention for the really indefatigable way in which he strove to make the 28th annual Masonic ball occupy an honourable place in the long and brilliant list during the past 27 years.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The Quarterly Court of the Governors and Subscribers of this Institution was held on Saturday last, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall. Col. Creation, J.P., presided. There were also present Bros. H. Browne, John Symonds, A. H. Tattershall, H. A. Dubois, Dr. Ramsay, H. Dicketts, Thos. Massa, John Boyd, H. Massey (Freemason), Z. D. Berry, S. Rosenthal, Thos. W. White, Major Finney, and R. W. Little, Sec.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Lieut.-Col. Creation proposed, "That the sum of £500 additional be granted to complete the amount required, agreeably to tender, for the new laundry." He said it was not necessary that he should weary the brethren with many words on this matter, because it had been so well considered and gone over often before. He would call their attention to the resolution of the 18th Nov., when it was determined by the Special Court to advertise for tenders for this new building, inviting builders to send in tenders for its erection. That had been done, and five tenders were sent in. Four of those tenders, as they had heard, were very greatly in excess of the amount authorised to be spent; but one by Bro. Fish was within it. Consequently, the Building Committee had, subject to the approval of this Court, given the work to Bro. Fish. It was necessary that they should have £500 in excess of the sum already voted, and he therefore moved that that £500 be now voted.

Bro. A. H. Tattershall had much pleasure in seconding the motion.

Bro. Z. D. Berry said he was very glad that the contract had been given to Bro. Fish, because, as he had said on a former occasion, Bro. Fish must be able to do the work cheaper, as he had his plant already on the premises.

The motion was then carried.

Two petitions of candidates for election were then passed.

The Secretary said he was sorry to report that Mary Nelson, one of the most promising girls in the school, who had received several prizes, had died while on her Christmas holidays, which she was spending with her mother at Scarborough.

The brethren expressed their great regret at the sad occurrence.

The Secretary said there were now 54 candidates for the next election in April, and 13 vacancies, including that caused by the death of the pupil above referred to.

Bro. John Symonds then rose and said he begged to call attention to a subject he raised at the General Committee of the Boys' School, the difficulty that existed of getting a satisfactory certificate from the country of children's ability to read. He ventured to think if they adopted the educational requirement of the Privy Council (not of the School Board, as he had been inaccurately reported to have said), but the Committee of Privy Council, presided over by the Duke of Richmond, where the power to read is made to vary according to age. If they adopted that, they would hardly go wrong. Those were applicable to the very lowest class of elementary schools; but it seemed to him that if a child did not read in the standard required by the elementary schools, she did not read well enough to be admitted to this institution. It was not a matter which the Quarterly Court could deal with, but he ventured to ask the chairman, who was such a regular attendant on the various committees, to request the General Committee to take that into consideration. It would be quite impossible for him (Bro. Symonds) to attend next week at the General Committee, and it was very rarely that he could attend any of these meetings on Thursdays. If the Chairman would take it into consideration, any resolution the committee might come to could be adopted in the form of petition. The difficulty now experienced with the certificates would be got rid of. They now got such certificates as "can read tolerably well for her age," and other uncertain certificates, granted, perhaps, either by the good nature of the person who signed them, for the purpose of letting the candidate down gently, or, it might be that they were given by persons who did not strictly understand what the words implied. If the institution was able to get a certificate that a child of 9 years of age could read according to the standard of the educational department's code for a child 9 years old, then, following that they could hardly go wrong.

The chairman said this was a very valuable suggestion of Bro. Symonds, and it should not be forgotten at the next General Committee.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The Boys' School has never been in the rear of the other Masonic Institutions for keeping fresh in the minds of the children that Christmas is the time for mirth and merry-making, and it has been the custom for some years past, to give to the pupils who remain in the school during the holidays, a small entertainment, which they may look forward to with pleasant anticipations, and remember with feelings of joy. These entertainments have been varied as much as possible, and on one occasion our late Bro. Samuel May, with the assistance of some other brethren, provided the requisites for a parlour theatre, and previously drilled the boys for performing the burlesque of "The Maid and the Magpie." The entertainment was very successful, and on that occasion a large party of the brethren were present with their families. But, subsequently less pretentious exhibitions were arranged, and Christmas and Twelfth Night festivities were provided. And very nicely done affairs they have ever been. Mr. Bridgman Smith has at times given some most pleasing evenings with his dissolving views, done in the Polytechnic style, and in no way inferior to the stage amusements at that popular institution. Conjurers too have been a favourite pastime, and Magic lantern has also afforded endless amusement. Mr. Bridgman Smith has been at the Institution during the present season, and, on the 4th inst., gave the boys, to the number of 30, who remained in the school, a charming evening with his well-known views. On Saturday last, M. De Vere, conjuror and humourist, who has been well-known at the Alexandra Palace, the Opera Comique, London; Theatre de la Gaite, Paris; Theatre des Fantaisies, Jardin des Eaux Minerales, St. Petersburg; and the principal English and Continental theatres and places of light entertainment, presented a selection from his repertoire of prestidigitation, entitled "Modern Marvels," and astonished the company by the wonderful deftness with which he performed his sleight of hand tricks. What the entire portfolio contains we are unable to divine, but if what he gave on the occasion referred to was what it professed to be, a selection only, the collection, when given complete, must go far in involving the spectators who are fortunate enough to see it, in a state of bewilderment, from which it would take them a long time to emerge. The professor commenced by displaying some feats with a silk handkerchief, which he made small and large at will; produced a new laid egg in a glass when no one could see how it got there; and after some tricks with a canary bird, showed the boys how to perform a few legerdemain deceptions. Cards, which seem to be a staple commodity with jugglers, were not wanting, and though there was not the three card trick, the audience made their selection and were pointed out the cards they chose. The wondrous hat fell caused immense merriment, more particularly on account of the quantity of babies' clothing that appeared to be stowed away in the crown of the hat, and which were drawn out one article after another, ad libitum. The serpent possessed considerable attraction, the professor having first mentioned to the boys that they had heard of magicians producing such reptiles. Out of a silk handkerchief twisted into a sort of cord, M. de Vere formed a serpent of the same colours as the handkerchief, those of the Belgian flag, and a very good imitation it made. The trick with a black bag consisted of producing a whole basket of eggs, one at a time, and as one of the boys was called on to assist in this and some of the other operations, they of course felt somewhat deeper interest in these tricks. The juvenile co-operator however, though his eyes kept following the professor, left the place of operation no wiser than when he went to it. The flying cage and canaries, however, surpassed all the other feats, for it is, as expressed by our contemporary, the Era, "the very best feat of the kind we have yet seen." M. de Vere comes to the footlights holding in his hands a small cage containing a live canary. There is no covering it with a handkerchief, no use of a trick table; one moment we see the cage in the hands of the conjuror, the next, both have vanished. Several of the other papers have spoken with equal favour of this trick, which is a testimony of considerable value to the ability of M. de Vere. But there were a good many other acts of prestidigitation, too numerous to give a detailed account of; but it would be unfair not to notice one in particular, in which he extracted a large number of lighted Chinese lanterns from a hat borrowed from one of the assistant masters. After having taking some score or so of these from the hat, he took another Chinese lantern, unlighted, from the same receptacle. These lanterns measured some yards in length. The amusements of the evening, which were repeatedly and most warmly cheered by the spectators, were concluded about nine o'clock. One of the daughters of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Institution, accompanied the prestidigitation performances by some choice selections on the pianoforte, which she played with great skill and ability. The performances were witnessed by the whole of the establishment, including Dr. Morris the head master, Mrs. Morris and family, the assistant masters, Miss Hall, matron, Mrs. Walkden, and their assistants, the four daughters of Bro. Binckes, Mr. Frederick Binckes, jun., and Bro. H. Massey (Freemason).

Masonic and General Tidings.

The Annual Festival of the Priory Lodge No. 1000 will be held on Thursday next, the 25th inst., when the Ceremony of Installation will be performed by Bro. the Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., V.W. Deputy Grand Master, Suffolk. V.W. Bro. Spencer Robert Wigram, Grand Chaplain, is the W.M. elect.

The third of Bro. Abbott's series of lectures on the History of the Craft will be given in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, Mason's Hall Tavern, Basinghall-street, on Wednesday, the 24th inst., at 7 p.m.

Masonry seems to be popular behind the footlights. In a very distinguished dramatic and literary lodge, Mr. Hare has just been received into the mystic Craft, and Mr. Toole is to be balloted for at the next meeting. Mr. B. Webster, Mr. Chatterton, Mr. James, Mr. Thorne, Mr. Henry Neville, Mr. John Clark, Mr. W. H. Kendall, Mr. Charles Harcourt, Mr. Arthur Swanborough, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. W. H. Stephens, Mr. Charles Warner, Mr. Andrew Halliday, Mr. C. Milward, Mr. H. J. Byron, Mr. James Albery, and Mr. Charles Dickens, are all Masons, and the majority of them belong to the lodge alluded to.—Mayfair.

LIFEBOAT SERVICES.—During the storms of the past year the National Lifeboat Institution contributed to the saving of 598 lives from various shipwrecks and 19 vessels from destruction. It also expended £32,170 in the same period on its lifeboat establishments, including payments to its lifeboat crews. The institution has now 256 lifeboat stations under its management.

GENEROUS CITY GIFTS.—We learn that the British and Foreign Sailors' Society has recently received the following handsome contributions from the Corporation of the City of London:—The Fishmongers' Company, £52 10s.; the Drapers' Company, £21; the Clothworkers' Company (annual subscription), £10 10s.; the Skinners' Company, £10 10s.; the Trinity Board, £10 10s.; the London Dock Company, £10 10s.; the P. and O. Company, £10; and the London Assurance Corporation, £10.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales has sanctioned a donation of £50 from the Duchy of Cornwall towards the expenses of the Centenary Exhibition of the Bath and West of England Society next June.

Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, M.P., is suffering from severe bronchitis, but Mr. W. H. Bennett, of St. George's Hospital, who was telegraphed for by Wynn-stay, has returned to London satisfied with his patient's progress.

The Mansion House Inundations Relief Fund now amounts to £7200.

The Brighton Town Council on Wednesday discussed the question of sea defences, on a report brought up by the surveyor, with reference to the effects of the late storm, and it was resolved to build a new concrete groyne, 550 feet long, opposite Paston-place, at an estimated cost of £9000.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, DIARY, AND POCKET BOOK.—As far as we can pretend to form an opinion from an inspection of the contents of this little pocket book, it fully deserves its title, and merits the praise of being not only a comprehensive Masonic book of reference, but of containing "full particulars of every grand Masonic body throughout the globe."—Army and Navy Gazette.

Roan, Gilt Edges, Elastic Band or Tuck, post free 2s. 2d.; Bound in Silk, 3s. 8d.—ADVT.

FISH IN PERFECTION—ALIVE FROM THE OCEAN.—The difficulty in obtaining fresh fish, of prime quality, at a reasonable price, has long been experienced by residents in inland towns and country districts, and even in London, preservation in ice, and delay in transit, often destroy the original flavour. Messrs. Chas. Watson & Co., Fish Merchants, Folkestone, Kent, have organized a new system of supply, and send by express trains, free to any part of the kingdom, their family package of assorted fish—alive from the ocean—at wholesale price in 5s., 10s., and 20s. parcels, prepaid in stamps or P.O.O. This will be found a great boon to families, schools, hotels, and the public generally.

UNITED MARINERS LODGE (No. 30).—

This distinguished lodge held its monthly meeting at the Guildhall Coffee House, Gresham-street, on Thursday, the 16th inst. Bro. A. Lefaux, W.M., presided, supported by Bros. T. Smith, S.W., and A. T. Gladwell, J.W. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the former meeting read and confirmed. The report of the Auditors was revised and adopted. Bros. Sugden, Cosedge, and Lewis were passed to the Second Degree, the ceremony being ably performed and the different officers evidently well skilled in their respective duties. Master Masons only having retired, a Board of Installed Masters was formed, consisting of Bros. R. E. Barnes, P.M. 15; Jesse Turner, P.M. 30; J. Driscoll, P.M. 30; G. Smith, P.M. 30; J. Harling, P.M. 30; H. Bethell, P.M. 30; W. Ansell, P.M. 30; W. McDonald, P.M. 30; W. J. Miller, P.M. 766; F. Barham, W.M. 754; W. Manger, P.M. 1314; E. S. Parker, P.M. 619; E. M. Davey, P.M. 861; who, according to ancient custom, installed Bro. T. Smith into the chair of the lodge. The W.M. then appointed and invested the following brethren to the offices annexed to their names, viz: Bros. A. T. Gladwell, S.W.; C. Davey, J.W.; J. Clark, S.D.; H. Cosedge, J.D.; Jesse Turner, P.M., Treasurer; R. E. Barnes, P.M., Hon. Sec.; J. Hoare, D.C.; A. Coudry, Org.; J. W. Crossley, I.G.; J. Driscoll, P.M., Steward; J. Grant, Tyler. It was unanimously resolved, "That the best thanks of the lodge be given to Bro. Joseph Driscoll, P.M., for the very efficient manner in which he discharged the duties of Installing Master." Bro. A. Lefaux, P.M., having consented to represent the lodge at the ensuing Festival in aid of the Funds of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, the lodge voted the sum of ten guineas, to be placed on his list. Some other business of the lodge having been gone through, it was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to partake of a very excellent banquet, after which the usual Masonic toasts were proposed and heartily responded to. The W.M., Bro. T. Smith, then proposed "The Visitors," the following being present, viz., Bros. D. F. McGregor, 1056; J. T. Frost, 1000; W. Henderson, 878; E. Hornblower, 1604; C. G. Lee, 104; H. Fowler, 754; C. W. Howard, Leopold Lodge; C. Cartwright, 1226; J. A. Hill, 45, which was responded to by the respective brethren expressing their gratification in visiting this lodge, and the admirable manner the business of the same was conducted. Bro. Lefaux, P.M. in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," about whom he scarcely knew what to say, his amiable qualities having been fully developed to the brethren during the time he had been amongst them; his duties as a subordinate officer had been carried out with that zeal and efficiency which rendered his elevation to the Mastership of the lodge a matter of deep interest, and his conduct in that chair, he felt assured, would realize their fullest expectations, his urbanity and perfect mode of performing the duties of the several offices entitled him to the respect of the brethren. The toast being received with acclamation, Bro. T. Smith, W.M., said he never felt his own deficiency more in his life, in any duty that he was called upon to perform, than now. He could not adequately return thanks to the brethren for the way in which the proposition of his health had been received by the lodge, he felt fully sensible of his own deficiencies in not being able properly to return thanks, on the present occasion, for the unanimous way in which he had been elected as W.M. of that distinguished lodge; he would endeavour to the best of his ability while presiding over the United Mariners Lodge, and if he followed in the steps of his brother Past Masters he thought he could not go very far wrong. Whatever might be wanting in the discharge of his duties he could assure them that there was no one whose heart was warmer than his own towards Freemasonry in general, and to the United Mariners Lodge in particular. He had the welfare of every individual brother at heart, and the only way he could show how sensible he was of their kindness, was by a strict attention to the duties of the lodge. He thanked the brethren for the kind way in which they had responded to the toast, and drank long life and happiness to them all. The W.M. then proposed "The Health of the P.M.'s, Bros. Harling, Turner, Driscoll, G. J. Smith, Ansell, Bethell, and McDonald." He entertained the highest opinion of the P.M.'s of the lodge, and he was sure the brethren would drink their healths with ecstacy. Bro. Lefaux, P.M., in returning thanks, strongly advised those who aspired to office in the lodge to make themselves acquainted with the ritual of Freemasonry, and apply to the P.M.'s of the lodge, who had the power to give them instruction. Unless they could prove themselves proficient they could never aspire, or if they did, they could never hope to obtain the position of W.M., which was the highest object of their ambition. Bro. Turner, P.M., thanked the brethren for having elected him as their Treasurer for the 14th time, and was happy to say that their funds were in a very promising condition, and he hoped that when their W.M. retired he would leave them in as good a state as they were left in by his predecessor. It was a most agreeable thing to sit at their banquet table, but he trusted they had higher objects, and by ascending another round of the ladder of Freemasonry become better men, improving their morals, and inculcating those divine principles of doing unto others as they would wish they should do unto them. "The Wardens and Officers" was next proposed and duly honoured. The S.W. returned thanks, and assured the brethren the honour conferred would be a stimulant to future exertions in the cause of Masonry. Bro. R. E. Barnes, P.M., Hon. Sec., tendered his grateful thanks for the re-appointment of Secretary, which office he had filled for a period of thirty years, and that he had given them satisfaction was shown by the observations of the W.M. in investing him with his collar that evening; and as long as he had health and strength he would perform his duties as he had hitherto done. The United Mariners' Lodge was in a prosperous condition. He begged them to accept his sincere and heartfelt thanks for the many acts of kindness he had received at their hands; more especially for their kind and generous sympathy in advocating his cause, being a candidate for the benefits of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Annuity Fund, having subscribed to the fund of benevolence for a period of seventy-two years. The W.M. then informed the brethren that he had a most gratifying duty to perform, that of presenting their highly esteemed Bro. A. Lefaux, P.M., some mark of their esteem, viz., a handsome Past Master's jewel, in recognition of the valuable services rendered for the welfare of the lodge, and the very able manner in which he conducted the onerous duties of Mastership. Bro. P.M. Lefaux, in replying, said he cordially thanked the brethren for this mark of respect to him. As a Mason he could not look on the gift as a reward for his services, but as a strong expression of the regard of the brethren for him, and he sincerely trusted, by constant attendance and assiduity in promoting the welfare of the lodge, to merit a continuance of the esteem already evinced towards him. The evening's pleasure was enhanced by some very suitable melodies from Bros. Harling, T. Smith, and others, with Bro. Coudry presiding at the piano, which gave unequalled gratification. After a delightful meeting, in which each and all vied in exhibiting the most kindly feelings, the brethren separated at an early hour.

DOMATIC LODGE (No. 177).—The installation meeting of this old lodge was held on the 12th inst. Previous to the installation, Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., P.M., presided, the W.M., Bro. A. Treadwell, being too unwell to perform the ceremonies. This was the first appearance of the W.M. in the lodge since his accident, and he was congratulated by the brethren on his having so far recovered. Bro. Smith raised Bro. Cox to the Third Degree, and passed Bros. Pether, Scattergood, Davies, Brangwin, and Read to the Second Degree. He then installed Bro. James Willing, jun., as Master. The officers appointed were Bros. A. Treadwell, I.P.M.; W. Palmer, S.W.; L. Buscall, J.W.; Joseph Smith, P.M., Treas.; T. Williams, Sec.; E. White, S.D.; H. N. B. Spink, J.D.; W. Harris, I.G.; J. McLean, D.C.; T. Williams, Stwd.; and Daly, Tyler. Among the brethren present, who were very numerous, were Past Masters H. Elmes, J. Tims, T. A. Adams, M. Haydon, J. Brett, Ferguson, J. Smith, A. Treadwell and Massey (Freemason). The W.M., immediately after the ceremony of installation had been completed, initiated Messrs. Wm. Cohen and Alfred Piper into the Order. The next business was the consideration of a motion of Bro. Harris to raise the annual subscription, and this having been made, seconded by Bro. Ferguson, P.M., and debated, was passed. A vote of thanks was also adopted to Bro. Joseph Smith and Bro. T. Adams, moved by Bro. Ferguson, and seconded by the J.W., for having performed the ceremony of installation. Bro. Palmer mentioned to the lodge that as all the other lodges and chapters meeting in that house were contributing to a testimonial to Bro. William Smith, the head waiter, from whom all the brethren and companions had received for many years great attention and courtesy, he thought so famous a lodge as the Domatic should not leave itself out of the list of contributors. This met with the general assent of the brethren, and the subject was reserved for full consideration. After closing the lodge, the brethren, to the number of 133, partook of banquet, and among them were the brethren above named, and Past Masters Foulger, Potter, Walford, and Fred Smith. When the toasts were proposed, Bro. Joseph Smith and Bro. Thomas Adams responded to that of "The Grand Officers." Bro. Joseph Smith remarked that he was the father of the lodge, and as such, and as Treasurer too, he felt great interest in its welfare. He took part in all the discussions which came on, and he had that evening felt an interest in the question of raising the subscription. In that discussion mention had been made of charity. The lodge had done a good deal in that way; and it ought to bear a part in that great work. It was quite right; but though they had done much, they should do more. The Past Masters particularly felt this, and one of their number, Bro. Ferguson, was going to represent the lodge as its Steward at the next festival of the Aged Freemasons. Bro. Ferguson would that evening go round the lodge and put the brethren's principles to the test. It had been said in lodge that they would rather do without one or two banquets in order that they might give to charity; let them prove that principle when the time arrived. An opportunity offered itself then, and though Bro. Ferguson would not ask them for their money, he would be glad if they would give him their names. (Cheers.) After Bro. Adams had said a few words, Bro. Joseph Smith proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said that Bro. Treadwell, whom they were all much pleased to have among them again, was too much fatigued to propose this toast, the effects of his severe illness not having by any means disappeared. Referring to the W.M., he said although this was the first time he was Master of this lodge, he had been the Master of another distinguished lodge. The brethren of the Domatic had unanimously called him to the chair of their lodge, and, knowing the responsibility which devolved upon him, he would take care during his year of office to give them no cause to regret their selection. His having filled the chair of another lodge was a guarantee that his working for the year would be perfect. Bro. Willing, when in the chair of the Metropolitan Lodge, had not only done his duties while presiding in the lodge, but had also represented it at all the boards he was entitled to beat. He would do the same for the Domatic. The W.M., in responding, said that his experience as acting Secretary of the Domatic Lodge for the last three years had introduced him to the chair. The labours of Secretary had been arduous in so numerous a lodge; but to the best of his ability he had discharged them. He had had no intention of offending any brother. During that time he had experienced so much respect and regard from the brethren, that without knowing how that feeling had been engendered, he felt as they wished him to take the chair he must do so. He had not wished to keep any other brother out of the chair, and he did not seek the chair. He merely consulted the feelings and wishes of the brethren. What he had done for the lodge in the past he trusted would be an earnest of what he would do in the future. When a brother knew the duties and acted up to them he became the servant of the lodge and not its Master; he was anxious for every individual member. After making reference to the P.M.'s of No. 1507, some of whom were members of the Domatic, he said he knew when he became Master of the latter lodge that he was coming among friendly critics, men who knew to the fullest extent what Masonry was, what Masonic working was. The Master was looked upon in this lodge with keen but friendly eyes; but there was no lodge where a heartier reception was given to him by the Past Masters, which was reciprocated by all the other brethren, who united in the grand design of being happy themselves and communicating happiness to others. He promised them his best services for the ensuing year. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the P.M.'s," and he wished the brethren to give this toast a cordial reception, humorously remarking that we never know to what we may ourselves come to some time. In the Domatic Lodge there was quite an array of P.M.'s. He then feelingly alluded to Bro. Treadwell's accident, which had incapacitated him not from working the lodge alone, but from attending, for he had been laid up with a broken kneecap during a great portion of his year of office. During the early portion of his year he had done his work well and completely, and it was in consideration of his services that the brethren presented him with a handsome P.M.'s jewel. The brethren all participated in his great sorrow, for not only had he sustained heavy physical pain by his accident, but in the early stages of his misfortune he was visited by a greater calamity, the loss of his wife. With true Masonic feeling the brethren shared his affliction, and begged him to accept their heartfelt sympathies in his heavy loss during the year. Bro. Treadwell, who was much affected when he rose to reply, said he was exceedingly thankful to the brethren for their sympathy in his trouble and affliction, and for the jewel which they had kindly presented him with. He had been laid up for four months, and during that time his work had been kindly and ably performed by Bros. Joseph Smith and George Everett. If it had not been for them and his esteemed friend, Bro. Willing, he really did not know what he should have done. It was no easy task to be Master of the Domatic Lodge, and if he had not an able Secretary and Treasurer the Master would be nowhere. The only complaint he could find to make was that he could not carry forward a large balance, but he felt sure that when Bro. Willing went out of the chair there would be £100 balance to hand over to his successor. While Secretary Bro. Willing's services had been extraordinary. The brethren had had experience of his indomitable courage and perseverance and tact, and they would expect him to leave the chair to his successor with £100 balance. If he did not, he (Bro. Treadwell) would be very much deceived. A W.M. of the Domatic Lodge ought to be proud of having such officers as Bro. Joseph Smith and Bro. Willing. With respect to the other P.M.'s, for whom he was asked to respond, it was in fact unnecessary for him to speak of their qualities, inasmuch as they ranked amongst them most distinguished members of the Craft, Past Grand Officers and others, who had taught Masons their duties and the ritual; and many of them were Past Masters of other lodges as well. It would be wrong on his part to speak on their behalf, as nature had gifted them with greater eloquence to speak for themselves. The toast of "The Visitors" followed, and Bros. Fisher, Swallow, Levy, and Style replied. Bro. Joseph Smith responded, as Treasurer, to the toast proposed and drunk in favour of that officer. In the course of his observations he said that his advice to every Master was, "Keep within your income." If they followed this advice they would never have cause of complaint. The Treasurer of a lodge was like the Chancellor of the Exchequer. If they were wrong it was the Treasurer's duty to tell them so. He would promise them that so long as he was Treasurer the lodge should never be "scratched" for non-payment of Grand Lodge dues. If they had not the money let them go without their banquets, and he would remind them whenever they were going too far. He had a great horror for Masons getting into debt in Masonry. A great many lodges did so, as he had himself witnessed, but he would not let the Domatic get into debt. "The Initiates" was the next toast, and when these brethren had replied, the toast of "The Secretary and other Officers" was given, to which Bros. Williams, Palmer, and others replied. The W.M. gave a special toast for the Freemason, which he complimented on the faithfulness of its reports, and made several favourable personal references to that paper's representatives. Bro. H. Massey acknowledged the compliment, and thanked the brethren for the very cordial reception he always met with both in the Domestic Lodge and in other Masonic assemblies. Bro. Daly gave the Tyler's toast, and the brethren, who had been enlivened with some good music and singing by some of their number, and by Bro. Charles Hudson's representation of the scene between Sir Pertinax MacSycophant and his son, separated early.

JORDAN LODGE (No. 201).—The installation meeting of this old and respected lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall on the 19th inst. under most favourable prospects. The brethren being summoned to meet at three o'clock, shortly after that time lodge business commenced by reading the minutes and considering report of the audit committee, which recommended £10 to be invested, in addition to the benevolent fund in connection with this lodge. These being confirmed, the ceremonies of passing and raising were very ably gone through by Bro. Peter Wagner, W.M. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Peter Robinson, W.M. and Secretary, proceeded to instal Bro. Elsam, P.M. 889, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey, and W.M. elect, in the chair of K.S., according to ancient custom, when the most hearty congratulations were accorded to Bro. Elsam in that high position. The newly-elected W.M. then proceeded to appoint and invest his officers, after which the addresses were given in a very impressive manner, and listened to with marked attention. Bro. Elsam then initiated Mr. Dunbar and Mr. Schwarz into Masonry in a masterly style, giving great promise for future working. A very pleasing duty then devolved on the W.M., that of investing the retiring W.M. with a P.M.'s jewel, and in so doing, highly eulogised Bro. Wagner for his untiring efforts, as also the great attention and ability given to the lodge during his year of office. Bro. Wagner warmly expressed his thanks to the lodge for the great kindness shown him, and with feelings of emotion assured his brethren that he would still continue his exertions in promoting the welfare of his mother lodge. Business being now ended, the lodge was duly closed, the brethren and their friends adjourned to a most sumptuous banquet, which gave the most unqualified satisfaction to all, and reflected great credit on Bro. Dawkins's new management. Bro. Davage, P.M. and D.C., as is usual, left nothing to be desired to meet the comforts of all. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Veal, 889, P.M., &c.; Hurst, W.M. 1512; Nash, W.M. 865; Garrod, P.M. 1549; Benton, 889, and others. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts, as also that of "The Initiates," "Visitors," &c., were given in a feeling manner, and very ably responded to and after a very enjoyable evening all separated, highly pleased, and looking forward to a very propitious year for Old Jordan.

PANMURE LODGE (No. 720).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Balham Hotel, Balham, on Monday, the 15th inst., when a large number of members and visitors were present. Amongst others were the W.M., Bro. D. Trusler; C. Burgess, S.W.; H. Payne, P.M., acting as J.W. in consequence of the decease of the late Bro. Withall; Thomas Poore, P.M., Sec. and Treas.; James Stevens, P.M.; C. P. McKay, S.D.; Woolfe, J.D.; Smith, I.G.; McMurray, D.C.; Spiegel, Stwd.; W. Steedman, Tyler; Davis, Burton, Sheadd, P.M.; Mitchell, Gunner, Blogg, Holliday, Huntley, King, Sanders, Treves, Lilley, Mills, Willshire; and visitors, Bros. C. H. Porter, 147; W. Howell, 183; John Syer, 1017; J. B. Pillinger, 1339; J. Bain, 360; W. B. Miller, 1420; E. Bye, 141; and P. E. Biddlecome, 720. The business gave practical evidence of the progress of the lodge and of its growing importance, and comprised ceremonial working in the three degrees. Bros. King, Gunner, Treves, and Holliday were duly raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., with separate ceremony by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Stevens, P.M., who delivered the traditional history. Bro. Blogg was passed to the degree of F.C. Ballots having proved unanimous in favour of Messrs. G. Lambert, C. Richardson, and W. Simpson, those gentlemen were introduced and duly initiated into the Order. Bro. Spiegel kindly offered to represent the lodge as Steward at the ensuing festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and a donation from the charity fund of the lodge was voted on his list. Three gentlemen were proposed as candidates for initiation at next meeting. The claims of the distressed relatives of a deceased brother were not forgotten, and the necessary steps were taken to afford relief. The lodge having been thus at work for a period of five hours, was then closed, and the brethren adjourned for well-earned refreshment. Time pressing, the usual Masonic and complimentary toasts were given and responded to with consistent brevity, and the brethren separated.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Thursday, 11th Jan., 1877. There were present Bros. W. S. Cackett, W.M.; T. Sleaf, S.W.; W. Mitchell, J.W.; W. Snowden, I.P.M., Treas.; J. Dunn, P.M., Sec.; A. Runacres, S.D.; W. Chalk, J.D.; E. W. Boynton, I.G.; C. E. Power, D.C.; T. Taylor, W.S.; J. H. Swan, Org. Also Bros. R. McIlroy, H. Kember, J. Dixon, T. C. Corpe, J. Emms, W. G. Bott, C. Sims, G. E. Beach, J. E. Pentreath, W. Fish, W. Malthouse, J. R. Smith. Also visitors, Bros. W. Mitchell, sen., 51; H. Kember, sen.; G. A. Watkins, Treas. 1585; E. G. Webster, 72; M. S. Larham, P.M. 1539; J. Summers, Ebury, F. Pim, Causton, J. King, P.M. 193; J. Mabey, 689; C. F. T. Strube, 72; H. Hopkins, 1199; C. B. Wright, 1319; N. E. Thompson, 1476; C. E. Thompson, 1158. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes read and confirmed. Ballots for Messrs. A. Stroud, F. Bardo, T. M. Deacon, and W. Newnam, were unanimous in each case. Messrs. A. Stroud, F. Bardo, and T. M. Deacon being present, were duly initiated. It was proposed by Bro. T. Sleaf, S.W., that Bro. W. Snowden, I.P.M., Treas., be Steward for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and that five guineas be voted from the lodge funds for that purpose. This was seconded by Bro. W. Mitchell, S.W., and carried unanimously. The names of four gentlemen were given and proposed as candidates for initiation at the last lodge meeting. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment. All the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and cordially responded to. The tone of the speeches made during the evening showed that thorough cordiality existed in the lodge, and also its increasing and well founded prosperity. The W.M. and officers must be congratulated on their present harmonious working.

GIBRALTAR.—Inhabitants' Lodge (No. 153).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held at the lodge-rooms, Engineer's Lane, on the evening of the 1st inst. Bro. E. J. Barker, the W.M., presided at the opening of the lodge, supported by Bros. J. J. P. Morgan, P.D.G.S.W.; R. B. Hepper, D.G.S.W.; Jos. F. Francieri, acting D.G. Sec.; L. Beal, P.M. 325, I.G.; and Alex. Ross, W.M. 325, I.G. There were about 50 other brethren present. After the minutes had been read and confirmed, a ballot was taken for Bro. W. Davis, No. 1331, as a joining member, which was unanimous; and the W.M. then vacated the chair to Bro. J. J. P. Morgan, who gave the brethren present a rich treat by the very impressive manner in which he installed Bro. James Cunningham, S.W. as W.M. for the ensuing year. The following officers were then invested:—Bros. E. J. Barker, I.P.M.; J. Conroy, S.W.; R. Collins, J.W.; H. Hunt, Treas.; E. Bacon, Sec.; W. Briggs, S.D.; D. Roberts, J.D.; J. Beavon, M.C.; T. Giles, I.G.; M. Nolan, Stwd.; and J. Danino, Tyler. Bro. Morgan then severally addressed the W.M. and his principal officers in his usual effective manner, and the brethren pledged the health of their new W.M., who, in a few appropriate remarks, thanked them for placing him in such a high position, and trusted that at the end of his period of service they would have no occasion to regret the choice they had that night made. Votes of thanks were then unanimously accorded to P.M. Bro. Morgan for his kindness in coming forward, at some personal inconvenience, to perform the duties of Installing Master; as also to Past Masters Beal, Hepper, and Francieri, and Bro. A. Ross, W.M. 325, I.C., for the able assistance they had rendered in the ceremony of installation. After some routine business, the lodge was closed in due form at 9 p.m., and the brethren adjourned to the banquet-room of the Friendship Lodge (kindly lent for the occasion by W.M., Bro. W. Glassford) where a recherché supper was subsequently served, in a style that reflected much credit on the Stewards, and gave unbounded satisfaction. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, and other customary toasts followed, all of which were duly honoured and responded to, and the remainder of a most agreeable and very pleasant evening was spent in harmony, in which the W.M., Bros. Nolan, Else, White, Bellion and Leys took a prominent part.

BARBADOS.—Albion Lodge (No. 196).—The stated meeting of this lodge took place on the evening of the 6th December, when the following members and visitors were present:—Bros. J. T. Crawford, P.M., and W.M.; T. C. Marshall, P.M.; C. A. Waterman, P.M.; W. J. M. Clarke, P.M.; F. A. Skeete, W.M. 340; G. T. Sampson, P.M.; E. S. Crawford (Master elect), J. D. Field, M. Wilson, W. Graydon, N. R. Fitzpatrick, T. E. King, S. A. Armstrong, W. FitzThomas, J. W. Williams, J. Gerner, H. T. Armstrong, J. W. Potter, E. Poyer, H. B. Phillips, E. M. Gittens, R. J. Clinkett, E. W. Terrey, A. B. Fillan, J. Hare, A. Laurie, J. E. Ince, E. M. Howe, of Crystal Wave Lodge, 338, Brooklyn. After transacting the regular business of the lodge, the installation of Bro. E. S. Crawford as W.M. for the ensuing twelve months was then proceeded with, after which the several brethren acting as officers were then requested to deliver up the insignia of office, and the brethren appointed as officers for the ensuing term were invested with their badges and insignias of office, with the customary charges to each, viz., Bros. J. D. Field, S.W.; W. Graydon, J.W.; M. Wilson, Sec.; C. A. Waterman, P.M., Treas.; N. R. Fitzpatrick, S.D.; T. E. King, J.D.; H. T. Armstrong, I.G.; P. L. Azevedo, Tyler. P.M. Marshall said it really afforded him much pleasure to see the very business and Masonic like manner in which the working of the old Albion had been conducted during the sitting (two years) of the Master just vacated the chair. He could not help referring also to the many improvements visible in the lodge. He particularly referred to the introduction of gas, and also nice sacred music. He moved that a vote of thanks to Bro. P.M. J. T. Crawford, the retiring Master, be recorded in the minutes of that evening. P.M. J. T. Crawford returned thanks to the lodge for recording a vote of thanks to him for the success which they attributed to his sitting; but if by any exertion of his the Craft had been advanced, he felt he could take no special credit, for it was simply a performance of duty. He was glad to see so many Past Masters present that evening, and particularly did he desire to hand over to the especial care of the lodge W. Bro. G. Sampson, who during his sitting had always rendered him the greatest help. He had been proud to hear the remarks which had fallen from P.M. Marshall, for it was he who had initiated him, and it was he who first showed him the grave responsibility of the Master's chair, and although he could never hope to attain his summit, he thought he might yet strive to emulate his bright example. The lodge could always count on his doing his best to assist them in every way. The Masonic dinner in honour of the retiring Master came off at the Ice Establishment of Messrs. D. P. Cotton & Co. with great success. The customary toasts were duly and heartily drank by all present, of course commencing with "Our Most Gracious Majesty the Queen," then "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, our Grand Master."

LIVERPOOL.—Harmonic Lodge (No. 216).

—On Thursday evening, the 11th inst., the brethren of this lodge held their fixed regular meeting of the year at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, the chair being occupied by Bro. Wm. Derryhouse, W.M. The chair was afterwards taken by Bro. John Jones, P.M., who proceeded to instal Bro. D. S. Davies as Worshipful Master of the lodge for the ensuing year, and he afterwards invested the following brethren as his officers:—Bros. W. Derryhouse, I.P.M.; the Rev. J. R. Jenkins, S.W.; J. G. Bayley, J.W.; Wm. Laidlaw, P.M., Treas.; R. P. Gill, Sec.; D. D. Costine, S.D.; W. Wright, J.D.; J. Jones, P.M., D.C.; Jos. Skeaf, P.M. Org.; E. F. Evans, S.S.; and J. J. Herring, J.S. Bro. W. H. Ball was unanimously re-elected Tyler, and duly invested. After the usual business of attending to communications, and other Masonic matters had been transacted, the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet provided by Bro. Ludlow, the manager of the hotel, and on the cloth being removed, the toast list was proceeded with by the W.M., the proceedings in the intervals being enlivened by several of the musical members of the lodge. The occasional toasts included "The New W.M.," and "The Past Masters of the Lodge," all of which were duly honoured by the brethren and responded to. After the last toast had been proposed the brethren were called from refreshment to labour, and the lodge was duly and solemnly closed by the W.M., according to ancient custom, a most enjoyable evening having been spent.

WHITBY.—Lion Lodge (No. 312).—On Monday afternoon the brethren of this lodge met at the Masonic Hall, John-street, West Cliff, at two o'clock, for the purpose of taking part in the installation of Bro. J. M. Bottomley as W.M. for the ensuing year. There was an imposing assemblage. The Installing Master was Bro. Stevenson, P.M., and the interesting and impressive ceremonial was admirably gone through. The officers of the lodge for the ensuing year are as follows:—Bros. J. M. Bottomley, W.M.; S. Chadwick, S.W.; W. G. Lockey, J.W.; F. Thornton, S.D.; G. T. Crowther, J.D.; W. E. Wolsey, I.G.; George Elliott, D.C.; James Wood, Tyler; James Maule and Geo. Farrow, Treas., Stewards; J. W. Lawson, P.M.; and J. B. Dale, Sec. The annual banquet was sat down to at the Royal Hotel at 4.30, and was a most sumptuous repast. There was a goodly number of Past Masters, officers, and brethren. The W.M. presided, and the S.W. was in the vice-chair. The usual Masonic toasts were gone through with harmony and good effect.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 359).—The installation of Bro. John Clark as W.M. of this lodge took place at Freemasons' Hall, on the 15th inst. The ceremony was performed by Bro. T. P. Payne, one of the oldest Past Masters of the lodge, after the retiring Master (Bro. C. A. Dyer) had passed one brother and raised another, there being about fifty members and visitors present. The Board of Installed Masters consisted of the following:—Bros. T. P. Payne, C. A. Dyer, E. Booth, W. Waters, F. Hare, J. W. Dyson, R. Sharpe, Coles, Burtenshaw, Dusaouty, Barford, J. Adams, Gregory, A. J. Miller, and J. R. Weston; and at the close the new Master invested the officers as follows:—Bros. Geo. Cross, S.W.; H. P. Arthur, J.W.; J. R. Weston, P.M., Treas.; A. J. Miller, P.M., Sec.; Tilling, S.D.; J. Andrews, J.D.; S. D. Sanby, I.G.; W. Waters, P.M., Dir. of Cers.; Westley, Org.; Biggs, Tyler; and Norris and Vane, Assist. Tylers. The subsequent banquet, served by Bro. Dartnall, was attended by about fifty brethren, and passed off in the most successful manner.

BANGOR.—St. David's Lodge (No. 384).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 16th inst., at the Masonic Rooms. The lodge was opened at 3.30 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. Josiah Hughes, assisted by his officers. After the circular calling this lodge had been read, the minutes of the last regular lodge were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Mr. John Williams and Mr. John Evans. The report of the Audit Committee was read and adopted. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Archibald McMillan was presented, obligated, and installed into the chair of K.S. by Bro. John Ellis, P.M. 597, and a member of 384. The Board of Installed Masters consisted of W. Bros. John Ellis, P.M.; Wm. Bulky Hughes, M.P., D.P.G.M. North Wales and Salop; R.W. Capt. G. Hunter, P.G.M. East Aberdeenshire, P.G.W. of Greece, and P.M. 757; T. Hathaway, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; T. C. Roden, P.M. 755, P.P.S.G.W. Warwickshire, and P.P.J.G.W. North Wales and Salop; J. Salmon, P.M. 721, and P.J.G.W. North Wales and Salop; J. Hughes, I.P.M.; John Jones, P.M.; Robert Robert, P.M.; Robert Owen, P.M.; Watson Robinson, P.M.; W. Mathews, W.M. 721; J. Cunnah, I.P.M. 721; Sidney Boucher, W.M. 606; A. F. Snelson, W.M. 597; and R. J. Davids, I.P.M. 606. The Board closed, and the lodge resumed business. The following brethren were invested: Josiah Hughes, I.P.M.; W. Jarvis, S.W. (by proxy); D. Wynn Williams, J.W.; Robert Owen, P.M., Treas.; Donald Cameron, S.D.; Ellis Roberts, J.D. and Sec.; J. R. Brown, S.S.; W. E. Thomas, J.S.; Wm. Jones, I.G.; and Wm. Jones, Tyler. During the working of the lodge two candidates were initiated, and Bro. Sheppard raised. Two gentlemen were proposed. The visitors gave hearty good wishes from their respective lodges, viz., W.D.F.G.M., the lodges of the province; the R.W.P.G.M. of East Aberdeenshire, the Grand Lodge of Scotland, his province, and the Grand Lodge of Greece; T. C. Roden, P.M., P.P.S.G.W. 755; R. A. Pritchard, S.W.; W. Mathews, W.M. 721; J. Salmon, P.M. 1477; Sidney Boucher, W.M. 606; R. J. Davids, 606; D. W. Davids, 606; W. E. Davies, 606; George Thomas, 606; W. P. Elliott, J.W.; and A. F. Snelson, W.M. 597. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to the Castle Hotel to a sumptuous banquet. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured.

CHESTER.—Cestrian Lodge (No. 425).—On Thursday, the 18th, the brethren of this excellent lodge met at the Grosvenor Hotel, Chester, for the purpose of celebrating the festival of St. John. Bro. J. Taylor was installed W.M., and the following officers were invested: Bros. M'Hattie, I.P.M.; Rev. S. Darwell, Chap.; F. A. Dickson, S.W.; T. M. Lockwood, J.W.; E. Minshull, Tyler; W. C. Hunt, P.M.; S. J. Knox, S.D.; A. Smith, J.D.; G. Dutton, I.G.; E. Cuzner, P.M.; O. D. Baynes, Tyler. The installing Master was Bro. J. E. Williams, P.P.S.G.D. There was a large attendance of brethren, above 100 being present. Among them were Bros. the Rev. G. H. Hobson, P.P.G.C. 477; J. Brown, P.P.G.S.B.; J. Salmon, P.P.S.G.D.; J. Taylor, P.P.S.B. 1235; A. Potts, S.W. 1477; R. C. Edwards, S.W. 721; J. J. Cunnah, I.P.M. 721; W. Dew, I.G. 755; R. G. Sissons, P.G.R. 1143; W. C. Deeley, P.P.J.G.W.; T. W. Marwood, P.G.J.W.; F. Smith, P.G.S.W.; Dr. Waters, (Kilvenny); and others. A banquet was afterwards held under the presidency of the W.M.

MALTON.—Camalodunum Lodge (No. 660).—The annual installation banquet of this lodge was held on Tuesday, at Malton. The installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. Thos. Clough, took place in the Freemasons' Hall, Yorkergate, the ceremony being performed by Bro. Samuel King, P.P.G.J.D. and P.M.; and the Worshipful Master appointed the following officers for the ensuing year: Bro. W. King, S.W.; Harold Copperthwaite, J.W.; R. H. Bower, Treas.; A. W. Walker, Sec.; T. B. Smith, S.D.; J. D. Dodsworth, J.D.; Fred. Wand, D.C.; Seth Tinsley, I.G.; Thos. Wilkins and J. Goldie, Stewards; and Kirby Watkins, Steward and Tyler. The banquet was afterwards held at the Talbot Hotel, where there was a fair gathering of the brethren, including visitors from other lodges in the province.

DEVIZES.—Wiltshire Lodge of Fidelity (No. 663).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Town Hall, Devizes, on Tuesday, the 16th inst. The lodge was opened in the First and Second Degrees by the W.M., Bro. T. B. Fox, who then requested Bro. Nott, P.M., P.P.G. Reg. Wilts., to take the chair. After the necessary preliminaries a Board of Installed Masters, twelve in number, was formed, and the W.M. elect was duly installed by Bro. Nott in the chair of K.S. according to ancient custom. The newly installed Master was duly saluted, and afterwards appointed and invested his officers, to each of whom a short address as to the duties of his office was delivered by Bro. J. H. Chandler, P.M. The usual addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren was delivered by the Installing Master. The following is the list of officers: Bros. T. B. Fox, I.P.M.; Dr. J. W. Burman, S.W.; W. H. Burt, J.W.; Rev. H. Richardson, P.M., Chap.; D. A. Gibbs, P.M., Treas.; William Nott, P.M., Sec.; H. Howse, S.D.; W. Day, J.D.; J. A. Randell, I.G.; Thos. Waite, P.M., acting M.C.; W. E. Fulford and G. S. A. Waylen, Stewards; J. H. Chandler, P.M., acting Org.; and John Hayter, Tyler. The usual routine of the annual meeting was then proceeded with. The Treasurer's accounts were approved and passed, from which it appeared there had been five initiations and two joining members during the year. Grants were made to each of the Masonic charities, to one of which, the Benevolent, the P.G.M., Lord Methuen, goes up as Steward for the province; a member of this lodge, Bro. Jno. Chandler, filling a similar office for the Girls' School. A brother was proposed as a joining member, after which the lodge was closed. Amongst those present were the following P.M.'s, viz.: members of the lodge, Bros. Fox, Gibbs, Waite, Ward, Rev. T. F. T. Ravenshaw, P.G. Ch. Eng.; Nott, P.P.G. Reg. Wilts.; J. H. Chandler, P.P.G.O.; O'Reilly, John Chandler, P.P.S.G.W. and D.C. Wilts.; and J. H. Chandler; and visitors, Bros. Gauntlett, P.M. 632, P.P.G.S.B. Wilts.; A. Plummer, P.M. 355, as well as several other visitors. Letters of regret at inability to be present, and conveying good wishes to the W.M., were read from the P.G.M., Lord Methuen; the D.P.G.M., Bro. G. Goldney, M.P.; the P.G. Sec., Bro. Tombs, and many others. After the lodge was closed the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Crown Hotel, to which Bro. Watson Taylor, of Eriestoke Park, though unable from ill health to be present himself, contributed a supply of venison and game.

LIVERPOOL.—Alliance Lodge (No. 667).—There is hardly any more popular lodge in the Province of West Lancashire than the "Alliance," as it is called, which attained its majority last week, and the fact that its popularity has increased rather than diminished was shown by an attendance of about 120 brethren at the annual installation meeting, which took place on Tuesday afternoon, the 16th inst., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool. This very large attendance of valuable and distinguished brethren further showed the high esteem in which the retiring W.M. (Bro. J. E. Jackson) was held and a general approval of the choice of the brethren of a Masonic head for the coming year in the person of Bro. G. S. Willings, the W.M. elect. Enthusiasm and good fellowship prevailed, and the coming-of-age meeting of No. 667 was perhaps the most successful and enjoyable which has ever been held. The lodge was opened shortly after three o'clock by Bro. J. E. Jackson, W.M., and amongst the officers and brethren present were A. Winkup, P.M.; T. Ockleshaw, P.M.; J. Devaynes, P.M.; J. E. Skelliscorn, P.M.; G. S. Willings, S.W.; J. Ellis, J.W.; W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D., Treas.; H. Firth, Sec.; J. H. Gregory, S.D.; T. Peake, J.D.; D. Lloyd, I.G.; R. Douglas, S.; J. Mellon, T. Wood, I. Levy, J. Francis, J. Leighton, J. Marshall, M. W. Smith, T. Yeatman, J. Carruthers, J. Forster, J. Archdeacon, D. S. Buchanan, R. Ellery, J. Basley, J. Bowyer, R. Black, W. J. Chapman, S.W. 1609; W. E. Birks, G. Mason, G. Spence, H. Jones, R. Wright, J. E. Grant, R. J. Hudson, G. Webster, W. T. Barry, A. Bucknall, E. Carter, and others. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. Joseph Bell, W.M. 1609, Dramatic; W. Healing, W.M. 1094; J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; R. Martin, jun., W.M. 1182; G. Musker, Sec. 1182; S. Jacobs, I.G. 241; A. Wadbridge, Treas. 1609; J. C. Atkinson, 594; S. P. Gore, 1356; H. Stocker, 391; T. Holden, 1182, A. Morrison, S.W. 1570; J. Queen, 1505; R. Hobart, 1505; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D.; P. B. Gee, P.M. 1264; T. Clark, P.M. 673; J. Gallagher, P.M. 1011; W. Wilson, W.M. 823; J. T. Callow, P.M. 673 and 1505; R. Dobbie, 1161; W. T. May, P.M. 673; H. Nelson, P.M. 673 and 1505; H. Burrows, S.W. 673; H. Jenkinson, 986; A. Cottes, W.M. 1264; H. Pearson, P.M. 249; J. Marshall, S.W. 1547; H. J. Atkinson, 1505; the Rev. G. H. Vernon, P.P.G.C.; G. E. Hamner, W.M. 1086; J. Townsend, S.W. 1086; and Thomas Roberts, W.M. 673. After the ceremony of initiation had been performed by the retiring W.M., the ancient charge being most effectively delivered by the S.W., the chair was taken by Bro. W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D., one of the P.M.'s of the Alliance Lodge, and he proceeded to instal Bro. George Stanley Willings as the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year. The following were the officers invested: Bros. J. E. Jackson, I.P.M.; J. Ellis, S.W.; H. Firth, J.W.; W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D., Treas.; H. Gregory, Sec.; T. Yeatman, Org.; T. Peake, S.D.; D. Lloyd, J.D.; R. Douglas, I.G.; W. Brittain, S.S.; J. E. Grant, J.S.; and P. Ball, Tyler. The brethren after business sat down to an excellent banquet in the large room, under the presidency of the new W.M., who gave the loyal and Masonic toasts with a point and vigour which have rarely been shown in Masonic lodges. Bro. Jackson, I.P.M., in giving "The Health of the W.M.," passed a high encomium upon him, and said they had that evening placed in the chair one whom few could hope to equal, and very few indeed could hope to excel. The W.M., after acknowledging the toast in happy terms, gave "The Health of Bro. Jackson, I.P.M.," and in the name of the members of the lodge, presented him with a very valuable P.M.'s jewel, set with diamonds, which bore the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. J. E. Jackson, as a token of the esteem felt for him by the members of the Alliance lodge, on his retirement from the office of W.M." It should be stated that the entire cost of the jewel was subscribed by the private members, without the slightest encroachment on the funds. Bro. Jackson acknowledged the handsome gift in suitable terms, and during the evening the customary toasts were proposed and cordially acknowledged. An excellent musical programme was given by Bros. J. Queen, A. Child, Hobart, and Atkinson, the pianoforte accompaniments being capably played by Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., whose fantasia, "Sabbath Evening Chimes," and new song, "Dying Embers," formed the leading attractions of the evening.

NEWPORT.—Isca Lodge (No. 683).—The annual meeting of the members of this lodge, for the installation of W.M. for the ensuing year, was held at the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, 17th January. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. Hiscox, as W.M., who proceeded to instal Bro. W. Parfitt as W.M., and did credit to the lodge by the manner in which he performed the ceremony. The following distinguished Masons were present:—Capt. S. Geo. Homfray, P.A.G.D.C. of England, D.P.G.M. Monmouthshire; H. J. Gratte, P.G.J.W.; C. Rowe, P.G. Sec.; J. Pigford, W.M. of Homfray Lodge, 1562; W. Watkins, P.M. of Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge, 1429; C. Lyne, P.M. Silurian, 471; and others. A sum of ten guineas was voted from the Benevolent Fund to support the worthy and esteemed D.P.G.M. in his Stewardship for the Benevolent Institution. The lodge was closed in harmony, and the brethren adjourned to a banquet at the Westgate Hotel.

LIVERPOOL.—Walton Lodge (No. 1086).—The brethren of this lodge celebrated the festival of St. John on Wednesday, the 3rd inst., at St. Lawrence's Boys' Schools, Croylands-street, Kirkdale, Liverpool, when a large number of members and visitors assembled. Present: Bros. J. Ellis, W.M.; G. E. Hamner, S.W.; G. J. Townsend, J.W.; Rev. Dr. Hyde, Sec.; William Walker, S.D.; W. G. Sharpe, J.D.; J. Leese, I.G.; Casey and Riley, Stewards; Past Masters Bros. Jno. Lunt, P. Prov. G.D.C.; Wm. Archer, J. C. Lunt, R. Abraham, J. P. McArthur, and Wm. Sephton. Visitors: Bros. Wm. Jones, P.M. 220 and 1299; Jno. Jones, P.M. 220; W. Ashmore, P.M. 1325; F. Knight, W.M. 1325; Willis, W.M. elect 1035; Veale, 594, 1356, etc. The ceremony of installing Bro. Hamner, W.M. elect, was performed in the most impressive manner by Bro. Lunt, P. Prov. G.D.C., which elicited the warm approval of all present. The W.M. then invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. Townsend, S.W.; Wm. Walker, J.W.; Wm. Archer, P.M., Treas.; Rev. Dr. Hyde, Sec.; Sharpe, S.D.; Leese, J.D.; Casey, I.G.; Copestake and Riley, Stewards; and Williamson, Tyler. A gold Past Master's jewel, of beautiful design, was presented to the I.P.M., Bro. Ellis, for his efficient services during the past year. A vote of thanks was recorded on the minutes to the Installing Master. The lodge was then closed. The banquet which followed was served in Bro. Casey's best style. The newly-installed W.M. occupied the chair. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, after which a vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Veale, who contributed so much to the enjoyment of the evening by presiding at the pianoforte.

BATTLE.—Abbey Lodge (No. 1184).—The installation meeting of the above excellent lodge took place on Thursday, the 18th inst., when in addition to the large muster of the members, the following visitors had the honour of being present: Bros. Dr. Cunningham, P.M. 315, 911, 1110, P.Z., P.P.G.S.W. Sussex; Coleman, P.M. 19 and 40; E. W. Young, W.M. 704, and S.D. 902, London; Terrey, P.M. 570 and 40; Wood, Sec. 40; Glenister, S.D. 40; Lewns, 40; Veness, 40; Gaze, 40; Wells, I.G. 40; G. Weller, P.M. and Treas. 40. The lodge was opened punctually at the hour named, 3.30, and the W.M. elect (Bro. C. R. Chandler), duly installed in the chair of K.S. The ceremony was performed in a most thorough manner by Bro. Lambourn, P.P.G.P. The investiture of officers was then proceeded with, and all Masonic business being ended, the brethren adjourned to the George Hotel, where a really splendid banquet was provided, and altogether a most enjoyable evening was spent, several of the brethren who had travelled many miles to be present having to leave early. A bright future under the presidency of its very able and courteous W.M. and P.M.'s, is, we are sure, in store for the Abbey Lodge.

LANCASTER.—Duke of Lancaster Lodge (No. 1353).—The brethren of this flourishing lodge celebrated the festival of St. John the Evangelist on Wednesday evening, the 3rd inst., at the County Hotel, Lancaster, when forty-one brethren sat down. After the good things were partaken of, and the dessert placed on the table, the chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. James Coulon, surrounded both on his right and left by Past Masters of the lodge. The Senior and Junior Wardens, Bros. Dale and Wolfendall, were in their accustomed places. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given, and responded to with acclamation. The Healths of "The M.W.G.M., His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales," "The Pro G.M., the Earl of Carnarvon," "The D.G.M., the M.W. and P.G.M. of West Lancashire, the Earl of Skelmersdale," "The G. Lodge Officers and P.G. Officers" were drank with full Masonic honours, and with the utmost enthusiasm. The S.W., Bro. Dale, proposed "The Masonic Charities," in appropriate terms, which was responded to by Bro. Bell, P.M., who dwelt in a lengthy speech on the great benefit and good those charities were doing, in educating and training both boys and girls, so that they might maintain themselves in after life in respectability, and exhorted the brethren to be liberal in their donations, not only to the schools, but also to the Institution for the relief of aged Freemasons and their Widows. "The Bishop of the Diocese and Clergymen of all Denominations" was proposed by Bro. Bell, P.M., and heartily received. Bro. Acton, I.P.M. proposed in eulogistic terms "The Health of the W.M." (Bro. Coulon), which was received with the utmost applause. The W.M. (Bro. Coulon), in responding, said he felt great difficulty to discover appropriate words to thank the brethren for the very hearty manner they received his name. He was only too willing to do all that he could to advance the interests of his lodge on true Masonic principles, although he had not done a great deal for the last six months, owing to the peculiar situation he held, having been absent on more than one occasion from the meetings of the lodge, when important business had to be conducted, but there were true and faithful Past Masters of the lodge, who always rendered assistance during his absence, but as they had a large amount of work in hand, he would endeavour to pull up for lost time during the next six months. The W.M. proposed "The Health of the I.P.M., Bro. Acton," stating that no officer could work harder for his lodge than Bro. Acton had done. He was then performing the double office of Acting Secretary and I.P.M. The toast was enthusiastically received. Bro. Acton in responding said it gave him continued pleasure the harder he worked. He was very fond of Masonic work, and was never tired of its operation. Bro. Heald, P.M., proposed "The Health of the Wardens." Bro. Dale, S.W., and Bro. Wolfendall, J.W., responded, in very appropriate terms. Bro. Scott proposed "The Treasurer and Secretary," Bro. Bell, P.M., and Bro. Acton, I.P.M., responded. Bro. Stewardson, W.M. 950, Hesketh Lodge, Fleetwood, proposed "The Junior Officers," and stated that however well the Master and Wardens worked, it was also essential they should have Deacons who could perform their duties to the lodge with satisfaction, as a great deal of good taste was required by the Deacons in advancing the candidates in a suitable manner for the degrees, and he might venture to say that no lodge could have better Deacons than the Duke had always possessed, Bro. Ellershaw, S.D.; Bro. Parker, I.G.; Bro. Beeby, Tyler; and Bro. Allison, Asst. Tyler, responded. Bro. Heald proposed "Continued Prosperity to the Duke of Lancaster Lodge," and stated that he was proud to see the position the Duke of Lancaster, 1353, had attained. Little more than five years ago he, with five other brothers, deposited money to meet the expenses attending on the consecration of the lodge, and the installation of the first Master (Bro. Hartly); he looked back to that time now with pride, as he could now tell them that in the brief space of five years no less than 100, members were initiated in the Duke of Lancaster Lodge but, from causes which could not be helped, there remain only 80 or 90 members on the roll. The Duke of Lancaster, he believed, was destined to be the first lodge in Lancaster, and he trusted the brethren would persevere until that object was attained. Bro. Bill, P.M., and Bro. Scott responded. Bro. Acton, I.P.M., then proposed "Prosperity to the Lodges of Lancaster and Morecambe" in very suitable terms. Bro. Bond, in responding for the Lodge of Fortitude, was highly pleased and gratified with the evening's entertainment, and eulogised the W.M., Bro. Coulon, in flattering terms for his genial and easy manner in conducting the business while presiding over them that evening, having been present for the first time at any of their banquets, he was extremely delighted, everybody seemed to be at home, and all were imbued with brotherly feeling. He thanked the W.M. for his kindness, and would long remember that evening. Bro. Dale responded on behalf of the Morecambe Lodge, and stated that it was progressing as well as could be expected. Bro. Stewardson, W.M., gave the Tyler's toast, which brought the meeting to a close. The night proved very unpropitious, a snow-storm was raging during the time, or about 60 brethren were expected.

NEWPORT.—Albert Edward Prince of Wales Lodge (No. 1429).—This young and flourishing lodge held its annual Festival of St. John on Thursday, the 11th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, Dock-street. There were present Bro. Capt. S. G. Homfray, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Monmouthshire, and several brethren of Provincial Grand Lodge; Bros. C. Rowe, W.M.; F. Orders, W.M. elect, who was well supported by a strong muster of brethren from Cardiff, Pontypool, and the Newport lodges. The business of the day was that of placing Bro. F. Orders in the chair of K.S., the installation ceremony being admirably worked by Bro. C. Rowe in his peculiar and inimitable style. The W.M. then invested his officers for the ensuing year:—Bros. C. Rowe, I.P.M.; J. Horner, S.W.; W. Twist, J.W.; H. Richard, S.D.; J. D. Saunders, J.D.; J. Horner, Treas.; W. M. Locke, Sec.; A. Taylor, I.G.; Thomas and Welsford, Stewards; Fletcher, Tyler. Before closing the lodge cheques were handed over by the Treasurer to the D.P.G.M. for the following Masonic Charities—ten guineas to the Boys' School, the like sum to the Girls' School, ten pounds to the Aged and Decayed Freemasons' Fund, and the like sum to the Widows of Aged and Decayed Freemasons' Fund, still leaving a good balance in the hands of the Treasurer. Lodge being closed in ancient form the brethren adjourned to the King's Head Hotel, where an excellent banquet was placed before the brethren by Mr. G. F. Gretton. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been disposed of, came that which was decidedly the great feature of the evening, viz., the presentation, by the W.M., of a beautiful Past Master's jewel, which he attached to the breast of Bro. C. Rowe, P.M., in the name of the officers and brethren, as a slight token for the valuable services he has rendered to the lodge. The Tyler's toast brought to a close one of the most successful and enjoyable meetings that it has been the privilege of many to be present at.

PLUMSTEAD—United Military Lodge (No. 1536).—The first gathering in the new year of the members and friends of the above flourishing lodge took place on Friday, the 12th inst., at Bro. Plaisted's fine hall on Anglesea Hill, when its popularity, and the esteem in which the W.M., Bro. W. Weston, is held by the brethren around was evinced by the large circle of visitors present, amongst whom were the following:—Bros. C. Coupland, P.M. 913 and 706, and P.G.J.D. Kent; T. Butt, W.M. 700; E. W. Young, W.M. 704, and S.D. 902; A. Penfold, I.P.M. 813; J. McDougall, P.M. 913; W. Rushting, S.W. 972; T. Hutton, S.D. 13; W. Cobb, 700; J. Chadwick, 700; C. Beard, 700; J. H. Roberts, 700; W. McCoy, 700; A. Upperton, 913; G. Griffith, 913; W. Loneragan, 913; D. C. Capon, 913; F. C. Lyons, 913 and 700; H. Peyce, 913; A. Jessup, Sec. 913; T. W. Robinson, 13; J. S. Bonu, 569; J. Wilkins, 569; J. Scully, 41; J. A. Milne, 1424; C. Mont, 1331; and C. Jolly, 913. Beside the W.M., the following officers were present:—Bros. Capt. C. Phillips, P.M., and P.M. 13 and 706; R. Croisdale, P.M., and P.M. 706; G. Spinks, S.W.; H. G. Picken, J.W.; J. Murphy, Treas.; T. Cooper, Sec.; J. Shaw, S.D.; J. McCaffery, J.D.; D. Deeves, W.S., and officiating I.G.; H. Harding, Org.; and J. Lackland, O.G. The lodge having been duly opened, Sergeant-Major R. F. Robertson, R.A., was, after approval, initiated into Masonry. Bro. J. Shaw and Bro. R. M. Bell were passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Hawkins was raised to the Sublime Degree, all three ceremonies being well and impressively worked by the W.M. and his excellent officers. Bro. P. M. Croisdale then gave notice that an evening party would be organized by the officers of the lodge, the proceeds of which would be devoted to the funds of the lodge, so that, as he said, they might be as early as possible in a position to contribute towards the magnificent charities of the Order. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned for refreshments. After the usual loyal and Masonic toasts had been honoured, Bro. Coupland, whose name had been coupled with that of the P.G. Officers of Kent, said it seemed daily to him becoming of the greatest importance that Bro. Eastes, their D.P.G.M., should visit that part of the district, for in it were large bodies of Masons, and he should see for himself the excellent manner in which the lodges were conducted. He felt proud to visit such a lodge, it was a pleasure as it was a duty to be present, and see the good working done in it, he saw perfect obedience, order, and regularity in all things, and he felt sure of its prosperity. The W.M. in reply to a very flattering reception of his name, said he felt fully alive to the responsibilities of his position, and while he held that office he should never shirk those responsibilities. He trusted in the new year every prosperity would attend them, and in conclusion wished them all "A Happy New Year." After "The Health of the Initiates" had been duly honoured and replied to, that of "The Visitors" was proposed, and in reply Bro. Young said he had never seen better working in any lodge, and wished them every success. Bro. Butt as well replied. Bro. Coupland said he should convey to the Prov. G. Lodge of Kent his great approbation of the good work done in the lodge, it was a pleasure to see the manner in which the Deacons did their work, and if there was one thing he liked to see done well, it was the Deacon's work, and their Senior Deacon, Bro. Shaw, was an officer they might well be proud of. Bro. Shaw had had the great pleasure of assisting to make his own son a Mason, and he could not help thinking, as he saw Bro. Shaw doing his duty that night, assisting to pass his son to the Second Degree, that it must be a proud moment in his life, and he hoped in his heart that the son might be worthy of the sire. Bro. McDougall for the "Pattison," and Bro. Hutton for the "Union Waterloo" Lodges, having replied, Bro. Thomson, who has just arrived from India, spoke of the great impetus the Craft had received through the visit of their Royal Grand Master, and thanked them for their reception of him that night. The Past Master's Health followed, and P.M. Croisdale eloquently replied. Bro. Sparks returned thanks for the officers, and Bro. Harding for a great compliment paid him from the chair as their Organist, which was well deserved. Bro. C. Jolly received an ovation as "our representative," the W.M. thanking him in the name of the lodge for his excellent reports during the past year, to which the brethren responded, and Bro. Jolly, in the course of his remarks, trusted that they would continue to support the Freemason as the recognized organ of the Craft, and the proprietor, who laboured so hard for its acknowledged excellence. The Tylers' toast then concluded a most pleasant evening.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—A meeting of this lodge was convened at the Albany Hotel on Wednesday, the 10th inst. Amongst the officers present were Bros. W. Wigginton, P.G.S. of Works Middlesex, I.P.M., &c., acting W.M.; Knaggs, S.W.; Court, J.W.; Taylor, S.D., acting Sec.; Tomlinson, P.M., &c., Treas.; Vaughan, J.D. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, a communication from Bro. Saunders, the W.M., was read, explaining the reason of his absence. The ceremony of initiation having been rehearsed, the interesting ceremony of presenting the I.P.M. with an elegant souvenir of his two years' Mastership, in the shape of a massive claret jug, then took place. The presentation was made upon behalf of the members of the lodge by Bro. Tomlinson, the Treasurer, in a very able and appropriate address. The testimonial bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the members of the Francis Burdett, No. 1503, to Brother Wigginton, in recognition of his having founded the lodge." The I.P.M. having acknowledged the gift in very feeling terms, the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren partook of a collation. Bro. Monckton, Chandos and Buckingham Lodge, was a visitor. The toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "H.R.H. the M.W. G.M.," "The Prp and Deputy Grand Masters, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," "The R.W. the P.G.M. of Middlesex," "The Deputy P.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present" were given from the chair briefly but pertinently. "The Health of the W.M., Bro. W. H. Saunders," was proposed by Bro. Birchill, P.M., and warmly received. The toast of "The Past Masters," coupled with the name of the I.P.M., followed, and was given by Bro. Knaggs, S.W. Bro. Wigginton, in his reply, expressed his gratification at the manner in which his name had been mentioned by the S.W. in connection with the toast, and also for the very hearty way it had been received by the brethren. He also took occasion to again thank the members of the lodge for the presentation that had taken place that evening, which gift he said he should ever regard as a most cherished memorial of his connection with No. 1503, and in concluding his remarks he stated that he should hand it down to his family as an heirloom. The next toast, that of "The Visitors," gave Bro. Monckton an opportunity of acknowledging the compliment in a few well chosen words. The healths of "The Treasurer," "The Principal Officers," and "The Junior Officers" then followed, and were acknowledged by Bros. Tomlinson, Treasurer; Knaggs, S.W.; and Bro. Vaughan, J.D. The Tyler's toast, at half-past ten o'clock, terminated a very pleasant evening. The next meeting of this lodge will be held on the second Wednesday in February next.

YORK.—Eboracum Lodge (No. 1611).—The first banquet in connection with this lodge, which was consecrated last August, was held at the Queen's Hotel, Micklegate, on Thursday evening. There was an excellent attendance of the brethren of the lodge, and the banquet was served in first-class style by Bro. H. Churchill, of the Queen's Hotel. The W.M., Bro. Thos. Cooper, P.M., presided, and was supported by the Right Worshipful the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. J. P. Bell, P.S.G. Deacon, England; Bro. Ansell, P.M., 57, Hull; Bro. P. H. Rowland, P.M.; Bro. G. Balmford, P.M., Treas., and other brethren. The other officers of the lodge were:—Bros. T. B. Whythead, S.W.; J. S. Cumberland, J.W.; J. Kay, Sec.; M. Cooper, J.D.; G. Simpson, D.C.; C. G. Padel, Org.; J. G. Sells, I.G.; and there were present a number of brethren of the lodge and visitors, including Bros. Toozes, 57, Hull; Kidd, 57, Hull; J. Terry, J. F. Stephenson, J. Morgan, J. Mason, T. Smith, sen., M. Millington, J. F. Taylor, Irving, A. T. B. Turner, T. D. Smith, J. Ward, Prov. G. Pust; J. Blenkins, P. Pearson, W. H. Bland &c. Letters had been received from the Right W. Prov. G.M., the Earl of Zetland; from the Hon. W. T. Orde-Powlett, Prov. S.G.W.; M. C. Peck, Prov. G. Sec.; W. Hunt, P.M., Kingston, Hull; G. Wilkinson, W.M. Minerva Lodge, Hull; the Rev. W. Valentine, and others, expressing regret at not being able to be present. The usual loyal Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and the healths of the Prov. Grand Master and Dep. Prov. Grand Master were enthusiastically received. In replying to the toast of "The W. Bro. J. P. Bell, Esq., M.D., J.P., Past Senior Grand Deacon of England, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of North and East Yorkshire, and the officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge," Dr. Bell spoke in complimentary terms of the progress made by this lodge, as well as the manner in which it had been conducted since its consecration the previous August, and expressed his conviction that its establishment had been a well-judged step in the right direction. In proposing the toast of "The Visiting Brethren," the S.W. alluded to the circumstance of the banquet, having been given specially in honour of the Masters and Wardens of the Humber, Minerva, and Kingston Lodges, several of whom were present, who had supported the petition of the originators of the Eboracum Lodge. A most pleasant evening was spent, the proceedings being enlivened by musical selections, which were contributed by the Senior and Junior Wardens, the Organist, the Treasurer, and Bros. T. Smith and J. Shillito.

INSTRUCTION.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—This lodge met at No. 111, Cheapside, E.C., on Thursday, the 18th inst., Bro. Edward Moody, P.M. 1426, presiding;

Bros. Shaw, S.W.; Brown, J.W.; Walmisley, S.D.; Bain, J.D.; Parker, I.G.; Spiegel, acting Sec.; James Stevens, P.M.; Blackie, Blissett, Bain, Blume, and others. The lodge was opened and minutes read. As these raised important questions relating to management and change of place of meeting, a long discussion arose, and it was decided to adjourn further consideration thereof to the evening of Thursday, the 25th inst. We are requested to inform the members that their attendance on that occasion will be much esteemed. The lodge was passed to the Second Degree, and subsequently to the Third Degree, when, Bro. Blissett, acting as candidate, the ceremony of raising was ably rehearsed. Bro. Blissett, of the Rifle Lodge, Edinburgh, and Bro. J. Bain, of Commercial Lodge, 360, were elected members.

WHITEHAVEN—Sun, Square and Compasses Chapter (No. 119).—A convocation of this chapter was held at Freemasons' Hall, College-street, on the 19th inst., M.E. Comps. Jno. Barr, P.Z., as Z.; Wm. Sandwith, H.; J. R. Sickie, J. There was a large muster of the companions. Comp. Barr, in the absence of Comp. Fearon, performed his duties with his accustomed ability, and considering that this was the first meeting since the election of officers, Comp. Wm. Sandhurst, H.; J. R. Sickie, J.; Jno. Rosling, A.S., who, in the absence of Comp. W. F. Lamondy, acted as P.S., and the other officers went through their work in a very satisfactory manner. There were two brethren to exalt, and nine to ballot for exaltation. The ballot having been taken and proving unanimous, five brethren who were present were exalted to the sublime Degree of R.A. Masons. It was proposed, and unanimously agreed to, that power be given to the committee to purchase a new set of R.A. banners, &c., suitable to the position which the Chapter holds, as the largest and most influential in the province. A proposal for exaltation having been seconded and agreed to, there being no further business before the Chapter, it was closed in form, and the companions adjourned to a slight refreshment provided by the chapter, and a very pleasant evening was passed.

ABERGAVERN—Philanthropic Chapter (No. 818).—The members of this chapter met at the Masonic Hall, on Friday, 19th January. Amongst those present were Ex. Comps. W. Williams, as Z.; Crawshaw Bailey, as H.; C. Daniel, as J.; and Captain S. Geo. Homfray, P. Std. Br., as G.C. and P.G.H. of Monmouthshire. Comp. Horsford was then exalted by the M.E.Z., and the lectures were delivered in a masterly and most impressive manner by Ex. Comp. Captain S. G. Homfray, who afterwards installed the following companions as Principals for the ensuing year: Comps. Crawshaw Bailey, as M.E.Z.; C. J. Daniel, as H.; Gorvin, as J. The chapter was then closed in harmony, a vote of thanks having been passed to the P.G.H. for his kindness in attending to perform the ceremony in a manner which few can equal him in.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 34).—The monthly meeting of this ancient lodge was held on Tuesday, 16th inst., within their own hall, at 213, Buchanan-street. The W. Master, Bro. William Kyle, jun., presided, supported on the dais, and in their respective places, by Bros. D. M. Nelson, I.P.M.; Thomas Fletcher, P.M.; David Horne, S.M.; Peter Brownlie, S.W.; James Kyle, J.W.; John Ferguson, Treas.; William Cochrane, Sec.; Alex. Peddie, S.D.; Hugh Tennent, J.D. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes of last regular and one or two special meetings read and approved of, the late Treasurer, Bro. James Dunn, read the financial statement for the past year. The debit of his account showed—To cash on hand received from preceding Treasurer, £8 18. 6d.; to cash in bank, £123 18s. 10d.; 209 test fees, £31 7s. 4d.; 47 initiations at five guineas, £246 15s.; 9 affiliations, £23 13s.; 63 tickets sold for annual festival, £23 12s. 6d.; 84 tickets sold for annual excursion, £56 14s.; one railway ditto, 4s. 2d.; drawn from bank, £110; interest on bank account, £3 3s. 3d.; added 10 bank account during year, 13s. 3d.; total £628 15. 9d. The following is the credit account for the year:—By tradesmen's accounts, £10 7s.; property tax and other assessments, £10 4s. 6d.; interest on bond, £22 6s. 4d.; feu duty, £1 4s. 9d.; insurance, £1 19s.; fees to Grand Lodge for Master and Wardens, £1 5s.; to ditto for diplomas, £26 18s. 6d.; annual contribution to Prov. Grand Lodge, £2; subscription to Royal Infirmary, £2 2s.; to poor brethren, per W.M., £6; to Prov. Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund, £15 10s.; stock account, £96 12s. 4d.; expenses of festival, £31 9s. 2d.; expenses of excursion, £58 15s. 7d.; salaries, £20 10s.; sundries, £72 2s. 10d.; by bank, £110 13s. 3d.; by cash on hand, £13 10s. 1d.; by cash in bank, £124 11s. 4d.; total £628 15. 9d. The Treasurer added that he might point out, as showing the satisfactory state of the lodge affairs at present, that the amount of cash on hand at the end of the financial year was £6 more than it was at the beginning; and, moreover, that during the year the sum of £67 4s. had been expended in buying up shares of the lodge property. The financial statement was endorsed by the auditors, Bros. Fletcher and M'Millan, Past Masters, as having been found correct, and its approval was unanimously adopted, on the motion of Bro. David Horne, Sub-Master, seconded by Bro. John D. Young, Past Deputy Master. The Chairman remarked that the report showed a very satisfactory state of matters generally, and it was specially gratifying to find that the lodge had been able to buy in so many shares of the property. He thought a hearty vote of thanks was due to Bro. Dunn for the way in which he had managed the Treasurer's department during the past year. The vote was accorded by universal acclamation. Application was then made for admission into the Order from Mr. Alexander Stevenson, and there being no objections, the candidate was brought in and received the First Degree at the hands of the W.M. The lodge was then called to refreshment, when a specially agreeable hour was spent. Amongst the toasts proposed and duly honoured were "The Three Grand Lodges," "The Provincial Grand Lodge of Glasgow," and "The Last Laid Stone of Lodge St. John" (Bro. Stevenson). That of "The P.G.L. of Glasgow" was coupled with the name of Bro. W. H. Bickerton, P.G. Sec., who, in thanking the brethren for the compliment, said that having been only appointed to the office which he held about a week ago, he could not be expected to speak of the duties connected therewith from experience. However, he might state that before accepting it he had well considered the matter, and he had only to say that none of the prestige pertaining to it should be lost on his part in keeping its affairs in good working order. The lodge was afterwards closed in due and ancient form.

PAISLEY.—St. Mirren Lodge (No. 129).—A meeting of the brethren of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, 17th inst., in the Globe Hotel, for the purpose of entertaining the late W.M. of the lodge, Bro. J. Gilmour presided, and Bro. A. Wallace discharged the duties of Croupier. During the evening, in proposing "The Health of the late W.M., Bro. Edmonds," Bro. Wallace referred to the eminent services which he had rendered to the lodge during his term of office, and also to the cause of Masonry in general for a great many years past. In the name of a number of the brethren, Bro. Wallace then presented Bro. Edmonds with a handsome gold watch, which bore the following inscription:—"Presented to Bro. H. S. Edmonds, I.P.M. No. 129, by a few friends who appreciate his past labours, and esteem him as a brother and a man." Bro. Edmonds appropriately acknowledged the gift. A very happy evening was spent.

TARBOLTON.—Lodge St. David (No. 133).—This old lodge, which received its first charter in February, 1773, after being in a state of dormancy for about 32 years, was resuscitated on Monday afternoon, 16th inst., by the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire. In the unavoidable absence of the Prov. Grand Master, Colonel Mure, the ceremony was performed by the Prov. Grand Secretary, Bro. Robert Wylie, who was supported by Bros. J. G. Halkett, Past S.P.M.; John Caruthers, G.S.W.; Jas. Gibson, G.J.W.; J. A. Ferguson, P.S.W.; John Tweed, P.J.W.; and Bro. Wheeler, of Mother Kilwinning; Bros. Nelson, W.M. 22, and John Mackay, Past Master; Hugh Shaw, W.M. 109; John Pollock, W.M. 51; Sam. A. Clark, W.M. 86; J. S. McIlwraith, W.M. 124; Jas. McCosh, W.M. 135; John Ramsay, W.M. 138; Thos. Harvey, W.M. 179; W. D. Chambers, W.M. 204; and D. Reid, W.M. 549. Letters of apology for absence were read from Sir James Ferguson, Bart., P.P. G.M.; R. W. Cochrane Patrick, of Woodside, D.P.G.M.; W. Ralston Patrick, of Trearne, S.P.G.M.; Roger Montgomerie, M.P., Proxy G.M. Grand Lodge, Edinburgh; J. H. Neilson, G.S. Grand Lodge, Edinburgh; D. Murray Lyon, S.G.W. The interesting ceremony of installing the office-bearers of the Lodge St. David was then proceeded with as follows:—James Wallace Dunlop Adair, of Berchgrove, W.M.; Dr. Faulds, D.M.; John Faulds, S.M.; James Muir, S.W.; James Gibson, J.W.; Dr. Wm. Muir, Secretary; William Rennie, Treasurer; W. R. Gibb, S.D.; W. Davidson, J.D.; Joseph Davidson, S.S.; Hector Alexander, J.S.; John Loudon, I.G.; W. Cowan, Tyler. Considerable interest was attached to the reopening of this lodge, from the fact that it was in the Lodge St. David, Tarbolton, that the immortal bard, Bro. Robert Burns, first saw Masonic light, on 4th July, 1781, and was passed and raised on the 1st October of the same year. The name Burns, however, has always been associated with the St. James's (Kilwinning), Tarbolton, both lodges having held their meetings in Tarbolton. Burns was, at the period of his initiation, 23 years of age, and was raised to the honourable position of Deputy-Master of St. James's, as the minutes of the lodge containing his own signature amply testify, and at this time he seems to have taken a warm interest in everything relating to the Craft.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. George (No. 333).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street, on Wednesday, 10th inst., Bro. J. Findlay, W.M., President; supported by Bros. Alexander Thomson, I.P.M.; Jas. Forsyth, D.M.; Robt. Anderson, S.W.; R. Fairbairn, J.W.; Andrew Dunn, Treasurer; and Archibald McIntyre, Secretary. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. James Booth W.M. No. 87 (Thistle); John Law, D.M. No. 571 (Dramatic), &c. The lodge having been opened, and the minutes of last regular and one emergency meeting read and approved of, the application of a candidate for admission into the Order and the lodge was submitted, and he having been balloted for, and the ballot appearing clear, it was sustained accordingly. Previous to the work of initiation, the question of the annual festival of the lodge came up, and a short conversational discussion ensued as to whether it should this year take the form of a soiree or a supper. Ultimately, it was moved by Bro. Archibald McIntyre (Secretary), seconded by Bro. James Miller, and agreed to nem. con., that it be a supper and ball, open to ladies and friends of members, whether in or out of the Order, and to come off as near as possible to the end of next month. The candidate, having been duly prepared, was then admitted, and received the E.A. Degree at the hands of the W.M. Thereafter the lodge was raised to the Degree of Fellow Craft, when a brother, formerly initiated, was passed to that Degree also by the Master. There being no further business the lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Caledonian Railway (No. 354).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Wednesday, 17th inst., within the Masonic Hall, at No. 30 Hope-st.

The W.M., Bro. Adam B. Ferguson, presided, supported by Bros. D. Buchanan, D.M.; John Harley, S.W.; Wm. Anderson, J.W., and other office-bearers. The meeting was more numerously attended than any one of this lodge that has been held for a considerable period, there being in all no fewer than about 120 brethren present, including many visiting brethren. Amongst the latter were Bros. D. M. Nelson, I.P.M., Lodge St. John, No. 34, and Senr. Deacon Grand Lodge of Scotland; Jas. Findlay, W.M. Lodge St. George, No. 333; John McInnes, W.M. Lodge Clyde, No. 408; David Reid, W.M. Lodge St. Andrew, No. 465; William Phillips, W.M. Lodge Clydesdale, No. 556, and others. The lodge having been duly opened, two approved candidates for admission into the order received the E.A. Degree at the hands of the W.M., Bro. Ferguson. The lodge was then called from labour to refreshment, and a pleasant evening ensued. The toast "Prosperity to Lodge Caledonian Railway, No. 354," was proposed by Bro. D. M. Nelson, cordially pledged by the unusually numerous visiting brethren present, and acknowledged by the W.M. Thereafter the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

WATERFORD.—Waterford Lodge (No. 5).—The members of this lodge met at the Masonic Hall, the Mall, on New Year's Day, for the installation of officers for the ensuing year. Bro. T. Calendre was installed W.M. After transacting business, the lodge adjourned.

WATERFORD.—Royal Shamrock Lodge (No. 32).—The members of this lodge assembled at their lodge-rooms, Olave's Place, on Thursday evening, for the purpose of installing officers for the ensuing year, and to celebrate the festival of St. John. There was a large attendance of members and visitors from other lodges present. Bro. E. Brooks was installed W.M. After the transaction of business, the brethren partook of a sumptuous dinner, and having enjoyed a pleasant evening, separated in peace, love, and harmony.

CLONMEL.—Donoughmore Lodge (No. 44).—The members of this lodge, met at their lodge rooms, Nelson-street, Clonmel, on Tuesday, the 2nd inst. Bro. Stephen Moore, M.P., Worshipful Master, presided. There was a full attendance of brethren. The lodge opened in E.A. Degree, and after the initiation of a candidate, proceeded to the installation of officers for the ensuing year. Bro. Hugh T. Sayers was installed W.M.; E. Smyth, S.W.; and L. Leachman, J.W. After the ceremony of installation, Bro. C. Ffennell, as Senior P.M., proposed a vote of thanks to Bro. S. Moore for his very efficient services and successful efforts to promote the cause of Masonry during his year of office as W.M., and, at the same time, on behalf of the members of the lodge, presented him with a golden Past Master's jewel as a token of their esteem and approbation. The vote was seconded by Bro. Gerald Fitzgerald, and carried by acclamation. Bro. Moore returned thanks in suitable language, and expressed himself as willing and anxious at all times to do what he could for the welfare of Masonry in general, and Lodge 44 in particular. After the transaction of some further ordinary business, lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony.

WATERFORD.—Abercorn Lodge (No. 297). held their first communication in the new year on Monday evening, when there was one of the largest lodge meetings held in Waterford for several years. The Rev. J. DeRenny, W.M., presided. There were about forty brethren present, amongst whom we noticed Bros. Rea, S.W.; Nelson, J.W.; Barr, J.D.; Lumsden, J.D.; Stevenson, I.G.; Behm, P.M.; Pearne, P.M.; Moreland, P.M.; Whalley, P.P.G.J.W.; Dart, J.P.M.; Cherry, P.M. 5; McLean, P.M. 32; Davis, P.M.; Smith; Rev. J. W. Bell, Rev. G. Phair, Sinclair, Davidson, Rev. J. Hickson, Carden, Carr, 53; Palmer, P.M. 32; Trigg, Meredith, A. Smith. The lodge was opened in the First Degree, and after some routine business had been transacted, another stone was laid in the Masonic Temple, in a superior workmanlike way; after this Bro. Price was duly installed as W.M. for the current year. The newly-installed Master, in the most kind and hearty language, gave expression to the feelings of personal regard and esteem in which the lodge holds its late Master, and on their part thanked him for the able manner in which he presided over them during his year of office, and then presented him from the lodge with a life governorship in the Boys' Masonic Orphan School, for which the I.P.M. heartily thanked his brethren. The whole work of the evening reflected the greatest credit on the new lodge, which promises to be one of the best worked and most popular in the province.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Thursday last at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. Col. Peters in the chair. There were also present Bros. A. H. Tattershall, the Rev. Dr. Morris, H. Browne, H. W. Hemsworth, E. H. Finney, Thos. W. White, George Kenning, John Boyd, J. A. Rucker, Collard Moutrie, H. A. Dubois, H. M. Levy, Griffiths Smith, H. Massey (Freemason), J. C. Peacock, W. Stephen, S. Rosenthal, F. Binckes, H. Potter, E. C. Mather (65), and R. W. Little, Secretary.

With respect to the subject mentioned by Bro. Symonds at last meeting, as to the test of the reading of candidates being the same as that of the Educational Department of the Privy Council, it was mentioned that the subject might be remitted to a sub-committee, but Bro. Browne thought that the previous test was sufficient for the Girls' School. The children were nine or ten years of age when admitted, and at that age they ought to read well.

The Secretary informed the brethren that a legacy had been left to the Institution by a Mr. Matthews, who bequeathed his patent for concentrated liquid lime to this Institution, and two others, to be equally divided between the three.

The Secretary then read the balance sheet of the Institution for the last year, which showed receipts to the amount of over £13,000.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

Masonic and General Tidings.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The consecration of this Lodge will take place on Monday next, at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, Aldersgate-street, at half-past four o'clock. The ceremonies of Consecration and Installation will be performed by V.W. Bro. J. Harvey, P.G.D. Grand Secretary, assisted by V.W. Bro. the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, P.G.C.; Bro. Hyde-Pollon, P.D. Prov. G.M.I. of W., and P.G.S.B.; and Bro. Henry Gustavus Bess, Prov. Grand Junior Warden, Middlesex. Bro. John Derby-Alcroft, as previously stated, is the W.M. designate. A full report of the proceedings will appear in our next.

A Stockholm correspondent of the Gottenburg Handels-Tidende states (evidently in error) that the Prince of Wales is expected on the 21st inst. at Stockholm, to assist at the opening of their new Masonic lodge, a ceremony which will take place on that day, which is the birthday of King Oscar II. The new lodge has cost 1,600,000 crowns. Great preparations are being made for the banquet, where more than a thousand brethren are expected to meet; and for the ball which the King gives on the 22nd, and to which 2000 invitations have been sent out.

ART AND OUR HOSPITALS.—Dr. J. Lawrence Hamilton writes from 34 Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park:—"Save for a sea of dreary whitewash, dull distemper, or cheerless paint, most of our hospitals are completely bare and destitute of ornament. If a few philanthropists would each send a spare scrap of art now and again, something would be done to lighten the gloom of the sick ward. A hint in your columns ought to be sufficient to stimulate the munificence of many an art collector, as also the liberality of painters in such a direction.—The Times, 23, January, 1877.

On Wednesday morning Eton College opened at the close of the Christmas vacation with the return of the lower boys, the opening of the school having been deferred in consequence of the floods, which even now cover some parts of the grounds near the College.

A report of the Installation Meeting of the Neptune Lodge, No. 22, which took place on Thursday last, will appear in our next.

The house No. 25, George Square, Edinburgh, which was occupied by Bro. Sir Walter Scott, has been sold by auction for £2725.

We understand that Mr. Augustus Savile Lumley has been appointed her Majesty's Marshal of the Ceremonies in the room of the Honourable Spencer Lyttelton, who has resigned.

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland has appointed Bro. Capt. H. C. Norris (Lodge 599), to be Aide-de-Camp.

The Corporation of Belfast, at a special meeting, appointed a deputation to present a congratulatory address to the Duke of Marlborough, on the occasion of his appointment to the Lord-Lieutenancy of Ireland.

We learn with sincere regret of the death of Mrs. Williams, wife of Bro. Montagu Williams, the eminent barrister, which sad event took place on Wednesday, 24th inst. Much sympathy has been expressed with Bro. Williams by both Bench and Bar at the Middlesex Court on hearing the melancholy intelligence.

At a meeting of the Cherwell Lodge, No. 599, held at the Red Lion Hotel, Banbury, on Monday last, Bro. the Rev. J. Spittal, Vicar of Christchurch, South Banbury, the present Senior Warden, was unanimously elected W.M. for the ensuing year; Bro. R. Havers, P.G.O. of England, was again elected to the office of Treasurer, an office he has held with great benefit to the lodge for a long series of years; Bros. Chamberlin and Fowler were elected Stewards, and Bro. T. Moss, Tyler. The installation of the new W.M. will take place on the 26th of February.

We are requested to state that the next three meetings of the Eccleston Lodge, No. 1624, will be held on February 21st, March 21st, and April 18th, at the Grosvenor Hall, Ebury-square, Pimlico. The Lodge of Instruction meets every Saturday evening in the Grosvenor Club, (not Hall.)

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGE.—Lady Guendaline Talbot, second daughter of the Earl of Shrewsbury, R.W. Prov. Grand Master Staffordshire, was married on Thursday week at Ingestre Church to Colonel Chaplin, M.P. The Bishop of Lichfield performed the ceremony, and was assisted by the Hon. and Rev. A. C. Talbot and the Hon. Rev. W. Talbot, great uncles of the bride. Amongst the distinguished persons present were the Duchess of Sutherland, the Marchioness of Waterford, Lord and Lady Castle-reagh, Lord and Lady Folkestone, Lord and Lady Hather-ton, Mr. H. Chaplin, M.P., and Lady Florence Chaplin. Attending on the bridegroom was the Hon. Evelyn Bos-cowen; and the bridesmaids were Miss F. Chetwynd, Miss Noth, and the Hon. Marian Thelluson. Lady Guendaline was attired in a cream-coloured dress with Brussels lace trimmings, and the bridesmaids in grey cashmere with scarlet trimmings, and hats to match. After the wedding breakfast at Ingestre Hall, the newly-wedded pair left for Alton Towers.

We deeply regret to have to announce the death of the Countess of Limerick, which took place on Wednesday in London.

TO ADVERTISERS.

IS FREEMASONRY MATERIALISM?

In recurring to this subject, we find that we have a good deal to say upon it. The more we consider Archbishop Vaughan's statement and charge alluded to in our last, the more strongly we feel the importance and depth of the whole subject matter, the more we regret that this Roman Catholic Prelate should have permitted his unreasoning fear of Freemasons, and his burning desire to shoot out his "epea pteroenta" to overmaster alike his common sense and his critical perception. And not only this, but in the position he has assumed Archbishop Vaughan is actually laying down the first canon of materialistic infidelity himself as the premise of his entire argument. So let us bring before us the statement he has openly made, "ad fideles," and to the public generally. The history of the world, according to him, has been governed by two potential systems in the past and the present, and the future is to be controlled by a third. And these he places in this order:—1, Paganism; 2, Supernaturalism; 3, Materialism. Hence, according to this distinguished member of the Roman Catholic hierarchy, the principle involved in each of the two first systems or "isms" has successively governed the world; they are pretty much on a level, emanations from the internal and external consciousness of the human psychology, which may be dealt with, and have to be dealt with, philosophically, as fair subjects for human thought and scholastic treatment. Nothing so illogical, so perversely false, or so unhistorical—no position so unreal has ever before been propounded by any but the most destructive of sceptical writers. What will such thinkers as John Henry Newman say to such a specimen of the Roman Catholic teachings of the modern dogmatism of Rome? Have we in this mournful and distorted collocation of historical facts, of religious progress in the world, a scheme of a new alliance between Roman Catholics and material infidelity? It looks very like it, inasmuch as this outburst of positivism is made the "fulcrum" to attack Freemasonry. Now we should like to ask Archbishop Vaughan two other questions. Does he accept the Sacred Record? Does he believe in it? If so, how can he venture to say to a startled audience at Sydney that paganism and supernaturalism governed the past? Long before paganism, as he calls it, existed, was supernaturalism; for paganism is but the perversion of the teaching of the "Theodidaktoi." All the mysteries originally proclaimed without doubt either the whole or a portion of the primeval truth, but which became distorted and perverted in the lapse of ages, and overlooked and forgotten in the childish inventions of men, while their foolish hearts were darkened and they accepted fables instead of truth. But all this time the world saw and received the religion of supernaturalism, and the history of the Jewish people from the call of Abraham, is nothing but a record of the supernatural. To place paganism and supernaturalism on a level, or to make the latter the sequel to the former, to treat them as coequal or correlative systems in the administration of the general government of the world, is a travesty alike of the history of religion and of man, such as we might have expected to find to proceed from the pen of some materialistic writer, but not from the armory of a Roman Catholic Archbishop. We have never perused any statement with more pain, or greater repugnance. It is about as unscientific and as unfounded as anything we have ever seen, and when this proceeds from a writer, who professes to represent an infallible church, and to be protecting the interests of true religion against the assaults of a materialistic infidelity, we are like the sleepers awakened, we can only rub our eyes, and shrug our shoulders, and wonder where we are, and what it all means. If such is in future to be the "modus procedendi" of Roman Catholic historians, professors, philosophers, and critics, then all that Religion can say is, "Save me from my friends," as a more treacherous and unsafe defence of religion itself cannot be made by any who assume to be its defenders and avow themselves its upholders. It has not escaped the notice of the observant and the critical, that in her destructive policy, in order to build up her infallible theory, the Roman Catholic Church has more than once in her history seemed to make an alliance in her propositions and teachings "ad populum," with a so-called philosophical unbelief. Romanism is to be the refuge of the weak, the distressed, the weary, the hesitating, the doubting, the depressed; and this coquetting with a pseudo liberalism of thought and declaration, may be made to subserve the cause of a corrective and a victorious infallibility. We write all this in no feeling of denominational controversy, nor with any wish to dilate upon Romanism, quâ Romanism, inasmuch as we are Freemasons, and have nothing to do with the contentions of Christians, or the doubts and debates of churches or sects. But, when a distinguished member of a denominational body, for the purpose mainly of assailing a perfectly peaceful and harmless, and loyal, and religious Order, like our own, proceeds coolly to give us "history in ruins," and to rend in pieces the whole framework of the religious witness, of the moral government of T.G.A.O.T.U., we feel it to be our duty calmly to point out the hopeless and illogical nature of his arguments, and the utter fallacy of his baneful conclusions. But in saying what we have said, hastily and imperfectly at the best, we have but fringed, so to speak, the outside of the question, and as it is a very important one per se, and in its relation to us all, we shall proceed to consider in our next what is this materialism of which Archbishop Vaughan speaks so glibly and so dogmatically. The subject has grown, as our readers will note, upon our hands, but such is not our fault, but the fault of the hasty and unsound inductions of, no doubt an honest, but mistaken and irate controversialist.

THE DISAPPOINTMENTS OF LIFE.

That life is full of disappointments we all of us are well aware. Indeed, if there is one word more than another inscribed on all the edifices of man it is this—disappointment. Our hopes are falsified, our dreams fade away, realization is not anticipation, plans fail, bright visions change into darkness, and too often the joyous hours of youth are clouded over by the sterner experiences of manhood, by the sadder sensibilities of old age. Perhaps the most remarkable feature of this world's hopes, and promises, and pursuits, and gifts, is the character of disappointment which clings to them from first to last, never leaves them nor forsakes them, and speaks with full-voiced, if solemn pathos, alike to the inexperienced as well as the experienced, the young as well as the old, the prosperous as well as the unfortunate, the grave as well as the gay. Go where we will, do what we may, whatever, in fact, may be the labour of our hands or of our minds, disappointment lurks, as it were, like a worm beneath the luxuriant foliage, within the grateful fruit, tainting, cankering, destroying all. No station in life, no rank, no calling, no wealth, no power, is exempt from disappointment's chilling grasp, and amidst our highest happiness or greatest success, disappointment confronts us all on the way, often marring noblest plans, breaking fondest hearts, and throwing its gloomy shade over the exulting trust of youth, the calm assurance of maturity, the serene imbecility of old age. Sad often it is as life passes on, and time and we both grow old, to note how disappointment ever interferes with our gentlest aspirations, or turns into nothingness our most faithful strivings. No life is exempt from its withering influence, no lot is free from its deadening powers, from first to last, from our cradles to our graves, we still are doomed to disappointment. The happiness we strive for eludes our grasp, the blessings we enjoy perish with the using, the hopes we entertain come to nothing, the affections we cherish are blighted in the bud, and day by day, and hour by hour, the experience of the past is the experience of the present, "vanity of vanities, all is vanity." The houses we build, the homes we make, the ends we seek, the children we train, the countless sympathies, affections, longings, efforts of our own imperfect nature, all fail us and all fade from us, in some sad hour of earthly trial, and disappointment leaves us often nothing behind but the sad dull decay of morbid suffering years, the wreck of earthly happiness, the crumbling array of our own poor little castle in the air, which we have taken such pains to raise, which to-day is, and to-morrow is not, the hopeless sense of an unfillable void. If we look beneath the surface of things, and note the inner currents of human struggles, we shall find that disappointment is the ceaseless condition of humanity, inseparably attendant on everything of earth, and intended, no doubt in the good providence of God, as a wholesome medicine, a needful corrective, to warn us, control us, restrain us, to lift up our hearts and minds, amid passing and temporal things, to those which are enduring, nay eternal. We have been led into these reflections by the sad intelligence, officially reported in another page, of the death of Lillian Mary Nelson, one of the most promising girls in our noble Institution, and daughter of our late lamented and most zealous Bro. R. R. Nelson, P.G.S. for West Yorkshire. To all Freemasons the premature demise of this young and intelligent pupil will be a subject of deep fraternal regret, but to those of us who knew Bro. R. R. Nelson in the flesh, and appreciated his energy, and shared in his work, the matter will appeal most forcibly and warmly to our hearts as well as to our memories. For we shall recall at once his many years of earnest labour for the Charities, first under our lamented Bro. Dr. Fearnley, and then under our esteemed Bro. Bentley Shaw, in the happier days of Lord Ripon's constitutional rule, and we shall feel deeply for the twice afflicted widow, and truly condole with her, on her irreparable bereavement. It is always saddening to the human mind to realize the passing away of early promise, bright hopes, high excellences, abounding graces; and there are none of us who will not mourn to hear to-day of a happy career thus sadly closed, and of those disappointed hopes, those natural expectations which have ended in time, but not, we will believe, in eternity, both for that widowed mother and that mourning family. The best wishes and hopes of the Craft go with them all.

A BIT OF NEWS.

The Westminster Gazette, that respectable Roman Catholic paper, is just now greatly moved internally. From "Roma la Santa" comes to that well-informed journal, from its special and accurate correspondent, the startling and ill-timed bit of news that Prince Humbert has received Prince Louis Napoleon into Freemasonry. Thereupon the Westminster Gazette waxes virtuously indignant at such a very improper proceeding, and proceeds to point out how very ticklish is the position in which the Empress Eugénie and her son stand in respect of the Sovereign Pontiff, and how displeased he is with their sayings and doings at home, their visits to the Quirinale, their friendly relation above all with the Italian Royal family. Will the editor of the Westminster Gazette allow excommunicated Freemasons to tender to him a humble morsel of advice? Will he kindly permit us to suggest that he had far better leave the Empress Eugénie and her son alone? They have both earned for themselves the good will and kindly regards of our English people, and we venture to deem it a great act of impertinence on anybody's part to spy into their movements, either with the hateful malevolence of party, or the baneful slander of cackling geese. Curiously enough, as Freemasons, we do not believe the story. In the first place we are not aware that Prince Humbert is a Freemason, and secondly, we are ignorant of any authority given to him to admit Prince Louis Napoleon into Freemasonry. Had the ceremony been performed, the Grand Lodge of Rome would probably have something to do with it, and our esteemed Bro. J. C. Parkinson would have informed us of it also, and, with his usual kindness towards us, have sent us an account of it. We fancy that the story is a pretty little Roman Catholic Canard, concocted in London, and put forth in that amiable frame of mind by which Roman Catholics just now seem animated towards Freemasons and Freemasonry everywhere. Anything, however foolish or grotesque, however ludicrous or unlikely, as regards Freemasons, is sufficient to frighten the Ultramontanes into hysterics, and we believe that in their present state of nervousness and agitation, clearly approximating to "delicious trimmings," they will credit anything of our innocent and peaceful fraternity. Happy for us it is that "hard words butter no parsnips and break no bones," otherwise, who can say what the consequences would be to our Masonic Confraternity, in our hours of work, or our moments of refreshment? Luckily for us, there is a limit for abuse, a turning point for slander, and we can only trust that our dear Ultramontane friends and brethren will speedily reach the one and the other. As it is we wish them kindlier sentiments, more reasonable theories, and above all, a more polite and Christian vocabulary.

WHAT HAPPENED AT MARPINGEN?

Can any brother tell us? The Univers, the well-known Parisian Ultramontane paper, states, it seems, in its issue of the 27th December, 1876, that the entire affairs of Marpingen have turned, to the greatest confusion of the Prussian police, and of the entire Masonic press of the world, "que toute l'affaire de Marpingen a tourné à la plus grande confusion de la police Prussienne et de la presse Maçonnique du monde entier." Bro. Hubert, the editor of the Chaine d'Union, declares himself "bien curieux" to know to what affair these words relate, as he sees most Masonic papers, and he has never heard of Marpingen. We can only re-echo Bro. Hubert's words. We see weekly, daily, Masonic papers from almost every country, and in almost every European language, and we have never heard of Marpingen. So perhaps some "bright Mason" will kindly enlighten us; though after all the old adage may be true, "where ignorance is bliss, 'twere folly to be wise."

HOW CAN WE IMPROVE MASONRY IN SCOTLAND?

SEC. I.—GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

PREFATORY.—The first thing for Grand Lodge of Scotland to do in the case before us is "to consolidate its debt," and to devise means for paying off the same within a certain time.

The next is to arrange a workable system, whereby the estimated annual expenditure and receipts can be made to balance, and at the same time pay interest of consolidated debt, and form a sinking fund for the redemption of the same.

When I first looked into this subject I was in great hopes that by a few good measures properly brought forward in Grand Lodge our object might be accomplished, but in going deeper into the matter I found that a partial re-construction at least of Grand Lodge was necessary—that isolated motions would be of little avail—that, in fact, suggestions would be required from the Craft at large, and the whole matter brought before a few good and earnest brethren to be developed into shape.

Why, then, you may say, do I not bring my measures and proposals before Grand Committee? I will give you three reasons. 1st. Grand Committee has enough to do at the present time in arranging the financial and other arrears, and in carrying on the regular work; 2ndly. Members of Grand Committee (as well as executive officers of Grand Lodge) may be required to give evidence, may in fact be on their trial; 3rdly. Because in all cases of like import, and where many points have to be considered appertaining to one subject, or one branch of subjects, we have the precedent of our National Legislature, which appoints "Royal Commissions," "with full powers," to enquire into every detail of the subject in hand, and "to report thereon."

For these reasons, then, I think, in our present condition Grand Lodge should appoint a "Special Committee."

The present average sum per annum paid as interest by Grand Lodge of Scotland is about £700; the interest on £14,000 at 4 per cent. is £560. These few figures speak for themselves.

The incubus, then, that weighs us down, that impedes the action of every executive officer we have had or ever may have, is the Grand Lodge debt and floating balances; till this can be arranged little can be done.

I would propose then to meet this, "that all outstanding balances against Grand Lodge be consolidated into one Debenture Stock (held amongst ourselves, viz., the Masons of Scotland), issued in bonds of £5 or £10 at par, bearing interest at 4 per cent. per annum, to be redeemable yearly or half-yearly from the sinking fund."

There should be no difficulty in this, if brethren who have money would consider the matter in its proper light. Four per cent. is a good interest, "even at the present time, if properly and safely secured," so that it would be in the power of any brother who had £5 or £10 to invest, to do good to the Craft, and yet be at no loss himself; Grand Lodge now borrows its loans at 4 per cent., 5 per cent., and the existing bank rate of interest. If the loans are consolidated into one at 4 per cent., Grand Lodge would be immeasurably the gainer.

TABLE I.—ACCORDING TO PRESENT SYSTEM.
Table of Receipts per Annum as it should be without Deducting Arrears.

SEC. I.—Annual Payments:

Certificates of 458 Lodges at 5s. each
Annual Subscription of 450 R.W.M.'s or their Proxies at 5s. each	£458
Annual Subscription 916 Warden's, or their Proxies at 5s. each*
Liquidation Fund 458 Lodges, at £1 each per annum	£458
	£916
Annual Rent of Shops and other properties in George-street	about 480
Total fixed charges	£1396

SEC. II. Variable Incomes:

† Intrans, say 4000 at 4s. 6d.	£900
Diplomas, say 4000 at 5s.	1000
Charities and Prov.G.M.'s Commissions at £10 10s. each, say	105
Rents of Masonic Lodges and other bodies, say...	80
Rents for Grand Hall	150
Miscellaneous receipts, say	50
	£2285
Brought forward Sec. I fixed charges	1396

This measure would seem feasible and easily arranged by one motion, but we have to consider the securities, and while assuring this interest, and securing it upon certain proceeds of Grand Lodge, we have to provide also for a sufficiency to maintain our current receipts and cover expenditure, leaving, if possible, a margin in each case, 1st. for the sinking fund for debt, and and, for arrears in general receipts: this leads us then to consider the question of "Reconstruction or re-arrangement of Grand Lodge."

The income of Grand Lodge is derived from various sources, some permanent and annual fixed charges, some variable. 1st. The fixed charges are the annual certificates from every daughter lodge, the annual dues of the representative members of G.L., being the R.W.M.'s, and their Wardens or their respective Proxy Masters and Wardens, the annual sum of £1 chargeable on every daughter lodge towards liquidation of debt, fixed by G.L. three or four years ago, and the rent of the shops and other properties let on lease.

2nd. The variable charges are, intrans' fees, diplomas, charters to daughter lodges, Provincial Grand Masters' commissions, rents payable by Masonic lodges, &c., for holding meetings within Grand Lodge precincts, rents for large Masonic Hall, and miscellaneous receipts.

There are 458 working lodges on the books of Grand Lodge, therefore the annual payment by each lodge, either in itself, its representatives, or proxies, should be £2 each, or a total of £916 per annum. The table above shows what should be the sum of the fixed charges and proper number of members of Grand Lodge under the existing system, but unfortunately the arrears are very great: the last published Grand Lodge Reporter is of November, 1873. I can get no information beyond that period, so must base my figures on previous statements of accounts, but making all reasonable allowance for arrears under this head, a fair sum should be realized if the Constitutions be strictly enforced, but the arrears are vastly in excess of all that could be imagined. Under the head of Liquidation Fund, I am informed there is a deficiency of £1500; again, on referring to the various Reporters in my possession, I find that the average number of subscribing members of Grand Lodge, out of a total of 1374, is considerably under 500: space will not permit me to quote chapters and sections of Constitutions by which these deficiencies could be made good, suffice it for me to say, "that unless Grand Lodge duly enforces its rules, and the brethren and lodges at large respond to the call, no system can be devised to place Grand Lodge on a proper basis; it can only go on from bad to worse."

Let us now consider the 2nd class, or variable income of Grand Lodge. The intrans and diplomas can be considered together, at present the number is pretty high in proportion, and is the mainstay of the general income; but here again I must warn the brethren, that though Masonry is now "fashionable," and sought after, "we cannot depend on increasing prosperity in the same ratio." I would in this case have given a lower average to work upon, but here * Giving thus a membership to Grand Lodge of 1374.

† Intrans are here charged 4s. 6d. for enrollment, but I have not included in this table 1s. per head that goes to the Fund of Benevolence, thus making up total enrollment fee 5s. 6d. (see Constitutions).

Total income "due" 1st. .... £3681

Deduct for liquidation fund, ..... 1458

Balance for general uses, ..... £2223

again I must remind our country R.W.M.'s and Secretaries "that the annual return of intrants is very incomplete," so that if due care is taken "to make full returns" and payments to Grand Lodge the numbers of intrants and diplomas, may for long keep up the average: here is another opportunity for making up arrears and helping Grand Lodge in the future.

Charters and Prov. G. Masters' commissions must ever be variable; the same may be said of rents of Masonic lodges, &c., and rents of Grand Hall (save that in this latter case I think I have under-estimated its true value. Miscellaneous receipts speak for themselves. According to Chap. 20, Sec. xxiv., fees for diplomas (minus actual cost of same) and the dues to the liquidation fund are to be set aside to extinguish the debt. [This is taking a large sum—no less than £1458, "if all dues are paid up," but after deducting under this head arrears of liquidation fund and cost of diplomas, this is materially decreased. Again, the Grand Lodge current account is greatly reduced by arrears, &c., as well as increasing expenditure.

Grand Lodge, then, must be strengthened in purse, and while so doing we should strengthen it in deliberative power, and knowledge of the working of the Craft. All Grand Officers who have served their time of office should be qualified thereby to remain members of Grand Lodge so long as they contribute their test fee of membership, viz., 5s. per annum, and are subscribing members of a daughter lodge, and be entitled to all precedence of their past rank, wearing a distinguishing mark on their aprons in lieu of the collar and jewel of office, "which is movable."

This same to apply to Provincial Grand Lodges in their respective districts.

Again, all Masters of lodges "who have served their appointed time in the chair" should, so long as they continue subscribing members of a lodge holding of Grand Lodge of Scotland, be entitled to be kept on the roll of Grand Lodge as "Past Masters," and be entitled to vote and speak therein, and in their several Provincial Grand Lodges, so long as they pay Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodge dues.

Both Grand Lodge and the Provincial Grand Lodge would thus be greatly improved.

Again, I would urge as to Proxy M.'s and Wardens, that they "should be duly qualified" before they can be admitted to Grand Lodge, viz., "that they should be subscribing members of a lodge holding of Grand Lodge of Scotland, and have been installed in and served (at least) the office of Warden for the appointed time.

It should be made compulsory that every lodge holding of G.L. of Scotland should have an annual subscription from its members, however small that subscription might be. The table of dues to Grand Lodge, Prov. Grand Lodge, &c., as regards intrants, &c., should be revised. (vide next article).

These are matters immediately relating to G.L., and here I shall stop at present, keeping over to my next communication, the questions of "Amended tables of receipts, &c., Fund of Benevolence, Provincial Grand Lodges, and daughter lodges, as well as a more extended view of the question as to Proxies and Past Masters.

Copy of Motion proposed by Bro. G. R. Harriott, P.G.M. Wigton and Kirkcudbright; seconded by Bro. Adam Thomson, S.P.G.M. Peebles and Selkirk; moved before Grand of Scotland Nov., 1876, to be brought up Feb. 1877.

That a "Special Committee" be appointed to consider the two following points in all their bearings:—

1st. The state of the funded debt and "floating balance," amounting to £13,188 4s. 2d., and other items as per Reporter for 1873 "the last published."

2nd. The increasing excess of expenditure per annum over receipts.

Said "Special Committee" to be empowered, 1st to summon witnesses, and collect all evidence as may seem necessary to it; 2nd. To consider the question of the general financial system of Grand Lodge of Scotland, and to suggest any improvements thereon which may seem to them to tend to ameliorate the present state of affairs and place Grand Lodge on a "sound financial basis." 3rd. That it be empowered to call accountants and other professional advisers, "when and wherever required," and that it be empowered to demand production of all books, accounts, vouchers, &c., from the executive officers, Grand Committee, or the daughter lodges.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I must thank "A.T." for replying to my queries, though his No. 5 does not in any way meet my difficulty, and 4 is needlessly uncourteous.

He seems to imagine that when he has quoted the Constitutions he has settled the matter beyond dispute. And this, perhaps, is true, for that large class of brethren who have neither time nor inclination for inquiry into the reasons of things. To others, however, the mere fact of a particular statement being printed in that august volume is not by any means a conclusive argument or convincing proof that it must therefore of necessity be right, but only a reason for regarding it with respectful consideration, since Grand Lodge is not infallible, and its exponents or publishers may make mistakes like any one else, by way of either omission, commission, or transposition. Of the first of these we have a signal example in Section 9 of "Masters and Wardens," as "A.T." himself acknowledges, and of the last, I believe we have an equally striking instance in his Regalia quotation, where the words, "Horizontal" and "Perpendicular" are misplaced.

My reason for saying so is this. "Masonry is a beautiful system, illustrated by symbols," which hide its mysteries from the outside world, but reveal them to the initiated Craftsman. Unless, therefore, the symbols employed are of such a significant character as to "illustrate," i.e., elucidate or throw light upon the office, degree, or secret to which they are attached, they not only fail to serve their intended purpose, but become ridiculous in themselves, and the cause of ridicule to those who use them.

Now, the true "Apron Symbol" of a W.M. is undoubtedly the Greek TAU, as representing the cross-handled staff of Patriarch Jacob, the hammer of Saxon Thor, and the gavel of King Solomon, which is the "Master's implement and emblem of power," and I still desire to know why the regulations turn it upside down, so as to convert it into a Level, which, as applied to the W.M., is both meaningless and misleading, inasmuch as it does not "illustrate" his official character and distinctive magisterial duties, but sends him back, as it were, to the S.W., from which he has just emerged.

Perhaps some brother, older and wiser than "A.T.," will be kind enough to tell what he knows about this matter, and also about the date and origin of the ritual of the Board of Installed Masters.

W.M. C.N.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

"A.T." in his answer to "W.M. C.N., No. 4," quotes from the Constitutions on regalia.

Permit me to call the attention of W.M.'s, P.M.'s, and Directors of Ceremonies, to the remainder of the Constitution from which "A.T." made his quotation (pp. 125-6, ed. 1873):—"The length of the horizontal lines to be two inches and a-half each, and of the perpendicular lines, one each; these emblems to be of ribbon half an inch broad, and of the same colour as the lining and edging of the apron. If Grand Officers, similar emblems of garter-blue or gold."

In all lodges I have visited this Constitution is more or less violated, and emblems of white metal, plate, or silver, substituted. I think this very general violation arises from a misconception of a previous Constitution on aprons—p. 124—headed "Master Masons," in which occurs the following passage:—"No other colour or ornament shall be allowed except to officers and past officers of lodges, who may have the emblems of their offices in silver or white in the centre of the apron."

The emblem of the W.M.'s office is the Sq.; that of the P.M., the Sq. and 47th prop. 1st Bk. Euclid; S.W., Level; J.W., Plumb; Treas., Key; Sec., Cross Pens; Deacons, Dove; I.G., Cross Swords; Tyler, Sword. And these emblems, typical of office, may be worn by officers and past officers of lodges in the centre of the apron, in the same manner as by Grand and Prov. Grand Officers.

There seems no authority whatever for W.M.'s and P.M.'s to wear other than blue levels on their aprons. If there be any authority, I have failed to trace it in the Constitutions.

I am, yours fraternally,

P.P.M.

THE POLISH NATIONAL LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As one of your readers you must excuse me if the interest which I take in your paper and in the cause of Freemasonry prompts me to make some remarks on a meeting of the Polish National Lodge, reported in your number of the 13th inst.

I happened to be a visitor on that occasion, and I must say that seldom if ever was I more agreeably and more pleasantly surprised than I was by the proceedings of that night, both on account of the truly harmonious and brotherly tone that pervaded the atmosphere, as well as by the loftiness of character that elevated and braced the too often stale and commonplace gatherings of the every day performances of this kind. Bro. Rath, the W.M., with a freshness of aim and a thoroughness of purpose, gave us one of those mental feasts ever memorable to those who, like myself, were privileged to partake in it.

I am sure you must feel with me the distressing shallowness and unthinking meaninglessness with which all the best and purest principles and incidents of our Order are too often treated by those whose ennobling office it ought to be, to raise the spirit of the mass of the followers of our standard to something that should be worthy of the grand cause which we uphold, and which ought to be of a nature to shew good cause why we should not be considered merely as "fruges consumere nati." Then, if I begin my letter to you by such a wailing over the degeneracy of the age, it is not because I think that there are not many amongst us who are really worthy of the high trust reposed in them to be the standard-bearers of humanity, or because I thought that your valuable paper, as the organ of such a great brotherhood like ours, does not do its very best to guide the fraternity in the true path of the spirit of our ancient landmarks, but because I think that our best endeavours should certainly always be directed to raise up the sluggish, half-thinking, and half-eating members amongst us to that perfection which is the only "raison d'être" of our society.

Certainly I must say that the brother who took upon himself the responsibility of reporting on the proceedings of the Polish National Lodge of the evening in question cannot possibly have been aware of the gravity of the duties the execution of which he so lightly undertook.

If you had been, like myself, present at that memorable meeting you must have been discouraged in reading the senseless and distorted heap of illogical, unconnected, and thoroughly ungrammatical word-whirlwind, to say nothing of the sad fate that befel the Queen's English—wholly disfigured such a large space of your paper.

I can make every allowance for you, whose manifold duties will not always permit of every communication being thoroughly sifted, particularly when it comes, as it often does, from influential brothers, who are supposed to know what they assume in bringing matters of this kind before the public. But not being able to address myself to any one but the responsible Editor, I am in that position that what I have to say I must submit to you.

Nothing helps truth better than truth, and, acting on this ever true principle, I trust that you will accept my communication in the spirit in which it is tendered.

Publicity is a well known "nostrum" for all errors, and if you will take my well-meant criticism in that sense you will once more convince me, as I always was, of your love of truth and progress and of your impartiality.

I enclose my card, and remain, Sir and Brother, yours very obediently,

A VISITOR.

[We do not understand to what "A Visitor" refers.—Ed.]

BRO. MAJOR BURGESS.

[We have been requested by Bro. Major Burgess to publish the following correspondence; we have done so, suppressing one or two passages which appear to us personal. We express no further opinion on the matter, but think it right to find space for a complaint on the part of a brother, if couched in proper terms.—Ed.]

Office of the Grand Lodge of Mark Masters,

2, Red Lion Square,

12th January, 1877.

Sir and Brother,—

Your letter under date and Dec., 1876, addressed "To the Secretary of the Mark Master Masons, London," was read at a meeting of the General Board of this Grand Lodge yesterday, when the following resolution was unanimously adopted:—

"That the General Board is unable to entertain, or to recommend Grand Lodge to entertain, the communication from Major Burgess, dated and Dec., 1876, the same not being couched in 'proper and respectful language,' as required by Clause 96 of the Book of Constitutions."

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

(Signed) FREDERICK BINCKES, P.G.J.W.,

G.S.

16th January, 1877.

Sir,—

I have received your letter of the 12th instant.

In reply I desire that you will inform the General Board of the Mark Master Masons that they cannot expect from other people obedience to the clauses of the Book of Constitutions until they themselves set an example of such obedience. By expelling me they have distinctly freed me from all obedience to those Constitutions; and until they cancel the expulsion which in June, 1875, they caused to be passed against me, in defiance of Clause 13 of the Constitutions ("No brother shall be expelled until he shall have been summoned to show cause in the Grand Lodge why such sentence should not be recorded and enforced"), they leave me free to express, how and when I please, an opinion of their conduct.

I am, your obedient servant,

(Signed) CHAS. J. BURGESS.

The Secretary of the Mark Master Masons, London.

DUTIES OF STEWARDS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Referring to the letter of "One of the Stewards" in your last week's issue, upon matters relating to the above, I find you did not accord to him a reply—so usual to your customary courtesy—but possibly you were at a loss to quite understand the drift of his question, and I confess I don't clearly see it, unless it is that he, with others, are told off in turns to perform a menial office by a private rule of the lodge, at which it appears our worthy brother has very naturally, and I think excusably, taken umbrage, for it must be evident to the Craft generally that such a custom—which, by the way, I will venture to think is quite an exception—is a lowering of self-respect, not to say derogatory to a Masonic body. No brother, I feel sure, would object voluntarily to render his personal assistance at tea or banquet table, providing it was a necessity, but to be told off for it as a "duty," to assist in conjunction with the waiters of the establishment, and to partake of the after dinner-viands, amounts, I think, to plebeianism, and a blow to Masonic dignity. And for a brother to make "an ill-natured public remark" completes the picture. I trust our brother will feel it due to withdraw the remark that "One of the Stewards" complains of, and thus show that he has not an entire disregard of Masonic feeling, if he has of its obligations.

It is evidently not a part of a brother's duty to perform the menial office complained of. The latter part of our brother's letter was to the point, and in accordance, I believe, with the custom of the Craft generally.

Yours fraternally,

EXCELSIOR.

THE ECLECTIC LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I have been most pleased to read the account of the installation of Bro. E. J. Harty as W.M. of the Eclectic Lodge, No. 1201, and especially because it is a lodge in which I take a special interest. Not because our good friend and Worshipful Bro. Fenn could only procure a glass of water on its constitution, though as a life-long total abstainer I might be excused if such had been the case, but in consequence of my believing its basis is a truly sound and Masonic one.

I presume that the only departure inaugurated by Bro. Harty is the provision for Masonic banquets, and so far as I can see there was no regulation against such under the old regime, so long as the cost thereof did not fall upon the ordinary funds of the lodge. I think the members of a lodge have a perfect right to do as they think proper with their funds, within certain bounds, but unless banquets are provided for by additional or separate subscriptions, (either exclusive or inclusive as to the usual annual payments), I consider it most unmasonic to use the funds for such purposes. To make my meaning plain it is as follows. If the lodge members subscribe only about a pound annually to meet the current incidental expenses, clearly there are no funds for banqueting purposes, and those who partake should pay. If, however, sufficient additional payments are made for that object, no one has a right to complain. Now many lodges with such a small annual payment have refreshments at every lodge meeting at the expense of the lodge funds, and the consequence is that, unless new members are being made frequently, the financial state is bad, and to provide the means for the feasts the tempting offers of candidates' fees are necessarily often considered before the "moral qualifications." No. 1201, I think, provides for this in a most satisfactory manner. The law virtually says, "Have what you like, brethren, but pay—nothing from the ordinary funds, remember!" Law 1 is as follows: "No part of the moneys received by this lodge can or shall be used or spent in any other manner than the requirements of the lodge, the Order, or charity may permit, and shall not be appropriated for tavern expenses or refreshments in any form; and that this law is irrevocable so long as the charter of said lodge exists and is in force."

I presume that this peculiarity of the lodge is still its distinguishing feature, and to make sure I fraternally invite the respected W.M. to state in the columns of the Freemason whether my belief is a correct one or not.

Fraternally yours,

WM. JAMES HUGHAN,
P.G.D.

Truro, 22nd January, 1877.

DEDICATION OF THE NEW TEMPLE OF THE ST. JOHN'S LODGE, No. 492, ANTIGUA.

On Friday afternoon, the 1st ult., the good citizens witnessed a scene which but one generation out of ten might ever hope to witness. At half-past four the brethren of the above lodge met by appointment at the old premises on the Parade, preliminary to the consecration and dedication of their New Temple in Nevis-street.

By five o'clock fifty-three Masons of attained and unattached brethren were assembled in the full regalia of Craft Masonry. The lodge then opened up to the Third Degree, and the W.M. having formally announced the object of the gathering, the brethren, under the direction of Bro. Este, D. of C., formed outside, and moved in Masonic procession up Long-street, through Market-street, down Nevis-street, and in due order entered the building that was ready for consecration and dedication.

Besides the charter and the rest of the paraphernalia of Masonry, carried along, the S.W., J.W., and P.S.W. bore respectively three silver vessels with corn, wine, and oil.

There were numerous spectators from the windows and balconies enjoying the scene; and all along the procession there was the usual crowd—but it was to their credit that nothing on their part transpired to mar the occasion; and the charity of Masonry is sufficiently expansive to excuse the rude eagerness of the sight-loving rabble.

The brethren moved on without the usual noise of file and drum. The quietness and solemnity of the procession was quite in keeping with the mission on which they were bent—the solemn consecration and dedication of their Temple.

And here we beg our readers to pardon the few remarks which we are constrained to make on the subject of Masonry. We deem this a fit opportunity for an attempt at dispelling the illusions which the outer world have of Masonry. Masonry is a society extended over the world; and to those who scoff at its claims to antiquity, let its universality be sufficient presumptive evidence of it. The principles of Masonry are the same wherever professed; its origin must therefore be one and the same. This necessity carries us back, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, to a period when the various branches of the human race had not yet branched off from the centre, but were in close union with each other. Or if that position be untenable, we fall back on this other, that the principles of Masonry were diffused by the Phœnician merchants, whose traffic extended in the remotest antiquity over the whole world, before the learning and refinement of Greece, or the might of Rome, was heard of; or that they were propagated by those Jews who formed a portion of the retinue of Alexander the Great in his career of conquests extending from the Ægean Sea to the Indian Ocean, and from the Granicus to the Indus.

But whatever the antiquity of Masonry, it must be conceded that as a society it must have something to distinguish it from other societies; something to serve as a mark by which the members might discover each other wherever they meet, and as a link to weld the scattered units of the society into one homogeneous whole; and the link that does this is the landmarks, which it follows, as a matter of course, must be known only by Masons. But because those landmarks are jealously guarded by all faithful Masons, and are emphatically the mysteries of the Craft, the outside world puts the worst construction on them, and associates them with diablerie and impiety. But this is the fate of everything mysterious; and the brethren must console themselves with that reflection.

Yet if the outer world would suspend judgment on what is unknown to them, and observe the visible manifestations of Masonry—its works of charity and benevolence—they would conclude that a society with that sublime virtue as its practical feature is incapable of nursing within its bosom anything subversive of morality or religion. Far from being so, Masonry is the essence of all religion; its mission is—"To visit the fatherless and widows in their afflictions, and keep himself unspotted from the world." Hence speaking as a P.M. of the Craft, I have always considered that Masonry has this in its favour, whatever else might be said against it, that it most nearly approaches practical Christianity in theory and spirit. It has the Supreme Being for the object of its worship, mankind without distinction of class, clime, or colour for its subjects, and the universe for its temple. It places all men on the same platform of fraternity and equality, and thus eclipses fashionable and conventional Christianity. For while this seldom surmounts the prejudices of class or race, and, like the Jews, has "no dealings with the Samaritans," that, swayed by the fact that God has made all men of one blood to dwell on the face of the earth, eagerly rushes with Christ-like spirit to give the right hand of fellowship to every brother, whatever his race or station, and solemnly pledged to works of virtue and benevolence is equally pledged to keep itself free from the debilitating effects of immorality. That all Masons are not true to their colours is as little a fault of Masonry as the inconsistencies of professing Christians are the faults of Christianity.

To return to our subject. The new lodge is a three-storeyed building. The entrance is on the second storey by a stone platform at the north door with two flights of steps, east and west respectively. The upper storey is reached by a winding gallery at the south-west corner of the building. Ascending this gallery the brethren arrived on a landing, commanding a fine view of the south. To the east of this landing is an ante-room, which the Building Committee designed the Master's room. Opening before them on the north is the most magnificent hall, the upper storey of the Court-house excepted, in the city. To consecrate and dedicate this hall was the business of the evening.

It is rectangular, and is 35 feet by 29, with a tiny piazza looking towards the rising sun. It is spacious, in thorough repair, nicely ceiled, painted and decorated with the usual Masonic furniture and symbols. The yellow venetian blinds increase its charms within and add to its appearance without. In the centre the ceiling has a fine gilt design by Bro. Thibou, with engravings of some of the tools of the Craft.

Writing as one who, quorum pars fui, I still experience the feeling of pride and delight which possessed me, standing with the brethren in their own neat, beautiful, and spacious temple. The spirit which pervaded us all brought to my mind the feeling of the beautiful and sublime which makes poets adorn the fountain, grove, mountain, and sea; on the one hand and on the other minstrelsy, painting, sculpture, and poetry, each with its presiding nymph, muse, or genius. I felt as if some genius was scattering its favours around. Call it if you like, "the Genius of Masonry," as I would have done if asked to define it. But there cannot be the least doubt that it was the tout ensemble of architectural success in the planning, and artistic skill in the furnishing and decorating of the temple, together with the splendid appearance which the brethren presented, calling up to my mind one of those august assemblies of knights that met in the days of yore in their temple at Rhodes or Malta in the interests of Masonry and humanity.

Another interesting feature in the picture was the soft and mellow radiance of moon—or twilight—which the three lesser lights diffused around.

Such then is the temple, the condition in which the brethren found it, and such the feeling that animated all.

While the rest were taking their seats Bros. Halliday and Nibbs, who respectively bore the Charter and Constitutions, proceeded to the centre and there deposited them, while Bros. S.W., J.W., and P.S.W., deposited towards the rising sun the three silver cups with corn, oil, and wine respectively.

Bro. Athill then addressed the W.M., informing him that it was the desire of the brethren that the building should be consecrated and dedicated. Bro. Chaplain then read the scripture for the occasion. The brethren next sung an ode, accompanied by the harmonium, praying for the blessing and protection of the G.A.O.T.U., and other ceremonies were gone through, after the Chaplain delivered an excellent speech on Masonry, embracing, its claims, its principles and its antiquity. A procession round the centre, by the office-bearing brethren, led by the W.M. and Chaplain, then went through the ceremony, sprinkling with corn, wine, and oil, accompanied with music. An ode then followed, and this closed the consecration and dedication. The brethren then retired to refreshment downstairs.

In the course of several speeches we gathered the following facts concerning the origin of the temple. Some time ago the late Bro. Mann, W.M. had occasion to refer to the finances of the lodge, and stated that up to then the brethren had paid £500 for rent, and that to divert such a large amount from works of charity was not carrying out the principles of Masonry. That though the times were difficult and it was rather late in the day to think of getting their own lodge, this scheme should be entertained, if for no other object, for that of preventing so large an expenditure for rent. Bro. Higham then took the matter in hand, and by his own efforts raised £100 as the nucleus of a building fund. By means of a bazaar and concert the brethren soon raised it to £200, and in this manner they soon felt themselves strong enough to negotiate with the attorney of the present premises about its purchase. The negotiation was successful. As soon as the place was purchased the repairs were undertaken under the kind direction of Mr. J. Mathew and the Building Committee. As a result of it all, the brethren now possess a substantial, commodious, and elegant temple, second to none, we are told, in the West Indies. May they all long remain to occupy it, and when their last trial approaches, may they be cheered by the prospect of leaving an earthly temple for one not made with hands, eternal in the Heavens.—Antigua Journal.

LAMARTINE ON FREEMASONRY.

The Freemasons of Macon, M. De Lamartine's native town, presented him with a list of subscriptions to relieve him from encumbrances. The illustrious poet and statesman thanked them in the following letter, which will be held precious by every Mason in the wide world: "I have the honour to return you the list (so honourable both to you and to me) of subscribers from French and foreign Masonic Lodges. Pray assure all your Brothers of my gratitude. I do not speak the language, and am unacquainted with the rites of your fraternal institution, but through you I know its heart and its works. I see not only in the secrets of the Lodges a veil of modesty thrown upon truth and charity, to heighten their beauty in the eyes of God and man. But for this modesty you would not conceal from men the secret which your actions reveal. You are, in my opinion, the greatest eclectics of the modern world. You cull from all time, all countries, all systems, all philosophies, the evident, eternal and immutable principles of universal morality, and you blend them into an infallible and unanimously accepted dogma of fraternity. You reject everything that divides minds, and profess everything that unites hearts, you are the manufacturers of concord. With your trowels you spread the cement of virtue about the foundation of society. Your symbols are but figures. If I am not mistaken in the interpretation of your dogmas the curtain of your mysteries might be drawn without the fear of revealing anything but services rendered to humanity. The tribute of esteem and sympathy which the Masonic Lodges of France and foreign countries have been kind enough to send to me through you gives me a right of confraternity with them. I did not require this right to esteem them; but this honorary conformity now entitles me to love them as Brothers. Receive and convey to your honorable correspondents of all countries the assurance of my gratitude and respectful consideration."

CAPITULAR MASONRY IN CANADA.

On the 12th ult., in the Royal Albert Chapter Rooms, Montreal, a duly assembled convention of representative Royal Arch Masons harmoniously united in forming a Supreme Royal Arch Chapter for the province of Quebec. This important action was taken with the hearty fraternal concurrence of the Grand Chapter of Canada, whose exclusive jurisdiction will hereafter be over the flourishing province of Ontario. The following are the first principal officers of the newly organised Grand Chapter of Quebec: John H. Graham, LL.D., &c., Richmond, Most Excellent First Principal, Z.; George H. Borlase, Q.C., Montreal, Right Excellent Second Principal, H.; James Dunbar, Q.C., Quebec, Right Excellent Third Principal, J.; R.E. Comp. Thomas Milton, Supt. Montreal District; R.E. Comp. Christopher Stavelay, Quebec District; R.E. Comp. H. W. Wood, M.D., E. T. District; R.E. Comp. T. J. McMin, Montreal, Scribe E.; R.E. Comp. John McLean, Scribe N.; R.E. Comp. Isaac Henry Stearns, Montreal, Grand Treas.; R.E. Comp. C. W. Woodford, Grand Reg.; R.E. Comp. James Gibson, G. Principal Sojourner, The Montreal companions manifested a most commendable interest in this new movement. The Grand Chapter of Quebec has been inaugurated under most favourable auspices.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Joshua Nunn, Senior Vice President, occupied the President's chair, and Bro. J. M. Case, G.D., that of Junior Vice President. There were also present, Bros. S. Rawson, C. A. Cottebrune, Thos. Cubitt, S. G. Foxall, Joseph Smith, W. Smith, W. H. Myers, H. Bartlett, Rev. J. M. Vaughan, H. Garrod, Benj. Head, R. H. Marsh, H. Muggenridge, Griffiths Smith, William Stevens, Herbert Dicketts, John Constable, W. T. Howe, Æ. J. McIntyre, W. J. Marlis, F. Binckes, H. Massey, (Freemason), W. R. Marsh, W. Mann, T. W. Allen, P.M. 733, Ireland, K. Bergmann, Charles Atkins, P.M. 27; W. B. Heath, P.G.W. Herts; Thos. Moring, T. W. Whitmarsh, John Denton, John Green, John Dyte, James Newell, Richard Shander, John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, W. Dodd, W. Lecker, John Herman, Charles B. Bennett, Thomas Butt, George Allen, Frederick B. Pownhall, and C. P. Cobham.

Grants of £180 made at last Lodge of Benevolence were confirmed.

The brethren then proceeded with the consideration of the new cases, of which there were 31 on the list. Three cases were deferred, and one case was dismissed. The remaining cases were relieved with a total sum of £628, which was made up of the following items: one of £200, one £50, one £40, one £25, eight £20, three £15, ten £10, one £5, and one £3.

After sitting three hours and a half, the brethren closed the lodge.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—When inclement weather checks to a considerable extent the natural exhalations of the skin, an alternative is required to expel them entirely from the body through some other channel. Holloway's Pills can be confidently recommended as the easiest, surest, and safest means of attaining this desirable end without weakening the most delicate or incommencing the most feeble. When from frequent chills or impure air, the blood becomes foul and the secretions vitiated, these Pills present a ready efficient means of cleansing the former and correcting the latter. By this salutary proceeding disease is arrested at its outset, its pain and inconveniences averted, and the nervous structures saved from the depressing effects entailed upon them by an illness.—Advt.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

It is with the deepest regret that we have to record the death, on the 3rd inst., of Lillian Mary, third daughter of the late Bro. R. R. Nelson, who was for thirteen years Prov. G. Sec. of West Yorkshire, and held in the highest esteem throughout the whole of that province. The Prov. G. Master, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., at the Prov. Grand Lodge held at Leeds on the 10th inst., in referring to her demise, said he could not allow that opportunity to pass of informing the brethren of the high estimation in which Miss Nelson was held by her fellow pupils, and of the great affection felt for her by them. Sir Henry also stated that on the occasion when he recently presided at the Girls' School Festival, when the prizes were distributed, the pupils awarded her the best beloved prize, and mentioned the many other prizes she had won for her great ability. Miss Nelson won the highest honours in, and was the pride of the school, as well as the delight of the brethren of the province of West Yorkshire.

Bro. Govan Macdonald, W.M. 1158, Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction, will work the Fifteen Sections in that lodge this (Saturday) evening, at 7. The lodge meets at the Marquis of Granby, New Cross.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, DIARY, AND POCKET BOOK is of course almost indispensable for every Freemason who wishes to keep himself properly posted up in the business of the Craft. It contains much valuable information of a special character, and is well arranged.—Pictorial World.

HUNT'S PLAYING CARDS.—We have received samples of the new Enamelled-Faced Club Card, of the present season's patterns, which we candidly think are unsurpassed in elegance and variety. They certainly reflect great credit on the artists engaged upon their production. The premises of the original firm of Hunt and Sons were destroyed by fire in 1874, but the valuable designs and electrots were fortunately saved, and ultimately purchased by "Hunt's Playing Card Manufacturing Company, Limited," under which title the business is now successfully carried on, and of which Bro. W. F. Taunton, of the Gladsmuir Lodge, 1385, is the manager.

MAY ELECTION, 1877.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION FOR AGED FREEMASONS AND WIDOWS OF FREEMASONS.—The generous support and influence of the Governors and Subscribers to the above Institution is earnestly and respectfully solicited at the ensuing Election in May on behalf of

BRO. RICHARD EDWARD BARNES,

P.M. 15, and P.Z. 13, aged 63 Years, of 58, Hoxton Square. The said Bro. R. E. Barnes was initiated in the Kent Lodge, No. 15, on the 17th day of November, 1835, and has subscribed thereto 41 years; he has also acted as Honorary Secretary to the same for 35 years; served the office of W.M., and is now the Father of the Lodge. He joined the United Mariners Lodge, No. 30, on the 4th day of November, 1845; subscribed thereto 31 years; and is also the Father of that Lodge. He was exalted in the Union Waterloo Chapter, No. 13, on the 26th day of July, 1843; served the office of M.E.Z.; has acted as Scribe E. for 30 years; and is now the Father of the Chapter. He was for upwards of 30 years Master and Proprietor of Hoxton Educational Institution, Hoxton Square, a profession and position he was gradually compelled to relinquish in consequence of the Erection by Public Subscription, within a few hundred yards of his own Establishment, of a large Middle-class School, capable of accommodating 1200 Boys, with which he was totally unable to compete. Has a family consisting of a wife and three children, entirely dependent upon him for support, and failing sight is a source of great anxiety.
PAID DUES TO BENEVOLENT FUND 75 YEARS.
* Bro. Barnes, being P.M. and P.Z., would be glad to act as Tyler to a Lodge, or Janitor to a Chapter.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 22).—On Thursday evening, the 25th ult., the brethren of this famous old lodge held their annual installation meeting at the Guildhall Tavern. Adopting a practice which now obtains in the Craft, they had no other ceremonial business before them but the installation of the new W.M., having held an emergency meeting some short time previously for conferring degrees on brethren. The convenience of this practice is now generally admitted, as it spares the brethren a long and arduous sitting, and also secures a goodly attendance at the opening of the lodge. The W.M., Bro. A. Partridge, and on presentation made to him of Bro. Edward F. Storr, installed that worthy brother as Master of the Neptune Lodge for the present year. On the completion of the installation ceremony the following brethren were appointed to office: Bros. A. Partridge, I.P.M.; Edward F. Storr, W.M.; George Phythian, S.W.; Wm. Ashwell, J.W.; Isaac Wilcox, P.M.; Treas.; Thomas R. Eames, P.M.; Hon. Sec.; John Holman, S.D.; Thos. P. Collings, J.D.; Geo. B. Gates, I.G.; John E. Russell, P.M., D.C.; Wm. Neats, W.S.; and Parkinson, Tyler. Immediately afterwards the W.M. rose and said that he had much pleasure in presenting Bro. Partridge with a P.M.'s jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the members of the lodge. It had been honestly earned by hard and excellent working, and he himself hoped during his year of office to tread in the footsteps of so worthy a brother. Bro. Partridge in reply, said he could scarcely find words suitable to express his feelings of gratitude and thankfulness for the brethren's kindness. He thanked the brethren, however, sincerely, from the bottom of his heart, for their recognition of his services. He hoped that he might be spared for many years to come to be with the brethren of the Neptune Lodge, with which he had been already many years connected. (Cheers.) The brethren then elected the W.M., Bros. Harcourt, A. Partridge, and Phythian, Trustees of the Neptune Lodge Benevolent Fund. The audit report, which was read by Bro. Eames, showed a very prosperous condition of affairs for the lodge; and on the motion of Bro. Gray, seconded by Bro. Neats, ten guineas were voted to the Boys' School, ten guineas to the Girls' School, and £10 to the Benevolent Institution. £5 was voted to a distressed brother from the Benevolent Fund; and at the request of Bro. Thomas White, P.M., the W.M. granted a warrant for the Loughborough Lodge of Instruction, to be held in Cold Harbour Lane, Camberwell. Bro. Gray informed the lodge that he was standing as Steward for this lodge at the next festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, when H.R.H. Prince Leopold would preside, and he solicited the assistance of the brethren in adding to his list of subscriptions. He wished to impress upon them particularly that he did not so much ask for their donations as that they should become annual subscribers, for Bro. Terry had told him that it was in the annual subscriptions that the great strength of the Institution lay. The W.M. added to these observations that he was going to represent the lodge at the next festival of the Girls' School, and he hoped that the brethren would support him on that occasion, and enable him to take up a list worthy of the Neptune Lodge. The business of the evening being now over, lodge was closed, and the brethren retired to the banqueting hall, where a splendid repast awaited them. With visitors and members the lodge sat down about sixty; and when they had done ample justice to the good things set before them, grace was sung, and the list of toasts was duly honoured. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The Queen and the Craft," said that as there was a beautiful selection of music provided for the brethren's delectation, he should not place himself between them and their enjoyment, and he should therefore make no speeches in proposing the toasts, but simply announce them in their order. The loyal and Masonic toasts having been duly honoured, an innovation was made in the ordinary list by the toast of "The Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces" being introduced. To this Captain Lathbury responded, and in doing so he said that in 1848 he was in Canada, when he held his first commission under the Queen; and when he said that he had been in the service one way and another, in volunteers and different branches of the service, from that day to this, he thought he had some little right to respond to this toast. He was quite sure of this, that although we had School Boards and different educational schemes springing up, they would not interfere with the old English soldier. They might, to a greater extent than we gave them credit for, interfere with the getting of servants to work for us; that, however, was not for him to mention. But the heart of England was such that every man was a soldier in the truest sense of the word—a volunteer. We wanted every man to be a soldier, and we should not be afraid to say we were doing our duty; we were capable of doing it as we had done it before. It did not require any remark from him to assure them that as we had done our duty in the past we should do it in the future. (Applause.) Bro. Partridge proposed "The W.M." It was a great many years since they had one so young in Masonry occupying the chair. He (Bro. Partridge) assisted in bringing him into Masonry. It was while he was I.G. that Bro. Storr was initiated. Whenever it happened that a brother followed so closely through all the offices of the lodge the I.G. who introduced him to the lodge as to be W.M. when the I.G. arrived at the post of I.P.M., it proved that he must have had his heart in Masonry. He only hoped that Bro. Storr would have health and strength to perform the duties of his high office with satisfaction to the Neptune Lodge. The W.M., in his reply, said the I.P.M. had referred to his (the W.M.'s) youth in Masonry. Well, this was his sixth anniversary. Six years that night P.M. White (his father in Masonry) initiated him at the old place, Radley's Hotel. P.M. Waterall sat in his chair, and the remark he made to him (Bro. Storr) was that then for the first and last time in his life he would occupy the position on the immediate right of the Master; he might go round and get to the W.M. chair, but he could not again sit in that place. Well, he had gone round, and that night—his sixth anniversary—he was in the exalted position of Master of the Neptune Lodge. He thought when he was initiated that that was the proudest night of his life; but now he thought this night it was prouder still that he so young a Mason should have got to the chair. He could say one thing, that since his initiation he had not missed one regular meeting or one emergency of the lodge, and he trusted that he had fulfilled every duty in his station as an officer of the lodge from I.G. upwards. Certainly he had jumped over two, but he trusted that in the offices he had filled he had performed his duties to the brethren's satisfaction. He felt sure he had, or the brethren would not have elected him unanimously to be their W.M. In return for their confidence, he could assure them that nothing should be wanting on his part to do his duty in the onerous position of Master of the lodge. He felt himself in a somewhat peculiar position in having to follow a brother like Bro. Partridge, who, as the brethren and visitors could testify from what they had seen of his working that night, was a very superior Master. Bro. Partridge had treated him in such a kind and affectionate manner, and had performed his part so nobly and well, that he felt he owed him a debt of gratitude. He hoped that if spared he should prove his gratitude and give up the gavel unsullied to his successor; and that though the past year had been very successful, the present might be even more so. Bro. Saillard responded for "The Joining Member, and Prosperity to the Neptune Lodge." Bro. Partridge, replying to the toast of "The Installing Master," said it had given him great pleasure to install his successor. As he had always said in the Neptune Lodge, when he undertook the different offices he undertook to discharge the duties of those offices to the best of his ability. When he was installed in the chair himself he saw the able manner in which Bro. Gray performed the ceremony, and he felt that he ought to qualify himself to install his successor. He therefore set to work and tried to do it. If the brethren had discovered any want of ability on his part he hoped they would forgive him. Bros. Paviour, H. Massey (Freemason), and Davis replied to the toast of "The Visitors." Bro. Townsend responded for "The P.M.'s," and explained how he and Bro. Muggeridge, twenty-seven years ago, finding the lodge at a very low ebb, resuscitated it. He felt sure that the junior members of the lodge would emulate those who had preceded them. Bros. Wilcox and Eames responded to the toast of "The Treasurer and Secretary," both of whom referred with pride to the present prosperous state of the lodge. Bro. Phythian replied to the toast of "The Officers," and Bro. H. Muggeridge for "The Charities," and in the course of his address advocated the cause of the three Masonic Institutions, and urged upon the brethren the duty of supporting them as much as they could. The Tyler's toast was given by Bro. Parkinson before the brethren closed the evening, which had been rendered additionally charming by some delightful singing by Bros. Perry, Lathbury, Hubbard and Povey, under the direction of Bro. William C. Greaves, Org. Among the brethren present were the following Past Masters:—Bros. Isaac Wilcox, Treas.; Theophilus Goodwin, Joseph H. Batty, Joseph Ashwell, Alfred Pratt, Clarence Harcourt, James Norman, Augustus Great Rex, James H. Allingham, Charles L. Marshall, George Salter, Thomas White, George Waterall, Henry S. Crawford, Charles W. Gray, John E. Russell, Thomas R. Eames, and Hon. Sec.; Alfred Partridge. The visitors were Bros. F. Mercer, 507; R. E. Barnes, 15; W. Paviour, 442; D. H. Redhead, 442; S. J. Davis, 1208; A. Standage, 241; A. W. Furber, 27; A. Crawford, 738; J. Harris, 657; W. J. Spicer, 569; H. Povey, late of Neptune, 22; H. Leslie, 171; F. Fellowes, 192; J. C. Reynolds, 1329; W. Buszard, 1287; E. Bumpus, 28; J. A. Lathbury, 320; T. Grove, 55; B. Perry, 1185; C. C. Forbes, 548; H. Massey (Freemason), 619; A. Whittle, 72; J. Brown, 820.

GLOBE LODGE (No. 23).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, on Thursday, the 18th ult., when a very old member of the Craft (Bro. John Boyd) was installed W.M. The Globe Lodge is one of the few favoured lodges distinguished by the Royal colour, and as there are only eighteen who have the privilege of sending a red collar and apron to Grand Lodge every year, we need scarcely say the honour is not only highly prized, but frequently eagerly sought after. Bro. Boyd being one of the Grand Stewards for the year, must have been very gratified to find himself also W.M. of his lodge. The installation ceremony was ably and impressively rendered by Bro. Chas. Martin, the retiring W.M., who, though comparatively a young Mason, was quite equal to the occasion, and had evidently been in good hands for instruction. Some slight portions of the ceremony were omitted, Bro. Boyd having already the privilege of wearing the three taus (or levels) on his apron. The banquet was all that could be desired—well served, very fair wines in abundance. There was also a magnificent dessert; and here we may record the fact that there is a decidedly marked improvement in the management of the Freemasons' Tavern. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Carter, assisted by several well-known artists, there was also some very good amateur singing, contributed by Bros. G. Gumbleton, J. L. Thomas, Jermyn Boyd, and others. The toasts and speeches, apparently, gave great satisfaction, being short and to the purpose (very desirable where there is plenty of harmony). Altogether, the brethren spent a most enjoyable evening. Besides our respected Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey, the visitors comprised a large number of Provincial Grand Officers, one of whom, Bro. George Thompson, had come from Newcastle-on-Tyne to be present. The London lodges were also well represented. We shall conclude our notice with a list of the officers for the year:—Bros. R. Douglas, S.W.; J. Parkins, J.W.; J. Bennett, P.M.; P.G.S., Treas.; H. Dicketts, P.M.; P.G.S., Sec.; E. C. Davies, S.D.; J. Reinhard, J.D.; J. Palmer, I.G.; A. S. Wildy, D.C.; H. Venn, Steward.

WILLIAM PRESTON LODGE (No. 766).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, on Thursday, the 25th January, when a large number of members and visitors were present, amongst whom were Bros. W. E. Newton, W.M.; S. D. Ewins, S.W.; Dr. Cutmore, J.W.; Capt. Kain, P.M., Treas.; W. Worrell, P.M., Sec.; E. Kidman, S.D.; W. J. Roberts, I.G.; G. Newman, P.M.; A. Braun, P.M.; B. Abbott, P.M.; A. C. Rees, P.M.; also Bros. G. Castle, J. R. Williams, H. F. Partridge, J. A. S. Mathews, G. Smithers, jun., Dr. Atwood, H. J. Roberts, B. Broomhall, R. Sutcliffe, R. Lyon, A. Le Grand, H. Reissmann, W. J. Collins, W. Johnston, R. Gunner, W. F. Smart, F. G. Barnes, &c. Visitors: Bros. M. M. Irving, 477; J. E. Carpenter, P.M., 284; H. E. Frances, P.M., P.P.G.D. Surrey; H. Ledger, 1586; Donald King, P.M. 12, &c. The lodge was opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Ballots were taken for Mr. B. Thompson Lowne and Mr. J. H. Brookes, and were unanimous in each case; both those gentlemen being in attendance, they were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Bro. J. A. S. Mathews was also raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, the ceremonies in each case being done by Bro. William Worrell, P.M. and Secretary, at the special request of the W.M. All Masonic business being ended, the brethren adjourned to a well served banquet, presided over by the W.M., and during the evening a most excellent selection of music was given by those two distinguished and well-known Freemasons, Bros. Dr. Carpenter and Donald King.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 857).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Tuesday, January 16. There were present Bros. Crouch, W.M.; Adams, S.W.; Goalen, J.W.; Harrison, P.M. Treas.; Frances, P.P.G.D., Sec.; Wynn Williams, M.D., S.D.; H. G. Green, J.D.; W. Newton, I.G.; also Bros. Seaton, M.D., P.M.; King P.M.; Schinck, P.M.; Bilton, Fryer, Harris, Loyd Tatcher, Hamilton, Mellick, Edwards, M.D., Russel, Raven. The visitors were Bros. Renshaw, Himalaya, Nathan, Earl Spencer. The business of the evening was to initiate Mr. Christopher Armstrong, to raise Bros. Raven, Bilton, and Satchell, and to elect the W.M. for the ensuing year. The ceremonies were admirably performed by Bro. Crouch. The election resulted in the S.W. being unanimously chosen. Bro. Harrison was also re-elected Treasurer. On the motion of Bro. Frances, that a jewel be presented to the retiring Master, Bro. Frances took occasion to revert to the excellent manner in which the duties of the chair had been performed during the past year, and the prosperous condition of the lodge, for which they were mainly indebted to the exertions of Bro. Crouch. The jewel was unanimously awarded. The Audit Committee being appointed, the lodge adjourned to banquet.

CITY OF LONDON LODGE (No. 901).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place on Monday, the 15th ult., at the Guildhall Tavern, Gresham-street, under the presidency of Bro. Henry D'Arcy, the W.M. In addition to the large muster of the members there was a goodly number of visitors, amongst whom were Bros. Francis Buckland, P.M. 205; James Mitchell, J.W. 231; W. G. Kent, 1297; W. J. Haycock, P.M. 901; Geo. Potter, 177; John E. Frede, 193; Charles Arkell, W.M. elect 192; Thomas J. Turner, 193; and Thomas C. Coope, 1558. The lodge minutes having been confirmed, Bro. Smith was passed to the Second Degree and Bro. Micklefield raised to the Third. Messrs. H. Hurst and W. Waller were duly balloted for and initiated. The W.M. next proceeded to install his successor into the chair of K.S. The newly-installed W.M., Bro. George Porter, appointed his officers as follows:—George D'Arcy, S.W.; W. C. Rubardt, J.W.; A. Parker, S.D.; A. Marshall, J.D.; Henry D'Arcy, I.P.M., Treas.; W. Alder, Sec.; A. Ginger, I.G.; E. Berner, D.C.; T. Wallis, W.S.; and Woodstock, Tyler. The work over, the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where an excellent banquet was served. The cloth cleared, the usual loyal, patriotic, and Masonic toasts were given and duly honoured. During the proceedings Bro. George Porter, the newly-installed W.M., invested Bro. Henry D'Arcy with a Past Master's jewel, the unanimous gift of the lodge, observing that it afforded him very great pleasure to present the token of the brethren in recognition of the services rendered by the recipient to the lodge during his term of office. The very able and efficient manner in which he had worked made it a difficult matter for his successors to give the same amount of satisfaction to the brethren; but difficulty was a thing to be overcome, and he trusted he should be able to prove himself a not unworthy successor. Bro. Henry D'Arcy, in a few choice sentences, thanked the brethren for the jewel, observing that he should value it not for its intrinsic worth, but as a token of the regard of the brethren generally, and for the kindly expressions with which the W.M. had accompanied the gift. Bro. Lawrence, P.M., in responding to the toast of "The P.M.'s," urged upon the brethren the absolute necessity of attending lodges of instruction if they desired to attain to any degree of eminence in the Craft. A very excellent lodge of instruction had been established at the Jamaica Coffee House, Cornhill, worked under the City of London charter, and he trusted that the younger members of the lodge, as well as the present officers, would make a point of attending it every Thursday evening. Bro. James Mitchell thanked the brethren for the manner in which they had been entertained, and said that hospitality was a characteristic of Freemasonry, and it was in no lodge exercised more worthily than in that of the City of London. The pleasure of his visit had been greatly enhanced by the admirable manner in which the whole of the lodge working of the evening (and it had been very heavy) had been conducted. Other speakers and toasts followed, and the brethren separated, after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

ST. DUNSTON'S LODGE (No. 1589).—A meeting of this lodge was convened on the 19th ult. at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. There were present Bros. Dwarber, P.M., W.M.; Wellsman, P.M., S.W.; Dalwood, P.M., J.W.; Maxwell, P.M., P.G.S., acting I.P.M.; A. Tisley, Secretary; Dodson, S.D.; Turner, J.D.; Woodbridge, I.G. The minutes of the November meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Lewis, passed Bro. Pearce, and initiated Messrs. Giscard, Clemow, Benningfield, and Bamber. The three arduous ceremonies were exceedingly well performed. A resolution was unanimously passed that the sum of 10 pounds should be voted from the lodge funds to head the list of Bro. Wellsman, S.W., as Steward to the R.M.B.I. for Aged Women. This being election night, Bro. Wellsman, S.W., was unanimously elected to fill the high position of W.M. for the year ensuing. Bro. Praed was also unanimously re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Gilbert, P.G.T. of Middlesex, re-appointed Tyler. Bros. Manners and Bull were elected Auditors. Upon the motion of Bro. Maxwell, P.M., a jewel was unanimously voted to the outgoing Master, Bro. Dwarber, who returned thanks. Mr. Tilby, Organist of St. Dunstan's, having been proposed for initiation at the next meeting, the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, well catered for by the Bros. Clemow, under the superintendence of Bro. Smith. The visitors were Bros. Senecal, P.M. Dalhousie; T. C. Walls, S.D. Kennington; Dillon, 141, Ireland, and F. Clemow. The customary loyal and Craft toasts were given from the chair briefly but to the purpose. Bro. Maxwell, P.G.S., having responded upon behalf of the Grand Officers, immediately proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said that he, as an old Mason, was delighted with the admirable way in which the W.M. had executed all his duties, and as that was the last night of Bro. Dwarber's presidency, he (Bro. Maxwell) hoped that they would receive the toast with enthusiasm. This toast having been duly honoured, the W.M., in the course of a very eloquent reply, said that he was under great obligations to Bro. Maxwell for the kind manner in which he had proposed his health. Masonry, he said, not only conferred great benefits upon its members, but also was the means of doing good to mankind in general. Many of its greatest enemies in the past were now its best friends. Freemasonry of late years had made rapid strides, and was still going forward, but they must not forget what their late brother and Grand Master, Lord Zeland, had often observed, that "quality, not quantity," was the thing to be desired. With regard to the St. Dunstan's Lodge, he was proud at occupying the position of first Master, for more reasons than one. Firstly, because it was founded upon hallowed ground, not only rich in historic and literary lore, but associated with many glorious episodes of the Masonic past; and secondly, by reason of his having spent 44 years in the parish. The very name of the lodge roused in him feelings that he could not trust himself to speak about, but suffice it to say that all his thoughts were centred in it, and in conclusion he thanked them very warmly for the manner that they had always received him, and the recollection of their cheerful countenances, open hands, and kindly hearts, during his year of office would be ever pleasing to him. The W.M. then proposed "The Initiates," in which he stated that during the fifteen years he had been a Mason he had never once regretted having entered its portals. During his connection with the St. Dunstan's Lodge he had initiated twelve gentlemen, whom he hoped would never disgrace those glorious tenets of Freemasonry, "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." In concluding his remarks to the newly-admitted brethren, he forcibly desired them to recollect "that a Mason's charity should know no bounds, save those of prudence." This toast having been duly honoured, and Bro. Tisley having contributed the song of "The Entered Apprentice," the initiates severally replied. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Senecal, Walls, and F. Clemow. In proposing "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary," the W.M. dwelt at length upon the great services the brethren holding those offices had rendered the lodge. The former occupied a very high social and Masonic position, and consequently the members of 1589 ought to be proud—and he believed that they all were—of Bro. Praed's connection with the lodge. With regard to the Secretary, who also held the important post of vestry clerk of the parish, every credit was due to him for the zeal and ability he had displayed in enhancing the interests of the lodge, and in conclusion he charged them to receive the toast with all honour. Bro. Tisley, the Secretary, in the absence of the Treasurer, responded. In the course of his reply he told them that in consequence of many other engagements which pressed upon the Treasurer, they could not hope to see him (Bro. Praed) very often, but the fact of his consenting to act in that capacity was very flattering to the lodge. The W.M. had made some very kind and complimentary allusions to his services as Secretary. He could only repeat what he had said upon former occasions, that he would do his best for the brethren whilst acting in that capacity. In conclusion he mentioned that the lodge mustered forty-seven all told, and that at the end of the financial year there would be a balance in hand of fifty pounds, and further that the voluntary benevolent fund was in a very flourishing condition. The toast of "The Officers" followed. Bro. Wellsman, S.W., W.M. elect, said that he was exceedingly pleased at the manner in which his name had been mentioned in connection with the toast. He was very gratified at having been unanimously elected to fill the chair for the ensuing year, but he should reserve his remarks upon that subject until the next meeting. It was also a source of great delight to him, as well as surprise, to hear from the Secretary that the lodge was in such a prosperous condition, and he hoped that his year of office would be characterised by results equally good. He had chosen a good staff of officers, whom he believed would reflect great credit upon the lodge. Bros. Dallwood, J.W.; Dodson, S.D.; and Turner, J.D., also replied. In the intervals of the toasts and replies, Bros. Platts, Walls, Dodson, Senecal, and others entertained the brethren. The Tyler's toast at half-past ten terminated the proceedings, which were throughout highly successful. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the third Friday in February.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the New Market Hotel, West Smithfield, on the 22nd ult. Bro. Joseph Smith, P.G.P., P.M., W.M., opened the lodge, and presided over the meeting. Punctually at 2.30 p.m. the lodge was opened. Minutes read and unanimously confirmed. In an able manner the W.M. initiated Messrs. W. Smyth, W. C. Watts, and C. Davis; passed Bros. R. Leggett, A. Macfarlane, and F. W. Evans; raised Bros. T. McCluer Butt, W. B. Delafons, and W. Snow. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the admission of Bro. W. Sugg, P.M., 452, as a joining member. A brother was proposed as a joining member, and some gentlemen as candidates for initiation. The lodge was closed and adjourned until March. The usual superior banquet followed labour. The regular toasts were given and responded to. An agreeable afternoon and evening was happily spent. There were present during the afternoon and evening Bros. T. W. Adams, S.W.; G. S. Elliott, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Secretary; J. Howes, P.M., S.D.; J. Johnson, J.D.; G. S. Wintle, P.M., I.G.; A. Black, D.C.; W. Pennefather, P.M., W.S., &c. We noticed amongst the visitors Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P., Middlesex, P.M. 1423; R. P. Hooton, P.M., 765, &c.; F. W. Evans, 1423; A. Macfarlane, 1423, and several others.

KENDAL.—Union Lodge (No. 129).—The annual meeting of this ancient, flourishing, and well-worked lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Stramondgate, on Thursday, January 25th, at three o'clock in the afternoon. The lodge was opened by the W.M., Bro. F. C. Grayson, assisted by Bros. Nelson, S.W.; Bell, as J.W.; and Holme, P.M., P.P.G.W.; John Talbot, P.M., P.P.G.W.; Joseph Bintley, P.M., P.P.G.S. of Works; Titus Wilson, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; John Bowes, P.M., Prov. G.J.W.; and so many other brethren, that the room was crowded to inconvenience. The minutes having been confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when the W.M. invited Bro. John Bowes to undertake the duty of Installing Master, which he did, and discharged his obligations in a manner that elicited the warmest approval of the brethren. The W.M. elect, Bro. R. J. Nelson, was presented by the W.M., and after he had been installed in ample form, he appointed and invested the officers for the ensuing year; and then the Installing Master called upon Bro. John Talbot to deliver the usual addresses. A vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. Bowes for his services, £5 voted to Bro. McKay's list, several candidates proposed, and other routine business transacted, when the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where a dinner of a recherché character awaited them. The newly-installed W.M. presided, and was supported on the right and left by Bros. Bowes, Holme, Talbot, Bintley, W. Cartmel, G. Cartmel, John Bintley (London), Tattersal, F. C. Grayson, C. Gardner-Thomson, Medcalf, Cragg, Hunter, J. Otley Atkinson, and others. The Wardens occupied their usual positions. After the cloth was withdrawn, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts received every care. Bro. Bowes responded for the Grand Lodge of Cumberland and Westmorland. Bro. J. Holme, P.M., P.P.G.W., proposed the W.M.'s health, and in so doing referred to the rapid progress he had made in the art since he had the pleasure of initiating him. Bro. Bowes proposed "The Masonic Charities," and coupled Bro. McKay's name with the toast, and on a collecting card being sent round the tables, it was returned to Bro. McKay, and he found his list augmented by above £5. Bro. Hogg, in responding for "The Older Members of the Lodge," referred to the time when they were indebted to the Carlisle brethren for their existence as a lodge, and contrasted that state of things with the present time, when they had a large body of working members, and their number was constantly increasing. Some excellent songs were admirably rendered during the evening by Bros.

Gooding, Sissons, Nelson, Scales, John Bintley, and others, and the brethren separated in harmony before ten o'clock. One pleasing, though melancholy, feature of the day's proceedings was the unveiling of a memorial portrait of the late Bro. Henry Rauthmel, who had been unexpectedly called to the Grand Lodge above in the prime of life. Bro. Hogg was the artist, and his effort was one of unqualified success.

CHATHAM.—United Lodge of Benevolence (No. 184).—The members of this large and flourishing lodge held their annual festival in their commodious lodge-room, at the Assembly rooms, Middle-st., Brompton, on Tuesday, the 23rd ult., on which occasion there was a numerous attendance, including a number of the Provincial Grand Officers of Kent, together with brethren from many metropolitan lodges, as well as the lodges in the province. The installation of Bro. Simon Young, who had been unanimously elected the W.M. of the lodge for the ensuing year, was performed in an able manner by Bro. Redman, P.M., P.P.D.C., the Board of Installed Masters being composed, among others, of Bros. Ashdown, P.P.G.P.; Noah Mantin, P.P.G.S.B.; Warne, P.P.G.A.S.; Wood, P.P.G.S.W.; Barley, P.P.G.D.C.; Hicks, P.P.G.S.B.; Neall, P.P.D.C.; Goldfinch, P.P.G.S.D.; and others, who gave the usual salutations on the newly-elected Master being inducted with the usual solemnities in the chair of King Solomon. The following were appointed the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year, each of whom were duly invested: Bros. Gorham, P.M.; Rankine, S.W.; the Rev. — Fielding, J.W.; Redman, Treas.; Clarke, Sec.; Middleton, S.D.; Rudd, J.D.; Laren, I.G.; Finnis, D.C.; Challenger, Org.; Hewitt, Chap.; Trice and Wood, Stwds. The customary banquet at the close of the Masonic proceedings took place in the large room of the Mitre Hotel, Chatham, which was handsomely decorated for the occasion. The newly-installed W.M. presided, and proposed the usual Masonic and other toasts. The principal feature, and one of a more than usually interesting character, of the proceedings at the termination of the banquet, was the presentation, on the part of the lodge, of a testimonial to Bro. John Michael Strowse, an old and deservedly respected Past Master of the lodge, in recognition of his lengthened connection with the lodge. Bro. Strowse has been a member of the Craft for the long period of fifty-seven years, he having been initiated in the island of Guernsey. He has been a member of the United Lodge of Benevolence, No. 184, fifty-four years, during the whole of which time he has never once been absent from the installation of the W.M., while for a great number of years he was the Secretary, and also the Treasurer of the lodge. The presentation of the testimonial, which took the form of a handsomely painted portrait of the worthy brother, was presented, on the part of the lodge, by Bro. Wood, P.P.G.S.W., who alluded, in felicitous terms, to Bro. Strowse's lengthened connection with Freemasonry, and the deservedly high estimation in which he was held throughout the province of Kent. Bro. Strowse, who was deeply affected, briefly acknowledged the high compliment paid him, and the honour conferred on him, in a few forcible expressions, his feelings altogether preventing his replying at any greater length. In a subsequent portion of the evening a valuable Past Master's jewel was presented on the part of the lodge to Bro. Gorham, the Immediate Past Master. In addition to the portrait presented to Bro. Strowse, an excellently painted likeness of that distinguished and venerable brother adorns the lodge-room, and is highly prized.

LEICESTER.—St. John's Lodge (No. 279).—The annual festival and installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Freemasons' Hall on the 3rd ult. Ever since it was first opened, on the 11th November, 1790, until the present date, this old lodge has enjoyed a fair measure of uninterrupted success, and the roll of its members contains the names of many of the mayors, aldermen, and others occupying a prominent position in our municipal history, and also those of many of the nobility and leading men of the county, as the first and second Lord Ranelagh, P.G.M.'s, the eighth Earl Ferrers, for many years P.G.M. for Warwickshire (who presented to the lodge the Luminaries now in use), and our excellent and deeply-regretted Provincial Grand Masters—Sir F. G. Fowke, Bart., and the Right Hon. the Earl Howe,—all of whom have in their time passed the chair of the lodge. Many other events of interest are to be found in the minute books of the Lodge which have been recorded in the recently published "History of Freemasonry in Leicestershire," compiled by our Past Prov. Grand Master, Bro. William Kelly, F.R. Hist. S. On this the eighty-fifth festival of the lodge, the attendance of the brethren was both numerous and influential, comprising brethren from the north, east, south, and west, decorated with the insignia of the different grades of office, from the Past Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Kelly, Past Grand Steward, Bro. Binckes, to the newly initiated Entered Apprentice, with his badge of innocence and bond of friendship. Among those present were also Bros. Clement Stretton, P.M., P.P.G.W.; J. W. Smith, P.M.; A. Palmer, P.M.; S. S. Partridge, P.G.S.W.; F. J. Baines, P.M.; J. F. Thorp, P.M.; W. B. Smith, P.M., P.G. Treas.; and W. T. Rowlett, W.M. 523; Edwin Mason, W.M., and Geo. Clifton, P.M.; R. A. Barber, P.M.; B. Moore, S.W.; S. Knight and C. McBride, Secs. 1391, Mackay, 97, and W. Stuart McAllister, 21, S.C. The lodge was opened by the retiring W.M., and the first part of the business, including the voting of considerable sums for various purposes, was dispatched with a unanimity of feeling and action indicative of the perfect harmony and good fellowship which has always been a distinguishing feature of St. John's Lodge. The ceremony of installing Bro. Clement Edwin Stretton, P.G., Supt. of Works, was admirably performed by the veteran Past Master, Bro. Kelly, P.P.G.M., who has been present at every festival of the lodge since his initiation in 1838. The W.M. appointed the following brethren as his officers, and invested those present: Bros. J. M. McAllister, I.P.M.; S. Cleaver, S.W.; Dr. W. E. Buck, J.W.; Chief Constable J. Farndale, Secretary; Rev. J. H. Smith, M.A., Chaplain; C. Gurden (unanimously elected), Treasurer; J. O. Law, S.D.; E. Newton, jun., J.D.; J. Jessop, D.C.; Thos. Colman, I.G.; G. H. Stonehall and M. A. Cook, Stewards; C. Bembridge and Thos. Dunn, Tylers. A hearty vote of thanks was accorded to Bro. J. M. McAllister for the admirable manner in which he had conducted the business of the lodge during the past year, and subsequently a sum of money was voted for two P.M. jewels, one to be presented to Bro. McAllister, and one to Bro. J. W. Smith, P.M., for similar services during the year 1875. Bro. Kelly, P.P.G.M., also received a cordial vote of thanks for his eminent services as Installing Master; likewise Bro. Gurden, as Treasurer, and Bro. S. Cleaver, as Steward. About sixty brethren were present at the banquet which followed, under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. C. E. Stretton, who, notwithstanding his youth (he being the youngest Master who has held office in the lodge), yet acquitted himself with such dignity and ability as to give entire satisfaction. Bro. McAllister, in giving the toast of "the W.M.," alluded to Bro. Stretton as a brother whose independent position in life enabled him to make the liberal arts and sciences his particular study, and the articles which he contributed to various scientific journals not only proved that Bro. Stretton had carefully availed himself of such opportunities, but also in the spirit of a true Mason he had not withheld the knowledge thus acquired from his less informed brethren and fellow men. As a Mason the W.M. had carefully prepared himself for his present position, by a strict and regular discharge of the duties of the subordinate offices. His amiability and knowledge of the ceremonies, will enable him to earn the reputation of a worthy and intelligent Master, a credit to Masonry, and an honour to the lodge. Bro. Binckes, in an eloquent speech of some length, awakened the generous and benevolent feelings of the brethren in favour of the claims of the Boys' School, which was promptly taken advantage of by Bro. S. S. Partridge, the representative Charity Steward passing round the list for subscriptions. Bros. Mackay, R. Taylor, C. Gerdrn, L. L. Attwood, and others, sang some excellent songs during the evening, and the Tyler's toast terminated a most enjoyable meeting.

SEACOMBE.—Combermere Lodge (No. 605).—The annual installation meeting of this lodge took place at the Seacombe Hotel, Seacombe, near Birkenhead, on Thursday, the 18th ult., when there was a very large gathering of the "mystic tie" representatives. Bro. M. McNeerney, W.M., presided at the opening, and among others present were, Bros. E. Davies, P.M.; Thomas Shaw, S.W. (W.M. elect); E. Jones, J.W.; J. Sillitoe, P.M., Treasurer; T. Leighton, P.M., Secretary; J. Jones, S.D.; T. Gregory, J.D.; H. Roberts, I.G.; H. Williams, P.M. 249; R. Gracie, P.M. 477; J. J. Rose, P.M. 249; C. Leighton, P.M. 1325; D. Fraser, P.M. and Treas. 477; J. Dutton, S.W. 477; H. Martin, P.M. 477; W. Jones, S.W. 1276; W. M. Asher, 477; T. Chesworth, W.M. 1576; J. P. Platt, P.P.G.J.W., and others. Bro. R. Gracie, P.M. 477, efficiently occupied the position of Installing Master, and during the evening he placed Bro. Thomas Shaw in the chair of W.M. for the coming year. The following brethren were subsequently invested as officers: Bros. McNeerney, I.P.M.; C. Staley, S.W.; J. Jones, J.W.; J. Sillitoe, Lecturer and Treasurer; T. Leighton, Secretary; R. C. Mellor, P.M., D.C.; T. Gregory, S.D.; R. Foulkes, J.D.; A. E. Coveney, I.G.; R. Kettle, S.S.; J. Davis, J.S.; W. Parry, Organist and Steward; Owen Jones, S.; and J. H. Holloway, Tyler. There was a numerous attendance of members and visitors, and the whole of the afternoon's proceedings passed off with much success. At the banquet which followed, over which Bro. Shaw, W.M., presided, there was also a large attendance, and among the most interesting features of the evening was the presentation of two rings to Bro. Sillitoe and Bro. T. Leighton, in recognition of their excellent services as Treasurer and Secretary; and a Past Master's jewel to Bro. McNeerney, I.P.M., in token of the esteem of the brethren for his many fine Masonic qualities.

LIVERPOOL.—Derby Lodge (No. 724).—The annual festival of St. John, in connection with this favourite lodge, was celebrated on Wednesday afternoon, the 24th ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street. The lodge was opened at two o'clock by Bro. W. Vaughan, W.M., and amongst the brethren who were present during the more serious business of the lodge were Bros. J. W. Ballard, I.P.M.; W. Shortis, P.M.; R. Cain, P.M.; J. Davison, P.M.; W. Stedford, P.M.; G. Beeken, S.W.; A. Hart, J.W.; T. Chesworth, P.M., Treasurer; R. Crispe, Sec.; Maurice Hart, W.M. 1502, S.D.; H. Trevitt, J.D.; P. Armstrong, I.G.; M. Williamson, Tyler; J. Jacobs, T. Heaton, T. Hunt, A. Emmanuel, J. Sharples, M. Hines, D. Arnett, H. Ellis, J. Pendleton, E. McSwiney, J. Blenkinsop, W. Gatty, F. Groom, E. Ellis, and others. The visitors' list contained the names of Bros. R. P. France, W.M. 594; J. Fox, P.M. 202; Rev. H. G. Vernon, P.P.G.C.; T. Shaw, I.P.M. 823; T. Dilcock, P.M. 594; J. Lecomber, S.W. 594; W. Wilson, W.M. 823; J. Dutton, S.W. 477; and others. After the minutes had been confirmed, and the retiring W.M. had given several degrees in capital form, he (Bro. Vaughan, as the last act of his official year) proceeded to install Bro. G. Beeken as his successor in the chair in the East. The following brethren were subsequently invested as the next year's officers: Bros. W. Vaughan, I.P.M.; A. Hart, S.W.; R. Crispe, J.W.; T. Chesworth, P.M., Treas. (re-elected for the ninth time); Maurice Hart, Sec.; H. Trevitt, S.D.; P. Armstrong, J.D.; W. Hawksworth, I.G.; G. Gordon, S.S.; A. R. Large, J.S.; W. J. Naylor, A.S.; H. Ellis, Org.; and M. Williamson, Tyler. During the business proceedings a very handsome P.M.'s jewel was presented to Bro. W. Vaughan, I.P.M., as a token of the esteem and admiration of the "Derby" members. At the banquet which followed business, where Bro. Beeken, W.M., presided, there was an attendance of about 100. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair with much point, and during the evening the I.P.M. gave "The Health of the W.M.," to whose many excellent qualities he referred in highly eulogistic terms. The W.M., in response, assured the brethren that he felt the responsibility of the position he had taken that day, but he would endeavour to do its duties to the very best of his ability, and try to follow in the footsteps of many worthy brethren who had preceded him in the chair. Harmony, both musical and brotherly, prevailed, and an exceedingly pleasant St. John's Festival came to a close at a seasonable hour.

KINGSTON-ON-THAMES.—Doble Lodge (No. 889).—On Wednesday 17th ult., the members of this lodge assembled in strong force at the Griffin Hotel, Kingston-on-Thames, to assist at the installation of Bro. F. Buckland, P.M. 205, as W.M. in succession to Bro. J. Bond. The ceremony was ably performed by Bro. Elsam, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. Surrey, and at its close the brethren adjourned to the banquet hall, the company then numbering about fifty. Under the personal superintendence of Bro. Hardy, son of the host, an elegant repast was served, over which the newly elected Master presided. The officers appointed by the W.M. are Bros. Gaunders, S.W.; Porter, J.W.; Cartwright, P.M., Treas.; J. Squire, P.M., Sec.; Mitton, S.D.; H. Linton, J.D.; A. Nuthall, I.G.; Long, P.M., D.C.; and Honeywell, P.M., Org. Among the visitors were Bros. Bateman, W.M. 820; May, W.M. 1628; Sharpe, P.M.; and Weaver, S.W. 820.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—This lodge assembled at private rooms, Newton Heath, on Saturday, 6th ult., and was opened at 3 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. J. Batchelder. The minutes of last meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Mr. Robert Brown and Mr. Richard Holt Robinson, and was in each case declared favourable. The W.M. then received into the "mystic circle" Bro. Brown, and in such a correct manner as not to be surpassed by our veteran Past Masters, who have performed many ceremonies of initiation. Mr. Robinson was unable to present himself on account of a family bereavement. The lodge having been worked into the necessary degree, Bro. Duckworth expressed a desire to be raised to the Degree of Degrees, that of a Master Mason, which wish was complied with, Bro. Tyers, P.M. and Treas., performing the ceremony in a manner creditable to any lodge. The lodge was then reduced, and propositions for initiation were received from Bros. Batchelder, W.M., and Kleinmann, J.S. Bro. J. W. Turner, P.M., also proposed as a joining member Bro. T. H. Hall, of Lodge Boscawen, No. 699, Chacewater, Cornwall, and also proposed, in accordance with notice given, "That the sum of five pounds be given from the Charity Fund to the East Lancashire Systematic Masonic Educational and Benevolent Institution, such amount being to endow the Worshipful Master's chair in perpetuity." Bro. W. J. Kinder, S.W., seconded the motion, and the same was carried. Bro. Batchelder, W.M., proposed "That hearty good wishes and a vote of thanks be accorded to Bro. Tyers, P.M. and Treas., for the handsome present he gave to the lodge on St. John's Day, December 2nd, 1876, consisting of a choice set of wine and spirit decanters, with the name and number of the lodge engraved thereon." Bro. John Kinder, P.M., seconded the proposition, which received unanimous support, and instructions were given for it to be recorded on the lodge minutes. Charity having been exercised, representations from Lodges 667, 669, 1011, and 1077 tendered their "Hearty good wishes," and the lodge was closed in peace and harmony, after which the brethren sat down to indulge in "the cup that cheers but not inebriates," followed by the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, interspersed with vocal element. This being the first meeting after the installation of Bro. Batchelder as W.M., each officer in his turn replied to the toast of "The Officers of the Lodge of Truth, No. 1458." The fact that it possesses good and efficient officers cannot be disputed. Two important offices in a lodge are those of "the Deacons," which, when well filled, reiterate the symbols of true Masonry. Bro. Cox, S.D., substantiated this fact last year, when Junior Deacon, and doubtless he will evince it in the Senior grade, with Bro. Taylor following in his footsteps. We close our report by wishing the "Lodge of Truth" a happy and prosperous new year, but must not omit the fact, that the brethren separated at a seasonable hour, 10 p.m. "Their labour o'er, their rest was won."

MOLD.—The Sir Watkin Lodge (No. 1477).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Rooms, Mold, on Monday, the 15th January, Bro. Corbett, the W.M., presided, and passed Bro. Howard to the Second Degree, the lecture being delivered by Bro. J. Salmon, P.G.J.W. The installation will take place in March.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—A strong muster of the members of this lodge took place at the Lion Hotel on Thursday, the 18th ult. Amongst those present were Bros. Hurst, W.M.; J. Hammond, P.M., S.W.; S. Hill, P.M., J.W.; W. Hammond, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, &c., Secretary; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, I.P.M., Treasurer; Fox, S.D.; Jessett, J.D.; I. Ockenden, I.G.; T. C. Walls, D.C.; B. Sharp, P.M.; and others. The visitors were Bros. Wilson, P.M. Etonian; Güterbock, Phoenix; Lamb, J.D. Lily of Richmond. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., assisted by his officers, in a careful manner passed Bros. Messenger, Phillips, and Schmitz to the Second Degree. It was unanimously resolved that the sum of ten guineas should be voted to the Girls' School, and be placed on the list of Bro. Ockenden, I.G., who will represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival of the institution in May next. A discussion having taken place upon the necessity of establishing a lodge or club of instruction in connection with the "Hemming," the lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren partook of a collation, well provided for by Bro. Murphy. As the hour was far advanced before the cloth was cleared, the toasts were but briefly given, and the replies, from the same cause, were necessarily very terse. "The Health of the R.W.D.P.G.M. of Middlesex, and the rest of the P.G.O.'s, Past and Present," was acknowledged by Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M., in which he complimented him upon the rapid progress he had made in Masonic working. This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. replied very neatly, and immediately proposed "The Visitors." Bro. Wilson, P.M. Etonian, in acknowledging the toast, expressed his thanks, and stated that the "Hemming" Lodge was progressing in a manner that left little to be desired, even by its most ardent supporters. Bros. Lamb and Güterbock also responded. "The Health of the Past Masters," Bros. Hopwood and W. Hammond, followed, and gave the W.M. an opportunity of thanking those worthy and indefatigable officers for the great support that they had not only given to him, but to the entire lodge. This toast having been very warmly received, Bros. Hopwood, I.P.M., and W. Hammond, P.M., replied by stating that they, as founders, were gratified at witnessing the prosperity and position the lodge had achieved in the short time that had elapsed since its foundation. As long as they held the honourable positions of Treasurer and Secretary to No. 1512, it would always be their pride to further the interests of its members in every conceivable way. "The Officers' toast came next. Bro. John Hammond, P.M., S.W., in the course of his reply, stated that he also endorsed the remarks passed by previous speakers upon the rapid progress made by the lodge. There was one thing, however, which should not be overlooked, and that was the necessity of there being an uniformity of "working." The work was fairly done, but he should like to see it better, and he hoped that the members would occasionally meet for the purpose of mutual instruction, and that any scheme to promote that end would meet with his hearty co-operation. Bros. Hill, J.W., and Fox, S.D., also replied. In proposing the next toast, that of "The Masonic Charities," the W.M. hoped that the members of the lodge would privately supplement the sum voted that day in lodge, to make their Steward's list at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls a good one. Bro. Ockenden made a most powerful appeal on behalf of all the benevolent institutions connected with the Craft. He stated that the year 1876 would be Masonically remembered as a very prosperous one, inasmuch as the large sum of £40,000 had been subscribed for the benefit of the widow, the orphan, and the distressed. This amount was an increase of £7000 over any previous year's contribution, and spoke volumes for the philanthropic principles eliminated by their noble Craft. In conclusion, he stated that he had been very fortunate last year as Steward to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, but he hoped to be more successful this year in the cause of the Institution for Girls. During the evening vocal contributions were given by Bros. Hurst, Hammond, Hill, Walls, Jessett, Schmitz, Knowles, and others. Previously to the Tyler's toast, "The Health of Bro. B. Sharp, P.M., &c.," was proposed, and having been responded to, the brethren shortly afterwards separated until the third Thursday in February next.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The usual monthly meeting of this young and prosperous lodge was held on Tuesday, the 23rd ult., at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and the very large attendance of officers, members, and visitors demonstrated clearly the great interest which is felt in the "Dramatic," which has rapidly attained an acknowledged eminent position in the Craft. With experienced and intelligent brethren to guide the affairs of No. 1609, it has started on a career of the greatest brilliancy and promise. Bro. Joseph Bell, P.M., was in his place, and was supported by Bros B. B. Marson, P.M.; W. J. Chapman, S.W.; Lindo Courtenay, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treas.; H. J. Loveday, Sec.; J. Atkinson, I.G.; A. Pyer, S.S.; A. Collinson, J.S.; J. Skeaf, P.G.O., Org.; W. H. Ball, Tyler; L. Lablache, G. Martin, F. Wilkinson, Dale, Shrapnell, R. Burgess, J. Hill, Frank Emery, H. Leslie, G. Mears, I. Levy, 667; Dr. Whittle, Sephton, P.M. 1086; J. Capell, Buck, Williams, Stafford, J. F. Cowdell, and others. The ballot having been taken for Mr. Sidney Fritz Smith, of the Royal Alexandra Theatre, which proved unanimously in his favour, he was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Eight brethren presented themselves for the purpose of being raised—Bros. Leslie, Emery, Cowdell, Lablache, Hill, Shrapnell, Dale, and Martin, and the W.M., taking them in two sections of four each, performed the impressive ceremonies in a manner which it would have been difficult to excel. Several propositions for joining and initiation having been made, the lodge was closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room. After the repeat the standard loyal and Craft toasts were proposed; and during the evening Bro. J. Bell, W.M., referred to the early departure of Bro. H. J. Loveday, Sec., to take the stage management of the Lyceum Theatre in London. He alluded to the loss which the lodge would sustain by his absence, spoke of the many genial and brotherly traits of character which he possessed, and asked the brethren to drink his health and prosperity in his metropolitan sphere of professional work. The toast was honoured with enthusiasm, and Bro. Loveday thanked the brethren for their invariable courtesy and kindness, assuring them that he would carry with him to London the liveliest recollections of the Dramatic Lodge, with which he had been identified since its beginning. Various other toasts followed, and the brethren separated shortly after seven o'clock. It may be stated that Bro. Loveday has been connected with the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Liverpool, for the last seven years, as musical and stage director, where he has gained the esteem and admiration of a large circle of friends, about 100 of whom entertained him at supper at the Adelphi Hotel last week, and cordially wished him success in his new undertaking. The gathering was the largest musical, dramatic, and literary gathering ever seen in Liverpool; and probably no place out of London could have shown such an assembly.

LION AND LAMB CHAPTER (No. 102).—The companions of this young but rapidly increasing chapter (not only in numbers but prosperity) met at Cannon-street Hotel, on January 17th, 1877. Present:—Comps. Geo. Newman, M.E.Z.; F. D. Copestick, H.; Henry Birdseye, J.; George Kenning, P.Z., Treas.; Francis Fellows, S.E.; Edward Jones, S.N.; Charles Arkell, P.S.; T. C. Chapman, 1st Asst. Soj.; R. P. Hooton, 2nd Asst. Soj.; Henry Muggeridge, P.G.S.B.; Ed. King, P.Z.; Thos. Cobu, W. E. Newton, G. Phythian, Geo. Potter, G. Bartholomew, Henry Cox, J. Curle, J. Greenway, J. Kent, and other companions. The ballot was taken for Bros. Medwin and Brand. Afterwards Bros. J. Lorkin, Grocott, Medwin, and Brand were exalted to the Supreme Degree of H.R.A.M. A conclave of Installed Principals was then formed, and Comp. Henry Muggeridge, Past Grand Standard Bearer of the Grand Chapter of England, duly installed Comps. F. D. R. Copestick, M.E.Z.; Henry Birdseye, H.; T. C. Chapman, J. The conclave was then closed, and the following companions inducted into their different offices:—Comps. George Kenning, P.Z., Treas.; Francis Fellows, S.E.; Charles Arkell, S.N.; George Phythian, P.S. Comp. Geo. Phythian appointed Comps. R. P. Hooton and J. Copestick, 1st and 2nd Assistants. The visitors, as usual in this excellent chapter, mustered strong, viz.: Comps. F. G. White, 22; F. H. Wilson, P.Z. and S.E. 424, D.G.S.E. Herts.; Geo. Row, H. 1185; T. W. Carnell, 1316; R. E. Bright, J. C. H. Bailey, and J. G. Marsh, 954; G. Clarke, 177. The installation ceremony was beautifully rendered by Comp. Henry Muggeridge. It is at all times very pleasing to be present at the working of this great veteran in either Craft or Royal Arch Masonry, and this occasion was the more pleasing inasmuch that an impromptu present was given to the much respected old-Mason (arranged in a few days by members of the chapter). The present consisted of a very handsome clock with suitable inscription. The M.E.Z., Comp. Copestick, in presenting, spoke in a very able manner, referring to Comp. Henry Muggeridge's great services to the Lion and Lamb Chapter, not only in obtaining warrant but in working so excellently for some years, and observed that the present was small, from a few, and was given for special services to the chapter only, but he hoped that Comp. Muggeridge would receive at the hands of the Craft and Royal Arch Masons, including those hundreds that had been taught by him, some greater mark of their esteem for a lifetime devoted so purely to Masonry. The chapter after closing adjourned to the supper-room, where a very happy evening was spent by the companions; supper, songs, jokes, and fraternal exchanges of civilities all good.

Mark Masonry.

SOUTH MOLTON.—Fortescue Lodge (No. 9).—A meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, the 22nd ult., and in the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. Wood, Bro. J. T. Shapland, I.P.M. and P.G.J.W., took the chair, assisted by the Wardens, Bros. J. Brewer, P.G.J.O., and Wm. Cole, and the other officers of the lodge. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, the Treasurer then produced and read his last year's account, which was very satisfactory. A very worthy brother having been proposed for advancement the lodge was closed in due form. This old lodge in its working is second to none in the province. It was established by our much respected P.G. Master, Lieut.-Col. Tanner Davey, in 1857, who has continued to support it ever since.

Knights Templar.

MANCHESTER.—St. Joseph Encampment.—The annual meeting of this encampment was held in the Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Friday, 12th ult. The encampment was opened at six o'clock by the Deputy Provincial Grand Commander, Sir Knt. C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, in due form. Sir Knt. Beswicke-Royds then installed as the Eminent Commander Sir Knt. Thos. David Nelson, and in doing so impressed on him the importance of his attending Convent General and Grand Conclave whenever he could make it convenient, and especially when business of importance is to be considered so that the St. Joseph Encampment might not suffer by not being represented. The Eminent Commander appointed and invested his officers:—Sir Knts. Mestajer, First Captain; Flowers, Second Captain; Brooks, Reg.; Warren, Treas.; Pike, Expert; Taylor, Captain of Lines. The fact that Convent General resolved on the 8th December last to restore Past Rank and return to the old names and privileges enjoyed prior to 1872 has given great and general satisfaction in this province, and was practically evinced in this encampment by the proposal of five companions for installation. The Eminent Commander having received hearty good wishes of visiting Knights from De Tabley, Province of Cheshire; Albert, and Jerusalem, Province of Lancashire, the encampment was closed with solemn prayer, and the Knights adjourned to banquet, after which the usual toasts were proposed and responded to:—"The Queen, Patron of our Order," "The Prince of Wales, Grand Master," "The Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," "The Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Very High and Eminent Grand Commander of England and the Colonies," "Very Eminent Sir Knt. Albert Hudson Royds, Grand Commander of Lancashire," and "The Deputy Grand Commander, Sir Knt. C. R. N. Beswicke-Royds, and the rest of the Officers of this Province." Sir Knt. Ashworth, Prov. Chancellor, in responding, alluded to the serious indisposition of the Provincial Grand Commander, but was pleased to find that his son and deputy was so ably walking in his footsteps—working hard, and making himself useful in every part of the province for the good of the Order. Sir Knt. Ashworth also alluded to his having so frequently asked those who had votes to attend the Convent General and Great Priory, and to the persistent opposition of several Very Eminent Knights to the propositions of Sir Knt. Royds, which were passed and made law at the last Convent General. He knew the great inconvenience it was to the majority of Knights in the province to be called away from business, but hoped if any occasion required the whole 150 P.E.C.'s would make it a point of duty to attend and help the Grand Commander of this and other provinces in preserving the established constitutions and landmarks of the Order. "The Eminent Commander St. Joseph's Encampment." Sir Knt. Nelson, in responding to this toast, said he was very much pleased three months ago when they elected him the Preceptor; but he was much more pleased now they had installed him as the Eminent Commander. He thanked the Deputy Grand Commander for having come from Lytham, a distance of forty miles, to install him, and hoped he should always be found at his post ready to answer the call of duty. "The Visitors" was responded to by Sir Knt. Sykes, E.C., and Sir Knt. Beresford, P.E.C. of De Tabley, and Sir Knt. Dr. Royle, of Jerusalem, each of whom expressed the pleasure he had in being present to witness the installation by Sir Knt. Beswicke-Royds. They rejoiced at his success at last Convent General, and promised him support if he requires it in future, but hoped the Grand Master and the Grand Commander would not be again troubled by any one attempting to alter what had just been done, or again take away rank that had been justly earned and conferred. "The P.E.C." Sir Knt. Bennett, in responding, expressed his regret at not being able to attend all the meetings, being now resident in London. He was pleased at being able to attend Convent General, and take part in passing the propositions of the Provincial Grand Commander, and would at all times do what he could to benefit St. Joseph's Encampment. "The Officers" was responded to by the First Captain, Sir Knt. Mestajer, who preferred that title to being called Constable. The officers appointed would do all they could to support the E.C. and to benefit the St. Joseph's Encampment.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALBERT EDWARD LODGE, POLMADIE, RENFREWSHIRE (No. 592).—The consecration of a new lodge at Polmadie, named Albert Edward, took place on Thursday, 25th January. Previous to the consecration ceremony the Provincial Grand Master of Renfrewshire East, Bro. Colonel Campbell of Blythwood, the office-bearers of the P.G. Lodge, and a number of other brethren, were entertained at dinner at Eastfield House by Bro. Robert Nisbet, the W.M. of the new lodge. The Albert Edward Lodge hall is situated at Polmadie-street, Polmadie, and is newly constructed. On the present occasion it was elaborately and tastefully decorated with evergreens, bannerets, &c. Shortly before six o'clock in the evening the lodge was opened in the E.A. Degree, and immediately raised to the Sublime Degree under the presidency of the W.M., Bro. Nisbet. The W.M. having requested the P.G. Master to consecrate the lodge, the latter took the chair. The solemn and impressive ceremony of consecration was then gone through, the brethren heartily joining in the responses, a choir of the brethren sustaining with considerable ability the musical portions. In the course of the proceedings the P.G. Secretary read the charter of constitution, and the following office-bearers of the Albert Edward Lodge were installed by the P.G. Master: Bros. Robert Nisbet, W.M.; Thos. White, D.M.; Wm. Clark, S.M.; A. C. Killock, S.W.; Jas. Grieg, J.W.; J. C. Shand, Treas.; Robert Wash, Sec.; Walter Gunn, S.D.; Geo. Catto, J.D.; Robt. McMillan, S.S.; Wm. Gourlay, S.B.; Geo. Stein, I.G.; Geo. Reid, Tyler. At the conclusion of the consecration ceremony, the P.G. Master delivered an eloquent oration, in which he pointed out the beauties of Masonry, and particularly the brotherly love that was engendered amongst all those who were initiated into its mysteries. The proceedings were closed by the brethren giving grand honours, and the P.G. Chaplain pronouncing the benediction. The P.G. Master having vacated the chair, the W.M. again presided, and the newly consecrated lodge was placed under the charge of the J.W., the brethren being hospitably entertained by the W.M.

PAISLEY.—Lodge St. Mirrens (No. 129).—The meeting of this lodge for the election of office bearers took place on Monday, the 18th ult., in the Masonic Hall, 5, Moss-street. The office bearers present were Bros. H. S. Edmonds, W.M.; T. Bustard, D.M.; A. McLeod, I.P.M.; W. Gemmell, S.W.; G. Fisher, J.W.; P. Blair, Treas.; A. McPherson, Sec.; B. McLeod, S.D.; H. Baxter, J.D.; W. Craig, I.G., and others. The attendance of brethren was the largest that ever assembled in this lodge—over 160 having signed the Sedurant Book. After the lodge had been opened, and the minutes read and adopted, the Auditors appointed at last meeting read their report, which showed the funds of the lodge to be in a very satisfactory condition, there being a balance this year of £37 to the credit. The election of office bearers for the ensuing year was then proceeded with, and resulted as follows:—G. Fisher, W.M.; H. S. Edmonds, I.P.M.; T. Bustard, D.M.; T. J. Bustard, S.W.;

B. C. McLeod, J.W.; P. Blair, Treas.; B. C. Kilgour, Sec.; Rev. W. F. Mills, Chap.; P. Moir, S.D.; W. Russell, J.D.; A. Morrison, S.S.; W. Wotherspoon, J.S.; J. Barnet, S.S.B.; A. Moffatt, J.S.B.; W. Scott, Jeweller; W. Robin, Architect; C. A. Hardie, D. of M.; W. Craig, I.G.; W. Alexander, Tyler. The installation of the newly-elected office bearers was thereafter proceeded with, Bro. Edmonds, P.M., officiating. The lodge voted unanimously a sum of £10 to the retiring Secretary, Bro. McPherson, in recognition of his highly appreciated services whilst holding that office. Some business of minor importance having been transacted, the lodge was closed.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Athole (No. 413).—The bi-monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, 23rd January, in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The W.M., Bro. Walter Neilson, presided, the other office-bearers present being Bros. James Louttit, P.M.; Andrew Holms, S.M.; George Bennett, S.W.; William O'Brien, J.W.; Peter Agnew, Treas.; George Struthers, Sec.; and David Hodge, S.D. There was a very fair attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes of last meeting read and passed, the subject of the ensuing annual festival of the lodge was brought up and the question as to whether it should take the form of a supper or soiree discussed. Ultimately, it was resolved upon that it should be the former, and that ladies should be eligible to be present. A committee having been appointed to make the necessary arrangements, the lodge proceeded to discuss some private business, after which it was closed in due and ancient form.

SCOTLAND.—St. Andrew's Chapter (No. 69).—A meeting of the Royal Ark Mariners' Lodge attached to this chapter was held on Monday, 15th ult. The lodge was opened by T. M. Campbell, F.N.; J. McInnes, J.; R. Brand, S. Comp. William H. Stark received the Degree. A Council of Red Cross Knights was opened afterwards, when Comps. John H. Fash, John McInnes, Wm. H. Stark, Robert Brand, Thomas Cowan, and William Pascoe were duly received and dubbed as Knights of the Sword, Knights of the East, or Princes of Jerusalem, and Knights of the East and West, by Thomas M. Campbell, King, C. and D., and M.E.C., assisted by Sir Knt. James O. Park. The ceremonies of the several degrees were performed in a very efficient and instructive manner, the Most Excellent Chief being more impressive (if possible) than we have seen him on former occasions. He was kindly granted a dispensation for the Knights by the Deputy Grand Principal Z., Harry Inglis of Torsonce, for the purpose of resuscitating this degree. This chapter has now fixed four regular meetings in the year for working the above degrees, viz., last Fridays in January, April, July, and October. Their first regular meeting will be held in the Masonic Hall, 25, Robertson-street, on 26th inst., at 7.30 p.m., for the election of office-bearers.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION STONE OF A MASONIC HALL AT BOURNEMOUTH.

The Order of Free and Accepted Masons, if not "as old as the hills," is, at all events, so ancient that we have no authentic account of the time when it was first instituted; indeed, in a treatise on Masonry, published in 1792, by William Preston, Master of the Lodge of Antiquity, it is traced from the creation: "Ever since symmetry began, and harmony displayed her charms," says he, "our Order has had a being." By other accounts the history of Masonry is only carried up to the building of Solomon's Temple. Be this as it may, Freemasonry ranks amongst things most ancient and venerable; and it may be interesting to some of our readers to know that its introduction to this country has been fixed at the year 674; though the most ancient lodge in England—the Grand Lodge of Masons at York—dates its foundation in 626; and by virtue of a charter granted by King Athelstane, all the Masons in the kingdom were convened at a general assembly in that city, where they established their government; and until with the last century no general meetings were held anywhere else. Masonry has suffered many vicissitudes since then, but in those days, and for many centuries after, Masonry really meant masonry, and its monuments are to be found in the old Cathedrals of Canterbury, Rochester, St. Paul's and many others; in the re-building of Westminster Abbey in the eleventh century; in the Tower of London, the Palace of Westminster, London Bridge, and a host of other buildings comprising our national architecture. Working Masons banded themselves together in lodges, presided over by the greatest architects of the day, patronised by kings and princes, and making their mark upon every age, in grand old piles which we of the nineteenth century love to gaze upon and never tire of admiring. Then Masonry, as we all know, includes the pleasing feature—first proposed by the Duke of Buccleugh, who in 1723 succeeded the Duke of Wharton as Grand Master—of raising a general fund for distressed Masons; and although the profound secrecy in which its proceedings are studiously wrapped, prevents the particularising of its uses, the society undoubtedly promotes philanthropy, friendship and morality. Its signs to serve as a kind and universal language, so that by means of them most distant nations may become acquainted and enter into friendship with each other.

And as Masonry may thus be said to be one of the oldest institutions in the country, and indeed in the world, so we can claim that it is one of the oldest institution in Bournemouth. Lodge Hengist, No. 195 was founded Nov. 23rd, 1770, at the ancient borough-town Christchurch, under a warrant from the Grand Lodge of England, on the petition of Henry Dagg, Thomas Jeans, and another. On the 9th of May, 1851, the lodge was removed to Bournemouth, and prosperity has characterised it ever since. The centenary festival was held on the 23rd November, 1870, when the Provincial Grand Master of Hampshire, and the Provincial Officers attended, and decorated the then Worshipful Master—Bro. E. W. Rebbeck—with the centenary jewel. The Chaplain, Bro. the Rev. P. H. Newnham, read a very interesting history of the lodge, and the R.W. P.G.M. congratulated the members on their continued success. Now, the lodge-room at the Belle Vue Assembly Rooms has become too small for the members, and it has been found necessary to seek more convenient quarters, and we congratulate the lodge on the excellent site chosen for a new hall, the first stone of which was laid on Monday, and a description of which we append.

The new Masonic Hall is to contain on the ground floor a hall 45ft. by 21ft. 6in., which will afford accommodation for from 50 to 80 brethren. The ante-rooms being placed in front of the building, will ensure perfect privacy to the hall. On this floor are also a retiring room and other conveniences. In the basement are a refreshment room and kitchen. The front of the building is to be faced with white brick and Bere freestone, and will be after the Tuscan order of architecture. The contract for the building, amounting to £896, is to be carried out by Mr. J. McWilliam; the time for completion being fixed as the 1st of May next. The architect is Bro. T. Stevens, of this town, who appears to have been successful in producing a design which will utilise the somewhat limited space to its utmost extent, and the general style of which will, we think, be much appreciated when completed, and be a welcome addition to the public buildings of the town.

The weather on this auspicious occasion was unusually fine. The lodge assembled at the Pembroke Hotel at two o'clock, and was close tyed at 2.30. Shortly after three o'clock a grand procession was formed in the following order:

Two P.G. Tylers (Bros. Green and Graham), with drawn swords.

Band of the 4th Hants Artillery.

Visiting Brethren, not members of any Lodge, two and two.

The Lodges of the Province of Hampshire and Isle of Wight, according to their numbers, preceded by their banner, Juniors going first.

Architect (Bro. T. Stevens) and builder (J. McWilliam, P.M.) with the plans.

Cornucopia with corn, borne by Bro. Halliday, 132.

Ewer with wine, borne by G. Gouch, P.M. 195.

Ewer with oil, borne by W.M., Blandford Lodge.

P.G. Pursuivant (Bro. Rawlins).

Organist (Bro. T. Arthur Burton).

P.G. Secretary (Bro. J. E. Le Feuvre) with book of Constitutions on a cushion.

Treasurer of Lodge Hengist (Bro. C. R. Plank), bearing a phial containing the coins to be deposited in the stone.

Visitors of distinction

The Corinthian Light borne by Bro. Merson, S.W.

P.J.G. Warden (Brother Dyer, W.M. 132), with plumb rule.

P. G. Steward (Bro. Legge).

The Doric Light, borne by Bro. W. J. Worth, J.W.

P.S.G. Warden (Bro. Captain West) with level.

The P. Junior Grand Deacon (Bro. Atkinson).

Chaplain (Bro. the Rev. Gordon Browne) with the Volume of the Sacred Law.

P.G. Superintendent of Works with the plate bearing the inscription.

D.P.G. Master (Bro. Hickman) with square.

Brother of eminence (Bro. Cartwright, P.D.M. West India, S.C.), bearing the mallet and the trowel.

Sword bearer (Bro. E. W. Rebbeck, P.M.).

R.W. Provincial Grand Master (Bro. Beach).

Bro. J. Druitt, jun., W.M. Lodge Hengist.

There was a very large attendance of spectators, the line of route being thronged, whilst from the windows in the vicinity of the site of the proposed structure, and from every spot of vantage ground near, crowds of men, women, and children witnessed the proceedings. Police officers guarded the hoarding in front of the works, which are situate on St. Michael's-rise, Commercial-road. On arriving at the site, the brethren halted, divided right and left, turning inwards for the Right Worshipful Prov. Grand Master and his officers to pass up the centre, preceded by his Sword Bearer, and followed by the various lodges in inverted order from the bottom of the procession. The basement of the new structure has already been partly erected, and over the rafters had been placed loose planks for the convenience of the brethren. Here was placed an American organ, and the procession formed a semi-circle about it, leaving space for the P.G.M. and chief officers to perform the ceremony connected with the laying of the stone. When all had taken their places, Organist T. A. Burton took his position at the organ and the anthem was sung, "Behold, how good and joyful a thing it is for brethren to dwell together in unity." The stone was then raised, and the Chaplain, the Rev. C. G. Browne, M.A., intoned the well-known prayer, commencing, "Prevent us, O Lord, in all our doings." The P.G. Treas., C. R. Plank, by command of the R.W.P.G.M., then deposited in a cavity in the stone a bottle containing coins of the present reign, a newspaper of the day, and a list of the officers and members of the lodge. The cement was laid on the lower stone, and the upper one slowly lowered, solemn music playing the while. The P.G.M. then came forward, and received the plumb rule from the P.J.G.W., the level from the P.S.G.W., and the square from the D.P.G.M. After testing the stone, the P.G.M. said, It is a well wrought stone, square, level, perpendicular, and fitted to form the foundation of the intended work. The plans were next submitted by the P.G. Supt. of Works, and examined by the P.G.M., who said: They are accurately defined, well executed, and well fitted for the design of the intended work. The mallet, square, &c., being handed to the architect, the following hymn was sung to the tune of the Old Hundredth:

This first foundation now we've made,
Level and square, upright and true,
Firm may it rest upon its bed,
For months, and years, long ages through.
Grand Architect on Heaven's high span,
Pass Thou our work, our efforts aid;
Permit Thy lowly creature, man,
To praise Thee who hast all things made.
This house we dedicate to Thee,
To truth, and parity and love,
Fill thou our hearts with charity,
And raise our souls to Thee above.
By faith, Lord, level Thou our steps:
By love adjust our every deed:
With hope enlighten Thou the depths
Of our great, never-ending, need.
And when at last our work is done,
As stones prepared and shaped by Thee,
Our battle's o'er, our victories won,
Build us, O Lord, a house to Thee.—So mote it be.

P.G.M. Beach then said:—Ladies and gentlemen, and brethren, at the erection of all stately and superb edifices there is a necessity for wisdom and skill in the design for solidity and strength in the execution. In order to carry out these qualities efficiently and well, in former days workmen were formed into guilds and societies and attained an excellence in the work which probably has never been surpassed. They passed away from their generation, but they left behind them no mean record of their skill and ability in those magnificent buildings which have existed from mediæval ages. These bring to the latter age the record of the skill and the unity which animated them. By means of that unity and skill, they were enabled to bring to successful execution some of the most magnificent buildings which have ever existed on the face of the earth, and we know very well from certain tokens which are engraven thereon that in their day they were Masons, and have left impressed upon them a record of the fact. Those buildings form a sort of bridge by which we are enabled to gulf over the distance of time which has existed between their age and ours. We have succeeded to some extent as their successors. We do not in the present time emulate their example as operative Masons, but we have adopted them from certain principles, up to which we try to act. We have adopted their utility as one rule of our conduct, and it is by our unity as brethren that we exist as a large and powerful society. We adopted also their principles of self-assistance. They in their day assisted each other, and the principles therefore of benevolence has never failed to exist amongst us. The principle, too, of charity we also emulate, and try to follow out to its fullest extent; and while we adopt these principles, and apply them as far as we can to our conduct, we do not relinquish the interest we feel in the operative work of our ancestors. We still try to take the greatest interest in all works of Masonry, in all works of architecture, in all building operations, and setting ourselves, as we do, in their place, we try in our generation to encourage them as far as we can. We are indeed a peaceful Society. We try to practice within ourselves those virtues which I have stated, and we try to give assistance, not only to ourselves, but to others in the practice of virtue, and the practice of everything which is social and moral. I trust that the practice of moral and social virtues may ever exist among us, and that whilst we have the opportunity of conducting to the support of any useful work, we shall try to do our duty as far as in us lies. I trust that the work which we have had the pleasure of facilitating and inaugurating this day may be successful. I trust that the building, in harmony with the plans which have been submitted to me, will be an ornament to the town of Bournemouth. In a town, existing and thriving like Bournemouth does, it will be strange, indeed, if the many Freemasons who reside here did not wish to have a hall of their own to carry out their rites and ceremonies. I congratulate them upon the fact. May that work be crowned with success, and may we all who attend here this day have reason to congratulate ourselves upon the work which we have inaugurated! (Loud cheers.)

The procession then returned to the Pembroke Hotel, when the lodge was closed.

In the evening a grand banquet was given at the Pembroke Hotel, to which a large number of brethren sat down, under the presidency of the R.W.P.G.M. Bro. Beech, who was supported by many influential members of the Craft, including Bros. Sir H. D. Wolff, M.P., K.G.M.C., Bro. Sir Molyneux Nepean, Bart., most of the brethren of the Hengist Lodge, and many visitors from other lodges.

Obituary.

BRO. JOSEPH GUNDRY.

It is our melancholy duty to announce, which we do with sincere regret, the death of our much esteemed Bro. Joseph Gundry, R.W. Prov. Grand Master for Dorsetshire, Justice of the Peace. The sad intelligence reached us late on Thursday evening, prior to going to press. Bro. Gundry died on Thursday morning at his residence, The Hyde, Bridport.

BOW AND BROMLEY INSTITUTE.—We have been asked by Bro. Charles Blain to announce to such of our readers who assisted him in the disposal of one guinea's worth of tickets for the concert given at the Bow and Bromley Institute, in aid of Masonic Institutions, on 14th Dec. last, that the ballot for one Life Governorship and one Life Subscription will take place at Bro. Seaton's, Fenchurch-street Tavern, on Monday evening next, the 5th February, at 7 o'clock precisely.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are informed that Bro. John Lazar, R.W. District Grand Master of Westland, New Zealand, has been pleased to grant a dispensation for a new lodge at Kumara, to be called the "Lazar." It is interesting to learn that Kumara is a newly discovered gold field, about eighteen miles from Hokitika, possessing a population of upwards of 7,000 inhabitants, of whom over fifty are members of the Craft.

Captain Hamber, for some time editor of the Standard, and who was recently connected with the now defunct Hear, has been elected editor of the Morning Advertiser by the Committee of the Incorporated Society of Licensed Victuallers.

Bro. His Grace the Duke of Marlborough held his first Levée on Tuesday, which was more numerously attended than any for several years past. The superior Courts did not sit, in order to give the Judges an opportunity of attending the Levée.

The Company of Goldsmiths have given a donation of £100 in aid of the funds of the Royal Albert Orphan Asylum.

His Royal Highness Prince Leopold will shortly be created Duke of Sussex.—Yorkist.

His Royal Highness Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, Duke of Saxony, Prince of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, K.G., K.T., has been appointed an extra Knight Grand Commander of the Most Exalted Order of the Star of India.—Gazette.

A promise has been formally given by the Metropolitan Board of Works that a site will be found on the Thames Embankment for "Cleopatra's Needle." Most people will think this a mere matter of routine, seeing that the monument lies buried in the sands of Egypt, and that it has been repeatedly declared, on official authority, that the nation is too poor to pay for its transport to this country. The French were able to defray the cost of transporting a similar monument from Egypt to Paris, and it forms the most striking object in the Place de la Concorde. A distinguished and public-spirited surgeon has determined to defray the expense of bringing "Cleopatra's Needle" to London, so that the application to the Metropolitan Board of Works was no empty form. With a modesty which he would hardly have displayed had he been not an unassuming professional man, but a Birmingham capitalist or a retired East India merchant, he does not wish his name made public till the work be accomplished. When the work is done he will have amply earned the hearty thanks of the nation.—The World.—[We may add that the gentleman alluded to is a distinguished Mason.]

CRYSTAL PALACE.—The arrangements for the forthcoming show of artificial flowers and fruit at the Crystal Palace are rapidly progressing, and the promises of support encourage the belief that the undertaking will result in an attractive exhibition. It is expected that many of the principal wholesale and retail dealers in artificial flowers, both for personal use and also for room and corridor decorations, will take advantage of the exhibition to bring their goods prominently before the public, and these classes will, of course, add very considerably to the general effect of the whole display. But independently of the ordinary commercial aspect of this novel show, its success is a matter of interest to many home workers in the art of flower making who have at present no means of obtaining a market for their productions, and are debarred from turning their abilities to pecuniary advantage.

The private ball of the Earl of Carnarvon Lodge, No. 1642, will be given on the 9th inst., at Ladbroke Hall, Notting Hill. Dancing will commence at eight o'clock. The whole of the proceeds will be devoted to the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons, at whose festival, on the 13th inst., Bro. Murlis, W.M., will be the Steward.

FESTIVAL OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—We understand that the musical direction for the above, which will be held on the 12th February, at the Freemasons' Hall, has been entrusted to Bro. T. Lawler, jun., of 62, Saltoun-road, Brixton, S.W. Mesdames Sherrington, Larkcom, Helen Heath, Bros. Henry Parker, P.P.G. Org. Middx., Baxter, Thornton, Caravoglia, and Messrs. Lewis Thomas and T. Harper, have been engaged for the occasion.

MARK MASONRY.—The lodge of Mark Masons, which was recently opened in Chester, is progressing satisfactorily. At the last meeting 22 candidates were ballotted for, and 14 of the number advanced. It promises to become one of the most influential lodges in the province.

FREEMASONRY AT RHYL.—We understand that the Mastership of the Masonic lodge which is about to be formed in Rhyl has been offered to Bro. James Salmon, P.J.G.W. of North Wales and Salop.

Bro. Sir Watkin W. Wynn, Bart., M.P., Prov. G.M. of North Wales and Shropshire, is still confined to his room at Wynnistay, with a serious attack of complicated bronchitis, but he is said to be progressing favourably towards recovery.

His Worship the Mayor of Liverpool, Mr. Alderman A. B. Walker, entertained nearly 3000 poor people at dinner, on the evenings of the 22nd and 23rd ult., at St. George's Hall. Each of the recipients of the mayoral bounty was upwards of 60 years old. This is the second occasion on which his worship has acted with the same true nobility, and amongst his other princely acts, may be named the gift of an Art Gallery to the town, worth £40,000, and the presentation of a jewelled badge of office for future chief magistrates, worth £2000.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The Freemason has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

THE CONSECRRATION OF THE ALDERSGATE LODGE.

This ceremony, which took place on Monday last, suggests many important considerations. We need hardly assure our readers, that our excellent Secretary, Bro. John Hervey, spoke, as he always does, both with impressiveness and practical common sense, or that his remarks were duly appreciated, as they deserved to be, by the meeting. Neither need we dilate on the ceremonial, as that is well known to our readers, and "mutatis mutandis," is pretty much the same on all occasions. It is also unnecessary for us to call attention to the excellent and eloquent addresses at the festive board of the Grand Secretary, the W.M., our Rev. Bro. P. M. Holden, and others, for they speak for themselves in our lucid and careful report. The gathering was a highly successful one, and will long be remembered by those who were privileged to be present. But what we are anxious to call our readers' attention to is this. Here is a lodge confessedly composed of men of distinct social worth and high scholastic acquirements, set up before the world for the purpose and aims alone of our venerable Order. It contains in it men of business, members of the medical profession, clergymen, brethren of high intellectual culture, as well as most respectable citizens of the Aldersgate Ward, and as such it seeks to conform to and uphold the tenets and practice of Freemasonry. Its first initiate is to be the Master of Christ's Hospital, and we are glad to remember to-day, and happy to point out the fact to our readers, that in the heart of the City of London a lodge so calculated to do good, and be so useful and improving to its members, is now, happily, formally set up. May all of prosperity attend it, and may its labours thus happily begin to conduce to the glory of God, the welfare of the Craft, and the happiness of mankind. Our Rev. and able Bro. Brette's pleasant announcement at the close that the list for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution anniversary had reached £91 is a good augury of the future for the Aldersgate Lodge.

IS FREEMASONRY MATERIALISM?

It has occurred to us, that, as we hear so often just now of "materialism," and "materialistic," some of our readers may like to know what is the meaning of words so often thrown at our heads, crammed down our throats, used by the sciolist and "windbag," "usque ad nauseam." Materialism comes, no doubt, either from material, as Johnson says, "consisting of matter corporeal, not spiritual," or from the French word "matériel," made up of matter; and just as the good old Doctor defines materialist "as one who denies spiritual substances," so Napoleon Landais declares "materialisme" to be the "système de ceux qui n'admettent que la matière," and "materialiste" to be a "partisan du matérialisme." And then the question comes in here, What is matter? Well, we need not, as we cannot, go into the discussions which this subject has originated and still entails. We need not even trouble ourselves with the discordant views of learned writers or fashionable empirics on the subject. It is still "non-proven." The reviewer of a "Life of Kingsley," a short time ago, said in one of our leading weekly journals, that Kingsley had changed his mind on the subject, and seemed latterly to lean to another view of "matter." And as scientificists are not yet agreed as to what matter really is, we, as Freemasons, may be content simply to take for granted the existence of matter, without too closely enquiring either into its "raison d'être," or its "modus vivendi," its conditions of existence, so to say. But in an abstract sense we all are aware of the tangible and impinging properties of "matter," whatever form it assumes, or we like to give it in this visible world, and in this mundane life of ours. But with that, as Freemasons, we have nothing to do, more than any one else, and it is not in this sense that Archbishop Vaughan, and the numerous crowd of cackling geese used the word "material" to-day. It is in the meaning, rather as opposed to spiritual, and hence we often apply it in common parlance to those who, denying the spiritual kingdom of the great dispensation of the Most High, or the "eternal fitness of things," or the promise of futurity, or the hopes of a better country, the gift of an immortal soul, an undying body, and everlasting life, bound all their expectations, and limit all their endeavours, to this present, earthly, material, dying existence. There are some to whom this world is everything—the future, nothing. Its joys, its pleasure, its plan, its promises, its gifts, its happiness, its wealth, are all in all to them. They have no better aspirations, no purer emotion; their to kalon and to agathon are comprised in the life that now is, and when it passes away, their being is either annihilated for them in the grave of animal death, or they disappear like little atoms of space and time, absorbed into the infinity of atomism. It is to this class of dreary sceptics, of materialistic unbelievers, that Archbishop Vaughan is alluding, and as he classes Freemasons one and all in this category, he means politely, but impressively, to say that we are as bad as bad can be, and in his opinion, like the famous turncock, who incurred the aqueous wrath of the "Shepherd" in Pickwick, "booked for something uncomfortable." Let us observe in passing that all this plethora of invective and excommunication has something very ludicrous and very low in itself. In our humble opinion, in this his hasty and uncritical position, Archbishop Vaughan, (though quite on a par with his unhistorical achievements), has committed three grave errors, one of act, another of assertion, a third of prophecy. It is not the fact, imprimis, that materialism in its worst sense is the ruling principle of the age in which we live. There is no doubt a noisy and unbelieving school, and if you will, materialistic, but it is completely overbalanced by that mass of sound thinking men, who are not ashamed to stand up as grave and reverent believers in the work, the revelation, the providence, the moral government, the retributive justice of God. If here and there we see proofs abounding, as in all ages, of evil living, of hurtful doctrines, of base minds and deeds, of the deceivers and the deceived, of the seducers and the seduced; if around us the Juggernaut of worldly luxury, profligacy, shame, and infidelity lifts its hideous head, still we can console ourselves with the thought that never in the history of the world were so many noble sacrifices being made, so many truly philanthropic labours carried on for the temporal and eternal welfare of mankind, as to-day. All such utterances, then, are but the meaningless inarticulate cries of those, who, like parrots, have learnt a few stock sentences by rote. The world has its evils and its wrongs, God knows; its social errors, and its pernicious influences many and alarming. But it is not all bad, and certainly not God-forsaken. On the contrary, there are those, the salt of the earth, still striving as ever to shine as lights in the world, and aiding nobly by every good word and work, to pull down the strongholds of human crime, tyranny, iniquity, and to raise in their stead the outwork and the battlements of the great and eternal city of our God. Even to-day none of us need doubt for one moment as to which side will prevail in this mighty "Armageddon," or hesitate for one moment to anticipate the eventual victory of God's truth, God's majesty, God's goodness, and God's right in the world. And so too as regards us Freemasons. We are not, and never can be, materialistic in any sense of the word. Archbishop Vaughan knows nothing of us, our true teachings, our real principles, our living life, our actual actings, or he would not make so silly and false an accusation! We are so, of all men, alike most spiritual and religious, in our ceaseless realization of the presence of one governing, living, true, omniscient, ever present God Most High. All our Masonic work begins and ends in prayer to Him, and acknowledgment of His presence and power, and goodness and greatness, and as far as words and acts can testify of opposition to materialistic teaching, everything in Freemasonry from first to last is most creditable to the fraternity, and most antagonistic to the perverse incriminations of an illogical accuser like Archbishop Vaughan. And, lastly, we deplore Archbishop Vaughan's appearance in the character of a false prophet. Let it be, we conjure him, his last appearance on the stage in that rôle; let him become any other "petit sujet" that he likes, but not a "Pseudomantis." Materialism is not like the "ism" of the future, whatever else may be, neither is ultramontaniam, for materialism has in its own element of destruction, mole ruit sua. It upholds everything that is most opposed to the intellectual appreciations of humanity, to the best and tenderest sympathies of the "Homo." In its low and levelling and destructive and worthless assurances, it deprives man alike of his affection and his dignity, his expectations and his aspirations, his longings and his emotions, his love of the beautiful, his sense of the divine, and his trust in the eternal. Condemned alike by the voice of nature within man, by the syllogisms of reason, and the witness of inspiration, its fate is certain, its fall is inevitable. As a system it has never had any real influence in the world, except over certain eccentric individualities, and a few blatant talkers. Of the earth purely earthy—it is like evanescent and mortal, and though, perhaps, a few lingering disciples may last in the ages to come, to point to a forgotten phantasi, to tell of a deserted shrine, we can well leave it to the triumphant onward march of our educated race, under the good providence of Almighty God.

THE ECLECTIC LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to the letter of my esteemed friend, Bro. W. J. Hughan, P.G.D., that appeared in your columns of the 27th January, relative to the change in the constitution of the Eclectic Lodge, which was inaugurated at my installation as W.M., permit me to state that it also includes the bye-law quoted by Bro. Hughan, which (with others appertaining thereto) has been abrogated by nine-tenths of the members of the lodge—in fact we have revised the bye-laws completely, and considerably raised the initiation fee and annual subscription. The system on which the Eclectic Lodge was originally founded, although seemingly very excellent in theory, proved completely the reverse in practice. There was no opportunity of the brethren becoming acquainted with each other. It is an absolute fact that up to the last meeting several brethren never exchanged a word, while others not approving of the system, became members of other lodges. Now, I am happy to say all is changed for the better. We shall not meet so often, but when we do we hope to partake of the good things that Providence has bestowed on mankind, with rational and moderate enjoyment, and shall always be happy to see friends at our social board as well as in the lodge-room, (which was all we could do formerly).

As a proof of the success of the "change," I may state that nearly £20 was collected at the last meeting for charitable purposes.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

EDWD. J. HARTY, W.M. 1201.

HONORARY PAST MASTERS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The interesting correspondence which has from time to time appeared in your valuable paper on the subject of wearing jewels, has given rise to a discussion here, that I think of sufficient importance to merit a place in your columns. But it is not as to jewels, but as to the conferring the rank of Past Master on an eminent brother on the floor of the lodge.

On referring to Dr. Oliver's "Masonic Jurisprudence," page 105, we find these words. "Any lodge may elect a brother who has rendered some essential service to the lodge, or distinguished himself by eminence in the Craft, as honorary member; and may confer upon him, not an actual, but a past rank;" and the fact is quoted that on the Prince of Wales returning to England, after having been initiated abroad, the United Grand Lodge of England elected him to the rank of Past Grand Master. It is therefore contended that a private lodge can elect a Master Mason, who has never been installed into any office, to the rank of a Past Master, give him a seat in the East, and receive him with Masonic honours whenever he visits the lodge. Can you say whether there is any wrong in such a course of action, and if so, the law it violates? Your opinion would very much oblige a large number of the brethren, of whom I subscribe myself one.

Yours fraternally,

A CONSTANT READER.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

W.M.C.N. thinks my answer to his fourth query "needlessly uncourteous," although I only used towards him the epithet (quoted from his own letter) which he applied to his brethren generally. In his former letter he inquired whether levels were worn from ignorance or design. He now asks why the regulations authorise them, which is quite different.

Indeed as a matter of fact, the Constitutions say nothing about levels, which, I believe, is a word used chiefly in advertisements.

It is quite possible that W.M.C.N.'s idea of the tau may be correct, but his assertion to that effect is of little value unless he can show that the lines were ever worn as taus.

I quite agree with P.P.M. when he condemns faulty emblems on the apron, and I always, myself, wear ribbon of the dimensions authorised, as the Constitutions are very plain on that matter.

I will add that there is no authority for light blue gauntlets, nor for a P.M.'s jewels being worn on the breast.

Yours fraternally,

A. T.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

1. Are Past Principals of a Provincial Grand Chapter entitled to wear a jewel of their past rank, and by what ribbon?

2. Are other Past Officers of a Provincial Grand Chapter entitled to wear a Past jewel, and with what ribbon?

I am induced to ask these questions as I see some Past Officers of a Provincial Grand Chapter wear the jewel of past rank suspended by a tri-colour ribbon, the same as Grand Chapter; and have also seen a Past Principal wear his by a tri-colour ribbon suspended round his neck.

In wearing the sash of the R.A. Degree ought the red or purple to be in the centre?

Yours truly,

Z.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you or any of your readers give me the date of the editions of the Constitutions which were published between 1784 and 1815?

Yours fraternally,

A. T.

"HIGH FALUTIN."

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I was not surprised to read the foot-note to the letter of "A Visitor" in your last number, (page 38), but I wondered very much indeed how you could have given such a letter insertion. It is one of that kind which I think "no fellow can understand."

Before I take further notice of the communication and the report to which "A Visitor" refers, permit me to state, with all respect and deference, that I represent many of your subscribers in remarking that, as a rule, your notices of meetings are not so grammatically constructed by some of your reporters, nor so well read by your official staff, as they might be. At the same time it must be admitted that "verbatim et literatim" reports of the speeches we often hear at lodge meetings would not only make the speakers most ridiculous before their brethren, but would overtax the most able and energetic of "readers," and even puzzle a "Philadelphia lawyer" himself, to reduce to common sense.

Now, in the case before us fault is found with you, as "responsible editor," for inserting a senseless and distorted heap of illogical, unconnected, and thoroughly ungrammatical word-whirlwind, representing the speeches made at a well-known lodge on the 14th December last. It is evident that this meeting might have been better reported, and the "gravity of the duties," and the "responsibility" attaching to the same, better recognised by your reporter; but really there seems to have been enough nonsense spoken to have disturbed the equanimity of any chronicler, and upset all notions of gravity in respect of context. Passing over the addresses to candidates, and allowing for a natural and justifiable pride in possessing a distinguishing symbol (which, however, appears to have rather a national than a Masonic signification), and also the introductions to the loyal toasts, which it would be bad taste to criticise too closely, what do we read but a very "farrago" of ridiculous similes and mis-applications? Grand Lodge a Paradise, with a colossus having one foot in that exalted region, and the other heaven knows where, is a "staggerer," say what you will, and I don't wonder at the poor reporter becoming, from the moment of hearing that remark, practically imbecile. I will not criticise further, for there can be no doubt as to the "warm and impulsive nature" of the principal speaker, and his "post-prandial" endeavours to discharge fully and ably the onerous duties of his office deserve encouragement rather than animadversion. In justice to your reporter, however, pray read the replies of the "Colossus," and the "laureate visitor," both of which, being addressed to an ordinary assemblage in ordinary language, were kept without the circle of the "word-whirlwind," and so are evidently fairly recorded and comprehended.

The moral of all this is, that speakers should rather descend to the capacity of their hearers than attempt flights of imagination with "wings expanding," and, because apparently grandiloquent, believe they are expressing "thoughts that breathe, and words that burn."

But now as to your correspondent and his disparagement of your report. Was there ever a more senseless and distorted heap of illogical, unconnected, and thoroughly ungrammatical word-whirlwind than that contained in the third paragraph of his letter? What does it all mean? What is "unthinking meaninglessness"? Are any of us really "drones in the social hive, devouring the fruits of other men's labour," for that is the literal interpretation of his quotation? Does the writer thoroughly understand himself? Can he be "supposed to know what he assumes," and how is that mental operation performed? And as to errors in grammar, are there not those in his "well-meant criticism" which should have been carefully eliminated before he rushed into print to condemn another? Oh! the beam and the mote!

And, oh! please do tell, what is a "word-whirlwind"? It is a dreadfully alliterative compound word, but stupendously above my comprehension!

Excuse anonymity on this occasion. You know me, and no doubt will once more convince me, as I always was, of your believing me to be, yours truly and fraternally,

Jan. 29th, 1877.

ST. JOHN OF JERUSALEM AND THE HOLY SEPULCHRE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can any High Grade brother answer these two queries?

I see in the accurate "Almanac de Gotha," that as regards the "Ordre Souverain de St. Jean de Jerusalem," the Sovereign Order of St. John of Jerusalem, since the death of its late Grand Master, Fra Tommasi de Castara, in 1805, it has been administered at Rome by a Lieutenant of the Grand Mastership and a Sacred College, residing there. As regards the Order of the Holy Sepulchre, I see that in 1868 the present Pope of Rome divided the Order into three classes, but confirmed to the Patriarch of the Latin Rite at Jerusalem the right of conferring the signs of the Order in the name of the Pope.

According to this statement, the right of conferring this Order since the creation of the Franciscan Order has been confined to the Patriarch of Jerusalem, who was always a Franciscan.

Now what I want to know is, on what authority and under what powers the alleged Knighthood of St. John of Jerusalem and the Holy Sepulchre is conferred in our High Grades? Is it in fact a harmless adaptation or imitation of a real Order? or is it a pious fraud?

LORD CHESTERFIELD.

I have thought it well to give this account of Lord Chesterfield, in answer to Bro. Lord Limerick, from the forthcoming "Cyclopædia."—A.F.A.W.

CHESTERFIELD, PHILIP DORMER, EARL OF.—Born in 1694, and died in 1773. He was a distinguished diplomatist, statesman, and "littérateur," and while Ambassador at the Hague in the year 1731, was present at the "Lodge of Emergency," or special lodge convened under a dispensation from Lord Lovel, Grand Master, to initiate Francis Franes, Grand Duke of Lorraine and Tuscany. This prince was advanced to the Third Degree the same year, Preston tells us, at a special Lodge convened at Houghton Hall, Norfolk, as he had visited England in the meantime. Preston says that Lord Chesterfield presided on the occasion with a Bro. Strickland as Deputy-Master, and with Bro. Benjamin Hadley and a Dutch brother as Wardens. Oliver, in his edition of Preston, 1861, repeats the statement. Kloss and Mackey, however, assert that Dr. Désaguliers was in Holland at that time and presided, and not Lord Chesterfield. Lenning follows Preston and Oliver. The "Handbuch" leans to Kloss. There are no records in the archives of the English Grand Lodge with respect to this event, nor any official traces of the dispensation said to be granted by Lord Lovel.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALDERSGATE LODGE, No. 1657.

The Aldersgate Lodge, No. 1657, was consecrated on Monday evening, at the Castle and Falcon, Aldersgate-street, by Bro. Hervey, Grand Secretary, who was assisted in the performance of his duties by Bros. Hyde Pullen, Past Grand Sword Bearer, as S.W.; H. C. Levander, as J.W.; the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, Past Grand Chaplain, as Chaplain; the Rev. P.M. Holden, Prov. G. Chaplain Middlesex; and Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. J.G.W. of Middlesex, as D.C. A select party of brethren took part in the proceedings of the day, the others who were present besides those named being Bros. John Derby-Alcroft, Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, Dr. Charles Hogg, George Kenning, Thomas Jones, P. Saillard, W. H. Froom, Thos. Benskin, A. J. Altman, H. Massey (Freemason), John Stedman, 172; Nelson Reed, 765, 1572, 1601; Samuel White, 101; Joseph Brown, P.M. 723; W. W. Landell, 99; George G. E. Fox, 142; H. C. Levander, 142; F. Binckes, Dr. A. Greatrex, P.M. 22; A. J. Protheroe; Constable; and E. J. Jolliffe. The lodge-room, though small, presented a very pleasing appearance, everything being beautifully arranged, and all the furniture, which was quite new and made expressly for this lodge, being of the best and most expensive material. The pedestals and candlesticks were of mahogany, the tracing boards of oak, and a massive setting maul for the W.M. was of ivory. The gavel was of mahogany, and the lodge books were elegantly bound. The design of the members is to make the lodge one of the best in the Craft, and no means have been spared, so far, to carry out this intention. The list of officers which is given below will satisfy the brethren that this is not an empty boast.

After the lodge had been opened in the different degrees, Grand Secretary read an address. In doing so he said: Brethren, on these occasions it is usually the custom for the Consecrating Officer to make some few observations to the lodge. On the present occasion those observations will be very few on my part, because this is somewhat an exceptional lodge, and the oft-told tale, if I may so call it, recommending care to the members of the lodge as to whom they should admit I need scarcely recommend to the members of this lodge, because from those who compose the body of petitioners they are an army whom I am sure will all take care that none but proper members of the Craft are admitted, and I need not at all dilate on that head. Brethren, it has been for some time past a matter of congratulation among Masons that the Craft is so rapidly extending its members, and I hope at the same time its influence; but although I may rejoice to see that extension in numbers and influence, I think there are some doubts as to whether we are not going rather too fast at the present moment, and whether we are not adding to our numbers too hastily. I do not wish of course to throw anything like cold water upon the efforts that the Craft is making to extend its numbers, but at the same time it is not an unmixed benefit, inasmuch as a great many are coming into the Craft at the present moment who I expect may, from those causes which affect all men who are mixed up in commercial concerns and in matters of business—who may from some calamity or misfortune have to resort to us in years which are coming for assistance in time of need and help when they require it. We of course do not hold ourselves out as a benefit society; but at the same time it is difficult to sever the position of Freemasonry from in some respects a benefit society, and I have some apprehension that many are now entering our ranks who look to the advantages of the Craft more than the real object of the Craft, which is to assist others and not ourselves. It may be that I may be wrong in my conjecture; but at any rate, as such I cannot but view it. We have many charities connected with the Order. We have our Schools and our Benevolent Institution. We have our benevolent fund also, to which Masons have resource when they require help, and it is to that benevolent fund to which I now more especially allude in the observations I am making to you. We must naturally look to an increase in the claims upon that fund, and unless we leave to our successors something like a large fund to fall back upon (we have a good fund; it is well known to those round this room), if we do not leave to our successors a large fund to fall back upon in times to come they may find themselves in a difficulty, considering the rate at which we are giving away our moneys at the present time to meet the demands upon them. I therefore say it, and say it advisedly, that the extension of Freemasonry is not an unmixed benefit, because we must also look to our responsibilities in future times. I trust that the time is far distant when we may not be able to render that assistance to our brother Masons which they urgently require. I do trust that, considering the numbers that join our ranks, there are sufficient among them who will not require assistance to enable the funds of the Order to meet the claims of those who require assistance, and I, for one, like to see funds which are invested, as some sort of a guarantee fund for the future. Some do not view it in that light, and think we ought to spend all the money we have at the present moment. I always like to look forward, not to a rainy day, but at any rate, to a day when we shall have responsibilities to meet, which I think we are likely to have for many years to come. As I said before, brethren, I do not wish to detain you long, because it is first of all unnecessary, and, again, because I am at all times unwilling to intrude my opinions too forcibly on those about me, but if the Craft would consider for one moment the responsibilities they incur when they admit a Mason into the Order, I think it would be well for lodges in general. I am quite satisfied that I need not inculcate that duty on those petitioners that I see around me. I know, if I may so term it, this is intended to be rather an aristocratic lodge than otherwise, and therefore it will be confined, or very considerably, not only to the parishioners of the Aldersgate Ward, but to the parishioners of that portion of the buildings which lie between here and West Smithfield and Newgate-street. If that is to be the case, I need not say that this lodge will be an advantage to the Craft, and I congratulate the members of the Ward of Aldersgate on having such a lodge established amongst them. I trust it will flourish now and hereafter, and that when I am long gathered to my fathers, somebody may look back to this time, and say that the then Grand Secretary of England consecrated the Aldersgate Lodge. (Great applause.)

The ceremony then proceeded in due course, and, at the proper time, the Chaplain, the Rev. A. F. A. Woodford, favoured the brethren with the following powerful and eloquent oration:—

V.W. Consecrating Officer, Wardens, and brethren all. As you, sir, have been good enough to ask me to say a few words to day by way of customary oration, I beg to assure you, that I esteem it both a favour and a privilege to be present on this interesting occasion, and to be permitted to assist, however humbly, at the consecration of the Aldersgate Lodge, to be an assistant of one who like yourself, so fitly presides over this distinguished gathering with the skill and urbanity for which you are well known in the Craft. But yet, sir, when I sat down to put my thoughts in order, there cropped up at once this not unnatural query, "What have you to say worthy of the occasion, worthy of your assembled brethren, worthy of the Craft to which you belong?" So much has been advanced by other Masons, and more eloquent orators on other occasions, I have so often myself trespassed on the forbearance of my brethren, that to many of us the word "Oration" is only suggestive of an oft-told tale, which wears by repetition or tires us by its duration. It is unavoidable, indeed, but that a certain sameness must be the characteristic of all our Masonic addresses, and, therefore, if in anything I am going to say to-day, I may seem to any to travel over ground well trodden before, I must ask you to extend towards me that fraternal consideration and friendly criticism which, after a long Masonic membership, I know full well are never appealed to by any brother in vain. We live at a time, sir, when, so to say, the worth of every earthly institution is questioned by the often inquisitive rashness and restless criticism of modern thought, and when on all sides of us we often hear the enquiry, "What is the raison d'être of this or that?" It may, perhaps, also be fairly said that no institution which is not "per se" good and useful for man can withstand either the "encroaching hand of time," or can confront the captious objections of the hour, much less conform to the wants of humanity, or advance the temporal and eternal welfare of our race. I do not say that such carping contentions are always just, for they are not, or that such critical objections are always sound—very far from it—but they exist, and we have to meet them, and deal with them as best we may. When, then, as to-day, Freemasonry, as you have just well observed, sir, is extending her status on every side, when new temples are built up here, and new lodges are consecrated there, when Freemasonry is alike the subject of pious calumny, and of popular curiosity, of religious condemnation, and of unhesitating eulogism at the same time, we naturally ask ourselves "What is the real worth of a society which has such an antagonistic character for many, which some contend has only a claim for the open contempt, and others for the zealous sympathy of mankind?" It has been the peculiar fate of Freemasons from the very first to have had bitter, irreconcilable foes, and warm and enthusiastic friends. Its history, Mr. Hallam has said, has been "written by panegyrists and calumniators, each equally mendacious." And at this very hour, when we are all assembled here, to consecrate this Aldersgate Lodge according to our ancient rites, if we go to the world without, and take up a daily paper, we see that praise and blame, admiration and excommunication, approval and condemnation, are dealt out, as it were, from the opposing points of the compass, in almost equal measure, with abounding fervour and vigorous calumination. Monsignore Nardi, for instance, some time back at Rome, kindly said we were "Goose Clubs." The Roman Catholic Archbishop Vaughan at the Antipodes declares that we are "materialists," that Freemasonry is "materialism," and that we are members of a wide-spread secret society, which is seeking to dominate mankind for base purposes, for sinister ends. A Reformed Presbyterian minister in Scotland some short time ago, declared that we were anti-Christian and irreligious; and some foolish fanatics held lately an anti-Masonic congress in the United States, in order to oppose the growth of that Masonic Order, which in a little above 100 years, from a few hundreds has risen in America and Canada to the wondrous number of nearly 600,000 intelligent and zealous Freemasons. Under such circumstances what can we say or do? It appears to me, sir, that the best answer we can make to all such assailants especially is by our acts—the very work which this maligned Order of ours calmly and continuously carries on year by year. Perhaps the happiest reply of Freemasonry to its perverse calumniators, is the epitaph—of its brother, and alleged Grand Master, Sir Christopher Wren, the builder of St. Paul's—"Si quaeris circumspice." Do you want to know what Freemasonry is really doing in this world of ours? Regard its unselfish labours of love. It aids the needy and educates the orphan, it supports the decrepid, it cheers the widow, it dries up the tears of the sorrowing, and relieves the burdens of the oppressed; it zealously endeavours to pour into the wounds of our common suffering humanity the loving wine and oil of the good Samaritan. Do you demand what are its true principles? Listen! Freemasonry is a loyal, peaceful, patriotic, charitable, philanthropic, religious sodality, based on reverence for God and love for man, whose moral teaching is derived, and derived alone (never forget), from the inspired page, for Freemasonry in England, as well as in Scotland, Ireland, the United States, and Canada, stands avowedly built up on the ennobling sanction and sacred laws of the Revelation and Will of God. In all our lodges, happily, as to-day, sir, that sacred volume lies open before us all as now, and we need not doubt, but that all of the sterling, stable, peaceful, religious character of English—nay, I will add, Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry—arises from this very fact, that as Freemasons we have never been, and never will be ashamed, to declare openly our reverence and regard for the Best of Books, that great and wondrous storehouse of wisdom, morality, mercy, love, and truth. There is, as some of us well know, in another country a mournful struggle going on just now, which we all of us sincerely deplore. In that fair land, for which as Freemasons and Englishmen we wish most heartily all national happiness, and peaceful progress, unfortunately the Bible has already been banished from its lodges, and a proposal is now being discussed to erase from their Book of Constitutions all mention of belief in God, and the immortality of the soul. If any such unfortunate resolution should be finally adopted by the Grand Orient of France, such an act must tend to isolate French Freemasonry from the great family of Freemasonry—inasmuch as the Grand Orient will have abjured one of the fundamental landmarks of our Cosmopolitan Craft. In England we never can or will let go the very bulwark of our Masonic profession, and in my humble opinion, as true Freemasons, we cannot lawfully enter any lodge abroad in which the sacred name of God is neither acknowledged nor invoked. But in this old island of ours Freemasonry happily goes on the "even tenour of its way," undisturbed by hurtful chimeras, unmoved by hateful factions. It opens the portals of its lodges to all who accept loyally the fatherhood of God, and the brotherhood of man, and whether it is right or wrong in so doing, it does so deliberately, asking no questions and imposing no test. It keeps itself aloof from all religious differences and all denominational difficulties, and welcomes all within its pale, except the atheist and the libertine, who can combine together in reverence to God, the Great Maker of us all, and in works of humanity, and the sympathies of social friendship. And within its lodges, happily, all is peace, all is good will, all is unity. No baneful passions from the outer world are or ought to be admitted there, for there the clamours of sect and party are hushed, there the shibboleths of contending factions are unknown. The lodge is meant to be an assembly of high-minded, kindly, true-hearted brethren, good men, patriotic citizens, discharging all their domestic duties according to the dictates of conscience and the laws of God. The lodge may be likened to a family, which should be a unity in itself, and where, as we know, one unruly or discordant member often introduces lasting discord, trouble, and sorrow. Hence, as Freemasons, we cannot be too cautious as to whom we admit into our lodges. It is not enough that because a man is well to do in the world, and able to pay his fees and subscriptions, that therefore he has a claim to be admitted into a lodge; nor is it right that brethren, in their desire to swell their lodge funds, should overlook the countervailing defects which render too many, hastily received, "ab initio," utterly unfit for Masonic fellowship. For the lodge, let me remind you once more, is intended to be a gathering for us of innocent sociality, of refined pleasure, as well as a meeting for customary work or charitable effort. We meet there, many of us differing from each other in the world without, but we meet and part in mutual harmony and good will. We follow different pursuits in life, and ours are varied callings in the world, and yet we congregate as members of one and the same Order. The lawyer, the soldier, the sailor, the merchant, the clergyman, the employer of labour, the writer for the public press, the man of wealth, ease, intellect, literary labours, artistic tastes, and scholastic acquirements, the prosperous and worthy citizen of this great metropolis—from these classes Freemasonry is recruited and men in fact of all professions and all pursuits here assemble, bound together by one great tie, reverence of God, love of our brethren, and with a capacity for generous friendship and an anxiety for general beneficence. We banish from us all those lower and often sordid motives, which confront us in the way, and often warp alike our feelings and strivings in the common daily pathway of the world. We are here a band of brethren, rejoicing in each other's prosperity, grieving at each other's calamity, with hearts tender for suffering, and minds disposed to pity, and as we seek to make all our reunions pleasant and profitable, attractive and agreeable, so we endeavour to remove from all any deteriorating associations which might detract from their pleasantness or mar their good. As Freemasons we hate calumny and abjure detraction. We offer the kind offices of a generous friendship gladly to our brother, we uphold a brother's character in his absence as in his presence, and we seek to realise more and more what is certainly one of the distinguishing features of Freemasonry, the friendly association of those who are happy to meet, sorry to part, and glad, most glad, to meet again. Surely then, sir, our great society has its uses, its need and value for us all? I, for one, like many more now present, can speak from many years' experience of it, and I feel sure we shall all agree in this, that some of our happiest hours have been spent, and some of our fastest friends have been made, in the peaceful sanctum of some humble Masonic Lodge. I do not hesitate to avow, and in this you will all, I know, sympathize with me, that I have for Freemasonry as an association of us mortal men, the deepest feelings of regard and affection. It is, indeed, a noble Institution, based on the most sacred principles calculated to bring into play all the truest sympathies of the human mind and will, and is and may be of the greatest use, importance, and blessing for mankind. If it had nothing else to offer us, its lessons of toleration, kindness, hatred of persecution and bigotry, would supply us with an example much needed at the present day. It resembles in this the good old clergyman, portrayed by the happy muse of W. M. Praed, of whom it is recorded,

"That when religious sects ran mad,
He held, in spite of all his learning,
That if a man's belief is bad,
It will not be improved by burning."

For Freemasonry, then, sir, let us sincerely wish to-day all prosperity and success in this world, and, like the Psalmist, let us add, "May peace be within its walls, and plenteousness within its palaces." In the words of a good old Masonic prologue, it would also say,—

"Oh brethren, still pursue the task divine,
For us has Rectitude mark'd out the line,
Behold Humility the level bear,
And Justice, steady-handed, fix the square.
Within our lodge has Friendship placed her throne,
There Unity has knit her sacred zone,
There Reason, with humility of soul,
There modest Mirth and Temperance guard the bowl.
There moral Music lifts her tuneful lore,
And Secrecy sits smiling at the door,
Conscious, tho' not to prying mortals given,
That all our actions are approved by heaven,
Conscious, that all who aim at Virtue's goal,
Bear our essential mysteries in their soul."

V.W. Sir and Brethren, one word more, and I have done. For this new lodge, now to be consecrated, we will all of us offer our hearty good wishes. If the public character and Masonic merits of those who are to preside over it and direct it be any criterion of success, then we may safely leave its future in their hands, confident of this, that the honour of the Craft will be upheld by them, and the wishes of the founders of the Aldersgate Lodge fulfilled. May this new lodge obtain a high character among the lodges of the metropolis, may it be distinguished by its adherence to Masonic principles, by its support of our great Metropolitan Charities, and by its faithful development of those unchanging characteristics of our Order, Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth. Brethren, I thank you heartily for the kindness with which you have listened, and to you, Very Worshipful Sir, I now once more offer you my best acknowledgments, for associating me with yourself, in labours which are always agreeable, and in duties which are always welcome.

The delivery of this oration was followed by hearty applause.

The ceremony of consecration was then completed, and Bro. John Derby Allcroft, Treasurer of Christ's Hospital, was presented by Bro. Buss to Bro. Hervey for installation. Bro. Allcroft having been duly installed, the following brethren were invested with the collars and jewels of their respective offices:—

The Rev. P. H. Ernest Brette, D.D.	(Christ's Hospital).....	S.W.
Dr. Charles Hogg.....	J.W.
George Kenning.....	Treas.
Thos. Jones.....	Sec.
P. Saillard.....	S.D.
W. H. Froom.....	J.D.
Thos. Benskin.....	D.C.
A. J. Altman.....	I.G.
W. Steedman.....	Tyler.

The addresses to the W.M., Wardens, and brethren were delivered by Bros. John Hervey and Hyde Pullen; after which a vote of thanks, accompanied by the honorary membership of the lodge, was passed unanimously to all the brethren who had acted as officers in the consecration of the lodge. This was moved by Bro. Dr. Brette and seconded by Bro. Dr. Hogg. The Rev. Richard Lee, M.A., Head Master of Christ's Hospital; Dr. Herbert Alder Smith, M.B. London, resident Medical Officer Christ's Hospital; and Mr. Walter S. Chapman, of Aldersgate-street, were proposed as initiates at next meeting. Bros. L. White, 101; Edward Young Jolliffe, 22; and W. Wright Landell, 99, were proposed as joining members. The Secretary afterwards read letters of apology for not being able to attend, from Sir Albert Woods, (Garter), G.D.C.; Major Shadwell Clerke, and Sir Benj. Phillips. The lodge was thereupon closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet, provided by Bro. Benskin, of which the following is the menu:—

Potages.—Tortue fausse liée, Consommé à la Monaco, Potage aux Huitres; Poissons:—Côtelettes de Saumon à la Génoise, Filets de Soles à la Normande, Turbot, Sauce de Homard, Eperlans frits; Entrées:—Riz de Veau aux Petits Pois, Sauté de Poulet aux Truffes, Filets de Bœuf Chateaubriand; Relèves:—Dindons braisés, Langue de Bœuf, Jambon d'York à l'Essence, Selle de Mouton, Asperges, Céleri à l'Etuve; Rôts:—Faisans, Canards Sauvages, Perdreaux; Relèves de Rôts:—Huitres à la Tartare, Homards au Gratin; Entremets:—Gâteau de Noel, Gelée aux Conserve, Macédoines de Fruits, Mince Pies, Pâtisserie Française, Pouding à la Nesselrode. Dessert. Milk Punch, Sherry, Hock, Champagne, Port, Claret, Liqueurs.

After the cloth had been removed, the usual toasts were proposed.

After the toast of "The Queen and the Craft" had been honoured, that of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," received its usual share of enthusiasm.

Bro. Hyde Pullen responded to the toast of "The Deputy Grand Master and the Grand Officers," and expressed the gratitude he had felt in being called upon to assist in the consecration of the Aldersgate Lodge. He could not sufficiently express in words the feelings which he had in this respect, but he felt so much interest in this new lodge that he trusted and hoped that it would go on prospering from year to year for many years to come, and that every happiness might attend all its members. He hoped they would all be a happy band of brothers. He saw in the lodge all the elements of success and all the component parts which would conduce to the unity which was necessary in a Masonic lodge. He would impress upon the brethren the necessity for unity of action and purpose. He might not be able at all times to come and visit the lodge, but he would do so on all convenient occasions, and he was quite sure that whenever he did he should have the gratification of finding the unity of purpose and action among the brethren of which he had spoken.

The W.M. next proposed "Bro. Hervey, the Consecrating Officer," whom the brethren had seen performing his duties in that very happy manner and with that correctness and efficiency which was characteristic of Grand Officers. He, as well as all the brethren of the lodge, thanked Bro. Hervey very much for the example he had set them, and which they would all like to copy. To Bro. Hyde Pullen also, and Bro. Woodford, they were equally obliged and he might refer to the admirable oration which the latter brother had delivered, which afforded so much pleasure and gratification to the whole of the brethren who had the good fortune to hear it. For himself he had had a most pleasant and happy evening, but it was not the first time that he enjoyed an evening under Bro. Hervey's working; for he had the pleasure to be present at the last annual festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, when Lord Carnarvon was pleased to take the chair and present a testimonial to Bro. Hervey. The brethren were proud to have him an honorary member of this lodge, and they thanked him for having come in the midst of his multitudinous duties to consecrate the Aldersgate Lodge.

Bro. Hervey responded. As he had said in the lodge, he had had great pleasure in coming to consecrate this lodge and float the barque on the wide ocean. He hoped it would be well piloted—indeed, he had not a doubt that it would, and that it would come into port with a good cargo when the present W.M. vacated the chair. When he transmitted the gavel to his successor he would have a good account to give of his Mastership. On the part of himself and the other consecrating officers he begged to return his sincere thanks. Enough of himself. He now desired the pleasure of proposing "The Health of the W.M.," a toast which would be much more acceptable to the brethren present, and especially to the members of the Aldersgate Lodge. When he came to the lodge he probably had a large store of good things to say, but Bro. Pullen, who had just spoken, had said everything which he (Bro. Hervey) had desired to say. It had been his pleasure to offer this toast in a great many lodges, but he did not think he had ever offered it with more gratification than on the present occasion. Every lodge he consecrated seemed to enhance his respect for the Craft, and his respect for the W.M. at his side. It so happened that the W.M. of the Aldersgate Lodge and some of his officers were known perfectly well to him, and he could not help observing that they were all men for whom he had the most sincere respect and admiration. It would be difficult to find a brother more worthy to fill the S.W. chair than the Rev. Dr. Brette, or than Dr. Hogg, for the J.W. chair. Then there was the Treasurer, Bro. Kenning, whom he had also known a long time, and who he knew would do honour to the office he held. He trusted when he handed over his office to a successor he would be able to show that the funds were in a prosperous condition: certain he was that no better Treasurer could have been found for the lodge. For a small percentage he (Bro. Hervey) would not mind guaranteeing, if the brethren would accept his guarantee, the lodge against any loss by Bro. Kenning being Treasurer. (Laughter.) However, he would not go into that subject too seriously, because it was a serious subject. (Laughter.) He would propose "The Health of the W.M.," adding at the same time that the lodge was well officered.

The W.M., in reply, said he felt in an awkward position, because he entertained the conviction that he was in one sense where he ought not to be. (No, no.) It was 30 years ago next June that he was initiated, and he was afraid to say whether it was only three years or less that he was in a lodge. From that day to this he had had nothing to do with Masonry. He certainly did go to the Lodge of Emulation, and, as he had said, he was very much interested there. On that occasion Dr. Brette, angling about, thought he would catch a fish, and he hooked him (the W.M.), and landed him in the Aldersgate Lodge. (Laughter.) Therefore, he thought if the brethren got a Master such as that they must feel disposed to scold him. He should have liked very much if he had had a little time beforehand to go to other lodges, and enable himself to shine a little in work, as well as at the banquet table. He was quite inexperienced at present. But he had accepted the office of W.M., and he should do his best to improve himself, and carry out his duties properly. At his age he could not be expected to have so good a memory for learning the ritual as he had in his younger days. Probably if he had not been the wandering sheep that he had been, he would have been better qualified to discharge his duties, and would have carried more wool than he did now. However that might be, brethren like himself must envy those who had the ability to perform the ceremonies. He had got among the briars, and had lost his wool, and he would ask the brethren to bear that in mind whenever he did not come up to the mark. He would strive to the utmost to be a good W.M. He would do his best to carry out the duties of Master creditably, and sustain the character of the lodge which had commenced so favourably. Then he might look forward to having a lodge which would be a credit to the whole Craft. The brethren's aim in starting this lodge was that they should have a lodge that should be a good lodge, a lodge of high standing, the members of which should be of such a character that the lodge would always maintain its high respectability. He would hope that those brethren who had candidates to propose would keep what the Grand Secretary had said in lodge strictly in mind. They were conscious that they should have in the City a lodge which, if possible, should rise and be a pattern to all other lodges. In the course of two or three years they might have a better Master, and if the right material was brought in in the meantime, they would have a lodge that would be looked up to by the surrounding lodges in the City of London, which would be no disgrace to the Craft, and might be of immense service in supporting the charitable institutions. He took the opportunity now of thanking the brethren for the honour they had conferred upon him by selecting him as their first W.M., and, in return, he could only promise them that he would do the best he could in that position.

The W.M. next proposed "The Visitors," and in calling upon Bro. Holden to reply, expressed the great pleasure he had had in hearing that brother give the different prayers at the consecration. Speaking again of the consecration, he said he had never seen one before, and it had struck him as an extremely interesting and impressive ceremony. Again he begged to thank the brethren who had assisted.

The Rev. P. M. Holden responded. It was a matter of surprise to him when he came into the lodge to be asked to take part in the Chaplain's duties, but Bro. Woodford had kindly honoured him by asking him to assist when he knew he was present. He was very grateful to Bro. Woodford for having given him a share in the ceremony, for he certainly had spent one of the most pleasant evenings he had ever spent in his life.

The W.M. next gave "The Masonic Charities," and said what a pleasure it was to him when he saw on New Year's Day, in the morning papers, that over £39,000 had been collected by the three Institutions in the past year. It was an enormous sum to raise, but it was very creditable to the Craft, as it showed the unanimity of feeling there was on the subject throughout the country. He then said that Dr. Brette was the Steward for this lodge at the Benevolent Institution next festival, and he hoped the brethren would support him liberally. A list would be sent round the table for brethren to fill up.

Dr. Brette replied, and said he had already got £34 on his list. (In a few minutes he announced that he had received the brethren's names for the total amount of £91.) (Cheers.)

The W.M. then gave "The Officers of the Lodge."

Dr. Hogg, J.W., replied. He felt like a Mason of the past. Twenty-five years ago he was a member of the Moira Lodge, and was then a hard-working Mason. He then endeavoured to bring that lodge into working order, and in a short time it was raised to a position of being second to none in the Craft. He should endeavour to do his part in the Aldersgate Lodge, and he hoped all the other brethren would assist him in carrying out his object.

The Tyler's toast was then given, and the brethren shortly afterwards separated.

During the evening the following selection of vocal music was performed under the direction of Bro. Henry Parker, P.P.G. Org. Middlesex:—Grace, "For these and all Thy mercies," A.D. 1564; National Anthem, (Dr. John Bull); "God bless the Prince of Wales," (B. Richards); Song, "The Anchor's Weighed," (Braham), Bro. John Stedman; Ballad, "It was a dream," (Cowan), Miss Jessie Royd; Song, "The Village Blacksmith," (Weiss), Bro. George Fox; Duet, "Love and War," (Cooke), Bros. Stedman and Fox; Scotch Song, Miss Jessie Royd; Ballad, "O come in thy Beauty," (G. Fox), Bro. George Fox; Trio, "This Magic Wave Scarf," (Barnett), Miss Jessie Royd, Bros. Stedman and Fox.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. F. WALTERS, P.G.J.D. MIDD., P.M. 73, &c.

On Saturday evening, January 27th, at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, a few friends met, under the able presidency of Bro. John Baxter Langley, W.M. 1423, to do honour to Bro. F. Walters, who was invited to the dinner. Punctually at the time named the dinner was commenced. After partaking of it the cloth was removed. The first toast, "The Queen," was well given and earnestly responded to. Then followed "The Health of Bro. Frederick Walters," whose great services in the cause of Freemasonry, extending over 21 years, and especially to the Masonic Charities, were fully dwelt upon in an able speech by the chairman. He asked Bro. F. Walters to accept a handsome purse (the purse being a gift of Bro. George Kenning), in which was a sum of £180, and an elaborate handsome silver inkstand, the cost of which brought up the value of the testimonial to nearly £200, the amounts being subscribed by several lodges and chapters to which the brother belongs, also by many members of his various lodges, &c. Bro. F. Walters thanked the brethren for the handsome testimonial given him, stating he had in his life and during his Masonic career given him by a relative (a brother Mason) three hundred guineas, so he must feel he had received quite five hundred guineas in worth over his testimonial. He expressed his gratitude for the presents they were bestowing on him. The toasts of "The Chairman, Bro. J. B. Langley," "The Secretary of the Fund, Bro. J. W. Baldwin, A.G.P. Midd., P.M. 1423, &c.," "J. T. Moss, P.P.G.R. Midd., P.M. 169," were given and cordially responded to. The final toast, "To our Next Merry Meeting," brought a pleasant evening to an agreeable close. Bro. J. T. Moss, T. J. Sabine, P.P.G.St.B. Midd., P.M. 73, &c. (an old initiate of Bro. F. Walters), and E. H. Thielay, made excellent speeches in favour of Bro. F. Walters. There were present besides those named, Bros. E. W. Devereux, S.D. 1423; B. Wright, A. Sec. 1423; J. Johnson; J. Pearson, 1423; H. Gloster; J. V. Watkins; A. Rolington, 1326; G. J. Loc, P.M. 1309; and some few others. The testimonial originated from the Era Lodge, 1423, and was well carried out by them. Bro. Frederick Walters is the son and grandson of Masons. His father and grandfather were initiated in Ireland.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The brethren of the Duke of Edinburgh Lodge, No. 1182, held their seventh annual ball at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 25th ult., and, as usual, proved of the most enjoyable character. The proceeds, as usual, will be given in aid of the Masonic Charities, a considerable sum having in previous years been realised from the annual festive gatherings for a like purpose. There were about 100 ladies and brethren present, and the admirable arrangements were entirely due to the efforts of a hard-working committee, composed of Bros. R. Martin, jun., W.M.; T. B. Myers, I.P.M.; J. Williams, P.M.; T. Davies, J.W.; W. Brown, Treas.; J. Thornton, P.M., D.C.; J. Bartley, Org.; A. D. Heskett, S.D.; A. Barclay, J.D.; T. G. Dutton, I.G.; J. Weston, S.S.; J. O. Rea, J.S.; H. C. Haynes, A.S.; R. Hargreaves, J. Curculender, T. Ward, T. Holden, T. H. Pierce, S. Wilkinson, R. Hargreaves, H. Savage, and G. Musker, Secretary, who also fulfilled the same office in connection with the ball. Mr. Martin's quadrille band occupied the orchestra, and supper was served during the evening in one of the large rooms.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS AND OINTMENT.—No one should treat the present changes in the weather with indifference, for they undoubtedly have a great effect upon the human body. It is necessary for every one to be cautious and watchful; caution as regards clothing and exposure, and watchfulness as regards the effects on the body. The skin, nervous system, and breathing organs often suffer severely, as is evinced by erysipelas, rheumatism, cold, sore throats, &c. When, therefore, symptoms of any of the above diseases show themselves they should be at once attended to. The Ointment should be rubbed into the parts affected, and the Pills taken according to the printed directions; this treatment soon eradicates the disease and restores the general health.—ADVT.

MASONIC CHARITY BALL.—A Masonic Charity ball was held in the Corn Exchange, Brigg, on Tuesday, the 16th ult., under the patronage of his Grace the Duke of St. Alban's, Provincial Grand Master of Lincolnshire; Major Smyth, Deputy Provincial Grand Master; and Bro. Captain R. N. Sutton, of Scawby Hall. The room was beautifully decorated with Masonic banners and devices, reflecting great credit on the taste and skill of the committee of Management. Bros. W. Piggott, P.M. 1282, P.G.S.W.; W. A. Field, W.M., 1282, P.G.S.; T. Fryer, W.M. 1282, P.P.G.S.; F.R. Sutton, J.W. 1282, &c. A most sumptuous supper was served by Mr Kirkman, in the club rooms adjoining. Bro. Acey's band was in attendance, and played a very choice selection. The dancing commenced at 9 p.m., and was kept up with spirit until 4 a.m. The ladies were richly attired. The brethren wore their Masonic clothing and jewels. Indeed, the entire company, numbering about 210 (amongst which we noticed the elite of the neighbourhood), with the ornamentation of the room, presented a magnificent appearance. The ball was in every respect a great success, and perfect satisfaction was universally expressed by the visitors.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

PYTHAGOREAN LODGE (No. 79).—The installation meeting of this very old and highly prosperous lodge was held on Monday, the 29th ult., at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich. The business being more than usually heavy for an installation night, the lodge was opened early, and shortly after four o'clock the chair was taken by Bro. John Shaw, W.M., supported by his officers. After the reading and confirmation of the minutes' ballots were taken for Bro. C. A. Robinson, of the Nelson Lodge, No. 700, as a joining member, and for Messrs. Henry Jarrett and John Payne as candidates for initiation, all of which being favourable, the two last-named gentlemen were severally introduced and admitted into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Following these Bros. Bowman and Featherstone, after the usual preliminary examination, were in a very impressive manner raised to the sublime degree of Master Mason. The report of the Audit Committee next claimed attention, and on the motion of Bro. Dennis, P.M., seconded by Bro. Wilkins, S.D., it was ordered to be received, adopted, and entered on the minutes. Visitors now began to drop in to assist at the ceremony of installation, which was very ably performed by the retiring Master, Bro. John Shaw, who having placed the S.W. and W.M. elect, Bro. J. Hooper Wilkins in the chair of K.S., was in his turn immediately invested as I.P.M. The Board of Installed Masters, numbering no less than twenty-three, after the usual congratulations to Bro. Wilkins on his promotion, was declared closed, the brethren below the chair were admitted, and the ceremony proceeded with. The W.M. then appointed and installed his officers as follows:—Bros. Dussier, S.W.; Partridge, J.W.; Penny, P.M., Treas.; Doughney, P.M., Sec.; Fowler, S.D.; Bell, J.D.; Parsons, I.G.; West Smith, P.M., M. of Cer.; Kippis, Org.; Core-dery, W.S.; and Riley, Tyler. The latter being absent through ill-health, was invested by deputy. A sum of ten pounds was then voted from the funds of the lodge to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution to be placed on Bro. Dennis's list, and a further sum of ten guineas to the Boys' School to be placed on the list of Bro. Boncey, P.M., P.P.G. Purst. Middx. The brethren then sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Pycroft in his best style, and to which ample justice was done. The evening being now far advanced but little time was left for speech-making, though the most was made of what there was to spare. After the toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The R.W. the Pro Grand Master," "The R.W. the Deputy Grand Master, and the Rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," that of "The Worshipful Master" followed, to which he briefly replied. Next came the Initiates," which was responded to in a few chosen words. Time now made sad havoc among the guests, and as the iron horse would not wait for those who were returning to town, and who must of necessity catch the last train, the brethren were sadly disappointed at what appeared to be such an abrupt termination of the evening's enjoyment. Bro. Binckes, however, snatched a few moments to reply, in his usual felicitous style, for "The Visitors," and Bro. Terry followed his example on behalf of "The Charities." "The Health of the I.P.M." came next in order, and the W.M. invested him with a handsome P.M.'s jewel, which he tendered him in the name of the lodge, at the same time hoping that he would live many years to wear it. After a suitable reply the other toasts followed in rapid succession, the W.M. remarking, as he gave that of "The Officers of the Lodge," that he hoped they would assist him to the best of their ability during his year of office, and that above all, they would be regular and punctual in their attendance, as a head without the other members of the body would be absolutely useless. With the Tyler's toast a most pleasant, if somewhat protracted, meeting came to a close. We must not omit to mention that Bros. Beckwith, Bowman, and others, under the leadership of Bro. Kippis, the Organist, interspersed the proceedings with some excellent songs, but these, like the speeches, were far less numerous than they would have been had there been more time at disposal. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Binckes, Sec. Boys' School; Terry, Sec. R.M.B. Inst.; Sabine, P.M. 73, P.P.G.D.C. Middx.; Free, P.M. and Sec. 73; Blum, P.M. 1017; and others; and letters of apology were received from Bro. Col. Burdett, P.G.M. Middx. and Bro. John Hervey, Grand Sec.

LODGE OF JOPPA (No. 188).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 4th inst. at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. The lodge was opened with due solemnity by the W.M., Bro. Lewis Lazarus, who acquitted himself most admirably in rendering the several degrees. A ballot was taken for Mr. W. N. Osborne, who was duly initiated into the Order. Bros. Wilanski and Buck were passed to the Second Degree. The Secretary read various communications to the lodge, which were properly disposed of. Bro. Spiegel addressed the lodge on the subject of the exclusion of Jews in some of the German lodges. He proposed, and P.M. L. Alexander seconded, that a committee be formed to communicate with the so-called Jewish lodges in London and the provinces for the purpose of endeavouring to get the objectionable law removed. Bro. S. Davis rose, pursuant to notice of motion, and proposed that the sum of £25 be given from the funds of the lodge for the purpose of presenting a testimonial to Bro. L. M. Auerhaan, Treas. Bro. Davis said he was sure that the amount would be voted unanimously. P.M. Hickman opposed the motion and gave several reasons for doing so—in the end proposed an amendment that the question be adjourned for three years. P.M. Maurice Alexander seconded the amendment. P.M.'s Abrahams and Lewis Alexander supported the amendment, which was carried by a majority of 27 to 5. Bro. Abrahams said he considered the amount proposed enormous, and thought something might be done in the shape of a testimonial to the Treasurer, and would therefore propose a second amendment, viz., that the sum of £5 be given from the lodge for that purpose. Bro. Alexander Auerhaan, son of the Treasurer, by permission of the W.M., addressed the lodge. He said he had divested himself of all kindred feeling and spoke as an independent member. He made a very earnest appeal to the brethren to withdraw the words "three years," as to his mind it appeared a slur on the Treasurer. Bro. P.M. J. Abrahams said he was quite willing to withdraw his amendment if the proposer withdrew the "three years." A short discussion ensued, in which one of the P.M.'s expressed a doubt as to whether it was regular to withdraw any portion of a resolution that had been passed by a large majority of the members. It was eventually put to the lodge and carried. The lodge was then closed in due form. The brethren retired to refreshment. All present appeared to be happy. There were several visitors present, amongst whom were Bros. M. Levy, Barlow, and Goldsmith.

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—A meeting of the above lodge was held on Thursday, the 1st inst., at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street. Present: Bros. Thomas Cohu, W.M.; Charles Arkell, S.W.; Edward Jones, J.W.; George Kenning, P.M., Treas.; J. G. Marsh, P.M. Sec.; John Johnstone, P.M.; George Abbott, P.M.; George Newman, P.M.; Edward King, P.M.; Legge, S.D.; Fellows, J.D.; Rickwood, I.G.; Stevenson, Medwin, Cotter, Bright, Gillam, West, Fitzjohn, Child, Smith, Harwood, Kent, Fisher, Cotter, Figs, Poulton, Bartholomew, Pratt, Stubington, Benson, Statham, Dart, and others, with several visitors. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Darnell was raised; Bro. Dunn, of the Finsbury Park Lodge, was passed; and Mr. Wm. Henry Lee Davies was initiated into the Order. The members then proceeded to the election of a Master and Treasurer for the ensuing year, the result of the ballot for Master being:—

For the Junior Warden ..... 35 Votes.

" Senior Warden ..... 19 "

The Junior Warden was then declared to be elected, the result of the election for Treasurer being:—

Bro. George Kenning, P.M. .... 4 Votes.

" William Cotter ..... 2 "

" R. J. Dart ..... 1 "

Information was received of the death of Bro. W. R. Baker, also of Bro. John Elliott; letters of condolence were ordered to be sent to the friends of the deceased brethren.

FITZROY LODGE (No. 569).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Artillery Grounds, Finsbury, the head quarters of the regiment, on Friday, the 26th January, when a large number of members and visitors attended. Bro. F. Graves presided, supported by his officers. The lodge was opened and the minutes of the previous meeting and of a lodge of emergency were confirmed. A ballot was then taken for Bro. Lieut. A. Durrant, P.M. of 1185, which was unanimous in his favour. The W.M. elect, Bro. Ensign W. L. Spicer, was introduced and duly installed by Bro. Capt. J. Eglese, P.M. At the conclusion of the ceremony, and on admission of the brethren, the new W.M. was saluted according to ancient custom; he then appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. R. G. Webster, S.W.; A. Everingham, J.W.; J. Sanderson, S.D.; F. J. Stohwasser, J.D.; Quarter-Master W. G. Brighton, I.G.; Capt. J. Eglese, Hon. Sec.; and W. Jolliffe, D.C. Bro. Capt. Helsham was also invested as Treasurer. The retiring Master was presented with a very handsome jewel, in recognition of his able and efficient services while in the chair. The sum of £10 was voted for the Benevolent Fund, to be placed on the list of Bro. H. J. Adams, P.M., he having consented to act as Steward at the forthcoming festival. The lodge was then closed and the brethren adjourned to their magnificent hall, which had been tastefully decorated for the occasion, where an excellent banquet was provided. After grace the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given and responded to. Bro. Capt. Helsham in very eloquent terms proposed "The Health of the newly installed W.M.," who he said had the good esteem of all the brethren, and would, he had no doubt, reflect credit on his appointment. The W.M. in response, while thanking them for the honour conferred upon him, expressed his intention to do all he could to merit the confidence reposed in him. The healths of Bros. H. F. Matthews, G. Fulcher, and J. Pash, who had been initiated at a lodge of emergency, were also proposed, and each of those brethren made suitable acknowledgments. Bros. Major Chas. Harding, P.M. 231, and Dr. Ramsay, P.M. 259, responded on behalf of "The Visitors," who numbered upwards of 30. The proceedings were enlivened by some excellent songs by Bros. H. P. Matthews, F. H. Cozens, A. Hubbard, and T. W. Simons.

NEW CROSS LODGE (No. 1559).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the New Cross Hall, Lewisham High Road, on Saturday last, the 3rd inst. Two o'clock was the time fixed on the summonses for the commencement of work, but as neither the W.M. or the W.M. elect had arrived by the half-hour, Bro. F. Walter, P.G.J.W. Middlesex, &c., Treasurer, opened the lodge, having as his officers Bros. G. J. Hogg, P.P.G.P. P.M., acting as S.W.; Walter Simmons, J.W.; Louis Beck, S.D.; H. J. Green, P.M., J.D.; Ernest E. Smith, acting as I.G.; Church, Tyler. Lodge was opened in the First Degree, the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The ballot was declared to be favourable in the cases of seven candidates for initiation. Lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Alexander Macgillivray a candidate for raising, was entrusted and withdrew. After opening in the Third Degree this brother was re-admitted and raised. Lodge was then resumed to the First Degree, and Messrs. Wilson, Thornton, Swain, and Knibbs simultaneously received their first insight into Freemasonry. Bro. F. Walters then proceeded to install Bro. H. Keeble, P.M. of 1275, S.W. of 73, and Secretary of 1559, into the chair of K.S. The customary honours were observed. The W.M. appointed his officers as follows: Bros. E. Thiellay, S.W.; Walter Simmons, J.W.; F. Walters, Treas.; T. Grummant, Sec.; Louis Beck, S.D.; H. Green, J.D.; Solomon Jewell, I.G.; W. Woodman, the I.P.M., W.S. After the customary rising of the W.M., the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting-room where Bro. E. Page, of the New Cross Road, had been busy with his assistants during the afternoon. There was a large muster of visitors, and we noticed in lodge as well as at the banquet table, Bro. Govan Macdonald, W.M. 1158, Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction, perhaps the most respected, and certainly one of the most efficient brethren in the locality; also Bros. Stead, P.M.; Hubback, P.M.; Allen, W.M. 144; Lovell, W.M. of the Perfect Ashlar, 1178; Levi, 188; Tong, 73; and the Rev. Dr. Cox, P.G.C. The members of the lodge present besides the officers were: Bros. Moss, Smurthwaite, Ernest Smith, David Malpas, Metham, Macgillivray, Cowley, as well as the initiates. The toast of "The Initiates" was replied to by Bro. Swain, that of "The Visitors" by Bro. Keeble, (a veteran Master Mason of some two score years), "The Officers" by each individually.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).

The members of this lodge met at the Freemasons' Hall on the 18th ult. for the last time under the gavel of Bro. Lancaster. There were present for raising, Bros. Hayes, Bonner, and Dunham, and for passing, Bros. Dawkins, Croucher, and Johns; the candidate for initiation being unfortunately absent. The W.M. having finished the above ceremonies, retired from the chair in favour of P.M. Forbes, who had kindly undertaken to install the W.M. elect, viz. Bro. Jupe, the J.W., who having duly qualified himself for the high position of W.M., the brethren retired, and on their reassembling the ceremony was proceeded with, and the W.M. was pleased to appoint the following brethren as his officers: Bros. E. Lancaster, I.P.M.; Christie, S.W.; West, J.W.; Webb, P.M., Treas. (7th time); Staton, P.M., Sec.; Robinson, S.D.; Arkell, J.D.; Jackson, I.G.; Timberlake, D.C.; Rowles, Tyler. The Secretary then read the report of the Audit Committee, which was very creditable, and the Treasurer proposed that the sum of £25 should be placed on the list of the I.P.M., who was representing the lodge as Steward of the Benevolent Institution. This brought the business to a close, and the W.M. closed in due form. Nothing calls for comment at the banquet, save a kind remark or so on behalf of Bro. Dawkins, who did all he could to make the visitors and brethren comfortable. Neither must we omit to mention, before closing this summary, that Bro. Lancaster had the usual complimentary jewel presented to him on his retirement as W.M.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).

The installation meeting of the Duke of Connaught Lodge was held on the 25th ult., Bro. Thos. C. Chapman, W.M., P.G.S. Herts, presiding, supported by Bros. Shackleton, S.W.; Symes, J.W.; B. Meyer, Treas.; W. H. Lee (W.M. 975), I.P.M. Sec.; N. Green, S.D.; Brand, J.D.; H. Meyer, I.G.; and a numerous assemblage of the brethren. Lodge was duly opened by the W.M., and the minutes read and confirmed. Bro. Lee, P.M., then proceeded to install Bro. J. B. Shackleton as W.M. for the ensuing year, which ceremony was performed in Bro. Lee's accustomed painstaking and impressive manner. The W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. James Symes, S.W.; B. Meyer, J.W.; J. C. Chapman, I.P.M., Treas.; W. H. Lee, P.M., Sec.; N. Green, S.D.; W. Brand, J.D.; H. Meyer, I.G.; Johnson, D.C.; Brasted and Digman, Stewards. The usual address was delivered by Bro. Lee, P.M. Bro. Shackleton passed Bro. Oscar Dietrich and Hill to the Second Degree, after which lodge was closed, and the brethren soon after sat down to a sumptuous banquet, when the usual toasts were given and responded to. Amongst the visitors we observed Bros. Somers, W.M. 1599; Read, P.M. 1287; Dunthorn, 141; Fieldwick, 1354; and Streeton, 1326. Bro. Young ably officiated as organist.

CRIPPLEGATE LODGE (No. 1613).

At the meeting of the Cripplegate Lodge, Bro. Coste, I.P.M. proposed, and Bro. C. J. Benson seconded, and it was unanimously agreed that a letter of condolence should be forwarded to Mrs. W. R. Baker, on the death of her band, Bro. W. R. Baker, of Cripplegate Ward. funeral was conducted from his residence, 16, Villas, Camden-square, the cortege being followed

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Chapter (No. 41).—A regular meeting was held at the Masonic Hall, on Monday, Jan. 16th. In the absence of the M.E.Z., owing to serious illness, the Board of Principals was opened by Ex. Comp. Dr. Hopkins, P.Z., who also, after the admission of the companions, opened the chapter, supported by Ex. Comps. Carey, H.; Hill, J.; G. Parfitt, P.Z.; Jelley, P.Z.; Moutrie, P.Z. and Treas.; Hearne, E.; Brown, N.; Young, P. Soj.; Hunt and Howes, as Asst. Sojs.; Bigwood, Jan., &c. The chair of Z. was then taken by Ex. Comp. G. Parfitt. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. A vote of condolence with Ex. Comp. Thompson, Z., on account of his illness, was passed. On the proposition of Ex. Comp.

Dr. Hopkins, seconded by Ex. Comp. Jelley, an alteration was made in one of the bye-laws, by which in future the election of and ballot for the officers will take place a month before, instead of on the day of the installation. Several matters of only local interest having been discussed and settled, and no other business offering, the chapter was closed at 9 o'clock.

KENDAL.—Kendal Castle Chapter (No. 129).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held on Thursday, January 25th, at one o'clock in the afternoon, at the Masonic Hall, Stramondgate. The chapter was opened by the Principals, after which the companions were admitted and the minutes read and confirmed. E. Comp. John Bowes, P.Z., &c., was then invited to install the Principals elect, viz., Comps. J. Holme, Z.; Joseph Bintley, H.; and John Talbot, J. The ceremony having been completed, the officers for the ensuing year were invested, viz., Comps. McKay, E.; Bell, N.; and Godfrey, P.S. A cordial vote of thanks was accorded to Comp. Bowes for his able services for years past, and particularly for those of that day. The Treasurer, Comp. Titus Wilson, reported that the finances of the chapter were in a very satisfactory condition, whereupon Comp. McKay announced that he had undertaken the duty of Steward at the forthcoming festival of the Benevolent Institution, and asked for £5 to be added to his list, which was readily granted. After the transaction of some routine business, the chapter was closed with the usual solemnities.

LIVERPOOL.—Temple Chapter (No. 1094).—The companions of this well accredited chapter assembled at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday evening, the 23rd ult., to assist at the installation of chiefs and investiture of officers. There was a large gathering of members and visitors. Comp. Dr. J. K. Smith, P.Z., was the installing officer, assisted by Comp. J. B. Robinson, P.Z. Comps. Peter Macmurdrow was installed M.E.Z.; Richard Washington, H.; Richard C. Yelland, J.; J. Pemberton, P.Z., was invested Treasurer; D. A. Davies, S.E.; J. Hayes, S.N.; and J. W. Burgess, P.S. At the conclusion of the installation, Bros. H. W. Parry, W. Inwood, W. Hawskworth, N. Robertson, W. R. Rieve, and C. Wingate were solemnly exalted, and the officers astonished every one by the perfect manner in which they performed their new duties, eliciting high encomiums from the P.Z.'s and visitors. Every circumstance seems to point to a prosperous year. In addition to the usual toasts which followed the banquet, "The Newly-exalted Candidates" was thrown in, and cordially acknowledged. Several good songs and recitations were given, and the M.E.Z., in the course of the evening, in the name of the companions, presented to Comp. R. R. Martin, the Immediate P.Z., a handsome Past Principal's jewel as a mark of the esteem in which he was held by the members of the chapter.

PROVINCIAL GRAND LODGE OF GLASGOW.

The regular quarterly communication of this lodge—postponed from Thursday, Jan. 25, for, we presume, obvious reasons—was held on Thursday, 1st inst., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. The Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Col. Walter Montgomerie Neilson, presided, supported by his office-bearers as follows:—Bros. F. A. Barrow, Depute-Master; J. Baird, Substitute-Master; James Gillies, Treas.; W. H. Bickerton, Sec.; John Morgan, S.D.; Jas. Ritchie, Arch.; Robert Jack, Jeweller; Alex. Bain, B.B.; Thomas Halker, Dir. of Music; David Reid, Swd. Br.; Robert Robb, Marshall, and P. of Stewards; and James Booth, I.G. In the early portion of the meeting, previous to the installation of office-bearers, one or two of these brethren sustained their former offices. At the opening Bro. D. McInnes, of Lodge St. Mungo, No. 27, was acting S.W.; Bro. James Thomson, W.M. Lodge St. Mark, No. 102, J.W.; Bro. John Morgan, P.M. Lodge Star, No. 219, acting Secretary; and Bro. David Reid, W.M. Lodge St. Andrew, acting I.G. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of last regular meeting of the lodge and of several meetings of P.G.L. Committee held since, were read by Bro. Morgan, and, after some short discussion, approved of and passed. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. G. Sinclair, Treas. of the P.G.L. Benevolent Fund, Bro. Morgan read the minutes of three meetings of the Fund Committee which had been held since last communication, from which it appeared that there had been granted, to approved applicants for benevolence, at the first of these meetings the sum of £26; at the second £7; and at the third £14—in all the sum of £47. The next item on the programme of the evening was the installation of office-bearers for the ensuing year, according to the list, as already reported, at the date of their recent election. This was accordingly proceeded with, the obligation being given them by Bro. Barrow, and the P.G. Master himself investing each with the jewel or emblem of his office. The billet of business to come before the Grand Lodge of Scotland at their next quarterly meeting, to be held on Monday next, was then taken up, and one or two of the motions then to be brought forward gave occasion for several comments from, among others, the R.W.P.G. Master himself, as also Bros. Barrow and D.M. Nelson, I.P.M., Lodge St. John No. 34, and Senior Deacon of Grand Lodge. Thereafter the Committee of the P.G.L. Benevolent Fund, which consists of the office-bearers of the lodge, were formally re-appointed, and Bros. Thomson, R.W.M. (No. 102); Kinnaird, R.W.M. (No. 73); and Dr. McInnes, W.M. 27, appointed as auditors for the year of the lodge accounts. Bro. Barrow then referred to the resignation last year, by Bro. Archd. McTaggart of the office of Prov. Grand Secretary, and said he desired to bear his testimony to the ability and conscientiousness with which Bro. John Morgan, Past Master of Lodge 219, had fulfilled "ad interim" the duties of that position, from the moment he accepted them until the present time. In all his (Bro. Barrow's) experience, extending over many years, none had more ably discharged the duties than Bro. Morgan. He had reason to know that the latter would not on retiring accept of that portion of the salary pertaining to the office which would fall to him for the period of time he had held it; and therefore what he had to propose was that the lodge accord him a hearty vote of thanks for his services during the time he had been acting P.G. Secretary, and further, that they vote a sum of £10 for the purpose of presenting him with some token of their respect for those services. The motion was carried unanimously, and with much demonstration of approval; and it was agreed to leave to the office-bearers of the lodge to arrange as to the form the token should take. Bro. Morgan in returning thanks, said that if what he had been able to do during the short time he had held office had been of service to the lodge, he considered his reward had been earned. Since, however, it had been proposed to give him some acknowledgment, he would consent to receive it, but he would request of them not to make it anything of such value as the sum mentioned. Before closing, the chairman addressed a few words to the brethren, in the course of which he referred to the scheme he had promulgated some time ago for the acquisition of better accommodation for the work of Masonry, and in particular of the Provincial Grand Lodge in Glasgow—with the details of which the readers of the Freemason are already acquainted. In the meantime the project had fallen through, but he had reserved to himself the right of re-acquiring the property at the West-End, which he had purchased, and now let for other purposes, at the end of three years, so that it might be available in the future if the brethren in Glasgow showed their desire to go into the matter. Three cheers having been given for the chairman on his re-appearance among them, on the motion of Bro. D. M. Nelson, the lodge was closed by Bro. John Baird in due and ancient form.

SUPREME GRAND CHAPTER.

The quarterly convocation of Supreme Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons of England, was held at Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday evening. The different officers were held as follows: Col. Burdett, Z.; S. Rawson, H.; E. Pattison, J.; John Hervey, S.E.; Col. Creaton, N.; Rev. R. S. Wigram, P.S.; Captain Platt; 1st A.S.; Benj. Head, and A.S.; J. C. Parkinson, S.B.; E. J. Barrow, Std. Bearer; J. M. Case, D.C. and C. B. Payne, Janitor. The other Comps. present were S. B. Holton, P.D.C.; N. Bradford, P.G., D.C.; Robert Grey, P.P.S.; Charles A. Murton, P.A.S.; Edward S. Snell, P.G.S.B.; Peter Wagner, P.Z.; John Boyd, P.Z.; John Canham, H. 22, Saml. H. Rawley, Z. 174; C. Congreve, Z. 913; E. Denton, Z. 913; J. McDougal, J. 913; James L. Thomas, P.Z. 13; Hyde Clarke, Z. 913; F. R. Vine, J. 749; Charles F. Hogard, Z. 141; W. Viner Bedolfe, 1329; Joshua Nunn Thomas Kingston, H. 962; Alfred B. Bennett, P.Z. 294; Matthew Cooke, P.Z. 534; G. Lemann, Z. 176; A. H. Tattershall, Z. 143; Fred. G. Pownhall, J. 13; Peter Parsons, J. 1348; G. R. Shervill, H. 534; H. Bickerstaff, Z. 13; J. R. Molineux, Z. 2; F. G. Baker, P.Z. 753; H. Massey, P.Z. 619, (Freemason); R. G. K. Wilkinson, J. 7; Wm. Kirby, Z. 25 Jabez Hogg, Z. 1260; R. J. Spiers, P.G.S.B.

After the formal opening of Grand Chapter, the minutes of last convocation were read and confirmed.

On the motion of Col. Creaton, seconded by Bro. Joshua Nunn, the following report of the Committee of General Purposes was taken as read, and received and entered on the minutes:—

The Committee of General Purposes beg to report that they have examined the accounts from the 18th October, 1876, to the 16th January, 1877, both inclusive, which they find to be as follows:—

To Balance Grand Chapter	£475 11 1
„ Unappropriated Account	177 12 11
„ Subsequent Receipts	392 8 3
	£1045 12 3
By Purchase of £300 Consols at 94½ and
Commission	£283 10 0
„ Disbursements during the Quarter	175 8 4
„ Balance	414 6 0
„ in Unappropriated Account	172 7 11
	£1045 12 3

which balances are in the hands of Messrs. Willis, Percival & Co., bankers of the Grand Treasurer.

The committee have likewise to report that they have received the following petitions:—

1st. From Comps. Roger Alfred Grundy as Z., James Dick Calder as H., John Hall as J., and six others for a chapter, to be attached to the Devonshire Lodge, No. 625, Glossop, to be called "The Devonshire Chapter," and to meet at the Norfolk Arms Hotel, Glossop, in the County of Derbyshire.

2nd. From Comps. Jones Giffard Nash as Z., Verso W. Taylor as H., John Bagot Scriven as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Stortford Lodge, No. 409, Bishop Stortford, to be called "The Stortford Chapter," and to meet at the Chequers Hotel, Bishop Stortford, in the County of Hertfordshire.

3rd. From Comps. Arthur Robert Marten as Z., Felix Sumner Knyvet as H., William Smitheth as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Lodge of Felicity, No. 58, London, to be called "The Chapter of Felicity," and to meet at the London Masonic Club, No. 101, Queen Victoria-street, in the City of London.

4th. From Comps. John Daniel Massey as Z., George

Wilson as H., George Robert Green as J., and six others for a Chapter to be attached to the Phoenix Lodge, No. 173, London, to be called "The Phoenix Chapter," and to meet at Freemasons' Hall, London.

5th. From Comps. John Loudon as Z., Ezekiel Nathan as H., Henry Smith Fish as J., and nine others for a Chapter to be attached to the Port Chalmers Marine Lodge, No. 942, Port Chalmers, Otago, to be called "The Joyce Chapter," and to meet at Port Chalmers, Otago, New Zealand.

6th. From Comps. the Right Honourable Lord Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., as Z., James Smith Eastes as H., The Reverend Thomas Robinson as J., and seven others, for a Chapter to be attached to the Invicta Lodge, No. 709, Ashford, to be called "The Invicta Chapter," and to meet at the Corn Exchange, Ashford, in the County of Kent.

The prayers of these petitions being in all respects regular, the Committee recommend that they be respectively granted.

(Signed) JOHN CREATON, President.

All these petitions were granted unanimously.

In seconding the motion that the 6th of the above petition be granted, Comp. F. Pattison said he was much pleased to see Lord Holmesdale taking this step. He looked upon it as the stepping stone to the establishment of other chapters in the province of Kent, where there were at present many lodges and chapters.

Comp. Matthew Cooke rose to present a memorial to Grand Chapter, and to ask its advice; but the M.E.Z. ruled that as this business was not on the paper of Grand Chapter, and the chapter of which Comp. Cooke was Z. had been suspended, he had no locus standi, and he was requested to retire.

Comp. Cooke having retired,

The M.E.Z. asked the companions whether they had anything to say upon the subject of Comp. Cooke's memorial, and receiving no reply, he said that the matter could not come before Grand Chapter until next meeting in May after it had been before the Committee of General Purposes.

Grand Chapter was thereupon closed in due form.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. W. SMITH.

Many brethren of the lodges and chapters meeting at Anderton's Hotel having expressed a wish to acknowledge the services of Bro. W. Smith (head waiter), on completing his 23rd year of service, the W.M., officers, and brethren of the Domestic Lodge, No. 177, feeling desirous of acknowledging their appreciation of the courteous, attentive, and praiseworthy manner in which Bro. Smith had discharged the duties of his position, are desirous of presenting him with a testimonial, and they now invite the co-operation of the officers and brethren of the lodges and chapters who are desirous of uniting in the work. In furtherance of this object, a meeting was held at Anderton's Hotel on Wednesday evening, Bro. James Willing, jun., W.M. 177, in the chair, when he was supported by the following brethren:—P. Palmer, S.W. 177; Barfield, P.M., Treas. 511; Buscall, J.W. 177; Wilson, P.Z. 177; Hinds, 72; G. Clarke, 177; Lovett, 179; Willis, 177; Stewart, 141; Hobbs, W.M. 749; H. Massey (Freemason), Jones, 177; Reed, Sec. 711; Lean, J.W. 193; J. Panter, P.M. 749; George Everett, P.M. 177; J. W. Hobbs, W.M. 749; and J. C. Dwarber.

After the Chairman had explained the object of the meeting the brethren present expressed their concurrence in the project, and they formed themselves into a committee for the purpose of furthering it. On the motion of Bro. Wilson, seconded by Bro. Barfield, the above brethren were formed into a committee, with power to add to their number. Bro. Palmer proposed, and Bro. Hines seconded, that Bro. Willing be chairman, and Bro. Barfield be Vice-Chairman. Bro. Wilson proposed, and Bro. Palmer seconded, that Bro. Reed and Bro. Williams be joint Secretaries. Bro. Wilson proposed, and Bro. Reed seconded, that Bro. Willing be Treasurer pro. tem. All these motions were carried unanimously; and it was then ordered that circulars be sent round to each lodge and chapter meeting at Anderton's, inviting their assistance in the object in view.

Letters were read from Bros. J. Painter, P.M. 749; J. W. Hobbs, W.M. 749; Geo. Everett, P.M. 177; and J. C. Dwarber, W.M. 1589, concurring in the scheme, and placing their names down for subscriptions to the list. The meeting was then adjourned to the 28th inst., at Anderton's Hotel, at seven p.m.

The "Wolsey Lodge," 1656, will be consecrated on Saturday, the 17th inst., at the White Hart Hotel, Hampton Wick, at half-past three o'clock. The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be worked by the R.W. Bro. Colonel Burdett, P.S.G.W. and P.G.M. Middlesex, assisted by Bro. Robert Wentworth Little, P.P.S.G.W. Middlesex, and Bro. the Rev. F. J. Champion de Crespigny, 708, P.P.G. Chap. Middlesex. The officers designate are Bros. W. Hammond, P.M. 201, 1326, and 1512, P.P.G.D. Middlesex, Worshipful Master; B. Sharp, P.M. 84, S.W.; and J. Bond, P.M., J.W.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.—Indigestion.—How much thought has been bestowed, and what ponderous volumes have been written upon this plague of every household, which is with certainty, and safety dispelled without fear of relapse, by a course of this purifying, -outgoing, and tonic medicine! It acts directly on the stomach, liver, and bowels—more indirectly, though not less effectively, on the brain, nerves, vessels, and glands, and commands such order throughout the entire system that harmony dwells between each organ and its functions. Dyspepsia can no longer be the bane of the puny, since Holloway's Pills are fully competent to subdue the most chronic and distressing cases of impaired digestion, and to restore the miserable sufferer to health, strength and cheerfulness.—ADVT.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of Subscribers and Governors of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys met on Saturday last, at Freemasons' Hall, Bro. H. W. Hunt in the chair. The other brethren present were Bros. Raynham, W. Stewart, John W. Dennison, Alfred Durrant, Wm. Mann, John Symonds, H. Browne, Wm. Roebuck, J. Terry, J. Newton, C. F. Matier, Alfred Lamb, W. F. C. Moutrie, Dr. Richard Morris, Fred. J. Cox, S. Rosenthal, H. Massey (Freemason), John Boyd, John Read, Hyde Pullen, F. Adlard, F. H. Ebsworth, Charles Horsley, J. W. M. Dosell, and F. Binckes, Secretary.

The different minutes occupied a long time in reading, and after they had been confirmed Bro. Binckes read the medical officer's report on the health of the school. At the former meeting of the Committee it was resolved that the medical officer should make this report monthly, and this was the first time such a report was made. After some discussion on general matters connected with the school the brethren passed a resolution increasing the amount for the Secretary to pay salaries, wages, &c., with, from £25 a quarter to £100, the former sum being totally inadequate, and he having to pay the difference out of his own pocket. The brethren afterwards passed another resolution that all the deeds and securities belonging to the Institution, be deposited with the bankers, Messrs. Willis, Perceval, and Co. £500 was ordered to be transferred from the general fund to the sustentation fund. The balance sheet for the last year was then read, from which it appeared that the total receipts of the Institution for that period were £15,359 6s., and the disbursements £14,513 8s. 8d.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart moved that the salary of Bro. Hall, the medical officer, be increased from £60 to £100 a year. Bro. Hall deserved some additional consideration after his service of 16 years. When the Institution had only 100 boys in it Bro. Hall's salary was fixed at £60, and now that there were nearly double that number he was paid no more. By giving him £100 a year the brethren would be doing not only that which was right to Bro. Hall, but that which was due to the Institution. As one of the House Committee he had known him for a long time, and could testify that a more painstaking and honest man never accepted office.

Bro. Rosenthal seconded the motion, which was favourably spoken to by Bro. H. Browne, and after a few words from Bro. Durrant, who objected that Bro. Hall did not live nearer than two miles to the Institution, and from Bro. Binckes, who bore witness to Bro. Hall's personal sacrifices on behalf of the school, the motion was carried unanimously. The brethren were informed that the salary included medicines, but not vaccinations, for which a small fee was charged.

An addition of £10 was made to the salary of the musical instructor. Bro. Binckes said that the fees paid by the boys for the musical instruction made it almost self-supporting.

An outfit was granted to one of the ex-pupils who had obtained a situation, and £20 was voted to a pupil who has shown great brilliancy in numerous branches of study, for the prosecution of his studies for the university.

Bro. Binckes said he had received a letter from the Provincial Grand Master for Staffordshire informing him that the brethren of the province had voted £500 guineas to the school for the presentation of a Staffordshire lad during the life of the Duke of Connaught, and another 500 guineas to make the presentation perpetual.

Bro. John Symonds again mentioned his proposal for adopting the code of the Educational Department of the Privy Council as the test for the reading of proposed candidates, and left it to the House Committee to consider the best means of doing it.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart gave notice of motion that the Quarterly Courts of January and July should meet at four o'clock instead of twelve. There were no elections on those days, and the brethren found it very inconvenient to come at so early an hour as twelve, which was right in the busy part of their day. On election days they did not mind it, because they studied the convenience of the brethren who came up from all parts of the country.

The Committee passed a vote of thanks to the Chairman, after sitting nearly an hour and a-half.

SHEFFIELD MASONIC BALL.

This ball took place on Friday, January 5th, 1877, at the Cutlers' Hall, Sheffield, the whole of that suite of magnificent rooms being engaged. 257 persons were present, the dresses of the ladies and the varied regalia of the brethren making a brilliant scene. The ball was a select one, and in every way a success; it was, in fact, pronounced to be the best ever given in Sheffield, which is saying a good deal when we remember their previous highly successful balls. Every Order in Masonry was represented, one visiting brother (from the United States) appearing in the robes, &c., &c., of the 32°. The supper, the wines, and the band were all irreproachable. Dancing was commenced shortly after nine o'clock, and kept up until after three a.m. These balls are conducted by a committee consisting of twelve brethren selected from the several lodges, Bros. S. B. Ellis and Joseph Binney acting as Hon. Secs. for the second year.

We heartily congratulate the committee on its able management, and the Sheffield brethren generally on this their last and greatest success.

The pier at Eastbourne, which was destroyed during the recent storms, is to be rebuilt. At a special meeting of the shareholders, it was stated that the necessary sum, nearly £10,000, had been subscribed, and tenders will be asked for.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

A movement is now on foot in the North Island of New Zealand for the formation of a Provincial Grand Lodge under the S.C. Very recently Bro. the Hon. F. Whittaker, one of the founders of Freemasonry in New Zealand, was affiliated into Lodge Sir Walter Scott, to enable him to assume the position of P.G.M. From Bro. Whittaker's abilities and social position we have no doubt of his being able to fill the office with credit to himself and profit to the lodges under his jurisdiction. Bro. M. Niccol, who filled the chair of Lodge St. Andrew, No. 418, S.C., for two successive years, and has now entered his second year as R.W.M. of Lodge Manukau, will be the Deputy Provincial Grand Master.

Some dozen years ago a Masonic lodge under the Irish Constitution existed in the town of Onehunga, Auckland, New Zealand. A considerable number of the members migrated to the gold fields, and the lodge practically ceased to exist. In the middle of 1875 a few brethren met and discussed the advisability of re-opening the old, or forming a new lodge. After due enquiry, and several preliminary meetings, it was agreed that a new lodge under the Scotch Constitution should be opened, and advantage was taken of Bro. Niccol's visit to Dandenedi to apply to the P.G.M. there for a dispensation, pending the receipt of the charter from Edinburgh. The dispensation was received in time to open the lodge on the first Wednesday of January, 1876; Bro. Anderson, P.M. of Lodge St. Andrew, 418, S.C. acting as S.P.G.M.; Bro. Doull, P.M. 411, I.C., as Dir. of Cer.; Bro. S.M. Leers, 686, E.C., as Installing Master, &c. The customary banquet followed, Bro. Malcolm Niccol, the R.W.M., in the chair.

During the past twelve months Lodge Manukau (so named after the harbour on which Onehunga is situated) has steadily prospered, and although the balance at the banker's is small the lodge is out of debt, and has paid for the jewels, regalia, working tools, and furniture of the old lodge, and supplemented them where necessary, making the lodge fully equipped.

At the regular monthly communication in November the following officers were duly elected: Bros. M. Niccol, P.M., re-elected as R.W.M.; W. C. Walker, P.M. 418, S.C., as W.D.M.; H. Hardington, as S.M.; Dunwoodie, as S.W.; J. R. Hendry, J.W.; Eastwood, who retired from the S.W.'s chair on account of increasing age, as Treas.; J. W. Waller, unanimously re-elected Sec.; Codlin, as S.D.; Schofield, J.D.; Collins, as Bible Bearer; Clark, as I.G. for a second time; Neilson as Tyler.

Most of the office-bearers were installed on the regular lodge night, the first Wednesday in December, but the installation banquet was held in the Choral Hall on Thursday, the 14th. The banquet was well attended, no less than nine P.M.'s being the guests of the lodge. After the toast of "The Queen and Craft," "The Prince of Wales," &c., had been proposed by the R.W.M., "The Three Grand Lodges, S.C., E.C., and I.C.," by Bro. Dunwoodie, S.W.; "Provincial Grand Lodges, N.Z.," by Bro. Hendry, J.W., came the toast of the evening, "The R.W.M. of Lodge Manukau." After Bro. Eastwood proposed the toast he presented Bro. Niccol with a handsome salver and biscuit box, partly purchased from the lodge funds and supplemented by contributions from the lodge members. In his speech the brother recounted many services rendered to Masonry in general, and Lodge Manukau in particular, by the R.W.M. The toast was drunk with much enthusiasm, and all the honours. Bro. Niccol replied at some length. A number of other toasts followed. Bro. Wade, P.M., in proposing the officers and members of Lodge Manukau, gave some advice to the members on business matters—the result of his long experience. He complimented the officers generally, and one or two specially, the Secretary for his business abilities and the J.W. for his readiness in being taught his duties in another lodge (Lodge Union, 154, Mark, E.C.) During the evening Bro. Reeves, P.M., presided at the harmonium and piano, and Bro. Saxton, Organist of 689, E.C., acted as conductor in the anthems, glees, &c. Solos were also sung by Bros. Schofield, Neilson, and others. Bro. O'Callaghan proposed "The Musicians of the Evening," and his encomiums on the excellence of the music was cordially endorsed by those present. "Auld Lang Syne" and "God Save the Queen" brought the proceedings to a close, and the brethren separated, thoroughly satisfied with the whole arrangements.

The Union Lodge of Mark Masters (No. 154, E.C.) held its regular monthly meeting in the Masonic lodge room, Prince's-street, Auckland, on the 12th Dec., 1876, Bro. Niccol, W.M., in the chair; Bros. Burns, as S.W.; Robinson, J.W.; Brock, M.O.; Reeves, S.O.; Hendry, acting J.O. There being no successful candidates in attendance the night was devoted to business. Bro. Burns was unanimously elected as W.M., and Bro. Wade, P.M., as Treasurer.

SWEDEN.

Dernierment à Stockholm, a été inaugurée avec un grand éclat une nouvelle loge de Francs-Maçons. La solennité a eu lieu dans la grande salle des chevaliers, qui peut contenir 1600 personnes, mais elle était à peine assez spacieuse, tant était grande l'affluence des membres de l'Ordre accourus à cette occasion, non seulement de la Suède, mais aussi de la Norvège, du Danemark, de l'Allemagne, de l'Angleterre, et de la France. A 7 heures est arrivé le Roi Oscar, accompagné du Prince Royal, qui peu de jours auparavant avait été reçu dans l'Ordre, et du Prince Jean de Glücksborg, frère du Roi du Danemark. Devant le Roi et les princes étaient portés sur un coussin les insignes des Francs-Maçons, et, à leur entrée, on a exécuté sur un orgue une marche solennelle qui a duré jusqu'à ce qu'ils eussent pris place sur les sièges qui leur étaient destinés. Après le discours d'ouverture, prononcé par le Roi, et un court aperçu, donné par M. Dahlfelt, de l'histoire de l'Ordre en Suède, on a chanté le chant national. A 11 heures on a servi dans la salle Johan un souper de 870 couverts.—Correspondance Scandinave.

MASONIC ANECDOTE OF THE LATE KING OF PRUSSIA.

The late King of Prussia was one of the most illustrious members of the Society of Free and Accepted Masons. He was taught at an early period of life to think the institution had a great tendency to promote charity, good fellowship, harmony, and brotherly love; and he resolved to become a Freemason as soon as a favourable occasion should offer. But he was obliged to wait a long time for it, for his father had conceived so unconquerable an aversion to Freemasons that he would not have hesitated to have put any one to death whom he should discover to have been instrumental in initiating the Prince Royal into the mysteries of the Craft. And such was the temper of the King, that he very probably would have been so enraged against his eldest son for entering into a society which he abhorred that he would have disinherited him. However, both the Prince and the Baron de Bielfeldt resolved to run all risks, and it was determined by the latter, who was one of His Royal Highness's gentlemen of the bed-chamber, and some other officers of his household, that at all events they would make him a Mason. They thought the Fair of Brunswick would afford a favourable opportunity for putting their scheme into execution, as there was always a great concourse of people in that town during the fair, and that a lodge might therefore be easily held there without giving people a reason to suspect the nature of the meeting. The Baron and his friends accordingly provided themselves with all the apparatus necessary for holding a lodge, and, having put them up in trunks, placed them in a waggon, which they attended in disguise. But an unlucky affair had like to have brought on a discovery from which all the parties concerned might have apprehended the most fatal consequences. The officers of the customs, placed at the gates of Brunswick, examined the waggon as it was passing the town, and finding a number of large candlesticks and other things used in the lodges of Freemasons, could not conceive for what purpose they were intended, and were going to seize them and the drivers, when one of the latter, with some presence of mind, said they were poor harmless jugglers, who were going to exhibit numerous curious tricks at the fair, and that the contents of the trunks in the waggon were the ornaments of their little stage, and the implements necessary for displaying their dexterity. This tale had the desired effect; the pretended jugglers were suffered to pass, and the Prince Royal arriving soon after incog., was admitted in one night, special gratia, to all the degrees of Masonry. The secret was very well kept by all the parties during the life of the Prince's father, for His Highness had the chance to lose a crown, and the other persons had lives to forfeit by the disclosure. They were, therefore, all deeply interested in observing a scrupulous silence on the subject. The Freemasons of the dominions of Prussia felt the benefit of having a brother in the person of a prince who, when he came to the crown, declared himself their protector, and ever after continued his favour to them during the whole course of his reign, while their brethren were persecuted by the King of Naples and the Elector Palatine, the former of whom imprisoned them, while the latter forbade them to hold lodges under the most severe penalties, and ordered all his officers, civil and military, who were Freemasons, under pain of being dismissed or cashiered, to deliver up to persons appointed to receive them the certificates of their admission into that society, and to give security that they would never attend any lodge in future.

SWEDENBORGIAN RITE.

A meeting of the Supreme Grand Lodge and Temple of the Swedenborgian Rite was held at the Freemasons' Hall, Manchester, on Saturday, January 13th, 1877. The warrant of constitution, signed by the Worshipful Bros. W. J. B. McLeod Moore, S. Grand Master; T. D. Harrington, S.S.G.W.; Geo. C. Longley, S.J.G.W., of the Supreme Grand Lodge and Temple for the Dominion of Canada, having been produced, the Supreme Grand Lodge and Temple for the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland was declared and proclaimed, and its officers were appointed as follows until the next election:—M.W. Bro. John Yarker, Sup. G.M., P.M. Emmanuel, 1, and Egyptian, 2; R.W. Bros. F. G. Irwin, Sup. S.G.W., W.M. Emmanuel, 1; C. Scott, Sup. J.G.W., J. W. Egyptian, 2; V.W. Bros. S. P. Leather, Sup. Grand Treas., S.W. Egyptian, 2; T. L. Shaw, Sup. Grand Reg., S.D. Egyptian, 2; K. R. H. Mackenzie, Grand Sec., J.D. Egyptian, 2; Hubert Thos. Frank Irwin, G. Dir. of Cers., J.W. Emmanuel, 1; W. Wynne Westcott, G.S.D., S.W. Emmanuel, 1; Thos. Wainman Holmes, G.J.D., W.M. St. John's, 3; Geo. Turner, G. Purst., W.M. Egyptian, 2; Benjamin Cox, Assist. G. Purst., S.D. Emmanuel, 1.

Some misapprehension having got afloat, it was considered desirable to state that although this rite had leading members in various rites, yet it was quite independent and interfered with no other rite whatever, but was a neutral ground to which all M.M.'s, but especially P.M.'s, were eligible, and that such a Constitution was unchangeable in the very nature of its beautiful and learned ceremonies, which formed a key to the writings of Dr. Geo. Oliver. Communications and suggestions from several brethren unable to attend were received.

The members were directed to be divided, and warrants to be issued to the Emmanuel Lodge and Temple, No. 1, Bristol; Egyptian, No. 2, Manchester; St. John's, Baidon, 3 (with 5 members).

The jewel and insignia (those used by the rite on the Continent of America) were adopted as follows:—A carbuncle set and radiated in gold, in the form of a sun, with the sacred name upon the face in Hebrew letters in gold, above it the square and compasses, the ribbon, suspended from a golden scroll, bearing the name and rank of the wearer, being as follows:—For Supreme Grand and Grand Officers, purple, bordered with gold; Past Masters, blue, bordered with gold; W. Masters, bordered with silver; Fraternity, plain blue. To the sun is suspended, in America, a porchway, formed of triangular stones, of red, blue, and green, approached by three steps of gold. Apron of white lambskin with triangular flap; Supreme and Grand Officers, bordered with purple with deep fringe of gold; Past Masters, bordered with blue with a narrow fringe of gold; Masters, bordered with blue, with a narrow fringe of silver; that of the Fraternity bordered with a narrow blue edging. In the centre, for all grades, the all-seeing eye, with a radiance, and over it the name and rank of the wearer and the body to which he belongs.

The following scale of fees were passed and ordered: To S.G. Lodge, warrants £3, certificates 7s. 6d. each, (of which 2s. 6d. might be paid to a Grand Secretary for preparation and registration); one shilling each member annual subscription. The minimum fee for admission by each lodge to be £1, inclusive of the amount payable to S.G.L. for certificate and registration.

A form intended for certificate having been prepared, the same was submitted and ordered to be lithographed; it was ordered also that the seals of the S. Gd. Lodge be cut, and the Constitutions printed as the funds of the S. Gd. Lodge would allow.

This closed the business of the rite.

BRO. SIR GEORGE ELLIOT.

The announcement that H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W. Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of English Freemasons, has been pleased to appoint Bro. Sir George Elliot, Bart. M.P., to be Provincial Grand Master of the Eastern Division of South Wales, in place of the late lamented Bro. Theodore Mansel Malbot, will give the greatest satisfaction to the general body of Freemasons in South Wales. Bro. Sir George Elliot has a seat in the province, namely, Aberaman House, Aberdare, and his interests are closely bound up with its prosperity. The services of Bro. Sir George to the cause of Freemasonry have been neither few nor inconsiderable. Since his initiation, many years ago, in Durham he has taken an active part in Masonic matters. When the brethren of Stratford-upon-Avon had decided upon resigning the warrant of the Bard of Avon Lodge, Bro. J. C. Parkinson, P.G.D. England, P.D. Prov. G.M. Middlesex, arranged that, instead of the warrant being given up, it should be transferred to the province of Middlesex, and this was done with the consent and approval of the P.G.M. of Warwickshire, Bro. Lord Leigh, and the P.G.M. of Middlesex, Bro. Colonel Burdett. Bro. Parkinson was the first Worshipful Master of the lodge after the transfer, and Bro. Sir George Elliot was the Senior Warden. Bro. Sir George was subsequently elected to and served the office of W.M. of the Bard of Avon Lodge. Soon afterwards Bro. Sir George Elliot, the Earl of Limerick, and J. C. Parkinson founded the Bard of Avon Royal Arch Chapter in the Province of Middlesex, themselves acting as the first three Principals. Bro. Sir George Elliot has taken an active interest in the Masonic Charities, and is vice-patron of the three benevolent institutions. In the chancel of the church of the Holy Trinity at Stratford-upon-Avon, immediately opposite to the effigy of Shakespeare, erected by the poet's daughter, Mrs. Hall, is a marble tablet recording that the stained glass window above it was presented to the church by the Bard of Avon Lodge of Freemasons of Warwickshire. A very interesting meeting was held at Stratford-upon-Avon some three years ago commemorate the putting up of the tablet, on which occasion Lord Leigh opened a special Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire at the Town Hall of Stratford to receive a deputation from London, consisting of Bro. Sir George Elliot as Worshipful Master of the Bard of Avon Lodge, Aeneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar of the Order, and many other leading Masonic authorities, who had come from London specially for the occasion. The banquet was held at the Red Horse, Stratford-upon-Avon—celebrated by Washington Irving—at which Bro. Sir George Elliot presided, and a large and brilliant party attended. On the resignation by Bro. Parkinson of the office of Deputy P.G.M. of Middlesex, Bro. Sir George Elliot was appointed as his successor. In addition to his services to Craft Masonry, Bro. Sir George has also filled positions in the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and in the Religious and Military Order of the Temple, he being a Past Preceptor of the Bard of Avon Encampment, of which he was one of the founders, and P.M.W.S. of the Bard of Avon Rose Croix Chapter, of which he was likewise one of the founders. Bro. Sir George is likewise a member of the St. David's Lodge, Aberdare. In spite of his many engagements, he, Bro. Sir George has shown himself not simply an ornamental Mason, but he has taken a real and practical interest in the Order, and, so far as he has been able, has availed himself of his opportunities to strengthen Masonry and to extend its influence. On his retirement from the chair of the Bard of Avon Lodge, Bro. Sir George was presented with a very beautiful gold medal, designed by Wyon, the eminent engraver, giving on one side a bust of Shakespeare, taken from the before-named effigy in the church of the Holy Trinity at Stratford-upon-Avon. Bro. Sir George Elliot has just returned from his annual tour in Egypt. He arrived on Saturday at the Hotel Bristol, Paris, and will be in town in the course of a day or two to attend his Parliamentary duties.—Western Mail.

Reviews.

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S LODGE, No. 259.

We have been favoured with a copy of this very interesting memorial, of a most distinguished lodge. We have perused it carefully and with great pleasure, and feel strongly that a great debt of gratitude is owing to its able and anonymous editor, for a work, which though no doubt to him a real "labour of love," must have entailed on him a great sacrifice of time and trouble. The little work is a model in its way, in that it is neither too prolix nor too curt, but gives us a simple history of the lodge from its own minutes, and also a list of its members from the beginning, annotated with careful notes, by the accurate and painstaking editor. We say, that this little edition is a model for other lodges in its way—and so it is, for it is a good pattern—for other records, which some equally competent and conscientious Secretary might edit, alike for the information of his lodge, and the aid of Masonic Students, to whom such trustworthy details are alike most important and invaluable. Great thanks are due from all to the able editor of this little lodge history, for very pleasant pages, and a most interesting narrative, and we trust that we shall hail many more similar records of our English lodge history, all marked by the same simplicity of expression, the same lucidity of narration, and the same attention to details, which though often seemingly unimportant, are most essential for the purposes of reference and authenticity. It seems that the Prince of Wales's Lodge was constituted on August 20th, 1787, by warrant from the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Duke of Cumberland, and on the 20th January, 1792, H.R.H. George Prince of Wales, then M.W.G.M. of the Order, was pleased to appoint Genl. Hulse W. Deputy Master, and their Royal Highnesses the Dukes of York and Clarence, Wardens of the lodge. In 1823 the Duke of York was installed W.M. by his brother, the Duke of Sussex, G.M., in consequence of the accession of His Majesty George IV. to the throne, and continued W.M. until his lamented death in 1827, when H.R.H. the Duke of Clarence succeeded him, who was installed at a Special Grand Lodge at the Thatched House Tavern, February 22nd, 1827, by the Duke of Sussex, G.M. On the accession of King William IV., the Duke of Sussex took the chair on the 21st August, 1831, and continued so until his death in 1843. In 1874, H.R.H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, was regularly installed as W.M., January 16th, and on the 24th March the same year H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught and Strathearn was initiated by his Royal brother. Among the oldest members of the lodge was the well-known Chevalier Bartholomew Ruspini, and on looking down the long roll of its members we see many most distinguished men, who were alike an ornament to Masonry and to society. Among them we may notice Field Marshal Sir Samuel Hulse, General Lord Lake, Bro. Thomas Dunkerley, General Sir John Doyle, General Paoli, the Earl of Wigtown, and the Earl of Mountmorris, Waller Rodwell Wright, the Duke of Roxburgh, the Prince of Moliterno, Sir Wm. Beechey, Rev. G. H. Glasse, Charles Mathews, sen. and jun., Baron de Roebeck, Wm. H. White (formerly G.S.), Sir Alexander Johnstone, the Rt. Hon. George Canning, Sir F. G. Fowke, Sir John Scott Lillie, Dr. Granville, Lord Yarborough, Godfrey Higgins, Lord John Spencer Churchill, Lord Monson, Lord Saltoun, Dr. H. Beaumont Leeson, Thomas Henry Hall, Rev. Joseph Bowles, Lord Ellesmere, Sir Wm. Napier, Sir Charles Forbes, Thomas Fenn, George Plucknett, the Maharajah Duleep Singh, Robert Grey, John Anthony Rucker, Rev. Arthur Frazer, Sir George Elliot, J. C. Parkinson, Lord Balfour of Burleigh, Dr. F. W. Ramsay, the Earl of Onslow, Sir A. Woods (Garter King of Arms), G. W. Elliott, M.P. We have of course missed very many names of worthy brethren and distinguished Masons, but the extracts we have given here are sufficient to point out the interesting nature of the work. At p. 31 there is a most striking ceremonial recorded, when, at a special Grand Lodge, February 27th, 1827, a deputation from the lodge presented to the G.M. on the throne, the jewel of the W.M., on the death of the Duke of York. We thank once more the able editor for his most interesting little "brochure," and we trust that his laudable efforts may serve as an example to other brethren to follow in the modest and most successful track which he has so happily marked out for lodge historians.

DICK RADCLIFFE AND CO., NURSERY GARDENERS, &C., 129, HIGH HOLBORN.

We have received and read the little "Illustrated List," put out by this firm with great pleasure and interest. It is an admirable catalogue, containing a large and extensive list of well-assorted seeds and plants. We would advise our readers, interested in gardens and their productions, to whom this book will be found invaluable, to obtain a copy direct from Bro. Radcliffe, at the small cost of sixpence. The horticultural decorations and illustrations are ably got up. Bro. Radcliffe has had the honour of receiving numerous prize medals for the excellence of his seeds, and has also been very favourably noticed for his magnificent floral and horticultural decorations at the metropolitan theatres (a very good specimen is at the present time to be seen at the Queen's Theatre). Bro. Radcliffe has also decorated with marked success, tables, etc., at several Masonic banquets, picnics, &c. We would further add, having a fair knowledge of gardening, that had we a garden to make or stock, we should say to Bro. Dick Radcliffe and Co., "Take the matter in hand for us," and we should have no fear of the result.

The Tanner's Journal states that kid, as a material for ladies' bonnets, is among the latest Paris novelties.

Masonic and General Tidings.

CONSECRATION OF THE ALDERSGATE LODGE.—By a typographical error in our report of the above last week Bro. Hervey, Grand Secretary, is stated to have "read," instead of "delivered," an address.

On Saturday, at a meeting of subscribers held at Norwich, it was resolved to build an entirely new hospital for Norwich instead of enlarging the old one. The Prince of Wales has promised an additional donation of £200, and £100 for the Princess, and out of the £35,000 required about £30,000 is already promised.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, with Miss Florence White and other members of the Lord Mayor's family, attended the Stratford Artillery Volunteer Ball on Thursday, which was also patronised by Bro. Alderman and Sheriff Hadley and Bro. Sheriff East.

ALDERSGATE BALL.—This ball took place at the Freemasons' Tavern, on Wednesday, and was a highly successful gathering, being largely attended by the inhabitants of the Ward of Aldersgate, their families, and friends. Alderman Staples presided at the ball supper.

Early in the Spring will be published a new volume of poems in the Romaic by the Ionian Poet, Bro. J. Dionysius Loverdo. It will be divided into two parts, the first containing original compositions; the second translations from Shakespeare, Burns, Cowper, Dryden, Moore, &c.

The new regulation jewels for Past Kings and Companions under the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Ireland are now ready at the Masonic Show Rooms, Little Britain.

We have much pleasure in recording the fact that Bro. F. A. Philbrick, Q.C. has been elected a bencher of the Middle Temple.

A meeting was held at the Mansion House on Wednesday, presided over by the Lord Mayor, at which a scheme was discussed with the object of maintaining and preserving the Crystal Palace for the use of the people. Amongst the speakers were Lord Dunsany, Lord Elcho, M.P., Mr. Scott Russell, Mr. Thomas Hughes, Mr. George Howell, and Bro. R. J. Simpson. It was resolved that, in view of the great public advantages of the Palace, it was desirable that it should be maintained, and a committee was appointed to communicate with the directors.

DEATH OF A FAMOUS SHORTHORN.—The Earl of Bective has had the misfortune to lose by tuberculosis the famous shorthorn Teuth Duchess of Geneva, which was purchased by his lordship at the New York Mills sale, U.S., in 1873, for over 6000 guineas. The Duchess has left of her breed one bull and three heifers, the youngest of which is stated to be especially worthy of her handsome dam.

ACCIDENT TO THE DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.—The Duke of Connaught, who is staying with the Earl of Listowel, at Connamore, sustained a slight injury while riding to the meet of the Dullhallow hounds near Mallow. He was accompanied by Lady Listowel, and at Ballyhooley Bridge her ladyship's horse became restive, and lashed out, striking the Prince on the leg. The injury was not serious, but it was considered prudent that he should not hunt, and he returned to Connamore.

ERA LODGE (No. 1423).—The installation meeting takes place this afternoon at the King's Arms Hotel, Hampton Court. A full report will appear in our next.

The Consecration of the Covent Garden Lodge, No. 1614, is fixed for Tuesday next, the 13th inst., at Ashley's Hotel, Maiden Lane, Covent Garden. The ceremonies will be performed by Bro. W. Watson, P.G. Steward. The officers designate are: Bro. John Courts, P.G.P., W.M.; E. Jacobs, S.W.; and A. J. Ireton, J.W.

Bro. Edward Moss, who died on Dec. 8th last, and whose will was proved on the 10th ult., bequeathed, amongst many other legacies, one to the Zetland Lodge of Freemasons of Montreal, of which deceased was for twenty-five years Treasurer.

The Town Council of Bath has unanimously passed a resolution approving of an invitation being sent to the Prince and Princess of Wales to visit the city in June, on the occasion of the Centennial Exhibition of the Bath and West of England Society and Southern Counties Association.

We are asked to state that the meetings of The Great City Lodge of Instruction, No. 1426, will in future be held at Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Basinghall-street, every Thursday evening at half-past six.

BOW AND BROMLEY INSTITUTE.—On Monday evening last (as was announced in our columns last week), at Bro. Seaton's Fenchurch-street Tavern, the ball was taken for one Life Governorship, value £10 10s., and one Life Subscribership, value £5 5s., a portion of the proceeds of a Concert given by Bro. Charles Blain, at the Bow and Bromley Institute on the 14th Dec. last, in aid of our Masonic Institutions, the result being as follows: Bro. W. W. Lash (Mount Lebanon Lodge, No. 73), one Life Governorship; Bro. C. H. Webb (Sincerity Lodge, No. 174), one Life Subscribership. The following brethren were present:—Bros. P. M. Austin, Appleby, Blasby, Bennet, F. Brown, A. H. Brown, Baxter C. Blain, F. Fraser, J. Fraser, Gardener, Hill, P. M. Moore, and W. J. Rawley.

Bro. George Tedder's Annual Evening Concert will take place on Monday, February 12th, 1877, at the Public Hall, Erith. Bro. Tedder has secured the assistance of the following eminent artists: Madame Thaddeus Wells, Miss Bessie Stroud, Miss Roper, Miss Emily Dones; Bros. Wilford Morgan, Montem Smith, Chaplin Henry, and Bro. Farquharson.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEB. 10, 1877.

THE EXCLUSION OF HEBREWS FROM FREEMASONRY.

This question, which has created naturally some little commotion in Germany during the last twelve months, has come to the surface, amongst us in England by the customary conditions, so to say, of reflex action. A distinguished lodge at Birmingham has taken official cognizance of the subject, and we have duly recorded in our pages its formal resolution with respect to it. The present position of affairs appears to be shortly this:—One of the German Grand Lodges, the "Grand Countries Lodge," as we call it, the "Grosse Landes Loge von Deutschland," as they term it, we believe, has declined to pass a resolution admitting Hebrews to Freemasonry, in fact, making Christianity a test of admission. By its present regulation no Hebrew can be admitted, or, rather, no one who is not professedly a Christian. We say we believe that this is the actual condition of affairs, though we note that other Grand Lodges in Germany are credited with the same principles of action. Now we shall be glad to be set right if we are wrong, but we fancy, though "nous sommes mortels," that we have stated the position of affairs correctly. If more than one German Grand Lodge lays down the same requisite of admission, let us know the fact, and at any rate let us try and "shoe the right horse." Now we do not deny that all independent Grand Lodges have a right to lay down for themselves, their own principles of teaching and action, but then it is equally clear that other Grand Lodges have an equal liberty to refuse inter-Masonic communication, so to say, with those whose words and acts appear to be inconsistent with what they deem, rightly or wrongly, the fundamental landmarks of Freemasonry. Without then denying to any German Grand Lodge its full liberty of action and independence of position, we feel that we have a right to ask that our own Grand Lodge shall be consistent with its own teaching, and abide manfully, if peaceably by its own principles. We have declared distinctly, since 1813, that we accept all except the atheist and the libertine, and on this broad basis we work, and on this liberality of sentiment and practice, our friendly alliance with other Grand bodies must be based. But we do not see that we can fairly go further than this, and we somewhat doubt whether, beyond stating our principles clearly and forcibly, our Grand Lodge can take any action in the matter. At the same time we say this, we deplore sincerely that acrid intolerance which seeks to exclude Hebrews from Freemasonry. Independently of the great breach of our universal law of toleration, thus committed, which does despite to the entire teaching of our great Order, for our Hebrew brethren Freemasonry has peculiar attractions, and an abiding charm. The scriptural and Hebrew colouring of our Masonic tradition, must have always a special interest for the Hebrew mind, keenly alive to its own national souvenirs, and the greatness and glories of the Solomonic Temple. But even more than this, as we know ourselves, our Hebrew brethren constitute a most important, zealous, and cultivated body in our midst, always energetic for Freemasonry, and animated by most friendly sensibilities and benevolent aspirations. Indeed, it has often struck us, that they set us all a very good example, in their unsectarian charity, especially as regards our Girls' and Boys' Schools. In the nature of things and for other special causes, the overwhelming majority of our pupils are the orphans of Christian parents, and yet few are so liberal and so persevering in their support of our two great charities, as our Hebrew brethren, who in the truest spirit of Masonry and philanthropy, do not stop to ask what a man believes, but seek to hold out the kind and sustaining hand of fraternal goodwill, to the friendless, the orphan, the suffering, and the destitute. We all of us equally are aware, that among our own Masonic friends, we count many very excellent Hebrew brethren, and we cannot, we repeat, sufficiently regret the fact, that on any ground whatever, any system of exclusion should be perpetuated, against those many kindly disposed and warm-hearted persons, excellent citizens, good men and true, simply because they are Hebrews. Those of us must be very inattentive readers of history, who have not yet realized, the important part played by the Hebrew race in the annals of the world, in the past, and the part they will probably yet play in the future, in the good providence of God. Those days of intolerance and ignorance are, happily for ever, over, which sought to put a badge of ignominy on all their "tribes." In the eyes of reflective faith and educated understanding, they are still, remember the natural "olive tree" of all history, sacred and profane, while all the rest of mankind are the "wild" grafts. Toleration and charity, kindness and fraternal goodwill have long since learned to peruse many painful pages of the world's history, nay, we must add, of Christian intolerance towards Hebrews, with feelings of sorrow and humiliation. And no one, let us trust, no Freemason, no enlightened man, can hear of the cruel treatment of the Hebrew race, in any part of the civilized world, without deep regret and indignation. In 1877 we deplore, we repeat, to have to record a continuation of the vindictive spirit of the dark ages, and we trust soon to learn that wiser counsels have prevailed, and that the exclusion of the Hebrews from Freemasonry under any governing lodge in Germany, or any other nation in the civilized world, will have become an utter impossibility for the future. We shall point out in another article next week one of the causes of this regrettable state of affairs, and which, in our humble opinion, requires immediate removal and rectification.

THE ATTACK ON BRO. HERVEY BY THE MONDE MAÇONNIQUE.

By the Monde Maçonique for January, it seems that Bro. Caubet is not the writer of the article complained of in a previous number of the Freemason, which contained expressions alike very uncourteous and un-Masonic, as we thought then, and think still, towards our valued Grand Secretary. No, it appears that the actual writer of them is a Bro. Adrien Grimaux, or Griment, the name is spelt both ways in the Monde Maçonique, who is, we may observe, "en passant" no connection of the "Grimaud" of the "Vingt Ans Après." We ought to have looked to the list of contents, for there, undoubtedly, Bro. Grimaux's name covers the matter from page 342 to page 352, but we did not, and seeing Bro. Caubet's name at the conclusion of the article "Revision," &c., which begins page 352, we too hastily concluded that he had written both articles. We have therefore to express our regret to Bro. Caubet for having credited him erroneously with remarks, equally unwise in tone and temper, but surely, as he seems entirely to approve of them, the old maxim applies, "Volenti non fit injuria." Any further expression of regret is therefore superfluous. We propose to offer a few fraternal kindly comments in our next issue on the two remarkable productions which are signed by Bros. Caubet and Grimaux, and appear at pages 403 and 406 respectively, in the January number of the Monde Maçonique. We can only deplore the fact, now too patent, that Bros. Caubet, Grimaux, and others are leading deliberately the Grand Orient of France into the "Caudine Forks" of hopeless isolation.

A SPURIOUS SO-CALLED GRAND LODGE IN LONDON.

By the Monde Maçonique of January it appears that there is a spurious and illicit body in London, terming itself "La Grande Loge des Philadelphes et de la Concorde Reunis," at the "Spreat Eagle" [query "Spread?"] "6, Charles-street, Middlesex Hospital, a Londres." We have previously, indeed, heard of a so-called lodge of the same name, which Bro. Caubet stated had not a French warrant, and which Bro. Buss informed us had not an English warrant, and which clearly had no right to term itself a Masonic lodge. But now, lo and behold, it has blossomed into a full blown "Grande Loge." As we know of no Grand Lodge in England but that presided over by the Prince of Wales, and certainly do not understand why a French lodge can be meeting in London with no warrant at all, or venture to call itself a "Grande Loge," we think it right to direct the attention of the proper Masonic authorities to the subject. We regret that the editor of so respectable a journal as the Monde Maçonnique should have permitted such an impudent assumption of the name of a Grand Lodge to appear in his pages, for it is, in fact, a great "manqué d'égards" towards the English Grand Lodge, the more so as he knows as well as we do that such a lodge in England is spurious and illicit, and that any body of foreign Masons taking such a name, not only infringe the laws of the land, but commit a great act of impertinence towards the English Grand Lodge. A Bro. Valleton claims to be the "Orateur" of this remarkable body, see pp. 432, 433, Monde Maçonnique for January, and above all has, we regret to say it, the effrontery to issue his illegal statement, as he says, "dans l'intérêt des Maçons Anglais." We venture to add that there is no English Freemason who will not at once repudiate indignantly any connection whatever with this spurious body of so-called Freemasons, but who are not and cannot be anything but a clandestine and unwarranted and unwarrantable meeting of non-Masons, or anything else in fact, you like, against all Masonic law and authority.

NOT TRUE!

As we thought at the time, the statement of the Westminster Gazette as to the admission of Prince Louis Napoleon into Freemasonry at Rome by Prince Humbert turns out to be a pure myth. We commend to our readers' notice a little correspondence on the subject, which we publish in another column, by which it will clearly appear that, through the kind intermediation of our Bro. J. C. Parkinson, we have authority from Rome to say that the whole story is a weak invention of the enemy. Supposing that the statement had been accurate in itself, and that Prince Louis Napoleon had been admitted into Freemasonry, it was a matter, after all, which only concerned himself and his family and friends. But to invent a direct falsehood, and then to ground on that falsehood an attack upon the Empress Eugénie and her son, is an example of bad "form," and of worse faith, almost without precedent. Without precedent, did we say? Alas! it is that peculiar feature of Ultramontanism which has always filled the thoughtful with alarm and humiliation, we mean its utter "unscrupulousness" alike in word and work, when some end is to be gained, some result achieved, as is idly supposed or profanely asserted, A.M.D.G. Especially as regards Freemasons is this hyper-illegality of sentiment and action most remarkable. From the first condemnation of Pope Clement in 1738, when the "houses were to be destroyed" where the lodges met, and Freemasons themselves were to be seized by the Inquisition, and handed over to the "secular arm" until this hour everything is apparently allowable for Roman Catholics to say of or impute to Freemasons. According to some Ultramontane scribes, there is no crime they have not committed, no evil that they would not do, and as a proof of what educated Roman Catholics believe, too, of our innocuous Order, we recommend our readers to peruse an interesting letter by Bro. Ververga, which appears amongst our correspondence this week, as illustrative of the subject we are treating upon. As it is, we have this consolation, that as a general rule any Ultramontane statement as to Freemasonry just now is not only a "canard," "lame," and "sauvage" for the most part, too, but it is very lucky if it is not something worse, an invention so utterly devoid of truth for instance, that we can only regard it as an emanation from the "father of lies." Dreadful position for a religious body to take. Not only to be unable to "realize the abstract importance of truth," but to lie, either purely for lying sake, or in support of that vile theory, that the end justifies the means, however bad or base those means may be per se. As Freemasons let us not imitate our unreasoning and uncharitable assailants, and let us never forget that one of the greatest attributes of good Freemasons under all circumstances and in all contingencies is Truth.

NEWS FROM SWEDEN.

In another column our readers will perceive that, according to the Correspondance Scandinave, a Stockholm paper of some circulation, and very friendly to Freemasonry, by an extract of which we give, in the French, as we received it, that a new lodge has been recently inaugurated at Stockholm, by the King in person, and in the presence of a large concourse of brethren from Norway, Denmark, Germany, England, and France, as well as Sweden itself—a truly cosmopolitan gathering. The Crown Prince had been initiated a few days before, and was also present, as well as Prince John of Glucksburg, brother of the King of Denmark. Bro. Dahlfeldt gave an oration, and after a most successful gathering 870 brethren sat down to supper. Well, amid the violence of some unreasoning fanatics and the anathemata of others, it is pleasant for us to note that now, as of old, the great men of the world are not ashamed "our mysteries to put a good grace on," much less to hear themselves named "a Free and an Accepted Mason." So let us all take abuse and illogical accusation calmly, and join one and all in the good old chorus, "Prosper the Craft."

HOW CAN WE IMPROVE MASONRY IN SCOTLAND?

SEC. II.—THE DAUGHTER LODGES.
To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Masonry is not a benefit society; every aspirant seeks, or ought to seek, admission to our portals from a sincere desire to benefit his fellow creatures; "he should be prompted by no mercenary or unworthy motive."

The Craft has, it is true, institutions to assist the widows and aged, and to educate its orphans in many parts of the world; but this is not a benefit society; with them all who join do so for ulterior pecuniary gain. With us our charities are to relieve true and real distress brought on by no fault of our own; we may any one of us (whatever our fortune or position in life) be in a moment reduced to the utmost depths of distress—banks in which our money is placed may fail—funds may go down or utterly collapse—interests on investments may cease—large business firms may fail, and carry us down with them.

Again, even when we take the open-handed charities supported by our Order, we may, aye, and do find, that the real cases of distress, the unwilling applicants for relief, far exceed the funds at our disposal, and many are sent empty away.

"Masonry, then, is not a benefit society;" it relieves real distress wherever and whenever it can do so; but even then falls far short in its duty. "A candidate should not seek to join Masonry for pecuniary or trade advantages."

Masonry is open, however, to every good and worthy man, whatever his state or position in life may be: peasant, prince, and noble are equally eligible; the unworthy noble is refused, the honest peasant is accepted; men of all languages, nations, religious beliefs, are eligible for our Order, provided only they believe in the One True God, T.G.A.O.T.U.

Masonry being such as this, it remains for us, its professors, to welcome all good and honest men, whosoever and whosoever they may be, but to exclude the ignoble, the base, the sordid, the slanderer, the criminal, as far as lays in our power. "We cannot be too strict in estimating and examining the character of any and every aspirant for our favours." But for a lodge to be in a position to refuse the unworthy, it must be financially able to receive with open arms those alone that are worthy. It has been for many years the bane of Masonry in Scotland, that lodges, "to keep up their funds," accept one and all that come forward, the entrance fees being the sole funds for the maintenance of the lodge. Members even in many cases go so far as to solicit their friends to join, and yet the candidate, according to our rules, should be perfectly unbiassed by solicitation.

I do not say that this state of matters is confined to Scotland alone—far be it from me to do so; but I do say that here this flagrant dereliction of duty is too rampant, and yet the vice is not ineradicable. In the province with which I am connected lodges do not depend on fees received from intrants for their funds, and there are several other provinces and lodges in Scotland with which I am acquainted similarly situated. What can be done in some should therefore be done in all.

The principles that I would inculcate, therefore, are these:—

A. That Grand Lodge should make it compulsory on all daughter lodges to exact annual subscriptions (however small) from all its members.

B. That Grand Lodge should increase the minimum fee exigible for intrants, and re-apportion the dues to Grand Lodge Benevolent Fund and Provincial Grand Lodges.

The amount of the annual subscription for its members is the province of each separate lodge; the cognate question, the minimum or maximum fee for intrants, depends on Grand Lodge. The same principles, however, must guide both the daughter lodges and the Grand Lodge in fixing their respective scales. A daughter lodge must consider its members and their position in life; it must calculate what its annual expenses for Masonic purposes are likely to be, and fix its annual charge to cover such expenditure, even if only 2s. 6d. per head per annum. The bye-law that no brother shall vote or speak in lodge if in arrears of his annual subscription should be strictly enforced.

No brother should be eligible for office (pace other qualifications) in Grand Lodge, or Provincial Grand Lodge, unless a subscribing member of his mother lodge or some other one holding under Grand Lodge of Scotland.

These are questions more particularly belonging to Grand Lodge, but, as they also affect the daughter lodges, had better be considered at once, before taking up questions relevant solely to Grand Lodge. Grand Lodge under the present system (see Constitutions, cap. xx., sec. iv.) enacts that no candidate shall be initiated for less than £1 1s. 6d., exclusive of Grand Lodge dues viz., 5s. 6d. for registration (of which 1s. goes to the Benevolent Fund), and 5s. for diploma; therefore every intrant has to pay not less than £1 11s. 6d., the sum of 10s. 6d. has to be paid by the lodge Treasurer to Grand Lodge on each intrant, irrespective of fees exigible by the daughter lodge, not less than £1. 1s. 6d.

I would propose, then, 1st, that Grand Lodge should make annual subscriptions in daughter lodges compulsory; 2nd, that the minimum fee for initiation should be raised to £2 2s. 6d., inclusive of dues to Grand Lodge, Benevolent Fund and Prov. Grand Lodge, viz., £1 5s. 6d. minimum to daughter lodge, 7s. 6d. to Grand Lodge for registration (of which 2s. 6d. should be remitted to the Provincial Grand Lodge), 5s. 6d. for diploma, and 5s. 6d. to Fund of Benevolence.

£2. 2s. is not an unnecessarily high minimum to exact from any aspirant for our benefits, it is also within the reach of any honest and industrious man, who does not seek personal or pecuniary advantage, in fact who wishes to enter Masonry in a proper spirit.

The question of annual subscriptions (however small) will tend to raise the financial as well as the Masonic position of daughter lodges, and relieve them from being compelled to receive, simply for their fees, one and all who may apply.

Grand Lodge, the Benevolent Fund, Provincial Grand Lodges, and every daughter lodge would then be strengthened, and the moral tone of Masonry improved.

I would add a few words more as to annual subscriptions to prevent mistakes: "Any brother who, from pressure of circumstances, is unable to continue his subscription, any brother leaving the district in which his lodge is held, and who then withdraws his annual money, is still a Mason, and exercises all Masonic rights; he simply loses membership of the lodge as regards voting and speaking, and loses for the time the qualifications (if he has any others) of membership of Grand Lodge, or Provincial Grand Lodge, but can always regain his status by being replaced on the list of subscribing members of his mother or any other lodge, or in case of going to another town or county by joining the lodge of his new home."

SEC. III.—ADMINISTRATIVE.

Composition of Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodges.

a (See cap. i., sec. 1). The Grand Lodge of Scotland consists of Grand Office Bearers, Past Grand Masters, Prov. Grand Masters, Right Worshipful Masters, and their Wardens or Proxy Masters, and Wardens of every lodge holding under Scottish Constitutions.

b (See cap. xii., sec. 1). The Provincial Grand Lodge shall consist of the Provincial Grand Master and all office bearers (excepting Inner Guard and Tyler), and the Masters and Wardens and Immediate Past Masters of the several lodges in the province.

In Grand Lodge a regular annual test of membership both to Grand Lodge and also Benevolent Fund exists (see appendices A and K); many Provincial Grand Lodges also have a test of membership, but this, as in the case of daughter lodges, should be rendered compulsory; the addition (lately given) of Immediate Past Masters to Provincial Grand Lodges has been a great boon, inasmuch as it has increased the income and working powers thereof.

Grand Lodge and Provincial Grand Lodges being the ruling powers of the Craft, none but those duly qualified should be members of each or either; as in Grand Lodge so in the Provincial, all Past Grand Officers should remain members so long as all fees to Provincial Grand Lodge and a daughter lodge are paid, wearing also a distinctive mark on their aprons to denote their past rank.

As to cap. xx., sec. 6. as to duration of time between granting degrees, the law should be strictly enforced, and the wording altered, so that no dispensation should be given save by the Provincial Grand Master, his deputy or substitute, and that only at the written request of and duly signed by the Right Worshipful Master and the two Wardens of the petitioning lodge.

The proposed 2s. per head on intrants in revised scale of dues to Grand Lodge, which comes to the Provincial Grand Lodge, should be the nucleus of a Provincial Benevolent Fund.

Duplicate returns of all intrants, affiliations, office-bearers for the ensuing years, and also of subscribing members, should be made annually by all lodges to their respective Prov. G. Lodge. Extended powers should be given to Provincial Grand Lodges, to act as courts of first instance in all Masonic cases within their jurisdiction, with appeal, if necessary, to Grand Lodge. In the case of Provincial Grand Lodges I would extend the membership under qualification as to fees, &c., as above, to all Past Masters and all Past Wardens that have been duly installed and served their offices for the appointed time.

At all Quarterly Communications of Grand Lodge not less than six Grand Stewards, and of Provincial Grand Lodges not less than two Provincial Grand Stewards should be told off to be in waiting at the entrance of Grand Lodge to assist the Grand Tyler in admitting brethren from the provinces, and to prove that they are de facto R.W.M.'s, Wardens, Past Masters, Proxy Masters, and Wardens, who seek entrance, and are thereby entitled to vote and speak.

This could be arranged by a roster for duty being kept by the President of Grand Stewards.

SEC. IV.—PROXY MASTERS AND WARDENS, AND PAST MASTERS.

We must always hold in view the great landmark of our Order, "that the three who rule the lodge" are the Master and his two Wardens; this is the basis on which all Grand Lodges were formed. But in Scotland, when the Grand Lodge there was instituted as the ruling power of the Craft it was found that distances being long and locomotion difficult and expensive, few could attend, and that the country lodges were virtually unrepresented, it was therefore enacted that all lodges that could not and would not attend the regular meetings should send proxies to represent them, but as then arranged, no other qualification was required of these proxies than that they should be Master Masons duly registered on Grand Lodge books, so that Grand Lodge had almost got into the hands of those who had never been "rulers of the Craft" at all. Often have I known of cases where a candidate was raised on the Saturday evening, and on the Monday the same young brother was sitting in Grand Lodge voting and speaking on subjects of which he could know little or nothing; this, however, of late years has been greatly ameliorated, but even yet a considerable number of the members have not held offices in daughter lodges, and therefore are not "rulers of the Craft."

By turning back to my first article you will see the qualification I propose for proxies. This proxy system, I am sorry to say, had got so engrained in the Scottish mind, that a few years ago, when it was tried to add Past Masters as a component part of Grand Lodge, the motion failed, but now I see signs that it may not be so impossible a question as it has been. On looking over the Grand Lodge Roll, I see a great number of country lodges elect to send their own R.W.M. and Wardens, and do not grant proxies again, a large portion of the Craft see that it is high time to put our house in order, there are signs of our colonies setting up Grand Lodges for themselves, Masonry in the provinces is slowly but really improving, a more healthy grasp is being taken of the aims and intentions of Masonry; so that while keeping on duly qualified proxies for the benefit of the more distant lodges, I think it will not be impossible to strengthen our deliberative and Masonic, but also our financial power in Grand Lodge, and throughout the country.

SEC. V.—FUND OF BENEVOLENCE.

I now come to my last question, though it is one of the "chief landmarks" of Freemasonry. Our Fund of Benevolence is supported by the following dues, viz., 1s. on each intrant, bringing at the most £200 per annum, and fees of Grand Officers and members of Grand Lodge, with interest on savings that are deposited, in all a very little over £700 per annum, as per Table II.

Allowing for the tithe that is each year invested, very little remains for relieving distress. So much is this the case that it is a rare thing to hear of more than £10 being given to an individual case.

TABLE II.
OLD SCALE.

1. Grand Officers and Grand Stewards.....	£153 13 6
2. Lodges in Edinburgh, Proxies, R.W.M.'s, &c., &c. ....	254 13 0
3. Intrants, say 4000 at 1s. ....	200 0 0
4. Interest on deposits .....	108 0 0
	£716 6 6

PROPOSED SCALE.

1. Grand Officers and Grand Stewards.....	£153 13 6
2. Lodges in Edinburgh, Proxies, R.W.M.'s, &c., &c. ....	263 13 0
3. Intrants, say 4000 at 5s. ....	1000 0 0
4. Interests on deposits .....	108 0 0
5. 500 P.M.'s and P.G. Officers at 5s. each	125 0 0
	£1650 6 6

Note. Addition of £934.

In the latter case either donations of £30 could be given (a real boon, for to any one in deep distress £5 or £10 can be of little avail), or a sum could be given annually to the "Proposed Scottish Masonic Benevolent Institution."

In conclusion, I would simply say, 1st, the prosperity of the daughter lodges must influence the prosperity of Grand Lodge in preventing arrears,—the arrears of Grand Lodge are its great stumbling block; the excess of expenditure over receipts is mainly due to this deadlock of arrears. Until the excess of expenditure can be stopped and matters arranged on a firm financial basis, no hope can be held out of arranging for consolidating the "debt and floating balance,"—the best executive procurable could not make a real headway against the stream of evil.

2nd. While changes in the system must be made, we should endeavour to reconstruct our administrative as well as financial department, seeing the two branches are so intimately connected together.

Not only will this be for the good of Grand Lodge itself, but for the Craft in general throughout Scotland. In fine, it depends on the brethren and the daughter lodges of Scotland themselves, by prompt returns and payments of all dues, to make the Craft succeed in the future.

Table III.—PROPOSED SYSTEM.

New Table of Receipts for use of Grand Lodge of Scotland.

Sec. I. Annual payments.
Certificates of 458 Lodges at 5s. ....
Annual Subscription of 458 R.W.M.'s and their Proxies at 5s. ....	£458 0 0
Annual Subscription of 916 Wardens and their Proxies at 5s. ....
Liquidation Fund, 458 Lodges at 1s. each per ann.....	458 0 0
* 500 Past Masters and Past Grand Officers at 5s. ....	125 0 0
Annual rents of shops and other properties, about.....	480 0 0
	£1521 0 0
Sec. II.—Variable incomes.
† Intrants, say 4000, at 5s....	£1000 0 0
Diplomas, say 4000, at 5s....	£1000 0 0
Charters and Prov.G. Master's Commissions at £10 10s.	105 0 0
Rents of Lodges and other Masonic bodies, say .....	80 0 0
Rents for Grand Hall, say....	150 0 0
Miscellaneous Receipts .....	50 0 0
	£2385 0 0

*Compare with Table I in Freemason, Jan. 27th, 1877.
†Thus, whether proxies are retained or not, there should be no diminution of income, but rather a substantial increase of £225, without so much chance of arrears.

Vide Constitutions, cap. xxi., sec. xxv., all lodges holding of Grand Lodge of Scotland, whether represented or not by their Master or Wardens, shall be compelled to pay the fees exigible for representation in Grand Lodge on the 24th June annually, if not paid by their representatives previously.

THE ABDUCTION OF WILLIAM MORGAN. To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent, Bro. W. Fieldson, in the Freemason for Dec. 23rd ult., said that "rumour has it that William Morgan was murdered by Freemasons," and, while questioning the statement himself, he quoted a circumstantial account, asserting it to be taken from "Caswell's History of the United States," by E. Ollier, and asked for authentic information upon the subject. You were pleased to refer the question to me for reply, which I give, as well as I am able, below:—

A brief sketch of the whole affair will probably best satisfy your correspondent and readers generally.

William Morgan was born in Virginia in 1776. He was a stonemason by trade, but afterwards became a brewer, and for a time, about 1812, he was one of Lafitte's piratical band, in Louisiana and the Gulf of Mexico. He afterwards lived in Virginia and New York.

There is no evidence whatever that he was ever made a Mason. At Rochester, N.Y., he craftily persuaded his employer that he was a Freemason, and through his influence, without any certificate or demit, succeeded in being admitted as a member of a lodge in that city. He afterwards, emboldened by his success in Rochester, at the town of Le Roy again deceived the fraternity, and pretending that he had received the Masonic degrees up to and including that of "Most Excellent Master Mason," was admitted in the chapter there, and received regularly the Royal Arch Degree. That was the only degree he ever lawfully received. He was thus a perjured man throughout his brief Masonic career. In intellectual character he was naturally bright, but illiterate, and learned only in the dark ways of the world. Added to this, he brutalised himself with drink. Outside of his house, in taverns, he was a bar-room oracle; in his house he was an intoxicated tyrant, and treated his wife shamefully, seizing her by the hair of her head and dashing her against the walls and furniture. He soon came, as a result, to want, and was the recipient of both common and Masonic charity. Such was the man who conceived the scheme of bettering his fortunes by publishing a pretended exposé of Masonry. An idea of the sum he expected to gain may be learned from the fact that his confederates who were with him in the scheme bound themselves to him in a bond with the penalty of 500,000 dols., to pay him one-fourth part of all sums that should be received from the sales of the book. He owed numerous debts, which were pressed for payment, and led to his imprisonment several times in gaol. On the last occasion, Sept. 12, 1826, he was released, upon two persons paying his debt, and accompanied by them he entered a carriage, after some high words and persuasion, and was driven first to Rochester and then to old Fort Niagara, near Lewiston, on the Niagara river, that being the boundary line between the United States and Canada. There he was kept under lock and key for two or three days. From that time until a comparatively recent period there was no authentic information as to his whereabouts. The enemies of Freemasonry asserted that he was drowned by its brethren in the Niagara river, while dispassionate persons believed that he had been taken to Canada and liberated. There was certainly no evidence of death. His body was never found, nor any one that saw him killed. Had he possessed any estate no court of probate would have granted letters testamentary upon the evidence of his disappearance.

Now as to the sequel. One account, purporting to have come from Morgan's son, is that, instead of having been mysteriously murdered, he lived nearly thirty years after his disappearance from New York, and finally died in corpulence and contentment at Van Dieman's Land, where he was editor of a newspaper called the Advertiser, which still survives him, and in which he used to refer in a pleasant way to the stories told of his murder in the United States. According to the statement of young Morgan, his father was released upon condition that he should leave the country for ever. He accepted the offer, and was accompanied by Masons as far as Quebec, where he entered the British navy and sailed for England. He afterwards was discharged from that service, and sailed for Van Dieman's Land, where he settled. His son was a resident of San Francisco at the time when he communicated this information relating to his father, whom he visited during his lifetime once every two years.

Another account, given August 17, 1851, by A. P. Rogers, of Anoka, Minnesota, is, that the elder Rogers, his father, who died in 1857, knew William Morgan well prior to 1826, and met him many years after in the backwoods of Maine. He said that Morgan escaped from those who had charge of him at Fort Niagara, and fearing for his life, if caught, he fled to the boundless forests of Northern Maine, where he built a cabin and lived a wild hunter and hermit's life. When he was accidentally discovered by Mr. Rogers, and recognised, he decamped, seeking a new and more secluded home, and was never heard of afterwards.

The astute reader may take his choice of these stories, or, rejecting both, frame one for himself. Probably the Morgan mystery will never be cleared up. Certainly interest in it has ceased in the United States, among anti-Masons as well as the brethren. It was a "good enough Morgan" before the elections; it gave a class of political tricksters a pretence for elevating themselves into power for a time; but their rule was of short duration, and will never be repeated. There is no home American historian that has had the assurance to gravely charge upon Freemasons the murder of Morgan—that thankless and proofless assertion seems to have been reserved for one who writes three thousand miles away from the scene of the history; and distance in this instance does not appear to have lent either impartiality or enchantment to his view.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, courteously and fraternally yours,

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is a pity that "A. T." did not say candidly at first that he knew nothing whatever about the subject matter of my inquiry. But surely there are learned and thoughtful brethren among us who care enough for the Craft to search into the origin of what seems to be a grand blunder, and endeavour to get it rectified. In hopes of this catching the eye of some such reader, I will re-state my query.

For reasons specified in my last letter the W.M.'s apron symbol is not a level, but a tau. Now is it from ignorance or design that the swan has been changed into a goose? Were the framers of our Constitutions members of the "little Latin and less Greek" fraternity, and did they not know a tau from a level? Or had they some deep meaning which they wished to convey by turning the tau upside down, and making it stand upon its head, like an acrobat? Or, lastly, was it simply a blunder of the compositor, who printed "perpendiculars upon horizontals," instead of "horizontals upon perpendiculars."

I pause for a reply to this, and to my other unanswered query respecting the ritual of Board of I.M.'s.

W. M. C. N.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly inform me and other Past Provincial Grand Stewards the reason we are not allowed to wear the apron and collar of our office. The Prov. Grand Secretary does not forget to apply for the fees of honour from us as from the other officers, and as many W.M.'s have been appointed Stewards, and no chance appearing of their gaining the purple, we think it but fair that we should be allowed to retain the colour of our office, the duties of Steward being more important than several of the minor ones, who retain the purple.

Your kind opinion upon this subject will oblige many who are often called upon to rise when "The Health of Prov. Grand Officers, Past and Present," is given.

Yours fraternally,

PAST PROV. GRAND STEWARD AND P.M.

BRO. BURGESS AND THE MARK DEGREE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The General Board of the Mark Degree have persistently avoided noticing my complaints to them of unfair treatment, on the allegation that they are couched in improper language. If, therefore, you will extend to me the courtesy of addressing the board through the public medium of the Freemason, there is a guarantee to them that my language is not improper, and there is also a guarantee to me of some chance of fair play.

I desire then to remind the Board of some principles of Masonic jurisprudence laid down by a standard writer on such matters, Bro. the Rev. G. Oliver, D.D., now called to the Grand Lodge above.

Bro. Oliver has written, "It must be observed; 'in limine,' that a brother who may be presumed guilty of any serious offence cannot be punished until the necessary formalities have been used to afford him a full and fair opportunity of defending himself before his peers, and in the presence of his accuser; that would be a stretch of power which no Masonic law can justify. Every step that is taken to criminate a brother must be done openly, and without disguise. The charge must be preferred in writing, signed by the accuser, and forwarded to the Secretary of the lodge, whose duty it is, in concurrence with the Master, to furnish the accused brother with a copy of the charges against him, accompanied by a notice of the day which has been appointed for investigating the case, which may either be at a regular lodge or one of emergency; but it ought to be fixed for some distant day, that the accused brother may have sufficient time to collect his evidence, and prepare for his defence. The special business should be distinctly stated in the summons, and no examination of witnesses can possibly be allowed, except in the presence of him who brought the charge and him who is the object of it."

(I have not received from the Secretary of Mark Grand Lodge, or of any other Mark Lodge, any copy of any charge brought against me, nor any notice of a day appointed for its investigation.)

Again, "According to the terms of that sound maxim of our own jurists, 'nemo bis puniatur pro eadem delicto,' nor can he be responsible to any one tribunal for a crime committed in another." (It has yet to be proved that I have committed any "crime," yet the Mark authorities have expelled me for neglecting to obey the summons of another body, claiming to be not a Masonic body, and which then had no authority over me.)

Again, "We enter on the subject of expulsion with undisguised reluctance, entertaining, as we do, considerable doubts whether it is either prudent or politic to resort to it under any circumstances; for in the very few instances where it has been inflicted, there appear to have been sound reasons for supposing that it was the result of a cry raised to the prejudice of some individual brother, who had actually rendered good service to the Order, as in the case of the celebrated Preston, who ought to have been advanced to the highest honours, instead of being made the victim of party feeling which placed him under the ban of Grand Lodge, and ended in his expulsion. Our scruples are established by this instance, for after the lapse of a few years, a new dynasty having succeeded to power, all the former proceedings against Preston were rescinded, and he was voluntarily and triumphantly restored to all his Masonic honours and privileges." . . . "The credit and stability of the Craft are vindicated in the fact that the power of expulsion and restoration is vested in the Grand Lodge alone. . . . Happily, the Grand Lodge itself is incapable of inflicting this severe penalty until after the offending brother shall have not only been furnished with an ample opportunity to show cause why such sentence should not be recorded and enforced, but shall have utterly failed to substantiate his innocence to the satisfaction of the brethren."

"The Mark Master Masons claim to be a Masonic body; their Constitutions are modelled on those of the Craft, yet the Mark Master Masons ignore the law which Dr. Oliver says "is consistent with reason and justice, and in strict accordance with the principles of British jurisprudence."

Faithfully yours,

CHAS. J. BURGESS.

PRINCE HUMBERT AND PRINCE LOUIS NAPOLEON.

Dear Bro. Woodford,—

I enclose a letter in Italian, together with the translation, which will answer your question of a few days ago, and which I shall be glad if you will give full prominence to in the Freemason.

I am, dear Bro. Woodford, yours truly and fraternally,

J. C. PARKINSON.

23, Great George-street, Westminster,
London, S.W., 1st Feb., 1877.

Roma, 29 Gen., 1877.

Gentile Signore J. Parkinson,—

Tutto in che qui è ditto relativamente all' iniziazioni del Principe Imperiale nella Massoneria Italiana è assolutamente falso.

Vi prego di mettere in avvertenza la fratellanza Inglese. Fraternalmente, V.F.,

GIUSEPPE MAZZONI.

TRANSLATION.

Rome, Jan. 29th, 1877.

Dear Brother Parkinson,—

All that is said in the Westminster Gazette as to the initiation of the Prince Imperial by Prince Humbert in Italian Masonry is absolutely false.

I beg you kindly to convey this to the English brethren.

Fraternally yours,

GIUSEPPE MAZZONI.

THE ROMAN CATHOLICS AND FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a Roman Catholic and a Mason, permit me to give the following account of a conversation which I had lately with a deacon of my Church:—

Leaving Venice for Verona, I happened to find myself in a smoking carriage, and this rev. gentleman, amongst others, being one. He kept at intervals perusing his breviary, or some kind of prayer-book, whilst I glanced over my newspaper. The remainder of our party were what I am sorry to call a lot of young men, imbibed with what now-a-days is called "materialism," and kept constantly abusing religion of all shades and its ministers. I felt sorry for their want of education, as well as for their principles, and the poor deacon felt by no means very comfortable, considering the language which was being used. I thought well, at a rate of proving to him that he need fear nothing from me. The rev. gentleman seemed very much relieved, and pleased at finding a friend. After conversing with him on casual subjects, he asked me if I were a Catholic? I gave him this answer: "I have, sir, been brought up as such; my ancestors and my family are such, but I regret to inform you that the Church denies me all privileges or sacraments, if I were to ask them." To this he at once replied, "Oh! you are a Freemason?"

I answered him simply thus: "And let us imagine I were one, is that the reason why the Church ought to brand me as a renegade?" The rev. gentleman was taken aback for an instant, but resumed, "Sir, I see the difference. I have duly watched your conduct, and the manner in which you have relieved my anxiety inspired by our fellow travellers, surprised me indeed; and if you are what we call a Mason, then I do not know who is right." Having received this reply, I cautiously led him to reveal to me what the officials of the Church told him on Masonry, and I am glad on one hand to state that I found him perfectly in the dark, and secondly I regretted to find he had been instructed falsely, and most erroneously made to believe that we are no less than a society of murderers, infidels, and such like, in which case I do not feel at all surprised (I said) that you have strict orders to put us down. "But," added I, "May I ask you if you ever, sir, came in contact with a true Mason?" "No, sir, never." "Then you speak from mere hearsay?" "Yes, sir, that's all."

"Now, permit me to give you some details of what Masonry only aims at, and then please answer me."

I told him our objects in life, and that charity was our foundation.

After having answered him a few more questions, I am glad to say that the rev. gentleman thanked me for the valuable information I had imparted to him, and he added: "I am deeply sorry, sir, I had never known the true meaning of a Mason, I regret to have been misinformed, and must say it is very unfair for our superiors to instruct us as they do." He further in answer to my questions, added that there is no obstacle why the Church ought to refuse its sacraments to a Mason if asked. But, added I, now sir, pray, you have agreed with me, do you do so right from your heart. Certainly, sir! Well then, I said, pray the next time you receive such Orders to insult from the altar, and accuse Masonry of crimes of which it knows nothing and does not countenance, please act fair and square. He promised me that he should never commit such a mistake again, and begged me to remember that he acted always according to superior orders. He parted from me at Padua, and hoped to have the pleasure of a visit from me some day.

Now, sir, what is to be drawn from this interview. Simply this, that the antagonism of our Church (I mean mine) is for selfish purposes. I know for one that from the day I joined Masonry I never felt my conscience troubled in the least, so far as all excommunications and Papal bulls are concerned. And I believe firmly, that many of our timid brethren, if they only would gather energy and courage, they would not shrink; and, let me add, that just as well as we have Church of England and other ministers good working Masons, we could certainly, by a little patience and forbearance, have Catholics. Once we shall attain this purpose, I am sure that much of bitterness will be relieved, and much good will follow.

I regret very much to state that during the many years that I have travelled Europe, and other remote parts of the globe, I have visited some fine working lodges, and on the hand I have seen much to the contrary, and which no doubt, must be detrimental to Masonry at large.

In requesting you respectfully to publish this letter, pray excuse my style of writing; being an Italian I am certainly at a disadvantage in the use of the English language.

Yours fraternally,

MASONIC JURISPRUDENCE, No. 2.

LODGE MEETINGS IN DIFFERENT ROOMS AT THE SAME TIME.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Doubtless the heading of the present division will surprise many, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that many Worshipful Masters are not careful to understand the Constitutions and customs of Freemasonry, and, consequently, often do very queer things.

It certainly seems strange how any brother can imagine a sufficient justification for more than one assembly of his lodge being held at the same time, in different parts of the building in which the meetings are held, and yet I have known the matter so little understood, that such a course has been defended, and what is still more to be deplored, actually followed on several occasions. There cannot be a doubt (in the language of one of our well-known and most intelligent Grand Officers) that "the practice of holding a meeting with the W.M. in the chair in the regular lodge, and then deputing a Past Master to open a lodge and confer degrees in another room is utterly illegal. It is, in fact, holding two lodges under one warrant, which cannot be done."

It is to be hoped that the publication of this friendly warning will deter Worshipful Masters from committing such a flagrant violation of the Constitutions, and induce them to diligently study the laws which they have promised to enforce and obey. The reason for the illegal meetings is of course apparent. The object is to save time, so that when there are several degrees to give, and, perhaps, a banquet is looming in the distance, the brethren are anxious to despatch the work as quickly as possible, hence the W.M., in the exuberance of his zeal to gratify the members, deposes a Past Master to hold a lodge in another room, and there and then, whilst the regular meeting is being held, to confer a degree or degrees upon the brethren deemed eligible. There would thus be virtually two lodges working at the same time with the one warrant, as already noted, and the illegality is therefore manifest.

The grave error, however, has been perpetrated, so I understand, in several quarters, several times of late, and the end will be that if such a course is persisted in, the offenders will have to pay the penalties attached to their transgressions.

During the course of my Masonic life I have heard of such extraordinary fancies and doings of Masters of lodges, that my experience warrants a belief in the saying that "Truth is stranger than fiction," and confirms me in the opinion that the Masters elect, prior to their installation, should be required to state that they had perused the latest edition of the Book of Constitutions, and were prepared to be tested as to their knowledge of its ordinary details.

When I know that the Master and several Past Masters and members of a lodge were party to a gentleman being proposed, seconded, elected, and initiated all in the same evening, it is evident that a Masonic journal is indeed a necessity, to enlighten the minds of many of the brethren, and impress upon them the desirability of becoming thoroughly acquainted with the laws they are called upon to obey, and may be to enforce. Constitutions and journals alike are useless, however, unless they are read, and to secure a study of our regulations is the difficulty, when honours are so frequently valued beyond actual Masonic service and usefulness. It is no honour to a brother if he is a Past Master unless he has regularly fulfilled the duties of the chair, and the sooner negligent and inefficient Masters are estimated at their real worth the better for Freemasonry.

Yours faithfully and fraternally, W. J. HUGHAN.

'ART IN HOSPITALS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

All who have any acquaintance with the interiors of our London hospitals must have been struck by the excessive dreariness of most of the wards. It is time that this should be remedied. A little energy on the part of a few philanthropists and artists, aided by subscriptions from the general public, would suffice to accomplish this improvement. I advocate the brightening of the wards and the cheering of their inmates, by the addition of suitable pictures, plate, bronzes, carvings, bric-à-brac, old armour, china, sculpture, ornamental clocks, fancy glass, tasteful glazed tiles, and other art decorations of all sorts.

To promote this object I will give a hundred guineas. A responsible committee being formed, I believe that Messrs. Roberts, Lubbock, and Co. will act as bankers to this fund. Soon I hope that some public place will be granted as a provisional storehouse of art and exhibition for art contributions, previous to their distribution to the hospitals of London. Intending donors, contributors, and subscribers are invited to communicate with

J. LAWRENCE-HAMILTON.

34, Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, W.

[Bro. Lawrence-Hamilton had made at first a condition for his gift, but has since generously withdrawn it.—Ed.]

LEEDS MASONIC EDUCATIONAL AND BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The first annual meeting of the Patrons, Life Governors, and Subscribers to the above Institution, the object of which is the formation of a Charity Fund amongst the Leeds lodges, for the education, partial maintenance, and advancement in life of the orphans of deceased brethren, and of the children of brethren who have become incapacitated by sickness or accident from properly providing for their families, was held at the Masonic Hall, Great George-street, Leeds, on Monday, the 22nd ult., at 7 o'clock p.m., when the following brethren were elected officers for the ensuing year: President, Bro. Thos. Schofield, P.M. 306; Vice Presidents, Bros. Henry Inchbold, P.M. 289; Townsend, 1211; Treasurer, Bro. C. L. Mason, P.M. 304; Secretary, C. Lowrey, P.M. 304. Committee of Management:—Bros. Robert Craig, P.M. 304; J.D. Kay, P.M. 289; R. W. Moore, P.M. 1221; J. Chadwick, P.M. 1311; Wm. Fleming, P.M. 1211; Thos. Crossley, P.M. 1311; G. F. Crowe, P.M. 1211; Samuel Stead, P.M. 1042; C. G. Cooper, P.M. 1042; Alfred Britton, P.M. 1042; J. L. Oates, P.M. 304; James Dixon, P.M. 289; J. B. Broughton, 1211; T. Stockdale, 1311; Jno. Bell, 306. Auditors:—Bros. Wm. Warren, 1211; F. Dunsford, 306. The following brethren were appointed Trustees:—Bros. Jno. C. Malcolm, P.M. 306; H. Inchbold, P.M. 289; T. Schofield, P.M. 306; James Bedford, P.M. 304; Jno. Franks, 1211.

This Institution is intended to supplement the work at present carried on by the noble institutions already established in or near London, by extending relief to those children who, by reason of their age or other circumstances, cannot by any possibility gain admittance into the larger institutions.

It also purposes assisting in a similar manner the children of brethren who cannot, from the reduced circumstances of their parents, obtain a proper education to fit them to take respectable positions in society.

Although the Institution is only just established, subscriptions exceeding £300 have been paid and promised, and the promoters are of opinion that they shall be able, for some years at least, to carry on the work of the Institution by means of the annual subscriptions alone, thereby enabling them to capitalise the moneys paid by Patrons and Life Governors, or, at all events, without seriously drawing on that fund.

Obituary.

BRO. W. LANE, P.M. 28.

Our readers will hear with deep sorrow of the somewhat sudden death of Bro. Wm. Lane, which took place at his residence, on Wednesday, the 31st ult. His death, after but a short illness (nine days), was through disease of the lungs. Bro. Lane was initiated into Freemasonry in 1871, in the Old King's Arms Lodge, No. 28, in which lodge he served the office of W.M. in 1875. In 1873 Bro. Lane was appointed collector to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, which office he held up to the time of his death, discharging his duties in a most agreeable and efficient manner. We deeply sympathise with his widow in her irreparable bereavement. Bro. Lane had but just reached his thirtieth year.

BRO. W. R. BAKER.

We have to announce the death of Bro. W. R. Baker, of Fore-street, which was both sudden and unexpected. Taken ill on Saturday, the 27th ult., he desired to be taken to the house of his sister, Mrs. Perry, where he lingered until Tuesday, when death put an end to his sufferings. The cause of death was the rupture of a long-standing abscess (the result of some remote injury) into the cavity of the abdomen. The funeral took place on Saturday last at Kensal Green Cemetery. Bro. Baker was initiated in the Lion and Lamb Lodge, No. 192, in 1866; he was also one of the founders of the Cripplegate Lodge, lately consecrated.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF FAITH (No. 141).—The last meeting of this lodge was held on the 30th ult., at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street. Amongst those present were Bros. M. Davis, W.M.; E. Mallett, S.W.; Dairey, J.W.; Rumball, S.D.; Bye, J.D.; Morrison, A.W.S.; T. C. Walls, A.D.C., acting I.G.; Waygood, I.P.M.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; and Past Masters Peavor, Pope, Hopwood, Taylor, Green, and Themans. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Stokes and Travers to the degree of M.M., and initiated Messrs. W. Allen and Marchant into Craft mysteries, the ceremonies being very well carried out. Several minor matters having been disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren and visitors, to the number of sixty-nine, adjourned to the banquet. Amongst the visiting brethren present we noticed Bros. Barnes, P.M. 13 and 15; Gallant, W.M. 813; Lawrence, J.W. 917; Pearson, J.D. 1567; Van Raalte, I.G. 917; Whelon, 1305; Gompertz, jun., Gresham; Goodridge, 597, St. John's, Newfoundland. The Royal and Craft toasts having been duly honoured, "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. P.M. Taylor, who stated that it was a very pleasing duty to him to have to propose on that occasion the health of the W.M. The manner in which Bro. Davis had discharged his duties since he had been elected to that high position must be exceedingly gratifying to all members of the lodge; and in conclusion the speaker wished him every prosperity and happiness during the continuance of his year of office. This toast having been most warmly received, the W.M. briefly replied. In the course of his remarks he said that it was an old saying that "he who tries must succeed," but he thought that although he had tried his hardest he had not yet succeeded to his satisfaction in the well ruling and governing of the lodge; but he would still continue to do his best towards the accomplishment of that end. In proposing "The Health of the Initiates," the W.M. exhorted them to study Masonry and its principles as they should be studied, and in time they might hope to occupy very high positions in the Craft. This toast having been duly honoured, Bros. Allen and Marchant replied by stating, amongst other things, that they were highly gratified at having been admitted members of the Craft that evening, and they hoped that the brethren of the Faith Lodge would never regret having given them that opportunity. In giving "The Visitors," the W.M. said that the Lodge of Faith was always proud at being able to extend the rites of Masonic hospitality to visiting brethren. This toast was acknowledged by Bros. Barnes, Whelon, Goodridge, and others; the speech of the first named—a Mason of upwards of forty years' standing—being exceedingly apropos. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed, in introducing which the W.M. remarked that their Masonic abilities and social qualities were so well and deservedly known to the brethren present, that he would not dilate upon their merits, but would state in conclusion, that without the hearty assistance and co-operation of the Past Masters of No. 141, no W.M. could carry out his duties satisfactorily. This toast was duly acknowledged. "The Health of the Treasurer and Secretary and the Officers" came next, and drew from the W.M. some very high encomiums upon the relative merits of those brethren forming the efficient staff of the lodge. These toasts having been duly honoured, Bros. Carter, Treas.; Stuart, Sec.; Mallett and Dairey, Wardens; Rumball and Bye, Deacons, severally replied upon behalf of themselves and absent colleagues. During the proceedings Bros. Leftly, Dunithorne, Walls, Themans, Robinson, and others entertained the brethren, who separated shortly after the Tyler's toast at 11 o'clock. The next meeting of this lodge will take place on the last Tuesday in the pre-ent month.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—An excellent gathering of this lodge took place at the Surrey Club House, on Tuesday, the 6th inst. Amongst those present were Bros. G. Everett, P.M. 177, W.M.; Drysdale, acting I.P.M.; Page, P.M. &c., Treasurer; Stuart, P.M., Secretary; Mann, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; Pope, P.M.; Higgins, S.W., W.M. elect; Reeves, J.W.; Walls, S.D.; Kohler, J.D.; Speedy, I.G.; Ellis, junr. Org.; Marston, W.S.; Robinson, A.W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bros. Bavin and Landau, passed Bro. A. W. Sleight, and initiated Mr. Marchant, the three arduous ceremonies being exceedingly well performed. The ceremony of installing Bro. Higgins into the chair of K.S. was then proceeded with. The officers appointed by the W.M. to assist him in the "work" were Bros. Koch, P.M., as S.W.; Page,

P.M. as J.W.; and Mann, P.M. as D.C. The whole of the impressive ceremonial, including the charges, was, most ably and eloquently performed by the retiring Master, and at its conclusion much approval was manifested by the brethren. The officers appointed for the year are Bros. Reeves, S.W.; Walls, J.W.; Page, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Kohler, S.D.; Speedy, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Ellis, junr.; Org.; Honeywell, P.M.; Robie, Asst. Org.; Robinson, D.C.; Marston, W.S.; Stokes, A.W.S.; Longstaffe, Tyler. The sum of ten pounds having been voted to the W.M., as Steward to the R.M.B.I., and the sum of ten guineas to Bro. Mann, P.M., as Steward to the R.M.I. for Boys, the lodge was closed, and the brethren and visitors adjourned to an excellent banquet, which was exceedingly well served in the large billiard saloon of the establishment, which had been converted "pro tem" for that purpose. The decorations and "menu" were of the most recherche description, and reflected great credit upon the caterer, Bro. F. Trotman. Amongst the numerous visitors were Bros. H. Potter, P.M. 11; Bond, P.M. 87, P.Z.; Waygood, P.M. 141; Paine, W.M. 1339; Palmer, S.W. 177; Farwig, S.D. 180; Burford, Treasurer 173; Pilbeam, 45; Everett, junr., 177; Hart, 1339; Frith, 1426. Upon the cloth being withdrawn, the preliminary loyal and Craft toasts were given briefly and duly honoured. The I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," stated that Bro. Higgins, although not a founder, had been connected with the Kennington Lodge since its foundation, and as a lay member, had been most zealous and attentive at all times in assisting in its "working." Since he had been promoted he had been most punctual in attending to the requirements of the various offices he had filled, and the duties of which positions he had discharged most satisfactorily. As short speeches were to be the order of the evening, he should conclude by asking them to drink most cordially "The Health of the W.M." This toast having been received with excellent "fire," the W.M. in reply merely stated that he felt highly honoured in occupying that position. He hoped to have a prosperous year of office, and he felt confident he should have the hearty co-operation and assistance of the I.P.M. and other Past Masters. The toast of "The Initiate" followed, and was duly responded to. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. alluded to the goodly number present that evening, and hoped that their visit had been in every way a most pleasant one. This toast having been duly honoured, elicited from the visiting brethren several very excellent replies. Bro. Frith's in particular being full of point. "The Health of the I.P.M." followed. In proposing this toast the W.M. dwelt at length upon the excellent manner in which Bro. Everett had discharged the onerous duties of W.M. throughout a most arduous year of office. At the conclusion of his Mastership he had left the lodge in a most prosperous condition, both financially and otherwise. The W.M., at the close of his remarks, then stated that he had great pleasure in presenting Bro. Everett with a Past Master's jewel as a slight recognition of his valuable services, and as a mark of the esteem in which he, the I.P.M., was universally held by the members of No. 1381. The I.P.M., in reply, stated that as one of the founders of the lodge he had naturally taken a great interest in its welfare, and he was pleased to see the great strides it had made in the Craft. Its prosperity was proved by the gratifying resolutions passed that day, namely, that the sums of ten pounds and ten guineas should be respectively added to their Steward's lists at the festivals of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution and the Boys' School. With respect to the personal allusions made by the W.M., he could only say that he had endeavoured to do his duty to the lodge. Although he had only just recovered from a serious illness, the effects of which were still painful to him, yet he had felt he ought to be present that day to instal his successor, and if his efforts had given satisfaction to them he was more than satisfied. The members of the lodge in future would be in a position to elect a Master from amongst their own number, as with one or two exceptions the present staff of officers were all initiates. In concluding his speech, which was frequently interrupted by the applause of the brethren, he thanked them for the Past Master's jewel, which he said he should ever cherish as a memorial of his connection with the Kennington Lodge. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed, and was responded to by Bro. W. Mann, who, in the course of his remarks, made some very flattering allusions to the Masonic ability displayed by the I.P.M., who, notwithstanding his severe indisposition, had performed the whole ceremony of installation in an almost faultless manner. As it was then approaching midnight, the remaining toasts were very quickly given and briefly responded to. They were "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Masonic Charities," and "The Officers." During the proceedings instrumental and vocal harmony was furnished by Bros. Ellis, junr., Walls, Bond, Fischels, Webb, and others. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the first Tuesday in the ensuing month.

ERA LODGE (No. 1423).—The brethren of this lodge met on Saturday last, at the King's Arms, Hampton Court, for the purpose of installing their new Master. The lodge was opened by Bro. J. Baxter Langley, who was supported by Bros. E. H. Thielley, S.W.; Thos. J. Sabine, J.W.; Frederick Walters, Sec.; B. Wright, Asst. Sec.; E. W. Devereux, S.D.; S. Wolff, J.D.; J. Mason, Org.; A. F. Loos, I.G.; J. W. Baldwin, P.M.; J. T. Moss, P.M.; John Johnson, F. H. Harvey, E. W. Pearson, J. Franklin, John S. Sweasey, J. Beresford Ryley, D. Weinhausen, E. T. Herman, G. S. Elliott, R. Whatman, Wm. Hammond, P.P.J.G.D. of Middlesex, P.M.; and visitors Bros. John Hammond, P.M. 201; J. H. Baker, 238; J. J. Wray, S.D. 1604; Thos. Fenn, 1284; John Boyd, G.S.; Chas. Gwilliam, S. Dore, 145; Fred. Penna, 211; W. Scholes, 192; T. W. Ockenden, I.G. 1512; Frank Elmore, 12; J. G. Rushworth, 1309; and H. Massey, (Freemason). The W.M. first initiated Messrs. W. George Hurlstone and

Emil Wolcke, after which Bro. James W. Baldwin, P.M., installed Bro. Eugene H. Thielley, Prov. G.S.B. Middx., P.M. 145, as W.M. of the lodge. The other brethren in vestedas office-bearers were Bros. Dr. Baxter Langley, I.P.M.; Thos. J. Sabine, P.P.G.S.B. Middx., S.W.; E. W. Devereux, J.W.; H. A. Dubois, Pro. G.S.D. Middx., Treas.; F. Walters, Prov. G.J.D. Middx., Sec.; B. Wright, Asst.; Sec.; T. Wolff, S.D.; A. F. Loos, J.D.; John Mason, Prov. G.Strd. Middx., P.M. 1567, Org.; John Johnson, I.G.; Michael Underwood, D.C.; John Faulkner, W.S.; J. H. Pearson, Collecting Std.; and J. Gilbert, Prov. G. Tyler, Tyler. Bro. Fenn was elected a joining member. The brethren then passed resolutions recommending for office in the province Bros. R. W. Little (as Deputy Provincial Grand Master), T. J. Sabine (for promotion), J. W. Baldwin (for promotion), J. Mason (for Provincial Grand Superintendent of Works), and Dr. J. Baxter Langley (for Provincial Grand Steward). Dr. Baxter Langley was presented with a massive P.M.'s jewel, set with rubies, of the total value of £30; and Bro. F. Walters, on behalf of several brethren, presented him with a P.M.'s collar and silver jewel. Bros. J. W. Baldwin and J. Faulkner, Stewards for the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, appealed to the brethren to increase the amounts on their respective lists. The office of Steward for the Boys' School being vacant, Bro. J. Mason was unanimously elected to fill it. Notice of motion was given by Bro. T. J. Sabine that the sum of ten guineas be taken from the lodge funds for the Girls' School, and ten guineas for the Boys' School, in the name of the Secretary of the lodge for the time being, to which notice of motion were added the names of Bros. F. Walters, and J. T. Moss. This concluding the business of the day, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. After dinner grace was said, and the customary toasts were proposed and honoured. Bro. John Boyd, G.S., in thanking the lodge for the toast of "The Grand Officers," said he had spent a very enjoyable evening, had had the pleasure of witnessing the introduction of two new brethren into the Order, and seen the W.M. installed. The ceremony of initiation had been beautifully performed by Dr. Langley, and that of installation by Bro. Baldwin. He had seldom seen in a lodge the addresses better given, and it was very creditable to the lodge to have a brother in it who could do its work so well. He hoped that Bro. Baldwin would long be a member of the lodge. Bro. J. T. Moss replied for "The Prov. G.M. and Prov. Grand Officers." No one, he said, was more honoured or esteemed among the members of the Craft than Col. Burdett, who took special care of the lodges in the Province of Middlesex. All the brethren of this lodge were thankful to him for his recognition of their officers. There had been no lodge in the Craft more signally honoured than this lodge. Bro. Baxter Langley proposed "The Health of the W.M." He thought the graceful way in which Bro. Thielley had performed all the offices he had filled in the Era Lodge had gained for him such estimation among the brethren, that there was not one heart in the lodge that regretted when he was elected to be the Master for the year. On the contrary, there was a unanimity of sentiment on all sides that Bro. Thielley was the right man in the right place. He begged to propose his health, and hoped that when he had passed the chair he would be as much loved and respected as he was that day. The W.M., in the course of his response, said he had passed many pleasant evenings among the brethren of the Era Lodge. They were all very united. He believed they would continue so, and he hoped the same amity of feeling as had hitherto prevailed would exist during his year of office. He then, before sitting down, proposed "The Health of the Initiates," a body of men to whom the vitality of lodges was due. On this account the toast of the initiates claimed priority among the toasts of the evening. Both the initiates responded. Bro. Allen, in replying to the toast of "The Visitors," said that having come to live in the neighbourhood, he hoped to become a member of the lodge. Bros. Ray, Fenn, and Boyd also replied. Bro. Baxter Langley, in replying for the P.M.'s, said he felt it a very great honour indeed to find his name at last coupled with the toast of the P.M.'s. Some of the P.M.'s were always present with them as the leaders of the humours of the table, and like Yorick, those who "set the table in a roar." He would not attempt to delight them with that trenchant wit which fell from one of their P.M.'s as naturally as water flowed from a fountain. He could not but feel that in the way in which the toast of his health had been drunk that evening there was a sincere expression of regard to himself and the other P.M.'s of that lodge. He should always hope to live in the brethren's hearts as he did that day, and he could only envy the other P.M.'s of the lodge the position they held in the brethren's hearts at the present time. He would like to glance at the past year, which he thought they would admit had been a successful one, for while he began his year with a debt due to the Treasurer of £16 8s. 7d., he left it with a less debt to the extent of £7 16s. 9d. During the year they had given, in addition to the testimonial to their esteemed Bro. Walters, £31 to the charities, and they had expended on the furniture money to the extent of £7 15s. He thought, therefore, he might say he left the lodge better than he found it. He begged to thank the brethren for the way they had received his name that evening. He hoped, moreover, he should be present when the W.M. occupied the honoured position he himself held that evening, and that he should find him receiving the same testimony of the regard of the brethren. For his own part he need not say that he had had some experience of public life, that he had seen something of assemblies, large and small; but without any hesitation he might say he never had been in any assemblies where he had been more heartily at home than in the meetings of this lodge. He should always look forward to them amidst the excitements and heat of the life in which they knew he was engaged, as green spots in the great wilderness in which there was a great deal of contention and bitter feeling, and he should come to this lodge as his home, where they would unite in their endeavours to do good, and where their hearts would beat with each other and be in harmony. Bro. J. T. Moss also replied, and said he felt the fullest satisfaction that his friend, Dr. Baxter Langley, had retired from the chair with the feeling of respect from the brethren. With regard to himself Dr. Langley had made one observation, but he would add that if he had given them any amusement it afforded him great gratification. It also afforded him great pleasure to see the Era Lodge going on as it was, in a happy way. It was a satisfaction when they came to the Era Lodge to meet with feelings of kindness and regard for each other, and when they went away, to part with the same feelings as those with which they met. He hoped when they came again they would have the same feelings. The Worshipful Master next said: Brethren,—The next toast which I have the pleasure to propose is that of our Treasurer and Secretary. In our Treasurer, Bro. Dubois, there is no finding the bottom of his stocking when the interests of the Era Lodge are concerned whilst in our Secretary, Bro. Walters, considering his immense Masonic labours, it is a wonder that he yet lives, and keeps in his usual delicate health. Brethren, to our Treasurer and Secretary. Neither Treasurer nor Secretary being by this time present, the W.M. again rose to propose the toast of "The Officers," and in doing so said: We have our Bro. Sabine, a Past Master of many lodges, who has discharged his duties as Warden and as Treasurer since its foundation, and who does not consider sixty miles too far to regularly attend the Era Lodge. There is our Bro. Devereux, the perfection of workers, Bro. Wolff and Bro. Loos, who are to be champions of Deaconship in Middlesex; Bro. Johnson, the Inner Guard, Bro. Underwood, the Director of Ceremonies; and Bro. Faulkner, the W. Steward. Wishing them good health, and trusting upon their support at every lodge meeting, Bro. Sabine, in response, said that although he had been in many lodges, in none had he taken a deeper interest than in the Era, on which he might say he had been in regular and constant attendance, considering the distance he had to travel. It was admitted on all hands that the founders of the Era Lodge laid down the true lines of a good Masonic structure, and one which should be an ornament to Freemasonry. It was an ornament on account of the work which had been done by the Masters and Officers, and it had also been of great use in Freemasonry, showing what could be done by unanimity and cordiality of feeling. He believed no lodge had been established in which there had been so few differences of opinion. He trusted that those brethren who would follow the W.M. in the chair would see the same feelings, and that he might be spared many years to witness the same unanimity of feeling, the same happiness, and the same concord which had hitherto pervaded all classes of members of the lodge. The J.W. also thanked the W.M., and the Tyler's toast concluded the proceedings, which were enlivened by some beautiful singing by Bros Frank Elmore and F. Penna.

THE GREAT CITY LODGE (No. 1426).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Saturday, the 10th day of February, at the Cannon-street Hotel. Present: Bros. John Seex, W.M.; Richard Stanway, S.W.; James Freeman, J.W.; Edward Moody, P.M. and Sec.; N. B. Headon, P.M. and Treas.; G. W. Blackie, S.D.; W. H. Catchpole, J.D.; Charles Taylor, D.C.; W. F. Kibble and W. H. Hook, Stewards; T. Hamer, I.G.; W. Steedman, Tyler. Past Masters, Bros. J. H. Townend and James Stevens, and about sixty or seventy other members and visitors. The lodge having been opened, and the previous minutes confirmed, Bro. Moody acting for the W.M., in his absence, raised Bros Cumner and Brooks to the sublime Degree. The W.M., Bro. Seex, subsequently passed Bros. Walker Denbigh, Maynard, Greening and Groom to the Degree of F.C., and initiated Messrs. C. A. Blakely, T. G. Whitehouse, and W. Lucas into the Order. The sum of fifty guineas was voted to the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys, and placed on the list of the W.M., who serves as Steward, and who had several other individual and very liberal donations added to his list before the lodge was closed. Propositions for initiation were taken, and the W.M. then closed the lodge. The brethren adjourned for light refreshment and separated at an early hour in the evening.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1558).—At the Surrey Masonic Hall, on Thursday, the 8th inst., there was a large and select gathering of the members of the above young and flourishing lodge, and several visitors, a list of whom is given below. The close proximity of the Camberwell New-road Station of the London Chatham and Dover Railway to the new hall, affords the members resident at a distance a ready means of access, and this may in some measure account for the extraordinary success which has attended the lodge ever since H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., granted the warrant under which its meetings are held, a period of about eighteen months, during which nearly fifty candidates have been introduced, notwithstanding the fact that the fees have lately been considerably increased. Bros. W. S. Cackett is the W.M.; T. Slep, S.W.; W. Mitchell, J.W.; Snowden, Treas.; James Dann, P.M., Sec.; A. Runacres, S.D.; W. Chalk, J.D.; C. E. Power, D.C.; J. H. Swan, L.P.M.; Boyden, I.G.; T. Taylor, W.S. There were several visitors, amongst them Bros. J. W. Chapman, of the Rose Lodge, 1622; E. G. Webster, Royal Jubilee, 72; E. W. Devereux, C. F. Strube, 72; Thompson, 177, 1158. The lodge was opened in due form and with solemn prayer, and after three passings, Messrs. Wm. Neunum, J. C. Stokes, and Briscoe were duly initiated into the mysteries and privileges of Ancient Freemasonry. It was then resolved that the best thanks of the brethren be given to Bros. Scott and Dixon for their services in connection with the testimonial recently presented to the I.P.M., Bro. Snowden, and that the same be recorded on the minutes. After the transaction of some other business the lodge was closed in due form. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment. The W.M. proposed the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were duly honoured. To the toast of "The Initiates," Bros. Thomas, Briscoe, and Neunum severally returned thanks. The toast of "The Visitors" was duly honoured, and, in response, they congratulated the lodge on the manner in which the W.M. had performed his duties, and upon the able and complete manner in which he had been supported by his officers. Several songs and recitations by Bros. Dixon, Chalk, and others, brought a very enjoyable evening to a happy termination.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The first regular meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday last, at the Castle and Falcon. Present: Bros. John Derby Allcroft, W.M.; Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, S.W.; Dr. Charles Hogg, J.W.; George Kenning, Treas.; Thomas Jones, Sec.; P. Saillard, S.D.; W. H. Froom, J.D.; A. J. Altman, I.G.; Thomas Benskin, D.C.; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; E. Y. Jolliffe. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The Rev. Richard Lee, M.A., Head Master Christ's Hospital; Dr. Herbert Alder Smith, M.B., London Resident Medical Officer Christ's Hospital; and Mr. Walter S. Chapman were then initiated into the Order. Bros. W. Wright Landell, Shakespeare Lodge, 99; L. White, Temple Lodge, 101; Edward Young Jolliffe, Neptune Lodge, were elected joining members. The thanks of the lodge were voted, and ordered to be entered upon the minutes, to Bros. John Derby Allcroft, Bro. Dr. Brette, Bro. Dr. Hogg, Bro. Saillard, Bro. Froom, and Bro. Altman, for having presented the funds (£170) required to establish the lodge. The proposed bye-laws for the governing of the lodge were then read by the Secretary, and approved by the lodge, subject to the sanction of the Grand Secretary. One brother was proposed for joining, and one gentleman for initiation, at the next meeting in March. The lodge was then closed, after which the brethren adjourned to dinner. Bro. Dr. Brette represented this lodge as Steward for the Benevolent Institution. The founders of the lodge, nine in number, subscribed £100.

WOODBIDGE.—Doric Lodge (No. 81).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Woodbridge, Suffolk, on Wednesday, the 7th inst. Amongst those present were Bros. Barnes, W.M.; Moor, S.W.; Browne, J.W.; Phillips, P.M.; Wilmshurst, P.M., Sec.; Dr. Keer, J.D.; Grimwood; B. Gall, Treas.; Freeman, Jeffries, Allen, and others. Visitors: Bros. Emra Holmes, P.M. 114, P.P.G.R. and P.P.G.D.C., and another brother, a member of the Prince of Wales Lodge, No. 959, whose name we did not gather. The lodge having been duly opened and minutes confirmed, Mr. Ernest St. George Cobbold was balloted for, accepted, and duly initiated, the ceremony being very efficiently performed by the W.M., and Bro. Phillips delivering the ancient charge. The business of the lodge was proceeded with, and Bro. Phillips said it had been suggested to him by Bro. Emra Holmes that this lodge being more than a hundred years old, the brethren should apply to Grand Lodge to wear the centenary jewel. The cost of a warrant conveying the necessary authority would only be £5 5s., and it was well worth that to have the privilege. Bro. Wilmshurst seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously. The W.M., in feeling terms, announced the death of Bro. Wm. Trott, the father of the lodge, who, it appeared, had been fifty-two years a Mason when he died a few days since, and stated his (Bro. Barnes's) wish that the brethren should wear mourning for him for one month. The Treasurer read a statement from his accounts, showing that the lodge was in a very prosperous condition, having over £60 lodged in the savings' bank. Bro. Phillips undertook to be Steward for the Boys' School this year, and £5 was voted from the funds of the lodge, several brethren also subscribing a guinea each to make up his list. Two brethren were erased for non-payment of quarterages. A candidate was proposed for initiation, and another as a joining member; and the other business of the lodge having been disposed of, it was closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the Crown Hotel to supper. The Doric is one of the old Athol lodges, and its charter is a very interesting old document; some of its jewels are very curious. The Prudence Preceptory of Knights Templar, A.D. 1810, was removed back to Ipswich from Woodbridge in 1840.

DOVER.—Peace and Harmony Lodge (No. 199).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., when Bro. J. Bordeaux, W.M., occupied the chair, and was supported by the following P.M.'s:—Bros. J. D. Terson, I.P.M.; Cessford, Fry, J. Coram, A. Ayers, and Cox. Lodge was opened in the Second Degree by solemn prayer, and after reading the minutes of the last meeting, Bros. Geo. Saville and Charles H. Cromwell Marsh were most beautifully and impressively raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by the W.M., who was subsequently complimented, when his toast was proposed, by a P.M. on the ability he displayed. At the close of the lodge the brethren adjourned to refreshment, and the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured. The W.M., in proposing the toast of "The P.M.'s Present," observed that he never attended any lodge but 199 and saw so many P.M.'s present, which he said was a great support to the W.M. in his arduous duties. The W.M. also spoke in the highest terms of the ability of the various officers, which also materially conduced to his success in occupying the chair, and also looked well for the future prosperity of the lodge. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. Matthews, of Brownrigg Lodge, No. 1424.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Tuesday, the 6th inst. Present: Bros. C. D. Hume, W.M.; Roberts, S.W.; Schiemann, J.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treas.; Carter, P.M., P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks, Sec.; Nicholes, S.D.; Pears, J.D.; Cousins, I.G.; Evans, Steward; Dixon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; McIlwham, P.M.; Hopwood, P.M.; Bryett, P.M.; Pullin, P.M., P.P.G.D.; Stedwell, P.M.; Dick Radclyffe, Pitts, Larkin, Wilkins, Blizard, Hiscock, Mitchiner, Duffield, &c. Visitors: Bros. Tolley, P.M. 771; Hurst, W.M. 1512; Petts, 342; Johnson, 771; Lancaster, 3 (Peru). Bros. Pitts and Larkin were raised to the degree of M.M. by the W.M., who also afterwards initiated into Freemasonry Messrs. Apted, Bailey, and Dore. The manner in which the W.M. carried out the whole ceremonial was the subject of general comment, it was characterised by being singularly impressive. A special vote of thanks was given to Bro. Dick Radclyffe, for the manner in which he gratuitously presented the table decorations on the occasion of the annual festival in January. In consideration of the eminent services rendered by Bro. Tolley, P.M. of 771, Windsor Castle, by presiding at the organ, and conducting the musical services generally, the brethren unanimously elected him an honorary member of the lodge. Bro. John Cockburn, P.M. of 820 and 975, was elected as a joining member. A candidate for initiation having been proposed, the lodge was, after some routine business, closed in due form.

STOKESLEY.—Cleveland Lodge (No. 543).—The annual festival of the Cleveland Lodge was celebrated in the lodge-room at the Golden Lion Hotel, Stokesley, on the 25th ult., Bro. J. H. Handyside, P. Prov. G.J.W., P.M., in the chair, and Bro. James Coulson, W.M., in the vice-chair. The toasts given and duly honoured were "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," "The Army, Navy, and Volunteers," responded to by Bro. Forbes, P.M., as lieutenant of the 9th North York Rifle Corps; "The Prov. G.M. the Earl of Zetland," "The D. Prov. G.M., Bro. Dr. Bell," proposed by the W.M.; "The Visiting Brothers," responded to by Bro. Dyson, of the Marwood; and Handyside Lodges, at Redcar and Saltburn. "Health and Prosperity to Bro. Marwood, P. Prov. D.G.M., and P.M. of the Cleveland Lodge." This toast in the unavoidable absence of Bro. Marwood, who first saw the light of Masonry in the Cleveland Lodge, and who has for many years been dear to the heart of every Mason in the province (the late Earl of Zetland having offered to retire as Prov. G.M., and appoint our worthy brother to the office), was received with the enthusiasm it so well deserved. Bro. Wilcox, P.M., proposed "The Health of Bro. Coulson, the newly-elected, W.M.," whose working hitherto has given great satisfaction to the lodge. Bro. Coulson responded, expressing a wish to be able to keep the reputation of the lodge, and to do all in his power to promote its prosperity. Bro. George Markham Tweddell said that he had a toast to propose which could never be more appropriately given at a meeting of Freemasons than on that occasion, for one hundred and eighteen years ago a child was born about two miles from Ayr, who not only became the chief of Scotland's many gifted bards, but also one of the most illustrious characters in the annals of Masonry: he alluded to Bro. Robert Burns. Nor could he dismiss from his mind the thought that, at that very moment, in various parts of the country, thousands of "good men and true" were assembled around the festive board to do honour to the toast he was about to propose. Indeed, wherever the English language was spoken around the globe, it was the toast of the day. After a careful study of the life of Bro. Robert Burns, he had no wish to be blind to his human failings, yet, after all, his character, he was not ashamed to assert, was as glorious as his undying poems. It was to our sublime Masonic teaching that Burns owed many of his noblest sentiments, and it was to the credit of the Freemasons of Scotland that Britain was saved the indelible disgrace of forcing her then most gifted son to seek for bread in the West Indies. If there was a Mason living who would refuse to honour the toast he hoped never to meet him in that or in any other warranted lodge or society of Masons, who prize honour and virtue above all the external advantages of rank and fortune. He gave "The Immortal Memory of Bro. Robert Burns," which was drunk in solemn silence. Bro. R. R. Richardson, P.M., proposed "The Health of Bro. Forbes, the I.P.M.," which that brother responded to. Bro. Tweddell then, at the request of the W.M., proposed "The Health of Bro. Handyside, the Father of Freemasonry in Cleveland," which that indefatigable Mason responded to in a very feeling manner. The other toasts were, "The Youngest Member of the Lodge," responded to by Bro. Thos. Fenney; "The Assistant Officers," responded to by Bro. Hanson, J.D.; and "To all Poor and Distressed Masons around the Globe." Recitations were given by Bros. Harrison and Tweddell. Songs were sung by Bros. Watson, Wilcox, R. R. Richardson, Sharpe, Rontree, and others, Henry Fawcett presided at the American organ. Although several of the distant members of the lodge were absent, the brethren spent a very harmonious and agreeable evening together, and separated about ten o'clock.

WELCHPOOL.—Welchpool Lodge (No. 998).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Friday, the 2nd inst., at the Railway Station, Welchpool. The W.M., Bro. T. R. Morris, opened his lodge in the First and Second Degrees, and Bro. the Rev. Alfred Whitlow, having intimated his wish to be raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason, was entrusted and retired. Lodge was opened in the Third Degree, when the W.M. requested Bro. David Pryce Owen, the Senior P.M., to take the chair, and Bro. Whitlow being re-admitted, was raised to the sublime degree of a Master Mason in ancient and solemn form. Lodge was resumed in the First Degree, and Mr. William T. Parker, J.P. for the Borough of Welchpool, was admitted and initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry. At the request of the W.M., Bro. Owen retained possession of the gavel, and, previous to closing he informed the brethren that he had a most painful and solemn duty to perform, a duty that came better from the pedestal than from the body of the lodge, and that was to announce to them the great loss that No. 998 had sustained in the death of Bro. Goldsbro'. Since they had last met it had pleased the G.A.O.T.U. to erase the name of Thomas William Goldsbro' off the list of the various earthly lodges which had been honoured with his name, expressing at the same time a perfect faith that it was now enrolled on that of the Great Lodge above. Bro. Owen informed the brethren that he was the only one present of those who recollected Bro. Goldsbro' presiding over the first lodge held in Welchpool, on March 4th, 1864, when he had the honour of being the third candidate initiated into Masonry by so worthy a Mason, the lodge then working under a dispensation previous to consecration, and now, after having received from those hands his various degrees, including installation, exaltation, and passing through the chair of the H.R.A., by the dispensation of an all-wise Providence, he had now the melancholy duty, as senior P.M. of the lodge, to move a vote of condolence to the widow and family of the first Master of the Welchpool Lodge, No. 998. Looking back over the history of the lodge, it seemed almost incomprehensible that the voice of their dear brother would no more be heard delivering in his impressive manner the wonderful lessons of our Craft, the more especially as only the morning previous to his death he (Bro. Owen) had received a letter, in answer to one asking Dr. Goldsbro' to make arrangements for the forthcoming anniversary in March, and thirty-six hours afterwards the silver thread was broken. When he recollected Bro. Goldsbro's great willingness to impart instruction to juniors (always following Bro. Muggeridge's teaching, and making his pupils do the same), and opening up to them out of his great storehouse the wonderful truths of Masonry, when after labour he recollected his kind and genial face at refreshment, teeming with goodwill and charity towards all men, and the kindly advice given as soon as asked, it almost unnerved him for the melancholy task, but extremely jealous would he (Bro. Owen) have been if it had fallen to any one else to perform, as it enabled him to pay a last and just though sad public tribute to one from whom he had learnt all that he knew in Masonry, and one to whom he always fled for support and council upon many a trying occasion in endeavouring to steer 998 through difficulties and dangers. Bro. Owen pointed out the great services rendered to Masonry by Bro. Goldsbro' in the province of North Wales and Shropshire. When it was first proposed to start a lodge in Welchpool, Bro. Goldsbro' (a native), although resident in London, was designated as the first Master, and on the first anniversary was re-elected Master, and, singular to say, at that very time one of his brothers was W.M. of a lodge in New Zealand, and another in Australia, a fact almost unprecedented in Masonry. During these two years Bro. Goldsbro' presided over twenty-three lodge meetings, and initiated, raised, and passed 46 candidates. Previous to this there were only nine lodges in the province, and since that date our late Bro. Goldsbro' has consecrated fourteen new lodges, making up the roll to 23, in addition to which he consecrated the Welchpool Chapter, of which he was first Principal. And not only has his own province, of which he was a Past Senior Warden, to regret his loss, but take the Marlborough Lodge, Woodstock, and the Tredegar Chapter, Monmouthshire, which, with some others, he also consecrated, and they will have to mourn the loss of a good and kind friend. In addition to this the late Dr. Goldsbro' was a P.M. of 201, Jordan, and a P.Z. of the Jerusalem Chapter, 185, and had served the office of Steward to the three charities. Before concluding, Bro. Owen expressed a sure and certain hope that it would be many a long day before the revered name of Goldsbro' would cease to be a "household word" with 998. The vote of condolence was seconded by Bro. Withy, P.M., who, in addition, suggested that the lodge should assume mourning until after the June meeting. Bro. Withy spoke in the most feeling terms of the good qualities of our departed brother, not only as a Mason, but also expressing the great loss he himself should suffer by the sudden taking away of an old and valued friend. Bro. W. Collender, P.M. 998, and W.M. of the Llanidloes Lodge, No. 1582, stated that on the next summons he should insert a request to the brethren to appear, in mourning, as a last tribute of respect to one who had consecrated them, and Bro. Britton, 850 and 998, and W.M. of the Cedewain Lodge, No. 1594, intimated his intention to do the same, Bro. Goldsbro' having consecrated their lodge also. The ordinary business of the lodge was resumed, and Bro. Grahame Brown was unanimously chosen as W.M. elect for the ensuing twelve months. Bro. Withy, P.M., was re-elected Treas., and Bro. Barnard re-elected Tyler. A vote of thanks was proposed by Bro. Owen, and seconded by the W.M. elect to Bro. T. R. Morris for his services to the lodge, not only as Master, but also during the two years that he held the office of Secretary. Lodge was closed and adjourned until the anniversary on March 29th.

DERBY.—Hartington Lodge (No. 1085).—The annual installation meeting and festival of this lodge was held on Wednesday evening, February 7th, at the Masonic Hall, Gower-street. The lodge was opened at six o'clock, p.m., the following brethren being present:—Bros. S. Pipes, W.M.; W. Heathcote, S.W. and W.M. elect; H. T. Bobart, P.M., P.P.G.A.D. of C. (and Installing Officer); T. Gadsby, J.W.; M. H. Bobart, Treas.; G. Pipes, Sec.; J. Heathcote, J.D.; J. Shaw, D. of C.; J. H. Biggs, I.G.; W. Stone as Tyler; F. Iliffe, P.M.; J. Worsnop, P.M.; Bros. Pakeman, Daniel, Mills, Walters, Hepworth, Butterfield, Lane, Mainprize, Steele, G. Hill, Matthew Hill, R. Bennett, Griggs, Manton, Hextall, Gore, Russell, Wallis. Visitors: Bros. Foulds, W.M. 253; J. Smith, P.P.J.G.W., P.M.; T. Roe, P.M. 802; J. Hand, 731; W. Knight, 731; H. Fowkes, 802; W. F. Hawkins, 787; G. J. Barnett, 731; T. Cox, P.P.S.G.W.; J. Harpur, 787; G. Small, P.M. 787; C. A. Galpin, W.M. 1515; T. Wood, 1515; W. Allen, W.M. 779; F. H. Wilton, 731; H. Burn, P.M. 731; R. Bennett, 731, W.M.; W. H. Marsden, P.P.S.G.W., P.M. 253; J. C. Merry, P.P.G.D. of C., P.M. 731, and other brethren. The minutes of the last lodge having been read and confirmed, Bro. W. Heathcote, S.W. and W.M. elect was presented by Bro. Frank Iliffe, P.M. and Bro. M. H. Bobart, P.M. Bro. W. Heathcote was duly installed by Bro. H. T. Bobart, I.P.M., who performed the installation ceremony in a most efficient manner, much to the credit of himself and the admiration of the lodge. The officers for the ensuing year were then appointed as follows: Bro. G. Pipes, S.W.; J. Heathcote, J.W.; J. H. Biggs, S.D.; S. Steele, J.D.; M. H. Bobart, Treasurer; W. B. Hextall, Sec.; T. H. Hepworth, I.G.; J. E. Russell, D. of C.; Manton and Butterfield, Stewards; J. Worsnop, Organist; W. Stone, Tyler. After the appointment of the officers, Bro. S. Pipes was presented with a magnificent P.M.'s jewel by a number of the officers and brethren as a recognition of the valued services he had rendered to the lodge in many ways during his year of office. The jewel was presented with a few appropriate remarks by Bro. J. H. Biggs, J.D., who had been entrusted to it by the brethren. Bro. S. Pipes acknowledged the gift in a very suitable manner, and hoped he might be spared to live many years to wear the jewel, which he should look on with a great amount of pleasure, ever remembering the great confidence the lodge had placed in him in the handsome manner they had done. The attendance at the banquet was very good, which was of an excellent character.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1548).—On the first Saturday in the month, this lodge meets; the brethren therefore assembled on February 3rd, at their private rooms, Newton Heath; and at 3 p.m. the gavel was sounded by the Worshipful Master, Bro. James Batchelder. The minutes of the last regular meeting having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken separately for Mr. John Henry Pearson and Mr. Michael Hyams; in each case the election was unanimous, and the ceremony of initiation in both cases was performed by the Master of the Lodge. In due time the lodge was worked into the F.C. degree, and Bro. Brown was passed by Bro. Batchelder, W.M. Bro. Caldwell, P.M.D. of C. by command of the W.M., then took possession of the post of honor, and conferred upon Bro. Barber "the double Rosette" degree. The lodge having been reduced, Bro. Batchelder, W.M., returned to the chair, and proposed a candidate for initiation, which proposition was seconded by Bro. Cox, S.D., and supported by Bro. Nicholson. The business of the evening being concluded, visitors from Lodges 1045, 1161, and 1502, tendered their congratulations. Hearty good wishes were conveyed by proxy from 1256, and the Lodge was closed at 6.30 p.m. The brethren, after partaking of refreshments, enjoyed together "the social hour," the usual toasts were properly disposed of, some capital vocal element intervening, in which accomplishment the two initiates, Bros. Pearson and Hyams gave great delight. Bro. Goodchilde produced some merry moments with his comic effusion so much appreciated at 1548. We may remark that this lodge is far from last on the list in vocalism, and has of late added to its store of "voices sweet and merry" those of professional reputation; an addition to professional melody is also looked for at the next meeting. May harmony abound in all things. Harmony in voice, harmony in thought, and harmony in action, taking truth, whose name we bear, as the key-note.

PURNEY.—Royal Commemoration Lodge (No. 1585).—This lodge held its regular meeting on Wednesday, the 7th February, at the Star and Garter Hotel, Putney, Bro. J. Wright, P.M., in the chair; also Bros. Robinson and Jackson, as Wardens; Morpew and Holland, as Deacons; Stacey, P.M., as Org.; and Watkins, Smith, and Boehr, as Treasurer, Secretary, and I.G. respectively. Minutes were read and confirmed, and Bros. Matthews, Eykyn, Rowe, Breach, and Barrett were raised; Bros. Thomson, Bury, and Read passed, and Mr. Stokes ballotted for and afterwards initiated. Two propositions for initiation were handed in. A sum of money to qualify the lodge to take up a governorship of the Aged Freemasons' Benevolent Institution was voted to the W.M.'s list, who we are glad to see represents this young lodge.

Royal Arch.

DOMATIC CHAPTER (No. 177).—An exceedingly strong convocation of this chapter took place on the 25th ult., at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street. Amongst those present were Comps. Hayward, M.E.Z.; Weaver, J.; Bolton, I.P.Z.; Buss, P.G.T. of Middlesex, Treasurer; Palmer, S.E.; Hill, N.; Treadwell, P.S.; Lawrence, 1st A.S.; Harrison, and A.S.; Cubitt, P.Z.; Adams, P.Z.; Wilson, P.Z.; Cottebrune, P.Z.; Payne, P.Z. The visitors were Comps. T. C. Walls, 186; J. Kent, 192; Paul, 394; Sterne, 1305. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, Bros. J. W. Smith, 177; G. N. Downie, 189; T. T. Wilcox, 975; B. Groner, 1613, were duly and most impressively exalted by those distinguished Royal Arch veterans, Comps. Bolton, Cubitt, Adams, and Cottebrune, who acted respectively in the positions of M.E.Z., H., J., and P.S. The election of Principals and other officers then took place, and produced the following results: Comps. Scott, M.E.Z.; Weaver, H.; Hill, J.; Buss, Treas.; Palmer, S.E.; Treadwell, N.; Lawrence, P.S.; Bentley, Janitor. The auditors elected were Comps. Hayward, Maclean, and Briggs. A letter of resignation having been received from Comp. Little, P.Z., Secretary of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, it was received with great regret, and subsequently an unanimous vote was given that Comp. Little should be elected an honorary member. The sum of £5 was voted to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, and it was resolved that the same should be placed upon the list of Comp. Hill, their Principal designate, who is Steward for Lodge No. 1366 at the forthcoming Festival. The subject of presenting a sum towards the proposed testimonial to Comp. Smith, the head waiter of "Anderton's," who has held that position for twenty-three years, and given general satisfaction, was then discussed. The Domatic Lodge, it was reported, had taken the matter up very warmly at their last meeting, and several speakers having been heard upon the subject, it was unanimously resolved that the sum of two guineas should be voted from the funds of the chapter towards the testimonial, and Comp. Wilson, P.Z., was appointed to represent the chapter at any committee meetings that might be called to promote its success. An I.P.Z.'s jewel having been voted to Comp. Hayward, the convocation was closed, and the companions adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the withdrawal of the cloth the customary loyal and R.A. toasts were given and warmly received. "The Health of the M.E.Z." was proposed by Comp. Wilson, P.Z., and having been duly drunk, Comp. Hayward responded. In the course of his remarks he expressed his thanks to Comps. Bolton, Cubitt, Adams, and Cottebrune, who had rendered him such effective assistance during his year of office in the ceremonial "working." He also spoke highly of the valuable services given to him by Comps. Buss, Treas., and Palmer, S.E. "The Health of the Newly-exalted Companions" followed, and those companions severally replied for the honour conferred. The toast of "The Visitors" gave the M.E.Z. an opportunity of paying a high compliment to the merits of one or two of those present that evening. Comp. Sterne, in a short speech, acknowledged this toast upon behalf of himself and his co-visitors. In consequence of the hour being far advanced, the subsequent toasts, viz., "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and Scribe E.," and "The Officers," were given very briefly, and but formally responded to. During the evening vocal and other selections were given by Comps. Palmer, Walls, Lawrence, Wilcox, and others.

Mark Masonry.

THISTLE LODGE (No. 8).—An excellent gathering of this well known and old established lodge took place at 2, Westminster Chambers, on Friday, the 2nd inst. Amongst the officers present were Bros. C. Lacey, W.M.; Dawson, P.M., acting I.P.M.; Figg, P.M., Treas.; Baber, P.M.; Mann, P.M., P.G.R.; Cottebrune, P.M., P.G.S.B., Sec.; Thomas, S.W.; Mander, J.W.; Swallow, M.O.; Oliver, S.O.; Kelso, J.O.; Leggett, S.D.; Burrell, J.D.; Noehmer, Reg.; Henley, W.S.; Koch, P.G.S., &c. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed the W.M., in a very careful manner, advanced Bro. Macartney, 186. Some financial matters having been fully discussed the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent collation. The visitors were Bros. Barney, 133, and Walls, 181. Upon the withdrawal of the cloth the usual toasts were given with commendable brevity by the W.M. In giving the toast of "The Present and Past Grand Officers of Mark Masonry," the W.M. took occasion to congratulate the Thistle Lodge upon possessing several members holding distinguished positions in Grand Lodge, which he hoped would be an incentive to young officers coming on to aspire to a like dignity. Bro. Mann, P.M., P.G.R., acknowledged this toast in a few well chosen words. "The Health of the W.M. followed." In introducing this toast Bro. Figg stated that as one of the oldest members of No. 8 it afforded him great pleasure to bear witness to the Masonic abilities of their W.M. He had discharged the duties of the minor offices well, and from what they had seen that evening of his working in the chair he felt confident that at the conclusion of Bro. Lacey's year of office they would all feel gratified in having elected so worthy a brother to discharge the responsible duties of W.M. (Hear.) The toast having been duly honoured the W.M. made a very modest reply, and immediately proposed "The Health of the Newly-advanced Brother." Bro. Macartney in response stated that when he was initiated into the Craft he felt highly impressed with the whole of the proceedings, and on this occasion he was as equally pleased. He believed from what he had seen that evening of the Mark ritual that it contained many beautiful and instructive passages, and that he should pay as much attention to master its details as he had already bestowed upon the Craft ceremonies. The "Health of the Visitors" followed, and having been most warmly received, Bros. Barney and Walls replied. The remaining toasts, viz., "The Past Masters," "The Treasurer and Secretary," and "The Officers," in consequence of the lateness of the hour, followed very quickly. In the course of his remarks upon the latter pledge the W.M. congratulated himself and the lodge upon possessing officers so distinguished in the Craft and Royal Arch degrees as Bros. Thomas, S.W.; Mander, J.W.; Swallow, M.O.; Burrell, S.D., and others were. He said that it augured well for the future prosperity and efficiency of the Thistle Lodge, because those brethren would naturally aspire to carry out the duties of their respective offices in the Mark as well as they had done those in the other degrees. This toast having been duly drunk, Bro. Thomas, S.W., made an able reply upon behalf of himself and colleagues, present and absent. The proceedings were enlivened by the singing and reciting of Bros. Thomas, Mander, Walls, and others. The brethren adjourned at 11 o'clock, after having spent a most agreeable and instructive evening, until the first Friday in April next.

FESTIVAL OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The annual festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and the Widows of Freemasons was held on Monday evening at Freemasons' Tavern. The announcement that His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, Provincial Grand Master for Oxfordshire, would preside, drew together an immense number of brethren and ladies, of the former of whom there were at least 500, and of the latter nearly 300. His Royal Highness, however, was too ill to keep his appointment, and in his stead the Right Hon. the Earl of Shrewsbury, Provincial Grand Master for Staffordshire, presided. His lordship was supported on his right by Lord Leigh, Provincial Grand Master for Warwickshire, and on his left by Lord Methuen, Provincial Grand Master for Wiltshire.

Among the other brethren present were Col. Creaton, John Hervey, the Rev. R. J. Simpson, the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Dep. Prov. G.M. for Suffolk; Nicholas Bradford, Samuel Tomkins, G. Treas.; Capt. Wordsworth, W. F. C. Moutrie, P.M. 11; Charles Watson, P.M. and Treas. 11; Nutt, J.D. 11; Capt. S. G. Homfray, J. M. Case, J. D. Moore, J. T. Collins, J. E. Curteis, H. C. Levander, Wm. Boby, J. L. Hine, Geo. Lambert, G. M. E. Snow, H. R. Cooper Smith, S. Rosenthal, Rev. W. T. Jones, H. Massey (Freemason); H. Smith, P.G. Sec., West Yorks; W. H. Spauill, Lieut.-Colonel H. Somerville Burney, P.G.S.D. Essex; C. Godtschalk, William Hicks, William Goodacre, J. W. Baldwin, Chas. G. Hill, Major H. Scriven, C. W. Gray, F. Binckes, Sec. R.M.I. Boys, R. Wentworth Little, D.P.G.M., Middx.; S. R. Lambie, H. G. Buss, Jno. Mason, G. H. Wright, C. Daniel, C. Creecy, George McKay, E. H. Thielley, W. H. Lee, J. Newton, W. J. Ferguson, W. Dodd, N. Green, T. W. Morpew, Josh. Constable, Wm. Harrop, J. Ridal, George Newman, J. B. Shackleton, H. Levy, W. Morgan, Farwig, A. Barfield, J. G. Stevens, W. W. Gray, Wm. Toye, J. Baxter Langley, W. Wellsman, Duckett, J. While, E. M. Haigh, F. A. Kelly, L. Beck, W. J. Murliss, E. C. Woodward, G. W. Verry, C. H. Webb, W. Hale, J. Wright, J. A. Farnfield, W. Milner, and others.

The Chairman, in proposing the toast of "The Queen" said: Ladies and Brethren,—I have in the first place with very great regret to announce to you that I am in this chair on the present occasion owing to the absence of His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, who, I believe, only this morning was enforced to abandon the intention of being present. I must therefore claim your kind indulgence for the inefficient way in which I shall represent His Royal Highness to-night. But I think I may say amongst brother Freemasons, that you know I will endeavour to do my best. (Cheers.) From the acclamations from the first petticoat that appeared in that gallery, I am sure few remarks only will be necessary from me to ask you to drink the health of the first lady in the land. It is only necessary amongst Englishmen, and especially amongst Freemasons, to mention the name of Her Majesty the Queen to ensure that toast the hearty reception which it deserves. I should be wasting your time, therefore, if I were to dilate on the merits of Her Majesty. Long may she reign in the affections of her people.

The toast having been drunk, was followed by the "National Anthem."

The Chairman then proposed "The Health of the M.W.G.M., H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," and said that he had now a Masonic secret to impart, viz., that when they had done their business there, their fair sisters were anxiously awaiting their presence in the Temple. He would therefore recommend the brethren at once to put their hands in their pockets and "stump up." With no other object than that of saving time, he would, without wishing to weary them, propose this toast. The merits of the Prince of Wales were too well known to require observation. All Masons thoroughly appreciated him, and he left it in their hands to do ample honour to the toast. With it he coupled the name of Prince Leopold.

The Chairman next gave "The Health of the Pro Grand Master, Lord Carnarvon, the Dep. Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale, and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past," and called upon the Rev. R. J. Simpson, Past Grand Chaplain, to reply.

The Rev. R. J. Simpson, in reply, said: My Lord Shrewsbury and Brethren,—We thank the brethren most unfeignedly for the compliment which has been paid to the past and present officers of Grand Lodge. With regard to Lord Carnarvon and Lord Skelmersdale, it would be presumption in me to make mention even of names which have become "household words" among Masons, not only for their public excellence, but for their private worth. The words "past and present" suggest a very happy idea with regard to our present gathering. The "present" is assembled together to support the "past," and I am quite sure that to give aid to our brethren in the decline of their years, and to assist the widows of our brethren, is a very fitting occasion on which Grand Officers may assemble together; and sure I am, that on no fitter occasion could Grand Officers appear than for the purpose of strengthening the feeble knees of age, and making "the widow's heart sing for joy." I am sure, my lord, that on this occasion we are not the less strengthened by the fact that the "sisters of charity" attend on this occasion not merely as an accident in another place where they appear behind certain lattices, but where they appear openly, essentially claiming their place in a grand and noble charity. I thank you, my lord and brethren, on behalf of the Officers Past and Present of Grand Lodge, and hope that we may have the privilege, under the Great Architect of the Universe, of assembling on many similar occasions. (Hear, hear.)

The Chairman then rose to propose the toast of the evening, "Success to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons," and, holding up the book with a blue cover which contains the list of subscribers to the Institution, said: This is the blue book. I am glad to tell you it is not the blue book on "The Eastern Question." But it is a very important blue book; and will you allow me a very few seconds while I try to tell you what it says? It says that we have an annual income of a very small amount indeed, and if it were not for you we could not go on at all. Therefore my duty is to tell you that we must get on; that there are seventy-two claimants, and we can only elect ten on the next occasion unless you come forward, as I know from rumours I have received that you have done. We are not going to praise ourselves. Our duty is to carry out charity. You will be glad to hear from me that a very worthy brother of ours is only going to read out on the present occasion the collective sums of the lodges rather than the individual names, who ought to be ashamed of having their names published. (Laughter.) I am proud to tell you it is a secret, and mind you I do not tell it (laughter), and next year it will have to be told again—the subscription is bigger than ever. What do you want more? You, as Masons, know how great a charity it is to help the infirm old men and infirm old women, and it is my pride to say that here a second time I am in the chair to advocate this charity. The sum is larger than ever has been collected before for this purpose. (Cheers.) You have got this blue book, and I will not destroy your pleasure in reading it, because you can read its words; you have got it at home. But, remember, our great faith in Masonry is "charity" above all things. We are proud of our three charities, of this charity, of the Boys' School and the Girls' School. The longer I am a Mason the more I am aware of the power, the great power, we possess of assisting those that are in distress. If we look at the distress that comes before us we wish that we had larger incomes and larger establishments; and if we go on and follow the noble example set us by our Grand Master, by Prince Leopold, who has just beaten his brother four years ago by a double sum—I am glad to say so at the present moment—and that of the brethren of the Apollo Lodge of Oxford, my mother lodge (and I suppose that is the reason I was asked to occupy this chair), we shall do all we want. I will not detain you further from hearing the dulcet tones of Bro. Terry. You will be glad to hear him now, and also next year. I shall call upon Bro. Tomkins, the Treasurer, to respond. I suppose that the money must pass through his fingers, and, I may say, that a more honest and more hearty friend of the Institution does not exist than Bro. Saml. Tomkins. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Tomkins responded, and said: I thank you for this very kind notice that you have paid to your Treasurer, but I am sure, at this present moment, you are all most anxious to hear the particulars of this great and noble collection. It is a matter of pride and pleasure to every Mason, and to no Mason more than your Treasurer, that so large an amount has been collected. I trust, as your noble Chairman has said, that next year, and every succeeding year, it will be larger than it is now. I have been Treasurer of this charity for a great many years. I have watched its progress with very great pleasure. I have seen the increasing interest the Craft take in it, and I look forward with undoubted confidence for the future. I have great pleasure in thanking you for your confidence on this occasion, and I will not detain you longer from hearing the particulars of the subscription.

Bro. Terry then read the list of subscriptions, amounting in all to the sum of £12,656 13s.

Bro. C. Chater ... 50 0 0

There are fourteen lists yet to come in, which I trust will enable us to assert that we have brought in £13,000. (Cheers.)

Lord Leigh: Brethren,—I have had the honour of having a toast placed in my hands, and although I cannot say that it is the toast of the evening, as my Right Worshipful brother, the Chairman, has proposed that toast, still, I maintain that it is only second in importance to the toast that he has proposed. Brethren, we all must deeply regret the absence of our illustrious brother the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire; but still, in his absence, I am quite sure that you will agree with me that his place has been most ably filled by the Right Worshipful brother the Provincial Grand Master for Staffordshire. I have known my Right Worshipful brother for many years, living as I do in a neighbouring province, and, therefore, I am perhaps qualified to speak of that brother as many brethren whom I see in this noble hall can speak of him. I will assure you that in Lord Shrewsbury you will find a man who is worthy of the high position that he holds, not only in his private capacity, but in all his public acts. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, he is a Mason at heart; he has shown it ever since he entered the Craft: he was born a Mason, and he will die a Mason. But I trust, when I say he will die a Mason, that Freemasonry, for his province especially, may not see that event for many years to come. (Hear, hear.) He has shown the deep interest he takes in Freemasonry, and it is well known that he has served the office of president for the Girls' School, and he has for the second time occupied that chair for this Institution. It is not only for the Masonic charities that he has presided so well, but I may tell you, from my being almost a Staffordshire Freemason myself, being in a border province, I know how many private acts of charity, Masonic and otherwise, he performs in his own province. I will not detain you further than to ask you to drink with all heartiness and sincerity "The Health of the Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master for Staffordshire," and long may he live to ornament the position he holds. (Great cheering.)

The Chairman: Brethren, two words, and two words only.—Thank you. The Chairman: Brethren, you must excuse me if I am not so abrupt in proposing a toast which is one of very great importance. Charity, as I said before, is a very great quality, and our rule has been at these meetings to toast our two absent friends. I give you "Success to the Boys' and the Girls' Institutions." If you will kindly conceive in your hearts what I should like to say about Lord Leigh and Lord Methuen, respecting those charities, I think you will make a better speech than I shall, and I shall save your time. Our noble friend has spoken most kindly towards me, and I only wish I could find the ability in my heart to say what I think about him. With respect to the Masonic charities you know we are not jealous of each other. We are proud that our successors in this chair should emulate us and beat us if possible. That is our great anxiety since we have had our Prince at the head of affairs. Long may we continue to give that satisfaction to his Royal Highness which he so graciously acknowledges. I give you "Prosperity to the Two Schools, the Boys' and the Girls'." I ask for long lists and short speeches.

Bro. Little responded. Suffering from a severe cold himself, he had hoped that Bro. Binckes would have replied. But he had no hesitation in congratulating Bro. Terry on the magnificent result of his festival. He accepted it at once as a challenge, as a stimulus, as an evidence of the loyalty of the Craft, which had only to be asked to be tested. The Girls' Festival would take place on the 9th of May, and he hoped that they would emulate, and even rival, on that occasion the magnificent sum of that night. He could hardly anticipate such a large result, but at least, as Sempronius said, "We will do our best." He hoped that the strenuous efforts of Bro. Binckes would achieve similar results, and he accepted this meeting as an augury, being the first meeting of the year, that the Freemasons of England were at heart devoted to their charities, and so far from allowing their feelings to flag, they would put forth their energies, not only to maintain but to increase them. (Hear, hear.)

Lord Methuen, in proposing "The Ladies," said: I wish this toast had fallen into abler hands, that could have done more justice to the toast than I am capable of doing, but, at the same time, there is no Mason in the room more devoted to the subject of the toast than I am; and, looking above, I may say I was delighted to see the angels in that sphere above so properly devoted to them. At the same time I was reminded of one fact, that the truest

Masons are the women; for there is no doubt whatever that before another year rolls round, those young hands that we have heard plauditing will be taken in hand the distressed Freemasons, and somewhat comfortably relieved them. (Laughter.) In proposing to you "The Health of the Ladies," I may only say that the Masons from time immemorial, without going too far back into the history of the very early promoters of Masonry, were always devoted to the ladies, and honoured them as mothers, as wives, and as sisters. (Hear, hear.)

Col. Creaton: My lords and brethren,—I have been requested to give this toast, "though last not least," "The Health of our Board of Stewards," who have done so much for us this evening, not only in the way of entertainment, but in bringing up large lists. I propose "The Health of the Stewards." They have done all the honour they could to the occasion, and I couple with it the name of Bro. J. M. Case.

Bro. J. March Case, in reply, said: On behalf of the Stewards of this festival and myself I beg to return you my hearty thanks. It is highly gratifying to us that our exertions in the production of this festival have met with your approbation. The duties that they have taken have been voluntarily accepted by them, and they have performed them most loyally. At the grand installation of the Prince of Wales it was said that the most wonderful characteristic of Freemasons was that of loyalty; and I must say that the Board of Stewards on this occasion have performed their duties most loyally. I, as their unworthy president, have seen their love for the Institution, and my duty has been a sinecure. I beg to offer my thanks to the members of the Board personally for the assistance I have received from them, and I only trust the magnificent result of this evening has been an exemplification that their duties have not been thrown away. In the performance of those duties they have been most exemplarily assisted by the Secretary of the Institution. The labours of the office have devolved upon him. He has been most strenuous in the performance of his duties; and that he has been successful the gathering of this evening will most thoroughly demonstrate. (Cheers.)

The brethren afterwards adjourned to the Temple, where the ladies were assembled, and where an admirable concert was given under the able superintendence of Bro. T. Lawler, jun., in which Bros. Henry Parker, Baxter, Thornton, and Caravoglia, Miss Rose Sherrington, Miss Helen Heath, Miss Agnes Larkcom, and Messrs. Lewis Thomas and T. Harper took part.

The banquet was well supplied by Bro. E. Dawkins, the manager of the Freemasons' Tavern, and Bro. Harker ably discharged the duties of toastmaster.

Obituary.

BRO. HENRY MATTHEWS.

"Like as the waves make towards the pebbled shore,
So do our minutes hasten to their end."

Bro. Matthews, of Sheffield, was initiated in the Britannia Lodge (now No. 139) on May 12th, 1864. He served the office of J.W., but afterwards resigned the lodge. He was one of the founders of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1239, being the second W.M. thereof. He served the office of W.M. in the Britannia Mark Lodge, No. 53, twice; was the first Prov. Senior Grand Mark Warden of West Yorkshire; and, but last June, was appointed Junior Grand Overseer in the Grand Mark Lodge, P.Z. 139, and, on account of his ill-health, was re-elected, and held that office at the time of his decease, as also that of W. Commander of the Sheffield Ark Lodge.

Bro. Matthews was an enthusiastic and untiring worker, a sound and valued counsellor. His zeal in, and attachment to, the Mark Degree were well and widely known, and appreciated—it may be said that he resuscitated the Sheffield Mark Lodge. Until within the last few months, when his health failed him, he ably performed the duties of every office he undertook. After passing the chair of the Wentworth Lodge, No. 1239, the brethren presented to him a handsome Past Master's jewel; he filled the office of Secretary for two years, and he installed several of the W.M.'s of that lodge. Had his life been spared a little longer there can be no doubt but that he would have been appointed to office in Provincial Grand Craft Lodge, than whom no brother better deserved it. Bro. Matthews leaves a widow and two daughters, to whom letters of condolence were sent by the lodges, also the chapter, of which he was a member; the W.M., P.M.'s, and several of the officers and brethren of the Wentworth Lodge followed his remains to their last resting place, and the lodge has assumed Masonic mourning for the space of three months. His death is a loss to the Craft, and the Sheffield brethren justly revere his memory. He was a supporter of our noble charities, an occasional contributor to these columns, a bright Mason, a good man, in short—

"His life was gentle; and the elements
So mix'd in him, that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world—'This was a man!'"

The fifteenth recital of the "Estey" organs took place on Saturday last, at No. 7, Argyll-street. The vocalist on this occasion being Madlle. Matilde Zimerli.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Limb and Life.—Not many years ago some ulcerations and diseases of the joints placed in peril the affected limb whose loss was recommended to spare the risk of life—now the discovery of these noble remedies has made the cure of the worst maladies no longer a matter of doubt. Holloway's treatment preserves the condemned limb, and in its course of cure improves the general health and vigour of the frame. Holloway's Ointment and Pills heal all sores and ulcerations, and extirpate acrofula sores. Ulcers, bad legs, scrofulous discharges, swollen or gathered glands, contracted sinews, enlarged joints, rheumatic and gouty concretions are readily remedied by the proper and persevering application of these cooling, healing, and purifying preparations which are as powerful as they are harmless.—ADVT.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO OUR READERS.

The FREEMASON is a sixteen-page weekly newspaper, price 2d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important, interesting, and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10/6.

P.O.O.'s to be made payable at the chief office, London.

NEW POSTAL RATES.

Owing to a reduction in the Postal Rates, the publisher is now enabled to send the "Freemason" to the following parts abroad for One Year for Thirteen Shillings (payable in advance):—Africa, Australia, Bombay, Canada, Cape of Good Hope, Ceylon, China, Constantinople, Demerara, France, Germany, Gibraltar, Jamaica, Malta, Newfoundland, New South Wales, New Zealand, Suez, Trinidad, United States of America, &c.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, FEB. 17, 1877.

THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We congratulate the Craft, the Committee, and Bro. Terry on the most gratifying result of this, our first charitable gathering for 1877. It was in every way worthy of the occasion, of the Order, and of our Masonic liberality. His Royal Highness Prince Leopold, the Provincial Grand Master of Oxfordshire, had undertaken the duty of presiding at the annual festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, held on Monday evening, at Freemasons' Hall, Great Queen-street, and an exceedingly large gathering of the brethren in the Craft assembled to do honour to the occasion, the assemblage being as large as that present when his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales presided four years ago. Much to the regret of all present, illness prevented Prince Leopold from attending, and the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot kindly officiated in his stead. He was supported by Lord Leigh, the Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire; Lord Methuen, Provincial Grand Master of Wilts; the Rev. C. J. Martyn, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Suffolk; Bros. Colonel Creaton, Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treas.; John Hervey, Grand Sec.; Capt. Homfray, and a very numerous circle of our most distinguished brethren.

The loyal toasts were given with the usual heartiness and loyalty, and our noble brother, in proposing the toast of the evening, spoke of the benefits it conferred upon decayed Masons and their widows, and said that, though he was not about to betray any Masonic secret, he could tell the brethren and the ladies present that the list of subscriptions made a greater total than was ever made before, for in honour to Prince Leopold the brethren had subscribed a sum double that on the occasion when His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales presided. Bro. Terry, the Secretary, then read the list of subscriptions, showing that London subscribed £6679; Devonshire, £570; Kent, £493; the Eastern Division of Lancashire, £321; Middlesex, £339; Oxfordshire, £270; Warwickshire, £467; the Western Division of Yorkshire, £559; Hong Kong, £50—in all making—London, £6679, and the Provinces, £5777—a total of £12,656. The announcement was received with great cheering. Nothing detracted from the pleasures of this most remarkable evening but the absence of our royal brother, which was the subject of universal sorrow, so much so that Lord Shrewsbury stated that it was the first occasion he had presided over any Masonic gathering with regret. We trust soon to hear that the august sufferer is restored to better health, and the admirable fulfilment of his high duties. The arrangements were admirable, and reflect great credit on the Stewards, while the catering was most creditable to Bro. Dawkins. The great hall was filled to overflowing, and the ladies, who dined separately, filled the galleries during the toasts. We have every reason to believe that our fair sisters were most fraternally provided for. Bro. Terry was in high favour with them, and deserves the congratulations and thanks of all the Craft.

THE HISTORY OF FRENCH FREEMASONRY.

Our able contemporary the Builder, has recently given us a very interesting little article on the destruction of the Rue des Boucheries, in the improvements going on at Paris, and which is identified to a great extent with the alleged history of early French Freemasonry. We use the word "alleged" because the Builder assumes a little too much the accuracy of the commonly-received French historical tradition. We have been looking carefully into the subject lately, and feel strongly how much of doubt and uncertainty still lingers over the "textus receptus" of the French Masonic annals. We know that our learned correspondent, Bro. W. J. Hughan, will confirm our view of the matter. The statement, as it appears in the Builder, is no doubt based on the "dicta" of several competent writers, but a good deal of obscurity hangs upon it, and some recent discoveries, which Bro. Hughan has called attention to, as regards Freemasonry in Paris, seem to strengthen these doubts. He has given us some most interesting excerpts from early English newspapers, which throw a new light on the history of French Freemasonry. By these extracts, it would seem that in 1734 and 1735, meetings of English and French Freemasons had been held at Paris. We shall give two of the most important extracts in Masonic Notes and Queries next week. We think it well, therefore, to put on paper what is actually known of the history of Freemasonry in Paris. In the first place we quite agree with Bro. Hughan, that the first historical constitution of a lodge at Paris is that referred to in Pine's list of 1734, and held "au Louis d'Argent dans la Rue des Boucheries, a Paris," and which was warranted, according to his statement, in 1732. In the Constitutions of 1738, Viscount Montague (in 1732) is said to have granted a deputation for constituting a lodge at the Hotel de Bussy in Paris. There are no other traces in our English records of this lodge or French lodges, except that we are told in 1738 that the Grand Lodge of France is mentioned in the minutes and Masonic intercommunication agreed upon, and two lodges in France were erased from our list. The French writers seem to contend, as does the Builder, that in 1725 a lodge was founded at Paris by Lord Derwentwater (Charles Radcliffe) Chevalier Maskelyne, and Mr. Heguetty, called St. Thomas, at a restaurant kept by an Englishman of the name of Hure or Hurre, and that in 1726 this lodge received a constitution from the Grand Lodge of England, but of this statement no evidence exists, and owing to the political questions of the day, much doubt is thrown upon it, especially as to whether the English Grand Lodge would have given a warrant to known Jacobites, and to a person who was not Lord Derwentwater, according to English law. But in 1732 (not 1726 according to French writers—we adhere to our own writers), a lodge seems to have been founded on a constitution granted by Grand Master Montague, also in the Rue des Boucheries, at the Louis d'Argent, and also called "St. Thomas," which first met at an hotel, kept by a person called Breton, or Le Breton, in the Rue des Boucheries, and subsequently at the Hotel de Bussy, in the Rue de Bussy, kept by a person called Landelle. This is the lodge which Kloss says was numbered 49, and was erased in 1768. A third lodge is stated to have been founded in 1729, called "Arts St. Maguerite," by an Englishman named Gaustand or Gauston, and a fourth lodge in 1732, subsequently called "La Loge d'Aumont," is declared to have been constituted at Landelle's, also in the Rue de Bussy. Whether there is any confusion or not in this account, and whether these four lodges are reducible historically to two "deponent" is not quite prepared to say, but thinks it just possible. In Cole's List of Lodges, 1763, a lodge is said to meet (No. 49), originally 90, "a la Ville de Tennerre, Rue des Boucheries," first Monday (founded) April 3, 1732. This would almost look as if the four lodges might be actually only two. The extracts published by Bro. W. J. Hughan seem to throw some little doubt on the very positive statements of the French Historians. We have seen that in 1768 a Grand Lodge of France was in existence, and in 1762 51 lodges are said to have existed in Paris, of which 23 had been founded since 1755. In 1737, we are told by the St. James's Evening Post, May 12, quoted by Bro. W. J. Hughan, that the "Order of the Freemasons" has been "lately so much in vogue in Paris, there being great striving to be admitted, even at the expense of ten Louis d'or. Eighteen or twenty persons of distinction have lately been created Masons, amongst whom was the Marshal d'Estrees, and three lodges are already established." This is in 1737. So early, too, as 1737, the Freemasons seem to have been forbidden by the police to assemble, and a certain Chapelot, keeper of a restaurant at la Rapée was fined 1000 livres for having a meeting of Masons at his house in that year. We see then how many elements of doubt, and how many matters requiring careful consideration exist in respect of the common version of French Masonic History, and if these extracts from the old London papers, a source of information too long neglected, may be looked upon fairly, as we think, as authentic, it becomes us not to dogmatize too much on the question, but to await further evidence. We think that the estimate of the Builder, that there are 500,000 Masons in France is based on no statistical authority, and is altogether most incorrect. There are, as far as we are aware, no published returns of the number of members belonging to the French lodges, but, as far as we have been able to look into the matter, we should be disposed to fix the number of Masons in France at less considerably than 100,000; 80,000 would be a liberal figure, we venture to think. If we take 30,000 as the total under the Grand Orient, and 30,000 under the Rite Ecossais, and about 10,000 under the Rite of Misraim, we shall, we suspect, very nearly hit the mark. We shall be glad, however of official "renseignements" on this subject.

BROS. CAUBET AND GRIMAU.

We have carefully perused the remarks of these two able French brothers in the Monde Maçonnique for January-February, in reply to a leader of ours in the Freemason of January 6th. That article was written in consequence of some very foolish passages in the Monde Maçonnique for December, referring to our esteemed Grand Secretary, but which, by mistake, we attributed to Bro. Caubet, they being actually written, it now appears, by Bro. Adrien Grimaux. As Bro. Caubet quite agrees with Bro. Grimaux's unbecoming words, though he did not actually pen them, we assume, as we may fairly do, that he consents not unwillingly to patronize the little unfledged literary bantling which claims Bro. Grimaux as its "très cher père." Bro. Caubet is very angry because we said that the writer of this sneer at our cheap Bibles, and the author of an un-Masonic attack on Bro. Hervey, had committed a "bêtise," and adds that the phrase "n'est jamais employé en France dans des discussions que par les hommes mal élevés." Indeed? As the French say, vraiment? We turn over two pages, and we find Bro. Caubet's friend Bro. Grimaux, with whom he says, "Je suis complètement de son avis," quietly arguing about this very objectionable word as if it was not quite of such uncommon occurrence, after all, as Bro. Caubet would lead us to suppose. We knew then, we know now, of no better word in French or English to express our sense of the very childish and yet disrespectful manner in which the weighty remarks of our esteemed G. Secretary at the consecration of the Crichton Lodge were treated by the writer, as well as the flippant and almost personal tone assumed to one so excellent in every sense of the word as our Bro. Hervey. "But revenons a nos moutons." It may be true that we are "très mal élevés," and we feel sure that if that be the case, Bro. Caubet will act as our tutor and instructor in all that relates to the elegancies of literature or the bienséances of society, so that of him it might be truly said,

"Ingenuas didicisse fideliter artes,

Emollit mores nec sinet esse ferus."

To tell us, for instance, that the writer supposed there was a society in London which would supply the French Lodges with "cheap Bibles," or that such sentiments would continue to be true of English Masons as long as Bro. Hervey remained the all-powerful Secretary of Grand Lodge, was a mode of dealing with candid and conscientious objections to a revolutionary change, advocated by an extreme party, excessively silly, and entirely un-Masonic. And therefore we said so openly and frankly, as we hope we shall always speak, though we are very sorry if what we wrote with the best intentions has tended in any way to ruffle the temper or affect the sensibilities of our esteemed Bro. Caubet. We confess that we wish that his own remarks had manifested a little more wisdom and moderation, not to say common sense. To answer our legitimate fears and fraternal advice by a declaration of "folles menaces," and the reiterated assertion that the suppression of this simple universal formula is an assertion of toleration, and to take away a "pretext of intolerance," renders any argument or appeal almost fruitless. Certainly we English Masons have offered no "folles menaces" to our French brethren. We have spoken as "Amici Curiae," in fraternal feeling and kindly sentiments, though we have expressed our views on this difficult and delicate subject, as we trust we always shall, in manly honesty and sincerity. If we displease Bro. Caubet and his friends we are very sorry indeed, but we fancy that in all we have advanced we have the entire concurrence of all Anglo-Saxon, and of a very large number of French Freemasons. Let Bro. Caubet accept our advice in the spirit in which it is tendered, that of sincere well wishers to French Freemasonry. Bro. Grimaux appears to think that his views represent those of all French Freemasons. We doubt it very much indeed. In fact we have reason to know such is not the case, and that there are many French Freemasons who are deeply alarmed at the rash proceedings of a dominant party, and all are very anxious for the future of Freemasonry in France. We do not see that Bro. Grimaux advances anything that requires notice, and we do not think it needful to say more, except that we now trust that when next he writes about English Freemasons and Bro. John Hervey he will remember that the former are very sincere in their attachment to their old formulæ, and that the latter is one of the most earnest of Masons, and the most worthy of men: an insult to him is an insult to all English Freemasons. We see that Bro. Grimaux also talks of "injonctions et menaces," as if some great wrong had been committed, because Bro. Hervey spoke openly and without reserve as a Mason, on a point which, in the abiding interests of our common Order, had much to concern and affect us English Freemasons. Bros. Caubet, Grimaux, and others, resemble people we often meet with in life, who, having made up their minds on a given subject, scout advice and resent expostulation. We have done our duty in pointing out to Bros. Caubet and Grimaux the hazardous and retrograde step they are content blindfold and headlong about to take, and which is apparently only certain to land them in the bottomless pit of doubt, confusion, strife, and revolution. But having so expressed ourselves we make our bow, and shall henceforth leave French Freemasonry to itself. We rejoice indeed to note the fraternal and sensible words of Bro. Hubert in the Chaine d'Union, contrast to the turgid nonsense we have often to wade through, and we shall await his promised remarks on the subject with much interest, and shall take care to bring them carefully before our readers.

A NEEDED REFORM.

We said in our last that we would call attention to one of the causes which, in our opinion, has led to the exclusion of the Hebrews from Freemasonry in some Grand Lodges of Germany; we fulfil our promise to-day. We believe that that cause is to be found in the grafting of High Grade, or Christian Degrees, so called, on Craft-Masonry. It is quite clear that if you attempt to weld together two systems, which are based upon and which proceed from two diametrically opposed or even antagonistic principles, either the greatest confusion of ideas must ensue, or one side or the other must gain the preponderance. You cannot have the select idea and the cosmopolitan in the same one system without great jarring. You cannot make to harmonise and combine the universal and the limited, the tolerant and the sectarian theory. Towards the end of the last century, abroad especially, the High Grades, became the fashion pro tem, and an attempt was made, using the Craft Grades as a "grundwerk," to use a Germanism, to build thereupon a structure of High Grade, Chivalric, Hermetic, Mystical Freemasonry, as the case might be. Hence the theory of the High Grades, more sectional, more select, more august, than the humbler Craft Grades, became, as it were, the dominant power, and as the High Grades were Christian, they necessarily excluded Hebrews. It is not then very difficult to see how the intolerant spirit of darker ages has crept, so to say, partly consciously, partly unconsciously, over bodies which have this duplex system at work. The fabric being Christian, it became needful to bring the foundation, so to say, in harmony with it, and as none but Christians could enter into the High Grades "ex necessitate," so neither ought any but Christians to be admitted into the Symbolical Grades. Such was the idea, such too was the argument. No doubt a spirit of intolerance has also existed, as regards the Hebrews generally, but we are inclined to hope and to think, that the real cause of all, (and it is more agreeable to think so, for the sake of human nature and Freemasonry,) is the prevalence of this unwise arrangement, the conflict of these irreconcilable principles. In England we have happily steered clear of these difficulties by never mixing up Craft and High Grade Masonry. With us each is legitimately governed by its own rulers, and each goes on its way in peace with its neighbour. If there are (and many there are) who are both Craft and High Grade Masons, it is for them to settle the matter for themselves. No one presumes to question their right to act as they think fit. No one finds any fault with their individual opinions, and it is this system which we would urge upon our foreign brethren. Let the High Grades be entirely severed from Craft Masonry; and let the Craft be governed as a Craft, and the High Grades as High Grades, and then all "stumbling blocks" of conflicting principles and of hurtful intolerance will be removed—then all those burning objections will be settled once and for all. There will always, no doubt, be a Christian section, even in Craft Masonry, and so long as it becomes neither too dogmatic nor too intolerant, it has fairly a "liberty of prophesying." But the teaching of pure and simple Craft Masonry is "universal," and has been, as far as we are concerned, avowedly so in England since 1813. Every principle, therefore, of Masonic fair play, justice, and toleration, demands that this exclusion of the Hebrews should cease, and that Craft Lodges should be governed solely as Craft Grand Lodges on Craft principles, and that the High Grades should have their own ruling and independent authorities. This fusion of the incompatible principles of Craft Masonry and Christian Masonry should at once be given up as a mistake and an anomaly—a state of things alike liable to abuse, and tending to intolerance, and entirely at variance with the unchanging principles of Craft Masonry.

IS FREEMASONRY MATERIALISM?

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Having read with deep interest and much pleasure the two articles on the above subject in recent numbers of the Freemason, I do not intend by any means to answer them from an antagonistic or party spirit. Such is quite out of the question; but I humbly propose to review them and offer a few observations, perhaps not worthless. The description and definition of the word "Materialism," such as we read it in the Freemason of the 27th ult. and 3rd inst., cannot fail but to be duly appreciated for the masterly and scholarly manner in which they are treated; but taken from a worldly point of view I differ, and it is here I purpose to make my stand.

"Materialism," such as I have heard it frequently spoken of and described, amounts simply to a kind of "God" or "Idol," and this means simply to set at defiance all kinds of religion, and naturally ignores the existence of the G.A.O.T.U., and is a plain outspoken declaration of war to "Him." Socially speaking, it embodies the worst degenerate principles of "democracy," or, in other words, the adoption of the "Paris Commune." Politically, it aims with all power to destroy the duly recognised authority of the land, the overthrow of all honest and just laws. This is briefly the "materialism" which I presume Bishop Vaughan denounces in strong language, and which, in my humble opinion, every honest citizen ought, and has a right and sacred duty, to stamp beneath his feet, as vermin.

Now, unfortunately, it frequently occurs that we Masons are, as a rule, taken "wholesale" and clubbed amongst this class of misled individuals by our most bitterest enemies. The latter of course show no charity; they simply accuse us as a body—just as if we were to go and abuse and denounce ministers of different religions because history and daily facts prove and convict members of their society; but we, on the other hand, practise charity; we abstain from committing such a grievous error; we go on the principle, if I may so call it, that "there are good and bad in all classes, nations, and societies."

Still we cannot ignore a fact, and it is by far wiser to openly avow it, that the "weapons" which our enemies do use against us originate from members of our society, and members of spurious and so-called Masonic lodges. And here again we can answer our enemies. Have they not dissenters? Once we find such to be the case we naturally expel such men, just as our enemies expel such men from within their society.

A point worthy of consideration presents itself. Ought we not to devise some better plan and system of discovering and putting down such spurious lodges and members? I know, I am sorry to say, from positive experience, that the main principles of "materialism" such as I have described are the leading point and basis of many so-called Masonic lodges. To satisfy myself, I have purposely visited some, and found them such. On one occasion I spoke up, and denounced the whole proceedings, and admonished those weak and misled young men that I saw around me, with what eventual effect I do not know.

In public I have heard individuals holding duly certified certificates of English lodges avow their "non belief" in the "Infinite" or the immortality of the soul, and the Seat of Judgment for our actions in this world. Ay, more, such men I have known to persecute and injure others who, though not Masons, declared their firm belief in God.

Now, there is no need for me to demonstrate that we Masons do not admit or recognise such principles, and that we profess quite the reverse; our deeds, our daily actions in our contact with our fellow men, speak volumes in our favour, but we must not forget this great point, that we cannot be too cautious and scrupulous in selecting and accepting members, and when we are assailed let us pass in silence and charity all that is being said, and continue with more energy and faith, the noble work which we are called upon to perform.

"Materialism," such as the majority of the present generation understands it, what is it? All foundation of "society," bases itself on the recognition of some kind of "Head," just so as all kind of religion selects some kind of "Supreme Being." Materialism does away, as I said before, with even this; everybody claims, and the right is conceded to him, to act, think, and do unto his fellow-man as best suits his worldly purposes, and act dishonestly with impunity; this is your materialism from a worldly point of view, and goes to the root of all honest and square principles, and the world, such as it is this day, fed by a certain class of greedy authors, quite unscrupulous of truth, degenerate and encourage with their writings this rising, or, rather falling, generation.

Let us look back to history, the Romans and Greeks, and let us see what progress we have made. They are called barbarians, but what would they call us if they had a voice?

I shall close my argument, if such it can be called at all, and give you again due credit for the manner you have handled this subject. It is very delicate ground to tread upon indeed, let us avoid it as much as possible; but by all means do all in our power, one and all, still earnestly to work in casting from us all those who degenerate from our sacred principles; they are but an insect, which silently endeavours to pierce the bark, but never shall find quarters or reach the root.

We are strong all over the world, and there is no lack of good active brethren; let those who undertake this work be but strongly supported by actions from others, and success cannot fail, indeed, it is out of the question.

Yours fraternally,

R. DE VERVECA.

[We endeavoured to give a careful and correct description of what materialism is, what it is understood to be, strictly speaking. We did not enter into the mere popular understanding of it, though practically there is little difference between our correspondent and ourselves.—ED.]

THE EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a Hebrew I was pleased to see that you have spiritedly advocated the injustice of exclusion of Jews from certain German lodges in your leader of the 10th.

You state that "a distinguished lodge at Birmingham has taken official cognisance of the subject," thereby leading your readers to presume that that is the only lodge that has done so; and, as other lodges have done likewise, I have no doubt that, in your next impression, you will rectify this error. The Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, at Liverpool, of which I have the honour to be the presiding officer, passed a resolution similar to that passed in Birmingham. It was proposed very eloquently by Bro. the Rev. H. D. Marks, S.D., seconded by Bro. Tueski, supported by many influential brethren, and unanimously carried on our last regular meeting in January.

A similar resolution was passed by the Lodge of Israel, London; Lodge of Joppa, London; and the Montefiore Lodge, London. These are the so-called Jewish lodges, but I am given to understand that several other lodges in this country, which are not so-called Jewish, have passed similar resolutions.

I communicate this to you, knowing that you will, in justice to those who have taken an interest in this affair, rectify the error.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

MAURICE HART,

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In reply to "Past Prov. Grand Steward," he has only to refer to pages 51 and 52 of Book of Constitutions, and he will see these words:—"But when out of office they are no longer members or entitled to wear crimson aprons and collars or jewels, nor are Provincial Grand Stewards entitled to wear crimson aprons or collars out of their own province."

If brethren would only take the trouble to read the Book of Constitutions, it would save them the necessity of troubling you with many ridiculous queries.

Yours fraternally,

ANOTHER P. PROV. GRAND STEWARD.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

A brother created F.C. is appointed I.G. the same lodge meeting; is this in accord with the rules of the Craft?

Yours fraternally,

RATHER DOUBTFUL.

[We think not.—ED.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I cannot introduce myself as one of the "learned and thoughtful brethren" to whom "W. M. C. N." appeals, and, possibly, I may only share the pity expressed for "A. T.," when I say that I have no recollection of any reference to the tau in the ceremonies of Craft Masonry.

When I was passed, nearly twenty years since, the W.M. informed me that Masonry was "a progressive science;" and in the next degree he explained the loss of the genuine secrets of the M.M., and made me acquainted with certain substituted signs and tokens to serve until time or circumstances should restore the genuine.

Can it be possible that the ornament of a W.M.'s apron is neither "a grand blunder" nor "a swan turned into a goose," nor "a bungle of the compositor," but simply and advisedly a level (or a perpendicular upon a horizontal line) as part of the substituted symbols? This theory need not clash with that of "W. M. C. N." as to the genuine symbol being the tau, but would tend to prove that he has made

A GRAND DISCOVERY.

MASONIC ANECDOTE OF THE KING OF PRUSSIA.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your number of Feb. 10th you give a "Masonic Anecdote of the late King of Prussia." Allow me to draw attention, in order not to mislead your readers, to the fact that the circumstances therein mentioned do not apply to Frederick William IV., the late King of Prussia, but to Frederick the Great. He was initiated into the Craft, in the way you mention, at Brunswick, by a deputation of the Hamburg Lodge "Absalom," during the night of Aug. 14th, 1738, and his companion, Count von Wartensleben, immediately after him. The ceremony began at midnight and lasted till about four o'clock in the morning, (see Bro. Findel's "Geschichte des Freimaurerei," p. 384).

The work "Memoirs of the Freemasons of Naples," from which your extract seems to have been taken, and which appeared in the Freemasons' Magazine and Masonic Mirror of March 16th, 1861, p. 202, erroneously gives the name of Frederick William II., the son of Frederick the Great.

I may further add that Frederick William III., father of the late King of Prussia and of the Emperor William I., was not at all adverse to our Royal art. Our illustrious brother, the Emperor of Germany, when he submitted to his father his desire to enter into our Fraternity, was told that "he might without fear embrace Freemasonry, for the Freemasons had always given him proofs of their fidelity, attachment, and obedience." This was related by the Emperor himself, in reply to an address upon the occasion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his initiation at Berlin, May 22nd, 1865.

Fraternally yours,

C. KUPPERSCHMIDT.

Secretary of the German Lodge of Instruction, Pilgrim, No. 238.

Reviews.

HIDDEN SPRINGS.—By Archbishop Vaughan, Sydney.

By the kindness of Bro. Macmurdrow, Prov. Grand Pursuivant of West Lancashire, we have been favoured with this very remarkable address. We congratulate the Archbishop in the first instance on the non-existence, at any rate, the inactivity of that amiable, enlightened, and genial body, the Holy Inquisition, or he would assuredly, Archbishop as he is, have been burnt as an arch heretic at an "auto de fe" at Sydney. Nothing could possibly have saved him. The proofs of his "heretice pravitatis" are so strong, and we may add, so daring, that though we have no liking for Inquisitors, and not much sympathy for the Inquisition, under any circumstances, we perhaps might be not surprised at the emotion of those reverend gentlemen, on reading such dreadful opinions as have been publicly put forward by so eminent a dignitary of the Church of Rome. He in fact out-Colenso's Colenso, and completely surpasses Mr. Voysey. He simply gives up entirely the Old Testament. This pamphlet, put into the hands of [a savage "ignorant of the rudiments of the Christian Faith," as poor Robert Wilberforce* once said of a prelate of the Church, would make him suppose that Christianity succeeded to paganism, naturally, historically, as a question of time and fact, and that the whole of the supernatural history of the Jewish people in God's word, from the creation to the advent of the Saviour, was a * Archdeacon Wilberforce was one of the kindest and most genial of persons. His great ability, his quiet humour, his unostentatious piety, and his intense consideration for others shone in all he said or did. We have always understood that his later days were clouded with great grief that he had given up the "faith of his fathers." —WRITER OF REVIEW.

myth. Listen to his words. "Taking the supernatural in its length and breadth, such as it has exhibited itself on the broad stage of the world for well nigh two thousand years, and viewing it in its integrity, we can compare it with the paganism as fruit can be compared with fruit. He used the expression "supernaturalism," and not Christianity, because the former word possessed a wider significance than the latter, and included societies of men who though they reject the Christian system, "still believed in a Supreme Being, the Ruler and Rewarder of Mankind." We have never perused in our controversial reading so painful a passage, and one which, coming from a Roman Catholic Archbishop, is alike as astounding as it is alarming. What Cardinal Wiseman would have thought of such an inaccurate position, what Cardinal Manning would say of such an uncritical assertion, how J. H. Newman would regard such an illogical conclusion, we hardly like to think or to say. We have never positively stumbled upon a passage so fraught with error, unreality, and pure materialistic infidelity. Why, we have in this deliberate expression of a Roman Catholic Archbishop the consolidation, so to speak, of all the theories of rationalism, of scepticism, of the "morale indépendante," and of simple infidelity for the special edification of the "fideles," of the "Freemasons," and of the world at large. To assert that "supernaturalism" in its breadth and length is only of 2000 years life, and succeeded to paganism as "fruit to fruit," is so absurd, so perverse, so unhistorical, so illogical a statement, that it positively "takes away our breath" and "knocks us," as the American said, "into a vacuum." Has the Archbishop ever heard of the Old Testament History? Has he ever read his Bible? Does he know anything or nothing of the "Theodidaktai," of the supernatural, of the Patriarchal, of the Mosaic, of the Regal, of the prophetic history of the Jewish people? He appears to believe that paganism existed without supernaturalism, and that supernaturalism succeeded to paganism as an "ism," and that the history of supernaturalism is to be limited to 2000 years. These are very startling propositions and will be highly gratifying, no doubt, to the "Propaganda Fidei." We have always understood that all religious writers agreed in this, that paganism is a deflection from supernaturalism, not a successor to it—that supernaturalism began with the creation of the world, and marked the history of our race positively until the coming of Christ, and that in one sense it has never ended, but still at any rate spiritually exists amongst men. But to make paganism an independent and self-existing system, not a perversion of the mind and sympathies of men, to consider it as in historical order, as a precursor to supernaturalism, and to ignore all supernaturalism until Christianity was established is to our humble intelligence almost as unbelieving and untrue a proposition as ever was submitted to man's finite capacities by any of those brilliant but baneful writers, who, by their sceptical essays have too often sapped the sacred faith of thousands of immortal beings. We cannot conceal our alarm at such teaching, emanating from a Roman Catholic Archbishop, and in our consternation and indignation, can really only pity the writer as being, to use a young man's phrase, "off his nut"—though what that actually and scientifically imports, we are not quite prepared to say. In full agreement with the unsoundness and the absurdity of the Archbishop's whole theory, its mischievous tendencies, and its unhistorical character, we may as well leave his foolish attack on our Order to meet the fate it merits—contempt. For such is the lot of all unhistorical falsity, that even by the nemesis of an outraged "consensus" of thought, taste, and historical reality, it sooner or later inevitably has to confront the universal condemnation of the wise, the true, the good, of all creeds and of all religions. Freemasonry has as much to do with materialism as Roman Catholicism or another religionism, and that any man, much less a mitred Archbishop, can have discovered such a "mare's nest," and have gravely propounded it at a public meeting at Sydney, as the Irishman said, "beats Banagher." We need not overburden our crowded pages, or tire our readers' patience by dilating any more on words so rash, so untrue, and so untrue in themselves, the more so as we have every reason to believe and to know that this senseless crusade of an ill-read, intolerant, and irritable faction of the Church of Rome against our peaceful and loyal and religious Order, will not only rather subserve our past interests, but will as certainly be condemned by the high-minded and sound-thinking of the Roman Catholics themselves. To suppose that such sublimated nonsense, such Pagan arguments, such "bottled moonshine," as Carlyle has it, could affect in any way the Masonic body, or even harmonize with the average Roman Catholic mind, is both an insult to truth and to common sense, to every feeling of religion, to every condition of belief even, in the world.

DEBRETT'S ILLUSTRATED PEERAGE, BARONETAGE, AND KNIGHTAGE. Dean & Son, 160A, Fleet-street, London.

The edition for 1877 is now before us, and we must say it maintains the reputation which it has for so long a period annually enjoyed. It contains much information respecting the immediate family connections of the Peers and Baronets, and is under their direct personal revision and correction. It professes to supply more details than any other book concerning the Naval, Military, and Civil Services, not only of the heads of families, but also of the younger branches. It is the only work that furnishes the addresses of younger adult children, and of the widows of Peers, Baronets, and Knights. Surnames and inferior titles appear alphabetically arranged in the body of the work, thus greatly facilitating reference. The volume is corrected to the 15th ult., and upon minute examination, we find the work extremely useful, reflecting very great credit on the editor, whose labour in the compilation of such a work must have been very great.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The committee of this Institution met on Wednesday afternoon at Freemasons' Hall, Col. Creation, V.P., in the chair. There were also present Bros. S. Rawson, Joshua Nunn, Hyde Pullen, A. H. Tattershall, B. W. Little, J. Stean, W. Hale, John Constable, John G. Stevens, James Brett, W. H. Stephens, Geo. Bolton, Thos. Cubitt, H. M. Levy, Capt. J. Wordsworth, W. Hiltop, F. Adlard, H. G. Warren, Thos. White, Benj. Head, C. F. Hogard, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, H. Massey (Freemason), and James Terry, Sec.

After the minutes had been read and confirmed Bro. James Terry said he had now to report an event of which they were all aware, that the annual festival of the Institution was held on Monday evening, under the presidency of the Earl of Shrewsbury, in the unavoidable absence of H.R.H. Prince Leopold through illness; and that the total subscriptions on that occasion amounted to £12,656 13s., with fourteen lists to come in. Since then he had received seven of those lists which brought in another £100. He hoped when the others came in the total amount would be found to be £12,800.

On the motion of Bro. Levy, seconded by Bro. A. H. Tattershall, the thanks of the committee were voted unanimously to the Earl of Shrewsbury, for presiding at the festival, as the last meeting of the Board of Stewards will be held on the 26th.

On the motion of Bro. S. Rawson, seconded by Bro. Joshua Nunn, a similar vote was passed to the President and Treasurer of the Board of Stewards, and to the Board of Stewards for their services.

Bro. Terry reported that Bro. John Cutbush had sent to the Institution 5000 bulbs of hyacinths for the use of the Asylum at Croydon, thus following up the practice of his late brother.

A vote of thanks was passed to Bro. Cutbush for the munificent gift.

Bro. Terry said he had now to report with very great sorrow, the death of Bro. Wm. Lane, late Collector to the Institution, which took place on the 31st January. He was only absent eight or nine days, and though he was ill, his death was quite unexpected. All money received by Bro. Lane from the 1st of January, up to the day of his death, had been paid in to the bankers of the Institution, either by Bro. Lane or his widow. He (Bro. Terry) had been over Bro. Lane's books, and had found them all correct, and that the sums accounted for had been paid up.

On the motion of Bro. Tattershall, seconded by Bro. Nunn, a letter of condolence was directed to be written to Mrs. Lane.

The death of two annuitants was reported, one after having received £258, and the other £44. The number of candidates for the next election was declared to be 70, 34 males, and 36 females.

The Chairman then said that after the success of the festival, he thought they would be justified in adding to the number of annuitants, and he proposed therefore that 15 men and 15 women should be added, making the number to be elected in May, 24 men and 18 women.

Bro. Terry said this was the largest addition they had yet made.

Bro. Wm. Hale did not wish to oppose the proposition of the Chairman, but last year it might be remembered, they found they were a little embarrassed with regard to money matters, and it was thought then that they should be very cautious as to the number they would put on this year. But as they had had a very successful meeting, the question arose whether they should not put on some more. Could they afford the number proposed at the present moment?

The Chairman said he had gone through the figures with Bro. Terry and discussed the question with him, and he had come to the conclusion that they could afford it. If the funds fell off, however, they would not be able to maintain it. For the next three years they would have enough to pay the extra number of annuities they proposed.

The motion was then carried unanimously.

Bro. Terry brought before the committee the subject of the appointment of a collector.

The Chairman said it would be necessary to appoint a committee to go into the question of the duties and emoluments of the Collector before appointing a new one, and he proposed that there should be a committee of five,—Bros. Head, Joseph Smith, J. A. Farnfield, and Griffiths Smith.

This was agreed to, and Col. Creation was nominated the fifth member.

Bro. Terry said he had to ask, as between this day and the next meeting of the committee there would be large sums of money to be collected, that he might be allowed to let Bro. Knill go out collecting. For himself, it would be impossible to perform this duty. His duties were now very heavy, four receipts had been given, which made the work in his office so much heavier than it was in the Boys' and Girls' Institutions; in fact, four times as much. Bro. Knill would be answerable to him, and he (Bro. Terry) would be responsible to the committee.

Bro. Warren asked whether a circular should not be sent out to the Stewards.

Bro. Terry said this was done by Bro. Lane, who was very methodical in everything he did, and was the best officer the Institution ever had. The Institution never had a more efficient Collector, he must say. He sent out lithographed circulars, and the answers to them were coming in every day. His widow was daily sending them to him (Bro. Terry). Personally he might say the Institution had lost a very efficient officer, and he (Bro. Terry) a very sincere friend. (Hear, hear.)

Leave was then given to Bro. Terry to employ Bro. Knill in collecting.

Bro. Joshua Nunn said they had all heard what their Secretary had said of the efficiency of their late Collector. He (Bro. Nunn) had himself known Bro. Lane many years before he was Collector of this Institution, having something to do with his family. He would give notice of motion for next meeting to make Mrs. Lane a small present (they could not do more than that) in recognition of the excellent manner in which Bro. Lane had conducted his business. He would give notice of motion that Mrs. Lane be granted £100 in consideration of the services of her late husband. (Hear, hear.)

The committee then adjourned.

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—Lodge St. John (No. 3 Bly).—A meeting of this lodge was held within their own hall at No. 213, Buchanan Street, on Tuesday evening, when there was a numerous attendance of members and visiting brethren. The R.W. Master, Bro. Wm. Kyle, jun., presided, the other office-bearers and past office-bearers present being Bros. D. M. Nelson, I.P.M.; Wm. Bell, P.M.; Thos. Fletcher, P.M.; Peter Brownlie, S.W.; James Kyle, J.W.; John Ferguson, Treasurer; William Cochran, Secretary; Rey. John Dobie, D.D., Chaplain; Alexander Pedie, S.D.; Hugh Tennent, J.D.; W. H. Bickerton, P.G. Secretary, Glasgow, &c. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. J. Laurie Nisbet, Wm. Murdoch, John Smellie, and John E. Spiers, all of the Mother Lodge Kilwinning (6); James Campbell, R.W.M., No. 161 (St. Stephen, Gatehouse of Fleet); Robert Jack, R.W.M., No. 128 (St. John, Shettleston); and Thomas Halkett P.M., No. 102 (St. Mark). The lodge having been opened in the E.A. degree, and thereafter raised to that of Fellow Craft, two brethren, previously initiated, received that degree at the hands of Bro. Halkett (102). Subsequently, the brethren adjourned from labour to refreshment, when a specially pleasant hour was spent, the Senior Warden's toast of "Visiting Brethren" being acknowledged in very cordial and fraternal terms by Bro. Spiers, of Mother Lodge Kilwinning. The lodge was thereafter closed in due form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle and Rose (No. 73).—The bi-monthly meeting of this ancient lodge was held on Tuesday evening, 6th inst., in St. Mark's Hall, Buchanan-street. Bro. John Kinnaird, the R.W. Master, occupied the chair, supported by Bros. George McDonald, I.P.M.; Alexander McLeod, S.W.; William J. Kay, J.W.; James S. Ampleford, Treasurer; and Rowland Richards, Secretary. The lodge having been duly opened, and the minutes of the last meeting read and approved of, the chairman made a few remarks to the brethren as to the quarterly meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland held on the previous day, at which he had been present; and thereafter installed Bro. John Bannerman to the office of Depute Master of the lodge. The R.W. Master then gave some information regarding the celebration of the 119th anniversary of the lodge, which is fixed to be held within the hall of Lodge Star (219), at No. 12, Trongate, on the evening of Friday, 2nd March ensuing. There being no further business, the lodge was then closed.

GLASGOW.—Glasgow Chapter (No. 50).—One of the most numerous attended meetings of this chapter that has been seen for a long time back, was held on Thursday evening within their rooms at No. 213, Buchanan Street. The chapter was opened by Companion William Bell, Principal Z., in the chair, assisted by Companions James Louttit, H.; Charles McKenzie, J.; James Balfour, Provincial Grand Scribe, E.; James Duthie, Past Principal Z. Chapter Cathedral (No. 67); George W. Wheeler, Principal Z. Chapter Caledonian Unity (No. 73); Thomas Halkett, Z. Chapter Partick (No. 113); &c. The chapter having been opened, Comp. Bell brought before the notice of the meeting the subject of the forthcoming Royal Arch festival, to be held in St. Mark's Hall, on the evening of Wednesday, the 21st inst.; and expressed a hope that there would be a goodly muster of companions on that occasion. Two candidates for exaltation were then proposed, on whose behalf the Mark Master degree was wrought by Comp. Duthie; and thereafter four received the Royal Arch degree at the hands of Comp. Halkett, acting Principal Z., ably assisted by Comp. Wheeler. The chapter was afterwards closed in due and ancient form.

GLASGOW.—Lodge Thistle (No. 87).—A meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, 6th inst., within their commodious new hall at No. 30, Cathedral-street. The R.W. Master, Bro. J. Booth, presided, and there were present, inter alia, Bros. John Fraser, P.M.; J. G. Richie, S.M.; Walter Stewart, acting Sen. Warden; A. Knowles, Jun. Warden; Thomas Paton, Treasurer; and James Fullarton, Secretary. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of previous meeting read and passed, Bro. Paton submitted a statement of the financial condition of the lodge, to date, and immediately thereafter made formal tender of his resignation of office as Treasurer. On the motion of Bro. Stewart, seconded by Bro. J. S. Wills, it was agreed to accept of the resignation. It was then moved by Bro. Knowles, (J.W.), and seconded by Bro. Thomas Kelly, that Bro. Boucher be appointed to the vacant office, which was agreed to nem. con. Bro. Best, who had been elected at last meeting to the office of Chaplain to the lodge, was then installed into the same at the hands of Bro. John Fraser, P.M. Bro. Fraser then proposed for affiliation to the lodge Bro. David Chalmers, of Lodge No. 360 (Commercial), which was seconded by the R.W.M. (Bro. Booth), by whom the ceremony of affiliation was there and then performed. The lodge was thereafter raised to the F.C. degree, when a brother was passed to the same, and subsequently to the sublime degree of M.M., when two brethren were raised to that degree, the R.W. Master himself working both degrees. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form.

Masonic and General Tidings.

We heartily congratulate Bro. Robert Wentworth Little on his recent appointment as Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, in the room of Bro. Sir George Elliot. Our worthy brother's labour for this distinguished Province has entitled him to this honour, and we sincerely wish him an early restoration to better health, to enable him to enjoy his new office.

The Installation Meeting of the Lion and Lamb Lodge, No. 192, will be held on Thursday, the 1st March. Bro. Edward Jones, is W.M., elect. The musical arrangements will be under the direction of Bro. William Wortell, P.M. and P.Z. 766, assisted by Madame Worrell Doyal, Miss Emma Buer, Mr. Arthur J. Thompson, Bro. Thurlay Beale, and Mr. J. Turle Lee.

Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, D.G.M. and R.W.P.G.M. of West Lancashire, is said to have refused a bonâ fide offer of £21,000 for the "Duchess" part of his celebrated herd of cattle.

Bro. H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M. is likely to pay a visit, in the course of the present year, to Beaumaris. H.R.H. has conditionally accepted invitations from Colonel Owen Williams, and Sir Richard W. Bulkeley, of Baron Hall.

EARL OF CARNARVON LODGE, No. 1642.—The opening of this lodge, inaugurated a few weeks since, was celebrated on Friday last by a ball, which was both well and fashionably attended. The festivity took place in the Ladbroke Hall, Ladbroke Grove Road, which had been placed at the disposal of the committee free of expense by Bro. Truscott, the intention being to hand the whole of the proceeds of the entertainment to the Royal Benevolent Institution for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons. The following were the Stewards, one and all of whom worked hard to secure the success that ultimately crowned their efforts: Bros. W. J. Murlis, P.M. and W.M.; G. Penn, S.W.; S. H. Parkhouse, J.W.; Wm. Gordon, P.M., S.D.; F. Clench, J.D.; E. M. Lander, I.G.; S. Smout, D.C.; S. Smout, Jun., W.S.; J. Linscott, T. Swift, J. Bartle, W. T. Hook, J. Woodmason, G. N. Watts, P.M.; E. Frye, E. J. Cave, and Pushman, Hon. Sec. Supper was served shortly after twelve o'clock, the Worshipful Master presiding, and the Wardens occupying the vice-chairs. At its conclusion the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and "The Ladies" having been responded to in a felicitous manner by Bro. Lauder, dancing was resumed, and kept up until five o'clock. The band, under the efficient leadership of Bro. Ramsay, was all that could be desired, whilst Bro. Steridan having officiated as Master of Ceremonies in that able manner for which he has so well deserved a reputation. It is to be hoped that the pecuniary results will be such as to make a substantial donation to the deserving Charity, in whose behalf the entertainment was ostensibly carried out.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor has consented to take the chair at the 22nd anniversary festival of the Poplar Hospital, to be held in May.

Bro. Sheriff East has consented to preside at the fourth annual meeting of the Provident Surgical Appliance Society, to be held on Tuesday next at the Cannon-street Hotel.

The Alexandra Palace was put up at auction on Thursday week by Messrs. Norton, Trist, Watney, and Co., but there was no bid sufficiently high, and it was bought in at £445,000. The first bid was for £300,000.

On Thursday the Wild Fowl Preservation Act, 1876, came into force. The Act protects woodcock, wild-geon, summer snipe, teal, curlew, plover, wild duck, wild goose, storm curlew, sealark, sandpiper, redshank, purre, pochard, plovers, page, lapwing, mallard, dotterell, din-bird, oxbird, dunlin, godwit, greenshank, peewit, phalarope, ruff, sanderling, shoveller, stint, spoonbill, stonechat, whap, whimbrell and snipe.

The Chinese Minister and Suite, attended by Lieutenant Macarty, visited Madame Tussaud's Exhibition on Tuesday.

Bro. Sir P. Colquhoun, Q.C., on Wednesday week, presided over a meeting held in the City, at which steps were taken to extend the basis of the Thames Valley Floods Prevention Association.

The warrant for the Newton Lodge, No. 1661, to be held at Newark-on-Trent, has been granted, and the consecration will take place on or about Easter week in the Town Hall. Major Newton is the W.M. designate of this lodge.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales was present on Tuesday at the Hunterian oration delivered at the Royal College of Surgeons by Sir James Paget. His Royal Highness was received by the president and the members of the council, and was accompanied by the Duke of Sutherland. Mr. Gladstone, the Dean of Westminster, and a number of distinguished persons were also present.

At a meeting of metropolitan commanding officers held on Wednesday afternoon, a report having been received to the effect that the railway companies in the south of London declined to convey the volunteers to any place on Easter Monday, it was resolved that as the North Western, the Great Northern, and the Midland Railways were willing to convey the volunteers to Dunstable, a field day should be held there. It was then determined to communicate with the War Office on the subject.

MASONIC CALENDAR.—To the thousands who range under the banner of Masonry in every part of the world, "The Cosmopolitan Masonic Calendar, Diary, and Pocket Book" has annually proved of the greatest service, and the edition issued for 1877 by Bro. George Kenning, of London, Liverpool, and Glasgow, is in several respects superior to former publications. Information respecting almost every Masonic Order in nearly every place on the face of the globe is here to be found in a ready form, and therefore the work never fails to be a valuable companion to Masons who travel as well as stay at home. An interesting feature of the present year's "Cosmo." is the record of dates of the consecration of English lodges, and a glance at the list will show that the St. George's Lodge, which now meets at the Adelphi Hotel, first came into existence 150 years ago, the Lodge of Loyalty being the next oldest in the province, having been formed in 1753. The Ancient Union dates from 1771, the Perseverance also meeting in Hope-street from 1766, the Harmony meeting at the Adelphi Hotel from 1773, the Harmony, at Garston, from 1774; the Merchants' (the most influential in the province) from 1780, and several others in the neighbourhood boast nearly a century's existence. The Calendar is correctly and elegantly got up, and ought to be more popular than ever with the brethren of the "mystic tie."—Liverpool Mercury.

Craft Masonry.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—Tuesday, the 23rd ult., witnessed a large muster at the regular meeting of this the strongest lodge in South London held at the Montpellier Tavern, Walworth. With an unusually heavy agenda paper, the commencement of business was set for five o'clock, soon after which hour the W.M., Bro. Govan Macdonald, Preceptor of the Star Lodge of Instruction, opened the lodge, being supported by the following officers: Bros. John Walter, S.W.; W. Allen, J.W.; Solway Smith, S.D.; R. Harris, J.D.; A. Stewart, I.G.; R. Fortune, D.C.; T. H. Pulsford, P.M., Sec.; A. Wright, P.M., Treas.; C. Wise, I.P.M.; R. E. Clarke, H. Towers, and H. Potter, Past Masters of the lodge. The following members of the lodge, Bros. H. Holloway, W. Ponton, G. Robins, M. J. Newsham, W. Beavis, J. Block, D. Pinner, W. Rand, R. Renshaw, J. Austin, A. Wells, A. Caffery, H. Dorritt, E. H. Owen, C. H. Wilkes, A. Wood, E. Edis, E. Robins, W. Meloy, H. C. Horsley, T. McCormack, J. Brister, E. Heaps, J. Swab, R. P. Whitlock, J. J. Parker, W. Bean, J. Cass, D. M. Hunter, A. Owen, A. Levi, T. Vualmer, W. Rossiter, J. Hardey, W. Habern, P. Robins, J. Williams, T. Anstey, J. Towler, J. Defries, and G. Hadfield. Visitors: Bros. W. Laegert, P.M. 548; J. Griffin, P.M. 933; H. Keeble, P.M. 1275; W. T. Scot, W.M. 19; T. Colder, 177; H. H. Tupper, 87; G. Dobson, 51; Ernest E. Smith, 1559. Lodge having been opened in the First Degree, and the minutes read and confirmed, it was opened up to the Third Degree, and the W.M. then raised Bro. Robins to the Sublime Degree of a M.M. The ceremony was worked in the most impressive and solemn manner, in point of fact Bro. Macdonald has never appeared to better advantage as celebrant in the Third Degree, and it was evident that the ceremony had made a fast impression on the mind of the candidate. Bro. Owen was then passed, and lodge was then called off for refreshment, and after a well spent interval of a quarter of an hour, the brethren were called on, and lodge having been resumed to the First Degree, Mr. Bruce Brickwood was initiated by Bro. P. M. Clarke, and Mr. Dowdell by Bro. P. M. Wise, the concluding portion of the ceremony being rendered by the W.M., Bro. Macdonald. Some private business was transacted before the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquetting hall. The Fourth Degree having been worked by the W.M., his officers, and the whole of the brethren, in a hearty and co-operative spirit, the cloth was withdrawn and the revels of the evening commenced. On the toast of "The Queen" the W.M. dealt at greater length than his initial remarks promised. Not only ought we to drink deeply to Her Majesty as Queen of these realms, but as the mother of three of the most illustrious members of the Craft, she claims our love, devotion, and respect. I call upon you to drink upstanding "The Queen and Craft." Bro. Edis gave a verse of the National Anthem in between this and "The M.W.G.M.," succeeding which the same brother obliged with a verse of "God bless the Prince of Wales." The W.M. having given "The Initiates," Bro. Brickwood first replied, his remarks being received with great applause, as were those of Bro. Dowdell. "The Visitors" followed, and Bro. W. Scot, W.M. 9, replied, thanking the W.M. and the brethren for the kind manner in which he and his fellow visitors had been received at 1158 that evening. He felt convinced, for his own part, that when he announced to the brethren of the Hervey Lodge, at its next meeting, the kindly reception their W.M. had met at the hands of the Southern Star Lodge, and also of the pattern working he had heard there, and which had given him so much satisfaction, they would, one and all, be delighted and ready and willing to give fraternal greeting to any members of 1158 who might favour them with a visit. These pithy remarks were received with considerable applause. The toast of "The Past Masters of 1158" was proposed by the W.M., and replied to by Bro. Wise in his accustomed pleasing manner, Bro. Charles Wise, I.P.M., then rose, and addressing the brethren, said: "The only occasion upon which the I.P.M. is entitled to be heard as proposer of a toast is when the moment arrives for that honour to be extended to his successor. In asking them to drink deeply to 'The Health of their W.M., Bro. G. Macdonald," he felt convinced that the brethren were of one opinion with himself, viz., that Bro. Macdonald was the most earnest W.M. they had seen in the chair of that lodge. Bro. Macdonald thanked the brethren cordially for the manner in which his name had been received, and Bro. I.P.M. Wise, for the compliment paid him. I know full well that my appearance here has not been such as would have given satisfaction, but for one fact. My absence upon each occasion has been caused by illness. No Mason, however zealous, can command health, but should the G.A.O.T.U. think fit to give me health, I hope as I.P.M. to be here among you, and as hardworking and anxious to promote the welfare of the lodge as I have been up to the present. I am personally satisfied with the manner in which I discharged my duties in lodge this evening, and as I have been so critical towards my own efforts, I do not hesitate to say that the brethren are satisfied with them. The W.M. then proceeded to compliment the lodge on its flourishing condition, and at the close of a lengthy reply was deservedly cheered. The W.M. next gave "The Officers of the Lodge," remarking that in doing so it gave him all the more pleasure, knowing as he did, that he had the undivided support of his subordinate officers, who one and all were not only most assiduous in the discharge of their duties, but took a lively interest in all things appertaining to Freemasonry. The toast was replied to briefly by each of the officers. The Tyler's toast was next given by Bro. Stead, and the remainder of the evening was given up to harmony, &c. Bro. Solway Smith (most decorous of Deacons) sent the brethren into fits of laughter with a couple of recitations, the first of which, "Description of a Sea Fight," at which Bro. Smith was not present, comparing favourably with anything we have heard on or off the stage. Bro. James Griffin gave "The House that Jack Built," in an improved and extended form, and Bros. Brickwood and Robins were in good voice. The meeting was in every manner a success, and the brethren separated at a late hour, with sighs of regret and lamentations.

MARQUIS OF DALHOUSIE LODGE (No. 1159).—The ordinary meeting of this lodge was held on Monday at Freemasons' Hall, the W.M., Bro. P. L. Simmonds, P.M. 141, 554, officiating, supported by his officers:—H. Moxon, S.W.; T. J. Reeves, J.W.; Chas. Cheston, J.D.; and H. T. Wood, P.M., Sec. There were also present Bros. D. P. Caama, P.M.; H. Clarke, P.M.; and as visitors Bros. Thos. Fenn, 259, P.G.D.; R. G. Glover, 259, and P.M. 181; R. E. Barnes, P.M. 15 and 30; and W. Kelly, Minister for Venezuela. This being the period for the election of officers, Bro. Moxon, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M., and Bro. W. Besant re-elected Treasurer. Bro. Moxon having undertaken the office of Steward for the Girls' School, the sum of five guineas was voted from the lodge funds for his list. The ballot taken having proved unanimous, the following gentlemen were initiated by the W.M.:—Mr. Phillip Cunliffe Owen, C.B., Director of the South Kensington Museum, and Secretary of the Royal Commission for the forthcoming Paris Exhibition, of which H.R.H. the Grand Master is President, and Mr. Gustave Guillam. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. K. C. Krikonan, of No. 1014, of Smyrna, passed by request from that lodge made through Bro. H. Clarke, P.D.G.M. for Turkey. Bro. Kelly was proposed as a joining member, and Mr. Cheston for initiation at next meeting. All business being ended, the lodge was closed in due form.

PERFECT ASHLAR LODGE (No. 1178).—At the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Thursday, 2nd inst., this lodge was held. Bro. W. T. Lover in an able manner passed Bros. Bailey, Gibbs, Judge, Gehringer, and Parrott, and initiated Messrs. G. Tarryer, T. Turk, and J. Long. Ten guineas were given to a distressed brother, once a member of the lodge, and five guineas to a deceased member's widow. The lodge closed and adjourned. Banquet followed. Present: Bros. Batchelor, S.W.; F. Garbett, J.W.; F. H. Ebsworth, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middx., P.M., Sec.; J. Stock, S.D.; J. Porter, J.D.; T. Simpson, I.G.; J. A. Smith, P.M.; G. J. Grace, P.M., and many members. The visitors were Bros. E. John, P.M. 879; W. Richardson, 72; R. Reynolds, 169; G. Dyke, 141; W. Wren, P.M. 1056; T. Nicolson, P.M. 101; H. Hyman, 141; H. Haywood, 106; A. Thomas, J.W. 1446; W. Thompson, 72; M. D' Loewenstark, S.W. 1360, and others.

GREAT NORTHERN LODGE (No. 1287).—The first meeting of this lodge under the gavel of W.M. P. G. Jupe took place on Thursday, the 15th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall. The W.M. was supported by Bros. Lancaster, I.P.M.; P.M.'s Webb (Treas.), Reed, Staten, (Sec.), and Forbes; Christie and West, Wardens; and Robinson, Arkell, and Jackson, as Deacons and I.G., besides a large number of brethren and visitors. Unfortunately, through press of business, there was only one brother present for raising, Bro. Johns; but the W.M. did this so thoroughly that we could only have wished him a better attendance. Of the five candidates for initiation unfortunately there appeared only Messrs. Parry, Watkins, Kempton, and Hawkins; but these brethren afterwards showed themselves to be such additions, that any lodge might be proud of them. There were three candidates' names announced for the next meeting, and the W.M. having closed the lodge, it adjourned to a slight repast.

NEW CROSS LODGE (No. 1559).—On Saturday, the 3rd inst., at New Cross Hall, the regular installation meeting of this lodge was held. Bro. F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Treas., opened the lodge. He raised Bro. A. Macgillivray. He initiated Messrs. Swain, Knibbs, Willson, and Thornton, the W.M., Bro. W. B. Woodman, completing the ceremony. He installed Bro. H. Keeble W.M., who appointed as his officers Bros. E. H. Thielley, P.G.S.B. Middlesex, P.M. 145, W.M. elect 1423, S.W.; W. A. Simmonds, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.

J.D. Middlesex, P.M.; Grammant, Sec.; L. Beck, S.D.; H. J. Green, P.M. 1538, W.M. 1275, J.W.; S. Jewel, I.G.; E. Smith, D.C.; W. B. Woodman, I.P.M., W.S.; and Church, Tyler. Bro. E. M. Hubbuck gave the explanation of the working tools in the three degrees and address to the W.M.; Bro. W. Smeed the address to the Wardens; and Bro. F. Walters the address to the brethren. The W.M., Bro. H. Keeble, on behalf of the members, presented Bro. W. B. Woodman with a massive ten guinea Past Master's jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him from the lodge funds. It bears a suitable inscription, which was duly acknowledged by Bro. W. B. Woodman. All the work was well done. The lodge was closed and adjourned. Banquet followed. The usual toasts were given. The long list of visitors included Bros. J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P. Middlesex, P.M. 1423; W. Smeed, P.P.G.J.W. Middlesex, P.M.; J. B. Shackleton, W.M. 1524; G. Macdonald, W.M. 1158; and others.

WOOLWICH.—Union Waterloo Lodge (No. 13).—The usual monthly meeting of this grand old lodge, which may justly be called the mother lodge of the district, and who must be as proud of her children as they surely are so of her, was held on Tuesday, the 13th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, William-street, Bro. F. G. Pownall, the esteemed W.M., in the chair. The other officers present were Bros. W. P. Appleby, P.M.; E. J. Appleby, P.M.; G. W. Reed, S.W.; J. P. Moore, J.W.; J. Henderson, Treas. and P.M.; H. Syer, Sec.; T. Hutton, S.D.; N. Brown, J.D.; H. Harding, Org.; and B. Norman, Tyler. In the unavoidable absence of Bro. Reilly through illness, Bro. Masters filled admirably the position of I.G. The only business before the lodge was the raising of Bro. W. Carter, which most impressive ceremony was performed by the W.M. and his excellent officer in such a way as to do honour to any lodge, Bro. Harding's fine rendering of the musical portion adding much to the solemnity of the occasion. The lodge was then closed down, and after relief had been given to the instant necessities of a distressed brother, and several notices of joining placed upon the paper, the brethren adjourned to refreshment. Amongst the visitors were Bros. T. Butt, W.M. 700; W. Weston, W.M. 1536; R. Croisdale, P.M. 706 and 1536; R. Hodgkinson, P.M. 358; G. Spinks, S.W. 1536; H. G. Picken, J.W. 1536; J. C. Bennett, 1106; and C. Jolly, 903. The usual toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, Grand Master of England," &c., were drunk with all fervour, as was that of "The W.M.," who replied in one of his usual eloquent and happy speeches. In proposing "The Health of the Past Masters," the W.M. took occasion to pass a high eulogy upon Bro. P. M. Carnelly, the I.P.M. of the lodge, and who, after a long and distinguished service in the R. division of the Metropolitan police, had retired upon a well earned pension, and is now enjoying the "otium cum dignitate" of an honourable career at his native place in Yorkshire. Bro. Pownall spoke of the efforts for the good of the lodge by Bro. Carnelly, and said he felt sure that with him in his retirement would go the best wishes of not only every member of the lodge, but every Mason in the district. Evidently affected by the warmth of his reception, Bro. Carnelly feelingly returned thanks, assuring the brethren of his desire for their welfare, and of his determination ever to uphold the grand principles of Freemasonry in his new home. Many earnest wishes were breathed for the welfare of Bro. Carnelly upon his leaving the lodge soon after. Bro. Butt replied for the visitors, and an especial toast was given for Bro. Henderson, who has for twenty-two years been Treasurer of the lodge. Bro. Henderson, in the course of his reply, spoke modestly of his arduous labour, both in the Craft and higher branches of Masonry. As a Preceptor, he was proud to say that all those who came to him for tuition had achieved high honours, in fact, teaching sometimes bothered him a bit, for after a long run on one subject he sometimes forgot others for a time. He thanked them heartily for their kind feeling towards him, and concluded by exhorting them ever to keep the true principles of Masonry before them, and act up to them in their relations to one another through life. Votes of thanks followed to the officers, for whom Bro. Reed replied, to Bro. Jolly, as our representative, and, finally, the Tyler's toast concluded a most harmonious and brotherly meeting.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The usual meeting of this lodge was held on the 14th inst., at the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum. There was not a large attendance. The chair of K.S. was occupied by the W.M., Bro. Richard Taylor. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of previous meeting read and confirmed. Bro. Richard S. Thompson being a candidate for the Second Degree, satisfied the lodge as to his eligibility for being passed, and having been entrusted, retired. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Thompson having been re-admitted he was passed to the Second Degree, the working being carefully gone through by the W.M., and the working tools were presented by the S.W. (Bro. Jowett). Bro. S. S. Hunter having given proof of his proficiency as a Fellow Craft, was entrusted and retired, and the lodge was opened in the Third Degree. Bro. Hunter was subsequently re-admitted, and raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason with all the formalities of the Craft, the first portion of the ceremony being gone through by the W.M., and the latter by Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England. The lodge was subsequently closed down to the First Degree, when the usual proclamations were made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the brethren, the lodge being afterwards closed in peace, love, and harmony, and with solemn prayer.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Southampton Lodge (No. 394).—The installation of Bro. G. M. Passenger, jun., as Worshipful Master of the Southampton Lodge took place on Thursday, 15th inst., at the Masonic Hall. The ceremony was ably and impressively performed by Past Master T. P. Payne, the Board of Installed Masters numbering seventeen. The W.M. appointed and invested his officers as follows: Bros. J. W. Walker, S.W.; W. Bone, J.W.; W. Furber, P.M.; Treas.; E. T. Howell, P.M.; Sec.; Rev. S. Scott, Chap.; H. P. Aslatt, P.M., Dir. of Cera.; A. L. McCalmont, S.D.; Candy, J.D.; E. Newton Jones, I.G.; Biggs, Tyler. Before the lodge closed the warm thanks of the brethren were tendered to P.M. Payne for his services on the occasion, as well as for the assistance he is always ready to render to the Masonic body. A cordial recognition was also made of the ability which had marked the year of office of the retiring Master, Bro. Charles Cox. Heartly good wishes were tendered to the newly-installed Master by representatives of the other lodges in the town and suburbs, viz., the Royal Gloucester, the Peace and Harmony, the Clausentium, and the Shirley Lodges. In the evening about thirty brethren sat down to a banquet provided by Bro. Dartnell, and during the subsequent proceedings, which were marked by an able historical retrospect from Bro. G. M. Passenger, sen., Past Master, in proposing "Poor and Distressed Masons," congratulatory reference was made to the fact that the Masonic lodges in Southampton include three Past Masters who have lived to see their sons installed in the Master's chair in lodges in the town, viz., the Dep. Prov. Grand Master (Bro. Hickman) father of the I.P.M. of the Gloucester Lodge; the father of the present Mayor of Southampton; and the father of the newly-installed Master. This fact, it was urged, spoke volumes in favour of Freemasonry, as showing it to be an institution worthy the support of all good citizens.

FILEY.—Royal Lodge (No. 643).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at Foord's Hotel, Filey, on Monday, the 12th inst., for the purpose of installing the newly-appointed W.M., Bro. Budd. The lodge having been opened in the usual form, the Installing Master, Bro. G. H. Walslow, P.M. 200, P.P.G.D.C., assisted by Bro. P.M. Hanks, performed the interesting ceremony of placing Bro. Budd in the chair of K.S., the whole proceedings being conducted with the greatest Masonic ability. The worthy W.M. then selected and invested his officers as follows:—Bros. P.M. Hanks, I.P.M.; J. B. Cocks-worth, S.W.; J. McFaden, J.W.; P.M. W. G. Long, Treas.; P.M. W. Fisher, Sec.; Rev. H. Blane, Chap.; J. Welborn, S.D.; J. Mason, J.D.; J. Winfindale, I.G.; W. Jefferson, Tyler; J. H. Nelson and W. Watts, Stewards. Bro. Winfindale, 200, was balloted for and unanimously elected as a joining member. At the close of the ceremony the brethren adjourned to a splendid banquet, provided by Bro. Welborn in his usual profuse and liberal manner, under the judicious and careful inspection of his wife, Mrs. Welborn, to whom the thanks of the brethren are due for her exertions to render them every comfort and enjoyment. The chair was occupied by the W.M., Bro. Budd, and there was a goodly muster of the members of the lodge. The visiting brethren who honoured the lodge by their attendance were as follows:—Bros. W. Garbut, I.P.M. 200; S. Middleton, J.W. 200; W. B. Richardson, S.D. 200; W. S. Meek, 200; J. Winfindale, 200; E. Cooper, 200; G. H. Walslow, P.M., P.P.G.D.C. 200, and 1248; W. B. Robinson, 200; Val. Fowler, jun., 200; C. W. Tomlinson, 200; W. Meek, 200; P.M. R. H. Peacock, 200; W. Milner, 200; R. Land, 200; and J. Townend, 1248. A most pleasant and enjoyable evening was spent, the visiting brethren largely contributing thereto by their social and musical exertions.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John's Lodge (No. 673).—The annual supper of this flourishing Lodge of Instruction was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Thursday, the 1st inst., under the presidency of the W.M. for the evening, Bro. H. Burrows, S.W. of the mother lodge, supported by Bros. J. T. Callow, P.M. 673 and 1505, Preceptor; T. Smyth, S.W.; W. Brackenbury, J.W.; T. Falshaw, S.D.; J. Seddon, J.D.; H. Marshall, I.G.; and D. Jackson, Treasurer. There were also present Bros. W. T. May, P.M. 673 and 1393; Thos. Roberts, W.M. 673; J. K. Digges, P.M. 673; and many other brethren. After the usual business of the lodge was disposed of, the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. Among the pleasing events of the evening was the presentation of a handsome meerschaum pipe to Bro. J. T. Callow. Bro. W. T. May, in making the presentation on behalf of the members, alluded to the valuable services, at all times so willingly rendered by Bro. Callow, not only to the Lodge of Instruction, but to every department of Masonry to which he belonged, and trusted that he would receive the small memento as an expression of the esteem in which he was held, and their appreciation of his merits. Bro. Callow, in responding, in very feeling terms referred to his long connection with his mother lodge, and his anxious desire at all times to promote the good working of the Lodge of Instruction, and thereby fit the members for filling the various positions in the mother lodge to which they naturally aspired, by such means promoting the prosperity of St. John's Lodge. Bro. Callow then proposed "The Health of the W.M. of the evening, Bro. H. Burrows," and in doing so congratulated him (after his long services) upon his approaching election to the chair of his mother lodge, which, he had no doubt, would be an unanimous one. Bro. Burrows, in responding, thanked the brethren for their cordial reception, and assured them that if elected to the chair of his mother lodge nothing should be wanting on his part in promoting the continued prosperity of the lodge, and harmony of the brethren. After several other toasts had been given and responded to, the brethren, who had spent a most enjoyable evening, separated at a very early hour.

DERBY.—Arboretum Lodge (No. 731).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, the 14th inst., when the following brethren were present:—Bros. Bennett, W.M., P. Supt. of W.; Brown, S.W.; T. Merry, J.W.; G. T. Wright, P.M., P.J.G.W.; Cox, P.M., P.G. Treas.; Pipes, P.M. 1085, P.S.G.D.; J. C. Merry, I.P.M.; Jno. Smith, P.M.; Burn, P.M.; Worsnop, P.M.; Gee, P.M., Treas.; Cooper, Sec.; W. Heathcote, W.M. 1085; J. Heathcote, J.W. 1085; Burton, as S.D.; Whittaker, J.D.; Knight, D.C.; Fraser, I.G.; Day, Tyler; Cay, Vincent, Baldock, Martin, 624; Hobson, 1087; Woods, 1515; Abrahart, Bland, Bower, and Webster. After the reading of the minutes the ballot was taken for the W.M. for the next year, the result being that Bro. Brown, S.W., was unanimously elected. He returned thanks briefly, and intimated that with the permission of the W.M. he would refer to the subject again later in the evening. Bro. Burton, who had previously held the office for some years, was elected Treasurer, and Bro. Day as Tyler. The lodge having been opened in the Second Degree, Bro. Browne advanced to the pedestal, passed the usual examination, and retired. He was again admitted in the Third Degree, and was raised to the honourable position of a M.M. in ancient and solemn form by the W.M., assisted by Bro. Merry, I.P.M. The W.M. having received the congratulations of the visitors, closed the lodge, and the company adjourned to the banqueting hall, where a very comfortable supper was provided. After the cloth had been cleared, the usual Masonic toasts were given. Bro. Brown, S.W., in giving the toast of "The W.M.," referred to his own election that evening to the position of W.M. for the ensuing year. He thanked the brethren heartily for the honour they had conferred upon him, and he felt their kindness the more on account of the vote being unanimous. A very enjoyable evening was spent, and the brethren separated in harmony and brotherly love.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenaeum. There was only a moderate attendance. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Vince having shown proficiency as a Fellow Craftsman, was entrusted and retired. The lodge was then opened in the Third Degree, and Bro. Vince having been re-admitted, he was raised to the Sublime Degree of a Master Mason, the working being very well gone through by the newly-elected W.M., Bro. T. Jackson, who occupied the chair of K.S. for the first time that evening, this being the first meeting since the installation. The working tools were presented by Bro. H. Longman, I.P.M. The lodge was then closed down, and the usual proclamations having been made and responded to, the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony.

TWICKENHAM.—Francis Burdett Lodge (No. 1503).—An excellent meeting of this prosperous provincial lodge was held at the Albany Hotel, on Wednesday, the 14th inst. There were present, amongst others, Bros. Wigginton, I.P.M., P.G.S. of W. Middlesex, &c., acting W.M. in the unavoidable absence, through a domestic affliction, of Bro. Saunders, W.M.; Knaggs, S.W.; Court, J.W.; Tomlinson, P.M., &c., Treas.; C. Horsley, P.M., &c., acting I.P.M.; Taylor, S.D., acting Sec.; and Vaughan, J.D. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the acting W.M. initiated one gentleman into the mysteries of the Craft, and at the conclusion of the ceremony gave the interesting lecture appertaining to the degree. A vote of condolence having been unanimously voted to the W.M., Bro. Saunders, and family upon their loss, a petition in favour of holding a Royal Arch Chapter in connection with the lodge was unanimously agreed to be presented to the proper authorities. The lodge was shortly afterwards closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent collation. The visitors were Bros. Williams, P.M. 905, and Isdell, 44, Ireland. The preliminary toasts having been given and duly honoured, the health of the absent W.M. was most warmly pledged. In proposing "The Health of the Initiate," the acting W.M. congratulated him upon having that evening entered an institution which for the Divine and charitable principles it eliminated had not its equal in the universe. The newly-admitted brother having briefly responded, the toast of "The Visitors" followed, in which the W.M. remarked that the brethren of 1503 were always pleased to welcome visiting brethren, but on that occasion they were doubly gratified, as they were favoured by the presence amongst them of two brethren who had seen a great deal of Freemasonry abroad and elsewhere. This toast having been formally drunk, the visitors replied. In the progress of their remarks they gave some interesting details of foreign Masonry, and both of them expressed the great pleasure they had received in visiting the Francis Burdett Lodge, and concluded by stating that they had never heard the impressive and beautiful lecture on the First Tracing Board better rendered. "The Health of the I.P.M. and Secretary" was proposed by the S.W. in a very neat speech, and having been received with capital "fire," Bro. Wigginton responded. In the course of his reply he stated that it was exceedingly pleasing to him, as one of the founders of the lodge, to witness the great progress it had made in every way. He augured a very bright future for the Francis Burdett, whose position in the province was very high indeed. In conclusion, he deplored the circumstances that had prevented the W.M. from attending that evening, but hoped that they would see him in his position at their next meeting. The remaining toasts, "The Treasurer," "The Principal Officers," and "The Junior Officers," were given quickly, and severally acknowledged by Bros. Tomlinson, Treas.; Knaggs, S.W.; Taylor, S.D.; and Ashley, I.G. The brethren separated at eleven o'clock. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the second Wednesday in April.

on Friday evening, the 16th inst., at the Freemasons' Hall, William-street, the proceeds arising from which were dedicated to the funds of the lodge, and a most successful and pleasant evening was the result, although had all who purchased tickets attended the crush would have certainly destroyed the comfort. As it was some seventy couples attended, and although no pretence had been made as to calling it a ball, but rather an evening party, sociable and formless, yet the ladies were in most cases elegantly attired in ball costume, and seemed thoroughly determined to assert their right to supremacy, not only by their charms, but by the taste and splendour of their surroundings. Bros. J. McCaffery and Deeves were the courteous and obliging M.C.'s, and Bro. G. Smith led the orchestra through waltz, polka, quadrille, redowa, &c., till the dawn of day began to creep through the lights overhead. Bros. P.M.'s Croisdale and Pownall, and the W.M. of the lodge, Bro. W. Weston, were indefatigable in promoting the comfort of their guests, among whom were many of the most prominent Masons and inhabitants of the town. Of course there were smoking and card rooms, where a quiet rubber or fragrant weed could be indulged in, and, in fact, nothing was wanted to make it, as it certainly was, a pleasure and a success, both socially and pecuniarily.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—On Friday evening, the 16th inst., a special meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, the occasion being the presentation of new chairs by the W.M. and I.P.M., and also at a later period of a silver cup to Bro. Moore. The chair of K.S. was occupied by Bro. Capt. Garnett, W.M. There was a good attendance of members, the following visitors being also present, at the special invitation of the W.M.: Bros. H. Longman, I.P.M.; W. J. Sly, P.M.; J. T. Jackson, J.D.; Count Vandolini, 1051; E. Simpson, P.M.; John Hatch, P.M.; T. Atkinson, I.P.M.; J. J. Croskell, J.D.; and J. Atkinson, I.G. (Freemason) 281. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the Secretary read the circular convening the meeting, after which the W.M., in a few well-chosen words, presented a W.M.'s chair to the lodge. Bro. Dr. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of E., the I.P.M., then presented a Past Master's chair to the lodge. On the motion of the S.W. (Bro. Duff), seconded by the J.W. (Bro. T. Longmire), a hearty vote of thanks was accorded Bros. Garnett and Moore, for their very handsome presents to the lodge. Two candidates were proposed, one as a joining member, and the other for initiation, after which the lodge was closed in peace, love, and harmony. The W.M.'s chair is a beautiful piece of workmanship in the Elizabethan style, with twisted pillars up the back and twisted legs, the arms terminating in a griffin's head, the wings of which extend backwards, so as to form, as it were, a support for the arms. On a small brass shield, fixed to the back of the chair, is the following inscription:—"Presented to the Morecambe Lodge, No. 1561, by Bro. C. H. Garnett, W.M., 5th January, 1877." The I.P.M.'s chair is also a very handsome one, but in the Gothic style, with twisted legs, the arms terminating in a lion's head, and which has been made from designs furnished by Bro. Dr. Moore. This chair has also a small brass shield affixed to the back, on which is engraved:—"Presented to the Morecambe Lodge, No. 1561, by Bro. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England, First W.M. of the lodge, 5th January, 1877." The chairs are made of Dantzic oak, highly polished, and upholstered in dark green Ureth velvet, with deep fringe to match, which gives them a very nice and handsome appearance. There is also a considerable amount of carving about the chairs, the whole of which is capitally done. The business of the lodge being concluded the brethren adjourned to Bro. Longmire's, King's Arms Hotel, where a capital banquet had been prepared at the expense of the W.M., the brethren dining in clothing, for which a special dispensation had been obtained. Bro. Capt. Garnett, the W.M., presided, having on his immediate right and left the invited guests. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given and responded to, the Chairman rose and said: I now rise to perform a very pleasant task, but at the same time an arduous one. I say arduous one because I am rather afraid I shall fail to make known the great interest every one here feels in the ceremony of this evening. It is not necessary to state what that ceremony is, namely, to ask Bro. Moore's acceptance of some token of our universal esteem and regard. Every brother sitting in this room knows how energetically he has worked for years to promote and increase the well-being of the Craft in general. We also know, as members of the Morecambe Lodge, how deeply we are indebted to him for all the kindness he has shown to us. In all cases of difficulty, or when we were at a loss about anything, we had nothing to do but apply to him, and if he could help us he was never found to fail us. We know, also, how willing and anxious he has been at all times to give us the benefit of his advice and experience. Such being the case, it is with feelings of gratitude that I acknowledge—and not only on my own part, but on that of all the members of the lodge—the great interest he has taken in our lodge, and the ready assistance he has given us at all times. I trust Bro. Moore will look upon the small present we are about to give him not only as the gift of the Morecambe Lodge, but as the gift of each individual member of it. I think the fewer words I say the better, and therefore I will conclude by thanking him once more for myself, and for the lodge, for the great interest he has taken in us. [Then turning to Bro. Moore, the Chairman continued:] Bro. Moore, in the name of the Morecambe Lodge I have the honour to-night to present you with this silver cup, as a token of our universal esteem and regard. And I cannot add more fitting words than by wishing in their name, that health and every happiness in the future may be yours. Bro. Moore, who was evidently unprepared for the nature of the present, said, in acknowledging the gift:

I feel I can scarcely thank you in the manner I ought to do for the handsome testimonial you have presented to me; and not only for the gift and for the kindly feelings expressed towards myself, but also for your appreciation of my humble efforts on behalf of the lodge as W.M. I can but thank you for the very flattering terms in which you have presented me with this cup. I looked upon it as a matter of congratulation to myself when I was asked at the formation of the lodge to come down, amongst a number of other Masons residing in the neighbourhood, and assist in its formation; and also again, when I was asked to occupy the proud position which you, as Worshipful Master, occupy at the present time. I never missed an opportunity of attending the meetings when it was possible to be there, and though I have missed one or two, those who know me best know that the reason was because I could not, and not because I would not. I feel I cannot say what I ought to do, but I thank you very much, and I shall look on this gift you have presented me with as one of the brightest gifts I ever received, and shall always look upon it as associated and carrying with it, not only the regard of the Morecambe Lodge itself, but of every member connected with it, and of you as Worshipful Master. The cup, which was a very handsome silver one, beautifully and chastely engraved, standing about a foot in height, bore the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. J. D. Moore, P.G.S.B. of England, by the brethren of the Morecambe Lodge, No. 1561, as a token of their esteem, and in recognition of his valuable services to the lodge, Feb. 16th. 1877." At a later period of the evening Bro. Moore proposed "Success to the Morecambe Lodge," and asked the brethren to drink it out of the cup just presented to him, which he should always look upon as a loving cup, and a bond of brotherhood between himself and the Morecambe Lodge. The cup was then filled with champagne and passed round the table. Other toasts followed, and a very pleasant evening was spent.

INSTRUCTION.

PRINCE FREDERICK WILLIAM LODGE (No. 753).—On Wednesday evening the brethren of this Lodge of Instruction, held their annual meeting at Lord's Hotel, St. John's Wood. It was a festive night, and there was no lodge work; but a handsome supper was provided, to which over fifty of the brethren sat down. The chair was occupied by Bro. Blyth, and the post of S.W. by Bro. Davis. Bro. J. Austen, P.M., 753, took the chair of J.W. Among the other brethren present were Helson, P.M. 733, P.G.P. of Middlesex; Healing, P.M. 59; Treadwell, P.M. 177; Garrod, W.M. 1549; Ivy, W.M. 733; Hill, P.M. East-rut Star; Austen, J.P.M., P.M. 753; H. Stacey, P.M. 733; T. C. Walls, S.D. 1381, &c.; Braun, P.M. 766; G. Pringle, S.W. 753; Stacey; W. Smith, 1319; Greenhill, 1319; and H. Massey (Freemason). The brethren took this opportunity of presenting to Bro. F. G. Baker, the Preceptor of the Lodge of Instruction, with a handsome testimonial in the shape of a massive gold locket and watch chain, and to add to the pleasure of the evening, Bros. W. Smith, 1319, and Greenhill, 1319, gave their services at the piano and harmonium, and brought up Bro. Greenhill's choir of boys to sing. Messrs. Chappell, of Bond-street, lent the harmonium. After the supper had been partaken of, grace was sung by the choir, and the loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed. The chairman then rose to propose the toast of the evening, which was "The Health of Bro. Baker." In doing so he said it had been thought by many of the brethren of the Prince Frederick William Lodge of Instruction that their Preceptor was worthy of some great mark of their favour for the untiring way in which he had carried out his duties for so many, many years. He (the Chairman) as well as many others, had benefited by the zeal which Bro. Baker had shown, not only in Freemasonry generally, but towards individual Freemasons. Many there were who could thoroughly re-echo those words, and to mark their sense of his services they had assisted in getting up a testimonial to him, as a token of their esteem. It afforded him (the chairman) much pride and pleasure to be in that position that evening, and being the medium through which the testimonial was offered. He felt that Bro. Baker was justly entitled to this testimonial, for he had for many years been the Preceptor of the lodge. He hoped he would live long to wear and enjoy it, and that it would never be tarnished; and he also hoped that all the brethren would live long to benefit by the instruction which Bro. Baker was so well able to impart. Bro. Baker, in reply, said that the saying had come down to us that "out of the fulness of heart the mouth speaketh." On this occasion his heart was too full for him to express his sentiments rightly. The kind way in which the W.M. had proposed his health was deserving of better thanks than he could give. Still, he would endeavour to render himself worthy of it. The way in which the brethren had responded to the toast shewed that they reciprocated the W.M.'s expressions. He needed not this testimonial to impress on his mind the duties he owed to the brethren, but he had always endeavoured to perform his duties, and this testimonial was more than a sufficient reward. It had been got up entirely unknown to him, but he should look upon it as a token and emblem of the brethren's good feelings towards him. Seven years ago, when the lodge was held at the Knights of St. John, a silver tankard was presented to him, and that testimonial was got up entirely unknown to him, and it was, as the present testimonial was an incentive to him to go on in the future as he had gone on in the past. This lodge of instruction was established in 1858, and ever since then he had been a member of it. There were 54 brethren present at the meeting in 1858, and it had ever since been carried on in strict accordance with Masonic rule. The brethren had always shown towards him good feeling, and had conducted their proceedings with order and regularity, so it was a great pleasure to preside over them. There had never been any discussion, and the brethren had always paid due deference to their Presiding Officer. Every brother present could bear him out in that. Among the brethren whom he had taught the duties of Freemasonry, he had seen brethren go through their work in their regular lodges and instal their successors. It was a gratification to him to have trained such Masons, and it amply repaid him for the time he had devoted to their instruction. He had made it his study to give the rituals as correctly as they could be given. He wished to see every brother carry out the same object. As regarded the lodge dues they had given nearly 60 guineas to the charities of the Order, and five guineas more were voted last night. He hoped to make it up to 20 guineas shortly. The testimonial the brethren had just given him would spur him on to fresh efforts, and he hoped with the W.M. to be spared many years to come to meet the brethren in that Lodge of Instruction. If he had health and strength he should always continue in the same path. It was a great pride to him to see so many brethren around the table, but he could not help feeling that he was not deserving of so much consideration. As long as he had the testimonial he should remember the happy evening he had spent. He hoped they would all keep in the same path of rectitude as hitherto, and anything he could do in the future to keep them in that path, whether by private instruction or in the lodge, he should always do with pleasure both in the Craft and in the Royal Arch. (Cheers.) Bro. Baker, before sitting down, thanked the brethren again for the handsome present they had made to him. The S.W. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," and the W.M. having replied, the other toasts were given in regular order, and the brethren separated.

STAR LODGE (No. 1275).—It may be remembered that some three months ago this lodge wound up the autumn series of section workings; on Saturday last they inaugurated what may be termed the February celebrations. The fact of the lodge being the first to work the Sections at the present season in the neighbourhood it was thought would produce a larger attendance than upon the last occasion, when the Star boys "whipped in" the Wellington, Union Waterloo, and others. But alas! the muster at the Marquis was a poor one. There were great doings at Anderton's in town, and the presentation of a testimonial to a local brother (F. Walters) had the effect of taking many members of the lodge off to Fleet-street. Soon after seven o'clock Bro. Govan Macdonald, W.M. 1158, Preceptor of the lodge, entered lodge, and at once repaired to the chair of K.S. and appointed his officers as follows:—Bros. Davison, W.M. 99, S.W.; Ernest E. Smith, J.W.; Millburn, S.D.; Reade, J.D.; Grumant, I.G.; Church, Assist. Sec.; and Christopher, Tyler. The lodge was then opened in the First Degree, and the First Lecture worked thus:—

The lodge having been resumed in the First Degree, the W.M. rose for the first time, and three brethren were elected joining members of the lodge. At the third rising the customary vote of thanks was passed to the W.M. for presiding, and the lodge was closed at 10.30.

LIVERPOOL.—De Grey and Ripon Lodge (No. 1356).—The annual meeting of the members of the Lodge of Instruction attached to the "De Grey and Ripon," which meets at the Masonic Hall, North Hill Street, Liverpool, took place on Wednesday evening, the 7th inst., when Bro. T. Horne, W.M. of 1356, was duly inducted into the chair of the Preceptor, by Bro. Joseph Bell, I.P.M., the former Preceptor. There was a good gathering of the Instruction Lodge, which has proved a valuable seminary for many of its members, and after the short business connected with the induction had been transacted, the assembled brethren sat down to a splendid dinner provided by Bro. Burgess, 1356. After the loyal toasts, given by Bro. Horne, the health of the newly-chaired Worshipful Preceptor was proposed by Bro. J. Bell, Past Preceptor, who referred to the pleasure it gave him to submit this toast. He had no doubt that Bro. Horne would fulfil the important duties of Preceptor with credit to himself, and with great advantage to those connected with the Lodge of Instruction. He was sure that every one round that table would echo the desire that Bro. Horne might be long spared to fulfil the duties of the office he had that evening assumed. The toast was drunk with enthusiasm. In acknowledging the compliment, Bro. Horne said he considered it indeed a high honour which had been conferred upon him that evening. With the example of eminent brethren who had filled the Preceptor's office before him, he assured those present that he would endeavour to follow in their footsteps. He now asked for the cordial support of the brethren, and he assured them that at all times he would do his utmost to fulfil his duties to their entire satisfaction, and for their benefit, getting the very best information on all Masonic points which might arise. Bro. Horne next proposed "The Past Preceptors," and spoke highly of the manner in which they had fulfilled their duties in connection with office. Bros. J. Bell, I.P.P., and T. Evans, P.M., P.P., responded in suitable terms, the former thanking the brethren for the support they had given him, the latter dwelling especially on the necessity and usefulness of the lodge of instruction as a training school for future officers. During the evening excellent songs were given by Bros. Squire, Woolrich, Bell, Evans, Bromley, Nickson, McVicker, &c.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—The usual weekly meeting of the above lodge was held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion Road, Dalston, on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at 8 p.m. Present: Bros. Brasted, W.M.; R. Coombs, S.W.; Anshall, J.W.; Hewlett, S.D.; J. Larkin, J.D.; Dignam, I.G.; Fieldwicke, Preceptor; and Bros. Hill, George, G. Ferrar, Appleby, C. Larkin, O. Dietrich, J. Lowe, Polack, Shackleton, B. Meyer, G. Streeton, Bonner, and others. Business: Lodge opened in due form with prayer; minutes read and confirmed. Bro. O. Dietrich was interrogated and entrusted. Lodge opened in Second Degree. Bro. Dietrich was passed to degree of a Fellow Craft. The First Section of the Lecture was worked by Bro. Shackleton, assisted by the brethren, the Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth by Bro. Hewlett, assisted by the brethren. Lodge closed in the Second Degree. The First and Second Sections of the Lecture was worked by Bro. Hewlett, assisted by the brethren; Bro. Appleby, S.W. 174, was unanimously elected a joining member. Bro. Coombs was elected W.M. for the the ensuing week.

Royal Arch.

JERUSALEM CHAPTER (No. 185).—A meeting of the members of this chapter took place at the Freemasons' Tavern, Great Queen-street, on Tuesday, the 13th inst. Amongst those present were Comps. Loewenstark, P.Z., acting as M.E.Z.; Elsam, H.; Wagner, J.; Davage, P.Z., S.E.; Harfeld, P.Z., Treas.; Robinson, S.N.; Mander, P.S.; Walls, and Ass. Soj.; Holbrook, P.Z. The minutes of the December convocation having been read and confirmed, the election of officers took place, which resulted unanimously in favour of Comps. Elsam, as M.E.Z.; Wagner, H.; Robinson, J.; Mander, S.N.; Walls, P.S.; Davage, S.E.; Harfeld, Treas.; Bentley, Janitor. The chapter shortly afterwards closed, and the companions adjourned to the banquet. Upon the withdrawal of the cloth the customary Royal Arch toasts were given and duly honoured. "The Health of the acting M.E.Z." was proposed by Comp. Holbrook, P.Z., who in the course of his remarks said that although Comp. Loewenstark that evening had had no work to do yet had the candidates been present he was positive he would have carried out the ceremony of exaltation well. In conclusion he hoped that their acting M.E. would be spared many years to come amongst them. This toast having been duly honoured the M.E.Z. replied by thanking Comp. Holbrook for the honour he had done him by proposing his health. The Jerusalem Chapter was in a very flourishing condition, and long might it continue so. As an old Past Principal he felt pleased at occupying the chair that evening, and the companions might always depend upon his being present—health permitting—to assist in the labours of the chapter. "The Health of the M.E.Z. elect" followed, in which the M.E. stated that he had witnessed with pleasure the working of Comp. Elsam in the minor offices of the chapter. He had done good suit and service in many other ways, and he, Comp. Loewenstark, looked forward with favourable anticipation to his year of office. Comp. Elsam in reply expressed his thanks to the M.E. for the kind and cordial manner in which he had proposed his health. He had endeavoured to discharge the duties of the respective inferior offices well, and he hoped to carry out the important responsibilities of the First Principal's chair to the satisfaction of the companions. In conclusion he stated that no time or trouble would be spared by him during the recess to master the ritual appertaining to his position. "The Health of the Second and Third Principal elect" was then proposed. The M.E. in the course of his remarks stated that Comps. Wagner and Robinson were capital officers. The first-named would carry out the duties of H. zealously, faithfully, and impartially. The latter had not been so long connected with the R.A. Degree as he, Comp. Wagner, had, but he was equally as zealous, and he was certain that the work of the Third Principal's chair would not suffer in his hands. The companions thus honoured having briefly expressed their thanks, the M.E. gave "The Past Principals," "The Treasurer and S.E.," and "The Officers," which toasts were acknowledged by Comps. Holbrook, P.Z.; Harfeld, Treas.; Davage, S.E.; and Mander, S.N. elect, for themselves and absent colleagues. During the evening Comps. Mander, Robinson, Walls, Davis, and others entertained the companions, who separated at an advanced hour, until the second Tuesday in April next, when Comp. Elsam will be duly installed M.E.Z.

PANMURE CHAPTER (No. 720).—This chapter held its regular quarterly meeting on Monday, the 12th inst., at the Horns Tavern, Kennington, S.E. Present: Ex. Comps. the Rev. W. B. Church, M.E.Z.; Newington Bridges, H.; George Waterall, J.; James Stevens, P.Z.; and Scribe E.; M. S. Larham, Scribe N.; Thomas Poore, P.S.; R. N. Field, 1st A.S.; A. C. Burrell, 2nd A.S.; John Gilbert, Janitor. Also Past First Principals, Charles Hammerton, Henry Smith, and R. H. Harvey, and Comps.

Thos. Meggy, F.W. Levander, S. Poynter, and others, and visitor Ex. Comp. S. H. Wagstaff, H. of the Macdonald Chapter, No. 1216. The chapter having been duly opened by the Principals, and the companions assembled, a ballot was taken for Bro. M. Keith Frith, Barrister, of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, and that proving unanimous, Bro. Frith was duly introduced and exalted into the Order. The officers for the ensuing year were then elected, with the following result, viz., Ex. Comps. Bridges, M.E.Z.; Waterall, H.; Larham, J.; James Stevens, P.Z. (ninth election), Scribe E.; Thomas Poore, Scribe N.; H. C. Levander, P.Z. (eighth re-election), Treas.; R. F. Field, P.S.; Thos. Meggy, Steward; and John Gilbert, Janitor. The jewel of the chapter was unanimously voted to the retiring M.E.Z., the Rev. W. B. Church. Propositions for exaltation at the ensuing convocation were received, and the chapter was duly closed. Refreshment followed labour, and a most enjoyable evening was, as is usual whenever the Panmure companions meet, spent before separation.

Mark Masonry.

MACDONALD LODGE (No. 104).—An emergency meeting of this lodge was held at the Masons' Hall, Masons' Avenue, Coleman-street, E.C., on Friday, the 16th inst. To the great regret of the members, the W.M., Bro. T. White, was, in consequence of temporary indisposition, unable to attend. In his absence, the I.P.M., W. Bro. R. Berridge, opened the lodge, assisted by Bros. Alfred Williams, P.G.S., S.W., North Richerdon, J.W.; Edward Moody, M.O.; F. H. Cozens, S.O.; W. P. Collins, J.O.; N. J. F. Basnett, S.D.; G. Yaxley, J.D.; G. K. Pitt, I.G.; Past Masters the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., Treas.; the V.W. Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O. and P. Prov. Grand Secretary Middx. and Surrey; the W. Bro. Charles Hammerton, P.G.D.C., Sec.; the W. Bro. William Worrell, P.G. Org.; and Bros. C. A. Heinmann, W. Johnston, J. Williams, J. Close, F. G. Raggett, H. F. Partridge, and W. Grant; and also visitors the W. Bros. H. C. Levander, Grand Registrar, and P.M. St. Marks, No. 1; J. Boyd, St. Marks, No. 1; and J. Lewis Thomas, Thistle, No. 8. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read, a ballot was taken for Bro. Theodore Alexandre De Leliva, of The Great City Lodge, No. 1426, as a candidate for advancement, which proving unanimous, that brother was duly admitted to the privileges of the Order. There was no further business before the lodge on this occasion, and the opportunity afforded by spare time was utilised by the distribution to the several officers of a set of new collars of elegant design, which were much admired. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet. A very pleasant evening was spent, the visitors expressing themselves highly gratified with the position and progress of the lodge, which certainly is entitled, both in respect of working and hospitality, to the high rank it has always maintained in the Order of Mark Masters.

A regular lodge meeting was held on the 17th, at which a large majority of those present on the previous evening attended, and in addition Bros. Wotton, Cromelin, and Drewett. The business was purely formal, and of interest only in confirming a resolution, "That the regular lodge meetings be in future held on the third Fridays in the months of June, October, February, and April." This was agreed to unanimously, and the lodge was closed and adjourned to Friday, the 20th April.

ERA LODGE (No. 176).—The regular meeting of this well-established lodge was held on Friday, February 9th, at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark. Bro. John Baxter Langley, P.G.J.W. Middlesex and Surrey presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, were unanimous in favour of the admission of Bros. Louis Beck, S.D. 1559, and E. Dietrich, 1524. The work was done in an able manner by the W.M. for the advancement of Bro. Louis Beck, S.D. 1559; Ernest Dietrich, 1524; and Thomas William Adams, S.W. 1623, who seemed fully impressed by the beautiful ancient ceremony. Bro. F. Walters, P.G.P., P.M., Sec., read the bye-laws. The ballots were unanimous in favour of Bro. Rev. P.M. Holden, S.W., being W.M. Bro. H. A. Dubois, P.M., re-elected Treasurer. Bro. W. Laing, on a show of hands being taken, was re-elected Tyler. On motion made by Bro. P.M. Holden, seconded by J.W. Bro. T. Horton, and unanimously confirmed, it was resolved that the usual five guinea Past Master's jewel be given to Bro. J. Baxter Langley, W.M., for his services rendered to the lodge as the third W.M., and one of the founders. Bro. J. B. Shackleton, B. Meyer, and L. Beck, were recommended by the lodge for Provincial Grand Lodge honours. Some candidates were proposed for advancement. The lodge was closed, and adjourned to Friday, June 8th, to meet at six p.m. Banquet followed. There were not any visitors present.

SHEERNESS-ON-SEA.—Adam's Mark Lodge (No. 6).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Victoria Hall Buildings, on Tuesday, the 30th ult., and was well attended. The W.M., Bro. Alexander Spears, P. Prov. G. Reg. of Marks, was supported by the V.W. Bros. Frederick Binckes, P.G.J.W. and G. Sec.; Samuel Lambert Townsend, Prov. G.J.W.; James J. Nixon, Prov. G.S.O.; Lewis Finch, Prov. G. Treas.; Henry A. Johnson, Prov. G.I. of Works; John L. Ellerm, Prov. G. Sec.; Edward James Penney, Prov. G. Reg. of Marks; Joseph Richard Brett, Prov. G.S.B.; George Thomas Green, Prov. G. Org.; and George Page, P. Prov. G.J.W. The W.M. elect, Bro. John Bagshaw, P. Prov. G. Asst. Sec., was presented to the V.W. Bro. F. Binckes, G. Sec., the Installing Master, and was duly installed into the chair of H., in such a manner as it is needless to say the brethren were delighted with the splendid ceremony they witnessed, and so perfect as to call forth the well deserved acknowledgments to Bro.

F. Binckes for his kindness in coming down from London on this occasion. The following officers were appointed and invested for the ensuing year by Bro. A. Spears, I.P.M. and Treasurer:—Bros. T. J. Firmin, S.W.; E. J. Penney, J.W.; J. R. Brett, M.O.; A. Steadman, S.O.; H. A. Johnson, J.O.; G. Perkins, Sec. and Reg. of Marks; C. Austin, S.D.; C. T. Green, J.D.; T. G. Redmand, I.G.; C. Beck, Steward, and J. Akhurst, Tyler. The ceremonies being over, and before closing the lodge, the W.M. expressed his regret that, through circumstances over which he had no control, he was compelled to be absent from the banquet, but he felt that they would have a very enjoyable evening under the presidency of Bro. A. Spears, I.P.M. The lodge was then closed in due and ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the Britannia Hotel to a splendid banquet, provided by Bro. G. T. Green. After a very pleasant evening, and usual loyal and Masonic toasts, the brethren, separated well satisfied with their labour and refreshment.

Knights Templar.

LIVERPOOL.—Alpess Encampment (No. 123).—A conclave of the above-named encampment was held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, on the evening of the 31st January, for the instalment of candidates and other business. There were present Sir Knights J. E. Jackson, E.C.; H. S. Alpess, P.E.C.; W. Doyle, P.E.C.; T. Clark, P.E.C.; M. Mawson, First Captain; W. H. Shakespeare, Registrar; J. Kenyon, Expert; J. Capel, Almoner; T. Evans, Standard Bearer; J. Callagher, Captain of Lines; J. W. Widdows, Herald; P. Ball, Equerry; W. Fletcher, H. Burrows, T. Chesworth, H. Firth. The visitors were Sir Knights Captain T. Berry, P.E.C. Jacques de Molay, and Joseph Wood, (Freemason). The encampment was effectively opened by Sir Knight J. E. Jackson, E.C., and he afterwards installed Comp. Quentin John Ballard, of the Fermor Hesketh Lodge, No. 1350, and Fidelity Chapter, 477; and Comp. Joseph Skeaf, Harmonic Lodge and Sacred Delta Chapter, 216, as knights of the Order. Sir Knight Alpess, P.E.C., ably assisted in the ceremony. Sir Knight Richard Brown, Second Captain, was nominated and elected Eminent Commander for the ensuing year, and Sir Knight Henry Firth was elected the Treasurer for the same period. After business the assembled knights sat down to a splendid banquet.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Previously to the opening of the lodge the Board of Masters met and received the notices of motion for Grand Lodge on Wednesday week. At the lodge Bro. Clabon, P.G.D., the President of the Lodge of Benevolence, presided; Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, and Bro. James Brett, P.G.P., Junior Vice-President, were in their respective chairs. Bro. John Hervey, G.S., Bro. H. G. Buss, Prov. G.J.W. Middlesex, and Bro. A. A. Pendlebury, attended. Among the other brethren present were the Earl of Shrewsbury and Talbot, Prov. G.M. of Staffordshire; the Earl of Donoughmore, S.G.W.; Lord Balfour of Burleigh, P.S.G.W.; W. W. B. Beach, Prov. G.M. Hants and Isle of Wight; Rev. C. J. Martyn, P.G.C., D.G.M. Suffolk; Lord Holmesdale, P.G.M. Kent; Rev. R. J. Simpson, P.G.C.; Col. Burney; J. M. Case, G.D.; F. Binckes, P.G.S.; W. J. Murlis, H. Dicketts, T. Cubitt, P.G.P., W. Stevens, W. Mann, Griffiths Smith, W. Hilton, Thos. W. White, P.G.S., W. T. Howe, H. Mugeridge, E. P. Albert, G.P., David Rose, H. Garrod, W. H. Myers, H. Bartlett, C. A. Cottebrune, C. F. Hogard, W. A. Tinney, Joseph Smith, P.G.P., W. Smith, C.E., E. J. Harty, H. Massey (Freemason), S. Rawson, P. Dist, G.M. of China, F. Davison, S. F. Foxall, A.G.P., J. Bingemann, W. Ough, P.G.P., Dr. Erasmus Wilson, Cooper Smith, A. J. D. Fielder, P.G.S.B., Thos. Walton, G. W. Speth, Geo. R. Corner, T. H. Turner, John Nicholas, H. Higgins, Henry Venn, J. W. Danser, F. Pendred, K. Bergmann, W. Browne Kidder, W. C. Holland, John Boyd, James West, A. J. Thomas, Philip Cooke, Thos. Randall, John Eldridge, Robt. Secker, Edmund Nash, William Leach, C. J. Rushworth, E. Legg, W. E. Newton, J. Chambers Roe, Geo. Brooke, J. E. Le Feuvre, T. Knowles, S. R. Speight, G. W. F. Loftus, M. Davis, Samuel Gamman, J. B. Shackleton, John Gale, E. F. Storr, James Shee, W. J. Lover, M. S. Larham, W. T. Scott, R. H. Evans, Richard Shander, Geo. Ward, Challis, S. Wardlaw, C. S. Cobham, W. F. Tabby, John Walker, Benj. Head, James Mason, Charles Atkins, H. Whittick, and A. M. Thomas. Above ninety brethren were present.

The grants of £270 made at last Grand Lodge were first confirmed, and the brethren then proceeded with the new cases, of which there were eighteen on the list. These were relieved with the following sums:—One of £150; two of £50 each; two of £30 each; five of £20 each; four of £15 each; three of £10 each; and one £3.

The lodge was then closed, after having sat for three hours.

FRENCH MASONRY.

Although the ultramontane assailants of Freemasonry have often pointed to the Masonry of France, and denounced it not only as revolutionary, but anti-Christian, there was no reason to believe they were right; and further than that, there has been a sort of Masonry which we are told had a political bias, and which they sought to make the world believe was universal, rather than confined to France. At the time of the French revolution it was said that Masonry was made to do duty for the unholy cause, just as any other well intentioned institution might have been compelled to aid in the work of the revolutionists; but that was not the fault of Masonry, for none save unscrupulous men would have used it in furthering their designs. It is rather too much to denounce Freemasonry because in perilous times like those alluded to, when the whole country was in a state of ferment—the services of the Order were, as alleged, called in to do service against the constituted authorities. With such Masonry there could not be, as there certainly was not, any sympathy among true Masons; it had no affinity whatever with real Masonry. Still, on the alleged ground that French Masonry has and is synonymous with Masonry the world over, the true and good have been stigmatized as unworthy of approbation. Of course we can make allowance for the infatuated zeal of those who seem to consider they have a mission to crush out Masonry, but we do not excuse them for the violence with which they assail the Order from a false stand-point.

We regret to find that our Roman Catholic assailants are likely to have good grounds for asserting that French Masonry at least has something of an infidel cast, if it be true as stated, that the French Grand Orient has permitted the existence of the Deity to be ignored by certain proceedings of that body. We would fain hope there is a misapprehension somewhere, but the fact that the Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of English Freemasons, and the London Freemason, direct particular attention to the matter, makes it look as if there were too much truth about it. Bro. Hervey, in addressing the members of a lodge, recently said he could not refrain from alluding to certain proceedings which were going on in the Grand Orient of France, which, speaking entirely as an individual, he thought must at no distant period engage the attention of the Grand Lodge of England—proceedings which struck at the very root of Freemasonry, and which he only viewed with dismay and alarm. The Freemason calls Bro. Caubet's attention to the remarks of the Grand Secretary, and expresses the hope that the warning notes will be taken in good part, and adds: "We quite admit the independence of national Grand Lodges, but there is one universal law of Masonry, which no particular section of the great family can contravene without damage to itself, and without disrespect to the other portions. The unchanged law of a million of Anglo-Saxon Freemasons is the recognition of the existence of God, and if French Freemasonry takes that truth from its formalities, it separates itself necessarily from Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, and assumes for itself, as French Freemasons have themselves clearly seen, a position of melancholy isolation and baneful negativism." There can hardly be any doubt that if the Bible is to be expelled from the French lodges, the next step will be to admit those who have no belief whatever in the existence of a Supreme Being.—Craftsman.

MASONIC SECRECY.

The secrecy of Masonry is its only sybil-voice proclaiming, "Procul O, procul este profani." It is only the secrecy of the lawyer to his client; of the minister to his penitent; of the physician to his patient; or of friend to friend. This trustworthy confidence is the glory of man; scandal dies like an echo on the shore where the tongue is bridled by truth and honour. "Where there is no tale-bearer the strife ceaseth." Wrench from the heart of a Mason the secret of his brother: and from the same heart you may blot out the image of his God, the vows made to a fond and confiding wife, or the duty he owes to his children, to country and to home. The betrayer of secrets is a moral renegade, too foul for the atmosphere of honour, he is the Judas of friendship and the assassin of character.

Nor never need an honest open-hearted Mason fear that the better part of creation will urge against his Order to its detriment the circumstance that the ladies are not admitted into the membership among Free and Accepted Masons. Let him tell what is the fact that Minerva, the goddess of Wisdom, presides at the Mason's Lodge, in which she would have indeed but a divided empire if the goddess of Beauty were admitted along with her. We surely would not trust Venus and Minerva together in our lodges, lest we should become too much distracted with the blandishments of Beauty to bear all the severer teachings of Wisdom. But it will be high time to attempt a laboured defence of this Masonic usage when a lady shall complain of it, or when she shall refuse to make a secret loving Mason the lord of her affections; pillowing on her pure heart, both the unlocked casket and the secret which it contains. Ah, could she make him a renegade to honour, how would she loathe him. How unsafe in such hands and in such keeping would she consider her own fame and those gems of affection which woman never gives save to the trusty, the brave, the unconquerable, the inflexible in purpose.

There is a sublime secret connected with every thing that is valuable. Says the great light of Masonry, the Bible, "the secret of the Lord is with them that fear Him." There is a secret in each profession of life, in every science, in every beautiful art. There is a secret in love, an outspoken language that sometimes glances from the eye, but which is often hid by virgin modesty until the heart becomes an urn of suffering, in which the fires of hidden attachment crimson the incense of the affections. There is a secret in haste, whispered only to the moon as its pale cold eyes gleams on the assassin's dagger. There are secrets ever in nature, from the pedestal to the capital of the Universe, over which the mysterious eye of Omniscience burns with its secret meaning.—Masonic Record.

The volunteer officers connected with the Home District have resolved to hold a review in the neighbourhood of Dunstable on Easter Monday.

ALONG THE HIGHWAY OF MASONRY.

Among the many organizations in the world that have been instituted among men, there is not one in which the line of conduct of the members is more clearly defined than in the Fraternity of Free and Accepted Masons. There is none in which the member is bound by stronger obligations to pursue a steady course in the discharge of his duties as such, and to practice the precepts so prominently set up to teach him the way wherein he should walk. The highway of Masonry is not obscured with devious windings, a trail that can be followed only by carefully watching the marks left by those who have gone that way before, but a broad open road, through an open country, which may be easily followed by any one when once fairly started on his mystic journey. At every turn and cross road has been placed a finger post, upon which, in language intelligible to every well-informed Mason, he finds all needed instructions to enable him to travel in confidence, and in the full enjoyment of all his rights and privileges among his fellow travellers.

With a line of conduct so clearly defined, with obligations so strong to discharge every known duty, and with an open road before them so plain that none need go astray, it might be expected that there would be unanimity of thought and action among all Masons in their intercourse with each other, and especially that all would unite in preserving the Landmarks, and in upholding the principles and teachings of Masonry. It is, however, a fact much to be regretted that such is not the case. Instead of being thus united as one man, we find Masons often divided in opinions and in their course of action. If all were actuated by an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the Order, such would not be the case, for then we would find them acting more in harmony with each other.

While we believe that a very large proportion of Masons are honest in all that they do, it is evident that some are not, and that they are only seeking to promote their own individual interests in remaining members of the Order. They travel along in the good company of their worthy brethren, with a feigned zeal well calculated to mislead them in regard to their true character; and for a time, perhaps, succeed in pulling the wool over their eyes to the extent of securing for themselves the advantage of high official positions, which place them before the world as recognised, honoured leaders, enjoying the full confidence of the fraternity. Not having the true spirit of Masonry in them, we often find them opposed to measures that would be of undoubted benefit to the Craft, or advocating others that would work to its injury; when the one would interfere with some pet scheme of their own, or the other gratify the longings of a selfish ambition. They remain obedient to Masonic law so far as to protect themselves from charges of un-Masonic conduct, but where there is no fear of a penalty to restrain them they set it at defiance upon the slightest provocation. Thus they travel on, until their cupidity is discovered, and they are made to fall back to the rear, where they generally follow in forced submission until all hope of regaining their lost position has passed away, when at the first cross-road they desert from the ranks and strike for the camp of non-affiliates, and enlist under their banner, upon which is inscribed one significant word—Deserters.

There is another class of Masons, often found upon the highway of Masonry, who are active and officious, apparently well-meaning, and would do what is right if they only knew how; but who never make an effort to gain the information to qualify themselves to act until the very moment when action becomes necessary. They pass the finger-posts without observing the instructions upon them, and then halt the procession while they discuss the question whether they are on the right road or not.

Without the means at hand to arrive at a conclusion such discussions are worse than useless, for they consume valuable time, and still do not develop the desired information. Finally they move on, and to their mortification, find at last that they made a great mistake. One bright Mason is worth more to a lodge than a score of such members.

Another class of Masons—and we are sorry to say they are exceedingly numerous—are no better informed than those last described, and are this much worse that they don't seem to care whether they are right or wrong; they vote "hit or miss" on all questions with a sang froid that would have astonished King Solomon himself. Now we do really believe that they desire to do right, but are too indolent to make even an effort to find out whether they are or not. Perhaps they are not so much to blame as those who made them Masons.

There are other classes of Masons that we might mention in this connection, but we will let them rest till some future time. We do not expect much benefit from an article like this, for those for whom it is designed are seldom among those who read a Masonic journal. It is, however, the duty of all good Masons to make an effort to correct existing evils, and we have called the attention of our readers to a few such, hoping that they will endeavour, so far as in their power, to aid in bringing about a reformation among the classes we have named. By so doing they will not only benefit the parties themselves, but add to the happiness of the whole Fraternity.—Masonic Advocate.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Tumours, Glandular Swellings, and Bad Breasts.—If any departure from health requires earlier attention than another to prevent disastrous consequences, it is the class of diseases now under review. To save hazard and future pain, the budding tumour must have prompt treatment, or discomfort and nights of disquietude will be the sufferer's portion. Whenever the ailment first appears, after fomenting the spot with warm water, Holloway's Ointment must be energetically rubbed on the part till a considerable quantity is absorbed. The Pills, too, must be commenced with early. If these remedies be diligently persevered with, the simplest tumour or the contracted and stiff joint is arrested. In cases of bad breasts, with or without milk fever, relief is almost instantaneous.—Adv.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

The General Committee of this Institution held its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, in the Board-room, Freemasons' Hall, Bro. A. H. Tattershall in the chair. There were also present Bros. H. Browse, Thos. W. White, H. M. Levy, Griffiths Smith, Herbert Oicketts, Henry Venn, R. B. Webster, Major Finney, H. A. Dubois, John J. Stevens, John Boyd, H. Massey (Freemason), H. Potter, F. G. Baker, T. F. Peacock, H. G. Warren, A. H. Diaper, S. Rosenthal, J. A. Rucker, and R. W. Little (Secretary).

Two petitions were received, and the candidates placed on the list for election.

Bro. H. G. Warren gave notice of the following motion: "That having regard to the increased income of the Institution, and the altered position of Secretary and Collector, it is expedient that rules 74 and 75 shall be so amended that the Secretary shall give security for £1000, the Secretary's chief clerk £500, and any other clerks £250 each; such security to be provided from an approved Guarantee Society, and the premiums to be paid by this Institution, so as not to be a burden on the officials."

The Committee, after transacting some other business, passed a vote of thanks to the chairman.

THE WAY IT WORKS.

A physician in Washington, D.C., was called to visit professionally a young lady taken suddenly and seriously ill. Employed in one of the departments, she was comparatively without friends or resources, and when rendered helpless by disease, her condition was truly deplorable. The physician, ascertaining the name of his patient to be the same as a brother Mason in Boston, whom he had met some years previously, he inquired if she was related to this person. Being told that she was the daughter of this Fellow Craftsman, whom, it should be remembered, the physician only knew as a member of the fraternity, he not only gave to her skilful professional treatment, but saw that she wanted for nothing of care and proper nursing, and when she was sufficiently recovered to travel, he accompanied her on her journey, and was not content until he had placed her in her own Eastern home. Then, exchanging fraternal salutations with his old-time Masonic acquaintance, he returned to his work and calling, hardly conscious, perhaps, of the moving power that had influenced him to so noble a deed in the exercise of a large and generous charity. This incident is but one of a thousand which might be adduced to prove the power and worth of Masonry.—New York Dispatch.

Masonic and General Tidings.

A Masonic Ball, in connection with the Sir Hugh Myddelton Lodge, No. 1602, will be given on Wednesday next, February 28, at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, the proceeds of which will be devoted to the charitable institutions of the Order. There is a very long list of stewards for the occasion, comprising brethren from lodges 101, 141, 144, 167, 173, 185, 192, 217, 382, 405, 749, 754, 813, 861, 862, 911, 917, 1036, 1158, 1278, 1288, 1339, 1364, 1365, 1445, 1489, 1507, 1524, and 1602. Bro. E. Somers is Chairman of the Stewards, and Bro. J. H. Raffety, Treasurer. The M.C.'s are Bros. Thomas Meekham, T. Hadley Prestage, and R. G. Thomas. Bro. James Weaver's band is engaged. The hon. Secretaries are Bros. J. Osborn and J. Weston. The brethren are to appear in Craft clothing. A very pleasant evening is anticipated. Arrangements have been made that, in the event of the weather being unfavourable, all carriages will deliver visitors under cover at the foot of the staircase leading to the ball-room, and similar means adopted for their departure.

The Ivy lodge will hold an emergency meeting on the 27th inst. We were particularly struck with the original and artistic border of the summons, which reflects equal credit on the designer and the lodge.

The meetings of the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193, will be held in future at the Blue Anchor Tavern, Coleman-street, City.

Bro. George B. Abbott will deliver his fourth lecture upon the "History of the Craft" in the Confidence Lodge of Instruction, No. 193, on Wednesday next.

FRIENDLY CHAPTER, No. 239, KINGSTON, JAMAICA.—At a recent meeting of the above chapter, it was unanimously resolved to present Comp. Altamont De Cordova, P.Z., with a gold jewel, in recognition of his valuable services to the chapter during three consecutive years in which he held the distinctive office of Principal Z.

The name of Bro. Dr. H. J. Strong was omitted in our report in last week's issue, as being present at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

On Tuesday, the 21st instant, at the South Kensington Museum, the Princess Louise distributed prizes amongst the students who had taken part in the local and national competition of last year. The number of pupils at the two schools was reported to be 843, an increase of eighty-eight over 1875. The Marquis of Lorne afterwards addressed the company on behalf of her royal highness.

At the Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of Kansas, held at Emporia, October 18th, 1876. Bro. Jacob D. Rush, of Fort Scott, was elected Grand Master, and Bro. John H. Brown, of Wyandotte, was re-elected Grand Secretary.

We are asked to state that the London Masonic Club Lodge of Instruction meets at 101, Queen Victoria-street on the second and fourth Monday in every month at six o'clock.

The day of meeting of the Macdonald Mark Lodge, No. 104, has been changed from the third Saturday to the third Friday in February, April, June, and October.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—Bro. George Knill, for some time clerk in the office, offers himself as a candidate for the collectorship rendered vacant by the lamentable death of Bro. William Lane.

The Earl of Bandon, who had been suffering from heart disease, succumbed to an acute attack, at Castle Bernard, Cork, on Sunday evening last. His lordship, who was born in 1810, was educated at Eton and Oriel, and sat for Bandon from 1842 to 1856, in which year he succeeded his father. He married, in 1832, Catherine, eldest daughter of Mr. Whitmore, of Apley Park, Shropshire, by whom he leaves a son and six daughters. Viscount Bernard, now fourth earl, was born in 1850, and educated at Eton. He unsuccessfully contested his father's borough at the last general election. By the death of the late Lord Bandon, who was brother to the Bishop of Tuam, a representative peerage becomes vacant.

A very large meeting of the Fraternity was held on Tuesday last, in the Masonic Hall, Truro, to celebrate the constitution of the new Provincial Grand Chapter of Cornwall. The R.A. companions of this province have achieved a notable success, securing as they have so distinguished a Mason as the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, as Provincial Grand Superintendent. A full report of this gathering will appear in our next.

The election of the Committee of the Stock Exchange gives seven new members out of a total committee of thirty as the result of the recent agitation. Although this seems a small result, it would appear that the young men in the Stock Exchange have so far made their wishes felt that some revision of the rules may possibly be undertaken.

The Times says:—"Among the clerkships in the Civil Service about to be competed for next month are two junior clerkships in the Colonial Office. The salaries commence at £250 per annum, and rise by yearly increments to £600. Promotions are made from this class to the two higher classes, paid respectively £700 to £800, and £900 to £1000. Furnished rooms in the Colonial Office buildings, with special allowances, are assigned to two of the clerks. This is the first occasion on which any of the more highly paid clerkships in the Civil Service have been offered to public competition; and it is to be anticipated that the substantial advantages now offered, coupled with the nature of the work, will attract distinguished University men to whom a clerkship has not hitherto offered sufficient inducements."

The installation of Bro. H. Keeble, P.M. 1275, S.W. 73, &c., as W.M. of the New Cross Lodge, 1559, will take place this afternoon (Saturday) at the New Cross Public Hall. There is one raising, and nine candidates for the ballot.

An Indian chief lately died in Greenville, Maine; he was known as a faithful Mason. The Masons have erected a memorial tablet over his grave.

A new weekly paper called the Tatler appears to-day (Saturday). The editor has adopted the "nom-de-plume" of the celebrated original Isaac Bickerstaff, and desires to emulate the classical style of Richard Steele. We shall be glad if he even approaches success in his praiseworthy attempt.

The Marquis of Hartington, R.W.P.G.M. Derbyshire, has promised to preside at the anniversary festival of the Newspaper Press Association, which will be held at Willis's Rooms on the 5th of May.

His Majesty the Emperor of Austria, King of Hungary, has conferred on Mr. Nicholas Trübner, the publisher, of Ludgate-hill, the Knight Cross of the Order of Francis Joseph.

Mr. Rule, the general manager of the Standard Fire Office, died suddenly in Manchester on Sunday, the 4th inst. For the present the management has been entrusted to Bro. E. C. Massey.

On St. Valentine's Day a number of curiosities always pass through the Post-office in addition to the amorous and satirical missives from the stationers. This year there came to light in St. Martin's-le-Grand, a lady's wig, a baby's puff, a carrot, a pair of boots, a sausage, and a pig's tail.—City Press.

A course of free lectures to Jewish working men and their families are being delivered on Sunday evenings at the Jews' Infants' Schools, Commercial-st., on popular subjects, by well-known scientific and other gentlemen.

Bro. H.R.H. the Duke of Connaught is expected to arrive at Kilkenny Castle on Monday next, as guest of the Marquis and Marchioness of Ormonde.

Viscount Powerscourt on attending the Bray and Kingston Board of Guardians to-day for the first time since the shooting accident to his eye was received with loud cheers. The chairman, Sir George Hodson, Bart., congratulated him, on the part of the Board, on his recovery. His Lordship returned thanks.

The Grand Master of Georgia, Bro. D. E. Butler, has appealed to the Masons of that State to assist the destitute and suffering Masons of Savannah and Brunswick. The Masonic Board of Relief of Memphis, has tendered aid to the Masons of these yellow fever stricken cities, and a limited amount of aid has been accepted. The Masons of these cities have been instructed to draw for more whenever needed.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

THE RETURNS FOR THE LATE ANNIVERSARY OF THE ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

We do not think it needful to dilate too much on this topic, as not only are "comparisons" still always "odorous," as Mrs. Malaprop so justly observed once upon a time, but from some little experience of the matter, we are perfectly aware that the mere abstract figures do not ever tell us very much. Many circumstances combine to swell the list of this or that particular Steward or province, and though it may be an amusing marshalling of figures when we have nothing else to say, and space is difficult to fill, just now we cannot afford to be too prodigal either of the space of the Freemason, or trespass too much on the patience of our readers. It will suffice us to note, that the metropolis has contributed £6680, the provinces £5580,—making a grand total of £12,660, in round numbers, be it understood, as they say, "all through." It is true that Bro. Terry announced fourteen lists to come in, and it is just possible that they will bring in a net £300,—making the noble amount of £13,000. We are not in the secrets of the House Committee or Executive, nor do we trouble ourselves about the little "on dits" of the lobbies or the "canards" of unauthoritative authorities, but after this grand result of heavy meritorious labours, we are glad to see that the managers of the Institution have made a gallant effort (responsible as they are to the liberal support and sympathy of the Craft) to place a large additional number of applicants on the charity this year. The Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution is in "very good case," as they say, and had a large balance to credit last year. With £13,000 for its annual festival, in addition to Grand Lodge grants and funded property, it is in a position to make 1877 a memorable year in its annals by this sensible extension of beneficent provision for our aged and decayed brethren, and their often suffering widows. We are truly glad to hail any official announcement to that effect. We confess that we should after this result have been prepared to go a little further, relying on the genuine enthusiasm of our benevolent Order. But that is, we must fairly admit, after all, a matter mainly for the Executive of the Institution to decide, and not for outsiders like ourselves.

SECTARIAN BIGOTRY.

We have often stated, and it is well to repeat the assertion to-day, that we all may make a note of it, that there is in this world a great amount of intolerance and bigotry, on the part of pseudo-religionists, as regards Freemasonry, which would be very amusing were it not so very humiliating to the common sense of humanity, so derogatory to the true teaching and temper of religion itself. It is not only Roman Catholics who denounce Freemasonry, but fanatics of various sects seem to like to have a fling in their ignorance and bigotry, at a society whose tenets they do not understand, and whose work they cannot realize. Latterly Mr. Moody has expressed his disapproval of secret societies, and by implication of Freemasons, on grounds which appear to us a burlesque on all right reasoning, and to betray a mournful want of appreciation of the true principles of Scripture exegesis. But we are not concerned just now with Mr. Moody; as his "deliverance" was, so to say, "in the abstract," but, as it however deserves consideration, we will deal with it in our next issue. But we have to contend rather with those direct attacks on Freemasonry which crop up here, there, and everywhere just now, amid contrasted sects and from opposite corners of the world. In a late number of the Masonic Advocate appears a story called "Joe Grafton's Trials," from which we now propose to give some extracts, and which we understand to be "an over true tale," founded on fact. So let us hear the Masonic Advocate, quoted by the Canadian Craftsman.—"A number of years ago an honest young man moved from the State of Indiana to Iowa, where he settled in a town called Fairfield. Honest and industrious, conscientious and respectable, he worked at his trade of a carpenter, hoping to make of himself a good citizen, and to gain some limited fortune. Having formed the acquaintance of several gentlemen of the Masonic Fraternity he applied for initiation among them, and in due course of time became a Master Mason. He soon learned to love the Institution, and the lessons of the lodge-room became the study of his years. Their regular and called meetings found him always in his place, eager to learn and anxious to maintain the ancient prestige of the Order. He there learned that devotion to truth was the high road to integrity, and that none were more religious and happy than those who loved their fellow-men. The fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man became his life spirit, and under these convictions and reforms he some time afterwards became a member of the Church. On the broad basis of a liberal fraternity and a free Christian Church he began, more particularly than ever before, to fix his principles and regulate his life. Honest and true, and of good report before he had joined the Masons, he became, as he hoped, a better man in becoming a Church member, for there his latent talents were brought out in many generous actions and liberal charities, such as he thought were in harmony with the Divine government, and consistent with a strict Christian profession. In these highly respectable relationships he soon became known as a good citizen, a prosperous workman, and a gentleman of high moral character. His society was courted by the pious, and his influence was sought for among his brethren of the Church as one who feared God and kept His commandments. The sunlight over him was bright, and the first year passed over him without a cloud of trouble. But the visit of an itinerant evangelist to the village made a sad change in his happy relationships, because it created in a very brief period a great change in the spirit of his dreams. Among his other religious ideas, this wonderful evangelist taught the people that nothing was more detrimental to the true progress of truth and vital piety among them than the existence of secret societies. He taught them that they were essentially sinful, and contrary to the genius of all progress, as well as all free governments. He insisted that no such people should be tolerated among them, and that all Church members should come out from among them. Ignorant and bigoted as this evangelist was he made converts among the churches, for many soon partook of his spirit, and in a short time a large portion of the Church of which our brother was a member were anxious, yea, even zealous, for the total extermination of all secret societies, and more especially of the society of Freemasons, as it was supposed to be the most ancient of them all, and the mother of the whole brood of anti-Christian institutions. The bitterness of spirit engendered was relentless and vindictive, and within a brief space a crusade was inaugurated of men, women, and children to exterminate the last vestige of 'the whore of Babylon,' as the evangelist termed all secret societies. The Church became the head-quarters, and the pastor himself assumed the leadership of the Inquisition. Meetings were held weekly, and most devout prayers were offered for Divine aid in the glorious work of driving from the land the secret organizations of the devil. Every one who had any connection with them was exhorted to come out from among them, on the pains and penalties of even 'eternal damnation.' If any persisted in remaining members of such Godless institutions they were proclaimed as being infidels, or what was worse, they were proscribed as men unfit for any pure or social intercourse. All such were not to be dealt with, not to be employed, and above all, they were not to be communed with in the Holy Sacrament, as they were of their master, the devil. Under such circumstances the hero of our story was made to feel very sad, for he was told that unless he left the Masonic Order he would be 'counted out' in his church membership, and that, too, without much ceremony. This seemed to be the decree adopted by the church, and from the spirit of the pastor and people, appeared to be as firm as the laws of the Medes and Persians, incapable of change or modification. Of course he was deeply depressed in spirit, and at a loss what course to pursue. His advisory friends seemed to be few, and he waited with as much patience as he could muster up, to see the cloud blow over, but it was all in vain, for when he was at work one day in his shop, he received the following note from his pastor, which he saw at once meant business of the most serious character :—

"Pastor's Office, Fairfield, March 25, 1849.

"Bro. Joseph Grafton,—Our Congregational Association which held its session for this State during the past year, declared that no Christian could remain a member of a secret society, and as you are a member of the Masonic Fraternity, my church demands that you withdraw from such fellowship, or they will have to exclude you from the church.

"Your brother, Wm. Thompson.

"The reception of such a note from his pastor brought great sorrow to the heart of 'Brother Joe,' as he was called generally among his brethren, and after a night of deep thought and sound sleep he returned to his pastor the following answer :

"Fairfield, March 26, 1849.

"To the Rev. Wm. A. Thompson,—Dear Sir,—I have been requested to meet you and the brethren in church meeting to-day, in order to explain the cause of absenting myself from the meetings and ordinances of the church. I will endeavour, my dear brother, to do so, simply, in writing. It is well known to you all that I am connected with one of the secret societies of the day, and it will also be remembered that the Association of the Congregational Church, which held its session in this place in 1848, passed a resolution denouncing such societies in the strongest language, and condemning all members of the church who were connected with any such secret organization. I look upon these resolutions as a direct vote of censure upon myself and others, but being conscious of my own integrity in the matter, and that the church, in this particular, has stepped aside from the path of duty to aim a blow at an institution whose principles are drawn from the Great Light of all Truth, I have and still feel a reluctance in continuing my connection with the church. You will remember, brethren, that at the time of my connecting myself with the church it was well known to some of you, if not to all, that I belonged to the Order of Freemasons, and as such I was admitted among you. As it is now thought that a secret society man cannot be a Christian, I would respectfully ask of you a certificate of dismissal from the church.

"JOSEPH GRAFTON.

"Such was the result of a crusade of ignorance and bigotry against secret societies. Brother Joe to this day is still an 'outsider,' running the risk of Heaven on the broad common of Masonic humanity." What do our readers think of this little story? They will, we fancy, agree with Channing, as quoted by the Masonic Advocate, who says:—"Misanthropic bigots are always mental monstrosities, unfitted for useful lives or honorable histories. They contradict the genius of humanity and make but sorry members of society anywhere." They will concur also with the Masonic Advocate itself, in its very pertinent remarks:—"Ignorance and bigotry are twin associates. They have a common origin and a common affinity. Legitimate in their antecedents, and uniform in their moral deformities, they are always of the same progeniture. The one has no knowledge of progressive life, while the other sees but little outside of itself. The former lacks capacity to know its own duty, while the latter claims to know it all. Both make pretensions to knowledge with assured effrontery. The one condemns what it does not comprehend, while the other, full of self-conceit, never tolerates anything but its own opinions. With the one, light is darkness, but the other often calls darkness light, and light darkness, because it does not know the one from the other." And what more remains for us to say? Must we not all regret to know and to realize that, in 1877 so much bigotry remains amongst the professors of religion? Must we not deplore the fact that so many who talk a great deal about religion have not apparently mastered the first principles of that message of love, and peace, and mercy, and goodwill to man they hold forth so glibly about? We will consider in our next issue the alleged unlawfulness of secrecy on so-called Scripture principle, on the "dictum," that is, whether of infallible or fallible teachers of religion to mankind.

THE HAPPY DESPATCH.

We give our readers to-day a most interesting and touching extract from the Japanese newspaper Tchoya Chimboun, duly chronicled by the Pall Mall Gazette, and also in the Times, which we think will affect them as it did us on our perusal of it. "Some curious details are given by a Japanese paper, the Tchoya Chimboun—as to the manner in which some of the 'aristocrats of the old school' in that country, who were condemned to death for the part they took in the late insurrection, but who preferred hari kiri to decapitation, spent the last few hours of their lives. Four Samurai insurgents of Koumanote, who escaped on the night of the 24th of October, assembled at the house of one by name Yonemara for the purpose of ending their existence by the 'happy despatch' in his hospitable dwelling. Before, however, giving themselves over to death they gave themselves over to a regular jollification—drinking, dancing, and singing, as though on a festive occasion. Their hostess, without any wish necessarily to curtail their enjoyment, with much tact and good feeling advised them not to keep up this revelry too long, as the police could hardly fail to hear the disturbance caused by their songs and dances. They turned a deaf ear, however, to her kindly warnings and continued to amuse themselves for the whole day, saying that if the 'shizhou' arrived they were prepared to fight them. The hours thus passed pleasantly away until sunset, when the party arrayed themselves in the robes which, according to old Japanese fashion, are appropriate for the ceremony they were about to perform, and, having offered up their prayers to the gods, 'happily despatched' themselves without further delay." We shall be glad to learn if the similar thought occurred to any of our readers which was ours on realizing this very remarkable "mise en scene," as the French say; "what a valuable institution" we mentally exclaimed, and "how useful and important even in a civilized community like ours." When we remember the bores who bore us, and the rascals who cheat us, when our memory summons up vividly before our groaning recollection, all those who render life miserable, or trying, or wearisome, or depressing in many ways, often in all things, we are tempted to ask, is there no means by which some one of our distinguished statesmen could apply the principle of this great and grave institution for the needs and necessities of our Anglo-Saxon race? Jobbins, who has had a row with his dear Angelina about his shirt buttons and her weekly expenses; Popkins, who is so dreadfully afraid of his mother-in-law; Timmins, who is anxiously looking out for that "little bill;" which he does not know how to meet; Tomkinson, who bores everybody, the foolish young men, the disappointed young women, "blasé old scapegraces," and scandal loving "old gals," all, we are tempted to think, might take a leaf out of this wise Japanese code, and relieve themselves, their friends, and the world at large of much anxiety on their behalf, of an untellable amount of alarm and boredom combined. For think how easy and how happy the "little event" would be. A small amount of "sentiment," and a good deal of "liquoring up;" a tender leavetaking of Mary, and a stern adieu to your own "dear, dear, Jezabel," and you would leave this festive and mortal scene, amid no mourning neighbours, and no weeping friends,

"No female even with dishevelled hair,
To feign or feel decorous woe."

Surely here is a note to be noted, a wrinkle to be improved by us all. There are so many people who are so useless to everybody, such bores, such nuisances at home and abroad, so very greatly in the way of something or somebody, that we are perfectly persuaded, if Sir Henry Thompson, who is so friendly to cremation, would only present a plan to a thoughtful and admiring public of a "Happy Despatch," it would at once chime in with that semi-sentimental, semi-morbid state of mind, into which many of us appear to be drifting just now. And sure we are of this, at any rate, that it would be a very legitimate reform, in the changing times, and bring about, perhaps, a happy alteration alike in manners and morals. No doubt some serious thoughts and memories intrude perforce amid these lighter words of ours, but "what's the odds as long as you are happy." "Don't let us, in these enlightened days, trouble ourselves too much about scruples or religious consideration. Life is life, 'dum vivamus vivamus;' we will leave regrets and hesitation to the old, the highly respectable, and the well behaved." Such is the song of this world's "syrens," too often the prelude to unmitigated bitterness of memory, and lasting sorrow of mind. Let our good old Craft teach us higher truths, and a better philosophy. This life is not all, nor all in all, to any of us. Its golden hours may be wasted, its glad privileges may be abused, for far too many the hour of the "happy despatch" may practically seem to sound to-day or to-morrow; but beyond everything lies that great Future in which we shall all one day alike be found, high and low, rich and poor, learned and unlearned, and where no more escape is possible from the omniscient gaze of Perfect Wisdom, or the Solemn Justice of Perfect Goodness.

THE GRAND SECRETARYSHIP OF SCOTLAND.

In another column appears a letter from Bro. D. Murray Lyon, who is a candidate for the office of Grand Secretary to the Scottish Grand Lodge in the place of Bro. Laurie, resigned. We all of us remember Bro. Laurie's long services to Freemasonry in Scotland, and hope that he may see many years of health and happiness. We beg to offer our hearty sympathy and good wishes to Bro. D. Murray Lyon, and we shall be glad to hear that the choice of the Grand Lodge has fallen upon one whose Masonic qualifications are so very distinct and distinguished.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

HISTORY OF FREEMASONRY IN FRANCE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I am sure that good will eventuate from the discussion, inaugurated by yourself and Bro. Hughan; but I write now to put the brethren on their guard against drawing hasty conclusions from the absence of documents, as there is a chain of circumstantial evidence pointing to the general correctness of the views of the French Masonic historians.

I think with Bro. Leon Hyneman, in his History of our Grand Lodges, that there were independent lodges of so-called York Masons in London in and before 1725, and not working under the G.L. of 1717. I believe also that there were lodges of Scottish nationality in London, working Craft and Rosy Cross Degrees, and not unlikely in alliance with the Stuart party in France. The hermetic work of 1721 (Long Livers) seems to have been an attempt to force the degrees of this English and Scottish combination, which formed the germ of the continental High Grades, upon the notice of the G.L. of 1717, which, however, refused all countenance to anything but the three degrees until the latter part of the 18th century, when influential "Moderns" established separate Grand Chapters and Camps. I do not believe in the antiquity of the present ceremonies of the Royal Order of Scotland, but I consider that there is evidence of the existence of a system of Scottish Royal Order or Art Lodges and Chapters in London, contemporaneously with the establishment of the G.L. of 1717.

Yours truly and fraternally,

JOHN YARKER.

LODGE OF ISRAEL, No. 1474.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On the 12th instant, at a regular meeting of this lodge, Bro. S. Lyon, W.M., in the chair, letters were read from the following lodges:—

The Harmony Lodge, 156, Plymouth,

Lodge Erme, 1091,

Lodge St. John, 70, Plymouth,

Lodge Brunswick, 159, Plymouth, also

The Right Honourable the Earl of Mount Edgcumbe, P.G.M. Cornwall, sympathising with the Jews in Germany on account of the obnoxious law which exists in some of their lodges, by excluding Jews from Freemasonry, and urging their respective Prov. G. Masters, to bring the subject before Grand Lodge in order to get this bye-law rescinded. Bro. G. J. Emanuel, B.A., Chaplain, proposed, and the W.M. seconded, and it was passed unanimously, "That the best thanks of the members of this lodge be tendered to these lodges and to Earl Mount Edgecumbe, P.G.M. of Cornwall, for their kindness in co-operating with the Lodge of Israel, and to ask them to forward their resolution through their P.G.M.'s to the Grand Lodge of England."

I am, dear Sir, yours respectfully.

DAVID LAVENSTEIN, Secretary.

THE EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the W.M. of the Lodge of Israel, Liverpool, has given you the names of the three so-called Jewish lodges who have similar resolutions to the one passed at Birmingham, allow me to inform your readers that four more Jewish lodges in the Province of Devon sent me up similar resolutions to strengthen our petition to Grand Lodge.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

S. LYON,

W.M. 1474, Birmingham.

THE LATE BRO. DR. GOLDSBORO.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As one who had the pleasure and honour of being numbered amongst the intimate friends of the late Bro. Dr. Goldsboro, I can, in common with the members of the Welchpool Lodge in particular, and several other Welch lodges in general, bear my humble but sincere testimony to the great loss the Craft has sustained by the removal by death of Bro. Dr. Goldsboro, from that sphere of usefulness in which he was so well known, and where his services were so justly and so highly esteemed. Unlike some who have attained high honours in the Craft, he was most retiring and unaffected in his manners, and the thorough Masonic feeling with which he carried out all the duties required of him—often at great trouble and cost to himself—caused him to be loved and his name revered by all who knew him. In no single instance did he forget the great principles of our Order, but carried out in his daily life the precepts of Freemasonry, and most invariably did he practise out of the lodge those precepts which he was taught within it. He was one of those who might well be put forward as an exemplar of the excellence and value of our Institutions, for never was his aid sought for in the promotion of any good work, no matter whether it was a case of distress or a poor brother or widow in trouble, that ever a call upon his bounty or good offices was ever made in vain. Self in him was entirely ignored, and never were his general manners and soothing voice more readily engaged than when they were employed in administering to the wants or relieving the sufferings of his fellow-creatures. It may not be generally known that, although living in London, during the two years he occupied the position of Worshipful Master of the Welchpool Lodge he was never absent from any of its meetings, and was always at his post at the appointed time, so that in the course of those two years, for the purpose of attending not only the regular but emergency meetings of this lodge he must have travelled thousands of miles, to say nothing of the pecuniary cost inseparable therefrom. This, of course, was entirely independent of the distance he must also have travelled to consecrate about thirteen lodges and two or three chapters in North Wales and Shropshire, in all of which he was an honorary member, and I had the pleasure of making a similar proposition, unanimously agreed to, to add to that number the Southern Star Lodge, No. 1158, of which I was the first Master.

Trusting that his example may be a stimulus to others, and that our dear departed brother may receive his immortal reward in the Grand Lodge above,

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

H. T., P.M. 177, 1158, &c.

[Cartes de Visite of Bro. Goldsboro may be obtained at the office of this paper. Price 1s.]

A LITTLE MISTAKE.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

By a regrettable but accidental mistake, it seems that I transferred to Von Knigge the account of Von Hund's change of religion and burial in my remarks on Father Foy's notes. Von Knigge, who seems to have been a religious man, but of whose religion nothing appears to be known, died, it is said, at Bremen in 1796, though neither Lenning nor the "Handbuch" give the place of his death. Von Hund, originally a Protestant, died a Roman Catholic, and is buried before the high altar at Mebrichstadt. I regret this little mistake through a somewhat careless use of references, and am yours fraternally,

THE EDITOR OF THE
"MASONIC MAGAZINE."

ART IN HOSPITALS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

All who have any acquaintance with the interiors of our London hospitals must have been struck with the excessive dreariness of most of the wards. It is time that this should be remedied. A little energy on the part of a few philanthropists and artists, aided by subscriptions from the general public, would suffice to accomplish this improvement. I advocate the brightening of the wards, and the cheering of their inmates, by the addition of suitable pictures, plate, bronzes, carvings, bric-à-brac, old armour, china, sculpture, ornamental clocks, fancy glass, tasteful glazed tiles, parquet floors, and other art decorations of all sorts.

I will gladly give one hundred guineas to a responsible committee, as soon as one is formed, to promote the Art Fund for the Hospitals of London.

Pray generously grant this scheme the moral support of your valuable paper, and believe me to be, Sir,

Yours obediently and fraternally,

J. LAWRENCE-HAMILTON.

34, Gloucester-terrace, Hyde Park, W.

P.S.—Later two models will be exhibited to the public, one to show the usual sick ward, the other to represent the use of art in the various kinds of hospitals.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your last issue there is a slight error in the list of Stewards for the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution.

Therein I find you have the name of Bro. Goodacre as Steward for Lodge 1045, in the Province of Cheshire. Such is not the case, as Bro. Goodacre went up as Steward from the "Prince Leopold Lodge, 1588," in the Province of West Lancashire, of which lodge he is the W.M., and the larger amount of his list was made up in that province, viz., £20 10s. od. in the Province of West Lancashire, and £10 os. od. in the Province of Cheshire.

Lodge 1588	...	...	...	...	...	£10	0	0
" 1387	...	...	...	...	...	10	10	0
Province of Cheshire:—
Chap. 1045	...	...	...	...	...	5	0	0
" 425	...	...	...	...	...	5	0	0

Perhaps you will kindly correct this in your next issue.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

THOS. A. CHOMPTON,

Sec. 1588.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I must beg you to alter the mistake made in your list of Stewards—Bro. Terry's list Benevolent Institution. I am put down as representing 1423, donation £15 16s. od. My donation was £22 5s. od. Kindly rectify this mistake in your next, and oblige,

Yours fraternally,

J. FAULKNER.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The amount of my list as Steward of the Royal Naval Lodge, No. 59, is £5. 5. 0 more than you published for the charity. The extra amount I was only able to give to Bro. Terry after my list had been added up. Kindly mention the fact this week, and oblige, yours fraternally,

JOHN DENCE, J.W. 159.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Questions are often put to you, asking for information on points which do not seem very clear in the Book of Constitutions. But it is not right to take up your space to ask questions which are perfectly clear, and admit of no doubt whatever. Thus, W. M. C. N., asks why he and other P.P. Grand Stewards are not allowed to wear the red apron and collar after their year of office. The reply is simply, that according to the Book of Constitutions (see Prov. Grand Stewards) "when out of office they are no longer entitled to wear crimson aprons and collars." Nor during their year of office are they entitled to wear them out of their own province—that is, they are not allowed to appear as "Grand Stewards." The "Prov. Grand Steward," pays a fee of 10s. 6d., the "Grand Steward" has to pay his share of the expenses of Grand Festival, amounting, I am told, to about £20. I presume this information will satisfy C.N. and his friends.

MAGNUS OHREN,

P.P. Grand Warden Surrey.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Can you or any of your readers give me a list of Grand Masters since the Duke of Cumberland, with the dates of their first election?

Also in what year between 1784 and 1815 were blue collars and aprons trimmed with blue authorized in lodges?

Yours fraternally,

A. T.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you kindly answer the following question in your next impression:—Has the W.M. of a lodge, as Chairman, the right to address any remarks as Chairman on any motion before or after the proposer replies?

Or, in other words, on any motion is the Chairman or the proposer the last speaker before the vote?

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

QUERIST.

[1. The W.M. has clearly a right to state his opinion to the lodge on the matter submitted. 2. The proposer, if a brother, has a right to reply.—ED.]

THE TEMPLE CHURCH.—Special evening services will be held in the Temple Church on the seven Wednesdays in Lent. The church will be open to the public on these occasions without orders of admission.

Multum in Parbo; or Masonic Notes and Queries.

The following are the two important extracts, quoted by Bro. W. J. Hugan in his letter to the Grand Lodge of Ohio, and which we alluded to in the last Freemason:

"St. James's Evening Post, September 7th, 1734.—We hear from Paris that a lodge of Free and Accepted Masons was lately held there at Her Grace the Duchess of Portsmouth's house, where His Grace the Duke of Richmond, assisted by another English nobleman of distinction there, President Montesquieu, Brigadier Churchill, Ed. Yonge, Esq., Registrar of the Most Honourable Order of the Bath, and Walter Strickland, Esq., admitted several persons of distinction into that most Ancient and Honourable Society."

"September 20, 1735.—They write from Paris that his Grace the Duke of Richmond and the Rev. Dr. Desaguliers, formerly Grand Master of the Ancient and Honourable Society of Free and Accepted Masons, and now authorised by the present Grand Master (under his hand and seal and the seal of the Order), having called a lodge at the Hotel Bussy, in the Rue Bussy, His Excellency the Earl of Waldegrave, His Majesty's ambassador to the French King, the Right Honourable the President Montesquieu, the Marquis de Lomurea, Lord Dursley, son to the Earl of Berkley, the Hon. Mr. Fitz-Williams, Messieurs Knight, father and son, Dr. Hickman, and several other persons, both French and English, were present, and the following noblemen and gentlemen were admitted to the order; namely, His Grace the Duke of Kingston, the Honourable the Count de St. Florentin, Secretary of State to his most Christian Majesty, the Right Honourable the Lord Chewton, son to Earl Waldegrave, Mr. Pelham, Mr. Armiger, Mr. Colton, and Mr. Clement, after which the new brethren gave a handsome entertainment to all the company."

CONSECRATION OF THE WOLSEY LODGE, No. 1656.

On Saturday, the 17th inst., the roll of the Masonic Province of Middlesex received another addition to its already numerous lodges. The site fixed for the head quarters of the lodge was the old White Hart Hotel, Hampton Wick. At a very early hour of the afternoon the quietness of the picturesque village street was broken by the frequent arrivals of distinguished Masonic celebrities, from town and elsewhere. Amongst the first to arrive at the scene of action were Bros. the R.W. Col. Francis Burdett, P.G.M. of Middlesex; R. W. Little, D.P.G.M.; Buss, P.G.J.W. and Treas.; F. Walters, P.J.G.D.; J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P.; Cartwright, P.M. 889, P.P.S.G.W. of Kent; Elsam, P.P.G.D.C. of Surrey.

The officers appointed by Grand Lodge to carry out the ceremonies of consecration and installation were Bros. Colonel Burdett, Little, and Buss.

The small but handsomely appointed lodge-room at the time the proceedings commenced presented a very striking effect. In addition to the brethren already named there were present, as visitors, Bros. Platt, P.M. 23, &c.; A. H. Tattershall, P.M. 140, &c.; Hill, P.M. 157, &c.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, &c.; Buckland, P.M. 205, &c.; Honeywell, P.M. 889; Kraeutler, J.W. 1303; Mitau, S.D. 889; Fenn, 243; F. Hunt, 889; Pearman, 889; J. E. Hunt, 1512; Moody, 1512; Murphy, 1512; Fricker. Amongst the numerous apologies for non-attendance at the ceremony were letters from Bros. Dr. Hamilton, District Grand Master of Jamaica; and Terry, Sec. R.M.B.I., &c. The founders present were Bros. W. Hammond, P.G.D. of Middlesex, W.M. designate; B. Sharp, P.M. 84, &c., S.W. designate; J. Bond, P.M. 889, J.W. designate; the Rev. F. C. de Crespiigny, P.M. 708, P.P.G.C. of Middlesex; J. Hurst, W.M. 1512; T. Walls, J.W. 1381, &c.; T. W. Ockenden, I.G. 1512; Aston and Andrews, 1512. The presiding officer appointed Bros. Little as P.M.; De Crespiigny as Chaplain; F. Walters as S.W.; Baldwin as J.W.; and Buss and Elsham as D.C. and I.G. respectively, to assist him in the "work," which was throughout most ably and impressively performed. The ceremony of installation having also been well carried out, the investiture of officers took place as follows: Bro. Sharp, S.W.; Bond, J.W.; J. Hammond, Hon. I.P.M.; De Crespiigny, Chap.; Ockenden, Sec.; Aston, S.D.; Hurst, J.D.; Walls, I.G. and D.C. pro tem. The election and appointment of Treasurer and Tyler stand over until the next meeting. The following were unanimously elected honorary members: Bros. the R.W. Colonel Burdett, Little, Buss, Walters, Baldwin, and Honeywell. Several propositions for initiation and joining having been handed in, and Bro. Bond, J.W., appointed Steward to represent the lodge at the Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, the lodge was closed until the first Monday in March, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, which reflected great credit upon the caterer, Bro. Andrews, and assistants.

The preliminary royal and Craft toasts having been disposed of, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the R.W. P.G.M. of Middlesex," a toast which he said must command their sympathy and appreciation, because he, the P.G.M., had not only graced the proceedings that day with his presence, but had most ably and effectively carried them out. Colonel Burdett had, to the satisfaction of all grades in the Craft during the seven years he had been at the head of the province, acted most impartially and zealously in the discharge of his high office. In conclusion the W.M. said that they must not forget that there were upwards of twenty lodges in the province, and that they entailed a great deal of labour and anxiety upon their distinguished chief.

This toast having been duly honoured, Colonel Burdett replied by stating that he had had considerable difficulty in being present that day, but having been enabled to do so, he was proud at being again a consecrating officer of a new lodge, and in a new district. He was gratified with the whole proceedings. The Wolsey must be a good lodge, because it had a good Master at its head, one who brought a large experience to bear upon his duties. Middlesex occupied a grand position at the present time, and might in the course of a few years be one of the greatest Masonic provinces in the kingdom. In concluding, he returned his most sincere thanks for the warm manner that they had responded to his health.

In giving "The Health of the R.W.D.P.G.M., Bro. Little, and the rest of the P.G. Officers, Past and Present," the W.M. said that he was pleased that the Wolsey should be the first of the Middlesex lodges to congratulate Bro. Little upon his preferment, which appointment he was sure would meet with the most unqualified approval. The D.P.G.M. briefly replied by thanking the P.G.M. and the W.M. for the kind expressions they had used, and at the same time he took that, the first public opportunity he had had of thanking Colonel Burdett for the great honour he had done him by appointing him his Deputy over so important a province as that of Middlesex. In speaking of the other Provincial Officers present, whom he remarked were all worthy of "the purple," Bro. Little said that the name of Bro. Buss, G.J.W. and Treas., was a "household word," that Bro. W. Hammond, P.G.D., was a thorough master of the Masonic art, that Bro. F. Walters, G.J.D., the veteran and indefatigable Secretary of many lodges, was always ready to give the benefit of his advice to all P.M.'s, W.M.'s, and Secretaries needing the same, and that Bro. Baldwin, A.G.P., was a most worthy Mason.

"The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the R.W. P.G.M. in a very kind speech. In the course of his remarks he said that the position of W.M. entailed a great deal of responsibility, and that to carry out the duties well it also required a large amount of ability. He believed that Bro. Hammond was fully competent in every respect to reflect credit upon the Wolsey Lodge, and he was pleased at being in a position to propose his health as W.M. of No. 1656, the 25th lodge in the Province of Middlesex.

The W.M., in reply, stated that he felt sensible of the great honour placed upon him by establishing a new lodge, but he believed that it was needed in that portion of the district. It was the fourth lodge he had had the honour of governing as Master, and he hoped it would be a success. His motto during his Masonic career had been "Excelsior," and his chief aim to disseminate the benevolent principles of the Order, charity being in his opinion the acme of Freemasonry. (Hear.)

The toast of "The Consecrating Officers" followed, and having been duly honoured, Bro. Buss replied by stating that as D.C., he had been gratified at the manner in which the lodge had been consecrated by his superior officers. In speaking of other matters, he called attention to the fact that in the admission of initiates "quality" should be considered before "quantity." Freemasonry was increasing, and so were the applications to the Board of Benevolence, and consequently they should be very careful whom they introduced. If this supervision was not exercised the result of the laxity would be to increase the number of claimants for the benefits of the charities, which would in time undermine the very foundations of the Order. In conclusion, he thanked the lodge upon behalf of the Consecrating Officers and himself for the honour it had done them by electing them honorary members.

The W.M., in giving "The Visitors," said that as "good wine needed no bush," he should not dilate upon the toast, but would merely state that the brethren of the Wolsey Lodge gave them all a hearty welcome, and hoped to see them again.

Bro. Elsam, speaking for himself and the rest of the visitors, said that it had afforded them very great pleasure at being present that day. Personally he was proud at seeing one of his oldest friends occupying the chair of K.S. for the fourth time. Bro. Hammond had introduced him into the Jordan Lodge, and of that lodge he (Bro. Elsam) was now the Master. In conclusion, he said the Wolsey Lodge was bound to prosper, and in time he believed it would be equal to any in the province.

The toast of "The Officers" followed, and having been duly responded to, the Tyler's toast was called, and the brethren separated.

The proceedings were enlivened by the instrumental and vocal contributions of Bros. Honeywell, Walls, and Hunt.

Reviews.

CASSELL'S HOUSEHOLD GUIDE TO EVERY DEPARTMENT OF PRACTICAL LIFE, No. 1.—Cassell, Petter, & Galpin.

This reads to us to be a very useful undertaking. We have seen No. 1 with much pleasure and interest, and we think that the work is likely to be very popular. It contains a great deal of valuable information, easily mastered, and lucidly laid down, and may be considered as a household vade mecum to each industrious housewife, to every "Bon Père de Famille." Its topics are various, and range from cooking to the aquarium, from carpentering to domestic medicine, from recipes for the kitchen to the rearing of children, and all are worth studying, and all are well put before us. We shall await No. 2 with interest, feeling sure that it will maintain the practical characteristics of No. 1.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE LIVERPOOL ARCHITECTURAL SOCIETY.

We have received the above, and have had our attention called to a paper entitled "A plea for the future protection of our Ancient Cathedrals," by Samuel Huggins

The gist of the paper is practically a protest against restoration. If we understand the writer's words aright, he would not restore, he would leave the cathedrals in "statu quo," as he seems to lean to the sentimental side of the question, and is apparently an advocate for the "interesting ruin," and for "hoar decay." But such a suggestion is not a practical view of the question at all, according to our notions, and is not likely to find favour with the practical English mind. We all have a great desire to utilize everything that can be utilized, and, therefore, we would naturally repair for further worship, many interesting relics of the past, which only require the favouring hand of Sir Gilbert Scott, or some other skilled architect, to restore them to pristine beauty, and practical utility. Thus we differ, we are sorry to say, "toto cœlo" with Mr. Huggins, and, we confess, we are almost surprised that a view which is antagonistic to the current opinion and common sense of Englishmen, could find favour with any. But having said this honestly in all "bona fides" we are quite willing to admit that the paper is very well written, and also that in this free country even "paradoxes" should be fairly listened to. We cannot, of course, as Freemasons, follow Mr. Huggins into his theological contentions, but as he has kindly made an appeal to our Order, we may say that we feel deeply interested, (without any question of mere denominational fervour), in aiding to repair and restore those masterpieces of architectural skill, which Operative Masonry raised on high, to the honour of God and the welfare of man.

THE LEATHER TRADES CIRCULAR, &c.—W. Speaight & Sons, 98, Fetter-lane.

Though we are not quite prepared to say that there is "nothing like leather," yet we are free to confess that there is a good deal in it, and remembering the importance of leather to the community at large, and the large amount of capital embarked in the manufacture of leather in this country, are not surprised to hear that that well-to-do trade has a special organ of its own for its information and protection. It has reached its 10th year of publication, and is, despite its limited character, an interesting publication. It is a good thing for us all to look at times a little below the surface of things, and to realize what is going on in the world, and to master the first principles, whether of commerce or of trade. We are struck with the advertisements for machinery, as it shows what revolution in the labour market is going on quietly amongst us.

Grand Commandery of Knights Templar, Pennsylvania, 1876; Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania, 1876; Great Priory of Canada, 1876.

We have received and read these "Transactions" with great pleasure. We thank the courteous senders of them sincerely, and we can only add that while we rejoice honestly in the prosperity of these various bodies of American Craft, Arch, and High Grades, we are deeply struck with the solidity of their organization, and the clearness and ability with which all their proceedings are set forth. We note one or two variations, and in our opinion anomalies in their systems, and we shall shortly call attention to one or two of them in a leading article.

THE ROSICRUCIAN, Nos. 4 & 5.—GEORGE KENNING.

We take these two numbers together, and beg to commend them to our readers. Their contents are very varied, and very interesting. They are well edited, and all will be glad to learn that our esteemed and able Bro. R. W. Little is in better health, and able to superintend these literary labours of his, as well as to devote his energies to that admirable institution of which he is the zealous and indefatigable Secretary. We have read both these last numbers of the Rosicrucian with much pleasure, and though not belonging to the High Grades ourselves, we quite concede the fact that they include a most distinguished body of men, equally distinguished by their high character and literary attainments.

THE SECRETARYSHIP OF THE GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

We publish the following letter:—

To the Most Worshipful Grand Master Mason and the Members of the Grand Lodge of Scotland:

M.W. Grand Sir, and Brethren,

I beg respectfully to offer myself as a candidate for the office of Grand Secretary, now vacant by the resignation of Bro. Laurie.

I have long been connected with the Craft, and possess a thorough knowledge of Freemasonry in all its degrees. For many years I have made its history my especial study. I have written the Histories of the Lodge Mother Kilwinning, and the Lodge of Edinburgh (Mary's Chapel). The latter work, which embraces an account of the Rise and Progress of Freemasonry in Scotland, has been characterised by Mr. John Hill Burton as "a valuable addition to the history of the country."

I edited the second British Edition of "The History of Freemasonry, from its Origin to the Present Day" by Bro. J. G. Findel, of Leipzig—a Work recognised in all countries as a standard authority.

I have also been a contributor of articles on Freemasonry and kindred subjects to all the leading Masonic Magazines and periodicals which have existed in Britain during the last twenty years. Many of these contributions have been reproduced in the French, German, and American Masonic periodicals. A German translation on my Notes on Mother Kilwinning, by Dr. Mersdorf, a brother of distinction, has been published separately.

I have for many year been a member of Grand Lodge and am conversant with its affairs.

In requesting your vote and influence on my behalf, I beg to assure you that, if elected to the office, nothing will be wanting on my part to discharge its duties with efficiency and zeal.

I am, Most Worshipful Grand Sir, and Brethren, yours fraternally,

D. MURRAY LYON.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

ROYAL OAK LODGE (No. 871).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 22nd ult., at the White Swan Hotel, High-street, Deptford. Bro. H. J. Tuson, W.M., presided, and raised Bros. J. Davis and G. C. Whibley to the Third Degree. Bro. F. Walters, Prov. G.J.D., Middlesex, was then requested to take the chair for the purpose of installing Bro. J. J. Parkes, S.W., and W.M. elect, as Master of the lodge for the year ensuing. Bro. Walters complied with the request, and Bro. Parkes was duly installed, Bros. G. and W. Andrews assisting, delivering addresses, &c. The brethren appointed to office were Bros. J. Baxter Langley, P.M., S.W.; G. T. Linn, J.W.; W. Andrews, P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middx., P.M., Sec. (15th time); R. Harman, S.D.; J. G. Vohmann, J.D.; G. Harvey, I.G.; H. J. Fisher, Organist; G. Andrews, P.M., D.C.; H. J. Tuson, I.P.M., W.S., and J. Bayin, P.M. 147, Tyler. Votes of thanks were unanimously passed to Bros. Walters and Andrews, after which the Audit Committee's report was read and adopted. Lodge was thereafter closed, and the brethren adjourned to banquet, which was well supplied by Bro. Porter. A very large number of brethren were present, and among the visitors were Bros. W. Etheridge, 329; J. J. Hutchings, J.D. 147; G. Robinson, 1257; R. White, 1107; E. Solomons, 194, New York; T. Gambrell, 1194; J. Roper, P.M. 147; G. Dawkins, 79; R. P. Hooton, P.M. 765, 1572; C. Deakin, P.M. 1178; A. Skinner, 177; G. Willcocks, 1314; W. T. Lover, W.M. 1178; D. Fuchs, 217; C. G. Rushworth, W.M. 1309; R. J. Dart, 192; T. Fisher, 192; J. Cook, 192; G. Davies, 177; J. Dixon, P.M. 73, P.M. 871; R. Griggs, P.M. 228; G. Chapman, P.M. 147; F. Thornton, 1559; and H. Massey (Freemason). The Past Masters present were Bros. J. Truelove and H. A. Collington, besides the Past Masters before enumerated. At the conclusion of the banquet the customary toasts were proposed, "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W. G.M.," "The Pro G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Present and Past." Bro. Tuson, I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said he felt a pleasure in doing so, because he knew the lodge had a Master this year who would do it credit. He had worked in the different offices with him for a long time, and from the way in which he had conducted his duties there could be no doubt he was the right man in the right place. The W.M. responded, and said he was deeply indebted to his kind friend for the flattering way in which he had placed the name of the W.M. before them; but good report had been given of so many of the W.M.'s of this lodge, that it reminded him of the tale of the child who could not discover where the bad people were buried, because, according to the tombstones, they were all good people. Every Master that was installed in the Royal Oak Lodge seemed better than his predecessor, and if they went on in that way, when the youngest member of the lodge got to the chair he would be simply perfect. It was part of the ritual almost for the Master to say when he was installed that it was the proudest moment of his life. But in that lodge they perfectly understood each other, and it was not necessary for him to say so. If he was not up to what he was it was not the fault of his father, for he had endeavoured to teach him a very great deal. He had been introduced into Freemasonry by his respected father-in-law, Bro. Andrews, and of course, as the father, so the son; if the father spared the rod, or the child was not nursed properly, they must lay it to Bro. Andrews. After having gone through the usual routine of office from I.G. to S.W. he had at length arrived at the chair of the lodge. A very great deal he owed, no doubt, to the quiet order of succession; but still he knew among all the brethren present there was a very kindly feeling existing, and nothing had convulsed him more of this than the way they had overlooked all his imperfections and had taken him simply more on what he had tried to be than on what he had been. He hoped to be what the Master of a lodge should be, but he much feared they would discover many imperfections in him in the course of the year. He would do his best, however. Without the help of the brethren he could not hope to succeed, and without their help he would not attempt to succeed. He hoped to have the kindly feelings of every brother of the lodge, and he was convinced that if they would only give him their support his must be a successful year. The W.M. next gave "The Visitors." After expressing the pleasure the lodge felt at receiving visitors, he said they had that evening many brethren of mark and distinction present, brethren whom they were proud to acknowledge as their old friends. He believed and hoped that he was not speaking out of place when he said they had one visitor who was the first Master of the Royal Oak Lodge. There were many visitors who had been there before, and there were one or two of his own personal friends. Bro. Dixon replied. If he had been only an ordinary visitor he would have gone through the ordinary form in returning thanks by saying how deeply the visitors were indebted to the Master for proposing, and to the brethren for responding, as well as how pleased the visitors were with the way in which the lodge ceremonies had been worked; but as an old P.M., and first W.M. of the lodge, he responded with more than ordinary feelings of pleasure, because it was very gratifying to see the ceremony of installation worked in a most perfect manner, for that ceremony was, perhaps, the criterion by which an old P.M. would judge of the general working of a lodge. Where they had a number of P.M.'s competent to discharge their duties in the admirable manner that they had done that evening, it was quite a sufficient guarantee that the other ceremonies were carried out properly. He had not only to thank them for their cordial reception and the treat he had experienced, but as one of the founders of the lodge, who occupied in 1861 the position the W.M. now occupied, he was delighted to come among the brethren once more, and to find that this lodge had prospered so well, that it was such a numerous and respectable lodge. No one could wish it success more than he did. He was glad to find that Masonry had prospered in that neighbourhood. At the request of their esteemed friend, Bro. Walters, he had lent them a helping hand at first, but this Royal Oak Lodge was so strong a child, it threw so well, it had such an able superintendent in the person of Bro. Collington, that it soon became quite unnecessary for him (Dr. Dixon) to come from London to give them assistance. His heart had always been with them, and he never had Bro. Walters at his house without asking him how the lodge was getting on. He had always been glad to hear the best news respecting it. Bro. Walters had over and over again invited him to visit the lodge, but circumstances had constantly prevented him, much to his regret. However, there he was that night, and he thanked the brethren for the cordial reception they had given him. He wished them every prosperity in the future, and from the way in which the W.M. had commenced the duties of his office he had no doubt when his year of office expired they would accord him as cordial a vote of thanks as they had given him a hearty welcome. Some of the other visitors also responded, and the W.M. then proposed "The P.M.'s." In that lodge they were peculiarly fortunate in having brethren who not only possessed the ability to help but also had that kindly feeling which at all times placed them at the disposal of every member of the lodge. After descending on the merits of Bro. Dixon and Bro. F. Walters, he referred to Bro. Collington, who, he said, had always been a friend to them, and had come to their rescue many times—was always ready to devote himself to the lodge. If there were any ceremonies wanted to be worked he had known him come at great inconvenience to himself and do them. Then there was their Treasurer, who if they wanted to overdraw let them do so to an unlimited extent. There was also Bro. Truelove, who had always been their good friend and helped them at many times. Another P.M., Bro. Andrews, was so fortunately situated that his domestic affairs would allow him to devote great attention to the lodge without any detriment to his wife or family. (Laughter.) There was likewise the I.P.M., who was fresh in all the ceremonies, and who had kindly coached him that evening. Bro. Collington acknowledged the toast. The progress that Masonry had made during the last 20 years was appreciable to him, and must be so to all Masons; and nowhere was it more clearly demonstrated than in that lodge. As one of the founders of the lodge and its second Master, after his esteemed friend, Dr. Dixon, he assured the brethren that when they met they were but ten or twelve strong; it afforded a vast contrast to the present numerous assemblage. It shewed how the lodge had prospered; and under what conditions had it prospered? By having true and good Masons as W.M.'s at the head of the lodge, and so long as they exercised their privilege as Masons, and only allowed such men to come into Masonry as were fit to become Masters of the lodge, so long must the lodge prosper. It was very pleasing to him to see such a gathering there that night, and so many P.M.'s, and it was also very gratifying to find such men in office that the assistance of the P.M.'s was not wanted to help them. Nevertheless, if ever the assistance of the P.M.'s were sought, their services would be given with the greatest pleasure. Dr. Baxter Langley, S.W., responding to the toast of "The Officers," said that his idea of the duties of an officer of a Masonic lodge was that they were not confined to the lodge. An officer had many duties to perform, and in fact, a life to lead. That life should be one which would produce a kindly sentiment and good feeling in every circle in which he moved. In that lodge he felt they had passed through a very critical period, and he owed very much personally to the kind feelings and consideration of the members of the lodge generally that he occupied the position which he had now the honour to hold, and for which he thanked them with all sincerity and good feeling. He could assure the W.M. that for his own part he should give him a loyal and earnest support as far as his abilities went; and he hoped during the Master's year of office they might all succeed in bringing the hearts of the members closer together than they were at the beginning of the year, and that they would end the year even better than they had begun it; that they might feel they had many dear friends in the lodge that they did not know at the beginning of the year. The other officers also replied and the W.M. having proposed "The Press," for which Bro. Massey responded, gave "The Charities."

In the course of his remarks he said that although the brethren did not want to placard themselves on the back as charitable, yet they wished in their own lives individually and collectively to support the charities. Charity did not always mean giving money out of their pockets. Masons knew that charity in its higher sense meant brotherly love; and if they had not the means of giving funds to their Masonic charities they so particularly delighted in, they felt that as Masons they not only loved one another, but in a greater proportion, though the outer world did not feel it directly, they did benefit the outer world. They did not boast or placard this to the public; they were content to do their duty according to their Masonic obligations, and by agreement among themselves they did it to the best of their ability. Some were blessed with this world's goods, and did good to the utmost of their power. In that lodge there were brethren who supported the Masonic institutions to their utmost. There were brethren in the lodge who had devoted their time, their substance, and their influence to the benefit of those glorious charities which they felt an honour to themselves and to the Craft, and to the country. There was one brother particularly he would mention, Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley, and there was a P.M. who was Steward last year, and who mulcted the brethren of several half-crowns for a "draw." They knew how hard he worked; in fact he was not satisfied with one "draw," but he had a second to enlarge his list. He got it, and he received a jewel which represented that he had done his work honourably and truly. This was Bro. Tuson. Bro. Dr. Baxter Langley, in reply, said that he no sooner joined Freemasonry than he found its prominent characteristic was charity. Delighted as he was with the ceremony of initiation he felt it his duty at once to become a life governor of all the Masonic charities. He had every reason to hope that he should continue in that course, and he trusted that before he had passed the chair of this lodge, if ever he should be honoured with that distinction, he should be a Vice-President of all the Masonic charities, and have represented the lodge at the festivals of each of them. Shakespeare had said that happiness was born a twin, and the heart that threw itself around the sphere in which it found itself must be of necessity a happy, happy thing. In that spirit he always thought that those who sought happiness should seek it through blessing those around them, and create a life of happiness and blessedness in them. If there was any duty prominent among Masons, it was the making others happy. There was a story very prettily told in one of Sir Walter Scott's novels, in which a poor girl who had sacrificed everything thought precious to women to a very worthless person, had a sister who travelled all the way to London through difficulties, trials, temptations, starvation, and distress to seek the ear of the Queen, and to obtain pardon for her lost sister; and when she had obtained the ear of the Royal lady, she was asked how it was that she had travelled so far and suffered so much for a person so worthless as her sister; and she replied, in words that should be written in every Mason's heart at least: "Oh, my liddle, when the hour o' trouble comes, that comes to many a body, and when the hour o' death comes, that comes to high and low, it is na' what we hae done for ourselves, but what we hae done for others that we think o' most pressing." This he considered was the principle of Freemasonry. (Cheers.) The brethren shortly afterwards separated. During the evening several members of the lodge and visitors gave some excellent musical performances.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—The installation meeting of this recently founded but prosperous lodge was held at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Friday, the 16th ult. The lodge was opened at 3 p.m. Amongst those present were Bros. Dwarber, W.M.; Wellsman, S.W., W.M. elect; Dalwood, J.W.; Praed, P.M., Treas.; Tisley, Sec.; Dobson, S.D.; Turner, J.D.; Woodbridge, I.G.; Williams, P.O. of Middlesex, Org.; and the following honorary members: Bros. Albert, G.P.; J. Smith, P.G.P.; and Terry, Sec. R.M.B.I. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, and the report of the Auditors received and adopted, the W.M. raised Bro. Pearce, and passed Bros. R. H. Clemow, Benningfield, Bamber, and Giscard, the ceremonies being well performed. The inducting of the S.W. into the chair of K.S. then commenced. The ceremonial was entirely carried out by Bro. Dwarber, assisted by Bro. Albert J. Smith, and other Past Masters, and was very impressively performed. The W.M. appointed and invested the following officers: Bros. Dalwood, S.W.; Dobson, J.W.; Turner, S.D.; Woodbridge, J.D.; Manners, I.G.; Low, D.C.; Bull, W.S.; Praed, P.M., &c., Treas.; Tisley, Sec.; Williams, Org.; Gilbert, Tyler. The work concluded by the W.M. initiating Mr. Tilby, organist of St. Dunstan's Church, into Craft mysteries, the "work" being exceedingly well executed. The lodge being closed until the third Friday in March next, the brethren adjourned to an elegant banquet, which was well served in the Pillar Room. Amongst the visiting brethren were Bros. F. Binckes, P.G.S.; Hogg, P.G.S.; Baxter, W.M. Grand Steward's Lodge; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex; Dosell, P.P.G.D.C. Surrey; Dunn, P.M. 34; Robertson, P.M. 55; Webb, P.M. 72; Alexander, P.M. 188; Sprague, P.M. 190; Hooper, P.M. 435; W. H. Jackson, P.M. 1360; Egan, W.M. 858; Lee, W.M. 975; Livett, W.M. 1351; Bingemann, W.M. 1599; T. C. Walls, J.W. 1381; and others. The Royal and Craft toasts having been disposed of, the W.M. proposed "The Pro. G.M., the Deputy G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," coupled with the name of Bro. Albert, G.P., who briefly replied by stating that he was gratified at the manner in which his name had been connected with the toast, and also at the cordial way in which the brethren had responded to it. He was afraid, however, he should not be able to do justice to the toast. He then went on to speak of the merits of many of the officers of Grand Lodge, and concluded by congratulating the St. Dunstan's Lodge upon its progress since its consecration. In proposing "The Health of the Initiate," the W.M. took occasion to mention the fact, that their newly admitted brother was the Assistant Secretary to the "Home for Little Boys," and as Freemasonry was one of the greatest charitable institutions in the world, Bro. Tibby, in consequence of his connection with a very useful charity, would be doubly welcome to the Craft. He was also organist to the parish church, and as parish men and brothers they gave him a most cordial greeting. This toast having been warmly received, the Initiate responded by stating that he had experienced great pleasure that evening by being admitted one of their distinguished body. He had always taken a great interest in reading of their great benevolent institutions, and as he was connected with one of the charities of the Metropolis, he had thought that he ought to become a member of so good a society. The I.P.M., in giving "The Health of the W.M.," said that No. 1589, as a representative lodge, would for years to come be governed by brothers who had held, or were holding, office in the parish, namely, churchwardens, overseers, Common Councilmen, and others. They had the vestry clerk for a Secretary, and long might he continue to hold that position. The health of the W.M. needed no recommendation from him to make it welcome amongst them. In concluding, he said that if he were to speak for an hour he could not say more than this, "that the good Masonic barque St. Dunstan was fairly launched, and with Bro. Wellman at the helm it was impossible for it to founder." The W.M., in reply, said that he was very delighted at the welcome that they had given him that evening, and if at the end of his year he should have done as well as the I.P.M. had presaged for him, he should be happy indeed. In the course of his speech he said that when he became Master of his mother lodge he thought that a very proud moment, but in being the second Master and a founder of No. 1589, which bids fair to become a most powerful lodge, he felt even greater satisfaction. In proposing "The Health of the I.P.M.," the W.M. said that Bro. Dwarber had had an anxious and onerous year of office, because he had been a "continual worker." Those that had had the pleasure of seeing the I.P.M. do the installation work in the lodge that day must have been astonished. Personally he felt under great obligations to him, and he should endeavour to emulate his example in the chair. In conclusion, he presented Bro. Dwarber with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, with a hope that he might live many years to wear it in the lodge he had ruled so well. The device in gold represents St. Dunstan in full episcopal attire, "with mitre and ring, pastoral staff, and all that sort of thing," and is suitably inscribed. The I.P.M., in the course of an excellent and feeling speech, said he did not know whether he had deserved all the kind encomiums that had been passed upon him that evening by the W.M. He had been many years connected with the parish, and he believed he had done good suit and service in it. He was proud of St. Dunstan's, because it was the first parish in the City of London, and he was of opinion that in a very short time their local lodge would be the chief representative lodge in the metropolis; and in concluding his address he said he should ever regard his Mastership of No. 1589 as one of the most agreeable episodes of his life. "The Health of the Visitors" followed. In proposing this the W.M. said it was a sign that they were going on well when they were favoured on that occasion by so many visiting brethren. It was a good old custom of the Masonic fraternity to entertain visitors, because it was pleasant for the members of the lodge to see them at their work, and afterwards to dispense its hospitality at the social board. They were favoured with the presence amongst them that evening of many brethren who had given up other Masonic engagements in order to be present, and he hoped that they had thoroughly enjoyed themselves. In conclusion, in the name of the lodge, he gave them all a hearty welcome, and that they, the members of No. 1589, would be glad to see them again. This toast having been warmly received was acknowledged by several prominent visitors present. "The Masonic Charities" came next, and the W.M., in briefly introducing the toast, said that it was very gratifying for him as one of the Stewards to state that at the festival of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution on the 12th ult., in round numbers, the sum of £12,800 had been collected. He coupled with the toast the names of two distinguished Secretaries of the Masonic Charities present, namely, Bros. Binckes and Terry. Bro. Binckes remarked, in speaking of the Charities generally, that to put forth rival claims for the assistance of the benevolent on behalf of any particular Charity would be simply preposterous, and also to make comparisons between them would be invidious, because they were all worthy of support. The committees of the schools, however, wanted to raise money in order to extend those excellent institutions, and thereby be enabled to give accommodation to 200 girls and 300 boys, instead of the limited number of recipients as now existed. There was an enormous increase in the Order, and consequently there would be a very great increase in the demands upon the resources of the Masonic institutions. They were all familiar with the expression "Move on," and the cry in Masonry now was, "Move on," but they must not forget that progression has its drawbacks. Bro. Terry had been heard to say that "if there had been no old men and women there would have been no boys and girls," and he (Bro. Binckes) was of opinion that "if there had been no boys and girls there would have been no old men and women." In conclusion, he made a powerful appeal upon behalf of the next festival of the Boys' School. Bro. Terry having also spoken at length upon the Charities, the W.M. proposed "The Officers," which having been duly responded to, the proceedings shortly afterwards terminated. During the evening instrumental and vocal harmony was furnished by Bros. T. Lawler, sen. and jun., Walls, Williams, and others. The next meeting of the lodge will be held on the third Friday in March.

WOOLWICH.—Nelson Lodge (No. 700).—The winter banquet of the above distinguished lodge took place on Wednesday, the 21st ult., at Bro. Young's house, the King's Arms Hotel, Francis-street, upon which occasion upwards of a hundred of the members and visiting brethren assembled to do honour to the lodge, and to partake of the good things so liberally provided for them by the worthy host. There had been, however, before the dinner business commenced, some good work done in lodge, which was opened by the W.M., Bro. T. Butt, at half-past four o'clock sharp, the following officers being present beside the W.M.:—Bros. T. Ward, I.P.M.; J. Rowland, P.M.; W. Graham, P.M.; G. D. Crawford, P.M.; C. Hobson, P.M.; E. Bowles, P.M.; Waters, S.W.; A. Woodley, J.W.; F. J. Dawson, Treas., and P.M.; J. Henderson, Sec., and P.M.; J. Warren, S.D.; J. Wilkins, J.D.; E. B. Hobson, I.G.; W. McCoy, D.C.; C. Cooke, Org.; and B. Norman, Tyler. The visitors comprised Bros. W. Weston, W.M. 1536; J. J. Cantle, W.M. 144; F. G. Pownall, W.M. 13, and P.M. 1536; G. Spinks, S.W. 1536; W. Gamble, S.W. 706; G. W. Reed, S.W. 13; H. G. Picken, J.W. 1536; T. D. Hayes, J.D. 913; A. Jessup, Treas. 913; D. Deves, S. 1536; S. Long, 913; T. Huntley, 87; W. A. Watkins, 1536; J. Donnelly, 706 and 1536; G. A. Pillin, 91; and C. Jolly, 913. The lodge having been opened in due form, Messrs. J. T. Aldous, J. M. Larder, and another gentleman, whose name we could not gather, were, after approval, duly initiated into Masonry. Bros. Ross and Hamilton were passed to the Second Degree, and Bro. Hill received the benefits of the Third, all three degrees being worked in such fashion as the Nelson Lodge is pre-eminent at, and most justly so. As there was nothing important before the lodge, it was duly closed, and the brethren sped away to dinner, to which they gave their "unadulterated assurance," and upon its discussion, the W.M., in well-chosen sentences, gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts, which were most loyally responded to. Bro. Ward, in giving "The Health of the W.M.," said they were all fully aware of the excellent manner in which their W.M. carried out the duties of his position, how he met their wishes, and conduced to their comforts. Every arrangement he made was especially for their gratification, subject, of course, to the interest of the lodge. He (the W.M.) had now passed the meridian of his day as head of the lodge, for when the W.M. of the lodge sat down, as head of it, at their winter banquet, he must feel that the time has arrived for him to think of his successor. But of one thing Bro. Butt might be assured, and that was, that when he left that chair he would leave it with the good wishes of every member of the Nelson Lodge. Bro. Butt, in reply, thanked them for their cordial reception of his name. He knew that he had passed the meridian, but he trusted that under his guidance the good ship Nelson had passed all the shoals and quicksands in her way, and got safely into haven. He trusted for the remainder of his time to still have their confidence and support, and they in return might depend upon his continued efforts for the success and prosperity of the lodge. "The Initiates" were then toasted, and returned thanks. "The Visitors" followed, and Bros. Cantle, Weston, Hayes, and Reed replied, the first advocating the principle of visiting lodges, as conducive to a better and uniform system of working, as well as gaining a knowledge of one another, which would be an impossibility without such a system. Bro. Weston said that seven years ago he received two degrees in the Nelson Lodge, and since that time he had always received the greatest courtesy and kindness, from the W.M. downwards, from all; the tie of Masonry had made them friends, and he trusted that friendship would long continue. Bro. Hayes made a few happy remarks, which were supplemented by Bro. Reed, and then the W.M. proposed the toast of "The Past Masters," and after passing many compliments on the senior P.M., Bro. J. Rowland, presented him, in the name of the lodge, with his portrait, splendidly framed and mounted. The portrait is an enlarged photograph, beautifully coloured, showing our esteemed brother in full Masonic clothing, with a Past Master's and R.A. jewel on his breast. Bro. Rowland, in reply, first thanked the W.M. and brethren for their honoured reception of the toast, and then proceeded to thank them individually for their magnificent testimonial, saying that such an one was usually only given to those who had served their country on the field or in the senate, or to those illustrious in art or literature, but what had he done that he should be so honoured?—merely his duty; but he felt proud of it, not because of its mere value, but because he felt that it came to him with the good wishes of every one in the lodge. He regretted that he had neither parent, wife, nor child to share with him the pleasure and the honour of such a moment, but to the longest hour of his life he should feel it; it would be treasured in his heart as a miser treasures his gold, the memory of that night would never pass away. He gave them his assurance of unflinching fidelity, and in conclusion said—I trust that the blessing of the G.A.O.T.U. will descend upon you all. From me, worshipful sir, and brethren, receive a deep and lasting debt of gratitude and love. Several other toasts followed, Bro. Young being especially complimented for his splendid menu, and so the evening closed in harmony and good fellowship.

LLANGFNI.—Anglesey Lodge (No. 1113).—A special meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday evening, the 20th ult., at the Bull Hotel, Llangfni, Anglesey. It was expected that Sir Richard-Bulkeley Williams, Bart., the high sheriff of Anglesey, would be initiated, and a large number of brethren from neighbouring lodges attended in honour of the occasion. Much to their regret the worthy baronet was unable to attend. After the formal business, the brethren sat down to a splendid banquet provided by Bro. Crewdson. Bro. Evan Williams, W.M., presided, and the attendance included Bros. Bulkeley

Hughes, M.P., D.P.G.M.; Capt. C. Hunter, D.G.M. of Aberdeenshire, P.S.G.W. of Greece; W. L. Banks, P.M., P.G.S.B.; P. C. Roden, P.M., P.P.G.W.; J. Sidney Boucher, W.M. 606 (Carnarvon); J. Jones, S.W. 1488; T. H. Warrington, S.W. 1113; J. Pritchard, J.W.; Tegerin Hughes, S.D.; G. Hughes, Sec.; T. L. Kyffin, P.M., P.P.G. Chaplain; F. Jones (Bangor), J. Crewdson, J. Treweek, R. Rowlands, Robert Owen, R. F. Halahan, 606, and others.

DOVER.—Corinthian Lodge (No. 1208).—The installation of Bro. Henry M. Baker as W.M. for the ensuing year came off on Monday last at the Royal Hotel, Dover, and was altogether a great success, between 70 and 80 being present. Amongst those present were Bros. G. Adamson, Sen., P.M. 1208, P.P.G.A.D.; Pophiss, P.M. 1208, P.G.A.D.; Fuhr, P.M. 1208, P.P.G.A.D.; Smeeth, P.M. 1208, Sec.; Holmes, S.W. 1208; G. Adamson, jun., J.W. 1208; Fenn, S.D. 1208; Jacques, J.D. 1208; R. W. Philpott, I.G. 1208; Cullen, Tyler 1208; Bloomfield, Bray, Wright, Newing, Lester, and others. Visitors: Bros. T. B. W. Briggs, 558; Emerson, P.M. 1206, P.P.G.J.W.; Bird, P.M. 784, P.G.S.W.; Coram, P.M. 199, P.P.G.P.; Marshall, P.M. 199, P.P.G.S.W.; Wilson, P.M. 199, P.P.G.S.B.; Cessford, P.M. 199, P.P.G.P.; Page, W.M. 1209, P.G.O.; Sheppard, 1043 and 434, P.D.G.S.D. Madras; Denne, P.M. 2091 Talyor, W.M. 1273; Hall, P.M. 31; Hayman, W.M. 784; Crawford, W.M. 127; Turner, W.M. 1449; Hills P.M. 1206; Woodruff, P.M. 1206; Baker, W.M. 1206; Ayling, W.M. 1096; Giles, W.M. 424; Field, S.W. 1436; Baker, S. 1206; Miskin, 972; Moulding, 942; Plant, S.W. 31; Torkington, 1261; Watts, S.W. 1206; Langley, P.S.W. 784; Hathaway, J.D. 1206; Smith, J.D. 1096; Horne, 1096; Duncan, 907; Jones, 588; Purcell, 434; Beecham, S.W. 723; Lukey, 199, I.G.; Gorton, 199; Igglesden, 1208; G. Smith, 199; Smith, 199; Oldfield, 1208; Birch, 199; Elms, 199; Hurst, 35; Crossier, 1208; Walter, 1208; Welch, 1208; Long, 1208; Twiggs, 1028; Watt, 1208; Hearn, 199; Humphrey, 199; Benham, Biggs, and numerous brethren from other lodges. A sumptuous dinner was placed on the table by Bro. Oldfield. The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. Plant, assisted by Bro. Moulding and Mr. Rhodes. The Worshipful Master proposed "The Queen and the Craft;" "The M.W. the Grand Master, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales;" "The R.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Deputy Grand Master, Lord Skelmersdale; and the rest of the Grand Officers;" "The R.W. the Provincial Grand Master, Viscount Holmesdale, M.P.;" "The V.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Eastes; and the Past and Present Provincial Officers." Bro. Bird, in responding, regretted the absence of Bro. Eastes, which was owing to a somewhat severe indisposition. He ever displayed a readiness to meet the brethren in every part of the Province, and by the judicious care he displayed in distributing the honours among the brethren, had won universally their confidence and respect. Bro. Smeeth in giving "The Health of the Worshipful Master," spoke of his great popularity among the brethren; his extraordinary perseverance and generosity, having, as Steward, on two occasions, to the Boys' and Girls' Schools, carried up nearly £500, through which he had been awarded the rare gift of a charity jewel, containing three bars. He sincerely hoped he might have a successful year of office. The toast was received with great applause, accompanied with musical honours. The Worshipful Master in responding said he was extremely thankful for the hearty reception given to him by the brethren, and they might depend that he would do all he could during his year of office to forward the welfare of the Corinthian Lodge. Bro. P.M. Adamson then gave "The Health of the Installing Master," who had performed the onerous duties falling upon him in a most masterly manner. Bro. Emmerson was well known in the whole Province of Kent, and so highly regarded, that it was with extreme satisfaction they had met him on this and other occasions. The toast was very heartily received, and Bro. Emmerson, in returning thanks, said that he had hoped to have the pleasure of installing his friend Bro. Baker in the chair, and he was sure that the great Masonic virtue of charity would find in the new W.M. a warm and earnest advocate. He trusted that his year of office would tend to promote harmony, and that he would cement the respect and affection of every brother of the lodge. The W.M. submitted "The Health of the Visitors," for whom Bro. Briggs responded. The other toasts were "The Past Masters of the Lodge," "The Officers of the Lodge," and "The Masonic Charities," to which Bros. Smeeth, Holmes, and Anderson responded. This concluded one of the most successful Masonic banquets held in the province for some time past.

BUXTON.—Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann (No. 1235).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 22nd ult., and was opened in due form. There were present: Bros. E. C. Milligan, W.M.; E. J. Sykes, S.W.; J. H. Lawson, J.W.; A. A. Bagshawe, P.M., P.P.G.S.W., Chaplain; Chas. Adams, Sec.; Philip Le Gros, S.D.; W. Boughen, J.D.; Geo. Marsden, P.P.G.O., Org.; Chas. Wilkinson, I.G.; George Goodwin and Charles Gwinnell, Stewards. Also Bros. Joseph Whalley, J. C. Hyde, W. C. Moore, Henry Wint, Joseph Morton, Thos. Bragg, P.M., &c., John Oram, William Lees, William Goodwin, and others. Among the visitors were: Bros. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., Prov. Grand Master of West Yorkshire; H. Turner, P.G.S.W.; J. H. Sillitoe, P.M. 317; W. Milligan, P.M. 887; J. S. Wright, P.M. 654; J. Holnett, P.M. 850; M. L. Simpson, P.M. 200; J. Hall, P.M. 210; P. Bramwell, W.M. 654; S. W. Ready, P.M. 654; G. Smedley, jun., 424; G. Huggetts, W.M. 850; W. Wynne-Jendwine, W.M. 681; L. F. Parkinson, 44; C. E. W. Ferguson, S.W. 654; Alfred H. Young, S.O. 148; W. N. Ivatts, S.W. 884; Ricardo Waltham, 853; J. Neale, 1551; and others. Bro. E. J. Sykes, the W.M. elect, was Introduced by Bros. Sillitoe and Rev. A. A. Bagshawe to the installing Master, Bro. W. Milligan, and the whole of this important ceremony was done to the entire satisfaction of all present. Afterwards, at the request of the newly-installed W.M., Bro. Sillitoe duly invested the following officers for the year:—Bros. J. H. Lawson, S.W.; Philip Le Gros, J.W.; A. A. Bagshawe, P.P.S.G.W., Chap.; Taylor, Treas.; W. Goodwin, Sec.; W. Boughen, S.D.; W. D. Sutton, J.D.; C. Adams, D. of C.; G. Goodwin and C. Gwinnell, Stewards; Joseph Martin, Standard Bearer; A. Pyle, Tyler. After the business of the lodge was concluded, it was formally closed with the usual ceremonies, and the brethren of the Phoenix Lodge, with the numerous visitors who had honoured them with their presence, adjourned to the Palace Hotel, where dinner had been provided in the dining-room. After dinner there were the usual loyal and Masonic toasts. "The Queen and the Craft" and "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the rest of the Royal Family," were proposed by the newly-elected W.M. These were followed by "The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Most Worshipful Pro Grand Master; The Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master, and the Officers, Present and Past, of the Grand Lodge of England," proposed by Bro. A. A. Bagshawe; and "The Right Worshipful the Provincial Grand Master of Derbyshire, The Marquis of Hartington, M.P.; the Right Worshipful Deputy Provincial Grand Master, H. C. Okover, Esq., and the Provincial Grand Lodge Officers, Past and Present," proposed by Bro. W. Milligan. Bro. Thomas Bragg then proposed "The Provincial Grand Lodge of West Yorkshire," coupling with it the name of their distinguished brother, Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., the G. Master of that province, who replied in a truly Masonic spirit, and charmed all the brethren by the cordial good feeling he threw into all the proceedings. The following toasts were proposed:—"The Principals of the Chapter, Past and Present," "The Worshipful Master," "The Worshipful Board of Installing Principals and Masters," "The Immediate Past Master of the Phoenix Lodge of St. Ann, 1225," "The Visitors," "The Past Masters and Past Officers of the Lodge," "The Masonic Charities," "The Officers of the Lodge," and the Tyler's toast. In the course of the evening a Past Master's jewel was presented to the retiring W.M., Bro. E. C. Milligan, P.M., suitably inscribed, by the members of his lodge, materially assisted by Bro. F. Bragg. The whole proceedings were of a most satisfactory character, showing that the greatest good feeling existed among all the brethren present.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—This lodge held its last meeting on Thursday, the 22nd ult., at the Lion Hotel, when there were present Bros. Hurst, W.M.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, S.W.; E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, I.P.M. and Treas.; W. Hammond, P.M., P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Sec.; Fox, S.D.; Jesset, J.D.; Ockenden, I.G.; T. C. Walls, D.C.; Gutheridge, W.S.; Kent, A.W.S. In the absence of Bro. Hill, J.W., Bro. Kraentler, 1303, officiated in that position. The other visitors were Bros. Martin, 201; White, 552 (India); Bowra, 889. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the I.P.M. raised Bros. W. A. Messenger and J. Schmitz to the Third Degree, and having vacated the chair, the W.M. then initiated Mr. Caleb Hole into Craft mysteries. Upon the motion of the W.M., seconded by the I.P.M., and carried unanimously, the sum of ten guineas was voted from the lodge funds to head the list of Bro. Ockenden, as Steward to the Girls' Festival in May next. Bro. Hopwood, I.P.M., was recommended to the Provincial Grand Lodge for preferment. A vote of thanks having been unanimously passed to Bro. Hammond for his kindness in presenting the lodge with a very handsome Bible, as a souvenir of his Mastership, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a well served collation. The customary loyal and Craft toasts having been disposed of, the I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," in which he expressed the pleasure it afforded him in doing so, because Bro. Hurst had well discharged the duties of the chair in lodge and at the banquet table. This toast having been warmly received, the W.M. briefly replied, by stating that he was particularly obliged to the I.P.M. that evening for having kindly undertaken to carry out the ceremonial of raising. If the brethren of the lodge were satisfied with him, he was proud of the position he occupied, but at the same time he felt that he ought to discharge the responsibilities of the chair better than he did. In giving "The Initiate," the W.M. said that the prosperity of the lodge could not continue without the occasional advent of candidates for initiation. The members of the "Hemming" now numbered 38, the majority of whom were initiates. In conclusion, he said that the lodge would always be proud of their initiates while they continued to act according to the principles of Freemasonry. The Initiate having briefly acknowledged the toast, the W.M. rose and proposed "The Health of the Visitors." In the course of his remarks he said that they (the members of No. 1512) were always charmed to receive visitors. The lodge was generally favoured with the company of some distinguished visiting brother, but on that occasion although they were not so honoured, yet they were pleased to welcome four worthy Master Masons, and he hoped that the visit of these brethren had in every way been agreeable to them. Bros. Kraentler, Martin, Bowra, and White, the visitors thus honoured, severally responded. The first-named brother, at the conclusion of his reply, stated that he had been so well received during his visits to the lodge that he wished to present them with a set of "firing" glasses, as a very slight mark of his appreciation of their kindness. "The Health of the Past Masters" followed. In proposing this toast the W.M. said that as the lodge only had two occupying that distinguished grade, and inasmuch as those worthy brethren respectively held the positions of Treasurer and Secretary also, he desired that the toast should be received with double warmth. They all knew that without the assistance and attention of the Treasurer and Secretary no lodge could hope to succeed. He believed that the Hemming Lodge owed much to the exertions of Bros. Hopwood and Hammond, who held those positions, and discharged them well. This toast having been duly honoured, the Treasurer and Secretary replied. The toast of "The Officers" followed. In giving this toast the W.M. said that he was sorry that Bro. J. Hammond, S.W., had been obliged to leave early in the evening in consequence of indisposition, and that their worthy J.W. had not been able to attend. The members of the lodge, however, knew their merits well, and he believed, as a whole, that no lodge was better officered. The acting S.W. stated, in reply, that although Bro. John Hammond was "absent in the flesh, he was present in spirit." Personally he felt gratified at being the medium of returning thanks upon behalf of so worthy a Mason, and whose praises had been so well and deservedly sung by the W.M. In conclusion, he remarked that he was sure that no brother had the interests of the lodge more at heart than the S.W. had. Bros. Jesset, J.D.; Ockenden, I.G.; and Kent, A.W.S., also replied. "The Masonic Charities" was coupled with the name of Bro. Ockenden, who will represent the lodge at the festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls. The W.M. paid a high compliment to their Steward, who he said was worthy of all the support that could be given to him, because he had on a former occasion proved himself to be thoroughly indefatigable and zealous in the cause of the Masonic necessities. This toast having been duly honoured, Bro. Ockenden gave some interesting statistics of the Masonic institutions, and concluded his reply by making a stirring appeal upon behalf of the particular charity he had undertaken to represent at its forthcoming festival. During the evening Bros. Hurst, Jesset, Walls, Martin, and Schmitz entertained the brethren.

INSTRUCTION.

SOUTHERN STAR LODGE (No. 1158).—There has not been such a large attendance at Bro. Block's, The Crown, Blackfriars-road, as that of Thursday last, since the consecration ceremony was rehearsed by Bro. Terry, eight months ago. As a rule the Fifteen Sections have not attracted the attention and attendance they deserve when worked in our lodges of late. In numerous instances the complaint has been heard, "We had a very poor muster;" "Why didn't you come?" The present case is an agreeable exception, and from the array of names before us it is not difficult to perceive that to Bros. Pulsford, Macdonald, Kent, and Beavis, the general advertising which conduced to the good attendance was mainly due. We would here add our word of appreciation in the matter of the "programme" system which is adopted in connection with the lodges wherein Bro. Beavis takes a prominent part. It is a desirable thing that the names of the brethren assisting in the working should be known to those who are not partakers in the work, and their display on the back of the announcement card saves a deal of whispering "Who is that brother?" &c. With but three exceptions, the brethren on the card showed up for their respective sections, so that proof is furnished of the possibility of a hard working Secretary "getting his men together"—and men, too, upon whom he can rely—some time before the appointed day. The officiating officer upon this occasion was the popular Preceptor and Secretary of the mother lodge, Bro. T. H. Pulsford, P.M. 1158, one of the quickest (but by no means hasty) workers we have met. Bro. Pulsford came into lodge at a few minutes to seven, at which hour it was opened, the officers standing as follows:—Bros. C. Wise, P.M. 1158, as I.P.M.; Kent, P.M. 874, S.W.; Beavis, 1158, J.W.; Wray, S.D. 1604, S.D.; Ernest E. Smith, 1559, J.D.; Block, 1158, I.G.; Stead, Tyler. There were present likewise Bros. J. Wright, P.M. 1158; A. Wright, P.M. and Treas. 1158; Stewart, I.G. 1158; Lugg, 879; Harrington, 879; Farwig, S.D. 180; Taylor, J.D. 753; J. Parker, I.G. 753; Freeland, 879; Brady, Melloy, Leaper, Holland, Holloway, R. W. Simmons, Field, Colegrave, Arnold, Snook, Devereux, J. Sims, Hart, Jeffery, Emery, Coe, Hough, Dowdell, Wells, and one or two more. The lodge having been duly opened up to the Third Degree, and resumed to the First, the business of the evening proceeded thus:—

FIRST LECTURE.

1st Section by.....	Bro. Block, 1158.
2nd " .....	" Leaper, 1275.
3rd " .....	" Ernest E. Smith, 1559.
4th " .....	" Lugg, 879.
5th " .....	" Beavis, 1158.
6th " .....	" Kent, P.M. 879.
7th " .....	" Farwig, S.D. 180.

SECOND LECTURE.

1st Section by.....	Bro. Wray, J.D. 1604.
2nd " .....	" Parker, I.G. 755.
3rd " .....	" Beavis, 1158.
4th " .....	" Stewart, I.G. 1158.
5th " .....	" Taylor, J.D. 753.

THIRD LECTURE.

1st Section by.....	Bro. Wise, P.M. 1158.
2nd " .....	" Leaper, 1275.
3rd " .....	" Wray, J.D. 1604.

It is needless to say that under the direction of such an expert as Bro. Pulsford, the evening slipped pleasantly away, and the efficiency of the brethren engaged in the work is testified by the fact that three hours thirty-two minutes covered the time occupied in getting through the three lectures. Bros. Snook, 604; Devereux, J.W. 1423; Sims, 849; Jeffery, J.W. 452; Hart, 1348; Farwig, J.W. 180; Wray, S.D. 1604; Weeks, 749; Dowdell, 1158; Emery, Coe, Hough, and Harrington, all 879, were elected members of this lodge of instruction. The usual vote of thanks to the W.M., Bro. Pulsford, was coupled with an unanimous vote that he be elected an honorary member of the lodge.

Royal Arch.

CAVEAC CHAPTER (No. 176).—The regular convocation of this well-established chapter was held at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street, City, on Saturday, 20th February. The chapter was opened by Comps. G. K. Lemann, M.E.Z.; J. B. Sorrell, H.; Dr. W. S. Wyman, P.Z., as J.; F. Walters, P.Z., P.P. 1st A.G.S. Middx., Treas. The companions were then admitted. The minutes of the previous convocation were read and unanimously confirmed. Bro. Rudolph, Liebman, 1423, Era Lodge, being in attendance was duly exalted into Royal Arch Freemasonry. The whole working was well given. The M.E.Z., Comp. G. K. Lemann, P.Z., particularly distinguished himself by doing his portion of the ceremony in an impressive, correct, and solemn manner, which caused the Treasurer, Comp. F. Walters, to remark that after his experience of nearly twenty-one years as a Royal Arch Mason, he had never seen any other M.E.Z. ever do it any better than what it had been done by their M.E.Z., and felt it reminded him of the late Comp. Dr. Ladd, P.Z., so justly celebrated in his day as one of the best workers among Royal Arch Masons who ever did the ceremony of exaltation. The P.S., Comp. R. P. Tebb, who did his work for the first time, and whose duties as such add so much to the efficiency of the ceremony, also showed how proficient he had made himself the short time he had been in office. Comp. J. B. Sorrell, as H., did his work very well, maintaining the good reputation of his working both in this chapter and in his mother lodge, the Caveac, where so very many brilliant workers in the Craft have come from, to be a P.M. of the Caveac lodge being of itself a passport that any brother bearing that rank must have done good suit and service before he could have earned it. The other offices were well filled by Comps. R. P. Hooten, P.M. of two distinguished Craft lodge, S. Pounceby, S.N., an officer of the old Constitutional Lodge, 55, where, holding high office, is an aspirant to the chair. In consequence of the meetings of the Sphinx Chapter, and Caveac Chapter clashing, where so many of the companions belong to both, and on this occasion caused the absence of the J., Comps. W.M. Goss (whose neat and admirable working was sorely missed, it being a treat always to witness the correct rendering of any ceremony he undertakes), and P. A. Nairne, P.Z., a notice of motion was given by the Treasurer in his name, as also Comps. P. A. Nairne, P.Z.; and W. M. Goss, J., "that the meeting in October be abolished, or altered to September." It was stated the "Sphinx" had arranged all its other meetings which met on the same day as this chapter, and it was found that they were unable to alter their October meeting, consequently the members named thought to meet that difficulty by proposing that one meeting might be changed, or abolished in this chapter. Great regret was expressed at the unavoidable absence of Comps. A. Williams, C.E., 1st A.S., and Dr. C. Brown, 2nd A.S., whose professional duties prevented their attendance. It was unanimously resolved that Comp. R. Loiebmann be the Steward to represent this chapter at the forthcoming festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, to be held in May, who, at the earnest solicitation of the Treasurer, Comp. F. Walters, had agreed to accept the Stewardship, and to become a life governor of that Institution, no doubt its being a compliment paid to Comp. R. W. Little, the Secretary of the Girls' School (an old honorary member of the chapter) on his being appointed to the high rank of D.P.G.M., Middx., that promotion being as popular as any ever made in the Province of Middlesex. It was understood that some one or two brethren would be introduced at the next meeting, who were ready and anxious to be exalted in this chapter. The business of the meeting being ended, the chapter was closed, and adjourned to Saturday, May 24th, to meet at 5 p.m. Besides those named, Comp. J. Jackson was present. An unusual occurrence, no visitors were present. There not being any banquet or refreshment, the companions separated at the termination of the business.

OLDHAM.—Tudor Chapter (No. 277).—This chapter held its regular meeting on the 19th February, at the Freemasons' Hall, Union-street. The minutes of the preceding convocation had been read and confirmed. The installation of the Principals for the ensuing year was proceeded with. This beautiful and impressive ceremony was most ably performed by that most distinguished companion, James Hall, P.Z. of the Athol Chapter, assisted by Comps. W. F. Towle, Prov. G.P.S. of East Lancashire; Joseph Braddock, as M.E.Z. (for the second time); J. J. Midgeley, as H.; and Henry Thomas, as J. The sum of £20 has been voted by this chapter as a donation to the East Lancashire Systematic and Benevolent Institution. At the banquet which followed the toast of "The Visitors" was duly given, and occasion taken to thank Comps. Hall and Towle in the most cordial manner for the great treat afforded to the companions by the careful and very effective way in which they had performed the solemn ceremony of installation of the Principals.

SOUTHEND.—Priory Chapter (No. 1000).—The regular convocation of this chapter took place at the Middleton Hotel, Southend, on Wednesday, the 21st ult. Amongst those present were Comps. E. E. Phillips, M.E.Z.; A. Lucking, H.; J. A. Wardell, J.; Rev. S. R. Wigram, First Grand Assist. Soj., I.P.Z.; J. C. Johnstone, P.Z. 20, I.C., Scribe E.; W. Pissey, Scribe N.; S. Weston, Treas.; J. Willing, jun., P. Soj.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, Second Assist. Soj.; F. Calrow, J. R. Hemmann, F. V. Jillings, E. Judd, F. Wood, and H. Childs. Visitor: Comp. Coyte, 8. After the confirmation of the minutes, the V.W. Bro. Rev. C. W. Arnold, G. Chap., D.P.G.M. Surrey; Bros. G. F. Jones, 1000; and G. F. R. Bernard, M.B., 1373, were duly exalted by the Rev. S. R. Wigram, acting as Z., assisted by the other Principals and officers. The Principals and other officers for the ensuing year were then elected, viz., Comps. A. Lucking, M.E.Z.; J. A. Wardell, H.; Jas. Willing, jun., J.; J. C. Johnstone, Scribe E.; Rev. H. J. Hatch, Scribe N.; S. Weston, Treas.; W. Pisse, P. Soj.; and Mountain, Janitor. The Auditors elected were Comps. F. Wood and J. R. Hemmann. A P.Z.'s jewel having been voted to Comp. Phillips, the convocation was closed, and the companions adjourned to refreshment. The usual loyal and Royal Arch toasts were given and well received, and the Janitor's toast brought the proceedings to a close.

BUXTON.—Phoenix Chapter of St. Ann (No. 1235).—The installation of Principals of this chapter took place at the Court House on Thursday last, Feb. 22nd, the ceremony being very ably performed by Comps. James Hall, P.Z. of the Duke of Athol Lodge, 210, and P.P.G.P.S. East Lancashire, and J. H. Sillitoe, P.Z. of Affability Lodge, P.G.D. of C. East Lancashire, assisted by the M.E.Z. of the chapter. The Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, M.A., Rural Dean of Buxton, acted as Chaplain. Comps. Josiah Taylor, William Smith, and E. C. Milligan were duly installed as 1st, 2nd, and 3rd Principals. Comp. R. R. Duke, P.Z., who had been re-elected Treasurer, was absent through family bereavement. Comps. E. J. Sykes was invested as Scribe E.; Le Gros as P.S.; W. Boughen as 1st Asst. S. The chapter was honoured by the attendance, as a visitor, of the M. Ex. Comp. Sir Henry Edwards, Bart., of Pye Nest, Halifax, Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire. As visiting companions there were also present Ex. Comp. M. L. Simpson, Old Globe Lodge, 200, P.M., P.Z., and P.P.G. S.B.; Comps. W. Milligan, N. Justice Lodge, 253; W. F. Parkinson, Caledonian Lodge, 204; I. T. Wright, P. Bramwell, and C. W. Ferguson, Hope Lodge, 322. The ordinary business of the chapter having been transacted, the chapter was closed, and the companions adjourned to the Palace Hotel for luncheon.

Mark Masonry.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (Time Immemorial).—A regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, the 22nd ult. The chair was taken by Bro. Dr. Hopkins. Past G.J.W., P.M. 26 and 74, at the request of the W.M., who, being unavoidably detained in London, telegraphed to that effect. He was supported by Bros. Jas. Dutton, I.P.M.; Cater, S.W.; John Dutton, J.W. and Treas.; Rubie, Sec.; C. Wilkinson, M.O.; Braham, S.O.; Major Preston, acting as J.O.; Murlis, S.D.; Radway, J.D.; Falkner, Reg., acting as I.G.; Bigwood, Tyler; and many members. The lodge having been opened, the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Of four candidates three were present, and the other sent a note of apology for unavoidable absence. Bros. Hayward, Mercer, and Davis were regularly advanced to the degree of M.M.M. A ballot was taken for the appointment of W.M. for the next year, which resulted in the unanimous election of Bro. Cater, S.W., who very neatly and cordially returned thanks for the honour conferred upon him, expressing his determination to promote the prosperity of the lodge to the utmost of his power. Bro. John Dutton was re-elected Treasurer, and Bro. Bigwood, Tyler. Bros. Falkner, C. Wilkinson, and Braham were appointed, with the three senior officers and Secretary, as an Audit Committee. The lodge having since the last meeting suffered a severe loss by the death of Bro. Geo. Mann, an old and experienced member of all the degrees of Freemasonry, on the proposition of the acting W.M., seconded by the S.W., the Secretary was directed to forward a letter of sincere condolence to the members of his family. The proceedings, which were of an unusually satisfactory nature, terminated, and the lodge was closed at a quarter to ten.

YORK.—York Mark Lodge (Time Immemorial).—A meeting of this lodge was held on February 13th, 1877, all the officers being present. Bro. J. Morgan, of the Eboracum Lodge, 1611, as a candidate for advancement, and Bro. T. B. Prissick, of the Staducona Mark Lodge, Canada, as a joining member, were balloted for and duly elected. Bros. C. G. Padel (previously elected) and J. Morgan were then admitted and duly advanced to this honourable degree. Grand Mark Lodge certificates were presented to a number of brethren. A communication from the Secretary of the Britannia Mark Lodge, 53, Sheffield, was then read as follows:

(Copy).—"Britannia Lodge of M.M.M.'s, 53, Bro. J. B. Wostinholm, W.M., Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, 12th February, 1877. To George Balmford, Esq., W.M. York Mark Lodge, T.I., York, Worshipful Sir and Bro., Annexed I have the pleasure of handing to you a copy of a resolution unanimously carried at our last regular meeting, held on the 4th ult. By Command of the W.M., (Signed) John Unwin, jun., Secretary and Registrar of Marks."

Extract from the minute book of the Britannia Lodge of M.M.M.'s, No. 53, at a regular meeting held at the Freemasons' Hall, Sheffield, on January 4th 1877:—"Resolved, on the proposition of Bro. S. B. Ellis, M.O., seconded by W. Bro. H. J. Garnett, P.M., Treasurer, that this lodge tenders to the W.M., P.M.'s, Officers and Brethren of the York Mark Lodge, of Time Immemorial Constitution, its warmest congratulations on the York Mark Lodge having recently given in its allegiance to, and acknowledged the supremacy of the Grand Mark Lodge of England and Wales and the Colonies and Dependencies of the British Crown, under whose standard the Britannia Mark Lodge, No. 53, offers you a hearty welcome, and these expressions of unfeigned pride and pleasure on seeing the York Mark Lodge take its proper position amongst the "Time Immemorial" lodges on the Roll of the said Grand Mark Lodge. The above is a true copy. (Signed) J. B. Wostinholm, W.M.; (Signed) John Unwin, jun., Secretary and Registrar of Marks." It was resolved that the foregoing communication be entered on the minutes, and that the Secretary write offering the best thanks of the York Mark Lodge, T.I., to the Britannia Mark Lodge, No. 53, for their very fraternal and cordial greeting. Several candidates were then proposed and seconded, when the lodge was duly closed. Subsequently about twenty of the brethren partook of supper, and a most enjoyable evening was spent.

JERSEY.—Caesarean Lodge (No. 74).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on Monday, the 21st ult., at the Masonic Temple. Amongst the officers present were Bros. P. W. Benham, W.M.; A. Schmitt, acting I.P.M.; John Oatley, S.W.; E. Martel, J.W.; W. H. Long, M.O.; P. Blampied, S.O.; R. Barrow, J.O.; Thos. Leat, S.D.; W. Z. Pugsley, J.D.; Dr. Thos. J. Aubin, I.G.; J. O. Le Sueur, Reg.; and a goodly attendance of members. Visitor: Bros. Ph. G. Le Quesne. The lodge was opened in due form, when the minutes of the previous meeting, held in November, were read and confirmed. The following brethren were severally balloted for, unanimously admitted, and advanced: E. Z. Carter, John Gray, Capt. Thos. Le Scelleur, L. Blanchard, and W. H. Campbell. A remark worthy to be noticed, that since the revival of the lodge in September last, no less than nineteen good working Masons were admitted to the privileges of the Order. Several matters of local importance being settled, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to refreshment, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given, including those of the hon. members, Bros. Wm. James Hughan (Truro), and Dr. H. Hopkins (Bath).

Scotland.

GLASGOW.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 571).—This lodge held an emergency meeting on Friday, the 23rd of February, at St. Mark's Hall, 213, Buchanan-street, Glasgow. Present: Bros. H. W. Jackman, W.M.; Wm. Sivewright, S.W.; Wm. Barbour, J.W.; Geo. R. Weir, Sec.; L. R. Mitchell, Treas.; James Houston, S.D.; W. Turner, B.B., acting J.D.; W. Buchanan, Stwd.; J. B. Hardie, Tyler; Wm. J. E. Dobson, I.P.M.; Wm. Phillips, I.P.M. of 556. Visitors: Bro. Jamieson, and others. The business included an application from an approved candidate, Mr. Kingston, who received his first degree at the hands of the W.M. Bro. Kingston having to leave the country, it was considered advisable to give him the Second Degree, which was received by him at the hands of the I.P.M., William J. E. Dobson, in an able and impressive manner. Time getting late, it was proposed that he should get the Third at St. Mark's, 102, on Monday evening. Thereafter the lodge was closed in due and ancient form.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

A special meeting of the House Committee of this school was held on Saturday last in the Library, Freemasons' Hall, when there were present Bros. Henry Browne, Raynham W. Stewart, J. G. Chancellor, S. Rosenthal, Capt. J. Wordsworth, W. Roebuck, Henry W. Hunt, W. Hyde Pullen, J. Bagot Scriven, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes (Secretary). The meeting was held for the purpose of considering the best method of increasing the accommodation at the school-house, so as to admit of the number of pupils being extended to three hundred. Several plans for carrying out this object were submitted to the Committee, who considered them; but as the meeting was only preliminary, no decision was come to on the subject, and no recommendation made; and another special meeting for this afternoon at three o'clock was appointed. Some other matters were reported to the Committee before they adjourned.

TESTIMONIAL TO THE R.W. PROV. G.M. FOR MIDDLESEX.

A meeting of the members of the above province, which was numerously attended, was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Tavern, to consider the best mode of commemorating the period of seven years which Bro. Col. Francis Burdett has served as Provincial (Grand Master. Bro. R. W. Little, Deputy Prov. Grand Master, was appointed Chairman, Bro. Henry Gustavus Buss, P.G.J.W. Middlesex, Treasurer, and Bro. H. C. Levander, M.A., P. Prov. G.D. Wilts, Secretary, with a numerous committee.

ROYAL ORIENTAL ORDER OF SIKHA AND THE SAT B'HAI.

An Ashayana of this Order was held at Kensington on the 20th ult., under the presidency of one of the Censors. The Order Roll of the Arch Secretary was presented for inspection, and the signs duly verified. A report of the Mahanathas, and of the Indian Council, or Mahanatha-i-Hind, was received and approved. A draft of the Anglo-Aryan Constitutions was submitted and referred to the Sponsors. The Ritual Committee made a report, which was approved. A report was also received from the Regalia Committee, and a general report was made as to the progress of the Order in Great Britain and Ireland for the year 1876. The keys for the current cycle were then passed, and after some other business the Ashayana dispersed.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—For bad legs, bad breasts, scorbatic and scrofulous sores, this is a genuine specific. The grateful and earnest gratitude of thousands who have experienced its unrivalled power over these complaints, and who have been raised from prostrate helplessness and a condition loathsome to themselves and others, renders it quite unnecessary to enlarge in this place upon its extraordinary virtues. The parts affected should be bathed with lukewarm water, and when the pores are thereby opened the Ointment should be well rubbed in, at least twice a day. It is always advisable to take Holloway's Pills in these disorders, as this much assists the Ointment's action. The Pills check the fever, purify the blood, and eject all morbid matter engendered by these diseases.—ADVT.

Obituary.

THE LATE BRO. JOHN REDFERN.

From the Bury Times.

A substantial proof of the respect and esteem in which our late townsman, Bro. John Redfern, was held by the Freemasons of Bury has just been afforded in the erection by them of a memorial monument in the burial ground at All Saints' Church, Eltop. The monument, which is remarkably well proportioned, was designed by Mr. E. Simkin of this town, and consists of a square obelisk and base of dark grey Aberdeen granite, standing upon a pedestal of polished ashlar, its total height being about sixteen feet. On the east side of the base is the following inscription:

In Remembrance of JOHN SMITH REDFERN,
Of Bury.

Born October 6th, 1807.

Died May 26th, 1875.

Bowed to his maternal dust,
Heaven's Grand Master claims his trust;
May the truth his praise declare,
Tried by compass, rule and square.

On the west side are inscribed in Latin the words—

HOC MONUMENTUM
SOCIJ EJUS EX ORDINE
LATOMORUM POTUERUNT.

This monument was erected by his brother Freemasons. The shaft of the obelisk bears on its east front five, and on its west front four Masonic symbols or emblems, some of which are of a highly recondite character, inseparable from the mysteries in which the late brother had been initiated, and significant only to those deeply versed in ancient Masonic lore. The inscription and execution of the work are alike honourable to the promoters, and must be peculiarly gratifying to the surviving members of the deceased's family. Mr. Rawson, monumental mason, Knowlesley-street, has executed and erected the monument.

Bro. the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor of London has intimated his willingness to assist in raising a fund for the widows and orphans of the crews of the fishing smacks which were lost in the gale of the 6th ult. There are 18 smacks missing from Yarmouth and seven from Lowestoft.

THE ROYAL ALBERT ORPHAN ASYLUM.—The Worshipful Company of Leathersellers have given a donation of £10 10s. 0d. in aid of the funds of this institution, of which Bro. Wm. Worrell, P.M., &c., is the indefatigable Secretary.

Bro. Edwin Moss, of the Masonic quartette, has been appointed tenor to the Foundling Chapel.

ECLIPSE OF THE MOON.—On Tuesday evening the circumstances were, on the whole, as favourable as could have been expected for observing the lunar eclipse. At the earliest phase of the phenomena, at half-past five, while the earth's shadow was gradually advancing over the surface of her satellite, the moon was too near the horizon, and there was—in London, at least—too much smoke in the atmosphere for satisfactory observation. The image produced on the moon's disc appeared from these causes imperfectly defined, and was scarcely distinguishable for the obscuration of cloud and fog. Towards seven o'clock, as the immersion became more and more complete, the air was clearer and the definition much more perfect, and from this time to the final disappearance of the shadow the eclipse was seen to perfection.

The brethren of the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, met on Wednesday night at the Regent Masonic Hall. Mr. Victor M. Myers, Worshipful Master, presided, and after the performance of the ceremonies of passing and raising, the brethren proceeded to discuss the subject of the exclusion by the three Grand Lodges of Berlin of all men in Prussia who do not profess Christianity. After some deliberation, resolutions were come to on the motion of Mr. S. V. Abrahams, seconded by Mr. Pollitzer, to memorialise Grand Lodge of England to take such steps in the matter as in their judgment they may think advisable to obtain a repeal of what appeared to be a most obnoxious law. A committee was formed for carrying out the resolution, and £5 was devoted from the lodge funds towards defraying the preliminary expenses.—Daily News.

THE CAXTON CELEBRATION.—The Lord Mayor, at the request of the General Committee for the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the introduction of printing into England by William Caxton, has called a public meeting in furtherance of the scheme, to be held in the Egyptian Hall of the Mansion House, on Monday, the 20th inst., at half-past two o'clock.

The consecration of the Skelmersdale Lodge (No. 1568), will take place on Friday, the 9th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, at 4 o'clock precisely. V.W. Bro. John Hervey, Grand Secretary, will perform the ceremony, and instal Bro. Samuel James Harvey, W.M. designate.

The members of the Past Masters' Club (attached to the Royal Athelstan Lodge No. 19) held their annual meeting at the Green Dragon Hotel, Bishopsgate-street, on Tuesday, 27th ult., in celebration of the anniversary of the centenary of the lodge, which was founded in 1769. Bro. Charles Tyler, P.M. 19, 66, presided. Bro. Edward B. Grabham, P.M., Prov. S.G.W. Middlesex, having completed his year of office as Master of the lodge, was formally admitted a member of the club, and invited by the President to partake with the brethren of a loving cup, presented that evening by Bro. W. M. Bywater, P.M. and Secretary of the lodge, to whom was accorded a sincere vote of thanks for his very handsome and acceptable gift. Some customary toasts followed, after which Bro. D. Nicholson, P.M., was unanimously elected President for the ensuing year.

SPECULUM SAPIENTIÆ — THE MYSTERIOUS MIRROR—SPECULUM OF WISDOM.

As this plate has appeared in the Voice of Masonry, and a kind brother has sent us another photographic copy from Leeds, for the purpose of publication in the Masonic Magazine, we think it right to point out why we do not publish it. In the first place it is, as given in the Voice of Masonry, an adaptation after 1813, of a print which appeared in 1789, engraved by a certain Lambert or Poubert. We have a copy of it of that date, the half, however, only of a plate, and on the corresponding side appears to have been French translations, as on the original we see the words, "Chapitre et Grande Loge d'Angleterre, &c." It had not originally the Pelican, &c., and the dedication to the Union of 1813 is not found. If any brother has the correct plate in the whole, and will kindly forward it to us, we will consider the propriety of publishing it in the Masonic Magazine, though we do not attach any value to it, and for this reason. We have a collection of four plates, apparently published together, of which the half of the original plate, as now engraved in the Voice of Masonry, is the fourth, and the first of them is designed by Bro. Wm. Finch (the English Masonic charlatan), 5, Charlotte-place, New Cut, Lower Marsh, Lambeth. We need say no more. —EDITOR MASONIC MAGAZINE."

MARK MASONRY.

We have been requested to publish the following communiqué.

In another column we publish an account of the meeting of the York Mark Lodge, of "Time Immemorial" constitution, which lodge recently petitioned for, and obtained, a charter from the Grand Mark Lodge of England, and as we believe there are two, if not three, old Mark lodges still standing aloof, we take this as a favourable opportunity of making a few remarks on the subject, for we heartily join the Sheffield Mark brethren in their congratulatory remarks to the York Mark Lodge on their recognition of the Grand Mark Lodge as the supreme head of that degree in England, under whose able rule the Mark has become, next after the Craft, the most powerful body. Doubtless the close affinity of the Mark to the Craft has also a deal to do with the cause of this happy state of things. But, the other day, another proof of the Mark being worked as a distinct degree, as far back as sixty-eight years ago, was evinced by the old minute books of the Sheffield Royal Arch Chapter of Paradise, No. 139, extracts from which are being published in the Masonic Magazine by our Bro. S. B. Ellis. It is not our intention here to enter into the merits, or demerits, of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, &c.; it has weathered the storm, filled a certain hiatus in our system, serves a good end, and, as the Earl de Grey and Ripon (as M.W.G.M.) said in 1870, "All the brethren composing the Mark Degree are necessarily Master Masons, and as such they will at all times have his best wishes." This all true Craftsmen must concede. However, our present remarks are on the York Mark Lodge; the very name of "York" is, to all English Masons "a tower of strength," indeed, York has been termed "the cradle of English Masonry"—as Kilwinning was of the Scotch; The Grand Mark Lodge therefore derives no little honour and advantage in the adhesion of the York Mark Lodge, T.I., but, on the other hand, the honour and advantage that accrue to the York Mark Lodge are equally great (if not greater), as is obvious when we run through the names of those illustrious brethren who fought for, obtained, and continue to uphold the utility, the dignity, and the honour of the Grand Mark Lodge of England, &c.; we particularly refer to the M.W. Past Grand Masters—videlicet, the Earl of Carnarvon, Viscount Holmesdale, M.P., Lord Leigh, W. W. Beach, Esq., M.P., Earl Percy, M.P., the Rev. G. R. Portal, M.A., and the present Grand Master, the Earl of Limerick, and his Deputy, Lord Skelmersdale, all of whom are Constitutional Masons, and of high position in the Craft; indubitable and irrefragable evidence (to the York Mark Brethren, did they need it) of the proud status the Grand Mark Lodge deservedly enjoys, in the lustre of which the York Mark Brethren now

"(Rous'd from their dark alcoves), delight to stretch

And bask in its invigorating rays."

In conclusion he would say to the York Mark Lodge, we congratulate you on recognising the accepted, constituted authority, for in so doing you are carrying out the principles of the true teachings of the Craft, therefore, you have "our hearty good wishes;" and to the other Mark Lodges who, at present, "stand out in the cold" we would say, "go thou, and do likewise."

KENNING'S MASONIC ALMANAC.

We beg leave to call attention to an elaborate illuminated Masonic Almanack for 1877, printed on card, in gold and colours, with portraits of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.; the Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, M.W. Pro G.M.; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, R.W. D.G.M., in full Masonic regalia; and medallions of the Right Hon. Lord Donoughmore, S.G.W.; the Hon. W. W. Vernon, J.G.W.; Samuel Tomkins, Esq., G. Treasurer; John Hervey, Esq., G. Secretary. We are also pleased to announce that this very artistic almanack may be obtained of the publisher of the Freemason, at 198, Fleet-street, London, gratuitously, or will be sent, post free, to any part of the world on receipt of name or address, legibly written, accompanied by two penny stamps. We recommend an early application for it.

Reviews.

THE COMMISSION AGENT, Anglo-Australian Edition.—Barbican, London.

We have perused and are much struck with this publication. It will be very valuable to all engaged in the Anglo-Australian trade, and gives an immense amount of information admirably and clearly. The expense of its production must be very great, and we wish it all success. The sex-lingual announcements on the cover are very striking.

THE FREEMASONS' CALENDAR FOR THE PROVINCE OF DORSET.

We congratulate Bro. Howard, the esteemed P.G.S. of Dorset, for this useful and much increased Provincial Calendar. It reflects equal credit on his province and himself. We venture to suggest that in his next issue he should give us the exact number of Freemasons in his province, and also the last balance sheet of the province. Perhaps, too, if he had "totalled" the amount of votes for the various charities it would also have been an improvement. But we thank him for the Calendar, and deem it worthy of all consideration.

FREEMASONS' CALENDAR FOR 1877. LEICESTERSHIRE AND RUTLAND.

We have received and read this admirably printed little Calendar with great gratification, and congratulate Bro. Partridge on his most effective editorship. The entire work is thoroughly well got up, and is a most creditable and useful little publication. We thank Bro. Partridge for sending it to us.

THE MASONIC RECORD FOR WESTERN INDIA.

This well conducted Masonic periodical has reached No. 10, vol. xiii., and pursues the "even tenour" of its way with marked ability and, we trust, success. It fully deserves the support of the Craft in India, and the perusal of brethren at home, as it is always most readable, and in its pages we can always light upon something calculated to interest and improve the Masonic student, the tolerant and thoughtful Freemason.

LONDON: WHAT TO SEE.—Messrs. Reeves and Son, Playhouse Yard.

Messrs. Reeves and Son have put out a little Handbook to London and London sights, which is a very useful and handy little production, and owing to its guaranteed circulation of 5000, is a very valuable medium for advertising, as the London season is just beginning, it will be very helpful to our "country cousins." We wish it all success, and recommend it to the notice of those who wish to advertise, as well as those who desire to "do London."

THE EXCLUSION OF HEBREWS FROM FREEMASONRY.

With reference to a recent leader in the Freemason on this subject, the Jewish Chronicle thus writes:—

"It is truly soothing to Jewish feelings, especially at a time when the persecution of the Jews in a most atrocious form has been revived among a so-called Christian people in Roumania, to hear such words of sympathy and such testimony borne to universal Jewish charity."

Masonic and General Tidings.

THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON.—We call attention to an announcement in our advertising columns of The Scottish Freemason, which made its debut yesterday (Friday), as a candidate for the patronage of the Craft under the Scottish Constitution. It will be published fortnightly by Bro. George Kenning, at his office in Glasgow (No. 9, West Howard-street), to which address subscriptions, letters to the Editor, &c., should be directed.

The Freemasons of Leeds gave on Tuesday, February 20th, a very successful minstrel entertainment in the Masonic Hall, in aid of the Leeds Benevolent Institution. The programme and the performance seem to have been equally effective.

The installation meetings of the De Wrenne Preceptory of Knights Templar, and the Eureka Chapter, Rose Croix, will be held on Friday and Saturday, March 9th and 10th, at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton, each day at 3.30 p.m. Only those who have visited this preceptory and chapter can form an idea of the completeness of their fittings. Any member of these degrees sojourning at Brighton, or able to run down, will assuredly be gratified, not only with the beautiful aspect of the chapter-rooms, but with the work, of which at each meeting there will be an abundance, while on Saturday visitors will run the risk of being entertained at the banquet, which takes place at Markwell's Royal Hotel.

The Grand Lodge of Florida has a Masonic Library of 200 volumes, and also a Public Masonic Academy Library, of literary and scientific works, of 1200 volumes. Bro. John Carlovitz is Secretary and Librarian.

The nineteenth Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of North Carolina was held in Raleigh, on the 5th December. The principal officers elected are H. H. Munson, M. W. Master; C. A. Cilley, D.G.M.; R. W. Hardee, S.G.W.; J. C. L. Gudger, J.G.W.; W. E. Anderson, G. Treas.; D. W. Bain, G. Sec.

The Grand Lodge of Tennessee met on the 13th November. Nearly 400 subordinate lodges were represented. The following are the principal officers elected: Bros. B. Edmundson, of Polaski, G.M.; A. B. Jones, of Jackson, D.G.M.; R. M. Edwards, of Cleveland, S.G.W.; L. B. Adams, G. Bolivar, J.G.W.; W. H. H. Marrow, of Nashville, G. Treas.; John Frizzell, of Nashville, G. Sec.

At the Annual Communication of the Grand Lodge of the District of Columbia, Bro. E. G. Davis was elected Grand Master; Bros. J. H. Jochem, D.G.M.; H. A. Whitney, S.G.W.; J. S. McCay, J.G.W.; W. J. Stephenson, G. Treas.; and W. K. Singleton, G. Sec.

The new Masonic Hall at Salt Lake City, Utah, was dedicated on the 14th of November, and brought together a large number of the fraternity. The spread of Masonry in Mormondom will have a good effect upon society there. It is not probable that Prophet Brigham Young will like Masonry.

We regret to hear of the continued illness of Bro. Gouley, one of the editors of the Voice of Masonry.

Bro. Emra Holmes has during the past month been delivering his lecture, already published in the pages of the Masonic Magazine, "Odds and Ends of Wit and Humour," at Leiston, in Suffolk, under the auspices of the Village Club and Reading Room Association, the principal objects of which institution appear to be the formation of village clubs throughout the country, to provide lectures on questions of general interest, neither political nor theological, to give information respecting provident societies, &c., and to assist in obtaining for the labouring classes increased facilities for intellectual and social recreation.

Lady Skelmersdale and family arrived in Portland Place, London, on Wednesday, the 21st ult., from Lathom House, Ormskirk, near Liverpool.

The annual ball of the members of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, in aid of the Benevolent Fund of that lodge, took place on Wednesday, 21st ult., at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, and was very largely attended. A report of the brilliant gathering will appear in due time.

Lord Coleridge, addressing the grand jury at Durham assizes, said his judicial experience taught him that crimes of violence were all traceable to drink, and if England was sober we might shut up nine-tenths of our gaols.

The Prince of Wales, through General Sir W. Knollys, has sent a donation of £25 to the Hunt Servants' Benefit Society.

We are authorised to state that the Queen will hold a levee at Buckingham Palace on Monday week, at three o'clock.

Bro. Wm. J. Murlis, for many years manager to Messrs. Wyburn & Co., of Long Acre, offers himself as a candidate for the office of Collector to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution. Bro. Murlis's reason for offering his services is, that he believes out of door exercise would be more conducive to his health. Bro. Murlis is a Life Governor of the three Institutions, a founder of two lodges, P.M. and Sec. 1489, W.M. 1642, and P.S. Chap. 862.

CONSTITUTIONAL LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 55.—The Fifteen Sections will be worked in this lodge on Tuesday next, the 6th inst., at half-past six o'clock. Bro. W. H. Lee, W.M. No. 975, P.M. No. 1524, will preside.

We are informed from Berlin that Bro. Herr Wagner intends giving some concerts of his own music in London during the months of May and June.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAR. 3, 1877.

THE OBJECTION OF SECRECY.

Mr. Moody, recently "interviewed," or "in terrogated," in America, pronounced against "Secret Societies" on the two following grounds as appears in the Inter Ocean, and as it is set forth in the Voice of Masonry for January, 1st, he says: "In secret, my Master, taught nothing." and, "Be ye not yoked with unbelievers," says Paul. By the first words Mr. Moody means the Divine Founder of Christianity, and though it is impossible in the Freemason to discuss theological or even biblical questions advantageously or properly, yet we may fairly observe, without any fear, that such a statement is neither historically nor literally correct. Any one must have a very imperfect acquaintance with the New Testament, who does not at once recall to mind more than one remarkable instance where the secret mysterious teaching of the great Didaskalos of mankind, is distinctly set forth. No doubt Mr. Moody refers to those remarkable words before Pilate, the Roman Governor, "In secret have I said nothing," but that passage has always been understood to refer to "secret conspiracies or colloquies" as against the Roman temporal authority on the one hand, and the Jewish spiritual authority on the other, and not to the general course of didactic exposition or doctrinal declarations. And on the second ground—as Bro. T. F. Mellish in the Voice of Masonry points out, the real words are, (2 Cor. vi. 14), "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers" and such words are generally understood to refer to heathen marriages—that is the marriage of heathens with Christians—the words in the Greek are, "me ginesite eterozugountes apistois," and no doubt would include all unfitting association and companionship in depravation of or opposition to the truer religion which they professed. But all such words have to be taken with qualification, arising out of the time they were spoken, and the state of the world to which they refer. There is in one of the Epistles of the same Apostle a passage which must not be overlooked, that is in the 5th chapter of the Epistle to the Ephesians, where it is said, "Ta gar krupia ginomena up'auton aikron esti kai legeen." "For it is a shame even to speak of the things which are done of them in secret." Some have considered that these words refer to the disgraceful proceedings in some of the Bacchic Festivals, and particularly the abomination of the "Bona Dea," but not to the mysteries generally. There is no other passage in the Bible relating to Secret Societies that we are aware of, though some have thought erroneously that a passage in "Sirach" relates to them. It is an old and trite observation that extremes meet, and here we have the Roman Catholic Church on the one hand, as a teacher of objective truth, condemning the secrecy of Freemasonry on the authority of an infallible church, just as we have Mr. Moody, on the other hand, by his own "internal consciousness," on the authority of his own subjective dogma, the hyper-development of private judgement, passing by implication, not, we admit, directly, a censure on grounds of "spirituality" on "secret societies." We have often said before that the question of "secrecy" is, we apprehend, not a "spiritual" question at all, but a "temporal" one—one that is for the State. We do not deny the abstract right of a religious body to make non-affiliation to a secret society a basis of communion, though unless such secret society be clearly hurtful in itself, or illegal by the laws of the State, we think the regulation (as in Joe Grafton's case, recorded in our last) very harsh, intolerant, and irreligious. For as long as the State permits the existence of secret societies, and legalizes them even, as in the case of Freemasons in this country, we have a right to contend that before our secrecy is objected to on religious grounds or spiritual considerations, it shall be distinctly shown, incontestably proved, that such secrecy is injurious to the commonwealth, to private morals, or public well being. In the case of our own benevolent Order, such is an impossibility, as all our teaching and working, alike secret and public, tend to the honour of God, the welfare of man, the formation of social sympathies, and the "outcome" of benevolence, beneficence, charity, good will, and peace. We have written on this subject with some diffidence, and no little hesitation; but as such statements are publicly made, we have thought it but right and manly to notice them, and to offer to our Order in Great Britain and Canada, and the United States, the best and only answer, as we view the matter, alike to the dicta of an assumed infallible authority on the one hand, or the zealous but mistaken views of fallible private judgment on the other. We confess that we do not believe in "Popes" of any kind, whether Roman Catholic or Protestant, and we greatly and gravely demur to that hyperdogmatism of the hour, which has no basis to rest upon, but what is common to us all alike, namely, the use of right reason, religiously and reverently directed and controlled. We greatly deprecate always the mere assumption of individual "deliverances," which practically have no mission for many minds, for they are meaningless and valueless when contrasted with the "consensus" of older teachers, and a general concurrence of exposition and sentiment. We have to contend just now with a love of novelty, abrupt assertion, assumed infallibility, dogmatic intolerance, and many are the difficulties which even a religious use of "right reason" has to overcome in the sentimental transcendentalism of the hour, but still we believe in its proper use, and its eventual triumph. The subject is both a difficult and an exceptional one, though we have thought it better not to "shirk it," but to meet it and deal with it in all of honest plain speaking, good feeling, and becoming seriousness.

THE LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The last meeting of this important body was very numerous attended, ninety brethren being present, and among them some very distinguished members of our Order. The amount of £270, voted at the previous meeting, was confirmed, and the further sum of £504 voted, in sums varying from £3 as a minimum to £150 as a maximum. We rejoice much to note and to be able to record this numerous and influential gathering, as to all properly qualified brethren no more important duty can be attended to, as by them no more interesting hours can be spent than that monthly meeting for the purpose of Masonic beneficence, which reflects equal credit on our excellent Craft, as well as on those who carefully and conscientiously distribute our Funds of Benevolence. But one or two suggestions appear to us to arise out of the normal proceedings of the Lodge of Benevolence, which deserve in our opinion the careful attention of all who have the interests of the Fraternity, and the reality of our administration, of our charitable funds at heart. Our excellent and admirable Grand Treasurer, Bro. Tomkins, could tell, we fancy, a striking tale, if he so willed it, how much our monthly distribution of late years has increased and is increasing in amount. Indeed, it is something very striking, and at the same time serious, to "tottle up," as month follows month, the expanding figures of our benevolent grants. And some of us may ask, where is this to end? while others may enquire, Does all this amount of money voted get to the right people? is it a good thing or an abuse? We will, then, commence by laying down this premise, that such a charity is a good thing per se, and is, and is intended to be, alike a needful aid to suffering and destitute brethren, and should be regarded as an example of simple and absolute beneficence, granted on the truest principles of warmhearted Masonic charitable principles. But this further question comes in necessarily here, Do the proper applicants come for relief? do the truly suffering and destitute receive it? On this point no doubt opinions will vary much, and legitimately, but we confess to a very prevailing sense, 1st. That a good many claimants apply who ought never to apply at all; and 2ndly. That owing to a somewhat excusable laxity amongst us as regards bringing forward the entire facts of the case, many grants are made, which for the purpose of real aid, might as well not be made at all. We all know how difficult it is to resist the claims of those who ask for assistance, and still more in a great sodality like ours, how unwilling we all are, humanly speaking, to seem to interfere with or oppose the applications of those needy brethren of ours, who appeal so forcibly alike to our sentiments and our sympathies. We believe, that these charitable gifts of ours are as well administered as can possibly be the case, under the auspices of a fluctuating board, and without any bye-laws of instruction and regulation. At present everything is necessarily left to the feeling of a meeting of kindly hearted brethren, most anxious to do right, most "glad to distribute," but naturally easily led away by the aspect of poverty, often in a most distressing form, and of destitution in its piteous appeals for active succour and relief. We have at the head of the lodge one of our ablest and most worthy brethren, Bro. Clabon. Bros. Joshua Nunn and J. Brett. are well known, as active and most intelligent officers, and we have an elected body of Masters and Past Masters, which, supplemented by the Present and Past Grand Officers, and all actual W.M.'s, is about as good a tribunal as any one can wish to appear before. But it may be a question whether the time has not come to remove the sense of uncertainty and the appearance of mutability as to the principles of relief by the appointment annually in Grand Lodge of a definite and distinct number of brethren to constitute the Board of Benevolence. We quite feel the force of an old objection, urged too successfully on Grand Lodge by ourselves in former days, of centralization, of the limitation of interest, of the tendency to "cliqueism," and the like, which may be raised, and we do not feel at all sure, that the Craft at large is prepared, as we once contended, to give up its "only open board." But we are inclined to think that a distinct board, without ex-officio members, would work better than the present system, and having changed our opinion, we think it right to say so, though we are not insensible to the strength of the objection to the reform, which once had great and overpowering influence with ourselves. We fancy, however, that if a board of forty members, twenty from the metropolis, and twenty from the provinces, together with the President and two Vice-Presidents, was annually elected, we should eventually get to a uniform system of grant and procedure. But we speak with some hesitation, as we are well aware of the essential difficulties of the case, and the strong opinion which exists in many minds, in which we once strongly shared, on the subject, alike in general and in particular. Feeling, however, that a good deal may be said on both sides, we shall be very happy if these imperfect notions of ours will be taken up by some of our leading brethren, and if they will favour our readers, in our columns, with the result of their own matured experience, and their own honest convictions, on a matter so deeply interesting to us all alike.

THE AGENDA PAPER FOR GRAND LODGE.

The Agenda Paper, which we publish in another column, has been issued, and the brethren will observe two notices of motion, which come upon us all a little by surprise. The one is by our Rev. and esteemed Bro. Hatch to build a new Masonic Temple; the other is to found a wing to the new Alexandra Orphanage. With regard to both and each, we fear that ours must be the papal reply, "non possumus." We have just emerged from debt for the last new buildings to the Board of Benevolence, and £1000 has just been invested for the first time for the Board of General Purposes to replace gradually the large amount expended on Freemasons' Hall. To recommence new and extensive building operations is, we fancy, not likely to be entertained by Grand Lodge, neither does it appeal to any need or feeling of the hour. We have granted £4,000 to perpetuate the memory nationally and Masonically, of our beloved Grand Master's return, but such a fresh proposal appears to us, with all deference to our respected brother, somewhat unreasonable and extravagant. To Bro. Mallam's motion great objections equally will be entertained. The Alexandra Orphanage is not a Masonic Institution, and to build a Masonic wing in another Institution not under control of Grand Lodge, is alike a most unprecedented, and we must add, with all due deference to Bro. Mallam, a somewhat impractical proposal. We may fairly leave both motions to the common sense of Grand Lodge.

THE FUNDS OF GRAND LODGE.

It will be seen by the Agenda Paper, that financially Grand Lodge is doing well. At the last audit a balance of £7000, in round numbers, remained in the hands of the Grand Treasurer, excluding £171 15s. for wages and petty cash in the hands of our worthy Grand Secretary. When Bro. R. P. Harding's report of the receipts and disbursements for 1876 is printed, we will call attention to it in our pages.

Original Correspondence.

[We do not hold ourselves responsible for, or even as approving of the opinions expressed by our correspondents, but we wish, in a spirit of fair play to all, to permit—within certain necessary limits—free discussion.—Ed.]

THE EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS FROM FREEMASONRY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will you have the kindness to correct an error under the above heading in your last week's issue. It should read that I have received from four more non-Jewish lodges in Devon similar resolutions.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
S. LYON,
W.M. 1474, Birmingham.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a member of one of the so-called "Jewish Lodges," I beg most strenuously to protest against making the consideration of the above a "Jewish question," as appears to be the case in many of the arguments used, it is purely a "Masonic," not a "Jewish" question, the whole Craft being interested in deciding if Masonry is to be universal in its benefits to men of every country, sect, and opinion, or only confined to a particular sect, however important and influential it may be.

Fraternally yours,
S. E. ABRAHAM,
P.M. 188, 1017.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your report in your paper of the 24th, "a Conclave of the Alpass Encampment" was held on the 31st January.

I write to know whether the members are not premature in assuming the old titles of E.C., P.E.C., 1st and 2nd Captains, &c., until the proceedings of the late Great Priory are confirmed.

I remain, yours fraternally,
A PAST AND PRESENT OFFICER.

A GOOD CASE.

Dear Bro. Kenning,—

I am anxious to call the attention of your readers to the following case, which, I think, deserves the fraternal consideration of many of us.

It is the petition of a little girl, the daughter of an English soldier, to be placed on the list of successful candidates at the next election of the Girls' School in April.

The following is the case:—

Kathleen Isabella A. Collins, aged eight and a half years, daughter of Bro. Edward Collins, who was initiated into Masonry 20th February, 1845, in Lodge Harmony, 641, working at Cawnpore in the East Indies, passed and raised in same lodge. Joined Lodge Firm Hope, 596, on arriving in Meerut late in 1846. Was exalted in the Royal Arch Chapter attached to Lodge Firm Hope on 27th March, 1847. Bro. Collins was one of three who applied for, and obtained a new warrant, founded Lodge "Zetland," assisted in working it at Meerut, as J.W. On arriving in Umballa in 1851, he joined Lodge Charity, and the Chapter of Firm Hope attached thereto, in which he remained a working and subscribing member until the end of 1854, when ill-health compelled him to return to England. He belonged to the honorary degrees of Ark and Mark, M.M., Super Excellent, and the Red Cross Knights of Babylon, and held office in all of them. Bro. Collins served in the 17th Lancers eleven and a half years at home, and thirteen years in the 9th Lancers in the East, the latter twelve years as Troop Sergt-Major, and was present with his regiment in all its campaigns and battles, commencing in the year 1843, up to the annexation of the Punjab to the British Dominions, in the East, in 1849, returning to Umballa early in 1851. Bro. Collins is in possession of four war medals, the latter one for meritorious services in the field. He is now in failing health, and old age fast approaching, and on his slender income he finds it impossible to educate and support his little girl, whose mother died two years since.

I shall be most happy, in conjunction with other distinguished brethren, whose names appear on the card, to receive proxies from any who sympathize with a soldier's child.

I am, yours most fraternally,
A. F. A. WOODFORD,
10, Upper Porchester-st., Hyde Park-sq., W.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In your impression of the 17th ult., "Rather Doubtful" asks whether a brother created F.C. and appointed I.G. at the same lodge meeting is in accordance with the rules of the Craft? And the reply, "We think not—Ed.," being rather doubtful also, may I be permitted to inform "Rather Doubtful" that in the rules of the Craft there is nothing against such an appointment.

Fraternally yours,

POSITIVE.

[There is no law on the subject, but the rule of the Craft undoubtedly is, and "Mos est lex," that all officers of a lodge must be Master Masons, and for this reason a Fellow Craft Inner Guard could not officiate in the Third Degree. If "Positive" is correct, an Entered Apprentice might be appointed the same evening an officer of the lodge.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Your correspondent, Bro. Magnus Ohren, on the above, says:—"Questions are often put to you, asking for information . . . ." "But it is not right to take up your space to ask questions which are perfectly clear, and admit of no doubt whatever." "Thus "W.N.C.N." asks why he and other P.P. Grand Stewards are not allowed to wear the red apron and collar after their year of office."

Your correspondent's memory seems to fail him. "W.M.C.N." had nothing whatever to do with the red apron and collar. His was the T square upside down on the Master and P.M.'s apron, &c.

Dear Mr. Editor, does it take longer time to circulate the Freemason about London than with us, your country cousins?

If Bro. M.O.'s reply was meant for "P.P. Grand Steward and P.M." of the 10th Feb., that was answered by "Another P.P. Grand Steward" of the 17th Feb. (compare both), with a little addition about "Grand Steward" by Bro. M.O., and that only of what "I am told."

With your permission I will repeat the lesson given at the commencement of Bro. M.O.'s letter—"But it is not right to take up your space," when the subject was already disposed of, unless some new light could be thrown upon it. What will "W.M.C.N." say when he finds his tau changed not into a goose, but into a red apron and collar?

Yours fraternally,

R.W.O.

Will the following be of any service to "A.T.," it is prior to 1784?

In the General Regulations of the F. and A. Masons, revised, approved of, and ordered to be published by the Grand Lodge, Jan. 28, 1767. Blayney, Grand Master.

The Registrar of the Grand Lodge:—

Art. VI. On March 17, 1730-1, the Grand Lodge (to cure some irregularities) ordered that none but, the Grand Master, his Deputy, Wardens, Treasurer, Secretary Sword-bearer (who are the only Grand Officers), shall wear their jewels in gold, pendent to blue ribbons about their necks, and white leather aprons, with blue silk, which sort of aprons may be also worn by former Grand Officers.

Under the head of "the Masters and Wardens of particular lodges:—"

Art. II. Masters, Wardens, and the members of particular lodges, if they choose to line their white leather aprons, are to do it with white silk, and the officers are to wear their jewels pendant to white only.

R. W. O.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

You have entirely mistaken my queries that appear in your impression of the 24th. What I wish to know is, whether the W.M. addresses the brethren on a motion before or after the proposer replies?

The reason for this question is, that there seems a diversity of opinion on this subject. Some brethren contend that the W.M. should make his remarks (not as a member, but as a chairman) before the proposer replies; others state, that in their judgment the chairman is the last speaker before the vote, the proposer must reply (if he so desires) before the chairman makes his remarks.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

QUERIST.

[In our opinion, the W.M. can sum up after the proposer has spoken, in reply, if he so thinks fit.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In answer to the second paragraph of "A.T.'s" enquiry in your issue of 24th ult., Dr. Oliver, in his work on "Masonic Jurisprudence," says: "The ordinance of our Grand Lodge enjoining uniformity of costume was introduced at the Union in 1813. It provides that the Masonic apron shall be no other than a plain white lambskin, from fourteen to sixteen inches wide, twelve to fourteen inches deep, square at the bottom, with white strings. That of an Apprentice is to be entirely without ornament; the Fellow Craft is allowed the addition of two sky blue rosettes at the bottom; and the Master Mason a sky blue lining, and edging one inch and a half deep, an additional rosette on the fall or flap, and silver tassels."

Previously to this there appears to have been but a general direction that the clothing was to be "composed of the old colours, blue, purple, and crimson." Hence the various costumes before 1813, as each combined these colours according to his individual taste.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

ROUGH ASHLAN,

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Several letters have recently appeared in the Freemason which shew great ignorance, in at least minor points, of the provisions of the Book of Constitutions, and in private lodges infringements of Masonic regulations frequently occur, which can only be attributed to want of knowledge of the law.

"Ignorantia juris non excusat" is a maxim well known to legists; but I would ask whether sufficient opportunity is given for the study of the Constitutions of our Order in the many lodges which possess no more than a single copy of the Book of Constitutions, and where that is kept carefully under lock and key, except when the brethren are at labour?

In the last century a resolution of Grand Lodge "strictly enjoined on every candidate for Masonry that he should carefully study the Constitutions before his initiation."

Is it not worthy the consideration of Grand Lodge whether it would not be advisable to authorise the publication of a cheap edition of the Book of Constitutions, so that each lodge could afford to place a copy in the hands of each brother, at the same time that he receives a copy of the bye-laws?

Among other and greater advantages, your valuable space, upon which I have trespassed too much, would not so often be taken up by questions which are answered beforehand by the published laws of Masonry.

Yours faithfully and fraternally,

ROUGH ASHLAR.

FRENCH FREEMASONRY.

In the next issue of the Post the following brief announcement is made, "The King forbids the lodges," and of date April 26, 1737, it is noted that "there are spread about at Paris copies of an apologizing letter, written by a Freemason. He says amongst other particulars 'that the things imputed to the disadvantage of the brotherhood oblige him publicly to undertake the defence. That the views the Freemasons propose to themselves are the most pure and inoffensive, and tend only to promote such qualities in them as may form good citizens and zealous subjects, faithful to their prince, to their country, and their friends. . . . That the name of Freemason is far from being an insignificant title; that the duty it prescribes to those who bear it is to endeavour to erect temples for virtue and dungeons for vice.' "He adds, that he is by no means afraid of violating the secret imposed on him in publishing that their principal design is to restore to the earth the reign of Astrea and to revive the time of Rhea." He assures 'the fair that the whole brotherhood is full of respect and veneration for them, but that these sentiments are not exempt from fear, and that even this same fear obliges the Freemasons to exclude their sex from their assemblies.' He concludes in this manner: 'This exclusion ought by no means to provoke the indignation of those who are the objects of it. To prevent such an effect, they need only to recollect from whom Adam received the apple. Sad present! Since had it not been for that fatal apple, Adam would have remained the first Freemason.'"

A collection of the various attacks on Freemasonry at home and abroad, from 1720 to 1750, would prove especially interesting, but can not now be made excepting in parts, for many have doubtless long ceased to exist, pamphlet literature being generally of very short duration. Many of the early "exposures" and manuals published in France and Germany early last century furnish information on many points of value, and especially as to the general work in the lodges, and the absence of all degrees but the three first. Then, as time rolls on, other degrees are gradually added, and the character of the Third is vastly altered. But, to continue the extracts, we furnish a few more clippings,

September 13, 1737.—Versailles.—"The Lieutenant-General of the Police at Paris has published an order against the assembly of all unauthorised societies, and laid a fine upon the master of an ordinary for suffering a lodge of Freemasons to be held at his house."

In the so-called "Secrets of Masonry, by S.P.," London, 1737, is printed the "Paris letter of January 13, 1737" which purports to be "the secret of the Order of Freemasons and the ceremonies observed at the reception of members," and which is reprinted in the St. James Evening Post, with the date from Paris of January 3, 1738, O.S. Many of the particulars afforded are most ludicrous, and doubtless intended to amuse the brethren as well as the public. There is an evident intention on the part of the author to do justice to the Fraternity; for he makes the orator say to the candidates: "You are going to embrace a respectable Order, which is more serious than you imagine.* There is nothing in it against the law, against religion, against the State, against the King, nor against manners. The venerable Grand Master will let you know the rest." The editor states that the foregoing and other particulars are taken from the Utrecht Gazette, and if the exposé be continued his correspondent promises not to fail in communicating all to the public. It is substantially the same as the Paris letter, and reads like a copy, which it doubtless is.

* Quite a necessary explanation to a candidate, if all the preliminaries took place as narrated in the letter.

PROVINCIAL GRAND CHAPTER OF CORNWALL.

INSTALLATION OF LORD MOUNT EDGUMBE AS PROV. G. SUPERINTENDENT.

On Tuesday, 20th ult., Truro was the scene of the revival of the Provincial Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Cornwall, which assembled in the Masonic Hall, at the Public Rooms, to witness the installation of the Right Hon. the Earl of Mount Edgumbe as Grand Superintendent of the Province. From the very rigid reticence and exclusiveness formerly observed in the matter of Masonic records little is now known of the early history of Royal Arch Masonry in Cornwall. At present the earliest chapter held in Cornwall on the roll of the Grand Chapter of England, the Holy Mount Chapter, 121, held at Penzance, dates no further back than 1833. That Royal Arch Chapters existed in Cornwall at a far earlier date than that there is no doubt, but they have become extinct, and probably what small matters of record existed in reference to them have been destroyed by zealous companions to prevent their falling into the hands of the cowan or the stranger. The remembrance of one still remains, the dormant Volubian Chapter, formerly held at Falmouth, which boasts an earlier date than either of the chapters now worked in Cornwall. From similar circumstances the remembrance and workings of a former Provincial Grand Chapter that did exist in Cornwall has also been clothed in much obscurity. A Provincial Grand Superintendent for that province also existed in the person of Bro. Richard Pearce up to eighteen years since. From the death of that M.E. Comp. up to the present revival of his office no Provincial Grand Chapter has been at work in the county. The eight private chapters held in the province having of late expressed a desire to reorganise the Provincial Grand Chapter, it was the pleasure of the Grand Chapter of England to call to that high office the Earl of Mount Edgumbe, the respected Provincial Grand Master of the province. The attendance of the companions yesterday to witness the installation was very large. Among those present, in addition to the Provincial Grand Superintendent designate, were the following: Excellent Comps. L. P. Metham, P.G.H. of Devon; Sir F. M. Williams, Bart., M.P., P.Z. 1066, Past G.S.N. of England; Col. J. W. Peard, P.Z. 1151; R. H. Rac, P.P.G.J., Devon; W. Joll, P.P.G. 1st S. and Treas., Devon; the Rev. J. Ross, vicar of Tywardreath, P.Z. 1151; the Rev. Dr. E. I. Trefry, P.Z. 1151; E. T. Carlyon, P.Z. and Treas. 331; Bedford Kerswill, P.Z. 1164; F. W. Dabb, P.Z. 1006; W. Tregay, P.Z. 1006; W. Tweedy, P.Z. 331; G. Kerswill, P.Z. 1164; W. H. Jenkins, P.Z. 331; N. J. West, P.Z. 450; J. Baxter, P.P.G.S. Devon; W. Coad, P.Z. 1164; R. A. Courtney, P.Z. 510; J. McLean, P.M. 331; R. Guy, P.Z. 496; J. Niness, P.Z. 1006; T. C. Stephens, P.Z. 1151; J. Hill, P.Z. 1164; J. Coombe, Z. 450; E. Aitken Davies, P.P.G. Reg. Devon; J. H. Filmer, P.Z. 238; J. W. Chegwidden, Z. 510; A. Davis, Z. 1151; W. Lake, J. 331; G. Barnes, H. 1164; C. Truscott, jun., Z. 496; John Crossman, J. 1164; J. P. Smith, H. 450; F. H. Pool, J. 450; R. G. Bird, J. 70; H. Elliott, H. 1151; Comps. H. G. Colville, S.E. 1151; H. F. Creber, First S. 1146; A. Luke, Second S. 496; W. Thorn, S.N. 510; T. J. Smith, S.E. 496; J. F. Childs, S.E. 510; J. Pool, S.E. 450; Jno. Stephens, P.P.S. 1151; W. H. Wright, P.S.N. 510; J. Beaglehole, Past S.N. 510; J. Harris, P.P.S. 510; J. P. Creber, P.S. 1164; J. J. Taylor, First S. 450; J. Rawlings, 1st S. 1164; R. Broad, S.N. 1164; J. H. Ferris, S.N. 331; H. S. Hill, P.S. 223; the Rev. G. L. Church, E. 1006; W. Lidgely, 1006; W. Rowe, 1151; F. B. Williams, 1151; T. H. Lukes, 496; Jno. Kempthorne, 1164; T. Oliver, jun., 331; R. Carter, 331; J. Thomas, 1006; J. F. Hooper, 1006; S. Jacobs, H. Bale. Business commenced with opening the Prov. G. Chapter, under the presidency of the following Principals:—Ex. Comps. L. P. Metham, Z.; Colonel Peard, H.; N. J. West, J.; E. T. Carlyon, acting as S.E.; W. Tweedy, P.S.; R. Johns, A.S., and P.G.D.C.

Ex. Comp. L. P. Metham expressed his pleasure at the large attendance at the convocation, and congratulated the companions on the reconstitution of the P.G. Chapter, and on the able companion that had been called to preside over it as Prov. G. Superintendent. He was sure it must be a pride and pleasure to them at the excellent appointment made by the Grand Chapter in selecting the Earl of Mount Edgumbe. Great and very gratifying benefits had been conferred on the Craft Grand Lodge of the province by his appointment at the head of that body, and he felt they would welcome his lordship with much cordiality on his new appointment, and fully recognise the kindness on his part as it deserved in coming to preside over the chapter. The arrival of the Earl of Mount Edgumbe in the ante-room was then announced, and his patent of appointment sent in to the chapter. Ex. Z. directed the patent to be read. Comp. Richard Johns, acting as Master of the Ceremonies, read the patent, which was duly accredited by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, G.F.P.; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, G.H.; the Right Hon. Lord de Tabley, G.J.; J. Hervey, G.S.E.; the Rt. Hon. Lord Donoughmore, G.S.N. The following companions were then appointed a deputation to conduct his lordship into the chapter—W. J. Johns, F. W. Dabb, G. Kerswill, and J. C. Stephens. On the Earl of Mount Edgumbe entering the chapter he was very warmly received.

Ex. Z. L. P. Metham asked his lordship to allow him, before he proceeded to the ceremony of the installation, to congratulate him personally on his preferment and the province on receiving as their ruler one who, both by precept and example, illustrated and adorned Freemasonry. Ex. Z. said he was also commissioned to convey to his lordship the sincere congratulations of the illustrious chief and the companions of Devon. He (Lord Mount Edgumbe) had already shown as P.G.M. that he possessed a generous spirit, more prone to be gratified by guiding the judgments and winning the affections of his brethren, than he would, could such a power be given him, by exercising a despotic influence over their lives and fortunes. To all the companions the Grand Master above had entrusted talents, to some more and to some less, for which, at His coming, He would call them to a reckoning. To his lordship more than to most He had committed great and precious talents, which he was confident he would not bury in a napkin, but would employ to His glory and the benefit of his fellow creatures, more especially the great talent about to be committed to his care. His lordship received that honourable distinction at a time when the priesthood of a church hostile to the Order were every day with increasing virulence fulminating anathemas against Freemasons as materialists and atheists. Be it his care, from his public conduct and his private life and by his teaching, to give the most appropriate and dignified contradiction to such a calumnious and unfounded charge. Ex.-Comp. Z. then proceeded to point out to his lordship the sublime character of the degree, in the working of which he was about to be placed in such an office of trust. It was, he said, the climax of Freemasonry, intimately blended with all that was near and dear to them in another state of existence. It was founded on the name which was above every name—the name of that great Deity, who was from all eternity, was now, and would be one and the same for ever—the Eternal Ruler of the universe. The base of the Masonic system rested on the earth; its intermediate steps were clear and defined; its summit reached the heavens. When the just and upright brother who has moulded his life according to the sacred dictates of truth, who has practised charity in thought, word, and deed towards his fellow men, who had cultivated his intellectual powers to the benefit of his fellow creatures and the glory of God, at the close of a well-spent life, on the brink of the grave, which was about to receive him into its cold bosom, he quailed not, but relied on the merciful promises of his Creator and Judge. When death had thrown his sable mantle around him then would the clouds be rolled back from the summit of the ladder, and the faithful brother would be brought face to face with Him whom he had obeyed in life and trusted in death. The R.A. Degree was a pillar of daily admonition and instruction through the intricate winding of their mortal existence, and only left them when they entered those eternal mansions where the true secrets of Masonry should be revealed, never again to be concealed or lost. All Masonic degrees, unless dependent on the R.A. Degree, weakened as moral teachers, and were deprived of their most solemn, vital, and instructive character. They would be like the fruit described in the Eastern fable—beautiful and tempting to the eye, but stony and cold to the touch, and bitter as ashes to the taste. Had the soul no aspirations breathed into its inmost consciousness that it should never perish, the creed of the heathen sensualist, "Let us eat and be merry, for to-morrow we die," would be the best philosophy and the easiest rule of life. The R.A. Degree was, however, still but a link—although the most precious link—in the golden chain which bound in mutual dependence the various parts of their whole system together. If the teachings of the R.A. Degree were carefully followed, it would be learned that no more acceptable service or sacrifice could be offered to a beneficent Creator than to look beyond the narrow limits of particular institutions, whether civil or religious, and to behold in every child of Adam a brother of the dust. When the various members of the human family were relieved in their hour of need, irrespective of nation, language, creed, or colour, then honest Masonic work was done. "He prayeth best who loveth best all things, both great and small; for the dear God that loveth us has made, and loves them all." Let them diligently use the working tools of the R.A. Degree; with the sword let them fight for the weak against the strong, for the true against the false, the good against the evil; with the crowbar let them demolish the strongholds of pride, prejudice, ignorance, and superstition; with the pickaxe let them bury the rubbish of the body of the old Adam; with the shovel let them clear away the ruins of a fallen nature which impeded the erection of a new structure, fitted for the reception of truth, and virtue, and wisdom; with the trowel let them every day add a white and perfect ashlar to the new temple which, though alas! only too slowly, was gradually and certainly rising to cover the whole earth, to embrace and fold within its ample courts all people, nations, and languages, and to be fitted with the name, the glory, and the honour of the Great I Am.

At the close of the eloquent address of Ex. Z., which was impressively delivered and warmly applauded, he proceeded to the installation of the Prov. G. Superintendent designate.

The beautiful and imposing ritual of the Order for the occasion was delivered by Ex. Comp. Metham with marked effect, in a manner that did great credit to himself and the adjoining Province of Devon, of which he is the P.G.H.

At the close of the installation,

The Earl of Mount Edgumbe, on assuming the chair of Z., expressed the thanks of himself and the chapter to Ex. Comp. Metham for his kindness in coming down to Truro to do what he had so ably and impressively done that day. For the kind sentiments expressed by Ex. Comp. Metham, and the cordial good feelings and congratulations, he was deputed to express on behalf of Most Ex. Comp. Huyshe and the sister Province of Devon their very grateful acknowledgments. He was sure Ex. Comp. Metham would take no offence at his regretting that Most Ex. Comp. Huyshe was not able to attend that day to perform what he would, however, say could not have been better performed than it was. His lordship then referred at some length to the merits, origin, and antiquity of the R.A. Degree. A certain period had been pointed out by some persons as likely to be that at which it was instituted.

With their views he could not, however, entirely agree. So far as he had studied the matter, he believed the origin of the degree went back to a far earlier period than was generally deemed. He would admit that probably it was not worked exactly in the manner now adopted by the present chapters, but pointed out circumstances which seemed to imply that parts of it were the work of a combination of the learning of the Egyptian, Hebrew, and Syrian priesthood. He had an idea that in parts of it could be traced the early development and progress of order and religious sentiment, under the then limited condition of the human intellect, somewhat after the manner in which geology gave the history of material matter. Some of the geometrical terms adopted he also showed to be of considerable interest. The disquisition of the Prov. G. Superintendent, which exhibited considerable research, and afforded very interesting information to the companions, was listened to by them with much interest.

At the close of this address and some further business peculiar to the order, Earl Mount Edgcumbe installed Sir F. M. Williams as H., and the Rev. G. Ross as J. of the chapter for the ensuing year. Ex. Comp. William Tweedy, 331, was elected and invested as Treasurer. The Prov. G. Superintendent then invested the following officers: E. T. Carlyon, 331, Prov. G.S.E.; R. John, 331, Prov. G.S.N.; W. J. Jenkins, 331, Prov. G.P.S.; George Kerswill, 510, Prov. G. 1st S.; John Paul, 1006, Prov. G. 2nd S.; W. J. Johns, 331, Prov. G. Reg.; W. Guy, 496, Prov. G.S.B.; N. J. West, 450, Prov. G.S.B.; R. A. Courtney, 510, Prov. G.M.C.; J. Niness, 1006, Prov. G. Org.; I. Leyin, 121; C. Truscott, Jun., 106; J. Bedford Kerswill, 1164; T. C. Stevens, 151, Prov. G. Stewards; W. Rooks, Prov. G. Jan.

The following committee was appointed to revise the bye-laws of the chapter:—R. Comps. the Z., H. and J., the S.E., S.N., and Treas. of the Prov. G. Chap., and the Z. of every private chapter in the province.

Letters of apology for non-attendance were read from several companions, including Comp. Hughon, who offered the assistance of a collection of bye-laws he had gathered, for revising the bye-laws of the chapter. [A vote of thanks was unanimously accorded to Ex. Comp. Metham for his services on that day. This was duly replied to, and the chapter was adjourned. During the holding of the chapter a very brilliant effect was produced in the appearance of the assembly by a large number of the Principals and Past Principals of the private chapters attending in complete costume in their official robes.

In the evening a large party of the companions dined together at the Red Lion Hotel.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The following is the Agenda of business in Grand Lodge on Wednesday, 7th March, 1877:—

The regulations for the government of Grand Lodge during the time of public business will be read.

The minutes of the Quarterly Communication of the 6th December, 1876, will be read and put for confirmation.

The minutes of the Especial Grand Lodge of the 3rd January, 1877, will be read and put for confirmation.

The M.W. Grand Master will move that the following recommendations of the Especial Grand Lodge, holden at Freemasons' Hall, London, on Wednesday, the 3rd day of January, 1877, be received and adopted, viz:—

1. That the sum of £4000 be voted to the Royal National Life Boat Institution for the purpose of founding and furnishing two Lifeboat Stations in perpetuity, in such localities on the English coast, as the Sub-Committee, hereafter mentioned, shall decide.

2. That a Sub-Committee, consisting of the M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the R.W. the Deputy Grand Master, and the R.W. the Senior Grand Warden, be appointed to confer with the Secretary of the Royal National Lifeboat Institution, with full powers to arrange all matters as to locality, detail, &c.

3. That a memorial tablet be erected in Grand Lodge in commemoration of the event.

5. Election of a M.W. Grand Master.

6. Election of a Grand Treasurer.

7. Report of the Lodge of Benevolence for the last quarter, in which are recommendations for the following grants, viz:—

A brother of the Lodge of Nine Muses, 235, London ... .. £100 0 0

A brother of the Union Lodge, 129, Kendal ... .. £200 0 0

A brother of the Angel Lodge, 51, Colchester ... .. £50 0 0

A brother of the New Forest Lodge, 319, Lymington ... .. £50 0 0

A brother of the Apollo University Lodge, 357, Oxford ... .. £150 0 0

A brother of the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, 60, London ... .. £150 0 0

8. Report of the Board of General Purposes to the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England:—

The Board of General Purposes beg to Report that it having come to their knowledge that the Tyndall Lodge, No. 1363, Chipping Sodbury, had been guilty of Masonic irregularity by passing and raising brethren at shorter intervals than the period prescribed by the Book of Constitutions, the Board investigated the circumstances, and, in result, ordered that the brethren in question be duly re-obligated and their certificates withheld until that be done; and, further, that the lodge be fined one guinea for the offence.

The Board further report the investigation by them of a similar Masonic irregularity on the part of the Royal Alfred Lodge, 1028, Alfreton, a brother having been raised in such lodge at a shorter interval than prescribed by the Book of Constitutions, and that in result they have ordered the brother in question to be re-obligated, and his certificate to be withheld until that be done; and further that the lodge be fined one guinea for the offence.

Signed, JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 20th February, 1877.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 16th day of February, 1877, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £6997 19s. 2d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

9. Report of Bro. R. P. Harding, Auditor of Grand Lodge accounts, of receipts and disbursements during the year 1876.

10. Appeals:—

1. Appeal of Bro. Edmund Waller, M.D., the then W. Master of St. Peter's Lodge, 442, Peterborough, against the judgment of Bro. Butler Wilkins, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Northamptonshire and Huntingdonshire, relative to dissensions which have arisen in the lodge, arising chiefly on the subject of the powers and privileges of the W. Master.

2. Appeal of Bro. the Rev. William T. Hobson, of the Tynwald Lodge, 1242, Douglas, Isle of Man, against a resolution of the Board of General Purposes declining to interfere between himself and Bro. John A. Brown in a complaint submitted to them in a matter not relating to the Craft.

N.B.—The papers relating to these appeals will be in the Grand Secretary's office till the meeting of Grand Lodge, and open for the inspection of the brethren during office hours.

11. Notices of motions:—

1. By Bro. the Rev. Henry John Hatch, W.M. 160,— "That a committee, consisting of the Present and Past Grand Officers, the Provincial Grand Masters, and such other members of the Craft as the said committee shall, in their discretion, deem fit from time to time to add to their numbers, be appointed to consider what steps should be taken to promote the building, either on the Thames Embankment, or in some other conspicuous part of London, of a Masonic Temple, which, while offering more extended accommodation for the present requirements of Grand Lodge, shall be at once worthy of the rank, wealth, and increasing importance of Freemasonry; an ornament to the chief city of the world, and a lasting memorial of gratitude to the G.A.O.T.U., not only for the safe return from India of our M.W. Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, but for the success of his visit in eliciting and confirming throughout that vast territory a feeling of universal loyalty and attachment to the Imperial rule of England.

"That such committee shall be invested with full powers to procure plans and estimates for such a building; shall consider the best means of raising the necessary funds; and shall continue to act and report to every succeeding Grand Lodge, until the Grand Lodge shall think proper to discontinue the said committee."

2. Bro. Benjamin Mallam, P.M. 108:—

"That a sum of money be given out of the funds towards the funds of the Alexandra Orphanage, sufficiently large in amount to allow of the committee to place one of the blocks of the buildings apart for the use of infant orphans of Freemasons."

"The following is a list of lodges for which warrants have been granted by the M.W. Grand Master since the last Quarterly Communication of Grand Lodge:—

THE
SCOTTISH FREEMASON,
Published Fortnightly, Price 2d.

The want of an organ to efficiently represent the interests of Freemasonry in all degrees under the Scottish Constitution has long been felt, and to meet this want will be the constant endeavour of the Conductors of THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON, who will spare no efforts to make this new candidate for public favour worthy the liberal support of the great and influential body, whose interests it will represent.

It will contain Masonic News from all parts of the Globe, but devoted chiefly to the proceedings of the MASONIC FRATERNITY OF SCOTLAND. The meetings of all the Lodges, Chapters, &c., throughout Scotland will be published, on Secretaries sending notice of the same.

A series of original articles will be contributed by eminent literary brethren, on various topics connected with the History and Antiquities of the Craft in Scotland, and correspondence is invited on such subjects, as also on Masonic sayings and doings of the present day.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION for Aged Freemasons and Widows of Freemasons.—The generous support and influence of the Governors and Subscribers to the above Institution is earnestly and respectfully solicited at the ensuing Election in May on behalf of

BRO. RICHARD EDWARD BARNES,

P.M. 15, and P.Z. 13, Aged 63 Years, of 48, Hoxton-square. The said Bro. R. E. Barnes was Initiated in the Kent Lodge, No. 15, on the 17th day of November, 1835, and has subscribed thereto 41 years; he has also acted as Honorary Secretary to the same for 35 years; served the office of W.M.; and is now the Father of the Lodge. He joined the United Mariners Lodge, No. 30, on the 4th day of November, 1845; subscribed thereto 31 years; and is also the Father of that Lodge. He was exalted in the Union Waterloo Chapter, No. 13, on the 26th day of July, 1842; served the office of M.E.Z.; has acted as Scribe E. for 30 years; and is now the Father of the Chapter. He was for upwards of 30 years Master and Proprietor of Hoxton Educational Institution, Hoxton-square, a profession and position he was gradually compelled to relinquish in consequence of the erection by public subscription, within a few hundred yards of his own establishment, of a large Middle-class School; capable of accommodating 1200 boys, with which he was totally unable to compete. Has a family consisting of a wife and three children, entirely dependent upon him for support, and failing sight is a source of great anxiety.

PAID DUES TO BENEVOLENT FUND 72 YEARS, (having subscribed to the Kent Lodge, No. 15, 41 years, to the United Mariners' Lodge, No. 30, 31 years).

* * Bro. Barnes, being P.M. and P.Z., would be glad to act as Tyler to a Lodge, or Janitor to a Chapter.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.—APRIL ELECTION, 1877.—Your Votes and Interest are earnestly solicited on behalf of

HARRY WILLIAM FAIRMAN,

Aged 10 years and 6 months.

(Son of the late Bro. George Fairman), formerly of the White Hart, College-street, Lambeth, and lately of the New Golden Cross Hotel, Hastings. Bro. Fairman was initiated in the Vitruvian Lodge, No. 87, in December, 1864; joined the Derwent Lodge, No. 40, Hastings, in March, 1869; was S.W. the year preceding his death, and was greatly respected; he was an Arch and Mark Mason, and continued a Subscribing Member to all until his death in April, 1876. He left a widow and four young children almost unprovided for. The case is strongly recommended by the following Brethren:—

FREEMAN'S CHLORODYNE, the Original and Only true.—Hundreds of medical practitioners testify to its marvellous efficacy in the cure of Asthma, Bronchitis, Coughs, Neuralgia, Fevers, Cholera, Dysentery, Spasms, and all Nerve Pains. Lord Chancellor Selborne, Lord Justice James, and Lord Justice Mellish, decided in favour of FREEMAN'S ORIGINAL CHLORODYNE, and against Brown and Davenport, compelling them to pay all costs in the suits. See Times of July 24, 1875. Bottles 1s. 18d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., 11s., and 20s. Sold by all chemists.

The following testimonials are taken from many others.

From Jno. Tanner, M.D., K.R.C.P., M.R.C.S., L.S.A., L.M., Physician to Farringdon Dispensary, London.

"It gives me great pleasure to bear testimony in favour of Freeman's Chlorodyne. I have prescribed it extensively, and in cases of Asthma, Chronic Bronchitis, the last stage of Phthisis, and the Winter Cough of the aged, I have never found any substitute or chemical combination its equal; moreover, in all cases where a Sedative is required, it is a certain, safe and agreeable remedy.

From T. D. Swallow, M.D., M.R.C.S., Eng., L.S.A., Surgeon to the Royal South London Dispensary, and Medical Officer to the London City Mission.

"I have great pleasure in stating that I am constantly prescribing Freeman's Chlorodyne in Consumption and Asthma, and as a Sedative in Cancer, and in cases of Diarrhoea and Dysentery, I am daily witnessing its striking effects."

None genuine without the words, "Freeman's Original Chlorodyne," engraved on the Government Stamp.

Numerous Testimonials from the most eminent medical men accompany each bottle.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

The March Quarterly Communication of the Grand Lodge of England, was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall, when the Earl of Carnarvon, Pro Grand Master, presided; Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master; the Earl of Donoughmore, Senior Grand Warden, Bros. F. Pattison as J.G.W.; Sir Albert Woods (Garter), G. Dir. of Cers.; E. J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar; J. B. Monckton, President of the Board of General Purposes; Hervey, Grand Secretary; S. Tomkins, Grand Treasurer; Dr. W. Rhys Williams, Assistant Grand Dir. of Cer.; and the Grand Deacons and Pursuivants were in their places. There were present altogether some 600 or 700 brethren, among whom were Lord de Tabley, W. W. B. Beach, M.P., Sir Michael Costa, Colonel Burdett, General Brownrigg, Richard Giddy, Rev. Sir J. Warren Hayes, Thos. Fenn, Hyde Pullen, Rev. C. W. Arnold, Rev. Spencer R. Wigram, S. Rawson, Rev. C. J. Martyn, Rev. R. J. Simpson, J. M. Clabon, Benj. Head, Dr. Woodman, Dr. Jabez Hogg, F. Davidson, J. E. Middleton, Wilhelm Ganz, Wilhelm Kuhe, A. H. Tattershall, Thomas Cubitt, Alderman Hadley, J. Wright, John Coutts, J. C. Parkinson, J. A. Rucker, James Glaisher, R. J. Spiers, James Mason, Joshua Nunn, H. J. P. Dumas, Capt. Platt, and Capt. S. G. Homfray.

Grand Lodge having been formally opened, Sir Albert Woods, G.D.C., announced that the Grand Master of Nova Scotia was present, and called upon the brethren to give him the customary salute. This having been done, business was proceeded with. The minutes of Grand Lodge of December, and of the Especial Grand Lodge of 3rd January were read by Grand Secretary and confirmed.

The Earl of Carnarvon then rose and said: Brethren,—Those who were present at the last Especial Grand Lodge will remember the various arguments by which I introduced the subject which now comes before you, to your attention. It would be quite unnecessary for me now to repeat those arguments. I shall therefore content myself with moving the resolutions of which notice has been given on this paper. And should it be necessary to offer any explanation I shall be quite ready to do so. The first resolution is, "That the sum of £4000 be voted to the National Lifeboat Institution, for the purpose of founding and furnishing two lifeboat stations, in perpetuity, in such localities on the English coast, as the Sub-Committee, hereafter mentioned, shall decide." I will take the resolutions separately. I beg to move that resolution.

Lord Skelmersdale said he had great pleasure in seconding the resolution. The Pro. G.M. had said himself that he had explained the matter so amply at the last meeting of Grand Lodge, that it was unnecessary to go into that again. He only hoped that the resolution would be carried unanimously.

The motion was put and carried without a dissentient voice.

The Earl of Limerick said: I am happy to be able to state, and I shall request the Grand Secretary to take formal note of it, that it may be communicated to His Royal Highness, that this resolution has passed with the unanimous concurrence of Grand Lodge. (Great cheering.) I have now to propose to you another resolution, which is simply intended to give effect to the first. "That a sub-committee, consisting of the M.W. the Pro. Grand Master, the R.W., the Deputy Grand Master, and the R.W. the Senior Grand Warden, be appointed to confer with the Secretary of the Royal National Life Boat Institution, with full powers to arrange all matters as to locality, details, &c." I apprehend that there is comparatively little difficulty in this part of our duties, but of course it is necessary that these should be some persons who should be made responsible for carrying out the details. I am quite willing to undertake the duty in conjunction with my two noble brothers, whose names stand on this resolution.

Bro. Maynham W. Stewart having seconded the resolution it was put to Grand Lodge, and likewise carried unanimously, amidst cheers.

The Earl of Carnarvon: Lastly, brethren, I have to ask you to give your consent to a resolution, which will record, I trust, for ever, in this our solemn meeting place, that memorial which we have decided to erect to the event which had given the Craft so much satisfaction. I do not doubt that it will be possible at once to combine in that memorial tablet all that is necessary in the way of recording the details, and also of adding one more embellishment to this hall. I ask, therefore, of Grand Lodge, permission—and it will not cost a very large sum—but the permission to arrange for a memorial tablet, which shall in proper form and shape record the event in which we have all taken so deep an interest. (Hear, hear.) I have therefore to move "That a memorial tablet be erected in Grand Lodge in commemoration of the event."

General Brownrigg, Prov. G.M. for Surrey, seconded the motion, which was also put and carried unanimously with the same general expressions of cordiality.

The Earl of Carnarvon again rose and said: Brethren, I have to make at once an announcement to you, and to ask you to agree to a resolution on the same subject. Since we last met in this hall its walls have been graced with one more portrait. It is a very fitting sequel to the vote to which we have unanimously agreed this evening. (Hear, hear.) Brethren, in this hall there are ten compartments; those ten compartments are now full. Each of those compartments holds the portrait of one who in his day has been honoured, respected and dear to the Craft. Many of them represent members of our own Royal Family, the relations of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, our present Grand Master. For some time the tenth compartment has been vacant, and now in an auspicious hour it has been filled, and a picture, not unworthy of the subject, and not unworthy of the place, fills that compartment. (Hear, hear.) It has been painted by an eminent painter; it has been presented to Grand Lodge by a well-known and honoured lodge, the Lodge of Friendship; and my duty is to move that that picture henceforth be formally accepted and hung in that particular place, and that the cordial thanks of this Grand Lodge be given to our brethren of the Lodge of Friendship for this worthy and by us highly prized present. (Cheers.) I shall go through the form of asking for a seconder, but I am confident that such a proposition as I now make will be carried by universal acclamation. (General Brownrigg here approached the Earl of Carnarvon and made some observations to him.) The Earl of Carnarvon continued,—I have been very fitly reminded to add to what I have already said that the painter who has so worthily exhibited his art upon that canvas is himself a member of the Lodge of Friendship, and by that very fact adds, I think, an additional value to the picture we are now accepting. I have, therefore, to submit to you the following resolution: "That this picture, painted expressly for the purpose by Bro. Louis Desanges, a member of the Lodge of Friendship, be accepted, and that the cordial thanks of this Grand Lodge are due and are hereby offered to the Lodge of Friendship for this very acceptable present." I beg to move that resolution. (Hear, hear.)

Lord de Tabley seconded the motion, and he had great pleasure in doing so. More particularly had he satisfaction in seconding the resolution as he was himself a member of the Lodge of Friendship, and he was only happy to think that the picture redounded to the credit of those fraternal feelings of the brethren which were so acceptable to Grand Lodge. (Hear, hear.)

The motion was unanimously adopted.

Bro. R. F. Gould, P.M. 92, rose to propose the election of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales as Most Worshipful Grand Master for the year ensuing, and in doing so said:—Having had the honour to nominate the Grand Master, it now becomes my privilege to follow up the nomination by proposing in due form, and in accordance with ancient custom, the re-election of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to the high office which for two years he has filled with so much grace and dignity. As I am conscious that the brethren must be awaiting with a very natural impatience, the moment when they can, by acclamation, give expression to the feelings, which are dominant in our hearts, I shall trespass upon their attention for a few seconds only, but however inadequate I may feel myself to the duty I am attempting to discharge, I believe myself to be, though but a humble member of the rank and file, yet for the time being, the spokesman both of Grand Lodge and the Craft, and I think it would be considered unbefitting, if the occasion were allowed to pass by without their being manifested the most hearty recognition and most sincere appreciation of the vast and unprecedented stride which Masonry has made within the two past years, during which it has been the happiness and the pride of the Craft to be under the genial sway of His Royal Highness. I may be permitted to assure our Royal Grand Master, that by graciously consenting to remain at our head, a further incentive will be supplied to us all, to maintain and uphold the dignity and high importance of Masonry, so as in all respects to merit a continuance of that illustrious patronage, which we one and all so heartily welcome and appreciate.

The motion having been seconded, His Royal Highness was unanimously elected, and Sir Albert Woods then declared the fact, announcing the Prince of Wales by all his titles. The customary salute was thereupon given.

Bro. Pearce, P.G.S., proposed the re-election of Bro. Samuel Tomkins, Grand Treasurer. He rose with pleasure to propose it, and also with confidence, knowing full well that the mention of the name of their Very Worshipful Samuel Tomkins would be welcomed in Grand Lodge with favour. It was quite unnecessary for him to dilate for one single moment on the long series of brilliant and useful services Bro. Tomkins had performed to the Craft, and he should therefore content himself with proposing his re-election.

Having been seconded, the motion was carried amidst loud applause.

Bro. Samuel Tomkins, in returning thanks for his re-election, said he thanked the brethren very heartily for the honour they had conferred upon him by re-electing him as Grand Treasurer. He had now had the honour of serving them for many years, and every year he had seen the growing numbers and prosperity of the members of the Craft. He trusted this might long continue, and he hoped that under the guidance of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales they would see Masonry attain a higher and more influential position than ever it had had before. (Cheers.)

The following grants made by the Lodge of Benevolence were then confirmed:

A brother of the Lodge of Nine Muses, 235, London .....	£100 0 0
A brother of the Union Lodge, 129, Kendal .....	£200 0 0
A brother of the Angel Lodge, 51, Colchester .....	£50 0 0
A brother of the New Forest Lodge, 319, Lymington .....	£50 0 0
A brother of the Apollo University Lodge, 357, Oxford .....	£150 0 0
A brother of the Lodge of Peace and Harmony, 60, London .....	£150 0 0

Bro. John B. Monckton, President, brought up the following report of the Board of General Purposes, and on his motion it was taken as read, and ordered to be received and entered on the minutes.

The Board of General Purposes beg to Report that it having come to their knowledge that the Tyndall Lodge, No. 1363, Chipping Sodbury, had been guilty of Masonic irregularity by passing and raising brethren at shorter intervals than the period prescribed by the Book of Constitutions, the Board investigated the circumstances, and, in result, ordered that the brethren in question be duly re-obligated and their certificates withheld until that be done; and, further, that the lodge be fined one guinea for the offence.

The Board further report the investigation by them of a similar Masonic irregularity on the part of the Royal Alfred Lodge, 1028, Alfreton, a brother having been raised in such lodge at a shorter interval than prescribed by the Book of Constitutions, and that in result they have ordered the brother in question to be re-obligated, and his certificate to be withheld until that be done; and further that the lodge be fined one guinea for the offence.

Signed, JOHN B. MONCKTON, President.

Freemasons' Hall, London, W.C., 20th February, 1877.

To the report is subjoined a statement of the Grand Lodge Accounts at the last meeting of the Finance Committee, held on Friday, the 16th day of February, 1877, showing a balance in the hands of the Grand Treasurer of £6997 19s. 2d.; and in the hands of the Grand Secretary, for petty cash, £75; and for servants' wages, £96 15s.

Bro. Monckton said that some of the brethren might be disposed to think that the fines inflicted in the above cases were, as had been suggested, rather lenient than otherwise, but he hoped Grand Lodge would think that the board had erred on the right side. They had received explanations in the cases, and they found that the mistakes made by the brethren arose more from ignorance of the Masonic law than from wilful Masonic irregularity. Grand Secretary had been instructed to warn the brethren very strongly as to their conduct in future, and he hoped it would have a beneficial effect.

Bro. Peter De Lande Long seconded the motion, which was put and carried.

The report of Bro. R. P. Harding having been adopted, Grand Lodge proceeded with the appeals. The first was an appeal of Bro. Edmund Waller, M.D., the then W. Master of St. Peter's Lodge, 442, Peterborough, against the judgment of Bro. Butler Wilkins, Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Northamptonshire and Huntingdonshire, relative to dissensions which have arisen in the lodge, arising chiefly on the subject of the powers and privileges of the W. Master.

Bro. McIntyre, G. Registrar, in stating the case to Grand Lodge, said that this appeal arose out of occurrences that took place at two meetings of the lodge of which Dr. Waller was W.M. at the time, and it was a case which required some consideration; but he thought upon the whole Grand Lodge would come to the conclusion that the decision of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master in this instance should be upheld. He did not say that the reason given by the Deputy P.G.M. for arriving at his conclusion was exactly that at which he (G.R.) would have arrived at; but he thought when Grand Lodge had heard what really took place, it would say the D.P.G.M.'s judgment should not be overruled. The first complaint arose with regard to a meeting of the lodge when the ceremony of raising had to be performed. Dr. Waller, before the lodge met, asked a P.M. of the lodge to perform the ceremony for him. The D.P.G.M. seemed to have thought that Dr. Waller, in making that request before the lodge was held, erred, and was not acting within the scope of his authority. So far the D.P.G.M. was wrong, and in this opinion which he (G.R.) held, no doubt brethren who had been used to the working of the Craft would concur; because if a brother was to be asked to perform a ceremony, which should be performed efficiently and well, timely notice should be given to him to get the ceremony up. In his opinion Dr. Waller did that which was right. Dr. Waller mentioned in the ante-room what he had done, and Bro. Buckle, who was the Senior P.M., stated, when Dr. Waller asked him to take the S.W. chair, that he would do the raising. Bro. Buckle claimed the right. They referred to the Book of Constitutions, which certainly on this point was as clear as possible. The part they referred to was, "That should the Master die, or resign, or be incapable of performing his duties," the S.W. should summon the lodge, and the Senior P.M. should take the chair, and in the absence of P.M.'s of the lodge the S.W. should rule it. He thought there was a misapprehension on the part of a great many brethren as to what was the meaning of that law. If the W.M. should die there was no question that the I.P.M. should take the chair; but the great question turned on the words "be incapable of performing his duties." His (G.R.'s) idea of it was, that it meant physical incapacity; it did not mean that the W.M. was not able with accuracy and precision to perform the whole of the ceremonies. If that were to be the case he was afraid a great many brethren who had passed the chair might not go through with verbal accuracy. (Laughter.) It must mean incapacity, through being insane, or placed under some duress, or physical incapacity, through illness, which prevented his being present in the lodge. But if the Master could be present in the lodge, and could occupy the chair, this law did not apply to him. He had a right to preside over the lodge, and to call upon any brother he chose, who was a member of the lodge to perform the ceremonies. (Hear, hear.) The brethren in this instance seemed to think that it was absolutely necessary that the words should be spoken by the brother who occupied the chair. This was a mistake. If the W.M. occupied the chair he might call any brother to stand at his pedestal, or place him anywhere he liked in the lodge, and commission him to repeat his ceremonies, and the words spoken by that brother were the words of the W.M. But Bro. Buckle having said that if the W.M. did not perform his duties he should seem to have thought that this ceremony was to be performed from the chair. The W.M. left the chair, Bro. Buckle occupied it, and performed the ceremony, and the W.M. protested against what was done. The minutes were entered by the Secretary in the usual way, but after the minutes were entered, it appeared that the W.M. made an interlineation in them. As the words originally stood Bro. Buckle objected to any brother performing the ceremony unless it was performed by the W.M. The words interlined were that he insisted on performing that duty. The minutes were put for confirmation at the next meeting, and the W.M. did not state that he had caused the interlineation to be made; and afterwards when it was discovered that it had been made there was a very angry discussion, and very strong language was used on both sides, some brethren threatening to make a complaint against the W.M., and the W.M. threatening to make a complaint against them. A question arose about a brother of another lodge, and that led to an angry discussion also. Then came a proposition that a testimonial should be given to the Secretary. The W.M. rose and objected to it, and stated as his reasons that the Secretary was inefficient and inattentive, and he refused to put the resolution. The D.P.G.M. did not seem to have found that the W.M. did leave the chair. He refused to leave the chair, and when the time came for closing the lodge there was no answer to his gavel and he had to close the lodge down proprio vigore. Then he made a complaint to the D.P.G.M. who examined witnesses on one side and the other. There was a complete conflict of testimony between the W.M. and one or two of the brethren. Ultimately the D.P.G.M. having the brethren before him, heard their testimony, and seeing their demeanour was more likely to come to a just and proper conclusion than this Grand Lodge could come to. Grand Registrar then read the D.P.G.M.'s finding, and concluded by saying he did not think Grand Lodge should disturb it. The W.M. in some of the things he did was amenable to censure. Bro. Buckle did behave in a very insubordinate way to the Master, and when censuring the W.M. of the lodge, the D.P.G.M. should have extended his censure to Bro. Buckle, who seemed to have stood too rigidly on his privileges, and to have thought more of them than of assisting the W.M. in the duties of his office. There had been a departure from the principles of Freemasonry. Members of lodges, officers, or past officers, ought to consider this; they were not to stand upon their strict rights; strict rights were the most arrant injustice. Let every brother see that by giving way a little he would be doing his duty in carrying out the principles of Freemasonry. He felt compelled to move that the decision of the D.P.G.M. should be confirmed; but at the same time he thought that the D.P.G.M. should have censured some others who deserved it. (Hear, hear.)

Dr. Waller said there was an error in one point of this matter—as to his making an alteration in the minutes. He did not make it after the minutes were entered in the minute book. The Secretary called on him with an abstract or outline of the minutes. The alteration was made in what he thought was the draft.

The Earl of Carnarvon said: Brethren,—The question that I put to you is, that the decision of the D.P.G.M. shall be affirmed. It is unnecessary for me in any way to add remarks of my own. The Grand Registrar has explained with such extreme clearness, and taken so much pains and trouble in mastering the case in all its details, that I have no doubt Grand Lodge will be satisfied with the conclusion which he has so satisfactorily and painstakingly arrived at. You have heard a few words from Dr. Waller; and I would merely remind you that the point discussed is a question of fact which it is impossible for this Grand Lodge of course to go into. They must be content to accept the facts in the formal and official way in which they come before them, viz., as presented by the statement of the Deputy Prov. Grand Master and checked by the statement of the Grand Registrar. I think that Grand Lodge may feel that they are acting justly and fairly in this case, in agreeing to the motion of our Grand Registrar; and at the same time Dr. Waller may feel that he is not incurring any very heavy censure, it is a censure lightened and divided among others; and I trust the mere moral of this appeal will not be lost sight of, as has been put by the Grand Registrar that in questions such as these, which will from time to time arise, as every Provincial Grand Master, and as every member of provincial lodges must know, constantly arise, that there should be a feeling of fraternal co-operation and goodwill among the brethren, and that they should not, as Grand Registrar says, stand upon their extreme rights, but help each other, and even to accept with Masonic forbearance any little inequalities or irregularities which they may conceive they are subjected to. The motion, therefore, which I shall put to you is, "That the decision of the Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Northamptonshire be upheld."

The motion was carried nem. dis.

The next appeal was exceptionally peculiar, being none other than an appeal of Bro. the Rev. William D. Hobson, of the Tynwald Lodge, No. 1242, Douglas, Isle of Man, against a resolution of the Board of General Purposes, declining to interfere between himself and Bro. John A. Brown in a complaint submitted to them in a matter not relating to the Craft. The Board being the inculpated parties, their President, Bro. John B. Monckton, brought the matter up, not to move the resolutions, but to state the facts. In laying them before the Grand Lodge, Bro. Monckton said that Bro. Hobson, although absent, would no doubt read what was going to be said, and when he did so he would most likely feel that he had not been dealt with other than Masonically. The appeal in this case differed from other appeals. It was not an appeal between two Masons on Masonic affairs, nor was it a complaint against a decision on a matter in dispute; it was simply an appeal from the Board, who having a complaint before them, felt that they had not jurisdiction to deal with it. To this Bro. Hobson demurred, and he denied the opinion of Grand Lodge on the point. If Grand Lodge thought the Board ought to entertain the complaint, they would have to take up the papers again. He should not conclude by moving anything, but leave the matter in the hands of Grand Lodge. The circumstances were simply these: Bro. Hobson and Bro. Brown were both members of the Tynwald Lodge, Bro. Hobson being Chaplain of the lodge. Bro. Brown, though not the proprietor, was the responsible publisher of a newspaper called The Isle of Man Times, in which, last year, an article appeared reflecting very strongly on Bro. Hobson, not as a Mason, but rather as a clergyman having something to do with some schools in the Isle of Man. He opposed the steps taken by the School Board, and the article in the newspaper charged Bro. Hobson with twisting figures. Bro. Hobson did not take an unwise course, but brought an action against the publisher. On the case coming on for hearing, Bro. Brown instructed his counsel to apologise, explain and retract, and the action was withdrawn, and there, as Bro. Hobson said, the matter would have ended, if Bro. Brown had taken no further step. Bro. Brown thought it right for the honour of his paper to put in an article afterwards, in which he explained away his former explanation, in other words he seemed to say that want of legal proof induced him to withdraw and apologise. He (Bro. Monckton) did not know what the laws of the Isle of Man were, but Bro. Hobson did not again seek the redress of the law, but laid the matter before his lodge, who by a majority declined to interfere. He then brought it to the Board of General Purposes, and the Board having considered very carefully the prima facie statement, were of opinion that in accordance with the Book of Constitutions they had no right to interfere. From this opinion Bro. Hobson now brought his appeal to Grand Lodge, and it was only right to say that he gave three reasons in support of his appeal. The Book of Constitutions in three places touched upon such a subject. Bro. Hobson had quoted his authority correctly when he said that all differences and complaints that could not be accommodated in a regular lodge were to be taken to the Board of General Purposes. That was repeated in p. 6, but it was qualified in 108. Brethren on the Board well knew that any private matters, like money questions and domestic questions, were brought before them, but brethren were told that unless it was Masonic the Board could do nothing with them; they could not restore money, or a wife, or anything else. He thought, in all fairness to Bro. Hobson, the substance of his complaint, according to p. 18 of the Book of Constitutions, being that a complaint by one brother against another brother of a lodge could be brought before the Board, it was right to express his own opinion that if they entertained matters which had nothing to do with Masonry the Board would have more than enough to do.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart rose to move the confirmation of the resolution of the Board, but he was superseded by Bro. James Mason, who moved that the appeal be dismissed. He said the matter raised a question of considerable importance, and therefore was not lightly to be dealt with. The ancient charges enjoined upon Masons a very excellent principle, that they should, as far as possible, abstain from legal proceedings one against the other, and that they should endeavour to bring all their differences to a happy end. The quotation from the Book of Constitutions made by the worthy President showed one grand thing, that if complaints were brought before the Board of General Purposes, the Board had authority to deal with them. But it was not compulsory upon them to deal with these matters, and very rightly they exercised their jurisdiction and treated trivial matters in the way they ought to be treated when they were not outside Masonry. (Cries of "Vote, vote.") But there might be things that were not strictly within the laws of Masonry. (Renewed cheers, and cries of "Vote, vote.") There were very many questions of very great importance to Masons, which might be adjudicated upon. ("Vote, vote.") There were many questions—"Vote, vote," allow him to say, brethren, and he had the right of free speech, and it was un-Masonic to interfere with a brother when speaking—it was the G.M. in the chair alone who could stop him. ("Vote, vote.") This practice of interrupting a brother was not consistent with Masonry. There was a great principle involved in this question. (Vote, vote.) A Mason might have a right to bring before his lodge a matter, he might have a right to appeal to individual brethren outside Freemasonry, and he might have a right to appeal to the Board of General Purposes, and it was the right of the individual member, and it was the right of the Board of General Purposes to discuss those matters. Here was an affair which ought to be dealt with outside Freemasonry, the Board of General Purposes declined to interfere. He moved that the appeal be dismissed.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart seconded the resolution, which was put and carried unanimously.

Bro. the Rev. Henry John Hatch, W.M. 160, then moved "That a committee, consisting of the Present and Past Grand Officers, the Provincial Grand Masters, and such other members of the Craft as the said committee shall, in their discretion, deem fit from time to time to add to their numbers, be appointed to consider what steps should be taken to promote the building, either on the Thames Embankment, or in some other conspicuous part of London, of a Masonic Temple, which, while offering more extended accommodation for the present requirements of Grand Lodge, shall be at once worthy of the rank, wealth, and increasing importance of Freemasonry; an ornament to the chief city of the world, and a lasting memorial of gratitude to the G.A.O.T.U., not only for the safe return from India of our M.W. Grand Master His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, but for the success of his visit in eliciting and confirming throughout that vast territory a feeling of universal loyalty and attachment to the Imperial rule of England."

"That such committee shall be invested with full powers to procure plans and estimates for such a building; shall consider the best means of raising the necessary funds; and shall continue to act and report to every succeeding Grand Lodge, until the Grand Lodge shall think proper to discontinue the said committee." He compared the condition of Masonry now with what it was 100 years ago, and argued that the present Grand Lodge was not large enough to meet the growing demands of the Craft, which now required greater accommodation. There were only 200 lodges and about 6000 Masons in existence 100 years ago; now there were 1660 lodges and probably 400,000 or 500,000 Masons. Means were adopted then for erecting the present building, and care was taken to provide sufficient room for the brethren. He submitted that the same thing should be done now.

The motion not being seconded fell to the ground. Bro. Benjamin Mallam, P.M. 108, withdrew his motion "That a sum of money be given out of the funds towards the funds of the Alexandra Orphanage, sufficiently large in amount to allow of the committee to place one of the blocks of the buildings apart for the use of infant orphans of Freemasons."

Grand Lodge was then closed in due form.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

NEPTUNE LODGE (No. 22).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Guildhall Tavern, on Thursday, the 22nd ult., at 3.30. There were present Bros. E. F. Storr, W.M.; G. Phythian, S.W.; T. White, P.M., as J.W.; J. Wilcox, P.M., Treas.; T. R. Eames, P.M., Hon. Sec.; E. W. Shove, as S.D.; T. P. Collings, J.D.; G. B. Gates, I.G.; W. C. Greaves, Org.; W. Neats, W.S.; Past Masters Goodwin, Batty, Harcourt, Norman, Waterall, Crawford, and Partridge; and many other brethren, including several visitors. The lodge having been opened and the minutes of the previous lodge confirmed, Bro. Partridge, I.P.M., in the absence of the W.M., raised Bro. Sargent to the Third Degree. The W.M. then assumed the chair, and having resumed, the lodge ballot was taken for Mr. E. Hollandt as an initiate and Bro. H. Povey as a re-joining member, both of which were unanimous. Bro. Slater was then passed to the Second Degree, and Mr. Hollandt initiated, Bro. Mugeridge delivering the charge. The Treasurer then announced the death of Bro. Joseph Ashwell, P.M., who had been a member of the lodge upwards of twenty-two years, and it was decided that the Hon. Secretary should write a letter of condolence to the surviving members of the family. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to banquet, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair. Bro. Henry Phythian, P.P.G. Sec. Middlesex, returning thanks for "The Visitors."

LION AND LAMB LODGE (No. 192).—This lodge met on the 1st inst., at the Cannon Street Hotel, for the purpose of installing Bro. Edward Jones as W.M., in succession to Bro. Cobu, and for performing the other lodge work. Bro. Cobu presided. Bros. Chas. Arkell, S.W.; E. Jones, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Secretary; H. Legge, S.D.; F. Fellowes, J.D.; W. P. Rickwood, I.G.; S. T. Lucas, D.C.; E. King, P.M., Steward; Hosgood, P.M.; G. Abbott, P.M.; G. Newman, P.M.; C. J. Sparrow, R. J. Dart, G. F. Quinton, Thos. Perrin, Thos. Gardener, R. Stubington, G. Taylor, E. Hunton, E. J. Kellaway, J. Curle, W. Medwin, R. E. Bright, Geo. Borer, H. Child, J. T. Belfrage, R. H. Goddard, T. Hampton, R. Clark, W. F. Poulton, H. Davis, W. H. L. Davies, H. A. Carter, T. C. Alfatt, S. Edwards, W. Darnell. Visitors: W. Worrell, P.M. 766; F. Van Raalte, 917; F. G. Barns, 796; S. Rosenthal, P.G.S.W. Midx.; W. Davies, 1259; W. Lusby, 1259; J. Linsdell, P.M. 311; R. Pinkey, 177; W. Stephens, P.M. 1265; T. Beard, P.M.

101; C. B. Grover, 185; J. R. Williams, 766; J. Fowler, 1158; J. B. Bruning, 1489; G. W. West, 1247; J. Murch, 27; W. Mitchell, 717; H. Massey, P.M. 619 (Freemason); M. Hornsey, 73; R. W. Stewart, P.G.D. England; C. A. Walter, 865; Dudley Rolls, P.M. 12; A. May, 1358; G. Clark, 177; A. Martelley, 156; T. B. Yeoman, 1460; H. Dunn, 28; A. Cotton, 1613; A. B. Lipscombe, 15; H. B. D. Dawn, W. C. Hollands, W.M. 1321; S. Lazarus, P.M. 53; W. Palmer, 177; J. Wandley, 1381; G. Everett, P.M. 177; J. H. Turner, W.M. 1185; E. G. Legge, 1196; D. M. Dewar, P.M. 1415; J. J. Moore; J. R. Foulger, W.M. 1613; W. H. Morgan, 1305; G. T. Wilson, 569; H. Schley, 247; S. Watkins, P.M. 212; J. Wenland, 1076; J. Taylor, 298; and W. Simmons, 871. The W.M. passed Bro. W. H. L. Davies to the Second Degree, and afterwards installed Bro. Edward Jones, J.W. and W.M. elect, as Worshipful Master for the current year. The Board of Installed Masters was unusually numerous, and on the board being closed the brethren below the chair were admitted, and after the customary salutes the following brethren were appointed to office: Bros. Henry Legge, S.W.; F. Fellows, J.W.; J. G. Marsh, P.M., Sec.; W. T. Rickwood, S.D.; S. T. Lucas, J.D.; H. Child, I.G.; E. J. Kellaway, D.C.; W. H. L. Davies, Org.; E. King, P.M., Steward; and G. Smith, Tyler. Bro. George Newman was invested as Treasurer in the absence of Bro. George Kenning. The Treasurer gave notice of motion that £10 be given to the widow of a deceased brother, £10 to the Benevolent Institution, and £10 to the Muggeridge testimonial. The addresses having been delivered, some minor matters were disposed of, and the brethren then closed the lodge and adjourned to an excellent banquet. Afterwards the customary toasts were duly honoured. The W.M., in giving the toast of "The Queen," said he would not waste the time of the brethren by dilating upon her merits, so well and universally known, but would content himself by saying that as a Queen we honoured and obeyed her, and as true Englishmen we revered and loved her. In giving the toast of "The Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M.," the W.M. said how thoroughly the Prince had endeared himself to the heart of every Mason was well known to them all; how highly and efficiently he had discharged the duties of his high office was universally acknowledged; and while he was ever ready to forward the interests of the charities of our Order, he had handed down a name to posterity as one of the highest ornaments of Freemasonry. The toast of "The Pro Grand Master, &c.," followed, and Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., was called upon to respond. In doing so he said the brethren would all agree with him that it was most important that everything and every institution in the world should have a head, and it was so with Freemasonry. They had at the present moment a noble head of their lodge, and they were proud to see Bro. Jones in the chair. Carrying their thoughts higher they were proud of the Prince of Wales as the head of Freemasonry, and he thought he might, without fear of contradiction, say that no Grand Master had been so beloved as the Prince of Wales; no Grand Master had Masonry so much at heart, as was evidenced by the numerous warrants he had granted for new lodges, though at the same time he had not scattered them broadcast. Speaking for the Grand Officers, who had the true sympathy of the brethren, they had the well-being of the Craft at heart; they were always proud to come among the brethren, and to tell them so. He was proud to come to this lodge, and see such an unprecedented gathering, who had met not only for the sake of the Prince of Wales, but for the sake of the W.M. They had all come to do him credit, and as one of the Grand Officers of England he (Bro. Stewart) said, "Prosperity to the Lion and Lamb Lodge." He hoped this would not be the last occasion he would have the pleasure to come and see them. He hoped that the new lodges would be told that the old lodges, started years before they were born, were well supported, and had never forfeited their honour and glory. Not only as a Grand Officer of England, but as a representative of the Institutions, he returned sincere thanks to the brethren, and wished the lodge success. The W.M. announced that the charity-box had yielded £2 18s. 6d. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Visitors," stated that the lodge was honoured that evening with the largest number of those brethren that had ever graced their board. Bro. Rosenthal was the first to respond, and in the course of his remarks said he was sure the brethren would never regret having placed Bro. Jones in the chair. He had had the honour and pleasure of knowing him many years, and he was quite proud that night to be his visitor. They would find that everything Bro. Jones took in hand he would carry out, and thereby do honour and credit to the lodge. He would never turn back either in working or in charity. He had met him in several lodges and in assemblies of the higher degrees. His hand was always on the right side; his pocket was always ready; and this showed he had a good heart. A man that had a good heart must be a good man. Bro. Lazarus also replied, and informed the brethren that he was made a Mason fifty-four years ago, on the 18th March, 1823. Although he had seen a good deal of the ceremonies and of Freemasonry generally in his time, it was the greatest pleasure he had ever witnessed to find that the Heir Apparent to the throne of England took such a great interest in Freemasonry; besides which, two of his brothers were now members of the Order, and one of them a Provincial Grand Master. Bro. Dudley Rolls also replied. It was the first time he had visited this lodge. Unfortunately the pressing emergency of his private avocations prevented his coming so early as he could have wished, but he had come soon enough to witness the hearty reception which the lodge gave their visitors. Bro. D. M. Dewar likewise responded. Bro. Cohu, I.P.M., proposed "The Health of the W.M." He said it gave him great pleasure to propose it, and he knew it would be heartily received by the members of the Lion and Lamb Lodge. He (Bro. Cohu) had vacated the chair that night after having occupied it for the usual time. It had afforded him a great amount of pleasure to occupy the chair, and he was sure Bro. Jones would feel the same amount of pleasure as he had, and have the same amount of support from the brethren. From what they had seen of Bro. Jones they would know he was worthy of the position he was occupying at the present time. The W.M., in reply, said he felt in rather a strange position in having for the first time to respond to the toast of "The W.M." Hitherto he had had some one in the position of W.M. to address; now he seemed to want some one. When he was at the other end of the room he commenced with saying "W.M." But although he was in this new position he nevertheless thanked the brethren very cordially for the kind and hearty manner they had drunk his health. It would always be his earnest endeavour to promote the prosperity of this lodge. He had always endeavoured to do so since he was first initiated in the Order. It had been his highest ambition to reach the proud position in which he had been placed that evening. His next greatest ambition was to make himself worthy of it; and he trusted that at the termination of his year of office the brethren would one and all be satisfied with what he had done for the lodge, and with the way in which he had performed his work. Should he only be enabled to do that, it would be the proudest moment of his life when on retiring from the chair he should have the pleasure of installing his successor, and saying to him that he was placed in the chair with the good wishes of the brethren as hearty as those which had been accorded to himself. He would conclude by saying that everything that lay in his power, both abroad and at home, he should do for the prosperity of the Lion and Lamb Lodge. (Hear, hear.) The W.M. next gave "The Health of Bro. Cohu, I.P.M., Installing Master." How well and excellently he had done his work in the installation ceremony all the brethren could bear witness; how well and ably he had performed his work throughout the year all the brethren of the lodge knew. It was therefore unnecessary to say more to the brethren on the subject. The toast having been most warmly received, Bro. Cohu said he had very great pleasure in responding to the toast. If he had worked the installation to the satisfaction of the brethren they gratified his wishes, and more than that. From the time he went into the chair he looked upon it as his duty as W.M. to instal his successor. The installation ceremony he had not taken as he had every other ceremony, for in those ceremonies he had been between two stools; but the installation ceremony he had taken from one friend only. He had had plenty of friends to coach him up, but he told them he had seen enough of variations in working, and he would rather take it from one friend only. He thought the time had come for one system only to be worked—the most universal working, which would be very much to the benefit of all Masters of 1 dges. Bro. Cohu concluded by thanking the brethren for drinking his health. The W.M. then proposed "The P.M.'s." Knowing, as they all did, that without good Masters they could not have good working, he thought he could safely say that in the Lion and Lamb Lodge they had as good a set of P.M.'s as any lodge in London. They had all proved themselves excellent workers in their time, and during their years of office. Bro. Cohu, the I.P.M., had surprised all the brethren by the quiet and effective way in which he had done his work. Bro. Cohu, in the course of his reply, said he should always have much pleasure in rendering assistance to the Masters of the lodge, and he was proud to take his rank as a Past Master. The W.M. afterwards proposed "The Masonic Charities," and made an apology for the absence of the three Secretaries. They all knew how valuable the Masonic Charitable Institutions were. He had himself had the pleasure of going over each of the institutions, and seeing for himself how well they were conducted. They were a credit to the Craft, and they all knew how munificently the Lion and Lamb Lodge supported them. This year they had the honour of sending a Steward to the festival of the Benevolent Institution; he himself intended to represent the lodge at the Girls' Festival, for which institution the lodge had a candidate in the child of an old P.M., Bro. Cates. He felt certain they would come forward, one and all, and do what they could for that charity, as they must endeavour if they possibly could to get the child in this time. Bro. Smith or Bro. Kenning would most thankfully receive their votes. Bro. Fellows would represent the lodge at the Boys' School Festival, and they knew he would be a most efficient Steward. With his name he would couple the toast. Bro. Fellows replied. He had had the honour and pleasure of representing the lodge at the Benevolent Institution festival two years, and he was very well pleased with the result. He had the honour of going up for the Boys' School, of the value of which they were all well aware. He had this advice to offer to Freemasons. With a thorough appreciation of the value of the Masonic Institutions, he had a desire that they should be supported to their utmost, and that the brethren should subscribe individually to them; but let them not give a guinea to those institutions if a pair of boots was wanted at home. The brethren knew that nearly £13,000 had just been collected for the old men and women. A few years ago only £500 was collected at a festival, and the contrast was so marked that no one could help observing the immense spread there must be in the extension of the Order. Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, P.G.D., wished to add a few words to the observations of Bro. Fellows. He had served 17 Stewardships altogether and on Wednesday he had the pleasure of going down to Croydon to pay the old men and women their annuities. Formerly they received but £15 each, but now the old men get £40 a year, and the old women £36. It was perfectly true, as stated by Bro. Fellows, that formerly the Benevolent Institution got but £500 at a festival. At that time they invested two-thirds of the subscriptions, but shortly the subscriptions went rapidly up to £3000, and they were then told that it would never be larger. Thanks to the energy of Bro. Binckes, the Secretary of the Boys' School, who was the pioneer of the brethren, who got large subscriptions, they went on increasing. Bro. Binckes advocated the cause, not only of the Boys' School, but of the other Institutions. When that was done he (Bro. Stewart) had the courage to say they should invest no more. Some brethren opposed it, but he carried the point, and they agreed to give the old men £35 and the old women £20 a year. Since then, thank God, he had been able to carry his proposition for a yet larger increase, and the old men had now £40 a year, and the old women £36. In addition to that, they had now 100 more annuitants on the funds of the Institution. He was proud to say that the subscription to the Institution this year was much larger than ever it had been before. In the Boys' and Girls' Schools similar progress had been made. The number of girls had been increased from 100 to 150, and the boys from 60 to 180. Of the latter Institution he might say they wished to increase the number further still. He was on the committee, and he could tell the brethren that they were not going to lead them into a speculation. He would show the committee that they could give accommodation for 120 more boys; but the brethren must give them the means of supporting them by opening their purses more. They must not deceive themselves by thinking that they had done their work; there was yet more to do. They must give the children a thorough education. They had hitherto acted nobly; but having put their hand to the plough they must not look back. (Cheers.) The W.M., in giving "The Masonic Press," said the brethren all knew how ably the Freemason was conducted, and they liked to see the doings at their meetings recorded in its columns. He felt certain from what he knew of the way in which Bro. Massey performed his work, that what had passed that evening would be faithfully laid before the brethren next week. Bro. Massey having acknowledged the compliment, the W.M. gave "The Musical Artists," for whom Bro. W. Worrell, P.M. 766, acted as sponsor. "The Treasurer and Secretary" was the next toast, to which Bro. J. G. Marsh replied. "The Officers" followed, and this having been duly responded to, the Tyler gave the concluding toast, and the brethren settled down round the Master's table, and spent the remainder of the time in harmony and conversation. During the interval between the different toasts the brethren were entertained with some agreeable singing by Madame Worrell-Duval, Miss Emma Buer, Mr. Arthur J. Thompson, and Bro. Thurlay Beale. Mr. J. Tarle Lee was pianist, and the arrangements were under the direction of Bro. William Worrell. The W.M. presented the lodge with a valuable harmonium.

CHAUCER LODGE (No. 1540).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held at the Bridge House Hotel, Southwark, on Wednesday, 28th February. Bro. J. C. Mason, W.M., opened the lodge. The minutes were read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots, taken separately, proved unanimous in favour of the admission of Messrs. Frederick Mayer and Elias Ricardo. The W.M., Bro. J. C. Mason, in an able and correct manner, raised Bros. C. S. Hodges and H. Ward to the Third Degree, and initiated Messrs. Frederick Mayer and William Joseph Harrison into Freemasonry. Bro. T. I. H. Wilkins, P.M., took the chair, and initiated his friend, Mr. Elias Ricardo, doing the work in his usual efficient manner. Bro. J. C. Mason, W.M., resumed the chair. Some formal business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed and adjourned until April. The arrangements of the forthcoming ball, to be held under the auspices of the lodge, were completed, and it promises to be a great success. There were present, besides those named, Bros. E. S. Stidolph, S.W.; W. J. Kemp, J.W.; the Rev. Hatch, P.M., Chap.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; C. W. Hudson, S.D.; H. Fajja, J.D.; A. J. Hawkes, I.G.; C. Graham, D.C.; and others. The visitors were Bros. G. Read, P.M. 511; T. Perridge, P.M. 79; and C. G. Rushworth, W.M. 1309. There was not any banquet.

KILBURN LODGE (No. 1608).—The fourth regular meeting of this young and very flourishing lodge was held on Monday, the 26th February, at the Queen's Arms Hotel, Kilburn, in the spacious hall newly erected by Bro. T. Hartley for the express use of the brethren. There was an unusually large muster to witness the excellent working for which this lodge has already become famous. Bro. John Palmer, P.M. 27, the esteemed W.M., occupied the chair, the other officers being Bros. G. Kiallmark, S.W.; C. Brewer, J.W.; Geo. Everett, P.M. 177 and 1381, Treas., acting I.P.M.; J. W. Cuff, S.D.; Geo. Fitchett, J.D.; G. H. Goody, I.G.; A. H. Wilson, Steward; W. Beaven, Org.; and C. Thomas, Tyler. Amongst the visitors were Bros. W. Watson, P.M. 23; F. Harrison, P.M. 27; H. S. Goodall, P.M. 78; J. Warner, P.M. 23; J. Lawrance, P.M. 901; J. Reinhardt, 23; A. Jacobs, 493; H. Hawkins, 180; E. R. Shervill, P.M. 23; S. P. Hyatt, 1314; W. J. Wettenhall, 201; H. S. Joyce, 1158; W. S. Keats, 1348; and E. H. Burton, 73 and 333. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the following six brethren were passed to the Second Degree, viz., Bros. W. Peech, Sidney Smith, James Wittingham, Harry T. Smith, — Meredith, and W. Blackburn. The ceremony was performed in the W.M.'s usual impressive manner, whilst his admirable reading of the Lecture on the Tracing Board elicited the warmest encomiums from all present. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren sat down to a splendid banquet, provided in Bro. Hartley's well-known excellent style. The preliminary toasts having been given and duly honoured, the acting I.P.M., Bro. Everett, said the very gratifying task now devolved upon him of proposing the next toast of the evening. He need not remind them that this was a bumper toast, nor need he ask them to drink to it deeply, because he was sure that they would do so of their own accord. From the fact of his having possession of the Master's gavel, and also from the fact of its being the only toast he was privileged to propose at that festive board, they could easily divine that he alluded to the health of their Worshipful Master. He could say, without any flattery to the worthy occupant of the chair, that the Kilburn Lodge was exceedingly fortunate in having for its first Master one so able and so earnest in all that appertained to Freemasonry as Bro. Palmer. He had held a long and distinguished career in the Order, he had been a staunch upholder of its honour and its dignity, and a firm supporter of its charities, and although he had attained so high a position in the Craft, they still found him, night after night, attending their Lodge of Improvement, encouraging by his presence those who might be desirous of following in his footsteps; and emulating his good example; whilst the knowledge that in him they had one so well able to afford them instruction, and so willing to impart it, gave them that confidence to persevere, which was in all things so essential to success. The toast was received with great cheering. The W.M., in reply, said the enthusiastic manner in which they had responded to the toast was to him quite unexpected, and although it was not strictly Masonic, the man could not be mortal who would not feel proud at its reception. He could only thank them, which he did most heartily, and assure them that it was a great pleasure to him to occupy the high position of their W.M., and to feel that he was held in such esteem by the brethren. The W.M. next gave "The Visitors." He said the Kilburn Lodge prided itself on its hospitality, they were always glad to receive visitors, and would at all times do their best to make them comfortable. Bros. Warner, P.M.; Harrison, P.M.; and others responded on behalf of the visitors. "The Masonic Charities" were next given, coupled with the name of Bro. G. Kiallmark, S.W., who had acted as Steward at the late festival of the old people's institution, held at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Kiallmark, in responding, said he felt it a great honour to have his name associated with so noble a toast as that of the Charities. He was proud to say that with their kind assistance he had been enabled to take up no less a sum than £117, and that the Kilburn Lodge, although only in the first year of its existence, stood tenth highest on the list of subscriptions amongst the London lodges. He was further pleased to say that, with the exception of a sovereign or two, the whole amount had been subscribed by the lodge and its members, and the manner in which it was done was most gratifying, for in no case had he to solicit a single member—he simply made the announcement that he was about to represent the lodge as Steward, and it all came forth voluntarily. He felt that he could not sufficiently express his thanks for the support they had given him, and with regard to his position as S.W., although he undertook the office with a certain amount of diffidence (that having been his great drawback through life), their kind and considerate treatment of him was fast overcoming it, and he hoped soon to acquire that confidence which Bro. Everett had stated was so necessary to the proper performance of its functions, and those higher duties to which he hoped shortly to attain. He again thanked them most sincerely. The W.M. said the S.W. having had his name coupled with the last toast, he would now give them an opportunity of drinking "The Health of their worthy J.W., Bro. Brewer," who had taken so active a part in the formation of the lodge, and who was most indefatigable in his exertions to promote its welfare. The toast was received with enthusiasm. Bro. Brewer said he desired to thank the W.M. for the kind manner in which he had proposed the toast of his health, and the brethren for the very cordial way in which they had received it. He was proud to hold office in so rising a lodge and under so able and distinguished a Master. He was glad to find he had thus far given satisfaction; it would be an incentive to him to endeavour to achieve greater things, and with their kind assistance he hoped he should succeed. The W.M. then gave "The Treasurer and Secretary," complimenting those officers on their great usefulness in the lodge, and paying a high tribute to their skill and ability. Bro. Everett, in thanking the brethren, said that with so excellent a Master, and such an able and painstaking Secretary, he had little to do but take care of their funds, but he hoped they would keep him well employed at that. Bro. Brooks, Secretary, thanked the W.M. for his kindness in proposing his health, and also for the flattering manner in which he had spoken of him in connection with the duties of his office. There was necessarily a good deal to do in the formation of a new lodge, but he had received many useful hints from the Treasurer, which had been of great service to him, and he was gratified to find that he had discharged his duties thus far so much to their satisfaction. The toast of "The Officers" followed, and was ably responded to by Bros. Cuff, Fitchett, and others. Then came "The Organist," replied to by Bro. Beavan, and last, though not least, that of the worthy host, Bro. Hartley. Some excellent harmony was contributed by Bros. Hyatt, Beavan, F. Brewer, Burton, and others, and the Tyler's toast concluded a most enjoyable evening.

BIRMINGHAM.—St. Paul's Lodge (No. 43).—A meeting of the above lodge, the oldest in the Province of Warwickshire, was held on Monday, the 26th ult., at the Masonic Hall, under the Mastership of Bro. S. Sinauer, supported by a goodly number of brethren. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Mr. H. J. Altman, of Frederick-street, Birmingham, which proving unanimously in his favour, was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry by the Worshipful Master, in such an able manner as to draw forth the plaudits of the whole of the brethren present. Visitors present: Bros. A. J. Altman, I.G. Aldersgate Lodge, 1657, London, and S. Hoffnug of Liverpool. The brethren then adjourned to dinner, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and duly acknowledged. Some vocal music having been given, the Tyler's toast closed a very enjoyable evening.

GREENWICH.—St. George's Lodge (No. 140).—The last meeting of this old and distinguished lodge, which was founded in 1765, was held at the Trafalgar Hotel on Wednesday, the 21st ult. Amongst those present were Bros. Wallace, W.M.; Blackmur, S.W.; Bell, J.W.; Noak, Treas.; Tattershall, P.M., Sec.; Loughborough, S.D.; Dennant, J.D.; Brown, I.G.; Turner, P.M.; Johnson, P.M.; Jardine, P.M.; and W. Jordon, Org. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. Blackmur, 13; Dosell, 79; G. Tedder, 111; Sears, 299; Harvey, 871; Trill, 1320; Le Cree, 1320; T. C. Walls, J.W. 1381, &c.; Dr. Smith, 1538; Armstrong, J.W. 1593. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, some minor business was transacted, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The toasts of "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The P.G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," were given briefly and pertinently from the chair and duly honoured. Bro. Jardine, the father of the lodge, in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," said he felt he had something interesting to say to them, because he (the W.M.) had been introduced by him into Freemasonry. He (Bro. Wallace) would discharge his duties both to the satisfaction and credit of the lodge, which lodge for "working" could challenge favourable comparison with any in the vicinity of London. In conclusion he wished the W.M. a successful year of office, and he hoped that under his sway the proceedings of No. 140 would be characterised as they always had been by that "love and harmony" which should at all times prevail amongst the brotherhood. The W.M., in response, said that it afforded him great pleasure to reply to the warm greeting that had been given him that evening. Bro. Jardine, in proposing his health, had used such kind words, that he felt quite discomposed by his paternal eulogy. It would be his highest ambition to do that which would at all times meet with their universal and favourable recognition. He did not think that the harmony of the lodge was likely to be upset, nor that the fraternal atmosphere would in any way be disturbed, but that he would be well supported by them all, and as a return for that kind feeling he would do all he could to make the proceedings a success. In proposing "The Health of the Visitors," the W.M. said that the theme of the toast afforded a great pleasure to him, and which gratification he was sure they would all participate in. Upon so dull an evening in the lodge it was very flattering to have such a goodly array of visiting brethren. He was of opinion that visiting in Freemasonry was one of the greatest pleasures the Craft possessed, because the brethren thereby had an opportunity of contrasting the different systems, which "working," however, had but one common end, and these visits often led to the making and cementing of many Masonic friendships. With so large an array of visitors it was not possible at that late hour for them all to reply. He should therefore couple the names only of Bros. Blackmur and Dosell with the toast, because he also believed that too much public speaking at assemblages of that kind was not only a tax upon the speakers but upon their hearers. This toast having been received with excellent fire, Bros. Blackmur and Dosell briefly replied. In giving the next toast the W.M. said it was one of special moment to the St. George's, that of "The Past Masters," who had made the lodge what it was. It was now in a very prosperous condition, but it was not always so, and it was well that they should know that it was owing to the exertions of some of the Past Masters that that satisfactory position was brought about. The good ship "St. George" had to be got off the rocks, and by the strength and energy of several of the Past Masters it was done, and she now floated in smooth waters. In conclusion, the W.M. said that as Bro. Scard, the I.P.M., whose year of office had been a very successful one, was not present, he should couple the toast with the name of their revered Bro. Jardine. After the brethren had most enthusiastically responded to the toast, that brother suitably acknowledged it. The proceedings were enlivened by the instrumental, dramatic, and vocal contributions of Bros. Jordon, Brown, Johnson, Walls, Tedder, Blackmur and others. The toasts of "The Treasurer and Secretary" and "The Officers" having been given and acknowledged, the Tyler's toast was called, and the brethren separated.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Lodge (No. 540).—The above-named lodge held its regular monthly meeting at the lodge-rooms, Swan Hotel, Bedford, on Wednesday evening, Feb. 28th, when there were present Bros. Col. Stuart, W.M.; Capt. Green, I.P.M.; W. Finlinson, P.M., S.W.; Allan, J.D.; Thody, I.G.; Alderman Sergeant, P.M., Treas.; Dr. Prior, P.M., Sec.; Piper, Org.; Alderman S. R. Bull, P.M., Stew.; G. Reynolds, Tyler; with the following P.M.'s:—G. P. Nash, Cookson, and Billson; and Bros. Stafford, Alderman Carter, Whittaker, Harris, Lambie, and others; and visiting brethren Hewens and Benham. The lodge having been opened in due form, and the minutes of the last meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Ayres was raised to the Third Degree. The ceremony was impressively performed by the W.M., in which he was ably supported by the various officers of the lodge. Other business having been disposed of, and a resident of Bedford proposed for initiation at the next meeting, the lodge was closed, and twenty-six brethren sat down to an excellent supper, and spent a most enjoyable evening.

STOKESLEY.—Cleveland Lodge (No. 543).—

The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Monday evening, Feb. 26th, at the Golden Lion Hotel, but was only thinly attended, owing to the severe weather, many of the members living at a good distance from the place of meeting. The following members officiated, either in their own offices or for those who were absent:—Bros. James Coulson, W.M.; Benjamin Richardson, P.M., as S.W.; George Markham Tweddell, as J.W.; William Sharpe, S.D.; Thomas Unthank, as J.D.; J. H. Handy-side, P. Prov. G.J.W., Sec.; Richard Watson, P.M., Treas.; John Rontree, as I.G.; and William Harrison, Tyler. Bro. Thomas Fenney having passed an excellent examination as E.A., was passed to the degree of F.C. Bro. Francis Wrightson was balloted for and unanimously elected as a joining member. A candidate was then proposed to be balloted for on the following lodge night, and the meeting was adjourned till the Monday nearest the full moon in March, emergencies excepted.

BANBURY.—Cherwell Lodge (No. 599).—The members of this lodge held their twenty-fifth anniversary at the Red Lion Hotel on Monday 26th ult., when Bro. the Rev. J. Spittal was installed W.M. for the ensuing year, the ceremony being performed by Bro. R. Havers, P.G.D. of England, with his accustomed ability. The newly-installed W.M. afterwards invested his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Potts, I.P.M.; the Rev. A. Ayton, S.W.; G. A. Hardacre, J.W.; R. Havers, P.G.D., Treas.; E. J. Hartley, P.M., Sec.; T. W. Holland, S.D.; C. H. Pemberton, P.M., J.D.; W. Chamberlin and T. Fowler, Stewards; R. C. Humphrey, I.G.; and T. Moss, Tyler. The brethren afterwards dined together under the presidency of the W.M., who was supported by Bro. H. Bird, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master; Bros. Rev. H. Adair Pickard, P.M. of the Apollo University Lodge, Oxford; H. C. Risley, P.M.; R. Havers, P.G.D.; the newly-invested officers, and others.

ECCLES.—Victoria Lodge (No. 1345).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Cross Keys Hotel, on Wednesday, the 21st ult., for the purpose of installing the newly-appointed W.M., Bro. E. Lowndes. The lodge having been opened in the usual form the retiring Master, Bro. Rudman, presented, and the Installing Master, Bro. Buxton, P.M., assisted by Bros. P.M.'s Giffman, Toulson, Brooks, and Rudman, performed the interesting ceremonies of placing Bro. Lowndes in the chair of K.S., and investing the officers of the lodge for the ensuing year, the whole being conducted with that Masonic ability for which this lodge is known and appreciated. At the close of the ceremony, the brethren, to the number of 44, adjourned to a banquet provided by Bro. Pearson, under the judicious and able inspection of his wife, Mrs. Pearson, to whom the thanks of the brethren were due for her exertions in rendering them that comfort and enjoyment for which she is noted. A pleasant and agreeable evening was spent, the visiting brethren largely contributing thereto by their social and musical qualities.

BOOTLE.—Bootle Lodge (No. 1473).—The annual celebration of St. John's festival, in connection with this excellent suburban lodge, took place on another patron saint's day (St. David's), the 1st instant, at the Town Hall, Bootle, near Liverpool, and the high position which this Masonic combination of brethren holds was clearly shown by a very large and highly influential gathering. There were about seventy brethren present at the interesting proceedings of the afternoon, and the admirable working shown by all concerned was of the most instructive and interesting kind. The lodge was opened before three o'clock by Bro. J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D., the retiring Worshipful Master, and he was ably supported and assisted in the succeeding initiation of two candidates, Messrs. Woodcock and Fraser, by Bros. H. Wyatt, I.P.M.; T. D. Pierce, P.M. 823; Richard Roberts, S.W.; J. Duncan, jun., J.W.; S. E. Ibbes, P.P.G.S.B., Treas.; W. H. Clemmey, Sec.; J. C. Paterson, S.D.; R. Hough, J.D.; F. J. Mortleman, I.G.; J. Lecombe, S.; J. Stott, S.; and W. Blake, Tyler. The members of the Bootle Lodge present were Bros. H. Molyneux, P.M. 823; F. F. Young, W. Smith, P.M. 1235; C. Batley, C. Padley, jun.; J. Woollam, J. J. Durant, H. J. Meandy, J. W. Hill, W. Humphrey, R. Brown, P.M. 241; A. Ruthven, J. Sharp, J. F. Dowling, W. J. Rice, J. M. Jones, T. M. Wells, P.M. 580; and I. Platt. The list of visitors included the names of Bros. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; G. V. Blaikie, I.G. 152; S. Haynes, P.M. 823, 1547; Dr. C. Swaby Smith, I.P.M. 1380; G. H. Samuel, 1182; J. P. Bryan, 203, 1035; J. G. Bayley, J.W. 216; T. Fozzard, P.M. 1035; A. Barclay, 1181; R. Barton, 1035; R. Stezaker, 1182; T. Evans, W.M. 1570, P.M. 1356; J. Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; A. Winkup, P.M. 667; Councilor; J. A. Forrest, W.M. 1547; J. H. Parker, S.W. 1547; C. H. Jordan, 903; P. Maddox, P.P.G.S.W.; J. Wells, P.M. 580; G. Morgan, P.M. 1035; C. Waterhouse, 1035; W. Hughes, 1013; T. W. Kellor, 721; the Rev. Dr. Hyde, 1086; J. F. Newell, P.M. 1035; and Bartoll, 440 (Canada). The chair of Installing Master was taken by Bro. H. S. Alpass, P.G. Sec., who proceeded to place Bro. Richard Roberts in the position of W.M. in a very effective manner. Bro. Turley also assisted in an admirable style in the ceremony, and the whole of this section of the principal portions of the day's proceedings must have given entire satisfaction to the numerous gathering of the fraternity. The following were the officers appointed to assist the W.M. during his year of office: Bros. J. W. Turley, I.P.M.; Sam. E. Ibbes, P.M., P.P.G.S.B., Treas.; J. Parlan M'Arthur, P.M., D.C.; John Duncan, jun., S.W.; W. H. Clemmey, J.W.; J. C. Paterson, Hon. Sec.; R. A. Hough, S.D.; F. H. Mortleman, J.D.; J. Lecombe, I.G.; S. Stott, S.S.; T. F. Young, J.S.; J. P. Bryan, Org.; and W. Blake, Tyler. "Hearty good wishes" were given to the new W.M. from brethren representing about a dozen lodges. After the business portion of the proceedings, a sumptuous banquet was served in the council chamber by Bro. J. Dowling, of the Derby Arms Hotel, whose catering was of the best kind. Bro. Richard Roberts, W.M., presided, and he was supported by the whole of the prominent members of the Order who were present at the installation proceedings. The W.M. gave the toasts of "The Queen," "The Grand Master of England, H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, the Princess of Wales, and the rest of the Royal Family," and "Our Masonic Rulers, Supreme and Subordinate," in a remarkably vigorous and congenial manner, with brevity, and yet with a freshness of ideas which delighted every one. Bros. H. S. Alpass, in responding to the last-named toast, said he had never heard these toasts given with so much efficiency, nor in such well-chosen and vigorous language. With one exception, all the male members of the Royal family and many of the leading statesmen of the country were now the principal members of our Order, as they had been in all ages. Any brother who referred back to Masonic history would find that certainly during the last two centuries there have scarcely been any men of mark and position who had not been Freemasons. The clergy had also joined largely in our assemblies of late years, and any one who had studied the customs of the people would find that in Masonry the social habits of the brethren in the lodges had also changed for the better, the one, two, three, and four bottle men having become extinct, and they now dined together as gentlemen. In conclusion he highly complimented the officers and brethren on the excellent position of their lodge, and the admirable way in which the business was conducted. "The West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution" was proposed by the W.M., who said that this charity had caused many a poor widow's "heart to sing for joy." He was also pleased to find that, mainly through the exertions of Bro. J. P. McArthur, P.M., the largest contribution from West Lancashire to the recent festival was sent up by the Bootle Lodge. Bro. R. Brown, P.M. (Hon. Sec. to the W.L.M.E.I.), replied to the toast, and pointed out with much force that though the invested capital of the West Lancashire Lodge was large the claims were greatly increasing, in consequence of the growth of Masonry. He therefore urged the brethren to continued liberality on behalf of their own noble Charity. Bro. McArthur also responded to the toast. "The Installing Masters" was responded to by Bro. J. W. Turley, I.P.M. Other toasts followed, and during the evening a very handsome dining-room timepiece was presented to Bro. J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D., I.P.M., to mark the esteem of the brethren after his year's services in the chair; and the W.M., in making the presentation, referred to the uniform ability and amiability which had characterised Bro. Turley during his occupation of the Master's chair. The presentation was briefly acknowledged by Bro. Turley. An excellent musical programme was given by Bros. Waterson, Queen, Hobart, Child, Forrester, and Hough, the accompaniments being played by J. P. Bryan, Organist.

LIVERPOOL.—Dramatic Lodge (No. 1609).—The ordinary monthly meeting of this young and thriving lodge took place on Tuesday week at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, and was attended by about fifty or sixty brethren, amongst whom were several P.G. Officers. The lodge was opened at 2.30 prompt by Bro. Joseph Bell, W.M., supported officially by Bros. B. B. Marson, P.G.S., P.M.; J. W. Chapman, S.W.; L. Courtenay, J.W.; A. Woolrich, Treasurer (also acting as Secretary in the absence of Bro. H. Saker); Joseph Skeaf, P.G.O., Org.; W. Sandbrook, J.D.; J. Atkinson, I.G.; A. Colinson, S.; and J. Pye, S. The members included Bros. W. Savage, Dr. Whittle, Keet, Walters, Cooke, Shrapnell, Cotton, Emery, Lablache, Roberts, Hill, Carter, Hildyard, Fritz, Ray, Cappel, Buck, Beldon, Lowe, and others; and the visitors were principally represented by Bros. S. A. Alpass, P.G. Sec.; Collins, P.P.G.J.W.; D. S. Davies, W.M. 216; L. W. Baker, P.M. 241; E. O. C. Rothwell, P.M. 1356; G. Halse, 216; I. Jacobs, 714, and others. Bros. I. Levy, Barnes, and Turvey were unanimously elected joining members, and Messrs. C. Crouch, Parker, and Avans being also duly elected, and in attendance, were initiated into the privileges and mysteries of the ancient Order. Bros. J. F. Carter and S. Fritz having been examined as to their efficiency, were subsequently passed to the Fellow Craft Degree, the chief work in both sections being most efficiently performed by Bro. Bell, W.M. The assembled brethren subsequently adjourned to the old lodge-room, where banquet was served, and the rest of the evening was spent in social enjoyment, songs and recitations being given by Bros. L. Courtenay, J.W.; R. J. Roberts, J. Hill, Turvey, Cooke, and A. Woolrich, Treas., the harmonious accompaniments being played by Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.

WALTHAMSTOW.—The Beaconsfield Lodge (No. 1662).—The first meeting of this lodge took place at The Chequers, Marsh-street, Walthamstow, on Saturday, the 3rd March, 1877. The minutes of the consecration and installation meeting were read and confirmed, after the lodge had been opened in the First Degree. Several brethren were balloted for, and unanimously elected members, their names having previously been handed in. Five gentlemen were initiated. The lodge was closed in due form, and adjourned until the first Saturday in April. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Carter, Francis, Allison, Field, Bare, Brown, Varley, Simms, Fisher, Laverack, Claridge, &c.

INSTRUCTION.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—At the meeting of this Lodge of Instruction, held at the Haycock Tavern, Albion Road, Dalston, on Wednesday, the 28th ult., there were present, Bros. Anshell, W.M.; Dignam, S.W.; J. Larkin, J.W.; Robinson, S.D.; B. Meyer, J.D.; C. Larkin, I.G.; Fieldwick, Preceptor; and Bros. Brown, Polack, Spencer, C. Ferrar, Brasted, Bownner, H. Meyer, Shackleton, Poole, O. Dietrich, Delafous, and Streton. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer. Minutes of last lodge meeting read and confirmed. The initiation ceremony was rehearsed by Bro. H. Meyer as candidate. The W.M. then vacated the chair, which was afterwards occupied by Bro. H. Meyer, who worked the First, Second, Third and Fourth Sections of the lecture, assisted by the brethren. Bro. Delafous was elected as joining member. Bro. Dignam was elected W.M. for the ensuing week. A cordial vote of thanks was voted to Bro. Anshell for the very able manner he had discharged the duties of W.M. The lodge was closed and adjourned to Wednesday, the 7th inst., at 8 p. m.

Ancient and Accepted Rite.

TRURO.—Cornwall Rose Croix Chapter.—The annual meeting of this young and flourishing chapter was held at the Masonic Hall, Truro, on Tuesday, the 28th ult., Col. J. W. Peard, 30°, M.W.S., in the chair. There was a fair attendance, but not so many as usual, in consequence of the numerous candidates waiting for "perfection" being deferred for a special assembly this month. The chapter was honoured with the attendance of the Ill. Bro. Lieut.-Col. H. E. Doherty, C.B., Dep. Insp. Gen., 33°, for the Western District, who received a very hearty reception from the members. The Ill. Bro. Sir Frederick Martin Williams, Bart., M.P., 32°, P.M.W.S., who was present, was most warmly received, and on the proposition of Ill. Bro. Hughan, 30°, the members passed a vote of congratulation, to be recorded on the minutes, as it was the first time the worthy baronet had attended the chapter since his accident. In fact, there was not any chapter held in November, partly in consequence of the sad misfortune which had befallen that distinguished member of the Rite. The Rev. George Ross, M.A., was installed as the M.W.S. for the ensuing year by the retiring M.W.S., and on the completion of the ceremony the respected M.W.S. appointed the following brethren to the offices named:—Col. J. W. Peard, 30°, I.P.M., W.S.; Nicholas James West, H.P.; Edward Dixon Anderson, First G.; and Charles Truscott, Second G. Ill. Bro. Truscott, 30°, was also appointed Recorder, having acted in that capacity from the commencement of the chapter. Ill. Bro. General Doherty, 33°, paid a well deserved compliment to the Recorder in open chapter, which was endorsed by all the members. Frederick William Dabb was re-elected the Treasurer; John Farran Penrose, 30°, G.M.; Edward Trewbody Carlyon, R.; William Mason, First H.; John James Taylor, Second H.; William Lake, C. of G.; John Thomas, D.C.; Alfred Luke, C.; Thomas Hicks, A.; John Hocking, jun., O.; and William Rooks, Sentinel. By desire of the members, the Ill. Bro. Hughan, 30°, then delivered an extempore address respecting the history and character of the degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Rite, and traced their origin as far as possible, according to facts and evidence submitted to the chapter. Bro. Hughan expressed his belief that the Craft and the Ancient and Accepted Rites were the only two out of the many systems in connection with Freemasonry which contained the elements of permanency, taking the term "Craft" to include the "three degrees," the Mark, and the Arch. Bro. Hughan's remark, that he thought if the Royal Solomon had been alive during the Masonic period he would have declared "of making degrees there is no end," caused a little amusement, but generally the lecture was "crammed full" of valuable facts; and on its conclusion, the chapter passed a hearty vote of thanks to the enthusiastic Masonic lecturer. The banquet was held at the Red Lion Hotel, presided over by the Rev. George Ross, M.A., the present M.W.S.

Red Cross of Constantine.

PREMIER CONCLAVE.—The March meeting of this conclave was held on Tuesday last, instead of Monday, the regular day of meeting, at the Freemasons' Tavern. Present: Sir Knight H. A. Dubois, G.A. Treas., M.P.S.; Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Bretz, Eusebius; R. W. Little, J. T. Moss, T. B. Yeoman, Sir Fredk. Martin Williams, M.P., Col. F. Burdett, Joshua Nunn, C. F. Hogard, George Kenning, Cubitt, Thiellay, Howe, Cockle, Parker, Mason, Kingston, Hammerton, Robinson, Mercer, Mather, Dr. Harrison, Dr. Woodman, Macartney, M.P., Hubbard, Green, H. Pullen, Stedwell, Clarke, Groom, Rev. Hall, Rev. F. K. K. Harford, H. C. Levander, and others. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed, and several brethren were balloted for and installed into the Order. The election was then proceeded with for the M.P.S. for the ensuing year, when Sir Knight P. H. Ernest Bretz was unanimously elected to fill that important position. The annual assembly of the General Grand Conclave was then held, Sir Fredk. M. Williams, M. Ill. Grand Sovereign, in the chair. The annual report of the Executive Committee was read, Col. Francis Burdett was unanimously elected and enthroned as Grand Sovereign for the ensuing three years, the Right Hon. the Earl of Zetland was unanimously elected Grand Viceroy; the Grand Council and Grand Senate was then elected. The Sir Knights dined together, the usual toasts being proposed and duly acknowledged. A selection of music was performed under the direction of Sir Knight Henry Parker, Grand Org., assisted by Madame Worrel Duval, Miss Scott, Bros. Stedman and Tinney.

The consecration of the Croydon Lodge of Mark Master Masons, No. 198, took place on Friday at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon. The ceremonies of consecration and installation were performed by V.W. Bro. F. Binches, Grand Secretary. The officers appointed were Bros. George Yaxley, P.G. Steward, W.M.; John Glose S.W.; and J. K. Pitt, J.W.

JEWISH FREEMASONS AND THE GRAND LODGE OF GERMANY.—At the last regular meeting of the Joppa Lodge, No. 188, the question of the exclusion of all but Christians from Freemasonry was brought before the members. The petition to Grand Lodge, from the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, was submitted to the brethren for signature. After a short discussion it was decided that the question should be referred to the Committee (of which Bro. Lewis Alexander, P.M., is the chairman) organised for the same purpose. A copy of the petition will appear in our next.

ILLUMINATED MASONIC ALMANACK FOR 1877.—Owing to the immense demand for this almanack, a further supply is being prepared, and will be ready shortly. Early application is very necessary. Address, enclosing two stamps, Publisher of Freemason, 198, Fleet-street, London.

A Provincial Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons for the Province of Middlesex and Surrey will be held at the Masonic Hall, Air-street, Regent-street, on Wednesday week, the 21st inst. Grand Lodge will be opened at six o'clock.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Safety amidst danger.—Surrounded on all sides by the cause of disease (especially if the old proverb hold, "As the day lengthens, the cold strengthens") man must keep up constant watch if he would retain or recover his health. These purifying Pills present the most certain and effectual means of removing all noxious matters from the blood, at the same time that they regulate any disordered action which their presence has induced, and particularly preserve against congestion, irritation, and inflammation of the throat and its lining membrane extending through the lungs. The harmless and strengthening balsams of which Holloway's Pills are composed render them peculiarly well adapted for the young and delicate, who can with impunity only bear tender treatment.—Advr.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

THE CONTEST IN FRENCH FREEMASONRY.

Bro. Hubert tells us in the last number of the Chaine D'Union, that the proposed erasure of belief in God and the Immortality of the Soul, has raised among the French lodges, "un debat des plus vifs." Bro. Hubert, who like us, objects to the change, or rather revolution, maintains that, as some have stated, this teaching of French Freemasonry only dates from 1849. He, at page 109, brings forward evidence, however, that the declarations contained in section No. 8, of the Constitution (now sought to be expunged) have only been as he well puts it,—"l'enregistrement," "la manifestation," "la constatation pur et simple de la croyance universelle, acceptée, enseignée et exigée par la Francmaçonnerie en tous les temps et dans tous les pays, sans aucune exception." He mentions the well-known work, "Histoire, Obligation, et Statuts de la Confraternité des Franc Maçons," published by Francois Varrentrapp at Frankfort A.M., 1742, which in fact are more or less a translation of the old English Constitutions of 1723 and 1738, and which simply reproduce necessarily our English working. The same teaching had been previously put forth in the "Constitutions, Histoire, Lois, Charges," &c., published at the Hague, translated from the English by T. Kuenen 1741. In the "Histoire des Francmaçons," in the two editions of 1745, both of which we possess, the same distinct teaching is laid down. In 1785, in the "Essais sur la Francmaçonnerie," published at "Latomopolis," by Andreon, the author of which is F. B., we find these words: "Religion—Le Francmaçon croit en Dieu et il agit conformément a cette croyance; il rend a l'Etre Supremé le double culte de son adoration, le culte interieur et l'exterieur. Des les mœurs pures qui doivent caracteriser le vrai Francmaçon." We will only add that we are well satisfied that no French brethren, supporting this hurtful innovation, can prove that at any period since 1732 downwards, French Freemasonry has ever officially taught anything but what is in exact conformity with the declarations of our own Grand Lodge as the doctrines of Universal Freemasonry.

THE EXCLUSION OF HEBREWS.

There can be no doubt that this question is widening in extent, just as it is most important in its general and particular bearings on the teachings and progress of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry. It is most needful, however, that no side issues should be raised, and no mistaken position assumed, by those who are claiming the rights of Masonic toleration, and we think it well to issue a warning note on the subject, as in the hands of unwise partisans, or on the assumptions of illogical minds, we may find obstacles where all should be an easy victory, and "breakers ahead" where all should be plain smooth sailing. If the battle is to be fought on the assumed deistic or theistic teaching of Freemasonry alone, that, we apprehend, is a false issue, a mistaken argument. Freemasonry is, no doubt, theistic, not deistic, in itself. But it is not only so. There has always been, and there always will be, a Christian school in Masonic symbolism and didactic exposition, and within proper bounds such has a right to be considered. All that Freemasonry proclaims (without any bye-question) is, that it receives all proper applicants for its light and privileges, except atheists and libertines—all, that is, who are good citizens, good men, not breakers of the law of the land, not mixed up with plots or conspiracies, and who accept the fatherhood of God, the brotherhood of man. Now it is most important to bear this in mind, often forgotten, because Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry, at any rate, goes no further and says no more in its preliminary conditions, its, so to say, public basis of admission. Within the lodges, in our well-known ritual, such teaching may be said to be expanded, and beautifully expanded, to this effect, that Freemasonry avows belief in a Personal God, in a future state, in an immortal soul, and in a resurrection of mankind, and in a great, a holy, an Infallible Judge. It has been contended that the teaching of religion and of Christianity may be pushed much further, and educed more distinctly, and the Royal Arch Ritual may, perhaps, be advanced in favour of such implied if not authoritative teaching. But this is, after all, more of opinion than dogma, more of individual teaching than official acknowledgement. To the Hebrew mind, undoubtedly, Freemasonry has very special attractions, but we agree with one of our Hebrew correspondents, that as they concur with the teachings of Freemasonry, and can come under its conditions, they have as much a right, on the principles of Freemasonry, as any other body of men or religionists to be admitted. We also object to make it any question as between Hebrews and Christians. That is not the point at issue. It is, indeed, true that the exclusion of Hebrews in Germany seems to be a relic of an older teaching of intolerance, and to be the reflection of a destructive wave of so called limited and Christian exposition, which swept over the shore of Craft Masonry, and brought with it confusion instead of order, and discord instead of peace. On the grounds, then, of Masonic toleration, and on the principles of Craft Masonry, the exclusion of the Hebrews is alike unjust, impolitic, and in our opinion untenable, and we trust soon to hear that by wise concessions the last remains of intolerance and exclusiveness have been removed. But in the ardour of our sympathies, and the sense of injury, let no inharmonious chord be struck, as otherwise as always happens in controversies in which sectional feelings and mere denominational views crop up, the effect undoubtedly will be to throw back for some years the satisfactory solution of a most important question, which, we feel sure, may be well left to be settled by the sense of justice, fair play, toleration, and true liberality, which are the characteristics, we fain would hope of all sound Craft Masonry at home and abroad.

PROPOSED INCREASE OF THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

It will be seen by a statement in another column, that the remarks we ventured some time back to make on this most important subject are fully borne out by the report of the House Committee of the Boys' School, presented to the General Committee on Saturday last. We took exception, in all deference, to the estimate of £10,000 for 100 boys, as fragmentary and imperfect, and now we note, if we understand the report, that in order to accommodate 120 boys extra at Wood Green about £22,000 will be required. We would venture to suggest to the authorities that they shall convene a special General Court of the Boys' School, at which a detailed report, with the architect's plans and estimates, should be laid before the meeting, as if the necessity of an increase be proved, and the proposed alterations commend themselves to the views of the supporters of the School, and come before them recommended by the Committee, we have no doubt that our liberal Craft will at once respond to the call, and meet the necessities of the case. But in order to procure unanimity and zealous action, it is necessary, above all things, that all should be, as they say, "ship shape" and clear and plain before the subscribers.

THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON.

Our zealous publisher has started a new Masonic paper, for the information and on behalf of our Scottish brethren. There can be no doubt that the members of our Order in the "Land of Cakes" are quite able to support a paper of their own, if only they will. We wish this new Masonic venture all the success it deserves. We notice The Scottish Freemason in another page.

THE QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

Owing to our going to press early on Thursday, we shall defer any remarks on the proceedings of Grand Lodge until next week.

THE BALANCE SHEET OF THE IRISH GRAND LODGE.

We have received from a kind correspondent in Ireland, and carefully studied the official return of the Irish Grand Lodge. We are glad to note the prosperity of our Hibernian sister Grand Lodge, though we are struck with the fact that so influential a body has so little funded property, apparently. The credit side of the Grand Treasurer's Budget is made up as follows:—

We confess that we do not quite understand one or two points. What does the item "Passing Candidates at Committee, £258 5s." mean? Can any good Irish brother tell us? Again—how do the items, "For dinner receipts and dinner payments," amount to exactly the same in the General and Charity Account? Is it a repetition, or a coincidence Hibernice? If the deposit of £750 is made annually, practically there is yearly a balance of receipts for the close of 1876 over expenditure in round numbers of £2000. Would it not be as well, however, to separate for clearness the two funds, as some of the items appear to be "duplicated," so to say, and render the balance sheet not so lucid or business like as it well might be. For curiously enough, while three of the items of the Charity Fund appear in the general account, one of the items does not, and no clue is given as to the fund, from which the "Grand Lodge Grant" is made of £200. We are a little afraid, from this account, that the Provincial Lodges in Ireland, pay no capitation or benevolent fees, a very great mistake. The weakness of Scottish Masonry is to be found in the fact, that the lodges make no actual capitation payments annually compulsorily, as in our Grand Lodge, and until that is the case, the finances of any Grand Lodge will hardly be what they should be. We say this in no carping spirit of criticism or fault-finding, but with most sincere good wishes for the progress and prosperity of our good Irish brethren, and the Grand Lodge of Ireland.

THE MASONIC GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Before another festival of the Masonic Girls' School takes place I should like to ventilate through your columns a matter which appears to me of vital importance. I allude to the absurdity of giving the scholars an education which only fits them for governesses, a class which is at present sadly overstocked.

At the last festival (1876), at which I was present, Lord Carnarvon presided, and speaking of this school expressed the astonishment and pleasure he and Lady Carnarvon felt at the proficiency the scholars had attained in French and German, and the high-class education afforded them. Being of a somewhat practical turn of mind I wrote on a piece of paper, "Can the girls make a sweet pudding or boil a potato?" and sent it across the table to a brother I knew, who gave it to one of the House Committee, who most courteously gave me some details of the management of the school. He subsequently introduced me to the matron, who in reply to my enquiry admitted that there were no means at her disposal whereby instruction in the art of cookery could be afforded. She informed me the house was kept in order and the clothes made by the girls, &c. I ventured to remark that that seemed hardly sufficient, and that general domestic knowledge and usefulness could not be acquired by learning to turn down a row of beds to a hair's breadth, or sweep a floor, and that the rough edge of life had to be taken off by making the best of old garments rather than making new.

My notion was, and so I told our brother and the matron (to both of whom I beg to express my warmest thanks for their courtesies), that it was a serious defect in any eleemosynary establishment to instruct children above their rank, and at the same time to fail to give them that practical, common sense, every-day life education, which was essential for their own well-being, as also the houses of which they by-and-bye might become the mistresses.

A question may be asked, From what class of society are these girls gathered? The answer given is an analysis of the list of candidates. Take, for instance, that for the last October election.

PROFESSIONS.—Major-General, Surgeon, Engineer, 2 Solicitors.

TRADES.—4 Licensed Victuallers, Confectioner, Ironmonger, Carriage Builders, Color Merchant Iron Merchant, Tobacco Factor, Printer, Job Master, Draper, Copper Smith, Bookseller, 2 Jewellers, Brass Founder, Woollen Manufacturer, Merchant, Land Agent, Auctioneer, House Decorator.

CLERKS AND GENERAL.—Manager, 2 Brewers' Travellers, 3 Clerks, Relieving Officer, Quarter-Master, Sergeant-Major.

[Some of the above descriptions are very vague].

For a child to become a candidate her father must have been in needy circumstances. Had he lived his daughter would have been fairly educated, had thrown upon her the care of the family clothing and the duties of arranging and cooking the family meals; and thus become domesticated and useful, and fit to be the wife of a person requiring that his better half should indeed be a "help-meet" rather than a "speaking doll."

I wish particularly to guard against the idea that I am adverse to a liberal education, or one even affording high accomplishments. Most distinctly do I say and mean, that "these things ought the House Committee to do, and not to leave the others undone."

I presume the House Committee are not so entirely above the run of ordinary mortals but they wish their daughters to be taught to assist in the management of their households, to cut out and make their own garments, tidy a house, "make a sweet pudding or cook a potato," either for their own table or the poor; not because they may be required to do it, but that when the time comes for them to have establishments of their own, they may be able, by good management, and winning, and educated manners, to make their homes so bright, joyous, and comfortable that their husbands may have no desire to run off to clubs and other places for comforts they would not otherwise get at home.

Why then should these hundreds of children be cast out upon the world with no more knowledge of "ways and means" than a child from the workhouse, and so become, probably, more a curse than a blessing to a husband?

I trust that the Masons of England will join me in endeavouring to induce the rulers of this institution to see the urgent necessity of having the girls under their care taught the great lesson of practical domestic economy in all its branches.

I venture to write on this subject, as I think it of vast interest to the community, and, as a guarantee that I am acting conscientiously and in good faith, I have no hesitation in signing my name.

I am, Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

HENRY C. TOMBS.

P.S.G.W., P.G. Sec.,

P.G.S.E. Wilts, P.M. and P.Z.

P.S. To show that I feel some interest in our charities I may say that I took up for my two Stewardships last year £318, and that could not be obtained without hard work, as well as hearty co-operation from the brethren of my province.

[We insert this letter, but we do not agree with our esteemed correspondent, as we consider the education imparted in the Girls' School to be thoroughly practical and sound. After some experience of the subject, we do not know its equal anywhere in this or any other country. No doubt our Bro. R. W. Little will see this letter, and probably reply to it, as he is so well able to do.—Ed.]

MEETINGS OF COMMITTEES OF OUR CHARITABLE INSTITUTIONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Would it not be well if the brethren were generally and regularly reminded in some way of the meetings of the General Committees? The result of the present system is that few remember the day of meeting, and that fewer still attend.

Yours fraternally,

A LIFE GOVERNOR.

HISTORICAL ACCURACY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As a Mark Mason, I am anxious to ask you a question or two with reference to one or two statements in the last printed report of the Grand Lodge of Mark Master Masons.

It is there stated, page 1, that "there is probably no degree in Freemasonry that can lay greater claim to antiquity than those of Mark Man or Mason, or Mark Master Mason."

Allusion is made in the same page to a report of a committee of Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Scotland in 1865, which states that from "time immemorial, and long before the institution of the Grand Lodge of Scotland (in 1736), what is now known as the Mark Master Degree was wrought by the operative lodges of St. John's Masonry."

A statement is added, that in "1598, Wm. Schaw, Master of Works [to King James VI., orders the marks of all Masons to be inserted in their work."

Hence the implied and quasi-proven contention is, that the present Mark system and that of the Operative Mark Masons is identical, or that the latter is a continuation of the former.

Now what I want to know, is the present system either identical with, or a confirmation of, the old Mark system?

I am under the impression that the present Mark system is quite modern, and, at the outside, an adaptation of an older system. But even this is not quite clear, for I have been credibly informed that in older warrants the modern Mark Masons "hailed," so to say, not from operative Mark Masons, but St. Mark.

Can Bro. W. J. Hughan, or D. Murray Lyon, or any of our Masonic pundits throw any light on the question, and tell us what is the known earliest Mark warrant, for instance, and if there be any truth in the statement that such old lodges were dedicated to St. Mark?

We live at a time when Freemasons, like others prefer historical truth and certainty to the "on dits" of careless historians, to the semi-fabulous assertions of too credulous students. I am, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,

A MARK MASON.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,—

I quite agree with "Rough Ashlar" that much valuable space is taken up in your paper by questions answered beforehand by the published laws of Masonry, and I confess my inability to see the value of his suggestion that a cheap edition of the Book of Constitutions should be published, when any number can be had at 1s. 6d. per copy.

I cannot agree that with the present minimum fee for initiation any lodge can plead poverty as an excuse for not handing to each initiate a copy of the Constitutions, as well as of the bye-laws of the lodge, and I go further and assert that the ritual is not complied with unless both books are actually handed over to him for perusal at his leisure. I am glad to say I know of no lodge possessing only one copy of the Book of Constitutions.

Yours fraternally,

F. L. E. J.

THE EXCLUSION OF JEWS IN GERMANY.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The Montefiore Lodge has sent round to all the lodges a request to sign an enclosed petition to the Grand Lodge of England respecting the "obnoxious law" existing in Germany, by which Jews are not admitted in Freemasonry.

There must be an error somewhere.

Last month we have been informed that the Lodge of Joppa have appointed a committee to inquire into the matter respecting one of the German Grand Lodges having such a law. Now the Montefiore state in their circular that the three German lodges do not admit Jews in Masonry. Who is right?

It is a pity that the Jewish lodges in England, who are a very powerful body and good Masons, should not first agree on how to act.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

E.P.

STAMPS ON RECEIPTS FOR LODGE DUES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

At the last meeting of the City of London Lodge (901), Bro. Secretary Alder asked me whether it was necessary to use receipt stamps in Masonic Lodges, as he had been informed that it was not. I said certainly you must, as in all other business matters, give a stamped receipt for all monies of £2 and upwards. A P. M. present said he was an older Mason than me, that Masonic lodges were exempt from using receipt stamps, and that I knew nothing about it. I thought that the sooner the error was corrected the better for the Craft. I therefore wrote the Secretary of the Inland Revenue on the subject, and enclose you his reply, which, for the general information of lodges, it will be as well to print. I am at a loss to understand upon what grounds such an opinion could be for one moment entertained by A. P.M.

I remain, dear Sir and Brother, yours fraternally,
W. M. SNOWDEN,
I.P.M. and Treas. Duke of Connaught, 1558.
[COPY.]
Inland Revenue,
Somerset House, London, W.C.,
1st March, 1877.

Sir,

In reply to the enquiry contained in your letter of the 20th ultimo, I am directed by the Board of Inland Revenue to acquaint you that the Schedule to the Stamp Act 1870 (33 and 34 Vic. cap. 97) imposes a duty of one penny upon all receipts given for, or upon payment of money amounting to £2 or upwards, and that receipts for payments made to or by Masonic lodges are not exempted from the charge.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
FRED. B. GARNETT, Secretary.
Mr. W. Snowden.

CONSECRATION OF THE BEACONS- FIELD LODGE, NO. 1662.

The consecration and installation ceremonies took place at The Chequers, Marsh-street, Walthamstow, on Saturday, the 24th ult., the consecrating officer being Bro. John Hervey, G.S., P.G.D., &c., who was assisted by Bros. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., &c., as S.W.; W. T. Howe, P.G.P. Middx, &c., as J.W.; H. G. Buss, P.G.J.W. Middx, &c., as D.C.; and W. Stephens, P.M., as I.G.

The lodge was opened in the three degrees, and the anthems were sung by Bro. Upward and several brethren.

The brethren of the new lodge were then arranged in order, and the Secretary then read the petition and warrant from Grand Lodge.

An oration on the nature and duties of Freemasonry was delivered by the Consecrating Officer, Bro. J. Hervey, G.S., which was listened to with very great interest and attention by the brethren present, and concluding by reading some very appropriate verses.

The lodge was then constituted, and Bro. Walter T. Christian was installed as the first W.M.

The newly-installed W.M. having been saluted in ancient form, invested his officers as follows, viz.: Bros. W. Groome, S.W.; W. H. Brand, J.W.; Fredk. Hallows, Hon. Sec.; C. T. Saunders, S.D.; T. Franklin, J.D.; A. Oldroyd, I.G.; T. Upward, Org.; G. Brown, D.C.; J. H. Cambridge, W.S.; and J. Gilchrist, Tyler.

The furniture and the room were well arranged, and the whole of the ceremony was performed in a manner rarely equalled. Several propositions were given to the Secretary for initiation, and the names of several brethren as joining members. Hearty good wishes were given to the W.M. and success for the future of the lodge.

After the lodge was closed the brethren, to the number of thirty, sat down to a banquet and dessert à la Russe. The wine and viands were of first-rate description, and gave great satisfaction. Grace having been said, the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft." After the National Anthem had been sung, "The Health of the M.W.G.M." was given and enthusiastically received. This was followed by God Bless the Prince of Wales. The W.M. next proposed "The Pro G.M.," which was heartily received, and then followed "The D.G.M., and the other Grand Officers," which met with a hearty cheer. Bro. Joshua Nunn replied for them in a very suitable speech. The next toast was "The Consecrating Officer" (the Grand Secretary, Bro. John Hervey), which was heartily and warmly received by the brethren present. Bro. Hervey replied, thanking the brethren for the reception he had met with from the Beaconsfield Lodge, and said he felt sure, by the working which he had seen, and the brotherly love and unity which existed, amongst members, the lodge was bound to prosper, and at the same time wishing it every success, and stating that he should come down and have another look in shortly to see how the work was going on. He then concluded by proposing "The Health of the W.M.," who in return proposed "The Officers of the New Lodge." He said he felt quite sure that with such assistance as he had had that day, and also knowing how they could all work, he felt quite confident that the lodge would be second to none in the manner in which all the duties would be carried out. The S.W., J.W., and S.D., replied in a few appropriate sentences. The next toast was "The Visitors," which was replied to by Bro. Buss, with a few very kind words and wishes for the success of the lodge, and thanking the brethren for giving them all such a cordial and hearty reception. This was followed by the toast of "The Host, Bro. W. G. Hallows," whose catering was pronounced by all present to have been perfect. The host returned thanks in a few appropriate words. During the course of the evening several of the brethren contributed to the happiness of the meeting by singing a few songs, which were well received. Altogether the new lodge has been opened under the most favourable auspices, and there is every reason to congratulate the founders and joining members upon the success that has so far attended it. The following visitors were present, viz.: Bros. Barford, P.M. 55; Downing, P.M. 20; Lyall, P.M. 773; W. Steadman, P.M. 754; Ramsey, P.M. 206; Mackey, P.M. 861; Leech, P.M. 861; Townsend, P.M. 820; Rev. C. J. Stevens, 813; Davies, I.G. 1309; Carter, 1507; St. Alphonse, S.D. 108; Badkin, S.W. 1365; Warman, W.M. elect 15; Wilson, 1228; Taylor, 1598; Lake, 1471; Grist, 1482, 1637; Field, 1602; Trebeck, 1445; Evenet, 1426; E. A. Wells, 15; Tolliss, 1185; Claridge, 1598; E. Brown, 1598; Laverack, 917; Baxter, 1421; Bare, 1598; M. Christian, 860; C. B. Payne, P.M. 27; G. T. ### WHAT GOOD DR. VAUGHAN'S LEC- TURE HAS DONE.

Dr. Vaughan's misrepresentation of Freemasons has done the Order in New South Wales no harm but good, for "The Exposure of Dr. Vaughan's Ignorance of Freemasonry," by Bro. Dr. Beg, has contributed not a little to add fresh "accessions" to Masonic ranks. Gentlemen who had halted between two opinions for years have now cast in their lot with the Brotherhood; and others are in a state of preparation for entering the Masonic Sanctuary. Besides old Masons appear to have renewed their youth. Their youthful Masonic zeal has returned upon them, and "Made youth younger and taught life to live."

So much for Dr. Vaughan "hectoring" about Freemasons. We hope that he has since found that he is not "Infallible." His "own people," we are afraid, are "annoyed and displeased" at their Archbishop's retreat and defeat; but, no doubt, they comfort themselves with "The best may slip, and the most cautious fall;

He's more than mortal who ne'er erred at all."

The Archbishop, however, is bound to produce "the oath of allegiance" he has taken, and to answer "the seven questions" put to him by the D. Grand Chaplain, E.C.

In the meantime it is gratifying to know that brethren of the different Constitutions have shown great unanimity and enthusiasm in reference to the lecture of their brother the D. Grand Chaplain, for lodges have sent their congratulatory addresses and brethren their tokens of fraternal esteem to him, for which the lecturer returns his cordial thanks. Various lodges have ordered large supplies of "Dr. Vaughan's Ignorance of Freemasonry Exposed," for gratuitous distribution among non-Masons, that "the good of Freemasonry" may be promoted. By the way, we have just heard that Dr. Vaughan intends delivering another lecture justifying his conduct in bringing "charges" against our Order. We wait longingly for such an oration, and we hope it will appear in extenso in Sydney Morning Herald.—Australian Freemason.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The brotherly spirit and enterprise which have marked the members of the Lodge of Israel, No. 1502, since its consecration some time ago at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool (where the meetings are now held), were apparent in a large degree in connection with the second annual ball of the lodge, which took place on Wednesday evening, the 28th ult., at the Adelphi Hotel, Liverpool, an admirable place for festive purposes, as was the generally expressed opinion of every one present. As on the first occasion, the ball was in aid of the Benevolent Fund of the lodge, which has been instituted by the brethren of 1502, for the purpose of assisting, when needed, the aged and indigent members, and giving timely help to the widows and children of deceased brethren connected with them. Although the fund has been only little more than a year in operation, the sum in the hands of the Treasurer already amounts to upwards of £80, and there is every probability that this amount will be increased to upwards of £100 as a result of the present year's festive gathering. In founding the fund the officers and brethren have shown a noble example, which is well worthy of very general imitation, as the wisdom of providing for the proverbial "rainy day" applies to societies as well as to individuals. As yet there have been no claims on the resources of the fund, but no one knows how soon it may be taxed to give timely aid to some poor brother upon whom distress has come without warning, and when least expected. The gathering of Wednesday week was of a most distinguished kind, the principal Jewish and Christian families in Liverpool and its neighbourhood being represented among the brilliant assembly. Amongst the 160 guests present we observed Bros. M. Hart, W.M.; A. J. Henochsberg, I.P.M.; R. Robinson, P.M.; A. Jones, S.W.; S. Schönstadt, J.W.; I. de Frece, Treas.; I. Woolf; A. Hart; Professor Prag, Chaplain; A. Lyons, M. Prensian, H. M. Silver, S. J. Henochsberg, and others. The other visitors included Bros. A. S. Levy and Aaronsberg (Wardens of the Old Hebrew Congregation); P. Barnett, President of the New Hebrew Congregation; Henry Gabriel, Treasurer of the New Hebrew Congregation; Bro. Hoffmann, Mr. Benas, Bro. D. Saunders, 1609; Mr. Fineberg, Bro. S. Payne, G. Ballard, Bro. W. M. Chudley, P.M. 241; Bro. A. Vandye, 241; Bro. J. Busfield, 216; and others. The whole of the brethren, with few exceptions, appeared wearing the jewels and insignia of the various ranks in different Orders, and the general effect was therefore very striking. The arrangements were admirable, and therefore there was no hitch in the pleasant evening's proceedings. Bro. M. Hart, W.M., was the chairman of the ball committee; and the duties of captain of an indefatigable band of Stewards were admirably performed by Bro. A. J. Henochsberg, I.P.M.; Bros. S. J. Henochsberg and A. Hart were the M.C.'s, Bro. H. M. Silver, the Secretary, and Bro. A. Lyons, the Treasurer of the ball. Excellent music was provided by Mr. Martin's band, and during the evening a sumptuous supper was served to the guests under the personal direction of Bro. Ladlow, the excellent secretary and manager of the hotel.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW SOUTH WALES.

DEDICATION OF A NEW MASONIC HALL AT GLEN INNES.

On Thursday, 9th November, the brethren of Glen Innes Lodge, 1569, E.C., met for the purpose of dedicating their new hall. Thursday had been set apart by them for performing this interesting ceremony, it being the anniversary of the birthday of our Grand Master, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, which they considered a most suitable occasion for them to show their loyalty to their beloved Sovereign, and her son, the Heir Apparent. The hall is a very fine brick building, having a neat stuccoed front. The hall itself is 45 by 28 feet, with a lofty dome roof, lit by a lantern surmounting it. There are two ante-rooms in front, facing East-street, and a refreshment room and other offices in the rear; the ground on which it is erected being the gift of Bro. F. Schedel, of this town, who also was the contractor for its erection. A number of brethren visited from the surrounding districts and the neighbouring townships of Tenterfield and Inverell, among whom were the W.M., Bro. Hindmarsh, and some of the officers and brethren of the Inverell Lodge. There were altogether about fifty brethren in attendance. The lodge was opened at high noon by Bro. James Munro, W.M., who said they had met to "dedicate a hall or lodge to God and Masonry;" he felt highly pleased that as W.M. he had not only the honour of being deputed by District Grand Lodge to lay the foundation-stone of this hall, but also of taking a principal part in the ceremony. He would mention that the programme would be carried out under the direction of Bro. P.M. Fowner, who had kindly consented to act as Director of Ceremonies on this occasion, and he felt assured that his name would be a sufficient guarantee that it would be conducted strictly in accordance with ancient Masonic usage. The hall was then handed over to the W.M. by the contractor, and accepted in due form, the W.M. stating that the skill and fidelity displayed in the execution of the trust bestowed on Bro. Schedel had secured the entire approbation of the lodge, and he sincerely prayed that the edifice might continue a lasting monument of the taste and spirit of the founders. A procession was then formed of the officers, all the other brethren remaining in their places standing, and waiting to perform the "Dedication Ode," during which, at intervals, the W.M. solemnly dedicated the Hall severally to "Masonry," "Virtue," and "Universal Benevolence," accompanied by Grand Honours, and followed by a solemn invocation, given by the Chaplain; at the conclusion of which the Chaplain (Rev. J. H. Johnson, B.A.) delivered an oration to the following effect:—

Worshipful Sir, Officers, and Brethren,—It gives me great pleasure to address you on this most interesting occasion. The hall which has been consecrated to-day with so much solemnity and reverence is a building well fitted for the purpose of Masonry in general, and the requirements of the lodge in particular. The religious observances of this consecration are well calculated to make us feel the all-prevailing presence of the Great Architect of the Universe. As the minister of God, I feel it my sacred duty, with all affection and earnestness, to implore you ever to remember that the eye of God follows you in every place and occupation, and when you remember this truth, it will surely have the power of retaining you from offending against His holiness and purity. Fortified by the sense of His continual presence and protection, we can make our request known to Him firmly persuaded that His ears are ever open to the prayers offered to Him by His loving people. Our God is indivisible, incorporeal, and eternal. He has been called by a great writer the "Eternal Now, the same yesterday, to-day, and for ever." As obedient servants to the Most High, we are exhorted to be one in heart and soul and affection. God is not divided; and, brethren, we must be united; our success is certain if we bear this in mind. I feel very grateful for this opportunity of recording my sense of the character of Freemasonry as promoting all the principles of morality and virtue. Masonry, as we all know, has a tendency to make us better fathers, better husbands, better brothers, and better members of society in general. It inculcates the holy virtue of Faith, by which we believe that He is the rewarder of those who diligently seek Him. I would therefore earnestly and affectionately entreat you to exercise yourself diligently in prayer, ever remembering that without faith your prayers will be of no avail; and however ably the words may be formed, unless the heart accompanies them, they will be but a mockery in the eyes of the Almighty. Hope—a sister virtue—is urged upon us more urgently by the principles and tenets of Masonry. It enlivens us in our devotions and encourages us by its invisible power to trust that the promises of God may become our certain inheritance; it fills the future with ineffable brightness, and bridges over the waters of death; so that believers on earth and in heaven become one family. My beloved brothers, let not your hope fail you under the presence of earthly trials and difficulties; their stress may be great upon you, but the power of Omnipotence being on your side, they will all vanish. The greatest of all these virtues is Charity. Upon this our noble Order speaks most distinctly and forcibly. The duty of relieving distress among our own brethren is one that commends itself to our holiest and best feelings. The exercise of charity towards each other does not necessarily consist in relieving the bodily wants and necessities of others; but in that holy affection which we owe to one another as the children of the Most High, who inhabit the same world, breathe the same air, and are similarly maintained from day to day by his Providence. Charity will always think the best of others, whatever the world may say, and cement the union of mankind by the holiest of ties; in short, the bond of charity is hailed to bind us together in one communion. I feel it my imperative duty as your Chaplain to speak boldly and publicly concerning an attack made on Freemasonry by one high in authority. I need not say to you, my brethren, who are acquainted with the true principles of our ancient Craft, that the most outrageous charges of atheism, immorality, and treason, are wholly unfounded and baseless; we can only conclude that these charges are made by one who is entirely ignorant of a subject on which he so rashly ventured. Brethren, I, as a minister of God, and a member of the Order, give my unqualified denial to them all, and I say they are false and uncalled for. As to our loyalty, no Order can surpass us, and allow me to express on your behalf our fealty to our beloved Queen, whose subjects we are (may she yet reign long and happy), and may God continue to shower down upon her His kindness and mercy. As a proof of our loyalty, monarchs, princes, and persons of the highest rank have in all ages belonged to our Order, and promoted its interests. Were we otherwise than loyal, we might ask—would the Heir Apparent to the British throne have become a Freemason, and consented to fill the chair as our Grand Master? Brethren, on this the anniversary of his birthday, let us, in God's most holy name, wish him all happiness and prosperity.

On the conclusion of this able address, of which the above is only a sketch, a grand anthem was performed. And here it may be mentioned that the whole of the musical portion of the programme, which formed a very important one, was, with the assistance of a good choir, and the advantage of having visiting Bro. Best to preside at the harmonium, carried out most admirably. Bro. P. M. Downer in a few applicable remarks, dwelling especially on the bold refutation made by the worthy Bro. Chaplain against the base and unfounded invectives which had been so unwarrantably hurled against the Order by Dr. Vaughan, proposed—"That a vote of thanks be accorded to Rev. Bro. Johnson, for the able and suitable address which he had so kindly and fraternally delivered on this auspicious occasion," which was carried by acclamation.

W. Bro. Hindmarsh, W.M. of the Inverell Lodge then presented, on behalf of himself and the officers and brethren of that lodge, Bro. J. T. French with a very handsome gold Masonic jewel, in recognition of the very valuable services rendered by him to the Inverell Lodge, at and since its formation. Bro. French, in thanking the W.M. and brethren of the Inverell Lodge, said "that in doing what he had done, and done with pleasure, he considered he had only been performing a duty he owed to the Craft; he should always be proud in being privileged to wear so handsome a jewel, so fraternally bestowed upon him. The lodge then closed, the whole of the brethren expressing their delight and satisfaction at the way in which the ceremony had been carried out by W.M. Bro. J. Munro, and his officers, to whom the greatest praise is due. It is such ceremonies as these that tend to raise the esteem of the beauties of the Order in the minds of the younger Masons. The brethren then repaired to the Royal Hotel, where an excellent luncheon had been provided for them.

THE BALL.—The lodge-room was soon transformed into an elegant ball-room, very neatly decorated with festoons of evergreens and flowers, Masonic emblems, and numbers of flags, a notable feature being a very handsome Prince of Wales's feather over the W.M.'s canopy; also, most prominently displayed, was a life-like oil-painting of Bro. P.M. Downer, executed by Bro. Donald Wagner, of this town, and in a spirit of fraternal feeling presented by him to the lodge. The portrait is a most truthful and excellent one, and does the highest credit to the artist. Although there were about one hundred persons present, the hall was not at all crowded. Dancing commenced punctually at nine o'clock, and was continued until long after daylight; everyone seemed so thoroughly to enjoy themselves that the night passed away imperceptibly. The ladies, who were dressed with the most exquisite taste, appeared to have made up their minds to be completely happy; and a more enjoyable evening, or rather we might say night, could not have been spent. Herr Wirth's band discoursed excellent music. Bros. S. Ashton and H. Lewis, the M.C.'s, did all in their power to make everything go smoothly. The refreshments during the whole of the evening, provided by the Glen Innes Campagnoni, Mr. John Noonan, were all that could be desired.

The 9th November, 1876, will long be remembered, not only by the brethren of the Order, but also by their fair sisters. Both socially and financially it was an immense success. The balance, which will be something considerable, will be handed over to the Building Fund.

Reviews.

THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON, No. 1.

We like the appearance and matter of this "interesting little" Masonic "stranger" very much indeed. It is very well printed, got up, and arranged, and reflects equal credit on its publisher, editor, and printer. The time has clearly arrived when the Scottish Freemasons should have an organ of their own, as the Scottish Masonic intelligence cannot (such is our impression) be fairly or properly dealt with without more space than an ordinary Masonic journal can afford to supply. The Order in Scotland is a very intelligent, influential, and estimable body of men, and we trust that brighter days are opening out for them, and that they may rise to the proper level, alike of their own duties and the wants of Freemasonry. We have no doubt that the financial position of the Grand Lodge has greatly affected their general contentment and prosperity, and when that is put straight, as we trust soon will be the case, Scottish Freemasonry will come at once "to the fore." The Scottish Freemason will, we venture to think, assist in this good work, and aid towards this desirable end. We congratulate our estimable and energetic publisher on his seeking to establish in Scotland an indigenous Masonic journal, and we hope, as we believe, that supported by Scottish energy and good will, this new literary venture (one, by the way, of a most effective and readable character) will meet with the success it so well deserves. The Scottish Freemason has our "hearty good wishes," and we feel convinced that it has before it a course of prestige and prosperity.

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR BOYS.

The General Committee of this Institution met on Saturday last at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. W. F. Collard Moutrie occupied the chair. Among the other brethren present were Bros. Henry Browne, Benjamin Head, Capt. John Wordsworth, J. G. Chancellor, Jesse Turner, S. Rosenthal, J. W. Dennison, J. C. Dwarber, John Symonds, William Mann, A. Durrant, Robert B. Webster, Henry W. Hunt, F. Adlard, Rev. Dr. Morris (head master), W. Hyde Pullen, H. Massey (Freemason), and F. Binckes, Secretary.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes of former meeting a slight discussion arose on some of the business then done. Afterwards the report of the special House Committee was brought up, which stated that the proposition for accommodating 120 boys extra in the Institution had been submitted to them, with the question of increasing the buildings at Wood Green, and that after examining the plans for these buildings they found that the probable outlay which would be incurred in erecting these buildings would be about £22,000.

The petition of Mrs. Belmont, the widow of the late George Belmont, the actor, for placing one of her children in the Institution, was read, and the boy having been examined in reading was placed on the list.

Bro. H. G. Warren gave notice in writing of motion for the Quarterly Court in terms similar to that given by him at the General Committee of the Girls' School, on the 22nd February, for increasing the amount of securities for the Secretary and clerk.

Bro. John Symonds said that if Bro. Warren had been present he had intended to suggest to him that the amounts should be fixed by the Courts, and that they should be struck out of the laws.

Bro. Binckes read a letter from the solicitors to the Institution, stating that, in conformity with the resolution passed at the last meeting of the General Committee, they had deposited the securities of the Institution with the bankers, Messrs. Willis, Percival, & Co., 76, Lombard-street, and now forwarded a list of those deeds to the Secretary.

The committee having sat an hour, adjourned.

The adjourned meeting of the Special House Committee appointed to enquire into the best method of extending the Institution by adding further building to the present school-house at Wood Green, sufficient to accommodate 120 additional boys, was held at Freemasons' Hall on Saturday last, when there were present Bros. Henry Browne, W. F. Collard Moutrie, Benjamin Head, Captain J. Wordsworth, and F. Binckes, Secretary. Other plans were laid before the committee besides those laid before them at the meeting the week previously, and having been considered, it was found that the probable outlay which would be incurred by erecting the proposed new buildings would be about £22,000. It was resolved to report this to the General Committee and Quarterly Court, and the committee then adjourned.

From the Class list of the Cambridge Local Examination (Christmas, 1876) just out, we are enabled to give the results as far as concerns our Boys' School. They are exceedingly satisfactory. The number of candidates was 28, and 26 have passed. Of these 26 there were 25 juniors, and 1 senior. Of the 25 juniors, more than half (14) gained a place in the honour list—2 in the 1st class, 3 in the 2nd class, and 9 in the 3rd class.

The quality of the work done in the school is testified to by these figures, and there is no need of any comment.

The following is a complete list of the successful candidates:—

SENIOR.—1 passed, R. Bryant.

JUNIORS.—1st Class: 1, Parker; 2, Green. 2nd Class, 4, Bowler; 5, Sage; 6, Pawley. 3rd Class: 7, Uwins; 8, Newman; 9, Markin; 10, Rose; 11, Grimes; 12, Heaviside; 13, Doswell; 14, Widdowson; 15, Watkins. SATISFIED THE EXAMINERS: 16, W. Sparkes; 17, Pinson; 18, Harding; 19, Tayler; 20, Battye; 21, Booser; 22, Warr; 23, Moon; 24, Whyatt; 25, A. Bryant; 26, W. White.

THE "SCOTTISH FREEMASON."—The first number of this new organ for the Craft has just been published, and promises fair to be a success. It is got up in first-class style, clearly printed on excellent paper. In addition to accounts of Masonic proceedings in different parts of the country, detailed reports are given of festivals and other meetings in a form such as the brethren have not been favoured with for a considerable time past, and at a length which they could not expect in ordinary newspapers. The leading principles are ably set forth in an article entitled "What is Masonry?" and some fine "Lines to the Craft" are given from the pen of Bro. F. B. Corvell. There is also the first instalment of a Masonic tale, entitled "The Broken Emblem," and other items for the benefit of those who, although belonging to the neutral world, may read the journal, so as to learn what their Masonic friends have been doing.—Glasgow News.

Masonic and General Tidings.

The annual grand vocal and instrumental concert will be given in aid of the funds of the Metropolitan and City Police Orphanage, on Friday, the 23rd inst., at St. James's Hall. Among the eminent vocalists announced to appear, we notice Mr. Sims Reeves, Bro. Lewis Thomas, Madame Edith Wynne, and Miss Emily Mott (daughter of Bro. Superintendent Mott). The concert will commence at 8 p.m.

ROYAL ARCH MASONRY, PROVINCE OF QUEBEC, CANADA.—At a late emergent convocation, held in the City of Toronto, Province of Ontario, the M.E. the Grand Chapter of Canada unanimously recognised the recently established Grand Chapter of the Province of Quebec, of which M.E. Comp. Graham, of Richmond, P.Z., is 1st Grand Principal.

The Lord Lieutenant of Ireland held a chapter of the Order of St. Patrick on Saturday night in Dublin Castle for the installation of the Duke of Manchester, R.W.P.G.M. Northamptonshire, as a Knight Companion of the Order. The imposing ceremony was witnessed by a very large assembly.

On Monday night, at the Lodge of Joppa, London, Bro. Davis, of lodge of Israel, Birmingham, stated that the endeavour now being made by English lodges to obtain the removal of the exclusion of non-Christians from Freemasonry by the German Grand Lodge had the hearty sympathy of the brethren at Birmingham, as well as the Provincial Grand Master of Warwickshire, the brethren of Plymouth, and the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe, Provincial Grand Master for Cornwall. He had no doubt all lodges in England would unite with Lodge Montefiore in petitioning the Grand Lodge on the subject.

We understand that the Provincial Grand Lodge of Suffolk will be held on Friday, the 29th June, at Hadleigh, under the presidency of the popular Prov. Grand Master, Lord Waveney.

In a congregation held at Oxford on Saturday last the degrees of Bachelor of Divinity and Bachelor of Arts were conferred on Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Donoughmore, S.G. Warden.

THE SOCIETY OF ANCIENT BRITONS.—Thursday being St. David's Day, about a hundred gentlemen dined together at Willis's Rooms, in celebration of the 162nd anniversary of the Honourable and Loyal Society of Ancient Britons. Lord Dynevor occupied the chair, and amongst those present were Sir Alexander Wood, the treasurer of the society, Mr. C. W. Wynn, M.P.; Mr. C. Stepney, M.P.; Bro. Sir George Elliot, R.W.P.G.M. South Wales; Mr. J. C. Kenyon; Mr. Charles Shaw, Mr. Cecil Morgan, Mr. E. Rhys Wingfield, and Bro. J. C. Parkinson. The charity, which is known as "The Welsh Charity School," was first established in 1715, its objects being then modestly confined to the payment of premiums on the apprenticeship of two boys, one from South Wales and the other from North Wales. Afterwards a school was established at Clerkenwell-green, which was removed first to Gray's-inn-road, and afterwards, in 1857, to Ashford, in Middlesex, and the number of children now in the school is 130 boys and 70 girls, 2516 boys having since the foundation been admitted upon the establishment and wholly maintained in the house, of whom 1133 have been apprenticed. The noble chairman in proposing the toast of the evening, "Prosperity to the Society of Ancient Britons," pleaded earnestly for increased support to the institution, and subscriptions were subsequently announced to the amount of nearly £900, including £105 from the Queen, £105 from the chairman, in addition to £10 10s. annually, and 50 guineas each from Earl Powis and Bro. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, R.W. Prov. Grand Master North Wales and Shropshire.

A change has, within the last few days, taken place in the old established firm of Waterlow and Sons (Limited). Arrangements have been made by which it will in future be carried on by Messrs. Waterlow, Brothers, and Layton, at the old premises, Birchin-lane, Cornhill. Bro. Alfred T. Layton, who is well known to many members of the legal profession, having been engaged in the various departments for many years, is also a distinguished Mason.

PROVINCE OF SOUTH WALES.—H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, M.W.G.M., has delegated to Bro. Aeneas J. McIntyre, Q.C., Grand Registrar, the duty of installing Bro. Sir George Elliot, Bart., M.P., as Provincial Grand Master of South Wales, Eastern Division. The ceremony will take place at Aberdare on the 4th proximo, and the brethren who have charge of the arrangements for the occasion expect upwards of 1000 visiting brethren, a large proportion being Grand Officers. The Installing Master will be assisted by Sir Albert Woods (Garter), Grand Director of Ceremonies. The new vicar of Aberdare, Bro. Rev. W. W. Jones, M.A., the successor to the late Canon Jenkins, will give a special service in the parish church of Aberdare. Aberdare has been selected from its being situated midway between the important Masonic centres of Swansea and Cardiff, and on account of its abundant communication by railway with all parts of the principality and the adjacent provinces. The brethren are very popular in Wales, and the appointment of Sir George to this important position has been long expected. Bro. Sir George Elliot has held the position of Deputy Grand Master of Middlesex, achieving that position after being the W.M. of the Bard of Avon Lodge, formerly a Warwickshire lodge, held at the famous Red Horse at Stratford-on-Avon, and now held as a summer lodge on the banks of the broader Thames.

THE BUCKINGHAM CLUB.

No. 1, REGENT-STREET, WATERLOO-PLACE, S.W.

Owing to the overcrowding of the best west-end Clubs, the Buckingham is established for the accommodation of noblemen, officers in the Army or Navy, professional and private gentlemen, who may be desirous of joining a really first class and aristocratic west-end Club without delay. The Club-house (which is at the corner of Charles-street, and opposite the Junior United Service Club) has recently undergone extensive alterations and decorations at a large outlay to the proprietor. It comprises Library, Dining, Smoking, Reading, Card, and Billiard Rooms; also Bedrooms for the use of members. The billiard-rooms, which are twenty-one feet high, are pronounced by eminent architects to be the most elegant in London. Entrance fee: Town members, Seven Guineas; annual subscription, the like amount (payable in advance). Officers on home service, with the exception of those residing in London, and country members pay an entrance fee of Four Guineas, and a subscription of Four Guineas. Members abroad, One Guinea. The present strength of the Club is 900 members, but when the number reaches 1000 the entrance fee will be Thirty Guineas. For further particulars apply to

Colonel W. A. M. BARNARD,
 Hon. Sec. to Committee.

Or to ALGERNON LLOYD, Secretary.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

FAITH LODGE (No. 141).—The members of this lodge met very strongly at Anderson's Hotel, Fleet-street, on Tuesday, the 27th ult. Amongst those present were Bros. Davis, W.M.; Mallett, S.W.; Dailey, J.W.; Rumball, S.D.; Whitby, I.G.; Morrison, A.W.S.; Heaphy, D.C.; Walls, A.D.C., acting J.D.; Carter, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., Sec.; Waygood, I.P.M.; Pecvor, P.M.; Hopwood, P.M.; Harris, P.M.; Taylor, P.M.; Green, P.M.; and Kennett, P.M. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Pending the arrival of the candidates for passing and initiation, the W.M., with the assistance of the Secretary, worked the fourth section of the First Lecture. The brethren passed were Bros. Jordan, Marchant, and Allen, and the gentlemen initiated were Messrs. J. Broadhurst and T. A. Smith. Both ceremonies were exceedingly well performed by the W.M. Bro. Marks having been unanimously elected a joining member, and the widow of a deceased brother of the lodge assisted to the extent of nearly ten pounds, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet. Upon the removal of the cloth the usual preliminary toasts were given and duly honoured. "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by the I.P.M. and most warmly received by the brethren. The W.M. having briefly replied, immediately proposed "The Health of the Initiates," in which he congratulated both the lodge and them upon their admission that evening. The newly-admitted brethren having replied in very appropriate terms, the W.M. made a telling speech in introducing the toast of "The Visitors." Bro. J. B. Hall, in responding to this toast, made a very good reply. He said, as a member of a country lodge, and as he had the honour of holding provincial rank in two counties, he had had many opportunities of visiting rural lodges, but he had never seen the ceremonies of the three degrees better "worked" than he had in the Faith Lodge. It was not his first visit, and he hoped it would not be his last, because it was very pleasing to him, as an old Mason, to witness the excellent efforts of younger members of the Craft, who mainly composed the working staff of No. 141, and who appeared to be, from the W.M. downwards, thoroughly conversant with their duties. In conclusion he congratulated the lodge upon possessing so strong and efficient a body of Past Masters. Several other visiting brethren having replied, the W.M. proposed "The Health of the Past Masters," in which he expressed his thanks to them all for the excellent advice and assistance they were always ready to give when required. This toast having been received with great warmth, was briefly acknowledged. "The Treasurer and Secretary" and "The Officers" followed. In introducing these toasts the W.M. dwelt upon the great and valuable services rendered by those worthy brethren. In addition to Bros. Carter and Stuart he particularly mentioned the names and abilities of his Wardens, Bros. Mallett and Dailey. These toasts having been duly acknowledged, the Tyler's toast was called, and the brethren adjourned until the last Tuesday in the present month. During the proceedings Bros. Robinson, Davis, sen., Walls, Leftly, and others entertained the brethren. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Hall, P.P.G.D.C. of Leicestershire and Rutland; Simmonds, P.M., late of 141; Cox, 19; White, 452 (India); Clifford, 773; Simpson, 1178; and Wilson, 1624.

KENNINGTON LODGE (No. 1381).—This lodge met on the 6th inst. at the Surrey Club House, Kennington Oval, when there were present, amongst others, Bros. H. Higgins, W.M.; Reeves, S.W.; T. C. Walls, J.W.; G. Everett, I.P.M.; Page, P.M., Treas.; Stuart, P.M., 141, &c., Sec.; Maun, P.M.; Koch, P.M.; Drysdale and Pope, Hon. P.M.'s; Ellis, jun., Org.; Honeywell, P.M., Assist. Org.; Kohler, S.D.; Speedy, J.D.; Webb, I.G.; Robinson, D.C.; Marston, W.S.; and Stokes, A.W.S. The visitors were Bros. Pinder, P.M. Kent; Fenner, Upton; and Cole, Granite. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. raised Bro. Sleight and initiated his son, Mr. Higgins, both ceremonies being well and carefully performed. The sum of five pounds having been voted to the Secretary, and a vote of thanks passed to the S.D. for his gift of two cushions for the use of the lodge; it was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, which did great credit to the caterer, Bro. Trotman. The preliminary toasts having been done full justice to, the I.P.M. arose and proposed "The Health of the W.M.," which he said should be a "bumper toast." In the course of his remarks he said that the way in which Bro. Higgins had "worked" the Third Degree that day was a matter for congratulation, and he was sure with their kind indulgence the W.M. would go through his year well. The W.M., in reply, said it was no easy task to discharge the duties of the chair even creditably, but he would do his best. Unfortunately he suffered from a weakness of the voice, which made much speaking irksome; but with their indulgence he hoped to carry out the ceremonies to their satisfaction; and he was pleased that his first essay had been successful. In introducing "The Health of the Initiate," the W.M. said that in consequence of their affinity this toast was a very pleasing one. He doubly welcomed him to the Kennington as a son and as a brother, and he was confident that his principles would be ever characterised by those beautiful precepts as set forth in the Masonic ritual; and, in conclusion, he hoped that his son's advent into the lodge would never be regretted by its members. Bro. Higgins, in reply, briefly said that he felt quite unable sufficiently to express his ideas upon the ceremony he had that day witnessed, but would simply conclude by thanking them all for the honour they had done him by electing him one of their body, and that he should ever look back with pleasure to that day as one of the brightest days of his existence. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Bros. Pinder, Cole, and Fenner. In giving "The Past Masters," the W.M. took occasion to speak very highly of the capabilities and services in Masonry of those worthy brethren; and in concluding his remarks he particularly alluded to the abilities of the I.P.M., and thanked him very sincerely for the great assistance he had given him in lodge that day. This toast having been duly honoured, elicited from Bro. Everett, the I.P.M., an excellent speech in acknowledgment. In consequence of the lateness of the hour the remaining toasts were but briefly given. They were "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Officers," and "The Masonic Charities." Selections of instrumental and vocal harmony were furnished by Bros. Ellis, jun., Walls, Webb, Sirgood, and others; and Bro. Warner Sleight recited with dramatic skill "The Dream of Eugene Aram." The next meeting of the lodge will take place on the first Tuesday in April.

IVY LODGE (No. 1441).—An emergency meeting of this high-class lodge was held on Tuesday, 27th ult., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road. The agenda paper was unusually heavy, there being no less than two raisings, five passings, and four initiations. The lodge was opened about 5 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. J. J. Cattle, who was ably supported by the following officers and brethren:—Bros. Goodman, S.W. (acting); Cornelissen, J.W.; D. D. Ashford, S.D., acting for Bro. Ashwell, who, we regret to say, was unable to attend the lodge through illness and domestic affliction; Bro. Knight Smith, J.D., who, with his usual kindness, presided at the harmonium, to enable him to do which Bro. Skeg, W.S., assisted Bro. Ashford in the duties of Deacon; C. S. Jolly, Sec.; Mattock, P.M., Treas.; Thurtle, P.M., W.S.; Foster, I.G.; and Fox, Tyler. This being an emergency meeting, of course no minutes were read. The W.M. therefore at once proceeded to the business of the evening. Bros. Calling and Reynolds being in attendance, passed the necessary examination in a manner which was not only highly creditable to themselves, but at the same time showed the amount of interest they already evince in the Order they have entered; were then entrusted, and retired. The lodge was then opened up into the Third Degree, and on the re-entry of those brethren they were raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M., the W.M. rendering that beautiful ceremony in a most perfect and impressive manner. The next business was to pass Bros. Williams, Taylor, Raymond, Jaques, and Gannell, and for which purpose the lodge was lowered to the First Degree, when those brethren also proved their proficiency in a very fair manner, and were dismissed. The lodge was then resumed in the Second Degree, and on their re-entry they were passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge was again lowered to the First Degree, and the ballots were then severally taken for the following gentlemen, viz., Bro. Robert Charles, of the Phoenix Lodge, 173, as a joining member, and Messrs. J. S. Lucas, B. Cooper, P. Dyke, and J. Neilson, all of which ballots proved unanimous. At this juncture the S.W. and W.M. elect, Bro. Poupard, arrived and took his seat, and Messrs. Lucas, Cooper, Dyke, and Neilson were regularly initiated into the mysteries of ancient Freemasonry, and we feel bound to note that all the ceremonies were rendered by the W.M. with great care, skill, and ability; and during his year of office he has rendered himself a highly popular Master with the lodge, and on his retirement from office next month into the ranks of the P.M.'s he will carry with him the hearty good wishes of every member of the lodge. All Masonic business being ended, the lodge was closed in due form with solemn prayer. The following were amongst the members present, viz., Bros. Nole, P.M.; C. Smith, P.M.; Mattock, P.M.; visitor, Greene, W.M. 1275; members: Bros. J. R. Ashford, Matthews, Vernon, Bowley, Miller, Wright, Laurence, Phillips, and others. The banquet which followed was admirably served up by Bro. Geider, the custodian of the hall, and great praise is due to him for the careful manner in which the various dishes were placed upon the table, and a most enjoyable evening, interspersed with songs and recitations, was spent by the brethren, who separated about half-past eleven evidently well satisfied with the evening's entertainment which is always to be met with in the Ivy Lodge.

ALDERSGATE LODGE (No. 1657).—The March meeting of the above lodge was held on Monday last, at the Castle and Falcon Hotel, Aldersgate-street. Brethren present: Bros. John Derby Allcroft, W.M.; Rev. Dr. P. H. Ernest Brette, S.W.; Dr. Chas. Hogg, J.W.; George Kenning, Treas.; P. Saillard, S.D.; W. H. Froom, J.D.; T. Benskin, D.C.; A. J. Altman, I.G.; E. Y. Jolliffe, W. S. Chapman, Dr. H. A. Smith, Rev. R. Lee, Sam. White, W. W. Landell, Hyde Pullen. Visitors: Col. Francis Burdett, G.M. Middx.; Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B.; Henry Muggeridge, P.M. 715; Charles Godfrey, 214; E. Brookman, 192; A. J. Protheroe, 22; George Watson, 21. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. A ballot was taken for Mr. A. Brookman and Dr. Samuel Benton, which resulted unanimously in their favour. Mr. A. Brookman being in attendance was initiated into the mysteries and privileges of ancient Freemasonry. Dr. Benton was unable to be present owing to indisposition. Bros. Lee, Smith, and Chapman were passed to the Second Degree. One gentleman was proposed for initiation. The lodge was then closed in due form, and adjourned until Tuesday, the 10th day of April. The brethren then dined together, the usual loyal and Masonic toasts being most ably proposed by the W.M. Bro. Col. Burdett replied for the Grand Officers, Bros. Nunn and Muggeridge for the visitors.

BATH.—Royal Cumberland Lodge (No. 41).—The regular monthly meeting was held at the Masonic Hall on Thursday, March 1st. Bro. F. Wilkinson took the chair at a quarter to eight, when there were present Bros. Brown, I.P.M.; Falkner, S.W.; C. Wilkinson, J.W.; Ashley, P.M. and Treas.; Braham, Sec.; Wilton, P.M. and Dir. of Cers.; Carey, P.M. and Asst. D.C.; Gummer, S.D.; Hunt, J.D.; Radway, I.G.; Robinson and J. Smith, Stewards; Bigwood, Tyler; Past Masters Cooper, Captain Peel Floyd, Mitchell, Rubie, Major Preston, Clark, Moutrie, Dr. Hopkins, P.M. 43 and 958, and P.P.G.S.W. for Warwickshire. As visitors, Bros. Hughes, Jos. Dutton, Marillier, of No. 53; and Bros. Hill, P.M., Young, Hayward, Glover, Bright, Stuckey, of No. 906; also about a dozen members of No. 41. After the lodge had been opened the minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree. Bros. Ames and Holmes were examined as to their proficiency, which they fully proved by their readiness of reply to a considerable number of questions. They were then entrusted and dismissed for preparation. All requisite arrangements having been made the candidates were readmitted, and raised to the Sublime Degree of M.M. by Bro. Ashley, assisted by Bro. Cooper, as Chaplain, by Bro. Moutrie, who gave the traditional history, and by the S.W., Bro. Falkner, who explained the symbolism of the working tools. By these four brethren, aided by the subordinate officers, the old York ritual was most impressively and admirably rendered. The lodge was closed down to the First Degree, and the W.M. again took his chair. A ballot was taken for three candidates to be initiated at the next meeting, which was unanimously in their favour, and five gentlemen were proposed and seconded, to be balloted for on that occasion. Amongst them were two sons of the late highly esteemed and deeply lamented Bro. G. Mann, one of the oldest members of the lodge, whose recent death was feelingly commented on by Bro. Ashley; and on his proposition, seconded by Bro. Wilton, a letter of sincere condolence was ordered to be sent to the members of his family, a communication from whom was read by the I.P.M., thanking the many members of the lodge who testified their respect for the deceased by attendance at the funeral. The lodge was finally closed at ten o'clock.

SHREWSBURY.—Salopian Lodge of Charity (No. 117).—The regular monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Raven Hotel on Wednesday, the 28th ult. There were present Bros. W. Spraggon, W.M.; W. Morris, S.W.; T. W. Thompson, J.W.; R. Lewis, P.M., Treas.; J. Vine, Sec.; W. Litt, S.D.; G. Smith, J.D.; V. C. L. Crump, I.G.; J. B. Bagnall, I.P.M.; Past Masters Bros. John Evans, Philip Evans, Horatio Jones, and J. B. Boucher, and a full lodge of brethren. The lodge having been opened in due form and the ordinary business having been transacted, the W.M. rose, and in the name of the past and present members of the lodge presented Bro. Lewis, P.M. and Treasurer, with an elegant silver tea and coffee service, remarking on the high esteem entertained for him by the brethren, and also thanking him for the very valuable and indefatigable services he had rendered to the lodge; and attributing it to his zeal that the lodge had been raised to its present high standard of efficiency. Bro. Lewis expressed his thanks for the honour conferred upon him, both by the presentation and also by the flattering remarks made by the W.M. He reviewed the progress of the lodge since he had become a member of it in 1855, but remarked that any services he may have rendered he had been actuated to perform by a love for Freemasonry in general and of his mother lodge in particular. The lodge was afterwards closed in peace and harmony, and the brethren adjourned for refreshment.

WINDSOR.—Etonian Lodge of St. John (No. 209).—The usual monthly meeting of this lodge was held on Tuesday, the 6th inst., at the Masonic Hall. Present: Bros. C. D. Hume, W.M.; Roberts, S.W.; Schieman, J.W.; Wilson, P.M., Treas.; J. O. Carter, P.M., P.G.D.C. Berks and Bucks, Sec.; Pears, J.D.; Cousins, I.G.; Dixon, P.M., P.P.G.D.C.; Hopwood, P.M.; McIlwham, P.M.; Tolley, P.M.; Apted, Dick Radcliffe, Pitts, Dore, Legg, Knighton, Wilkins, Lancaster, Larlin, &c. Visitors: Bros. Powell, P.M. 771; Bingham, P.M. 771; Scott, W.M. 771; Mitchell, 771; Goddard, 771; Hannis, 771; Johnson, 771; Hart 1348; Jewell, 1597; Petts, 342. Mr. C. M. H. Crawshaw was initiated into Freemasonry, Bros. Apted, Bailey, and Dore passed to the degree of F.C., and Bro. Lancaster raised to degree of M.M. The whole of the three degrees were worked by the W.M. in a manner that caused great gratification to the brethren generally. The sum of twenty guineas was voted from the lodge funds to be added to Bro. Carter's list for the benefit of the Royal Masonic Institution for Boys. Two candidates for initiation and two candidates as joining members were proposed. The lodge was afterwards closed in due form.

BRIGHTON.—Royal York Lodge (No. 315). On Tuesday, the 6th inst., the installation of the W.M. of the Royal York Lodge, No. 315, took place at the Royal Pavilion, Brighton. The W.M., Bro. S. T. Foat, who has passed with the utmost credit through every minor office, and who was unanimously voted to the chair, was installed in office by Bro. Nell, the immediate Past Master. The newly appointed W.M. then proceeded to invest his officers, Bro. Hawkes being appointed S.W.; Bro. Charles Hudson, J.W.; Bro. H. Saunders, Treas.; Bro. T. Packham, Sec.; Bro. R. J. Pope, S.D.; Bro. G. Nash, J.D.; C. Erredge, I.G.; Payne and Willard, Stewards; and Bro. Hughes, Tyler. A Past Master's jewel, voted by the lodge at the previous meeting, was then, in the name of the lodge, presented by W.M. Foat to Bro. Nell, the immediate Past Master, after which the lodge was closed with the usual formula. The brethren then adjourned to a banquet, a magnificent provision being made for them by Bros. Sayers and Marks, of Western-road, Brighton, who, by their liberality and careful catering, proved themselves thorough "craftsmen." The chair was taken by the newly-elected W.M., Bro. Foat, who discharged his duties most admirably. The general company included Bros. Scott, Prov. G.S.; Kube, Walter Smith, Bramwell, Brown, Reed, V. P. Freeman, Booty, and the Masters of the various lodges in the province. The usual loyal and patriotic toasts were given, and the proceedings generally passed off most harmoniously. The musical arrangements were under the immediate direction of Bro. Devin, who was most ably assisted by Bro. George Cole and other members.

HADLEIGH.—Lodge of Virtue and Silence (No. 332).—At the regular meeting on the 22nd ult., the lodge was attended by the W.M., Wardens, and members of the lodge, Bros Hart, Golding, Downs, Powell, Gardiner, Pettit, sen. and jun., Spalding, P.M.'s; Eltham (W.M. elect), Chisnall, Grinwade, Aldous, Sexton, Mackney, Cooper, Seaborn, Hitchcock, King, Everett, Grinwade, C. Archer, Jones, and others. The lodge was opened in the First and Second Degrees. The W.M. was presented and duly installed by Bro. A. J. Grinwade, in a very solemn and impressive manner. The W.M., after duly acknowledging the honour conferred upon him, proceeded to appoint his officers for the year ensuing: Bros. Chisnall, S.W.; F. Grinwade, J.W.; Mackney, Sec.; Cooper, S.D.; Seaborn, J.D.; Hitchcock, Org.; King, I.G.; delivering to each a suitable address upon their several duties, and investing them with the insignia of their office. The brethren of the lodge being anxious to show their appreciation of the services of Past Master A. J. Grinwade, resolved to present him with a P.M.'s jewel as a mark of their esteem and regard for the very able manner in which he conducted the lodge during the past year. Bro. Hunt, in the absence of Bro. Muriel, P.M., was delegated to present it, who, in a neat and appropriate speech begged of Bro. Grinwade to accept the jewel, not for its intrinsic value, but as a token of esteem, adding the hope that the G.A.O.T.U. might endue him with health long to wear it. The brethren afterwards sat down to an excellent banquet, provided by Bro. Aldous, and a pleasant evening was spent.

BATH.—Lodge of Honour (No. 379).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall on Monday, March 12th. At 8.15 p.m. Bro. H. Gore, W.M., opened the lodge in the First Degree, supported by Bros. G. H. Cook, I.P.M. and Treas.; Dr. Hopkins, as Chaplain; H. Culliford Hopkins, S.W.; Falkner, as J.W.; Davis, P.M., Sec.; Bush, Dir. Cers.; Robinson, as S.D.; Johnston, J.D.; Radway, as I.G.; and Gazzard, Tyler. There were also present several members of the lodge, and as visitors, Bros. Pegler, P.M. 304, Leeds; Walker, P.M. 53; Jas. Dutton, P.M. 855; Marillier, 53; Sumsion, P.M. 53; Watts, P.M. 53; W. Smith, P.M. 53; Ames, 41; Sonderman, J.D. 53; C. Collins, Sec. 53; and W. F. Collins, 53. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the W.M. read a communication asking support in the present movement relative to the exclusion of Jews from German lodges, and after a few remarks in its favour from the Secretary and the Director of Ceremonies, a resolution was passed authorising the W.M. to sign the petition on behalf of the Lodge of Honour. Bro. Dr. Hopkins then took the chair, examined the candidates, whose correct and ready replies elicited the acclamations of the brethren, and entrusted them. After they left the room, the W.M. opened the lodge in the Second Degree. Bros. Rev. Sanderson and Bell were re-admitted and duly passed to the Degree of Fellow Craft by Bro. Dr. Hopkins. He also gave an elaborate explanation of the working tools, delivered the charge and the Lecture on the second Tracing Board, which he concluded amid the hearty applause of the brethren. The lodge was then closed in the Second Degree by the W.M. The Secretary gave notice of a proposed alteration in the bye-laws with regard to the time of meeting. On the proposition of the W.M., seconded by the S.W., a vote of thanks to the visitors was passed, which was acknowledged by Bros. Walker and Pegler, the latter especially expressing his satisfaction at the resolution passed in favour of the Jews, and the pleasure he had derived from witnessing the ability with which the complete ceremony of passing had been conducted. The lodge was closed at ten o'clock.

ABERDARE.—St. David's Lodge (No. 679).—The installation meeting of this lodge took place on Thursday, the 1st inst., St. David's Day. The members of the lodge mustered in great force, and there were several visiting brethren present from a distance, amongst the latter being Bros. W. J. Morgan, P.M. of St. Peter's Lodge, Carmarthen; [Dr. Hall, W.M. of the Talbot Lodge, Swansea; Morgan, Alexander, and Mole, of the Merlin Lodge, Pontypridd, and others. Bro. G. H. White, S.W. and W.M. elect, was installed as Master of St. David's Lodge for the ensuing year, the ceremony being very ably performed by Bro. W. J. Morgan, P.M. of St. Peter's Lodge. The W.M. then appointed his officers as follows: Bros. G. Smith, I.P.M.; Evan Jones, S.W.; W. Little, J.W.; Dr. Price, Chap.; T. B. Powell, Treas., for the 21st time; T. Phillips, Sec.; Chas. Botting, S.D.; D. Davies, J.D.; J. Rhys, I.G.; J. Roberts and T. Moody, Stewards; and H. Bray, Tyler. Amongst other business brought before the lodge, an important official letter was read from Sir George Elliot, Bart., the R.W.P.G.M. of the Eastern Division of South Wales, intimating that he had decided on holding a Provincial Grand Lodge at Aberdare on the 4th of April next, under the banner of St. David's, when he would be installed in his new office by the R.W. Aeneas McIntyre, G.C., Grand Registrar of England. The announcement was received with great gratification by the members of the lodge, and a committee was appointed to carry out the necessary arrangements. After the business of the lodge was concluded it was closed in due form, and the brethren thereafter adjourned to the banquet room. Upwards of 40 brethren sat down to an excellent dinner, under the presidency of W.M. White. After ample justice had been done to the repast the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair and well received. In proposing "The Health of the R.W.P.G.M.," the W.M. dilated on the honour Sir George Elliot had shown St. David's Lodge, by deciding to have his installation carried out under its banner. He hoped it was a decision which the members of sister lodges would approve of, when they considered that Sir George had for some years been a member of St. David's, and that his connection with Aberdare was of long standing. Bro. Smith, I.P.M. proposed, in felicitous terms, "The Health of the W.M." He spoke of his popularity in the lodge and his zeal for Masonry, and augured for St. David's a year of great prosperity under his guidance. The W.M. made an able reply, and said that he calculated on the support of the P.M.'s, whose advice would sustain him in all his duties, and in particular he depended on the support of his officers. The Installing Master, Bro. W. J. Morgan, made an able speech in reply to the toast of his health. As a very old friend of the W.M., it had given him the greatest pleasure to perform the installation ceremony. The proceedings of the evening were varied and enlivened by songs, admirably rendered by Bros. Rosser, Rhys, Smith, and the W.M. Bro. F. Atkins, of Cardiff, acted as Organist at the ceremony in the lodge, and he officiated at the piano at the banquet.

ROTHERHAM.—Phoenix Lodge (No. 904).—The annual meeting of this lodge was held at the Ship Hotel, Rotherham, on Thursday, February 22nd, 1877. The minutes of the last regular lodge having been read and confirmed, the lodge was opened in the Second Degree, when W. Bro. J. Oxley, P.M., P.P.G.R. for W. Yorks., took the chair for the purpose of installing the W.M. elect, Bro. Benjamin Saville, which was duly performed according to ancient custom. Bro. Saville, W.M., then appointed and invested the following brethren as his officers for the ensuing year: W. Bro. C. H. Perrot, Prov. G. Org., I.P.M.; Bros. H. J. Bingham, S.W.; T. W. Roome, J.W.; John Fawcett, P.M., Treas.; J. H. Wragg, Sec.; C. Harvey, S.D.; Wilfrid Badger, J.D.; G. J. Hinchliffe, Org.; W. H. Pearce, I.G.; R. J. Evans, Steward; T. Chester, Tyler. The brethren afterwards sat down to a sumptuous banquet, when the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and honoured, the toast of the W.M. meeting with the very warmest reception. Amongst those present we noticed Bros. W. Jervis, W.M. 139; John Ridal, W.M. 296; S. B. Ellis, W.M. 1239; also representatives of Lodges 33, 43, 108, 242, and 1144. A most harmonious evening was spent, and all augurs well for a prosperous year for the lodge under its new and very efficient W.M.

GREENWICH.—Star Lodge (No. 1275).—This well established lodge held its regular meeting at the Ship Hotel, Greenwich, on Friday, the 2nd inst. Bro. H. J. Green, W.M., presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and unanimously confirmed. The ballot was unanimous in favour of the admission of Mr. Wm. Wilson. He being in attendance, was duly initiated into Freemasonry, the ceremony being rendered in a solemn, impressive, and correct manner by the W.M. Some formal business having been disposed of, the lodge was closed and adjourned to June. There were present Bros. R. W. Williams, P.G. Org. Middlesex, S.W.; C. W. Williams, J.W.; the Rev. G. R. Purefoy Colles, Chap.; J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., Treas.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middlesex, P.M., Sec.; W. B. Woodman, P.M., S.D.; W. Kipps, J.D.; E. W. Chetwynd, I.G.; A. Tisley, D.C.; S. Markets, W.S.; C. J. Hogg, P.G.S., P.M.; W. Ough, P.G.P., P.M.; H. Keeble, P.M.; J. J. Limebeer, P.M.; and others. Visitors: T. Ross, 188; F. B. Williams, 162; G. F. Guest, W.M. 1531; C. A. Rose, 1446; J. H. Kemp, 27; and others. The usual first-rate banquet was served. The regular toasts were given and responded to. An agreeable evening was well spent and enjoyed by all present.

MANCHESTER.—Lodge of Truth (No. 1458).—This lodge held its regular March meeting on Saturday the 3rd inst. Bro. Batchelder, W.M., having opened the lodge, the minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot having been taken and declared unanimous for Mr. James Smith, a candidate proposed by him, the attendant ceremony being well rendered. Bro. Pearson was passed to the Second Degree; and Bros. Barber and Brown to the M.M. degree. Bro. Pearson was raised by the Director of Ceremonies, Bro. Caldwell, P.M., in his masterly and accustomed manner; better known than comment can describe. A visiting brother, Bro. Dr. Barlow, P.M. 645, expressed a wish to confer the third degree upon Bro. Brown; the chair was therefore assigned to him. This being the first ceremony performed by Bro. Dr. Barlow at 1458, it must not be passed unnoticed. Our medical brother possesses that self command so essential to his profession, which combined with attention to punctuation and elocution, certainly brings out a Masonic ceremony clothed in its true meaning. Real oratory produces that which the simple utterance of words is not capable of. Such was the quality of the ceremony performed by Bro. Barlow, and which produced a good impression upon Bro. Brown, which was discernible from the remarks made by him at a later period of the evening. Prior to the closing of the lodge, Bro. Batchelder, W.M., resumed command of the lodge, and received from the hands of Bro. Kleinmann, J.S., a sword which he had worn during the Franco-Prussian war, and which he presented to the lodge for the use of its Inner Guard. The W.M. having thanked Bro. Kleinmann on behalf of the lodge, summoned to the E. Brother Proctor, I.G., and invested him with the weapon of separating and protecting capabilities. Its deeds of deadly separation are probably completed; it yet, well wielded, will separate the cowan from the Craftsman. Bro. Proctor, ever mindful of his business, will at his post of I.G. doubtless suggest the same course to others, should they require such wise advice, with his well tried sword to second the motion. Business having been concluded, Lodges 645 and 1219 tendered their "Hearty Good Wishes," and the lodge was closed. The brethren then adjourned to the social board. Upon the cloth being withdrawn, the usual toasts were given and received. During the evening harmony abounded freely; the new initiate, Bro. Smith, fully proved his ability as a vocalist of no mean order. Bros. Nicholson, Pearson, and Smith entertained the brethren with some good glee singing, and last, but not least, Bro. Goodchilde rendered with pleasing strain his comic adventure "The Hole in the Shutter." The brethren separated at a reasonable hour, 9.30 p.m.

NORTH WOOLWICH.—Henley Lodge (No. 1472).—The installation meeting of the above lodge took place on Tuesday, the 6th inst., at Bro. E. West's house, the Three Crowns, as above, and may well be remembered as a red letter day in the history of this pretty and flourishing little lodge, not only on account of the number of the brethren and visitors present, but for the splendid working of the Installing Officer, Bro. J. Ives, who well and worthily installed his successor, Bro. W. Steele, into the chair of King Solomon; nor will the style in which the new W.M. afterwards initiated three candidates be soon forgotten. Suffice it, both ceremonies were performed in such a manner as to justify the hopes of every one present, that a great, if not a distinguished future, lay before the lodge, and that if its present excellence is maintained it must soon take its position as one of the first in the district both for numbers and efficiency. The lodge was opened at one o'clock sharp, and Bro. Ives immediately proceeded to the important business before him, Bro. West, P.M. of this and many other lodges, as well as a Provincial G.O. for Herts, officiating as D.C. After Bro. Steele had been installed and saluted according to custom, he proceeded to invest his officers as follows:—Bros. J. Ives, I.P.M.; A. J. Manning, S.W.; W. T. Turner, J.W.; T. Geller, Treas.; J. Henderson, P.M., Sec.; N. Stanford, S.D.; J. Plume, J.D.; W. F. Vance, I.G.; M. Sherwin, Organist; G. A. Elder, D.C.; W. Davis, W.S.; and W. Steadman, P.M. 754, Tyler. Among the company present were Bros. T. Butt, W.M. 700; J. Dorton, W.M. 1076; C. T. Barham, W.M. 754; W. Graham, P.M. 700; T. Day, P.M. 1076; J. Gaskill, P.M. 1076; H. B. Holliday, P.M. 1076; B. B. Brayshaw, P.M. 1076, and of the lodge; S. Watkins, P.M. 1076; J. White, 1076; A. Woodley, J. W. 700; F. Wakefield, P.M. 548; J. Jacobs, 1327; J. West, 55; D. Old, 1076; and C. Jolly, 913. The installation having been splendidly finished, Messrs. Beazley, Guy, and Lloyd were initiated by Bro. Steele into Masonry, and then, after a vote of thanks, to be engrossed on vellum, had been voted to Bro. Ives, for his efforts as Installation Officer, and Bro. P. M. Graham had presented the lodge with a fine rough ashlar, bearing the following inscription on a silver plate: "Presented to the Henley Lodge, No. 1472, by P.M. W. G. Graham, No. 700, March 6th, 1877," the lodge was duly closed, and the brethren sat down to their banquet, which was of the choicest and most elaborate description, no expense being spared by Bro. West in catering to the tastes of his guests, both edible and bibulent. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and loyally responded to. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," Bro. Ives said that Bro. Steele had worked hard to fit himself for the honourable position he now held. They had a taste of his quality in seeing him work the First Degree that afternoon, and if he continued to work the ceremonies in the same able manner they would never regret having placed him in that chair. He asked them to join him in drinking "The Health of Bro. Steele," their esteemed W.M. Bro. Steele, whose reception was most enthusiastic, thanked them for their toast. He said that from the remarks that had fallen from Bro. Ives, and which they had so heartily endorsed, he believed that he had given them every satisfaction up to the present. No one could appreciate the many difficulties attending the position of W.M. more than he did, and no one could more heartily and sincerely ask them for their assistance and co-operation in carrying out these duties than he. The honour of a lodge was essentially bound up with the character and conduct of its Master, and he trusted to leave that chair at the end of his year of office, as pure, as bright, and unsullied from stain as he had found it. He again thanked them for their toast, and resumed his chair, amid much cheering. In proposing the toast of "The Past Masters," the W.M. presented, in flattering terms,

Bro. Ives with the jewel of his office, of the value of ten guineas, and trusted that he might long be spared to wear it as a token of the esteem in which he is held in the lodge. Bro. Ives feelingly returned thanks, and said that the magnificent jewel they had presented him with that night would wed him to that lodge as faithfully as he had been wed to his wife at the altar, and as he trusted he had been a good and true husband, so would he, as long as he lived, be a good and faithful brother to that lodge. After half a century passed in Masonry, that was the proudest moment of his life. He hoped he had earned and deserved it. He knew that W.M.'s who not only during their term in the chair, but in the subordinate offices that lead to that proud distinction, did all they could to promote the harmony and good fellowship of their lodges, naturally looked to some such token of respect at the expiration of that term, but no one could have received it with the united good wishes of every member of the lodge more than he felt sure he had from them. (Applause.) He trusted Br. Steele would go on and deserve such a recognition when his time had arrived. For himself, to the longest day of his life he should look back to this as one of the greatest honours ever conferred upon him, and as one of the proudest moments of his life. Bros. Butt, Day, Graham, Watkins, and others replied for the visitors. The Initiates duly returned thanks for their healths, Bro. Manning replied for the officers; and after a hearty vote of thanks had been accorded Bro. West for his excellent catering, the Tyler's toast concluded a memorable and enjoyable occasion.

BIRMINGHAM.—Lodge of Israel (No. 1474).—The installation meeting of this lodge was held at the Masonic Hall, Severn-street, on the 12th inst. The lodge was opened by the W.M. at 4 p.m. There was a very large attendance of brethren from all parts, some from London, Liverpool, and New York, and the most distinguished members of the Craft in Warwickshire, including many officers of the Prov. Grand Lodge. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read, confirmed, and signed, the inducing of the S.W., Bro. Isaac Silverstone, into the chair of K.S. then commenced. The ceremony was entirely carried out by Bro. J. Myers, P.M. of the Lodge of Emulation and Treasurer of this lodge. The W.M. appointed and invested the following officers:—Bros. B. Lazarus, S.W.; D. Davenport, J.W.; William Wood, Sec.; P. Roberts, S.D.; A. Silverstone, J.D.; H. H. Lawrence, I.G.; J. Myers, D.C.; A. Harris, A.D.C.; A. B. Vigus, Org.; E. Marks, Standard Bearer of the new banner, which has for its motto the "Crouching Lion of Judah;" G. J. Emanuel, B.A., Chaplain; M. Davis, P.M., Treas.; and S. Lyon, I.P.M., who was then presented by the W.M., Bro. J. Silverstone, with a very handsome Past Master's jewel, set with brilliants, which bore the following inscription:—"Presented by the brethren of the Lodge of Israel, 1474, to Bro. Solomon Lyon, in recognition of the zeal and ability displayed by him as W.M. in 1876, and as some token of the fraternal esteem and regard unanimously entertained for him by the brethren." Bro. S. Lyon, in thanking the brethren of the lodge, said how proud he was to receive such a jewel in the presence of so many distinguished Masons and his fellow townsmen, and that he should for ever remember his year of office, as it was marked with so many acts of kindness, and it did not want this additional proof to cement his life interest to the lodge, as it was a source of great delight to him to be one of the founders, he should for ever prize it, and wear it as often as possible, in order to show the generosity of the brethren with whom it was his lot to associate. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Thomas Green in such a manner that all present were delighted with him, and thought the lodge had every reason to be proud of such an excellent successor. The Secretary then read several communications from lodges, not only of Warwickshire, but many from distant provinces, expressing their wish to assist all in their power to present to Grand Lodge an influential petition in respect to the exclusion of the Hebrews in certain German lodges. After the business was concluded the lodge was formally closed with the usual hearty good wishes, and the brethren adjourned to the banqueting-room, where a most sumptuous repast was provided, and nearly 70 brethren sat down, and were presided over by the new W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in a very efficient manner. The whole proceedings were of a most satisfactory character.

PUTNEY.—Royal Commemoration Lodge (No. 1585).—At the regular meeting of this lodge Bro. J. Wright occupied the chair of W.M., and was supported by Bros. Robinson, S.W.; F. Holland, acting J.W.; Morphey and Collings, Deacons; Boehr, I.G.; H. Smith, P.M., Sec.; and Watkins, Treas. The business included the raising of Bros. Bury and Thomson, passing Bro. Stokes, and initiating Messrs. Hunt and Mansell. It being the night for electing the W.M., Treasurers, and Tyler, Bros. Robinson, Watkins and Steed were respectively elected without opposition. Bros. Collings, Mansell and Harrison were elected as members of the Audit Committee. A Past Master's jewel was voted to the retiring W.M., and the lodge was closed and adjourned to April.

HAMPTON WICK.—Wolsey Lodge (No. 1656).—The first regular meeting of this lodge since its consecration was held at the White Hart Hotel on the 5th instant, when there were present Bros. W. Hammond, P.G.D. of Middlesex, W.M.; Sharp, P.M. 84, S.W.; Bond, P.M. Dobie Lodge, J.W.; J. Hammond, P.M. 201, hon. P.M.; Baldwin, P.M. Era, A.G.P. of Middlesex, honorary member; Rev. De Crespigny, P.P.G.C. of Middlesex, Chaplain; Ockenden, Sec.; Aston, S.D.; J. Hurst, W.M. 1512, J.D.; T. C. Walls, I.G. The visitors were Bros. Buckland, P.M. Dobie Lodge; Saunders, W.M. 1503; Wells, J.W. Brownrigg Lodge; Pearman, Dobie Lodge; Miller, Ivy Lodge; Tagg, Hemming Lodge. The minutes of the installation meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. initiated in his usual impressive manner Messrs. Marvin, Taylor, Richer, and Featherstone. The ballot was taken for joining on behalf of Bro. Pitt, 205, United States, and declared unanimous. Bro. Nuttall, one of the founders, having been unanimously elected Treasurer, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served by Bro. Andrews, the caterer. "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The P.G.M., D.G.M., and the rest of the Grand Officers, Past and Present," and "The R.W.P.G.M. of Middlesex," were given from the chair. The S.W. in proposing "The Health of D.P.G.M. of Middlesex," said that the Wolsey Lodge was to be congratulated upon having had the honour to be the first to congratulate Bro. Little upon his appointment. They were also favoured by having a W.M. who held past rank in the province, and he should couple the names of the W.M. and Bro. Baldwin, A.G.P., with the toast. This pledge having been duly honoured, the latter, by the request of the W.M., acknowledged it. In proposing "The Health of the W.M.," the S.W. remarked that they all knew his abilities, and they all respected him. They had seen his successful working that night, and he hoped in conclusion that during Bro. Hammond's year of office he would be blessed with good health to discharge his onerous duties. The W.M. in reply expressed his gratification at the success which had thus far attended his fourth essay. In founding the lodge he had had no desire personally to gain fresh laurels, but it was to further the laudable desires of several of the brethren who aspired to obtain the chair of K.S. In concluding his remarks he said that nothing should be wanting on his part to make the lodge a success, and he was pleased with the genial way in which the S.W. had proposed his health, and the warmth with which it had been received by the brethren. In giving "The Initiates" the W.M. congratulated the lodge upon the admission of four gentlemen that evening to assist in manning their little Masonic venture. He hoped what they had seen and heard would give them exalted views of Masonry, and that if so they would have made a step in the right direction, because by being impressed with the ceremony of initiation they must exercise those qualities of mind that would eventually redound to the good of their fellow creatures, and in concluding he trusted that they would also find an advantage by being Masons, and would ever cultivate the principles of "Brotherly Love, Relief, and Truth." This toast was acknowledged by Bro. Taylor in a very neat speech. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was responded to by Bro. Buckland, P.M., who said that the lodge bade fair to become a great success. It had an excellent Master, and the initiates were to be congratulated upon having had their degree well given, and they would see as they progressed in the science the advantage of having a good exponent of Masonry in the chair. In conclusion, upon behalf of his co-visitors and himself, he expressed the gratification their visit to No. 1656 had afforded. The toast of "The Officers" followed. In giving this the W.M. called attention to the fact that amongst the working staff were five Past Masters, a W.M., and a Warden, which spoke well for the future of the lodge. He coupled this toast with the name of Bro. the Rev. Champion De Crespigny, the Chaplain, who, in reply, said that he felt pleased at being an officer of the lodge. Many joined the Craft for conviviality, but, as an old Mason, he told the newly-admitted brethren that there was something far beyond that, and if they aspired to take office he called upon them to follow the good example of the W.M., and the other efficient officers who were coming on. In the course of his remarks he told them that many, many years had elapsed since his initiation, but he was still proud of the Craft. He held, as they were aware, Past Provincial rank as well as that of Past Master, but he felt inclined to think that those distinctions were not owing to any merits of his own, but were due to his Masonic ancestry, inasmuch as his grandfather had held the position of P.G.M. of Hampshire, and was a personal friend of the late Duke of Sussex. In conclusion he thanked the W.M. for the kind manner he had proposed the health of his brother officers and himself, and said nothing would be wanting on their and his part to add to the prosperity of the Wolsey Lodge. "The Masonic Obedience," coupled with the names of Bros. Bond and Ockenden, Stewards for the Girls' Festival having been given and responded to, the proceedings terminated.

INSTRUCTION.

RANELAGH LODGE (No. 834).—At the meeting of this lodge of instruction, held at the Bell and Anchor Hotel, Hammersmith, on Friday, the 2nd inst., the chair was occupied by Bro. J. H. Cumming, S.W. 534 (Polish National). After the first ceremony and some sections had been worked, P.M. G. Reed (Zealand) presented the Secretary, P.M. Alais, 834, on behalf of the brethren of this lodge of instruction, with a handsome crozier frame, beautifully fitted and engraved, as a small token of their esteem for the manner in which Bro. Alais always carried out his duties. The gift was duly acknowledged by the Secretary, who said that his great wish had always been that this lodge of instruction should succeed, and he trusted he should be spared many years to give it his support.

SOUTHWARK LODGE (No. 879).—There was a very flattering attendance here on Wednesday, the 28th ult., when Bro. W. Beavis, 1158, comparatively speaking a young Mason, worked the Fifteen Sections, which he has thoroughly mastered during the couple of years he has been a Mason. Diligence and perseverance have produced the grandest possible results, and the brethren of the Southern Star Lodge, 1158, have reason to be proud of so able and efficient a brother. The W.M. had for his officers Bros. C. W. Kent, P.M. 879, 1578, Preceptor, as S.W. (and a good one, too); E. Brewster, W.M. 879, J.W.; J. Tarryer, 1310, S.D.; B. Sadell, 879, J.D.; W. Green, 879, I.G.; and Walter S. Lagg, 879, the most urbane of Secretaries. We have not space to tabulate the working, but the following brethren assisted in the order given. Bros. W. S. Lagg, 879; Brewster, W.M. 879; Milburn, 13; J. A. Hudson, P.M. 879; Milburn, 13; Gordon, 753; E. Stephens, P.M. 879; J. Taylor, 753; R. Challon, 1622; C. W. Kent, P.M. 879; Stewart, 19, 1158; Taylor, 753; C. Wise, P.M. 1158; Leaper, 1275; and J. Davis, D.C. 879. In each section the answers were readily and accurately given, showing that Bro. Beavis is surrounded wherever he goes with clever workers. The W.M. thoroughly delighted the lodge, and we are bound to confess, in justice to so zealous and expert a Mason, that never have we heard the sections worked nearer "Emulation" form. There was a large attendance, but we have not room to give the names.

SOUTHAMPTON.—Royal Gloucester Lodge (No. 130).—The bye-laws of the Lodge of Instruction attached to this lodge providing that the sections shall be worked every March and April, on Monday evening (under Bro. Sidney Myer, W.M., for the month), the first four sections of the first lecture were worked as follows:—1st, Bro. Baird; 2nd, Bro. R. Sharp, Sec. and Treas. and W.M. of the lodge, under whose warrant instruction is given; 3rd, Bro. C. Jellicoe, his J.W.; and 4th, Bro. C. J. Phillips, his S.W. At the last meeting of the Royal Gloucester Lodge, a Past Master's jewel was presented to the I.P.M. Bro. W. J. Hickman, son of the D.P.G.M. for Hants and the Isle of Wight. In the absence of the Mayor, the presentation was made in the name of the lodge by P.M. T. P. Payne, in the presence of a goodly number of the brethren, including two initiates, made the same evening by Bro. Sharpe.

Royal Arch.

BELGRAVE CHAPTER (No. 749).—This influential chapter held its last meeting at the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street, on Friday, the 23rd ult. Amongst those present were Comps. Frampton, M.E.Z.; Landfield, H.; Vine, J.; Mackney, I.P.Z.; Ough, P.Z., P.G. Assist. Soj., Treas.; Bourne, P.Z., S.E.; W. Johnson, P.Z.; H. Johnson, P.Z.; Watson, P.Z.; Limebeer, S.N.; Jolly and Collier, Assistants. Comp. Humphreys, P.S., in consequence of a domestic affliction, was not present. The minutes of the previous convocation having been read and confirmed, the election of officers took place with the following unanimous results:—Comps. Landfield, M.E.Z.; Vine, H.; Limebeer, J.; Ough, Treas.; Bourne, S.E.; Humphreys, S.N.; and Jolly, P.S. A Past Principal's jewel having been unanimously voted to the outgoing M.E.Z., the chapter was closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet, which was well served. Amongst the visitors were Comps. Thomas, S.E. 134; T. Walls, P.S. 185; Green, 17; Neate, 77; and Massey, 174. The preliminary loyal and Royal Arch toasts having been duly given and received, the I.P.Z. arose and proposed "The Health of the M.E.Z.," in which he stated that the manner in which he (Comp. Frampton) had carried out the various offices in the chapter was a pattern to any companion in London. In conclusion he wished him all health and happiness. The First Principal, in reply, stated that he arose with great pleasure to return thanks for the many kind expressions Comp. Mackney had used in proposing his health. He had been cast for the character of First Principal, and whether he had succeeded in enacting the part well he left that for them to judge. The poet had said that the "poor player struts and frets his hour upon the stage, and then is heard no more." But he hoped that that would not be his case when he made his final bow as a First Principal of the Belgrave. In concluding his remarks he thanked them all for the great kindness he had always received at their hands. In giving "The Visitors," the M.E. said that it was a very pleasing toast to propose the health of the visiting companions. They were all good men and true, and he called upon the members to give them a hearty greeting, because if they were satisfied with the results of their visit he was sure that the Belgrave was pleased to welcome them, as there was nothing so agreeable to them as being in a position to dispense its hospitality. This toast having been warmly received, Comps. Massey, Green and Thomas replied. The former stated, amongst other things, that he had been somewhat disappointed at not having witnessed any "working" that evening, because he had on a former visit been highly delighted with the excellent manner in which the ceremony of exaltation had been carried out. "The Health of the Past Principals" followed. In introducing this the M.E. said that he considered it "par excellence" the toast of the evening, because those distinguished companions had laboured hard to bring the chapter to its present high state of prosperity. He therefore charged them to drink the health of their Past Principals in a most enthusiastic manner. Comp. Mackney, in response, said that as the Immediate Past Principal he was pleased with the good feeling that had been manifested by the companions in receiving the health of his colleagues and himself. They were and would always be ready to assist those who were rising to eminence in the chapter, because as they, the Past Principals, were going down in the scale of popularity, there were others ready to supply their places, and who, moreover, were thoroughly conversant with the duties of the positions they courted. The M.E.Z. then said that he had a very important toast to bring to their notice, namely, "The Second and Third Principals." They were both good Craft Masons and Royal Arch Masons, and were always ready, willing, and able to carry out any Masonic "work." They had that evening been elected to fill high positions in the chapter, and in conclusion he called them "the coming men," and that under their way he believed the proceedings of No. 749 would be carried out with great éclat. Comp. Landfield, M.E. elect, in response, said that he was gratified that the M.E. had been pleased to pass such high encomiums upon his colleague and himself. His eulogy had been so high, that it had almost bordered upon flattery; nevertheless, he was sensible that since Comps. Vine and himself had been connected with the Belgrave they had endeavoured to do their duty. He had been elected that evening to discharge a very important office, and he would do all that lay in his power to add to the comfort and prosperity of the chapter, and he was confident that Comps. Vine and Limebeer would do the same. In proposing "The Health of the Treasurer and Scribe E.," the M.E. said that as the hour was late he should couple the toast of "The Officers" with it. This double toast having been received with excellent "fire," Comp. Ough briefly responded by stating that he felt honoured at having been re-elected Treasurer, and whilst he continued to hold that office he should always exercise a wise discretion in the management of their funds; and in conclusion, he thanked them for the cordial manner in which they had drank his health. Comp. Bourne said that he arose once again to return his sincere thanks to the chapter for having unanimously elected him Scribe E. for the eighth time, which proved he had at least done his duty and gained their satisfaction. He hoped, however, to arrive at his second term of apprenticeship in that capacity. In concluding his speech he said he was gratified that the chapter—which would on the 15th of March next have arrived at the 10th year of its existence—was in such a prosperous condition. Comps. Limebeer, Jolly, and Collier also replied. The instrumental and vocal harmony during the evening was furnished by Comps. Mackney, Limebeer, Walls, Coates, and others.

WARRINGTON.—Chapter of Elias Ashmole (No. 148).—The annual convocation of this chapter was held at the Chapter Rooms, on Monday last. The chapter was opened by the Principals, Ex. Comps. W. Sharp, Z.; P. J. Edelsten, H.; and R. Brierley, J.; after which the companions were admitted, numbering amongst them Comps. John Bowes, P.Z., &c.; D. W. Finney, P.Z., &c.; Charles Crosier, S.E. and J. elect; James Jackson, J. L. Wilson, Thos. Tunstall, R. Galloway, Jno. Armstrong, W. Woods, James Hannah, W. S. Hawkins, P.Z., Knight, Joseph Pickthall, W. Read, W. Barlow, T. C. Pierpoint, and Thos. Domville, Janitor. The minutes of last convocation were read and confirmed, when the M.E.Z. invited Ex. Comp. John Bowes to take the chair as Installing Principal. Ex. Comps. P. J. Edelsten, R. Brierley, and Charles Crosier were then installed as Z., H., and J. respectively, in ample form, after which they were greeted, saluted, and proclaimed according to ancient custom. The other officers having been invested, a vote of thanks to Comp. Bowes was ordered to be recorded on the minutes, and there being no further business, the chapter was closed and the companions adjourned to the banquetting room, where, under the presidency of the newly-installed Principals, an excellent dinner was justly dealt with. The loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and the Installing Principal came in for a large share of compliments. The evening was enlivened by some excellent singing, in which Comps. Tunstall, Woods, Brierley, and T. C. Pierpoint took part. The proceedings closed about ten o'clock.

IPSWICH.—Royal Sussex Chapter (No. 376).—The usual quarterly convocation of this popular chapter was held at the Masonic Hall on Wednesday, the 7th inst., when there was a large attendance of members, about twenty or twenty-five being present. Amongst others were Comps. Fraser, M.E.Z.; N. Tracy, P.Z., as H.; Dr. Mills, P.Z., as J.; H. Luff, Scribe E.; J. H. Staddon, Scribe N.; W. Bobby, Prin. Soj.; H. Casley, Asst. Soj.; P. Cornell, P.Z.; J. A. Petit, &c. Visitor: Comp. Emra Holmes, P.Z. St. Luke's Chapter. The chapter having been duly opened by the three Principals, the companions were admitted, and the minutes of last chapter and chapters of emergency were read and confirmed. Bros. A. D. George, P.M. 114, Prov. G. Reg. of Suffolk; A. J. Grimwade, I.P.M. Lodge Virtue and Silence; Hadleigh and H. Ribbons, of the British Union Lodge, No. 114, were severally admitted and exalted to the Sublime Degree of the Holy Royal Arch. The M.E.Z. most ably and impressively performed this beautiful ceremony. Dr. Mills acted as Prin. Soj., and afterwards delivered the historical lecture, Comp. Tracy gave the symbolical, and M. Ex. Comp. Fraser delivered the mystical lecture with great solemnity and impressiveness. We have never seen the ceremonies throughout better, and seldom indeed so ably, performed as on this occasion. The other business of the chapter having been disposed of, Scribe E. delivered the Exordium, and the chapter was duly closed. The companions afterwards assembled round the social board under the presidency of Comp. Fraser. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given from the chair, and responded to by the brethren with the customary cordiality, and Comp. Tracy, in proposing "The Officers of Grand Chapter," regretted that he could not couple with that toast the name of the Prov. Ex. Superintendent. He hoped that some steps would shortly be taken to place a brother at their head in this province. The M.E.Z. proposed "The Visitors," coupling the toast with the name of Comp. Emra Holmes, who, in responding, dwelt upon the pleasure it gave him to be present that evening, to witness the absolutely perfect manner in which the august and majestic ceremony had been worked that evening by the M.E.Z., assisted by his officers. He had been much impressed, years ago, at the working of this chapter under their late Comps. King and Franks, and he thought that working could not be equalled, but on this evening he had seen the degree conferred in a manner which he would venture to say could not be surpassed in any chapter in the kingdom. After making some remarks as to the antiquity of the degree, and the opinions of Bros. Yarker, Hughan, and others about it, he said he thought that the interests of Royal Arch Masonry would be better served if the fee for admission were reduced to say a guinea. We were told there were but three degrees in Freemasonry including the R. A., and the Constitutions laid down that no one could be admitted a Mason for less than £3 3s. Yet, after a man had taken the three degrees for that sum, he was told he must pay £2 2s. for what was, according to the Constitutions, only a portion of a degree. When the fee was settled there were no powerful competing bodies like the Grand Mark Lodge and the A. and A. Rite. It was true the Mark degree and the Rose Croix were in existence, but they were not competing bodies in the sense then that they were now. A brother could get the Mark Degree, which was every whit as much a Craft degree as the R.A., for £1 1s. or 30s., and he could get the Rose Croix in Ipswich for £3 3s. No wonder then that when brethren found they could get 18 degrees for the same price that they paid for a portion of one they should often prefer to take it (the Rose Croix) to the Royal Arch. He thought that steps should be taken to get the fee for exaltation reduced, and every brother would then be encouraged to take the degree. Bro. Grimwade, in responding to the toast of "The newly-exalted Companions," expressed the pleasure he had derived in being admitted to this sublime degree. He had hoped to have had present that night with him Bro. Dr. Muriel of Hadleigh, but that brother had, as he deeply regretted, and as they were aware, died very suddenly, leaving a widow and nine children to mourn his loss, and he hoped the companions would help him to get them the benefit of the Masonic Charities. Bro. Ribbons also briefly and very modestly responded. A most agreeable evening was spent, and it was with great regret that the companions separated. Bro. Spalding catered, as usual, well. The supper was excellently served.

BEDFORD.—Stuart Chapter (No. 540).—The regular convocation of this chapter was held on Wednesday, March 13th, when there were present Comps. Alderman Bull, M.E.Z.; Cookson, H.; Cuthbert, J.; Colonel Stuart, P.Z., P.G.T., &c.; Capt. Colbrune, E.; Rev. W. Tebbis, J. 285, P.S.; Billson, 1st A.S.; Stafford, 2nd A.S.; Trapp, Treas.; Rev. Fawcett Ward, Chap.; Reynolds, Janitor; Harris, Coombs, Richardson, Hillman, Allan, Leslie, Capt. Nash, and Capt. Green, J.P.; Visitors: Comps. Darfield, P.Z. 19; Hales, M.E.Z. 840, P. Prov. Grand Chap. Berks and Bucks; Fitch, J. 840; Wilmer, N. 840; Taylor, 840; and Biggs, 282. Chapter having been opened in due form and the companions admitted, and the minutes having been read and confirmed, Bros. Thody and Carter, of Stuart Lodge, and Bro. Lambie, of Bedfordshire Lodge of St. John the Baptist were balloted for, and being unanimously elected were duly exalted. A very high compliment was afterwards passed upon the officers of the chapter, by Col. Stuart, upon the way in which they had, at so early a period in the career of the chapter, performed the ceremonies. Two other candidates were nominated, and a committee, consisting of the officers of the chapter, having been appointed to consider and report upon the bye-laws to the next chapter, and hearty good wishes having been given from the several visitors' chapters, chapter was closed in due form, and the brethren, adjourning to refreshment, spent a very pleasant evening.

LIVERPOOL.—Everton Chapter (No. 823).—The annual gathering of the companions of this cordially supported chapter, for the installation of Principals and attendant business, was held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Tuesday, the 27th ult. The chapter was opened at four o'clock by Comp. Holland, P.Z., acting as Z. (in the unavoidable temporary absence of Comp. W. J. Lunt, Z.), and he was supported by Comps. W. Cottrell, H.; T. Shaw, J.; Major G. Turner, P.Z.; T. Ashmore, P.Z., Treas.; W. Boulton, S.E.; J. Webster, S.N.; P. W. Oglesby, P.S.; and J. G. Hassal, A.S. The companions present included J. W. Ballard, J. Hunter, Henry Ashmore, Edward Walker, Geo. Graham, Arthur Strother, T. Bloomfield, J. Houlding, W. Wilson, R. Warriner, Luke Bagnall, J. S. Cuthbert, and J. H. Carefull. The visitors present were Comps. W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.W.L.; Wm. Shortis, P.Z. 1094; Richard R. Martin, P.Z. 1094; J. Hobkin, P.Z. 673; James T. Callow, P.Z. 673; Thos. Clark, P.Z. 673; J. MacMuldrow, Z. 1094; Henry Pearson, Z. 249; Richard Washington, H. 1094; R. C. Yelland, J. 1094; J. E. Jackson, J. 249; Rev. Rees Jenkins, P.S. 216; H. Burrows, P.S. 673; W. Burgess, P.S. 1094; Josh. Wood, Treas. 249 (Freemason); J. Archdeacon, 249; Edwd. Carter, 249; Thos. Dilcock, 220; John Lecomte, 203. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed, when Comp. Major Turner took the chair as Installing Master, and proceeded to place Comps. W. Cottrell as M.E.Z.; Thomas Shaw as H.; and J. W. Ballard as J.; the work of installation being done in a manner which it would have been very difficult to excel. On the re-admission of the companions, the M.E.Z. proceeded to invest the following as the officers: Comps. Hunter, S.E.; J. Hassal, S.N.; Henry Ashmore, P.S.; and P. Ball, Janitor. Bros. D. Callow, J. M. King, King, R. Milne, W. Atherton, and Spencer, being in attendance, were admitted and exalted as companions, in a manner which did credit to the chapter, and proved how well the Principals were up in their important work, which could not have been more efficient if it were the closing work of their year of office, instead of the opening portion of their duties. At the conclusion of the exaltation, Comp. Cottrell, M.E.Z., rose and said: Companions,—As it is the hope of reward that sweetens labour, so it is the expectation that we shall meet with the approbation of our companions that stimulates us, in either lodge or chapter, to do our best in the discharge of our duties. (Hear.) The companions of this chapter have ever held in the highest esteem the Principals who have presided over it, one of whom, Comp. W. L. Lunt, now retires from the chair of Z. I need say but little of the manner in which he has presided over us; suffice it to say that he has been well able to perform his duties; he has been genial in his bearing, and has, while passing through these chairs, endeared himself to the companions. Companion Lunt, it is my very pleasing duty in the name of the chapter to present you with a small token of their esteem. As you are already decorated with a P.Z.'s jewel, I have great pleasure in handing to you this set of diamond studs, hoping you will live long to wear them, as a mark of your connection with this chapter. Comp. Lunt, I.P.Z., after referring to his long connection with the chapter, which dated from its formation, went on to say that he was deeply sensible of the great honour which they had paid him, on retiring from the First Principal's chair, in presenting him with a handsome present like that which had just been put into his hands, and he felt the compliment all the more after the remarks which had been made by the M.E.Z., that in all stations of life there was always a hope of reward which sweetened labour. In his (Comp. Lunt's) case he thought this was scarcely applicable, as the labour had been very light in comparison to the great reward he was then receiving from the companions of the chapter. He could only attribute it to a continuance of the very great respect which had always been shown to him both in lodge and chapter, and he hoped he should continue to retain that respect and goodwill in the future as in the past. Having received the honours and rewards he hoped to continue a working companion, and assist in making the Everton Chapter, if not the first, one of the first in the province, worthy of the emulation of the surrounding chapters. (Hear, hear.) Comp. Lunt concluded by wishing the Principals and officers a prosperous and harmonious year, and by again expressing his thanks for the very handsome gift. Three brethren were proposed for exaltation, and at the conclusion of the business the chapter was closed in due form. The companions then adjourned to a splendid banquet and after the usual toasts and pleasant harmony, the companions separated at an early hour.

JERSEY.—Concord Conclave (No. 8).—An assembly of this conclave was held at the Masonic Temple on Friday, the 2nd inst. The conclave was opened in ancient form by Sir Knt. E. Martel, M.P.S., supported by A. Schmitt, P.S.K.G.C., Rec.; Jos. O'Flaherty, E.; Wm. Wetherell, H.P.; C. D. Bishop, S.G.; W. H. Chapman, J.G.; Jas. Huclin, P.; Crees, H.; F. F. Amy, S.B.; P. W. Benham, P.S.; J. Oatley, P.S.; W. H. Long, Gaudion, Capt. Le Chevalier, and others. The minutes of the assembly held in September were read and confirmed. Bros. J. O. Le Sueur, P.M. 491, P.G. Sec.; W. Z. Pugsley, P.M. 275, P.P.G.J.W.; Col. E. D. Smith, R.A.; Capt. T. Le Scelleur, T.S. 590; De Bourcier; E. Rivington, 491; F. P. Le Marquand, P.M. 491, P.P.G.S.D.; and W. H. Campbell, 958, were balloted for, admitted, and proclaimed Knights of the Order. The solemn ceremony, it is needless to say, was performed in a most accurate and impressive manner. The historical oration was admirably delivered by the H.P., and the other officers discharged efficiently the duties of their respective stations. An appeal on behalf of a mother and her ten little ones, presented by the Rec., was responded to by £1 1s. od. being granted. At the request of the Rec., Sir Knt. J. O. Le Sueur was appointed his assistant. The conclave was closed in solemn form and perfect harmony.

STATISTICS OF MASONRY IN GERMANY.

In the German Empire there are at present in existence eight Grand Lodges, with 326 subordinate lodges and five independent lodges.

Their classifications are as follows: In Berlin the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, with 111 subordinate lodges; Grand Landes Lodges with 82 lodges; Royal York with 49 lodges; Grand Lodge of Hamburg with 23 lodges; Grand Lodge of the Sun at Beyreuth with 22 lodges; Grand Lodge of Saxony with 18 lodges; Eclectic Circle with 12 lodges; Grand Lodge of the Union at Darmstadt with 9 lodges, and five independent lodges, altogether 331 lodges.

The kingdom of Prussia contains 220 lodges, or two-thirds of all German lodges, of which Three Globes has 103; Grand L. L., 63; Royal York, 46; Hamburg, 1; Eclectic Circle, 6; and Union, 1.

Of lodges working under Berlin Grand Lodges there are six lodges in Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, and one each in Hanau and Wiesbaden.

German lodges are in activity in 260 cities, and one is in a village, of which Berlin has 17; Hamburg, 13; Frankfurt-on-the-Maine, 6 lodges. Six cities each 3 lodges; sixteen cities each 2 lodges, and the balance of cities each 1 lodge.

Germany has in a population of 41,100,000, 331 lodges, or one lodge to 124,242 inhabitants.

France has in a population of 36,100,000, 248 lodges, or one lodge to 145,536 inhabitants.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Chest Preservative.—At all seasons of the year the rate of mortality from diseases of the lungs is very great. Holloway's Ointment well rubbed upon the chest, aided by his Pills, arrests all mischief. These cleansing medicaments exercise the most salutary and restorative influence over the entire contents of the pectoral cavity. Air-tubes, nerves, blood-vessels, and all other tissues feel their wholesomely potent power, more particularly in their thoroughly purifying both venous and arterial blood, by promoting the free circulation of air. Neither Ointment nor Pills contain any a noxious ingredient whatever, but their balsamic nature nourishes rather than irritates the system, and kindly subdues untoward symptoms till all is well once more.—ADVT.

DISTRICT GRAND LODGE OF BRITISH BURMAH.

A quarterly communication, was held at the Masonic Temple, Rangoon, on Wednesday, the 27th day of December, 1876, being the festival of St. John the Evangelist. Present: W. Bros. H. Krauss, Dy. D.G.M., as D.G. Master; Jos. Dawson, P.D.G.S.W., as Dy. D.G. Master; Edward Hopper, P.D.G.S.W., as D.G.S.W.; A. M. Buchanan, P.D.G.S.W., as D.G.J.W.; Bro. the Rev. J. E. Marks, P.D.G.C., as D.G. Chaplain; W. Bros. E. G. Man, D.G. Reg.; W. H. Porter, D.G. Sec.; B. Samuel, P.D.G. Sec.; A. Hotson, D.G.S. Deacon; G. C. Hodding, D.G. Sword Bearer; W. H. Wooton, D.G. Steward, as D.G. Org.; J. F. Briddon, as D.G. Pursuivant; Bros. H. B. Davidson, D.G. Steward; J. H. Clarkson, as D.G. Tyler; and several representatives of lodges.

The Grand Lodge was opened in form at 6 15 p.m.

The summons convening the communication was read.

The proceedings of the last regular communication, held on the 12th September, 1876, having been printed and circulated, were, on the motion of the District Grand Master in the chair, taken as read, and were duly confirmed.

The District Grand Secretary read the report of the proceedings of a meeting of the District Grand Lodge Committee, which was unanimously adopted.

The District Grand Master in the chair, after a few observations on the report of the District Grand Lodge Committee, addressed the brethren as follows:—The Masonic year which closes to-day has been an important one to this province, and we have to record many changes; chief among them the resignation of our Right Worshipful District Grand Master, W. Bro. Colonel Hervey Tuckett Duncan, C.S.I. We have already recorded our sense of the loss which Freemasonry has sustained by his resignation of the office of ruler in this province, and our appreciation of the services he has rendered to the fraternity during his Masonic career in Burmah. I have now to tell you that his resignation has been accepted by the M.W. the Grand Master H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and I lately received a letter from our R.W. District Grand Master conveying the command of the M.W. the Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, that the wishes of the lodges in the province regarding a successor to him should be ascertained and made known to the Pro Grand Master through R.W. Bro. Duncan. This information I have procured, and am sending to R. Wor. Bro. Duncan, and we shall no doubt in due time be informed what is the pleasure of H.R.H. the M.W. the Grand Master regarding a successor to R.W. Bro. Duncan as District Grand Master of British Burmah.

The hand of death has been busy amongst us during the past year, and we have to deplore a serious loss in the untimely demise of W. Bro. J. V. Douglas de Wet, our District Grand Treasurer, and a Past Grand Warden of this lodge. I need not enlarge on his excellent Masonic qualities, which are well known to all present. His place will be hard to fill, and his familiar face will long be missed by those who have had the pleasure of meeting him within these walls, and those of the other lodges in Rangoon. Lodge Star of Burmah has also to mourn the loss of an old and worthy brother in the person of Bro. Andrews. But it is not merely by the hand of Death that worthy brethren are taken from our midst. Changes of other kinds in a station like this are frequent, and we have to regret the removal of our universally esteemed Bro. W. D. Orwickshank, who has just left us to fill a higher post in his profession in Calcutta. I know that I am expressing the feelings of every brother in this Grand Lodge, in recording our sense of the untiring zeal and energy which this Worshipful brother has displayed in promoting every good work in the Craft during his stay in the province. That useful institution the Greenlaw Masonic Orphan Fund is largely indebted to him, not only in the matter of liberal personal contributions, but for the excellent organization under which the funds are invested and managed, and for the untiring attention its affairs have received at his hands during his tenure of office as its Secretary and Treasurer. But, brethren, though we have lost and are losing many good brethren and true, many old and tried brethren still remain to us, and many more, either as initiates or joining members from other Districts, are enrolling themselves under our banners. Let us one and all assist each other in upholding the ancient principles of our Order, and in extending its sphere of usefulness, and be careful not to do anything which might dim or sully the lustre of Freemasonry. I now proceed to notify the appointments of the District Grand Officers for the ensuing year, but before doing so it is my pleasing duty to express to the officers of the past year the thanks of the District Grand Lodge for their valuable services, and in doing this I would wish to record specially my thanks for the services rendered by the District Grand Secretary and Treasurer. Our retiring District Grand Master has been pleased to express a hope that I would retain the chair of Deputy District Grand Master for another year, which I have much pleasure in doing, and as continuing to be the officiating head of the fraternity in the province until a District Grand Master is duly appointed and installed, I have every confidence that I shall continue to receive the advice, assistance, and support which I gratefully acknowledge have always been afforded to me by the other Masons in the Province of British Burmah.

The other appointments are as follows:—Bros. W. H. Krauss, D.D.G.M.; D. G. Macleod, Maulmain, D.G. S.W.; E. J. L. Twynam, Rangoon, D.G.J.W.; Rev. J. E. Marks, D.G. Chap.; B. Samuel (elected) D.G. Treas.; J. Petley, Tounghoo, D.G. Reg.; W. H. Porter, D.G. Sec.; E. G. Man, D.G.S. Deacon; H. Prince, D.G.J. Deacon; W. A. Nicol, D.G. Supt. of Works; W. Ford, D.G. Dir. of Cers.; Malcolm Furlong, D.G. Swd. B.;

W. H. Wotton D.G. Org.; J. F. Briddon, D.G. Ppst.; and J. H. Clarkson (elected) Tyler.

The District Grand Master in the chair proposed, and the Deputy District Grand Master seconded, that W. Bro. B. Samuel be the D.G. Treasurer for the ensuing year.—Carried unanimously.

W. Bro. E. Hopper proposed, and W. Bro. A. M. Buchanan seconded, that Bro. J. H. Clarkson be D.G. Tyler for the ensuing year.—Carried unanimously.

The District Grand Master in the chair nominated six brethren as the District Grand Stewards, and seven brethren as the District Grand Lodge Committee for the ensuing year.

The business for the evening being ended, the District Grand Lodge was closed in form at 8 p.m.

FIRST THINGS IN PHILADELPHIA.

The "City of Brotherly Love" has led the way in every Masonic movement on the American continent. Philadelphia had the first Master Masons' Lodge in America, in 1730—"The Hoop, Water Street"—which was No. 79 on the register of the Grand Lodge of England; the first Provincial Grand Master, Bro. Daniel Cox, appointed by the Duke of Norfolk, Grand Master of England, in 1730; the first Provincial Grand Lodge, in 1732, of which Bro. William Allen was elected Grand Master; the first Masonic Hall, erected on Lodge-alley, west of Second-street in 1754; the first Royal Arch Chapter—Jerusalem Chapter, No. 3 (the minutes of which are in existence of the year 1767, and which mention prior minutes); the first Grand Chapter—the Grand Chapter of Pennsylvania—organized in 1795; the first subordinate Commandery of Knights Templar—Philadelphia Encampment, No. 1, chartered February 14th, 1714; the first Grand Commandery, organized May 12th, 1797; and the first Masonic Periodical in America—"The Freemason's Magazine"—started in 1811. It is thus evident that all of the degrees of both Ancient Craft and Chivalric Masonry were first worked in America in the "City of Brotherly Love," and that here, also, Light was first dispensed among the Brethren by the Masonic Press. Philadelphia has richly earned the title of the "Mother City of Freemasonry in America."

THE LODGE AND THE WORLD.

When Bro. the Hon. F. Whitaker (a member of the New Zealand Cabinet), on November 28th, 1876, was constituted Provincial Grand Master of the North Island of New Zealand (Scottish Constitution), in the course of the address he delivered at the banquet afterwards he used this striking language: "I recently came from a place where there was a gathering of about the same number, but it was of a widely different character (the New Zealand House of Representatives). Here we are met in fellowship. There, there was nothing of the kind, and we fought—if I may be allowed to use the expression—like cats and dogs. But leaving politics out of the question, if I could take you there with me, you would see something which would surprise you, and I feel altogether greatly relieved in coming out of a house like that into a community like this, where we all feel alike. It is totally unlike what I have left, and I feel a certain amount of recreation in being amongst you. (Cheers.) I feel that I have come to a reunion of brethren, and feel that it is a happy occasion on which men of different religious beliefs and different political opinions can meet on a common platform, where all their endeavours are directed to one object—the benefit of each other and the benefit of the community—(cheers), without bickering or quarrelling, seeking the same end, the benefit of the Craft, and through the Craft of the world."

The consecration of the Stuart Lodge, No. 1632, and the installation of Bro. C. Stuart-Barker, jun., as W.M. will take place at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell New-road, on Saturday next, the 24th inst., at 3 o'clock. The ceremonies will be conducted by Bro. R. Wentworth Little, D.P.G.M. Middlesex, assisted by Bros. Rev. P. M. Holden, P.G. Chaplain Middlesex, and Hyde Pollen, P.G.S.B., and P.D.P.G.M. Isle of Wight. The musical arrangements will be under the conductorship of Bro. W. H. Hook, S.W. 186 and 1426.

The Confidence Lodge of Instruction has been removed to the "Whittington," Moor-lane, Fore-street, where, under the able preceptorship of Bro. Gottheil, the lodge will meet every Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock.

EASTER MONDAY REVIEW.—At a meeting of the Dover Town Council a letter was read from General Parke, stating that, in compliance with the Mayor's request, a review of the troops would take place on Easter Monday.

Mr. C. C. Rowe, the well-known manufacturer of oriole gold jewellery, has extended and improved his premises at No. 88, Brompton-road, South Kensington. The elegant productions of Mr. Rowe's establishment do not need recommendation from us.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.—Out of seven candidates who offered themselves for the collectorship of this institution, Bro. George Knill was unanimously elected.

Bro. Captain Mercier has retired from active connection with the Hospital Saturday Fund.

On Wednesday, at the Hereford Quarter Sessions, the magistrates passed a resolution petitioning the Privy Council for the prohibition of the importation of live cattle from foreign countries during the prevalence of the cattle plague on the continent.

Masonic and General Tidings.

An amateur dramatic performance in aid of the Masonic Charities, which was originally arranged for April the 21st, is postponed until Saturday, May 5th. The theatre chosen is the Opera Comique. We understand their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales have graciously consented to honour the performance with their presence.

ERRATUM.—Lord Limerick's name was inadvertently printed for that of Lord Carnarvon in a part of the report of Grand Lodge which appeared in our last. We are very sorry we have led any kind copyist into this little mistake.

The installations in connection with the Ancient Union Lodge, No. 203, Liverpool, and the Pembroke Lodge, No. 1292, West Derby, Near Liverpool, took place on Thursday last, the 15th inst. Reports of the proceedings will appear in our next issue.

COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR, DIARY AND POCKET BOOK.—This is the title of a comprehensive Masonic book of reference, published annually by Geo. Kenning, 198, Fleet Street, London. The issue for 1877 is before us, and is indeed a vade mecum for brethren who want to keep posted, and who may desire to refer to facts and statistics from time to time. This little work purports to contain full particulars of every Grand Masonic body throughout the Globe; and most certainly it supplies an important want in the Fraternity.—Freemasons' Repository.

The fourteenth anniversary of the marriage of the Prince and Princess of Wales was celebrated at Windsor on Saturday.

It is said that the Prince of Wales intends setting the fashion of holding fancy dress balls during the season.

PRESENTATION TO THE LATE TOWN CLERK OF MIDDLESBROUGH.—On Thursday evening a very massive and handsome silver double inkstand was presented to Br. Jno. T. Belk, bearing the following inscription, "Presented to Jno. T. Belk, Esq., by the officials connected with the Borough Surveyor's Department, as a token of their appreciation of his uniform kindness and courtesy during the eight years he held the office of Town Clerk of Middlesbrough, March, 1877."

The ordinary Half yearly General Meeting of the Crystal Palace District Gas Company will be held on Thursday the 29th inst., at the Albion Tavern, Aldersgate-street. The chair will be taken at half past two by Bro. Dr. Erasmus Wilson.

THE SHAKESPEARE NATIONAL MEMORIAL.

The 23rd of next month, the anniversary of the illustrious poet's birth and death, has been fixed for laying the foundation-stone at Stratford-on-Avon. The sub-committee met recently, and drew up a preliminary programme. It will be subject to alteration, but indicates the probable course of proceedings. Colonel Machen, D.G.M., of the Provincial Grand Lodge of Warwickshire, conferred with the committee as to the part to be taken by the Freemasons on the occasion, and it is understood there will be a very large assembly of the fraternity.

The Prince of Wales presided on Wednesday evening, at Willis's Rooms, at the Festival of the Association for the Oral Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, when subscriptions to the amount of over £3000 were announced. Bro. John Sutcliffe, of Grimsby, carried in the largest list, consisting of over forty guineas.

GRAND LODGE OF LOUISIANA.—The following Grand Officers have just been elected: Bros. Saml. J. Powell, of Bayou Sara, Grand Master; Edwin Marks, D.G.M.; Wm. B. Whitaker, S.G.W.; A. L. Abbott, J.G.W.; A. W. Hystt, G. Treas.; Jas. C. Batchelor, M.D., of New Orleans, G. Sec.

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—The Khedive on Wednesday last formally presented to the British nation, through the British Diplomatic Agent and Consul-General at Alexandria, the Obelisk known as Cleopatra's Needle.

ECLIPSE OF THE SUN.—On Thursday morning a partial eclipse of the sun took place. It was not visible in England.

It is stated that the office of Black Rod, vacant by the death of Sir A. Clifford, has been accepted by General Sir W. Knollys; and that the salary has been fixed at £2000 per annum, with the residence within the precincts of the palace of Westminster.

ACCIDENT TO LORD DUFFERIN.—A Reuter's telegram from Ottawa says:—The Earl of Dufferin met with an accident while walking on Wednesday, March 14. His lordship slipped and fell on the pavement, breaking a rib, and straining his ankle in the fall. The physician attending his Excellency pronounces that no serious result is to be anticipated from the accident.

The Bishop of Salisbury will, in consequence of illness, be unable to hold the confirmations which were fixed to take place this week in Dorsetshire.

It has been resolved in Dublin to send a deputation of Irish artisans to the Paris Exhibition, as had been done in the case of English artisans to the Philadelphia and Vienna Exhibitions.

A Shock of an earthquake, stated to have lasted a minute, was felt on Sunday morning in the island of Mull, and in the smaller islands of Coll and Tiree, Scotland.

The oldest Mason in England is stated to be Bro. Norris, Warden at the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, Croydon. He was born January 21, 1790, and made a Mason in the lodge of Sincerity, [No. 174, on March 10, 1812.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO OUR READERS.

The FREEMASON is a sixteen-page weekly newspaper, price 2d. It is published every Friday morning, and contains the most important, interesting, and useful information relating to Freemasonry in every degree. Annual subscription in the United Kingdom, Post free, 10/6.

P.O.O.'s to be made payable at the chief office, London.

NEW POSTAL RATES.

The Freemason,

SATURDAY, MAR. 17, 1877.

AN IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

It will be seen in our correspondence last week that the Secretary to the Board of Inland Revenue has, in reply to a query, stated that for all payments above £2 stamped receipts must be given. We therefore think it well to call the notice of our W.M.'s and Treasurers of lodges to this serious and pressing question, since, as Freemasons, we always obey the laws of the land, we must not actually, or even by implication, appear to break them.

THE LAST QUARTERLY COMMUNICATION.

Our last Quarterly Communication passed over, amid a brilliant gathering, with great unanimity and éclat. Our Royal Grand Master was unanimously and enthusiastically re-elected, and duly proclaimed by our distinguished Bro. Sir Albert Woods. Our most esteemed Grand Treasurer, to whom the best thanks of the Craft are due, was also unanimously re-elected, with loud demonstrations of hearty acceptance and applause. The grant of £4000 for the two life-boats, as a grateful act of recognition, was unanimously agreed to, and the picture of our Royal Grand Master, painted by Bro. Desanges, a gift of the Lodge of Friendship, No. 6, was unveiled amid the hearty cheers of Grand Lodge. The needful business was transacted, two appeals were decided after the lucid explanations of our distinguished Grand Registrar, and then the Grand Lodge took up the notices of motion. Our Excellent Bro. Hatch could not find a seconder to his motion, which, as we ventured to say last week, was inopportune, and could hardly be seriously argued (with all respect to our good brother) and so it fell to the ground. Bro. Mallam wisely withdrew his motion, and the proceedings of Grand Lodge, which had begun in peace and goodwill, ended in hearty unanimity and concord, to the entire satisfaction of all present. Long may our Masonic Parliament pursue the even tenour of its way in all of genial harmony and brotherly love.

THE CAMBRIDGE LOCAL EXAMINATION AND THE BOYS' SCHOOL.

We rejoice much to hear of the successful result of this examination as regards the Boys' School. Out of 28 candidates 26 passed, a very large proportion, and of these 26, 1 was on the senior and 25 were on the junior list. 14 of the 25 juniors gained a place on the honour list, 2 in the 1st class, 3 in the 2nd class, 9 in the 3rd class. Such a report perhaps tells us, as well as anything can tell, especially to "experts," as to the quality of the work and the steady "all-through system" of the school: and we congratulate the executive and the master, Dr. Morris, on this striking test and happy evidence of meritorious labours and scholastic attainments.

THE HEBREW QUESTION IN GERMANY.

We are somewhat taken to task by a writer, C.H., in the Bauhütte, March 10, for the ignorance in England, and editorially of the exact state of affairs in Germany. But if he will read with reference to this question the articles over again carefully, he will see that we only wished to make "assurance doubly sure," as we had ourselves no doubt whatever of the real position of the controversy. No doubt much ignorance exists in England as to the exactness of the allegations made, simply because so many contradictory statements are put forward, and by German Masons, too, in England and the United States, in letters to newspapers, in articles in magazines. It is, then, a fact, as we understood it, that the "Great Countries Lodge" of Germany is the only Grand Lodge in which Hebrews cannot be admitted to initiation, though they can be admitted as visiting brethren. Under all the other seven Grand Lodges and the five separate lodges Hebrews are admitted into Freemasonry. The Great Countries Lodge, the "Gr. Landes Loge von Deutschland," still formally excludes Hebrews, inasmuch as the required majority of two-thirds was not forthcoming at the last effort to alter the Constitution. This is exactly how we understand the case to be, but we wrote "ad referendum," and for information, as we were unwilling to seem dogmatically to contradict others who affected to be well acquainted with the present state of German Freemasonry. We are still in hopes that the "Great Countries Lodge" will, like the other Grand Lodges, do away with (on the grounds of justice, fairness, true toleration, and Cosmopolitan Freemasonry), the exclusion of Hebrews, and then, as far as we are ourselves concerned in England, our interest in the matter will cease. For we cannot go along with C. H. in attacking the High Grade System, because it is a High Grade System. We believe that Freemasonry teaches us toleration, and that we should be tolerant of the High Grade System, or of anything else from which we differ. We speak freely on the subject, as we are only pure Craft Masons ourselves, and do not belong to the High Grades. But we do say this distinctly, that the High Grades have as much a right "ipse facto," to exist, as Craft Masonry, and though C. H. evidently does not like the High Grades, that is nothing to the point, as it is only after all the expression of private judgment "quantum valet." We cannot dogmatise on the subject, and seek to excommunicate High Grade Masons, because we dislike their teaching, for when we do so we only imitate the bigotry of the Ultramontanes. As for waging a war against the Gr. Landes Loge von Deutschland, because it maintains the teaching of a High Grade system, and has united it with symbolical Masonry, we have no mission to do so, inasmuch as it is a legal Grand Lodge, and has a right to make its own laws, and use its own system. Neither do we wish to enter into the actual contest between Bro. Schiffmann and the Great Countries Lodge. Bro. Schiffmann is no doubt a most honest and conscientious brother, and on the abstract question of actual intolerance we heartily go with him, but we do not see our way, to join those who are attacking the Gr. Landes Loge, not for what it has done, but for what it is per se. We disapprove heartily of its existing constitution, and wish it speedily amended, and trust that the necessary majority of two-thirds may be ere long obtained, but we do not attack any system because it is a system which we differ from, and with which we do not sympathise. Vain, then, would be all our professions of unlimited toleration! In fact, we go back to our old position. The whole mischief arises from the attempt to combine two antagonistic systems. We repeat what we said before, that High Grades and Craft Grades cannot be governed by the same authority, and must be separated, and then no such question can arise. We in England are very practical, and merely look at things from their concrete side. We wish equal rights for all, and while we regret deeply the exclusion of the Hebrews as a great mistake, and as a greater wrong, we feel that the High Grades, (though altogether beyond Craft Masonry), have a right to be tolerated and upheld as well as anybody else.

A BREACH OF PROMISE.

The newspapers record an amusing trial which has taken place at Bodmin before Mr. Justice Hawkins, and which suggests some considerations which strike us as alike novel and improving. The case, says the report, was principally remarkable for the age of the intended bride and bridegroom. The plaintiff was not pressed as to her age, but she admitted she was more than 70. The defendant avowed himself to be 67, and volunteered the information that the plaintiff was ten years older. She is the widow of a cabinetmaker, who died five or six years ago, leaving her three small houses near Penzance, in one of which she resided. According to her account she had known the defendant in her youth, and met him again at a friend's house in April last. Some one then, whether in jest or earnest did not appear, suggested a match. The idea seems to have impressed the defendant, for about six weeks after he called and proposed to the plaintiff, who, after a little coy hesitation, consented. The defendant then went to live as a lodger in the house next door to the one the plaintiff occupied. The banns were put up, the ring bought, and a wedding dress and bonnet, which were paid for by the defendant, as were also the wedding-cake, some pounds of beef, and a gallon of brandy for the wedding feast. The two had a tiff some days before Tuesday, the 1st of August, for which the marriage was fixed, and again on what was to be the last Sunday of their unmarried life, when the defendant dined with the plaintiff, and she made a beefsteak-pie, and he declared it was not fit to eat and that it made him ill. The plaintiff said, however, that this was a mere lovers' quarrel, and that the first she heard of the defendant's intention to cry off was that on the Monday night he declared to some one that "it was as broad as it was long, and that his name was Walker." On the Tuesday, when he should have got up and gone in a fly to church, he stopped in bed and declared he was too ill, until the driver, tired of waiting, drove away, when, according to the plaintiff's account, the defendant suddenly recovered and got up and took himself off. The laughter which had greeted this strange tale, and the still stranger appearance of the no longer youthful plaintiff, and the fervent way in which she affirmed that on the first of August she was quite ready and willing to marry the defendant, and added, "but, of course, when he would not have me, I could not have him," was redoubled when the defendant went into the box to give his version of the affair. With regard to his pecuniary position, he declared that he only had a Post Office annuity of about £1 a week; that he had been lame for some years and wanted some one to look after him, and thought "Nanny" (the plaintiff) would do, but that the match was broken off entirely by her as she found she had enough to do to look after herself; and that it was all a joke on her part which he thought had been carried too far. He hinted further that the too high seasoning of the Sunday pie was done purposely by the plaintiff, and he described by voice and action his sufferings from this cause. The defendant admitted in cross-examination and after some pressing, that he had a sum which might be £700 in Bolitho's bank. Witnesses were called on both sides to confirm the stories told by the two principals. At the close of the case the jury very speedily announced that they agreed as to their verdict, but not as to the amount. After three hours' consideration they fixed this at £10. An application was made for an order that the plaintiff should have her costs, but this was strongly opposed on the ground that the action should never have been brought. The learned Judge reserved his opinion as to this for further consideration. We confess, when we perused this striking account of a very peculiar trial, we felt not a little nervous and alarmed. Is there no limit, we "asked mentally," to the age, when some fair complainant can sue that deceptive biped, man? If a stout "old gal" of 76 can get £10 damages from a compassionate jury of her fellow countrymen, what will an alert and ancient party of 80 obtain? It seems that there is no limit as to age, so that practically no one is safe, though we had previously understood that above 44, at any rate, the man might plead the "statute of limitations." In this, however, we are clearly wrong, and we hope that the result of this last trial will be a warning to all gay Lotharios and unprincipled deceivers, whether Masons or others, who seem sometimes to forget that age has its privileges as well as youth, and that an injured female of 76, injured in loss of affection, prestige, &c., &c., that is despite her many years, can still claim pecuniary damages from a fickle and faithless young man.

SERGEANTS' INN.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Has it ever occurred to any of your readers to endeavour to secure Sergeants' Inn as a Masonic Hall for the lodges in the City of London?

If the complaints are well founded about want of accommodation at Freemasons' Hall, why not form a City company and make that historical hall the centre of our Masonic City life and work?

Yours fraternally,

CIVIS LATOMICUS.

THE GIRLS' SCHOOL.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I quite agree with the remarks in Bro. C. Tomb's letter in your last number, and unless it can be shown that all the girls are pretty sure to be married to men who will be able to keep a first-class cook (which is very unlikely) there is no doubt they would all be very much better qualified to "add" to the happiness and comfort of a home of their own by being able, if required, to cook a plain dinner, or to instruct their own cook how to do so. There are too many ladies now who can pretend to talk French, &c., but are perfectly at a loss how properly to order a dinner, much more to cook one. The importance of this deficiency in their education is being so thoroughly acknowledged, that hundreds are now taking lessons and adding this useful knowledge to their previously acquired accomplishments.

I shall be glad to see some other brother's remarks on this important subject, and then, after a free discussion, we shall be glad to see an article or remarks from you, Mr. Editor.

It is scarcely fair on your part to rise up in arms at once, as you have done at the foot of Bro. Tomb's letter, for he says distinctly he does not find fault with the education given, but wishes that this practical education should be added, and "not to leave the other undone."

I am, yours fraternally,

CHAS. FENDELOW.

[We think that there is some mistake about the children not learning to cook. We quite agree that a knowledge of cookery is most desirable.—Ed.]

A CORRECTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

On looking over the Freemason of March 10, 1877, I found, in page 99, a clerical error, at least I suppose: so, of such importance, that it should be rectified:—

"In a congregation held at Oxford on Saturday last the degrees of Bachelor of Divinity and Bachelor of Arts were conferred on Bro. the Right Hon. Lord Donoughmore. S.G.W." (P.S.—"Bachelor" is more in use now).

It should be MASTER OF ARTS, for none but a clergyman can be B.D.

I am sure you will excuse my pointing this out to you.

Yours most fraternally,

AUGUSTUS A. BAGSHAW, M.A.,
P.M., P.Z. 1235, P.P.S.G.W., and P.P.
G. Chap. Derbyshire.

TO HUNGARIAN BRETHREN.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

As the following appears in the "Hajnal" of February, and is the only "morceau" not translated into German, perhaps some kind Hungarian brother will translate it for the benefit of yours fraternally,

CARPATHIANUS.

A „Freemason“ egy hire szerint Ujseeland nagymestere engedélyt adott egy új páholy alakulására „Kumará“-ban. E hír magában véve nem reudkivüli; de érdekessé teszi az, hogy „Kumara“ egy nem rég felfedezett aranytermő vidék mintegy 80 mértöldnyire Hokitikatól, s már is 7000 lakossal bír, kik közül 50-nél többen szövetségünk tagjai.

A SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Permit me to throw out a suggestion which may effect three objects:—

1st. To promote economy in the expenditure of our Charities.

2nd. To give a pleasing variety to our festival entertainments.

3rd. To further the improvement and the happiness of our Boys' and Girls' Schools.

The engagements of skilled professionals to conduct the musical portion of the entertainments at our three festivals costs the Charities close on £100 a year.

Instead of this arrangement, why should we not have, say a dozen of our boys and of our girls previously well trained, brought in to sing part songs, &c., with a simplicity and sweetness for which children's voices are pre-eminently proverbial.

And as a large portion of the company on such occasions consists of ladies, and all the company have many opportunities of hearing professional performances, it is to be supposed that the presence and the efforts of our Masonic children would awaken special interest and produce a most pleasing variety.

To the children themselves it would be a great treat and a stimulus to their progress in music, while to the funds of each Charity it would certainly be a great relief.

The adoption of this plan would probably add to the funds of the Charity rather than take from them. And I may add, that an institution with which I am connected effected this change with great pleasure to the children and their friends, and decided profit to its funds.

I am, dear Sir and Brother, fraternally yours,

R. J. SIMPSON, P.G.C.

UNITED GRAND LODGE.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in your issue of March 10th, that you hope to comment on the last Quarterly Communication in your next. May I be allowed to suggest that it will be interesting to your readers to be informed whose portrait has just filled up the tenth compartment of Freemason's Hall. Many doubtless will know, and others will imagine, but the fact would certainly be best confirmed in your world-wide columns. The portrait emanates from the Lodge of Friendship; there are many bearing that name; am I right in presuming it is Lodge of Friendship, No. 6? I am sorry to trouble you, but the report of last Grand Lodge does not appear definite on these points.

Fraternally yours,

J. E. J. 1458.

[The portrait is that of H.R.H. our Grand Master, the Prince of Wales.—Ed.]

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Just one line to say that in my reply to "R.W.O.'s" question as to P.P.G. Stewards, I did not intend to offend him, but finding, from the tenor of his letter, that I have unintentionally done so, I apologize accordingly.

I take this opportunity to inform "Rough Ashlar" that he can get a cheap edition of the Book of Constitutions, at Grand Sec's. Office or through the publisher of this paper. I agree with him that a copy should be given to initiates, and during my Mastership of two lodges I always handed one to the initiate to keep.

Yours fraternally,

MAGNUS OHREN.

P.M. 33 & 452.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,

I notice in yours of last Saturday a letter from "F.L.E.J.," in which he states that the ritual of initiation is not complied with unless a copy of Constitutions, as well as the bye-laws of the lodge, are handed to each initiate for perusal at his leisure.

If this is correct, I am afraid the ritual is often neglected, as in my own case, and many others I know, the bye-laws of the lodge only have been presented; and should it be necessary to have both, as "F.L.E.J." asserts, I shall feel obliged if either "F.L.E.J." or any other brother will kindly give the page, &c., in the Book of Constitutions where the instruction for so doing is given, so as to enable me to draw W.M.'s attention to this neglect. I may also inform "F.L.E.J." that I have never seen but one copy, and that in the hands of our W.M.

Yours fraternally,

STEWART.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Will any brother kindly inform me what are the essential points to be observed in the investment of a Steward, for instance, is it necessary that the brother, after he has received his appointment from the W.M. elect, and accepted it by post, that he should be present at the installation, or any lodge night afterwards, and be invested in open lodge? Or is it necessary that his name should appear in the minute book as having been appointed? and oblige, yours fraternally,

J. D. T.

[As a rule Stewards are invested with the other officers. A record of his appointment by the W.M. appears, of course, on the lodge minute book.—Ed.]

A correspondent of the Masonic Record of Western India sends the following:—

Dear Sir and Brother,—Could you or any of your readers give me correct advice as to how I should act in the following case?

There are two lodges working within a short distance of each other. One, the senior, under the E.C., the other under the S.C. Mr. A. is proposed for initiation in the former, and is blackballed. Shortly after he is proposed accepted, and initiated in the latter. Would I, if I were ruling the Lodge E.C., at the time, be justified in refusing admission to Bro. A. in case he came as a visiting brother, or would I be obliged to admit him? If I could have this point settled authoritatively through the columns of your valuable journal, I would be much obliged. It is one which might arise, and has therefore exercised me much.

[We should say you must admit him.—Ed.]

MASONIC TOASTS DRUNK AT HOLLOWELL ON THE FESTIVAL OF ST. JOHN.

1st.—George Washington, the Illustrious Grand Master of America, may his Masonic virtues never forsake him in this world, and may they be productive of a rich inheritance in the Grand Lodge above.

2nd.—The Fraternity throughout the Globe. May they be wholly governed by the principles of their profession, act on the square of conscientious motives, and live within the compass of truth.

3rd.—The Clergy. As our institution is grounded on the immutable doctrines of religion and mortality, may the ambassadors of Christ without the pale of the fraternity be charitable in their sentiments.

4th.—The Widow's Son. May all Masons be faithful, and, if necessary, suffer martyrdom in defence of a good life.

5th.—The Virtuous Fair. As they appear to Masons as so many Queens of Sheba, may Masons be viewed by them as so many Solomons.

6th.—All Distressed Brethren. In every brother may they find a protector, and in every misfortune the balm of charity.

7th.—May every Free and Accepted Mason rise in the East, find refreshment in the South, be dismissed in the West, and then admitted into the middle chamber to receive the reward of a good man.

8th.—May the fragrance of a good report like a sprig of Cassia bloom over the head of every departed brother. [Can any brother tell us where Hollowell is?—J.H.T.]

GRAND LODGE.

A SKETCH.

By our V.P.C.*

"What's in a name?" But, before proceeding to press so obviously pertinent a question, it would be as well, perhaps, to answer another that has, or might have been, put to the Editor of the journal to which I have the honour of forwarding these occasional jottings, as to whatever earthly (or unearthly†) reason there should be for their appearance at all when there is so lucid a report given by the (other) regular contributor to the journal in question? Well, it is for that very identical reason—that it is so lucid—that this other report is compelled to see the light. Whether the London fog is to blame is not yet precisely ascertained, but there can be but little doubt that it is the active cause of this present necessity. A thing that is outside cannot at the same time be in, and—

"Nice or nasty, Viceroy-Varsey."

as the sublime poet has remarked. Consequently, the reporter's head in [London, having] fog outside, is preternaturally clear within, and the proceedings represented by him, whilst understood by his London brethren, are not always so clear to us in the country, who have no fog without, and, consequently, plenty —; but perhaps I have said sufficient on this score to make my meaning pleasantly clear to all as to the appearance of these sketches, and I will therefore proceed to again put the question, "What's in a name?" to which, this time, instead of digressing, I most truthfully answer—"Ah! what, indeed? Surely—

"The Clothes ‡ by any other name would look as sweet, But parallels (however far and in whatever direction) produced would never meet!"

I don't know who said this, but it exactly expresses what I mean—namely, meet the approbation of everybody, which brings me to the consideration of a most important discussion recently started in your correspondence columns respecting the levels, perpendiculars, or taut-t'-other-way-up, on our aprons; or, what is the same thing at this present juncture, what came of it. I feel sure that the worthy brother who started that discussion was quite right, and the Constitutions, antiquated as they are, quite wrong; because what is level must be perpendicular to something, but then only when it is the other way round, or else it would still be level; so I got my housekeeper to carefully turn mine the other way up, thinking that if Grand Lodge did not know what was right, I would show them. I didn't a bit mind an absurd conundrum of some profane brother,—"Why is our brother's apron like a certain advertised economical commodity?" Answer: "Because it's compressed T's" (of which absurdity he gave, as explanation, that the T's had such compressed tails). But could it be believed that those "scrutinising" gentlemen, chosen for their nice discrimination, insisted on my apron being restored to its normal condition? It was useless remonstrating that I did not wish to state that its name or mine was either Normal or even Norval; equally fruitless to point out that, looking at it from my point of view (§) the T's were all right, and that if the objectors put themselves in the same position it would be the same to them. Nothing would do but that it must be altered. Wasn't there just a hunt for pins? and won't those scrutineers who see to the hats, &c., remember me? that's all!

However, at last I got in, but only to find standing room, and barely that; and it was quite evident that something of an unusual character was about to occupy the attention of the brethren.

The election of our revered and beloved Prince as Grand Master was of course unanimous; but I was shamefully cut out from making a speech that it had taken me at least a month to compose, and six weeks more to learn for the occasion. I tried in vain to catch the eye of somebody or other who might give the Chairman a hint that a really country brother wanted to have a share in the talking, but I could not succeed. However, the speech will do for some other occasion, and when I come to think of it, I might say with our own immortal one (I mean respecting the eulogy I should have uttered)—

"To paint mosaic gold,

Gild the tip-tilted petal of the lily pure,

* Our Very Provincial Correspondent.

† Qy. By Our Printer's Devil.

‡ Qy. Clothing.—O.P.D.

§ Certainly! (Remark by O.P.D.)

¶ From above. (Remark by O.V.P.C.)

Wash white the leopard, take ink spots from the nigger,
Restore the elephant his teeth decay'd,
Letting 'I wish' wait on 'I couldn't if I would,'
Like the cat 'I the attics!'" and a lot more of the same lofty sentiments.

My reason, if you would like to know it, that I really wanted to say something, was because Jones of our lodge said that P. Fry Smith (meaning me) was like the sailor's parrot—might be "a beggar to think," but stopped at that, for he hadn't much to say. Doubtless it's just as well as it is, for if I had succeeded they might have quoted somebody else, and declared that I, like a good many other speakers, could only—

"Grate on my scannel pipes of wretched straw

Whilst th' hungry sheep looked up and were not fed."

That, however, won't hold true so long as this old mill can grind up the aforesaid "wretched straws" into anything like toothsome "chaff."

We soon after this got to the main business of the evening, the confirming the minutes about our Grand Master's Memorial, when the entire assembly was so unanimous that I could only exclaim "Othello's occupation's gone," and make up my mind to bury my bauble, or war-hatchet, or thyrus, or tomahawk, or calamus, or pipe, or stylus, or—ah! the last is about my style I think, so I'll e'en stick to that.

But this retirement I soon found to be denied me, for in an appeal case the Board of General Purposes found it necessary to become particular as to what peculiar kind of cases their attention could be generally called.

And then an old friend made an awfully generous proposal, to build a temple that would hold everybody, and please everybody, in or out of any given number of years, at any cost, without putting anybody to any expense; it was to be on the Thames Embankment, or anywhere else. I was going to propose Goodwin Sands as an eligible and easily accessible spot, and one, too, susceptible of a good deal of solid improvement; but as nobody seconded my friend's proposal it fell to the ground, into "The basement story of a vision,

It was a pity my amendment couldn't have been put in its place, for the spot I've mentioned would have at least made the wished for "wreck."

Another brother was for tacking on a wing to somebody else's house, by way of dissipating a little spare cash; to which said dissipation Grand Lodge was in far too proper a frame of mind to lend an ear, and so having closed in proper shape we broke up and retired, feeling if not "sadder," most certainly "wiser men" than on previous occasions, to describe the work and talk of which accurately makes me fain to use the words of honest Jack Falstaff,

"What! only a ha'porth of sack

To all this bread?"

THE LANGTHORNE MASONIC CHARITABLE ASSOCIATION.

The first anniversary meeting of this prosperous association was held at the Swan Hotel, Stratford, on Wednesday, the 28th ult. The annual report and balance sheet disclose the simple fact, that in the first year of the operations of this association the large sum of £247 has been presented to the charitable institutions through its agency.

Bro. J. G. Stevens, the President, in his opening remarks, explained the objects of this, and kindred associations, to be that every member, by subscribing 1s. per week for something like 4 years, would become a Life Governor of one of the charities. The appropriations in this particular association have averaged two per month since its formation, and such a result must be highly gratifying to the charities, and equally so to all those who have obtained a Life Governorship through its instrumentality. The working expenses of this, the most expensive year of the association's operations, have amounted to only £4 14s. 6d.; the committee are to be congratulated on having achieved so grand a result at so small an outlay.

The committee and officers were unanimously re-elected, and after two ballots being taken adjourned to dinner, presided over by the working President, J. G. Stevens, the vice chair being occupied by the Vice President, W. A. Thorp, the Chairman being supported by the Treasurer, Bro. C. Lacey, Binckes, Sec. R.M.I.B., and Terry, R.M.B.I.; and a company of over 30 members of the Craft in the neighbourhood.

After the usual toasts, the President proposed the toast of the evening, "Success to the Langthorne Masonic Charitable Association," coupling [the name of the Treasurer, Bro. Chacey, who duly responded, and remarked upon the advantages to be derived through its agency; as a fact he had himself been enabled to become Vice-President of one and Governor of the two other charities by such means.

The next important toast was "The Charities," and in proposing it the President paid a high tribute to the three Secretaries, more especially to Bro. Terry, who had obtained the splendid sum of £13,000 at his last festival, and the President further stated that he hoped Bro. Binckes and Little would not be downcast at such a grand result but would go in and get if possible £20,000 each.

Bro. Binckes being obliged to leave, Bro. Terry responded for the three Charities, and was warm in his commendations of the association under whose auspices they had met, relating his experience while Hon. Secretary of three similar associations, and trusted that the brethren would rally round and bring this to a successful termination; and as an encouragement to brethren in all positions in life he would state, as a fact, that a most distinguished peer of the realm thought it not beneath his dignity to subscribe his 1s. per week to one of these associations: He also said the popular opinion is that Freemasons are a selfish race of men, but the proposals now under consideration for commemorating the safe return of our M.W. G.M. from India is sufficient answer to this, and abundantly shows the catholicity of Freemasons.

The toasts of "The Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Hon. Sec.," and others, brought this, the first annual meeting, to a conclusion.

CONSECRATION OF THE CROYDON MARK MASTER'S LODGE, No. 198.

An important addition to the number of lodges on the roll of the Grand Mark Lodge of England was made on Friday, the 9th inst., at the Greyhound Hotel, Croydon. On the strong recommendation of the R.W. Provincial Grand Mark Master for Middlesex and Surrey, Bro. Col. Francis Burdett, a charter, or warrant, was granted to several members of the Macdonald Mark Lodge, No. 104, whose residences are in the locality of Croydon, and the V.W. Bro. Frederick Binckes, P.G.W. and Grand Mark Secretary, was appointed by the M.W.G.M.M. to consecrate the new "Croydon" Mark Lodge, No. 198.

An influential gathering of distinguished members of the Order attended to support the Consecrating Officer, amongst whom were the V.W. Bro. Frederic Davison, Dep. Prov. G.M.M.; the V.W. Bro. Thomas Meggy, P.G.M.O., and P.M. 104; the V.W. Bro. James Stevens, P.G.J.O., P.M. 104 and 139; the V.W. Bro. B. C. Dibdin, P.G.O.; the W. Bro. W. H. Binckes, Asst. Grand Sec.; W. Bros. Spencer, Poore, F. Cozens, G. Yaxley, J. Close, J. K. Pitt, and G. Lilley. Past and Present Grand Officers; Bros. Sheadd, Nicholls, Brown, Griffiths, Legg, Pocock, Purvis, Long, Lake, Haddock, and others.

The brethren having assembled in the lodge-room, Bro. Binckes, as W.M., appointed Bros. Meggy as S.W., and Stevens as J.W., and proceeded to open a Mark Master's Lodge, and then called upon the Assistant Grand Secretary to read the new warrants and inform the brethren as to the proceedings taken in respect of the formation of the lodge.

The principal officers designate having been approved of by those present, Bro. Binckes in his customary effective style performed the full ceremony of consecration, and completed his work by formally dedicating and constituting the Croydon Lodge to the purposes of Mark Masonry. Bro. F. H. Cozens, Grand Organist, then played the concluding (Hallelujah) chorus.

After a brief interval the ceremony of installation was commenced, and Bro. George Yaxley, the W.M. designate, was duly installed into the chair of A. by Bro. Binckes. The S.W. designate, Bro. John Close, and J.W. designate, Bro. J. K. Pitt were severally invested, and the offices of Overseers and Deacons were filled. Bro. Thomas Meggy assisted the Installing Master in the delivery of the addresses to the officers.

A list of thirteen candidates was placed on the summons, of whom nine brethren were in attendance, and these were introduced, and, at the request of the W.M., advanced to the honourable degree by Bro. James Stevens, with full ceremonial and musical accompaniment.

The whole of the impressive business of the consecration, installation, and advancement was carried out with all that perfection which the well-known working ability of Bros. Binckes, Meggy, Stevens, Poore, and Dibdin would ensure, and the satisfaction of the brethren of the new lodge was not only heartily expressed in words, but was confirmed by the unanimous election of those brethren as honorary members.

The presence of the Deputy Prov. G.M.M. was suitably acknowledged, and Bro. Davison received a cordial Masonic salute.

The thanks of the lodge were voted to Bro. H. W. Binckes for his services as acting Secretary.

Several propositions for advancement were received, and after some few matters of routine business had been disposed of, the brethren adjourned to partake of banquet, under the able presidency of the W.M., Bro. Yaxley. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, and a very agreeable evening spent by the numerous brethren who had the good fortune to be present on this auspicious occasion.

The increase of lodges connected with the Order of Mark Masonry has been, under the genial sway of several noble and eminent Grand Masters, very great during the past few years, and from the zeal and efficiency of the Master and Wardens of the Croydon Lodge, we augur that the new addition to the strength of the Order, though the last on the minute roll, will not be the least in point of importance for the degree.

THE EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS.

We have been requested to publish the following communication:—

8, Bloomsbury Place, London, W.C.,
5th March, 1877.

Dear Sir and Brother,

A Committee having been appointed by the Montefiore Lodge, No. 1017, to carry out the objects mentioned in the accompanying resolutions, I beg to enclose herewith a copy of the petition, and respectfully request you will submit it to the consideration of the members of your lodge. Should it meet with their approval, I shall be glad if you will sign the same and return it to me at your earliest convenience.

Yours fraternally,
S. V. Abraham, P.M.

Resolved unanimously:—

1. That it appearing by the Book of Constitutions of the Three Grand Lodges of Freemasons in Germany, held at Berlin, that those only professing Christianity are eligible to become members of the Craft, or to join the subordinate lodges in Germany; this Lodge of Freemasons, assembled under the Constitution of the Grand Lodge of England, with every feeling of fraternal regard for their brethren in Germany, hereby enters its most solemn protest against any law which prevents any properly qualified person from joining the Order on account of his religious belief, such exclusion being, in the opinion of this lodge, contrary to the fundamental principles of Freemasonry.

2. That with a view of obtaining the repeal of what appears to be a most obnoxious law, a petition be prepared for presentation to the Grand Lodge of England asking them to take such steps in the matter as in their judgment they may think advisable, and that such petition be first submitted to the various lodges in Great Britain, requesting their co-operation.

3. That a Committee of six be appointed for the purpose of carrying out the above resolutions, and that the sum of £5 is hereby voted for defraying the preliminary expenses.

That the Committee consist of Bros. Victor Myers, W.M.; Gulliford, S.W.; Lazarus, P.M.; J.W.; S. V. Abraham, P.M.; Pollitzer, P.M.; Lewis Jacobs, Treas.; Matthias Levy, Hon. Sec.

The following is a copy of the petition:—

To the Most Worshipful H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, K.G., &c., Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England; The Right Hon. the Earl of Carnarvon, Prov. Grand Master; the Right Hon. Lord Skelmersdale, Deputy Grand Master; the Present and Past Grand Officers and Members of the Grand Lodge of England.

We, the undersigned, Masters, Wardens, Officers, and Members of the various Lodges, make declaration as follows:—

That it has come to our knowledge, that certain lodges under the Constitution of the Grand Lodges in Germany, held at Berlin, exclude from the benefits of Freemasonry all persons except those professing Christianity.

And it appearing to your petitioners that many good and worthy men are thus necessarily debarred from entering into the Order or enjoying its advantages, and that the Craft is likewise deprived of the assistance and usefulness of many intelligent and influential persons:

Your petitioners beg to call the attention of Grand Lodge thereto, and most earnestly and respectfully solicit that Grand Lodge will take the same into their serious consideration, and will use such means as may be deemed by them most advisable to secure a permanent and satisfactory alteration of the laws of the said Grand Lodges of Germany, which laws, your petitioners humbly submit, are in their present rendering contrary to the first principles of Freemasonry.

Signed, W.M., on behalf of the Lodge No.
March, 1877.

ROYAL MASONIC BENEVOLENT INSTITUTION.

The Committee of this Institution held its monthly meeting on Wednesday last, in the Board Room, Freemasons' Hall. Bro. Col. Creaton, V.P., presided. There were also present Bros. Raynham W. Stewart, Griffiths Smith, Thomas W. White, Hyde Pullen, John G. Stevens, S. Rawson, E. J. Barrow, Charles Lacey, William Hale, A. J. Duff Filer, A. H. Tattershall, William Stephens, George Bolton, G. M. E. Snow, H. G. Warren, H. Browne, Thos. Cabitt, J. Levy, F. Adlard, Joshua Nunn, Benj. Head, Joseph Smith, E. C. Woodward, J. M. Case, John W. Dennison, Charles G. Hill, J. Newton, L. Stean, Charles G. Rushworth, A. A. Richards, Wm. Hilton, John Constable, J. A. Farnfield, H. Massey (Freemason), John Bellerby, R. W. Little, Dr. Erasmus Wilson, Dr. Jabez Hogg, J. E. Gallant, William F. Nettleship, and James Terry, Secretary.

After the reading and confirmation of the minutes, Bro. Terry reported the death of three annuitants, Bro. Richard Graves, London, after having received £66 annuities, Bro. S. M. Shrubsole, Faversham, £333, and Mrs. Morton, London, £80.

It having been reported that the recent heavy rains had materially damaged the buildings at Croydon, the House Committee inspected and reported upon the same, and after some slight discussion it was resolved that the repairs be done at once.

One widow's petition for the grant of half of her late husband's annuity was accepted, and the prayer thereof acceded to.

The following report of sub-committee appointed on the 14th February, 1877, to inquire into the duties and emoluments of the future collector was then put in and taken as read:—

Your sub-committee beg to report that in pursuance of directions given to them at the last meeting, they met on the 20th February last, and carefully considered the question as to the appointment of a collector, and his duties and emoluments; and they unanimously agreed to the following:—

1. That a collector should be appointed.
2. That he must be a Master Mason.
3. That his age should not exceed 40 years at the time of his appointment.
- 4.—That his duties be to collect all the annual subscriptions and donations remaining unpaid upon the Steward's lists at the Anniversary Festivals, and to give receipts for the same.
- 5.—To attend at the office on Tuesdays and Fridays throughout the year, between the hours of 11 and 2, to see the subscribers and donors.
- 6.—To keep the alphabetical register of the subscribers and donors, as well as of lodges and individuals.
- 7.—To attend the office and render assistance when required by the Secretary, and the state of the collection will permit.

8.—To give security for £500 in some approved Guarantee Society.

9.—To be paid a commission of 4 per cent. upon all sums actually received by him—and not upon any amounts received by the Secretary.

Your Sub-committee accordingly recommend the foregoing for the favourable consideration of the Committee, with a view to its adoption by them.

JOHN CREATON, V. Patron, Chairman.

All the clauses of this report were then discussed, and the only material alteration made in it was the fixing of the collector's commission at 5 per cent. instead of 4 per cent.

The elections then took place. There were seven candidates, but the choice of the brethren unanimously fell on Bro. George Knill.

Bro. George Snow asked the chairman whether he had received any lottery books containing shilling tickets for life-governorships. He had received them, and he thought it was a very derogatory practice to adopt, and hoped it would be put a stop to.

On the motion of Bro. Raynham W. Stewart, it was decided to have the usual Stewards' Festival at the Asylum at Croydon.

Bro. Joshua Nunn moved, according to notice, "That the sum of £100 be paid to the widow of Bro. William Lane, late collector." In addition to what he had said in Bro. Lane's favour at the last meeting, when he gave notice of this motion, he said in form that he thought that two years ago Bro. Lane, of his own free will and at his own suggestion, benefited the Institution to the amount of £170 by giving up two per cent. of his commission on certain amounts of subscriptions. He was entitled to five per cent., and he took only three per cent. The action of Bro. Lane's widow since her husband's death had been such as to meet the high approbation of the brethren, and any good they could bestow on her was well merited.

Bro. Raynham W. Stewart seconded the motion, which was put and carried unanimously.

On Bro. Farnfield's report as to the difficulties being thrown in the way of the Institution with respect to acquiring the piece of ground in front of the Asylum at Croydon, the brethren resolved to abandon the idea of taking it.

A vote of thanks to the Chairman concluded the proceedings.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. J. HANNAH.

On Friday, the 9th inst, an interesting meeting of the Freemasons of Warrington was held at the Lion Hotel. The chair was occupied by Bro. John Bowes, P.M., P.Z., P.J.G.W. of Cumberland and Westmorland. The following brethren, forming the Testimonial Committee, were present:—Bros. Thomas Tunstall, W.M. 148; Charles Crosier, W.M. 1250; W. S. Hawkins, P.M.; W. Richardson, P.M.; D. W. Finney, P.M., P.Z.; W. Woods, P.M.; R. Brierley, P.M.; Joseph Pickthall, S.W. 148; John Armstrong, S.W. 1250; S. R. Young, J.W. 148; Galloway, S.D. 1250; Thos. Sutton, Treas. 1250; S. E. Johnson, and James Hannah.

After a substantial tea, the loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, after which Bro. Bowes made the presentation as follows:—Brethren,—I am charged with a very pleasurable duty this evening. I believe I have received the compliment on the ground that I am the oldest Mason present. In any case, and whatever may be the reason of the selection, I very willingly undertake the pleasing task. Brethren, we have in our midst tonight a brother whom we one and all wish to honour. True, that brother is not of rank and opulence, but he is a brother who has done his duty, and we wish to prove to him that in the eyes of Masons there are occasions when all are equal if they deserve to be so. Acting for the then W.M., Bro. Hephherd, well do I remember admitting our friend James Hannah to Masonic light. In due course I passed and raised him, and from that time to the present he has deserved well at our hands. Faithfully and zealously he served us in the humble, but highly important, capacity of Outer Guard and Janitor; and now, when his ordinary avocations press so heavily upon him that he feels he can no longer serve us with credit to himself, like a good man and true he resigns into the hands of the rulers of the Craft his emblem of office. As a man and as a Mason, Bro. Hannah has won the good opinion of us all, and we are determined, therefore, that he should not sever his official connection with us without some mark—some substantial mark—of our sincere esteem. The feeling is spontaneous and general, and does not emanate from individuals, but collectively from brethren in a corporate capacity. Bro. Hannah, I know you will believe me when I say it affords me extreme gratification to be the mouthpiece of the brethren on this occasion, and also the medium of handing to you this handsome and costly gold watch, bearing the following inscription: "Presented to Bro. James Hannah by the Freemasons of Warrington, in recognition of many years' faithful service as Tyler and Janitor.—William Sharp, Z. 148; W. H. Robinson, W.M. 148; Chas. Crosier, W.M. 1250." May you long be spared to wear it, and when time with us shall be no more, may we all meet together in the Grand Lodge above, where the world's Great Architect lives and reigns for ever.

The chairman's remarks were endorsed and echoed by the brethren present, they one and all testifying to Bro. Hannah's obliging manners and gentlemanly bearing.

Bro. Hannah, with evident emotion, acknowledged the handsome testimonial at length and most feelingly. He assured the brethren that he was deeply grateful for the many kindnesses he had experienced at their hands. He had always striven to do his duty, and he was truly thankful that in his endeavours he had met with the approval of the brethren seated round that table. Some of those present had come some distance to take part in the proceedings of the evening, and however much he tried he should utterly fail to express in words his deep and heartfelt gratitude to them, one and all. It would be invidious to mention friends individually when he had so many, but he knew they would excuse him if he singled out the chairman. Again and again thanking them, and in the heartiest possible manner, for the handsome and costly gift they had that night presented to him, he sat down amid general cheering.

After a number of personal toasts had been proposed and duly honoured, the brethren separated in harmony.

FREEMASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

At the annual meeting of the Southern Star Lodge, No. 735, E.C., the following members were duly installed and invested as officers:—Bro. L. Boor, W.M.; Bro. W. Holmes, S.W.; Bro. W. M. Stanton, J.W.; Bro. W. B. Sealy, Treasurer; Bro. H. M. Moore, Secretary; Bro. J. Cann, S.D.; Bro. M. Sedgwick, J.D.; Bro. J. Kiesel, I.G.; Bro. H. Hargreaves, Tyler. The brethren at a later hour sat down to a really first-class repast prepared by Bro. J. Tregoe. The chair was taken by the W.M., who, after justice had been done to the good things provided, proposed the following loyal and Masonic toasts:—"The Queen," "H.R.H. the Prince of Wales," our Most Worshipful Grand Master, and the Grand Lodge of England," "The Grand Lodges of Ireland and Scotland, and the Most Worshipful Grand Masters."

Bro. Sealy, P.M., then proposed, "The retiring Worshipful Master of the Southern Star Lodge, Past-Master Bro. J. C. Moutray," and this having been honoured according to Masonic custom, Bro. Squires, P.M., proposed "The Newly installed Worshipful Master, Bro. Boor, and the Officers invested this day," a toast that was enthusiastically received.

Bro. W. M. Stanton proposed "The Installing Officer, Bro. Sealy," coupled with the Supreme Council of New Zealand, 33rd Degree, of which our esteemed brother is a worthy companion.

Bro. Sealy, P.M., responded, and in so doing gave a clear and interesting account of the rise and progress of the Supreme Council of New Zealand.

Bro. Lightfoot proposed "The Trafalgar Royal Arch Chapter of Nelson," coupled with the name of the First Principal, Bro. Squires, who responded to the toast, and thanked the brethren present for the hearty manner in which it had been responded to.

Bro. Moutray proposed "The Sister Lodges of Blenheim and Wakefield—Lodge of Unanimity and Forest Lodge."

This toast was followed by "The Visitors," "The Ladies," "The Host," and "All poor and distressed Masons."

FUNERAL OF SIR DONALD M'LEAN.

The funeral of Sir Donald M'Lean, which took place Jan. 8th, at Napier, was essentially Masonic. It had been intended to give it a military character, and the Artillery Volunteers were ordered to assemble with gun carriage, prepared to carry the coffin, and a firing party was told off, but at almost the last moment the military display was countermanded. The Odd Fellows walked in procession to the cemetery, also a few Foresters, and a considerable number of Good Templars and members of the Hibernian Society, but at the gate of the cemetery they mingled with the crowd, leaving the Masons to conduct the burial ceremonies for their District Grand Master. The two lodges, Scinde and Victoria, the former of the Irish, and the latter of the English Constitution, met together at the Masonic Hall, and heard the lodge Burial Service. About three o'clock they formed a procession, and marched to the late residence of Sir Donald. There were above 80 Masons, including several Royal Arch. Each lodge formed separately. The Scinde, being the senior, went first; but the conduct of the proceedings was under the care of the Victoria Lodge, as Sir Donald held his appointment as District Grand Master under the English Constitution. The whole was under the management of the acting W.M., Bro. Alexander Kennedy. The body was carried in a hearse, preceded by Mason Douglas M'Lean (Sir Donald's son), chief mourner, and among others Captain Archibald M'Lean (Sir Donald's brother), Messrs Archibald M'Lean, Ormond, Hart, Kinross, and Gillon. A great many Maoris, male and female, were present, amongst whom were several influential chiefs, including Te Hapuka, Reuatu Tarehu, and others. These, as well as many Europeans, availed themselves of the opportunity to see the body, which was lying in state prior to removal for burial. There was a large concourse in the cemetery and on all the elevated ground surrounding; it was difficult to compute the number, but it was generally estimated at about 3000. After an impressive service by the Rev. Mr. Sidney, the Masonic service was read by Bro. the Rev. D'Arcy Irvine, principal master of the Grammar School and the Chaplain of the Victoria Lodge. It was very solemnly rendered, and listened to with profound attention by all present. A lambskin apron was thrown into the grave, and also a sprig of acacia. The grand honours practised by Masons at burial ceremonies, and a hymn, were sung with harmonium accompaniment. After the concluding prayer, the Masons marched in procession back to the Masonic Hall, and closed the lodge.

THE BUCKINGHAM CLUB.

No. 1, REGENT-STREET, WATERLOO-PLACE, S.W.

Owing to the overcrowding of the best west-end Clubs, the Buckingham is established for the accommodation of noblemen, officers in the Army or Navy, professional and private gentlemen, who may be desirous of joining a really first class and aristocratic west-end Club without delay. The Club-house (which is at the corner of Charles-street, and opposite the Junior United Service Club) has recently undergone extensive alterations and decorations at a large outlay to the proprietor. It comprises Library, Dining, Smoking, Reading, Card, and Billiard Rooms; also Bedrooms for the use of members. The billiard-rooms, which are twenty-one feet high, are pronounced by eminent architects to be the most elegant in London. Entrance fee: Town members, Seven Guineas; annual subscription, the like amount (payable in advance). Officers on home service, with the exception of those residing in London, and country members pay an entrance fee of Four Guineas, and a subscription of Four Guineas. Members abroad, One Guinea. The present strength of the Club is 900 members, but when the number reaches 1000 the entrance fee will be Thirty Guineas. For further particulars apply to

Colonel W. A. M. BARNARD,
 Hon. Sec. to Committee.

Or to ALGERNON LLOYD, Secretary.

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

LODGE OF UNITED STRENGTH (No. 228).—History, for some little time past, has been silent with regard to this old lodge. Its last regular place of meeting was the Old Gate of St. John of Jerusalem, Clerkenwell, and the brethren generally had so sneaking a regard for the ancient place that for a long time they put up with much overcrowding rather than move. But last year, when Bro. Griggs, the well-known architect, was W.M., the lodge was obliged to seek a temporary home in Great Queen-street, the Old Gate then being turned inside out by the gentlemen of the trowel, and the operatives of the chisel and gavel. The question then arose whether the lodge, having outgrown the Gate, should not seek a new home, and at the Guildhall Tavern, in the centre of our metropolis, the brethren now meet under the genial sway of the new W.M., Bro. James Hill, who, since our last notice of the lodge has been elected to this high office, and was installed with all honours and with a perfect working by his predecessor, Bro. R. Griggs. On the 13th inst., the second night of the new Master was held, all the officers being present, with the exception of one sick junior, Bro. Douglas. The officers all held and worked their own positions—Bro. Snare, S.W.; Halford, J.W.; P. M. Winsland, Treas.; P. M. Crump, Sec.; P. M. Davies, Asst. Sec.; Percy, S.D.; Todd, J.D.; Flaws, I.G.; Patmore and Hickman, Dirs. of Cer.; and P. M. James Terry, last though not least, at least in fame and experience, as the Wine Steward. The W.M., who was assisted by his I.P.M., gave two brethren the benefit of the Second Degree, and one that of the Third, and then the lodge and many visitors proceeded to a discussion of the Fourth. Among the Past Masters, besides those whose names we have mentioned, were Bros. Roberts, Hillhouse, Colston, J. White (Freemason), and the visitors included Bros. Snowden, 213; Burr, S.D. 1612; Plumber, No. 2, Scotland; Milward, 176; Rosier, 188; Timothy, S.D. 87; Richards, S.D. 27; Loverdo, J.D. 1196; Bacca, 1196; Pogson, P.M. 336. The after dinner toasts were given with the usual fervour and loyalty, and in response to the toast of "The Visitors," some reference to the position of Freemasonry in Scotland was made, a Scotch brother being present, and he explained his warm hope that in Scotland Freemasonry would be brought into a closer resemblance to that in the south. Bro. Terry, in responding for "The Charities," thanked the United Strength brethren for the support given to the Stewards for the R.M.B.I., and spoke of the great benefits which the Institution had been able to confer by the benevolence of the Craft upon those who were just bearing the heat and burden of the day. Some excellent harmony was contributed by several brethren, and hearty thanks were given to Bro. Milward, who sang "Come into the Garden, Maud," in a manner which would have been irresistible by any lady in the flesh if the appeal in that voice had been made to one, and when the same brother sang, in the same charming manner, "The Thorn," there was not one who doubted his sincerity towards the lady to whom he was making these assertions of fidelity, truth, and attachment. The Scotch brother, with a comic pathos which would have astonished Dr. Johnson, and was quite contrary to all the received notions of the inability of Scotchmen to be humorous, gave "The Fall of the Half Hundred," with a perfect elocution, and added much to the enjoyment of the evening.

NEW CONCORD LODGE (No. 815).—On Thursday, the 15th inst., the installation of the W.M. of the above lodge took place at the Rosemary Branch Tavern, Islington. The W.M., Bro. Thomas J. Cusworth, who has passed with the utmost credit through every minor office, and who was unanimously voted to the chair of K.S., was installed in office by the veteran Bro. J. Emmens, P.G.P., assisted by over fifteen Past Masters and W.M.'s, the ceremony being performed in the usual impressive manner. The newly-appointed W.M. then proceeded to invest his officers, Bro. Harper being appointed S.W.; Bros. Stead, J.W.; George, S.D.; W. Gabb, J.D.; Taylor, I.G.; Thomas, D.C.; Dunn, W.S.; Sinclair, Treas.; W. H. Main, Sec.; the Rev. W. Stevens, Chap.; and Walesby, Org. A Past Master's jewel, voted by the lodge, was then presented to Bro. J. R. Gallant, the I.P.M., as a token of fraternal regard and esteem in which he was held by the brethren of the New Concord Lodge. Bro. Gallant thanked the brethren for the handsome P.M.'s jewel presented by the W.M., and stated that he was proud to receive such a mark of favour in the presence of such a distinguished assembly of the fraternity. The W.M. then initiated Mr. Thomas Glass in the most impressive manner, after which the lodge closed with the usual formula. The brethren then adjourned to a banquet, a magnificent provision being made for them by Bro. Gabb, the host, upwards of 70 brethren sitting down. Upon the cloth being withdrawn the usual toasts were given and received. In proposing "The Health and Prosperity of the W.M.," Bro. Gallant said that he could hardly realise his position as I.P.M.; however, he was proud to hold such a position under such an able worker as Bro. Cusworth. They had worked together throughout the various offices of the lodge with generous rivalry, and he was glad to see his brother and friend in the position of W.M., and trusted he would have a prosperous year of office, and health enough to perform the duties. Bro. Cusworth, who on rising to respond was received with rounds of applause, in an able and concise speech thanked the I.P.M. and brethren for the kind manner in which his health was drunk, and assured them that he would do his very best to keep the prestige of the lodge. "The Health of the Initiative" was proposed and responded to in the usual way. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was responded to by several visiting brethren, also by the W.M. of the Belgrave Lodge, Bro. Joseph Hobbs, an old friend of the W.M., who, in a very able and warm-hearted speech, said that nothing had given him greater pleasure than that of being present on this occasion to see his old and esteemed friend as W.M. of so respectable a lodge as the New Concord. They had in Bro. Cusworth a Master who did not only perform the ceremonies appertaining to the M.'s chair in a perfect manner, but studied and exercised that virtue which should pervade every Freemason's heart—charity. He, following in the footsteps of Bro. Terry, has instituted and was the Secretary of the New Concord Lodge of Instruction Masonic Charity Association, which would be the means of sending some hundreds of pounds to the different Masonic Charities. He congratulated the brethren in having such a Master, and wished him every success and the lodge prosperity during his year of office. During the evening Bros. Hubbard, Taylor, Wicks, and others, enlivened the company with some fine singing. Bro. Walesby presided at the piano. We cannot conclude this notice without congratulating Bro. Cusworth upon having attained so high a position in the Craft; also the members in having so able and complaisant an officer to preside over them during the next twelve months. We feel confident that he will in his administration increase the reputation he has so long enjoyed as an active and zealous member of the Order, and that the interests of the lodge will be well maintained under his superintendence.

ST. JOHN OF WAPPING LODGE (No. 1306).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held on the 14th inst. at the Gun Hotel, Wapping, when, in addition to other business, the election for W.M. took place, and we have great pleasure in stating that Bro. W. Poore was unanimously elected for the ensuing year. A sum of ten guineas was voted from the funds to be invested in one of the Charities on behalf of the retiring Master.

THE GRANITE LODGE (No. 1328).—On the 10th inst. a meeting of the members of this lodge was held at the Freemason's Hall, Great Queen-street, under the presidency of the new Worshipful Master, Bro. Frederick West, for the transaction of business. Mr. R. Barnes Austin was duly initiated. The members unanimously resolved, on the motion of Bro. A. C. Shelley, that a copy of the Freemason newspaper should from that time forth every week be forwarded to the W.M., to be filed and produced at each lodge meeting for the reference of the brethren. It was pointed out that the Freemason, unlike other weekly newspapers, was not made up of "scissors and paste," but all, or nearly all, the lodge meetings had to be chronicled by an expensive staff of reporters, kept for the purpose, throughout the kingdom; that assuming Freemasonry was to have a representative organ, it should be supported; and if every lodge were to follow the example of the Granite, the proprietor would be encouraged to secure the best reports, to strengthen his paper, and otherwise be enabled, by means of the "circulation medium," to diffuse a knowledge of the principles of Freemasonry throughout the world, which would tend to sweep into its ranks large bands of followers. The W.M. assented to the proposition, and the motion became law. £21 was voted for the Boys' School, and £21 for the Girls' School, being the second donation to each of those charities of similar amounts during the last two years. After the transaction of other business, the members repaired to partake of a plain dinner in the adjoining tavern. Bro. Frederick West being in the chair. After the cloth was drawn the W.M. proposed "The Queen and the Craft," which was loyally honoured. He next selected "The Most Worshipful Grand Master of England," and remarked that it would interest them to learn that he had been elected to fill the same distinguished post for the ensuing year. The Health of His Royal Highness was drunk with enthusiasm. He next gave "The M.W. Pro G.M., Bro. Lord Carnarvon, and the D.G.M., Bro. Lord Skelmersdale," and added that however ably their chief performed his task, yet without the assistance of such officers his duties would be rendered peculiarly difficult and trying. In those two subordinates he had very competent confrères and excellent assistants. He coupled with the toast "The Health of Bro. Cottebrune," which was responded to with Masonic appreciation. Bro. Cottebrune thanked them for the honour they had done him, and excused himself from saying more upon the score that continued attendance at their lodge meetings made it difficult to find language fresh for each occasion. Bro. John Oliver, P.M., called upon them to drink "The Health of the W.M.," and recorded his deep regret at the continued absence from illness of Bro. Muggeridge, P.M. Bro. F. West, in responding, expressed his gratification at their appreciation of him considering the small amount of work he had done in the lodge, and hoped at the end of his term of office that his conduct would have justified their hearty good wishes towards him. He would do his best to maintain the dignity of the chair, a task, he was aware, of great moment to the members, but one requiring tact and judgment, and entailing immense responsibility upon the occupier. The pupil in Freemasonry, i.e., the initiate, he asked them to welcome, Bro. Austin would make an excellent Freemason, and he felt sure that he had joined the Craft from the best of motives. Only six years ago he himself occupied that unripe position. Their grand principle of Freemasonry was charity; it was not writing down a name for boys and girls, or giving money that would bring the donor's name into print—it was higher and nobler in its objects; it was giving charity in the name of brotherly love; it was friendship in its purest and most refined sense; and he was sure Bro. Austin had been impressed with all he had seen that evening. From the foundation stone which had been raised that evening he hoped there would rise up a superstructure worthy of the lodge and honourable to the initiate. Bro. Austin replied, and expressed pleasure at becoming one of the ancient fraternity. The W.M., in proposing "The Health of the Visitors," said it was a toast always popular in the Granite Lodge, and although they were hard outside they were soft within. They always welcomed visitors. Happy had they met, happy had they been, happy might they part, and happy meet again. Bro. Beck duly acknowledged the compliment. The W.M. next proposed "The Health of the P.M.'s," and alluded in felicitous terms to Bros. Jno. Oliver, Sendey, and J. Lewis Thomas, each of whom briefly returned thanks, and Bro. Cottebrune tersely replied, in response to calls for him, that when he was a boy he was told never to speak until he was spoken to. They had appealed to him, but he had nothing to say. The W.M. next alluded to the officers of the lodge, and referred to the important part they bear in the working of the lodge. He paid a high mark of respect to Bro. J. Lewis Thomas, Secretary, for the active part he had taken in the lodge's welfare, and to the exertions of Bro. Hackford, the Magician of the Treasury. Bro. Thomas, in reply, said it was a source of delight to see the lodge flourish. His duties kept him closely fixed to his post. The Grand Officers had been pleased to say that their funds had not been spent lavishly but judiciously, and they gave more to the charities, perhaps, than any other lodge in London. It was due to the good Treasurer and the individual and collective efforts of the lodge. Bros. Mount, S.D., and Payne, J.D., also thanked them for drinking so heartily the health of the Junior Officers. The Tyler's toast brought a very enjoyable evening to a close.

WEST SMITHFIELD LODGE (No. 1623).—The regular meeting of this flourishing lodge was held on Thursday, the 15th inst., at the New Market Hotel, King-street, West Smithfield. Bro. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M., W.M., opened the lodge at half-past 2. Minutes read and unanimously confirmed. Ballots unanimous in favour of Bros. W. Young, 534, and F. W. Evans, 1223, as joining members, and for six candidates for initiation. Bro. J. Smith, raised Bro. R. Leggett to the Third Degree. Bro. J. Howes, P.M. 765, S.D., initiated his son, Joshua James Howes, and Edward Ellice Crombie. Bro. J. Smith, P.G.P., P.M. and W.M., resumed the chair, and presided for the remainder of the evening. He initiated Messrs. H. J. Lardner, G. H. Stevens, and F. A. West. He passed Bros. H. Lebish, W. Smyth, C. Davis, and W. Horlestone to the Second Degree, all the work being very well done. Some gentlemen were proposed for initiation. The lodge was closed and adjourned till May. Banquet and dessert followed. There were present Bros. T. W. Adams, S.W.; G. S. Elliott, J.W.; F. Walters, P.G.J.D. Middx., P.M., Sec.; J. Johnson, J.D.; G. S. Wintle, P.M., I.G.; T. Butt, T. McCluer Butt, W. Snow, W. Malthouse, and others. Amongst a large number of visitors we noticed Bros. E. H. Thielley, P.P.S.B. Middx.; J. W. Baldwin, P.A.G.P. Middx.; J. W. Lancaster, 1287; H. J. Green, W.M. 1275; H. Landfield, P.M. 1343; F. Frampton, P.M. 87; T. Neville, P.M. 765; D. Betts, P.M. 1351; J. Wylie, P.M. 186, and some whose names we were unable to ascertain.

LIVERPOOL—Ancient Union Lodge (No. 203).—There was an exceedingly large and influential gathering of brethren at the Masonic Hall, Hope-street, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 15th inst., when the annual celebration of the Festival of St. John took place in connection with the Ancient Union Lodge, No. 203. Bro. James Winsor, the retiring W.M., opened the lodge, and afterwards performed the ceremony of installation in a manner which elicited the heartiest admiration from all the brethren present. The lodge comprised, amongst others, the following officers, members, and visitors:—Bros. E. Johnston, I.P.M.; T. H. Serjeant, P.M.; B. W. Rowson, P.P.G.S. of W., P.M.; H. James, P.M.; Julius Franks, S.W. (W.M. elect); C. Birch, J.W.; J. R. Japha, I.G.; C. B. Bromley, P.M., Treas.; L. Russell, Sec.; T. Hatton, S.; E. Catrall, S.; J. P. Bryan, Org.; J. Thomas, A. Campbell, T. Walker, C. M. Walker, W. Taylor, T. Whitfield, R. Kinsey, G. Taylor, J. Taylor, E. Donnelly, M. Bradshaw, H. Ferguson, T. Berry, R. C. Burgess, J. Grierson, P. S. Davidson, J. Milton, J. Whiteside, J. Maccabe, W. Whittaker, A. Barton, H. Alexander, C. Desoer, M. Aronsberg, T. Hopkins, J. Latta, 241; J. Winsor, 241; G. Winsor, 241; S. Schonstadt, J.W. 1502; S. Jacobs, 241; M. Hart, W.M. 1502; M. T. Tieski, 1502; Professor Prag, Chaplain 1502; J. H. M. Quistan, 241; C. M. Davis, 249; A. Cotter, W.M. 1264; T. Holden, 1182; P. Faust, 1356; I. L. Levy, 1502; J. Parsons, P.M.; W. Williams, 241; and W. Smith, 249. After the transaction of some formal business, Bro. Julius Franks was duly presented and effectively installed W.M. of the Ancient Union, and the following were his investitures and appointments to offices:—Bros. James Winsor, I.P.M.; Bradshaw Rowson, P.P.G.S. of W., P.M., D.C.; John Wharam, S.W.; Alex. Barton, J.W.; Chas. Bromley, P.M., Treas. (re-elected); John T. Alston, Sec.; Chas. Birch, S.D.; J. R. Japha, J.D.; Thos. Halton, I.G.; Edward Catrall, S.S.; W. Gicks, J.S.; and R. Evans, A.S. About 100 brethren subsequently sat down to a banquet in the large dining hall, under the presidency of Bro. Julius Franks, the newly chaired W.M., who gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts in a felicitous manner. In giving "The Worshipful Master," Bro. Jas. Winsor, I.P.M., expressed a hope that peace and prosperity might mark his year of office, and that the same courtesy and kindness might be extended by the brethren to their new Master as had been shown during his (Bro. Winsor's) year of office. The W.M. replied, and said he would endeavour to follow the excellent examples shown him by his predecessors in that post. The W.M. then gave "The Health of the Installing Master," and Bro. Serjeant, P.M., was called upon to present Bro. James Winsor, I.P.M., with a handsome Past Master's jewel, and also with an elegant drawing-room clock for Mrs. Winsor, the former being the result of the brethren's subscriptions and the latter the outcome of money subscribed by both members of the Ancient Union and other lodges. Bro. Winsor suitably replied. Various songs were given during the evening, Bro. J. P. Bryan, Organist, presiding at the piano.

LANCASTER.—Lodge of Fortitude (No. 281).—The regular monthly assemblage of the members of this lodge was held on the 14th inst. in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum. The W.M., Bro. Richard Taylor, occupied the chair of K.S., and there was a large attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge was opened in the First Degree with solemn prayer, and the minutes of former meeting read and confirmed. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bro. Dr. Moore, P.M., P.G.S.B. of E., gave a lecture on the Second Degree Tracing Board. At the close he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, on the motion of Bro. T. Atkinson, I.P.M. Bro. Richard S. Thompson was then raised to the Degree of Master Mason by the W.M. with all the formalities of the Craft. The lodge was then closed down to the First Degree, when the name of a gentleman was submitted as a candidate for initiation. The usual proclamations were made, which elicited hearty good wishes from the visiting brethren, and the lodge was subsequently closed in peace, love, and harmony.

FOLKESTONE.—Temple Lodge (No. 558).—There was a goodly gathering of members and visiting brethren at the annual meeting of the above lodge, held at the Town Hall, on Tuesday, the 6th inst., who took part in the installation of the W.M. elect, Bro. W. L. Earnshaw, P.M., P.G.J.D.; which ceremony was performed in the most solemn and impressive manner by Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson, M.A., P.M. of the Invicta Lodge, Ashford, and which elicited the marked pleasure of the brethren. Previous to this, however, the retiring Master, Bro. S. S. Stallwood, ably initiated Bro. the Rev. A. J. Palmer into the mysteries of the Craft. In the course of the installation ceremony, the W.M. proceeded to appoint his officers for the ensuing year: Bros. Stallwood, I.P.M.; R. H. Pledge, W.M. 1436, S.W.; F. H. Field, 1331 and 1436, J.W.; Kennett, Treas.; Stock, Sec.; Place, S.D.; S. Joseph, J.D.; F. Klatt, I.G.; and J. Baker, Tyler. The lodge was then closed, and the brethren adjourned to the Royal Pavilion Hotel, where a recherché banquet was served in the very best style of that house, and to which about 26 of the brethren sat down. Amongst the visitors present were Bros. the Rev. T. Robinson, M.A. (Installing Master) Prov. S.W., P.M., 88, 709, 1174, and 1593; G. W. Greenhill, P.M. 709; G. H. Ovenden, W.M. 125; Gosby, P.M. 1436; Ashdown, P.M. 125; W. Land, P.M. 387; and C. H. Tiffen. On the removal of the cloth the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given. The Dep. Prov. Grand Master, Bro. Eastes, was unfortunately prevented by severe indisposition from attending on this occasion, but the toast of his health was responded to by Bro. Robinson, as also for "The Past and Present Provincial Officers," the rev. brother being Prov. S.W., the senior officer present. "The Health of the W.M., Bro. Earnshaw," was then proposed by Bro. Robinson, and ably responded to by him. "The Health of the Installing Master, Bro. the Rev. T. Robinson," was the next toast given, which was received with acclamation. This was responded to by the rev. brother, who, in a most eloquent and feeling address, enlarged upon the beauties of Masonry, especially in the higher degrees, and alluding to the W.M. himself being a Past Provincial Officer, and other Past Provincial Officers taking subordinate offices in the lodge, exhorted the younger members to emulation, assuring all, even the P.M.'s of the Craft present, that if they desired to obtain a perfect, clear, and full view of Masonry, and learn what it really meant, they must not be content to remain half-way, but perseveringly endeavour to attain to the summit of the hill. "The Visitors" was the next toast given, which was responded to by Bro. Ovenden, W.M. 125. "The Past Masters of the Lodge," "The Masonic Charities," and the Tyler's toast followed, and the brethren retired about 10.30, after having spent a very pleasant evening, which had been greatly enlivened by a selection of songs, glees, &c., given by Bros. Plant, Moulding, and Higgins, three members of the Canterbury Cathedral Choir.

DERBY.—Arboretum Lodge (No. 731).—The anniversary and installation meeting of this lodge took place on Wednesday, the 14th inst., at the Masonic Hall, when a goodly number of the members were in attendance. The following brethren were also present:—Bros. Thos. Cox, P.P.S.G.W., P.G. Treasurer (the Installing Master); Rev. A. A. Bagshawe, P.P.S.G.W., Prov. G. Chaplain; J. Campion, P.P.S.G.W.; Thomas Horsley, P.P.S.G.W.; Robson, P.M. 884, P.P.J.G.D.; Stocker, 493; Wood, 1399; A. Grubb, 73; T. Horsley, jun., 253; J. Downs, 158; J. Ewing, 1391; A. Fletcher, P.M. 411; W. Gardner, 411; H. J. Norris, 411; Ward, 47; E. Agnew, 253; J. S. Whitham, P.M. 850; J. Simkiss, 787; Saml. Pipes, P.M. 1085; H. J. Foulds, W.M. 253; W. L. Bull, 253; J. Iliffe, 253, P.P.S.G.W.; Heathcote, 1085; Orme, 1085; and W. Heathcote, W.M. 1085. The lodge was opened at 3.30 p.m. by the W.M., Bro. Bennett, P.G.S. of Works, and the ceremony of installing the Senior Warden, Bro. Brown, as W.M. for the ensuing year, was at once proceeded with. He gave the customary adherence to the obligations of a Master of a lodge, and all below the rank of a Master retired. On their return the Installing Master gave the usual addresses, and the appointment of the officers followed, viz.: Bros. T. Merry, S.W.; W. Cooper, J.W.; Burton, Treas.; Whittaker, Sec.; A. Fraser, S.D.; G. Cay, J.D.; W. Vincent, D.C.; Bower, I.G.; Bland and King, Stewards; and Day, Tyler. Bro. Cox then completed the work of installation, and it will not be out of place to say that it was admirably done, and it was a great treat to the brethren to hear Bro. Cox's very impressive rendering of this beautiful ceremony. The new W.M. had evidently a mind to get to work as soon as possible, as he at once proceeded to initiate two gentlemen who had been elected at the previous meeting, and afterwards received the hearty congratulations of the visiting brethren. The lodge was closed in due form, and an adjournment made to the banquetting hall, where a superb repast was provided by the purveyors, Bros. Wright and Burton, to whom every praise is due for the manner in which they had carried out the arrangements for the banquet. The hall was beautifully decorated with flags, banners, &c., and this part of the business had evidently had the careful attention of Bros. Merry, Humber, Fraser, and Whittaker, who formed a decoration committee. The menu was a liberal one, the wines good; and ample justice was done to the good things by about fifty brethren, the long meeting having evidently sharpened their appetites. The chair was taken by the W.M., who was supported by Bros. Cox, Pipes, Heathcote, Foulds, Bennett, Barn, Wright, and Iliffe. After the banquet the usual Masonic toasts were given. The toast list was interspersed with Shakespearian quotations appropriate to the occasion. The toast of "The Officers of the Provincial Grand Lodge," "So are they all, all honourable men"—was responded to by Bro. Cox, who congratulated the W.M. on his very efficient working, and hoped that he would have a very prosperous year. The toast of "The Health of the W.M." was heartily received, and in responding Bro. Brown intimated his great desire to fill the proud position in which they had placed him to the satisfaction of all; he hoped that during his year the same kindness would be continued to him as he had invariably met with at the hands of the brethren since he joined the Craft, and when his turn came to vacate that chair he would leave it as unsullied as he had received it. The toast of "The I.P.M., Bro. Bennett," was made the occasion of the presentation to him of a P.M.'s jewel, which had been unanimously voted to him by the members of the lodge. The W.M. in making the presentation paid a just tribute of praise to the services rendered by Bro. Bennett, and expressed a wish that he might long be spared to meet with the members of the Arboretum Lodge. Bro. Bennett thanked the members for their kindness in showing him in so marked a manner their satisfaction with the services he had been able to render to the lodge; he was conscious of many defects, but he had done his best, and he was proud to receive from them this special mark of their favour. He could not sit down without taking this opportunity of thanking the brethren for their presence and assistance during the past year, and particularly the Past Masters, who had at all times been ready to afford all the help in their power. To the I.P.M., Bro. Merry, he was deeply indebted, and he was glad to say that his officers had done their work to his entire satisfaction. The toast of "The Masonic Charities," coupled with the name of Bro. Wright, drew from him a very strong appeal to all Masons to do more for Masonic charities. He referred with pride to the noble efforts already made by the members of the Province of Derbyshire and other provinces, but he thought that more might and ought to be done. He considered it the duty of every Mason to give the charitable institutions of the Craft his hearty support, and he strongly advised all present to qualify themselves for voting at the elections for the Boys' and Girls' Schools. He referred to the approaching anniversary, and urged them to send their Stewards with a purse that would be a credit to them. The toast of "The Newly-initiated Brethren," Bros. Cooke and Tickellpenny, having been duly honoured and responded to, the Tyler's toast concluded a very successful meeting.

LANCASTER.—Rowley Lodge (No. 1051).—The monthly meeting of this lodge was held on the 5th inst., in the Masonic Rooms, Athenæum, Lancaster. Bro. T. Jackson, the W.M., presided, and there was a fair attendance of members and visiting brethren. The lodge having been opened with solemn prayer, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bro. Rudolph Pandolfini, of the Lodge of Fortitude, 281, was admitted a joining member; Mr. William John Bradshaw was next balloted for, and it proving unanimous, he was duly initiated into the mysteries of Freemasonry by the W.M. The routine business having been transacted, the usual proclamations were made and responded to, and the lodge was closed in accordance with the ancient custom of the Craft.

WEST DERBY.—Pembroke Lodge (No. 1299).—The annual installation meeting of this thriving suburban lodge was held on Thursday afternoon, the 15th inst., at Rawlinson's Hotel, West Derby, near Liverpool, where there was a goodly gathering of the fraternity. The lodge was opened in due form by Bro. Richard Bennett, W.M., who, after the confirmation of the minutes, gave place to Bro. W. Jones, P.M., as Installing Master. Bro. W. S. Vines, P.G. Steward, P.M., having been duly presented and obligated, was installed for the second time as W.M. of the lodge, a compliment which was both significant and well deserved. The ceremony was well performed by Bro. Jones, to whom was passed a special vote of thanks, which was ordered to be recorded on the minutes. The following were the officers invested: Bros. Richard Bennett, I.P.M.; Peter Macmurdrow, Prov. G. Pursuivant, P.M., Treas.; William Jones, P.M., D.C.; John Capell, S.W.; J. H. Townley, J.W.; T. G. Fisher, Sec.; F. B. Bramham, S.D.; W. S. Bennett, J.D.; W. Hiles, I.G.; W. Cotter, S.S.; Jos. Bramham, jun., J.S.; W. Aves, Org.; and J. Robinson, Tyler. The brethren subsequently sat down to an excellent banquet, amongst those present at the work and refreshment, besides those already named, being the following: Bros. W. Crane, P.M.; John Sellar, P.M.; J. Sutcliffe, P.M.; W. S. Howarth, J. Holm, W. G. Veale, W. T. Warburton, N. Thompson, R. Langley, P.M.; T. B. Griffin, L. Bramwell, A. E. Kirkpatrick, D. C. Parry, W. M. Booth, H. Hargreaves, J. P. Capern, J. Taylor, W. Brown, R. W. Crosby, and J. Christian. The visitors were Bros. J. Skeaf, P.G.O.; J. Busfield, 216; J. W. Turley, P.P.G.J.D.; T. Chesworth, W.M. 1576, P.M. 724; P. Armstrong, J.D. 724; J. Remberton, P.G.S. of W.; M. Corless, P.M. 673; J. W. Baker, P.M. 241; T. Berry, W.M. 155; W. Woods, W.M. 1620; W. Pugh, S.W. 1620, P.M. 1182; C. Petty, 216; J. Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; T. Evans, W.M. 1570; J. B. Roose, 1380; T. Mc. Cracken, 1620; R. H. Evans, W.M. 202; J. Taylor, 897, and G. Barton, 897. After dessert had been placed on the table the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were given by the W.M., "The Health of the W.M." was proposed by Bro. Bennett, I.P.M., who congratulated the lodge upon electing so experienced and able a Mason as Bro. Vines to the honourable position of Master of the lodge. Bro. Vines, in the course of his reply, thanked the members for the compliment paid him by electing him the second time W.M. of the lodge. He assured the brethren that he would do his utmost to maintain the character of the lodge by efficient working and punctual attendance. Bro. Vines, in proposing the toast of the P.M.'s of the lodge, on behalf of the members presented Bro. R. Bennett with a handsome P.M.'s jewel as a mark of appreciation of his able services as Master of the lodge. Other toasts followed, including "Our Masonic Charities." In proposing this toast the W.M. alluded to the numerous claims upon these charities, and made an urgent appeal to the brethren for support for the same. "The Health of the Visitors" was responded to by Bro. John Lunt, P.P.G.D.C.; Bro. J. W. Baker, P.M. 241, and Bro. Petty, 216.

MORECAMBE.—Morecambe Lodge (No. 1561).—The regular meeting of this lodge was held in the Masonic Hall, Edward-street, on the 2nd inst. The W.M., Bro. Capt. Garnett, occupied the chair of K.S., and there was an average attendance of members. The lodge having been opened in due form, the minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed, after which the ballot was taken for Mr. John Scholefield, and proving unanimous, that gentleman was initiated into the mysteries of the Craft by the W.M. The usual proclamations were then made, and the lodge closed in peace, love, and harmony.

STAINES.—Musgrave Lodge (No. 1597).—The first anniversary of this lodge was celebrated on Saturday, the 17th inst., at the Angel and Crown Hotel, Staines. In the unavoidable absence of the W.M., Bro. J. M. Levick, the chair was occupied by Bro. F. Keily, P.M. 1293, P.G. Treas. Middx., S.W., and W.M. elect, supported by the following brethren:—Bros. G. P. Gillard as S.W.; E. Amphlett, J.W.; H. Phythian, P.P.G. Sec. Middx., Sec.; T. H. Edmunds, P.G.S., S.D.; R. Sindall, as J.D.; J. G. Dunn, I.G.; E. Fairlie, Alex. Paterson, H. F. Bing, Alf. S. Paterson, R. G. Jewell, and others. Visitors: Bros. H. C. Levander, P.G. Sec. Middx.; John Bingemann, W.M. 1599; H. Gonne, 1293; G. Phythian, S.W. 22; and others. After Bro. A. S. Paterson had been duly raised to the Sublime Degree in ancient form, Bro. Wilson, P.M. of the Etonian Lodge of St. John, No. 209, Windsor, ascended to the chair, and with the able assistance of Bro. John Bingemann, P.M. 55, and W.M. 1599, installed Bro. F. Keily as Worshipful Master, who immediately proceeded to invest his officers for the ensuing twelve months as follows:—Bros. E. Amphlett, S.W.; T. H. Edmunds, J.W.; H. Phythian, Sec.; J. G. Dunn, S.D.; G. P. Gillard, J.D.; H. F. Bing, I.G.; E. Fairlie, D.C.; R. Sindall, Steward; and J. Gilbert, Tyler; all which appointments were thoroughly approved of by the brethren. Bro. Sindall expressed his intention of representing the lodge as Steward at the forthcoming Festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, and the sum of five guineas was at once voted from the Almoner's fund to be placed on that brother's list. Other routine business having been transacted, the lodge was closed with solemn prayer and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet under the presidency of the W.M. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly given and honoured, that of the W.M. met with the very warmest reception. Bro. H. C. Levander, P.G. Sec., in returning thanks for "The Health of the Prov. G. Officers," took the opportunity of congratulating the brethren on the very prosperous state of the lodge at the expiration of its first year, and also remarked that great credit was due to so young a lodge for sending up a Steward (for the second time) to represent it at the Girls' Festival. Bro. John Bingemann in responding to the toast of "The Visitors," expressed the great pleasure it had afforded him to be present that day, and hoped to have the privilege of visiting on many future occasions. Bro. Amphlett, S.W., replied for "The Officers." The Tylers' toast having been given, the brethren separated, highly delighted with all they had seen and heard in the Musgrave Lodge.<sup>2</sup>

INSTRUCTION.

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT LODGE (No. 1524).—At the regular meeting held at the Havelock Tavern, Albion-road, Dalston, on Wednesday, the 14th inst., there were present Bros. Brasted, W.M.; Robinson, S.W.; Larkin, J.W.; Hewlett, S.D.; Bonner, J.D.; B. Meyer, I.G.; Fieldwick, Preceptor; and Bros. Shackleton, Smith, G. Ferrar, Stevenson, Spencer, Polak, Brown, and Smythe. The lodge was opened in due form with prayer. The minutes of last lodge meeting were read and confirmed. The lodge was opened in the Second Degree, and Bro. Polak was passed to the degree of a Fellow Craft. The First, Second, Third, Fourth, and Fifth Sections of the Lecture were worked by Bro. Hewlett, assisted by the brethren. Proposed by Bro. Shackleton, seconded by Bro. B. Meyer, that Bro. Smyth be elected a joining member of the Lodge of Instruction. Carried unanimously. Bro. Fieldwick proposed that Bro. Robinson be elected W.M. for the ensuing week. Nothing else offering, the lodge was closed in ancient form, and adjourned to Wednesday, 21st inst., at 8 p.m.

Red Cross of Constantine.

CAMBRIDGE.—Cambridge University Conclave (No. 128).—The regular meeting of this conclave was held on the 10th inst., Ill. Sir Kt. C. E. Peck, Int. Gen. M.P.S.; Sir Kt. Leith, V. After confirmation of the minutes Bros. Maxwell and Phillips were installed Kts. of the Order. The conclave was then closed in due and ancient form.

LODGE OF BENEVOLENCE.

The monthly meeting of the Lodge of Benevolence was held on Wednesday evening at Freemasons' Hall. Bro. John M. Clabon, P.G.D., President of the Board, presided; Bro. Joshua Nunn, P.G.S.B., Senior Vice-President, was in the Senior Vice-President's chair; and Bro. E. P. Albert, G.P., occupied the chair of Junior Vice-President. The other brethren present were Bros. John Hervey, G.S.; H. G. Buss, A. A. Pendlebury, C. A. Cottebrune, P.G.P.; S. Rawson, P. District G.M. China; W. Smith, C.E.; H. Browne, P.G.D.; Joseph Smith, P.G.P.; S. G. Foxall, A.G.P.; C. F. The grants of former lodge, which required confirmation, amounting in all to £220, were confirmed, and the brethren then proceeded with the consideration of the new cases, of which there were no less than 28 on the paper. Of these cases one was dismissed and two deferred. The remainder were relieved with a total sum of £610, consisting of one £100; one £75; three £40; three £30; five £20; three £15; seven £10; and two £5.

The lodge sat till past nine o'clock.

CONSECRATION OF THE SKELMERS-DALE LODGE, No. 1658.

The consecration of this new lodge took place on the 9th inst., at the Surrey Masonic Hall, at which place the meetings of the lodge will be regularly held. Among the brethren present, in addition to the consecrating officers, were: Bros. Rev. P. M. Holden, Dr. Pinder, H. A. Dubois, M. S. Larham, T. Edmonson, W. Case, J. Cavin, J. Hastier, W. M. Cackett, N. Brydges, F. Koch, and E. W. Devereux. The consecration and installation ceremonies were most effectively performed by Bro. John Hervey, P.G.D., V.W. Grand Secretary, with the able assistance of V.W. Bro. the Rev. Robert J. Simpson, P.G.C., and Bro. Henry Gustavus Buss, J.G. Warden of Middx. Bro. Hervey, in the course of his address, again cautioned the brethren in the selection of candidates for initiation, there being, in the present day, many applicants for admission into Freemasonry for designs other than those approved of by the Order. During the ceremony a very appropriate and brilliant oration was delivered by Bro. Simpson. The Grand Secretary then installed Bro. S. J. Harvey as W.M., who immediately afterwards appointed and invested the first staff of officers of the lodge. The lodge was soon after closed, and the brethren adjourned to a choice banquet, served in first-class style in the hall by Bro. Geider, the usual toasts being given and duly responded to.

THE COSMOPOLITAN MASONIC CALENDAR DIARY AND POCKET BOOK for 1877 (London, George Kenning, 198, Fleet-street). We have no hesitation in strongly recommending this useful and carefully-prepared work to every Mason. It is in itself an Encyclopedia of Masonry, and fully bears out its title of "Comprehensive Masonic Book of Reference." To brethren in the habit of travelling the work is simply indispensable, and will enable them in every town which they may visit, to find out night and meeting place, not only of Craft and Arch Masonry, but of preceptories, conclaves, &c. The book is also well bound, and is a most convenient pocket book. The price is only 2s., and is most remarkably low, considering the usefulness of the publication, and the fund of information afforded.—The Isle of Man Times.

A LONG JOURNEY.

Our respected contemporary Bro. Hubert, of the Chaine d'Union, Paris, in the number for February just past, has an article in which he expresses a desire to open again for discussion the questions at issue between the Grand Orient of France and the American Grand Lodges, with a view to its settlement and the resumption of intercourse between the bodies. We cannot and do not for one moment doubt the sincerity of Bro. Hubert, whom we know to be a devoted Mason, earnestly desirous of an adjustment; but it is clear that he has not measured the width and depth of the gulf of separation between Masonry as practiced and understood by English-speaking Masons and the article called Masonry in France, to say nothing of the men who guide and direct the march of the Grand Orient. When he has done so carefully, he will find that either one or the other must travel a long way from its present foundations and principles of being before there can be any possible ground of sympathy or similarity.

In the first place, it must be admitted that Masonry did not originate in France, but, on the contrary, was taken there from England, the first lodge being established by Lord Derwentwater, at Paris, by English authority, under which in one way or another, it remained until 1756, when the hitherto English Grand Lodge of France declared itself independent, and set out on the journey which landed French Masonry in the arms of the Grand Orient about 1771. So far as the actual government is concerned, we are clearly of the opinion that each nation should have its own, whether Masonic or civil; for which reason we justify the declaration of independence of English government in France, and assert for the French brethren, as we do for ourselves, the right to have their own government. But, at the same time, it is equally clear that they could not change the form and essence of Masonry itself, and still claim to be Masons, for the two things are incompatible. When Lord Derwentwater was received into Masonry in England, he entered into bonds to support and maintain the landmarks and cardinal doctrines of the Craft, and he was obliged to, and doubtless did, require a similar covenant from those persons in France to whom he accorded the privilege of participating with him in its rights and benefits, or else the English Grand Lodge would have taken care to know why he set his p'edges aside. It follows that in order to remain within the household of the Craft, the French Masons were in honour bound to observe and preserve the essentials as they received them, and as they have been, and still are preserved by those from whom they acquired them, and, indeed, by all other Masons on the face of the globe, except those owing allegiance to the Grand Orient of France. Now, it is known that there is a proposition pending before the Grand Orient, and under discussion by its subordinate lodges, to strike from the fundamental law the requirement that a candidate must acknowledge belief in the existence of one ever-living and true God. What the result of this may be cannot be known until the meeting of the Grand Orient, next September, and it will, when known, make but little difference, for it was made known in the debates of the last meeting that in the practice of the French lodges mere atheism or infidelity is no bar to initiation, hence whether the clause in the constitution relating to it be suffered to stand or be stricken out, the fact remains that the most vital of Masonic tenets has no value in French Masonry, and therefore there is, and can be, no possible union between those who practice it and those who not only believe in God themselves, but will not suffer their companionship to be tainted by the presence of persons who do not.

Again, a Masonic organization presupposes, for the lodge, a Master; for the Grand Lodge, a Grand Master. If any lodge, by amending its bye-laws, should declare the Master a surplus wheel in the machinery, abolish the office, and name a committee to rule and govern it, the organization would no longer be Masonic, and it would practically have ceased to exist, even before the Grand Lodge had called in its warrant. The same rule will apply with even greater force to a Grand Lodge, one of the principal duties of which is to preserve intact the general laws, forms, and doctrines of the Craft. A Grand Lodge or a Grand Orient, without a Grand Master, ceases to be a Masonic organization, or to be entitled to Masonic recognition. The Grand Orient of France, by its own well-considered act, abolished the Grand Mastership as a cumbrous and useless part of the machinery, and thus vaulted without the pale of Masonry to become anything you please, but certainly no longer to be a Masonic power.

Once more. The readiness of the Grand Orient to give official recognition to any and every applicant for that favour (sic), has become proverbial. It recognized a spurious organization in New Orleans, engineered by one it had itself expelled, while at the same time it was on terms of amity and friendship with the regular Grand Lodge, the territory of which was invaded by the organization in question. When earnestly and fraternally besought to withdraw this offensive act—offensive not only to the local Grand Lodge, but to every other Grand Lodge in the United States, it never condescended to notice their communications, while its several committees, pretending to treat the subject with a contemptuous indifference for the intelligence of the Americans, never deigned to approach the real question at issue, and to-day it stands precisely where it did when the Grand Orient insulted the North American Craft by its friendship for a clandestine body in their midst.

We violate no prescription of courtesy nor do we assume any unreasonable authority when we say that on the grounds mentioned, the Grand Lodges of North America will take no step backward, assent to no compromise, resume no relations until the Grand Orient gets back on the platform of the Institution. The journey is a long one, but then the French brethren have only themselves to thank for it.—New York Dispatch.

WEST LANCASHIRE MASONIC EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTION.

Like our great London Charities, the claims upon the noble institution in the West Lancashire Province, of which every brother is so greatly proud, continue to increase every year, and the meeting of the General Committee, held at the Masonic Hall, Hope-st., Liverpool, on Friday, the 16th inst., conclusively proved that greater efforts will be needed than ever to maintain its efficiency and power, if the education and advancement in life of the children of deceased brethren are to be carried out in the manner and spirit contemplated by the founders and supporters. With the increase of lodges and members, the demands upon the Charity have grown in even a greater ratio, and therefore the liberal support of the brethren in West Lancashire is now all the more needed. True, there is a splendid invested capital, but it is most desirable that all liabilities for the carrying out of the scheme of charity should be met by the yearly gatherings from Masonic brethren and contributory sources. There is no doubt that this will be the result, and that the West Lancashire Masonic Educational Institution will continue to grow in charitable strength with its increasing years of existence, and that the "little ones" who seek its help will not be driven away disappointed. At the meeting on Friday week there was a very large attendance of the committee, there being no fewer than about fifty members present. There were nearly 30 applications brought on for consideration, and it is most satisfactory to find that out of this unusually large number not a single refusal was given where the applications were regular and according to law. Unfortunately, in the cases of three children the requirements of the bye-laws were not met, and these had to be withdrawn for the present, much to the disappointment of the committee, who would have granted all if they possibly could have done so. These elections will involve an increased yearly expenditure of £180, which is a considerable sum to add to the already large amount already necessary for the children on the foundation of the noble institution. But there can be little fear that the brethren of the largest Masonic province in the kingdom will also show that their large-heartedness is quite in keeping with their proud position. Bro. Richard Brown, P.M. 241, the Honorary Secretary of the Institution, deserves the highest praise for his zeal and tact in connection with the Institution, and he receives valuable aid from the Hon. Treasurer, as well as every member of the influential committee.

MASONIC ADDRESS.

The New York Dispatch publishes the following address recently delivered by M.W. Bro. Elwood E. Thorne before Kingston Lodge, No. 10:

Right Worshipful Brother, and Brethren of the Kingston Lodge, No. 10.—The last visit I made you was on the occasion of laying the corner-stone, with Masonic ceremonies, of the new City Hall of Kingston, and with pleasant recollections of my visit then, I have again accepted your kind and fraternal invitation to be with you to-night, but not without some misgivings as to my ability to interest you. However, in one thing I feel secure; that is, the knowledge that our beloved fraternity will not suffer in feeble hands such as mine, any more than it would be exalted by the lips, or pen, of the ablest of earth's orators, for we can neither take from nor add to the glories of our time-honoured institution, built as it is on the "rock of ages," standing as it has done through the march of time, stopping by the wayside only to let the torrent of persecution pass by, living still, through the scepticisms, the same noble, blessed institution, founded long before the "Star of Bethlehem" arose, when Israel sent forth her thousands to witness the consecration of the first work of our art, and God, in His approval of the perfectness of the Craft, consumed the offering upon the altar, and thus the monument was dedicated to Him whose shadow and glory proclaimed His presence between the cherubim. We all know how good and holy a thing Freemasonry is, and have all felt its moral and religious influences, and although the emblems of our Order have often hung sorrowfully over their rejected teachings, yet in their sublime significance they are none the less powerful in their mute admonitions than when first we saw the light and took upon ourselves the vows which in the "Holy of Holies" of our individual temple, can be best answered, as to whether we have been true to the trust, and in all the requirements have we been Masons and brethren.

The nature, duties and rights of our Order have been so often set before you, and should be so indelibly impressed upon your minds and hearts as to need no suggestions or arguments from me in favour of their merits, nor can I offer any inducements for the observance of any of its high behests that cannot be found encircled by the broad arms of brotherly love, relief and charity. These, brethren, I lay at your feet; raise them to your hearts by willing hands, and give the recompense first to yourselves of a peaceful conscience, and the world will judge you according to your works, and scoffers, to whom our lips must ever be closed in defence of our beloved Order, will soon learn to whom is due the championship of the noblest and most ancient of institutions; for we all know that Masonry has grown grey with age. Its origin is lost in the unexplored abyss of antiquity. We can find no record in ancient history that can enlighten us as to the positive time and place of its organization; researches have been made by many, and neither time nor patience spared. Some have made it coeval with the world; others have ascribed its rise to the sainted heroes of the crusades; but amid this uncertainty, which must ever result from the absence of written history, let us rest satisfied with our own convictions that it began with the Temple of Solomon, when the widow's son gave the binding word, and is the most ancient and benevolent institution in the world, and its votaries and followers are from every land and of every tongue; an institution growing in strength and firmness as years go by, until its mighty power is known all over the world, entwining itself with the best sympathies of our whole nature, and approved by the most enlightened faculties of the mind: that all the persecutions it has suffered has not been able to destroy; but, like the true religion, it has flourished even on the blood-stained soil of fanaticism and despotism. Its progress in enlightened nations has been marvellously great.

In our own loved country it has spread over the entire land, and attained a perfection unequalled in any other country of the globe, and in comparing the condition of Freemasonry at the close of the revolutionary war with its present prosperity, we are lost in admiration of its rapid strides. At that time only ten lodges were to be found in our State. Now, in less than a century, we number about 800 lodges and nearly 100,000 (Masons) brethren in good standing. And although we have had foes without and dissensions within, yet our march has been steadily onward, diffusing light and imparting joy. Wherever man in his enlightened state fixes his habitation, there you will find a band of brothers "meeting upon the level, acting by the plumb, and parting upon the square." We own to exceptions of worthiness in the material often used to constitute lodges, and know too that many who have become Masons in good faith have allowed worldly ambition and mercenary aspirations to blot out from memory the solemn obligations they assumed when they vowed to be true to the teachings of the sublime principles of our fraternity. This has been material in the hands of our enemies, who are not willing to give us the benefit of the same allowance made to all religious sects, of having among us the tares as well as the wheat; and while I do not claim for our Order the spiritual enthusiasm or incomparable character of that greatest of all institutions on earth—the Church Universal—or assert that it can in any way be substituted for that special manifestation of our Heavenly Father's presence, I do not hesitate to state that as a great moral system, and as an inculcator of His teachings, it is second only to that body. Its nature and traditions are in the highest degree religious.

The temple on which we are supposed to be engaged as ever diligent workmen is no edifice of sculptured stone or fretted wood, but "that temple not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." The tools with which we work are not the hardened steel of earthly make, but "the soft answer that turneth away wrath," the gentle reproof that melts but does not break, and the friendly word of cheer that kindles hope and encourages effort. The cement that unites the several parts of our structure is not the perishable mortar of material life, but the love and close communion that bind us together as members of that living temple in one compact mass of fraternal regard.

As we can enter the lodge only in the name of God, our doors are inexorably barred against the atheist and the scoffer. As we commence our Masonic ceremonies only after invoking the guidance and protection of Divine Love, we are sure that a trust so well founded will insure from all danger, and as we separate to resume the cares and joys and temptations of the outer world, we are solemnly enjoined so to act as to be an example of uprightness and moral worth, and thus secure our admission, after this life, into that Grand Lodge on high where none but the redeemed shall sit. Our "Great light," the guide to our faith and practice, is the same inspired volume that is a lamp to the feet of the believer.

On its open pages are recorded our vows and obligations. To its mandates and precepts we humbly and cheerfully kneel. Within its leaves we find the material for our liturgy and the early history of our Order, and among its heroes are the first and greatest of our Grand Masters. As an illustration of the veneration in which this sacred book is held by Masons, I can do no better than to quote the language of an eloquent and distinguished divine and brother, who says: "With no narrow spirit of propaganda, we place on our altar this sacred book in all its holy completeness. We open it at the book of Ruth. We gather about it at the hour of solemn obligation. There lies before you this solitary book upon whose pages the sun never sets, whose beams of grace illumine a sin-cursed world, adapted to all experiences of human life, adding joy to the marriage festival, substituting peace for sorrow at the funeral. Childhood approaches it with reverence. Maturity leans upon it as a trusty and well-tryed staff, and tottering age worships, while it clings to it, as the friend faithful to uphold in the rolling of death's dark river. The world's Bible, the Christian's Bible, the open Bible, the word of the living God, is the central thing of the Masonic Lodge, and the corner-stone of the Craftsman's faith."

Right Worshipful Sir and Brethren of Kingston Lodge, —I thank you for the honour conferred on me in requesting my presence here this evening, and I trust the object of our brotherhood may be ever present with us all—remembering that around the sacred altar of Freemasonry we have promised to befriend and relieve any brother who shall need our assistance. Let us endeavour to inscribe our names on that blessed roll of those who, loving men, are loved of God, even as in that little poem of Leigh Hunt's we learn how

"Abou Ben Adhem (may his tribe increase)
Awoke one night from a deep dream of peace,
And saw within the moonlight in his room—
Making it rich and like a lily in bloom—
An angel writing in a book of gold,
Exceeding peace had made Ben Adhem bold,
And to the presence in the room he said:
'What writest thou?' The vision raised its head,
And, with a look made of all sweet accord,

Answered: 'The names of those who love the Lord.'
'And is mine one?' said Abou. 'Nay, not so,'
Replied the angel. Abou spoke more low,
But cheerfully still, and said, 'I pray thee, then,
Write me as one that loves his fellow men.'
The angel wrote and vanished. The next night
It came again, with a great wakening light,
And showed the names whom love of God had blessed—
And, lo! Ben Adhem's name led all the rest."

FREEMASONRY IN THE UNITED STATES.

A notable event in the history of Freemasonry in Newark was the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Newark (New Jersey) Lodge, No. 7. About one hundred and fifty of the members were present. The lodge was opened in ancient form by Bro. Wm. Kipp, W.M., who extended a hearty welcome to all in a few well-chosen remarks. Bro. Daniel Bruen, P.G.M. of New Jersey, and the oldest Mason in the State, then read a complete history of the lodge from its institution to the present time. He also stated that that evening was not only memorable to him as the anniversary of Newark Lodge, but it was the sixtieth anniversary of his being raised. A quartet, composed of Messrs. Frank Hodson, A. H. Ward, Wm. J. Hall, and A. G. Cann, rendered some very fine selections. Bro. the Rev. Lansing Burrows, pastor of the North Baptist Church, delivered an address on the principles of the Order. The address was well prepared, and was listened to with rapt attention. Bro. Vehslage, R.W.D.G.M., closed the exercises with a few humorous remarks. The audience were afterwards invited to a repast, to which ample justice was done. The exercises concluded happily, with all the participants highly pleased.

There was quite a gathering of the fraternity at New Britain on the 22nd February, who, under the leadership of Marshal Freeston, marched to their new quarters in the Odd Fellows' Hall, to the number of 250. We are glad to see that the families of the brethren were invited to partake of a banquet. We congratulate the Freemasons of New Britain on their success, and trust it may long continue. The following officers were installed by Grand Master Rone:—Edw. S. Conklin, W.M.; S. W. Clark, S.W.; W. W. Woodruff, J.W.; W. L. Morgan, Treas.; E. J. Goodwin, Sec.; S. H. Stearns, S.D.; A. J. Leonard, J.D.; Wm. Freestone, Marshal; J. L. Dole, S. Steward; F. C. Zimmerman, J. Steward; and George H. Booth, Tyler.

Bro. Thomas J. Melish has taken his position at the helm of the veteran Masonic Review, now in its fiftieth year. No. 1 of the new volume is very creditable, and we wish every success to the enterprise. The subscription price is 2 dols. per annum, and the address, Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE EXCLUSION OF THE HEBREWS.—The New York Square copies our remarks on the above subject, and appends the following:—"We cannot too warmly endorse the views of our able contemporary. We regret that such an intolerant spirit should prevail among certain Masons in Germany. Here, and throughout the British Empire, no such a feeling exists—indeed, the greatest cordiality is extended to Hebrew brethren, who, as a rule, are good men and good Masons."

The Grand Lodge of Idaho has withdrawn its recognition of the Grand Orient of Hungary, on the ground that it appears to be a recent offshoot of the Grand Orient of France, from which Masonic intercourse has been withdrawn on account of its schismatical recognition and encouragement of certain clandestine organisations in the United States. It has also refused to recognise the so-called Grand Lodge of Ontario, or any subordinate lodges claiming or acknowledging jurisdiction under the same, or any member owing allegiance thereto. From this, it is evident that the Craft in Idaho adhere to strict Masonic principles, and merit the commendation of all regular Freemasons.—Voice of Masonry.

MASONIC PROGRESS.—M.W. Bro. J. W. Griffin, in his last annual address to the Grand Lodge of A.F. and A.M. of Idaho, said:—"It is a matter of just pride to every true lover of our Order, that although prehistoric in its origin, it has, without any departure from its primary principles, or deviating from its ancient landmarks, kept even pace with, and has ever been found in the vanguard of an enlightened and progressive civilization. And nowhere is this more apparent than in the history of the first century of our beloved republic—recognized, fostered and cherished by the fathers of the republic. Their descendants have followed in their pathway, and in no country does the Ancient and Honourable Order of Freemasonry hold higher rank or find more general and honourable recognition than in America. Let us endeavour, in the preservation of the purity and integrity of the Craft, to demonstrate our appreciation of the inheritance we have received."

The Masons' Widows and Orphans Home, of Kentucky, has had to undergo some severe trials, and many a doubt of its success has been entertained and expressed; but its friends have determined to be equal to all its emergencies, and to crown it with victory. At the last annual communication of the Grand Lodge it was ordered that a proposition to levy annually, for the next two years, a tax of one dollar on each member should be submitted to the subordinate lodges, at their annual meetings on last St. John's Day. From the Masonic Journal we learn that the proposition was carried by about four votes for to one against it, and that many of the lodges voted for it unanimously. Commenting on this, the Journal says: The action of the fraternity in levying a tax upon themselves of near one hundred thousand dollars will be gratifying to the friends of that great enterprise, the Home, established for the benefit of the widows and orphans of our deceased brethren, as it will insure the success and permanent prosperity of the institution, and place it beyond the contingency of even a temporary suspension or financial embarrassment. The promptness and unanimity with which the brethren have responded to the liberal proposition is highly creditable to them, and will reflect honour on the name Mason, and silence those who sometimes say that there is no practical good resulting from its labours or flowing from its organization. The "Home" is secure, brethren, and when the success of the proposition is announced by our Grand Master, Fairleigh, many widowed hearts will cease to ache.—Voice of Masonry.

PRESENTATION TO BRO. W. S. GOVER.

In the City Press of the 17th inst. appears an account of the presentation of a handsome silver tea and coffee service of the weight of 205 oz. 19 dwts., manufactured on an entirely elaborate and beautiful design by Messrs. Wostenholme & Biggin, of Sheffield, to Bro. W. S. Gover, P.G.S., P.M. Grand Master's Lodge, No. 1, and P.Z. St. James's Chapter, on the occasion of his retirement from the Chairmanship of the Corporation Committee, having charge and management of the great metropolitan markets.

Bro. Gover has filled other important chairs in the corporation, notably that of the City Commission of Sewers, and Bridge House Estate Committee; and he was recently elected by the City of London a second time as one of its representatives on the London School Board, when he stood second on the poll. Since his retirement from the Chairmanship of the Markets Committee Bro. Gover has been unanimously elected by the Common Council to the important office of Deputy Governor of the Honourable Irish Society.

Bro. Gover is an actuary of 30 years standing, and has been the founder of various important and successful public undertakings. He is the manager of the British Equitable Assurance Company, and recently assisted in the formation of the House Property Company, which, while founded on a strictly commercial basis, promises in a most effective and satisfactory manner, to solve the great problem of improving the dwellings of the working classes.

The inscription on the salver is as follows: "Presented together with Tea and Coffee Service, by the members of the Markets Committee of the Corporation of London, to William Sutton Gover, in testimony of their high estimation of his zealous, indefatigable, and successful labours as their Chairman during the year 1877."

BRO. RICHARD WAGNER.

Among the lions of the approaching London season there is good reason to believe will be no less renowned a personage as Bro. Richard Wagner. The correspondent of a contemporary, writing from Munich, assures us that the master will reach England some time in April; adding, "The object of his excursion is the bringing out parts of his 'Ring des Nibelungen' trilogy on the English stage, and he wishes to superintend the performances himself." We fear the addendum is much too good to be true, and may be dismissed from our minds at once. But the Neue Berliner Musikzeitung agrees with the Munich correspondent as to the fact of the proposed visit, and also as to its ultimate object. It seems that England is to receive another recognition of what sister nations appear to look upon as the primary object of her existence—the making good of deficits. Even as, only a few years ago, every Finance Minister "from China to Peru" expected us to fill the abhorred vacuum in his exchequer, so now Bro. Wagner comes for money wherewith to pay the debts incurred by his Bayreuth Festival. There is this difference, however, that the master brings with him, not promises of the pie-crust order, but a genuine quid pro quo. According to the Berlin journal, he will "personally conduct" several concerts at which will be performed some of some of his newest compositions. This is good news, and, assuming its correctness, we shall not be rash in guaranteeing Bro. Wagner a hearty and sympathetic welcome, even from those who contend that he has pushed his theories too far. His recollections of England, owing to the treatment he received here twenty-two years ago, cannot be very pleasant. But since then we have grown wiser. We recognise his genius and, even if unable to agree with all his principals or all his schemes, we may at least be generous where we cannot approve.

MASONRY A RELIGION.

We are taught that Masonry unites men of every country, sect and opinion. This is true in a limited sense only. It is true that what are commonly known as sectarian differences, have no place in the lodge; yet it is none the less true that Masonry is a religion. Many worthy, zealous Masons, in opposing anything like sectarian exclusiveness, rush to the other extreme, and, let us hope, without due reflection, say, "Let us banish religion, from the lodge room." What! banish religion from an Institution which, at its very portals, requires a belief and a trust in God? Banish religion from an Institution which teaches that no one should enter upon any great or important undertaking without first invoking the blessing of Deity? Banish religion from the sacred precincts where we are taught our duty to God, in never mentioning his name but with that reverential awe which is due from the creature to his Creator; to implore his aid in all our laudable undertakings, and to esteem Him as the chief good? Banish religion from around that sacred altar, where we are taught that the Holy Bible is given us as a rule and guide for our conduct? Religion is defined to be, "Any system of faith and worship." The religion of Masonry is a trust in, and the worship of, Almighty God, the Creator of the Universe, who controls the destinies of all created beings. This much being accepted, we have nothing to do with particular creeds and dogmas. Let each individual Mason hold his own views as to what beliefs and actions are necessary to his eternal salvation. A living faith in God, a full sense of individual responsibility to Him, and a life of virtue and morality, is what Masonry requires of its votaries. All else is left to the individual consciences of the brethren. That is the religion of Masonry; and he who does not subscribe to it casts aside the teachings and ground-work of the Institution. We need more the one All-Father, and the direct personal responsibility of each one of His creatures. When that spirit is attained and controlled, let the individual seek his home in that Church or belief that is best adapted to his mind and commands itself to his judgment; with his action in that regard Masonry has nothing to do, so long as the teachings and practices of that faith or institution are not subversive of the principles of virtue and morality, and are not inconsistent with a due obedience to legally constituted authorities and a proper subordination to the laws of the country in which we live. Actuated by these sentiments, and united by the bonds of fraternal love, we can heartily exclaim with the poet:—

"Maker and High Priest,
I ask thee not my joys to multiply,
Only to make me worthier of those I have."
G.M. of Utah, in the Voice of Masonry.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. GEORGE MARKHAM TWEDDELL.

We have been requested to publish the following, and hope that our brother will be materially benefitted by the exertions of his friends:—

It has long been the wish of the friends and admirers of this well-known author and public speaker, to present him with some substantial testimonial of esteem, for his life-long labour for the mental and moral elevation of the people. There has scarcely been a movement in the path of progress which he has not aided, publicly and privately, by his tongue and pen, from his youth up to the present time; often at a great pecuniary loss to himself; so that many, who may have differed widely from him in opinion, have not hesitated to express their admiration of the enthusiastic and unflinching manner in which he has always devoted his abilities in striving to promote whatever appeared to him to be for the good of humanity, whether popular or otherwise. The present testimonial will consist of a purse of gold, to help him through heavy losses and family affliction, over which he has no control, and to aid him to complete those literary labours in which he is known to have been so long engaged; while to preserve an enduring record of its presentation, the names of all the subscribers, whether of pounds or pence, will be printed in book form, and copies deposited in all the principal public libraries, as well as distributed among the subscribers. The testimonial will not be of a sectarian, party, or even local character; and subscriptions for the same will be gladly received, and duly acknowledged, by

Masonic and General Tidings.

We are requested to note the following particulars with reference to the Amateur Dramatic Entertainment at the Opera Comique (referred to in our last) now being organised by Mrs. Monckton, the proceeds of which are proposed to be presented to the Freemasons' Schools. H.R.H. the M.W. Grand Master has fixed Saturday afternoon, the 5th of May, at half-past 2 o'clock for the performance, and has graciously, with the Princess of Wales, promised to be present. The comedietta of "Tears," in which Mrs. Monckton and Captain Gooch made so remarkable a success at the same theatre on the 17th February, will, by special desire, form part of the programme. On and after the 2nd of April, places will be booked at the theatre and the libraries, but, meanwhile, seats are being, and may be secured, by written application to "Acting Manager," 33, Golden-square, who, in the allotment, will strictly observe the priority of application.

MIZPAH LODGE, No 1671.—The consecration of this lodge takes place at the Albion, Aldersgate-st., on Tuesday next at 4 o'clock. The ceremonies of consecration and installation will be performed by V.W. Bro. John Hervey, P.G.D., Grand Secretary, assisted by V.W. the Rev. Robt. J. Simpson, P.G.C., and W. Bro. James Terry, G.D. of C., Herts. The officers designat, are Bros. Nelson Reed, W.M.; David R. Still, S.W.; and Walter W. Medcalf, J.W. A full report will appear in our next.

ROUMANIA.—The following are the officers elected by the "Loge des Sages d'Heliopolis, Orient of Bucharest, for 1876-7:—Bros. Dr. Sigismund Sceinir, Vénér.; Major Alexandre Tavernier, 1st. Surv.; Major Jean Dimitresco, 2nd Surv.; Stephan C. Michailesco, Orat.; M. Ascher, Secrét.; Ad. Deutch, Gr. Exp.; F. Kessler, M. des Cérém.; Capt. Naimann, Trés.; A. Berger, Hospit.; Dr. Diano, Orat. adj.; G. Rosenzweig, Secrét. adj.; El Butoiano, Couvreur.; H. A. Levy, Archit.

CUBA.—The Grand Lodge of the Island of Cuba has concluded a treaty with the Grand Orient of Spain (that is to say, with one of the Orients which exists in Spain). By this treaty the Grand Lodge of Cuba alone has the power to establish Symbolic Lodges from the First to the Fourth Degree. On the other hand, the Grand Lodge of Cuba will not recognise the superior degrees in Cuba, except they are conferred by the Grand Orient of Spain.

In addressing a gathering at Botley, on Monday, Bro. W. B. Beach, president of the Central Chamber of Agriculture, spoke with great regret of the reappearance of the cattle plague, and said that if the Privy Council had adopted the resolutions presented by the Chamber last year to the Duke of Richmond and Gordon, the plague would not have reappeared.

Above £3000 has been received at the Mansion House towards the fund being raised there for the relief of the widows and orphans of the crews who were lately lost in the North Sea.

The two eldest sons of the Prince of Wales will shortly be sent on board the "Britannia" training ship, as naval Cadets, for their education.

BRO. CAPTAIN BOYTON.—A despatch from Messina says that Captain Boyton crossed the Straits on the 10th inst., in a storm, which placed the boats in great danger. During the passage, which occupied five hours, Capt. Boyton was attacked by a shark, but succeeded in driving off his assailant before being bitten, although he received a sharp blow from its tail. The American Consul and several distinguished gentlemen were in the boats which accompanied him. Notwithstanding the heavy sea running at the time, Captain Boyton safely passed through the most dangerous whirlpools. A most enthusiastic reception from thousands of people awaited him on shore, where he was officially received by the authorities.

The seventh annual grand ball in aid of the Metropolitan and City Police Orphanage will take place at the Cannon Street Hotel, on Thursday, April 26th, under the patronage of the Right Hon. the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex.

The governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital have made arrangements for giving systematic instruction, both practical and theoretical, to young women desirous of being trained as nurses, and willing to enter the service of the hospital for that purpose for twelve months as probationers. Probationers, who prove efficient, will receive at the expiration of the twelve months, a certificate of competency as nurses.—City Press.

We are informed that the Alexandra Palace has been leased for 21 years to Messrs. Bertram and Roberts, and we understand it will be reopened the first week in May. The whole of the interior will undergo considerable change, and the new proprietors have determined that the entertainments shall be of a high-class character. Season tickets will be issued at half a guinea.

"Our Boys" have already raised their corps to 700 knights.—Yorick.

A RUSSIAN SABLE CLOAK.—A good deal of interest was displayed recently at Messrs. Debenham, Storr, and Son's auction mart, in King-street, Covent-garden, during the sale of the wardrobe and jewels of a well-known and distinguished foreign lady of title, especially when Lot 65 was reached. It was described as a matchless Russian sable cloak, composed of skins of the very finest quality, as regards colour and uniformity, the skins having been selected with great care and at an enormous cost for a Royal personage. The first offer was 100 guineas, and after a prolonged competition from many bidders the cloak was sold for 460 guineas.

The Hospital Saturday collection in Liverpool realised £2226.

Bro. D. Murray Lyon has been appointed Grand Secretary of the Grand Lodge of Scotland, 128 voted for Bro. Wylie, Prov. Grand Secretary of Ayrshire, and 210 for Bro. Lyon, being a majority of 82 votes for the latter.

The proprietors of the Bank of England have unanimously resolved to present to the nation their collection of gold and silver coins, which have been for some years past in the custody of the trustees of the British Museum. The value of this gift is estimated at seven thousand pounds.

The Queen held a Council at Windsor on Tuesday, previously to which General and Madame Ignatieff were presented to her Majesty.

A meeting in aid of the establishment of an Indian and Colonial Museum in London was held at the Mansion House on Tuesday, the Lord Mayor presiding. Mr. E. P. Bouverie, Mr. Twells, M.P., Professor Fawcett, M.P., and Sir George Campbell, M.P., were among the speakers.

The Masonic Review has passed into other hands, owing to Bro. Moore's inability to meet a claim of 280 dols. upon it. How sad that one who has done so much for Masonry should have been reduced to such straits. We deeply sympathize with our unfortunate brother.—Craftsman.

We regret to announce the death of the Rev. Basil Popoff, Chaplain of the Russian Chapel, Welbeck-street, and private Chaplain to her Royal and Imperial Highness the Duchess of Edinburgh, which took place on Monday morning after several month's illness. The Rev. Mr. Popoff had been long resident in this country.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY.—Haydn's Oratorio, "The Seasons," will be performed this (Friday) evening at Exeter Hall. Madame Blanche Cole, Mr. Cummings, and Signor Foli are the vocalists. Bro. Sir Michael Costa will conduct.

The ceremony of consecrating a new Masonic Lodge at Newcastle-upon-Tyne took place on the 7th inst., in the Freemasons' Hall, West Grainger-st. the V.W. the Deputy Provincial Grand Master, Bro. D. M. Cockcroft, presiding. There was a very large attendance of brethren and Provincial Grand Officers, Bro. E. D. Davies acting as Provincial Grand Director of Ceremonies, and the Rev. W. B. East, Provincial Grand Chaplain. The new lodge was named the "Gosforth Lodge," No. 1664 on the Register of the Grand Lodge of England, and will be held at Bulman Village. The following brethren were installed as the first officers:—Bros. J. S. Wilson, R.W.M.; David Hetherington, I.P.M.; George Cattel, S.W. Richard Eynon, J.W.; Wm. F. M. Callum, Sec.; Wm. White, I.G. After the ceremony was concluded the brethren dined together at the Queen's Head Hotel, Pilgrim-street, Bro. J. S. Wilson, President, George Cattel, S.W., Vice-president.

ISLINGTON LODGE OF INSTRUCTION, No. 1471.—The meetings of this lodge are held every Tuesday evening, at 7 o'clock, at Bro. Davison's, 13, Silver-street, Falcon-square. Bro. J. L. Mather, P.M. 65, 1227, and 1471, is the Preceptor.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who, much to the gratification of a large assembly, was accompanied by the Princess, presided on Wednesday at the re-opening of the Charing-cross Hospital, which has recently undergone considerable improvements and extensions.

We are requested to state that the armoury and regalia at the Tower of London will be closed from the 26th to the 30th March inclusive.

At a public meeting in the Mansion House, Dublin, on Monday, the Lord Mayor presiding, it was resolved to establish a free public library for Dublin; the body having the management and control of the library to be, in accordance with the usage in England, a joint committee composed of members of the Municipal Council and other citizens, and representing all denominations.

H.R.H. the G.M. was on Wednesday appointed a Captain in the Naval Reserve.

Buenos Ayres advices says the heat lately experienced there has been the greatest ever known. The thermometer marked 105 in the shade; at Entre Rios and Sante Fe the heat was so great as to stop all business.

The office of Black Rod, vacant by the death of Sir A. Clifford, has been accepted by General Sir W. Knollys, who was born in 1797. The salary has been fixed at £2,000 per annum, with a residence within the precincts of the Palace of Westminster. Sir William will be succeeded by Sir D. M. Probyn in his office of Controller of the Household.

Mr. John Wood has accepted the professorship of clinical surgery at King's College Hospital, vacant by the death of Sir W. Fergusson.

In Paris at present, instead of planting young plane trees as of old on newly formed boulevards, large are planted. The newly formed Boulevard Henry IV. is furnished throughout with well-grown plants, with stems nearly 1 foot in diameter and nearly 30 feet high.

The Prince of Wales, it is stated, is going to the Mediterranean, because his medical advisers consider that the state of his health renders it necessary that he should be out of England during the spring winds, which are rather severe on his constitution, which has not quite recovered the illness of 1871.—Echo.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE BOAT RACE.—For the information of our readers who obtain the Freemason in time, it may be interesting to learn that it is definitely settled that the race will be rowed from Putney to Mortlake, the start taking place at 8.30 Saturday morning.

TO ADVERTISERS.

The FREEMASON has a large circulation in all parts of the Globe, its advantages as an advertising medium can therefore scarcely be overrated.

ADVERTISEMENTS should reach the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London, by 12 o'clock on Wednesdays.

NOTICE.

To prevent delay or miscarriage, it is particularly requested that ALL communications for the FREEMASON, may be addressed to the Office, 198, Fleet-street, London.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

COLONIAL and FOREIGN SUBSCRIBERS are informed that acknowledgments of remittances received are published in the first number of every month.

It is very necessary for our readers to advise us of all money orders they remit, more especially those from the United States of America and India; otherwise we cannot tell where to credit them.

TO OUR READERS.

DEPARTURE OF OUR ROYAL GRAND MASTER FOR THE MEDITERRANEAN.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales will leave Marlborough House on Saturday (this day) for a cruise in the Mediterranean in the Royal yacht Osborne. The Prince of Wales will visit the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh at Malta, and the Princess will visit the King and Queen of the Hellenes at Athens. Their Royal Highnesses are expected to be absent from England about six weeks.

SOME BREAKERS AHEAD.

Do not let our readers be alarmed by the heading of this leader of ours, as the remarks we are about to make do not concern Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry. But abroad there appear to us to be some breakers ahead of the good ship "Freemasonry," which threaten disaster to it, unless by skilful steering the gallant craft can be kept off a lee shore. There are two seeming dangers just now, which appear to us to require very cautious treatment, and very judicious handling. The one is, the prevailing tendency abroad in some quarters to make Freemasonry a meeting place both for the beliefs and the disbeliefs of the world. Now there is a consensus of teaching which runs through universal Speculative Freemasonry, (as all speculative Freemasonry is Anglican in origin), which is, that Freemasonry recognizes the G.A.O.T.U. in all its proceedings, and all its formularies. The "libres penseurs" and the "esprits forts" in French Freemasonry are now seeking to remove this profession of faith in God as a pre-requisite for admission into the Masonic Order in France, in order that those who do not believe and those who do may meet on equal ground. Belgian Freemasonry is following suit, and if it carries out its present insane agitation to a logical result will assuredly fall, lamented by none, as, to say the truth, some of the utterances of unwise Belgian Masons have been most offensive to our English mind. And yet there is no reason why those sensible and stable Flemings should so belie the dictates of their national good feeling and indigenous common sense. We heard of a story the other day which we believe can be thoroughly depended upon. In a lodge in France or Belgium, but one of the two, which matters not, an aspirant was asked, did he believe in God? "Jamais," was the reply. "Jamais?" asked the Venerable. "Jamais de ma vie," was the response, and a murmur of approval ran through the lodge. Comment is needless. If this liberty of unbelief and negation is to characterise the French and Belgian lodges, the future of Freemasonry in those countries is pretty certain to be a melancholy one. It is not difficult to foretell what its end must be, humanly speaking. We protest once for all, in the name of our common and religious Order, against this pitiful agitation, and this unwholesome change, this Jesuitical and puerile pretence of toleration, this uprooting of the universal formula of Masonic recognition of the Most High. And another great danger staring us in the face is the theory that Freemasonry is an association whose one idea is the "solidarity of humanity," whatever that may mean. Hence comes the grave error, that Freemasonry has a right to mix itself up with questions which affect the political status, the general and special condition of nations and the world. We conceive this to be a fatal misunderstanding of the real character and scope of Freemasonry. Freemasonry is a benevolent brotherhood, favourable to peaceful progress and advancing civilization, professing toleration of opinion, and liberty of conscience, devoted to active labours of kindness and benevolence, but not "travelling beyond its own record," not "testifying," or holding forth out of its own lodges, in matters of personal contest or polemical excitement. It simply avows its own kindly, considerate, large-hearted, and unchanging teaching, and leaves it to the sympathies of its brethren, and the approval of mankind. But it nowhere professes to dogmatize, nor seeks to denounce. Sufficient for it that it proclaims religiously the teaching of its unvarying principles, and seeks to demonstrate their enduring worth, by the active fruits and labours of brotherly love. Carefully, then, should we all ever seek to act up to the warning and seasonable advice of our Royal Grand Master, to "keep clear of politics," and to "confine ourselves to our proper duties," as thus we shall best evidence and most safely maintain, before an admiring and appreciating world, the high character and noble aims of Anglo-Saxon Freemasonry.

ANONYMOUS MASONIC COMMUNICATIONS.

It would almost seem as if the writers and senders of anonymous letters and the like were just now on the increase, as if we had a number of "special agents" in society, who sought to do as much mischief as they could do, and traduce the fair fame of some unsuspecting neighbour. The Bishop of Lincoln has recently objected to the admission of "alms bags" in churches, on account of, inter alia, cuttings from papers, and anonymous communications thrown in. And here we, as Freemasons, have to complain of some kind brother, in the purest spirit of Masonic philanthropy, sending us an anonymous communication, directed to the The Freemason, which consists of printed extracts from our own paper, and one or two friendly MS. comments. To whom we are indebted for such a truly Masonic attention we do not exactly know, and it is not worth while to trouble our minds about his personality, as that personality must be very low, and those Masonic principles must be very valueless which could induce any one to act as "Bro. Anonymous" has acted with respect to The Freemason. The comments he makes, and the animus he displays are alike beneath notice, indeed so childish, so ridiculous are they, that it is really charitable to suppose that the individual, be he who he may, who took the trouble to gum those extracts from The Freemason together, and add the running comments on them, was, as one of the police magistrates said some time ago of a special case, "either mad or drunk." And here we leave the matter. Did we know the writer and transmitter of this precious communication positively, we should decline to meet him in a lodge, or acknowledge him as a brother, as we feel sure that all our readers will agree with us in holding, that of all reptiles who crawl on this mother earth, the lowest and vilest of all is the anonymous libeller. No true Freemason will, even under any circumstances, be a cowardly slanderer or surreptitious traducer of his brother.

THE PROPAGATION OF ERROR.

A new Masonic journal, Il Moto, published at Palermo, of which we have received No. 4, seems to treat the spurious so-called Grand Lodge "Les Philadelphes" as a veritable Masonic body, and to assume that Bro. Valleton is acting in the interest of English Freemasons. We must beg at once to undeceive our contemporary, whose appearance we welcome, and to protest against any assumption by which an illegal and clandestine body can be called a Grand Lodge in England, and distinctly to declare that Bro. Valleton's profession of acting in the interest of the English brethren is an insult to our entire Craft. Il Moto rests its statement on the authority of the Monde Maçonnique, which, as we have already shown, has taken a most reprehensible liberty alike in respect of the name of our English brethren and the dignity and legal position of the English Grand Lodge.

"LE MONDE MACONNIQUE" AND "THE FREEMASON."

We shall call attention to some remarks in this periodical for March in our next.

A GRAVE PERIL.

Poor man is never free from dangers of one kind or another here. Indeed, while many are the perils of his way, the greatest of all arises from the dangerous snares of woman! It always has been so in the history of the world, it even now is so, and we may feel perfectly satisfied that it always will be so. A forlorn and helpless biped cannot escape from the delusions and artifices of the designing or the dangerous female. Indeed, it is still true as when the poet sang of old, as man journeys along, that "Incident in Scyllam cupiens evitare Charibdin," or, as we say in our more homely vernacular, "he only gets out of the frying pan into the fire." Man is, therefore, greatly to be pitied amid all those manœuvres, and all those seductions, whose consequences are often of the most affecting kind. We have been led into these sentimental reflections by the following extract from the proceedings of the Probate Court, in which the dangerous fascinations of a widow fully justify Mr. Weller's lucid fears of old, which some of our readers will probably well remember.

Let us note the account:—"And did she not make you an offer of marriage?" The witness shook his head, but did not seem quite at ease. Mr. Sergeant Robinson.—There was no wrong in it. I repeat, did she not ask you to marry her? Witness.—Well, well! She didn't ask me to marry her, but very near. When I had resolved on leaving, I said in the morning, 'I must leave to-day.' 'Leave to-day,' she said. 'Yes,' I said, 'I must.' She said, 'Oh, no; I wish you would stop a little longer.' 'I can't,' I said, 'I can't; I have some business to attend to, but I'll come up again in a day or two.' 'Ah! she said, 'but I feel the night so bad.' You may judge from that that it was coming very close. But a friend had warned me on coming up from Tunbridge. 'Beware, Bark!' he said, 'Beware!' and I was very glad. (Great merriment, in which the learned President heartily joined, was occasioned by the vividness with which the witness narrated this memorable and perilous incident in his history.) Certainly the matter was beginning to get very pressing indeed, when the lonely widow thus opens out her heart to an obdurate male friend, and as it is not every one who likes to come to such close quarters, prima facie, we can quite enter into the modest hesitation of poor "Bark." But yet, who knows, the widow was probably like other widows, kind and considerate, pleasant and prosperous, and on the whole, taking the affair all round, as they say, we think that "Bark" had better have faced the danger like a man, and, like "Jack Smart," made himself agreeable and sentimental at the same time, and married the widow. If we were to understand that widows were in the habit generally of making such advances to timid and recalcitrant "man," we should deem it to be our duty to take the high moral line and make a "deliverance" on the subject. But widows are more or less privileged persons, whether like the sympathetic and lonely woman in the story before us, who felt the "night so bad," or like that charming creation of Anthony Trollope, Mrs. Max Göslar, who says to the man of her heart and affections, in all the fulness of her gushing nature, "At last, at last!" It will be seen, that as sensible Freemasons we have taken a lenient, a friendly, and we will add, a Masonic view of the subject. Widows, like the fair individual of whom "Bark" was so afraid, are, as far as we know anything about the matter, like our estimable Order, courteous and kindly, philanthropic and friendly, in the highest degree. We think that "Bark" made a mistake, and had better not have shown the "white feather" to a lone woman, for after all a widow is only a widow still, and nothing else. The story has its alarming side, alike for the peace and comfort of young bachelors and old bachelors, of desponding widowers, of timorous misogynists; and we recommend our many readers to peruse it carefully, and lay it to heart. Who knows how soon that we may have ourselves to face "Bark's" danger, and let us hope that in such an emergency of our life, we may prove equal to the occasion, and seek to comport ourselves with he alacrity and dignity of men, of Britons, and of Freemasons.

THE NEW GRAND SECRETARY FOR SCOTLAND.

We congratulate Bro. D. Murray Lyon on his election, and the Grand Lodge of Scotland on their appointment of so fitting a brother for so important a post. We shall recur to the subject in our next.

THE SPURIOUS FRENCH GRAND LODGE IN LONDON.

(Communiqué.)

We have received the Monde Maçonnique for March, and find there, in answer to our natural and somewhat indignant remarks in a recent Freemason respecting the public announcement of this illegal body, some statements so extraordinary, signed by Bro. Adrien Grimaux, that we think it well to translate them and call the attention of our readers to them, alike at home and abroad. At page 407 we find these words under the head "Angleterre:—" "It is known that for a great number of years there existed in London a lodge, 'Les Philadelphes,' formed by foreign Masons outside the Grand Lodge of England. That is it which they call an irregular and clandestine lodge—irregular very much against its own will, because the Grand Lodge (sic) of England, we presume, has never been willing to grant it a warrant of constitution. As regards the clandestineness of this lodge, it has consisted in never hiding itself, acting in open day, founding a special organ, &c. (Literary, we presume.) But nevertheless it is an irregular and clandestine lodge. Since that time it has been re-united with the Lodge 'La Concorde,' and has constituted itself a mother lodge or Grand Lodge." Such is the statement which appears in the Monde Maçonnique of March, and certainly a more extraordinary one never was put forth by any Masonic journal. Our Grand Lodge has already warned the Craft against the "Lodge des Philadelphes," of which, or of some synonymous body, certificates have been sold up and down the country, and of which we have one in our possession. It is not true to say, as Bro. Grimaux does, that the Lodge des Philadelphes ever applied for a warrant to our Grand Lodge; the Lodge "La Concorde" did, but was, "sous tous les rapports," very properly refused one by our authorities. But no application was ever made by the lodge "Les Philadelphes." So that two surreptitious lodges, without any warrants, can meet together, both equally illegal and clandestine, and declare themselves to be a Grand Lodge, in a country where a lawful Grand Lodge exists! If this is French Masonic custom or law on the subject, (which we do not believe), the sooner it is openly repudiated by all civilized Masonic brethren the better. Our readers will perceive with amazement and regret the astounding and jesuitical argument of the paragraph we have translated above. A lodge which has not a warrant from a lawful Grand Lodge, and for which in addition it has never applied, cannot be considered irregular, because it professes a wish for a warrant; and should not be considered clandestine, because it openly avows its breach of all Masonic local and general law. A lodge which has been refused a warrant, for good and sufficient reasons, has a right to join another lodge without a warrant at all, and constitute itself and call itself a Grand Lodge, in a country where a legal Grand Lodge exists, and a respectable Masonic journal is openly to defend the illegality and the impertinence of such an act. May we not fairly say, "Risum teneatis amici et fratres." Luckily in England we care nothing for such manœuvres; they are alike ridiculous and contemptible, and this illegal body may well be left to itself, and its fanfaronades to silent contempt. But certainly we are not prepared for such "outrecuidance," to use another French expression, in those who profess to belong to a lawful body of French Freemasons, and we feel that if such be the animus of the ruling faction in France (which we can ever hardly believe, and look upon it as the outcome of individual perversity alone) the friendly feeling as between English and French Freemasons will receive a shock from which they will not easily recover.

We may fairly ask ourselves what French Freemasons would say if English Freemasons in Paris imitated the course of action of these obscure foreigners who belong to the "Philadelphes?" But this, by the way. The present proceeding is so outrageous, and the argument in support of it so preposterous, that we have thought it well to leave them to the public opinion of our Order. We give the actual French, to which allusion has been made above. "On sait que depuis un grand nombre d'années, il existe à Londres une Loge, les Philadelphes, formée par des Maçons étrangers en dehors de la grande Loge d'Angleterre. C'était ce que l'on appelle une Loge irrégulière et clandestine: irrégulière bien malgré elle, puisque la Grande Loge n'a jamais voulu lui accorder de constitutions. Quant à la clandestinité de cette Loge, elle a consisté à ne jamais se cacher, à agir au grand jour, à fonder un organe spécial, etc. Mais, enfin, c'était une Loge irrégulière et clandestine. Depuis, elle s'est réunie à la Loge la Concorde, et s'est constituée en Loge mère ou Grande Loge." We have not entered into any questions as regards Bro. Valleton, &c. We are publicists, not personalists, and we only write "pro bono publico," and with a desire to uphold the honour of Freemasonry, and the rights and dignity of our own distinguished Grand Lodge.

HUNGARIAN FREEMASONS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

The following is the translation of the extract from the Hungarian Masonic paper Hajnal, as transcribed by "Carpathianus" in your issue of the 17th inst., "According to a report in the Freemason, the G.M. of New Zealand has granted the constitution for the formation of a new lodge in Cumara. This news in itself is not extraordinary, but becomes interesting from the fact that Kumara—an auriferous district, about 80 miles from Hokitika—though only very recently discovered, counts already 7000 inhabitants, more than 50 of whom are members of the Craft."

ROYAL MASONIC INSTITUTION FOR GIRLS.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

In justice to the Girls' School, to which I am indirectly under deep obligations, I hope to be allowed to make a few remarks upon the system of education adopted at that institution.

I have two sisters who were educated in the school, and I must say that during the term of their sojourn there the domestic portion of their education was in no way neglected, and at the time of leaving the school they were both well versed in the art of cookery, &c.

I have also the pleasure of knowing two young ladies in this neighbourhood, formerly inmates of the school, who are willing and anxious to corroborate the above statement.

I deeply regret to hear of any brother who would endeavour to cast unjust aspersions upon the usefulness of so noble an institution.

Yours fraternally,

L.P.M.

Manchester, 18th March, 1877.

THE OLDEST MASON IN ENGLAND.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

I notice in yours of last Saturday, March, 17, a paragraph stating Bro. Norris, Warden at the Royal Benevolent Institution, Croydon, to be the oldest Mason in England, age 87, and 65 years a Mason; but we have in Stockport a brother slightly Bro. Norris's senior, viz., Bro. Philip Chetham, who is Secretary to the Lodge of Peace, 322. He has now reached his ninetieth year and his sixty-sixth year as a Mason. He was present at their usual monthly meeting, held at the Warren Bulkley Arms, on the 7th ult., at the initiation of his fourth grandson, Mr. James Chetham, who is nineteen years of age, and who was initiated by dispensation. At the social board this veteran brother sang some Masonic songs with much enthusiasm.

Yours fraternally,

ROBT. RICHARDSON,
S.W. 645.

MASONIC QUERIES.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Believing that it is to the interest of the Order that all our lodges should keep within the four corners of our constitution, I think it right to draw attention to the report of the Ivy Lodge, No. 1441, as it appeared in your paper of the 17th inst., and as I have not the pleasure of knowing any of the brethren of that lodge, I trust my remarks will not be supposed to be made in a captious spirit.

Your report says, "An emergency meeting of this high-class lodge was held on Tuesday, &c., &c.," and goes on to say that ballots were severally taken for certain gentlemen, and amongst them one for a joining brother. Now, the Constitutions say in the clearest possible manner, that "No brother shall be admitted a member of a lodge without a regular proposition in open lodge, nor until his name, occupation, and place of abode, as well as the name and number of the lodge, &c., &c., have been sent to all the members in the summons for the next regular lodge meeting, at which meeting the brother's Grand Lodge certificate, &c., is to be produced, and the decision of the brethren ascertained by ballot."

It is therefore clearly irregular for any brother to be balloted for at any lodge of emergency, under heavy penalties.

I have observed that several brethren complain, and rightly too, of not having a copy of the Constitutions. In the bye-laws of the lodge of which I am the present W.M. it is provided that a copy of the Constitutions, as well as a copy of the bye-laws, shall be given to every brother on his initiation.

Were this plan more generally adopted, it would go far to prevent many useless questions being asked by brethren in your columns.

I am fairly puzzled to know the meaning of W.S., and what office it can be; and as the term is not confined to the report of the lodge above referred to, probably there will be no difficulty in giving me the designation and where to find it in the Book of Constitutions, for I have searched in vain.

Yours fraternally,

ROBERT CASE,
Past Prov. G. Sec. Dorset.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir, and Brother,

In your reply to my queries of last week you say that it is usual for the Stewards to be installed at the same time as the other officers, and that the appointment will appear on the minute book. But in the case I alluded to neither had been done. In such a case, is the brother, who had never been invested in open lodge, nor had his name inserted in the minute book as having been appointed a Steward, but merely received a note from the W.M. elect, asking him to be a Steward. Is he, under these circumstances, justified in acting as Steward.

Yours fraternally,

J. D. F.

[He must be invested, and the instalment entered in the minutes of the lodge.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Just allow me to inform Bro. Magnus Ohren that the question of P.P.G. Steward did not originate from W.M.C.N., nor, yours fraternally,

R. W. O.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

Would you, or some one of your numerous readers, kindly inform me, through the medium of your widely read columns, when, where, and by whom our M.W. Pro Grand Master, the Earl of Carnarvon, was made a Mason, and in what lodge he now holds Past Master's rank?

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

T. E.

To the Editor of the "Freemason."

Dear Sir and Brother,—

It is stated by Preston and other Masonic writers that the "Ancient Masons," after their secession from the Grand Lodge of England, acknowledged no superior until they elected the Duke of Athol as their Grand Master in 1774. I think there must be some mistake in this assertion, as I have seen a warrant constituting a lodge at Macclesfield in 1764, signed by the Earl of Kelly, G.M., and Laurence Dermott, Secretary, and which evidently emanates from that body.

Can any of your readers inform me on the subject?

Yours fraternally,

A. T.

"THE SCOTTISH FREEMASON."

(To the Editor of the Scottish Freemason.)

Sir,—I have received and read with great pleasure the first number of the Scottish Freemason, and will do all I can to induce the brethren here to become subscribers.

It has made its appearance very opportunely.

If the affairs of Grand Lodge are to be kept in proper working order, there must be a searching investigation by Grand Committee. They must make up their minds to spend hours, if not days, superintending and investigating, and get things put into proper business form.

The unsatisfactory elections of Grand Committee should be vigorously opposed by the whole Craft. Indeed, it is the current belief throughout the lodges that there should be a clean sweep of both old committeemen and old officials, and then there would be more hope for a life of vigour and improvement.

I hope that your journal, in recording the proceedings of Grand Lodge, Provincial lodges, and the daughter lodges, will not spare the "surgeon's knife" whenever or wherever it is required; and that, with the hearty co-operation of the lodges, the Finance Committee may before the end of the year be able to report satisfactory progress.

I hope that Grand Lodge will get a Grand Secretary of thorough business habits, whose heart and soul are in his work, and, having nothing else to do, that he will make the business department of Grand Lodge a model of perfection.

A. THOMSON.

Galashiels, 12th March, 1877.

Reviews.

THE ROYAL MASONIC CYCLOPEDIA, Part XXX.

We congratulate Bro. Kenneth Mackenzie on the conclusion of his work, which we see, by the last number received, he has successfully achieved. The old adage is still "finis coronat opus," and we always think that the author who looks back on his completed work can regard with some satisfaction the work of his hands. Bro. K. Mackenzie has shown great diligence and much industry in the continuous work of a cyclopædia, and has laboured earnestly to give to the Masonic brotherhood a very readable book. In the present taste and temper of our student Masons there is plenty of room for a cyclopædia like that of Bro. K. Mackenzie, which offers, to those especially who take the hermetic view, a fund of information on a most difficult subject. Just now many cyclopædias ask for public approval, Mackay and Macoy, Oliver and Bailey, the "Handbuch," and Bro. K. Mackenzie, to say nothing of old Güdiche and accurate Lenning; but Bro. K. Mackenzie has presented to his friends and readers what may be termed a "hermetic cyclopædia," which, as a "Masonic Student," we heartily accept as a very laudable contribution to severe studies and abstruse speculation.

MASONIC STUDENT.

A SELECTION OF SCARCE AND VALUABLE BOOKS ON FREEMASONRY.—On Sale by Bro. JOHN HOGG, Paternoster-row, E.C.

We have read this catalogue with much interest, and commend it to the notice of individual members and lodge librarians. Many of the works advertised are both scarce and valuable, and would be well worth the attention of all who are making up Masonic libraries, and it is right to point out that though some Masonic works are very dear now, they will probably yet be dearer still, and we, therefore, think it well to remind our readers, and all who are interested in Masonic literature, that they now have the opportunity of purchasing books which subsequently may not be so easily met with.

THE "SCOTTISH FREEMASON," No. 2.

We liked the first number very much; we like the second number still more, and we feel sure that it has a career of success before it. It gives a great amount of well-arranged and interesting matter, at a most moderate price, and is admirably printed and supervised. As a new literary Masonic bantling it comes before Freemasons, and above all in Scotland, with every claim for attention and approval. Many of our Scottish brethren and readers, "per mare et per terras," will like to hear of the Masonic doings in the "Land o' Cakes," and we think it but right to remind them that they now have the opportunity, at a very cheap rate, of keeping up their connection with the "auld country," and of knowing how the Masonic world "wags its way." We offer again to editor and publisher our hearty congratulations and good wishes.

THE AUTOCRAT AT THE ROUND TABLE.

MERCURY—"But what is Freemasonry? I don't understand it."

PUFF—turning over a number of papers—selects one and reads—"Dr. Oliver, one of the greatest Masonic writers, has defined it as 'the handmaid of religion.' Our system beautifully exemplifies this definition. It is truly the handmaid of religion, inasmuch as, without violating any creed or dogma, it inculcates the love of our great Creator, teaches us in contemplating His works to estimate duly His mighty power, to admire the symmetry with which He has designed them all, and finally, to appreciate the beauty of His every work. Where can we find greater teaching than this?"

MERCURY—"Ah, where? But is this taught in your lodges?"

PUFF—"All this and more. One of its greatest principles is 'Charity.' Listen once more." Reads—"This is a word of vast importance and significance, it is not only giving to the poor and distressed of your abundance, it is much more than this; 'it is charity of mind—charity of feeling—charity of character—and charity of action—it is the incarnation of every moral and social virtue.' Masonry, moreover, inculcates another duty, viz., a good and well-spent life; an example to our fellow-mortals, ruled by the four cardinal virtues—Prudence, Temperance, Fortitude, and Justice. These teachings, if properly carried out, must necessarily extend the power of man's intellect (the great and glorious boon given by the Creator to mankind) and enable him to contemplate that great principle, that the wisest philosophers of ancient days could never fathom—"The knowledge of oneself." What, then, it may be asked, is Freemasonry—is it nothing? or is it not rather one of the grandest conceptions of the mortal mind? Briefly then, again, what is Masonry? 'It is a system of morality founded on the belief in the Creator; a true love and adoration of His name; exemplified by using our faculties to His honour and glory, and the benefit of our fellow creatures; by ruling our lives and actions according to His laws; by a perfect exercise of charity in its most extended meaning; in fact, 'Faith in God, hope in His promises, and to be in charity with all men.'"

MERCURY—"Almost thou persuadest me to be a Mason; but what work is it you are quoting?"

PUFF—"A new publication called the Scottish Freemason, which should be in the hands of every brother."

MERCURY—"May I read it?"

PUFF—"Certainly." Hands it over. Mercury immediately falls to reading it, and Puff resumes his studies.—Kelso Courier, March 16th.

BELFAST MASONIC CHARITY FUND AND MASONIC WIDOWS' FUND.

The annual meeting in connection with the above funds was held on the 12th inst., in Freemasons' Hall, Arthur-square, Belfast, at 8 o'clock. There was a very large attendance of the brethren present. Amongst those present were Bros. Dr. Robert Seeds, Q.C.; John G. M'Gee, Alexr. Tate, P.G.S.; John Robson, John Mooney, P.G.S.W.; Charles Lilley, Hugh Doey, Rev. T. J. Welland, Rev. W. C. M'Cullagh, John Hannan, Rev. Jonathan Seaver, Gerald Coulson, William Grant, W. J. Rainey, H. S. Hill, William Rankin, John Stott, James Creighton, John Ireland, Wm. Martin, James Scott, Thomas Nesbitt, James Allen, Joseph Gibson, James Adrain, John Adrian, Thos. Fisher, —Coates, W. H. M'Neill, A. B. Mitchell, R. M'Henry, Dr. Clements, William Brown, Lewis Ryans, William Jackson, J. Giffard, J. M'Donnell, John M'Neill, T. White, Alexr. Morrow, and others.

On the motion of Bro. Fisher, Bro. Robert Seeds was called to the chair.

The Chairman said the first part of the business of the evening was to hear the report that would be presented to them from the committee of the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund. After the report had been read they would have an opportunity of discussing it. He thought they would all agree with him that it was a most commendable report.

Bro. James Adrain read the annual report as follows:—

"The income for the year 1876 amounted to the sum of £128 14s. 1d., which, with a balance to the credit of the fund from the previous year of £31 16s. 3½d., makes a total of £160 10s. 4½d.; the total number of applicants who have received relief during the year being 35, at a cost of £72 14s. 3d.; incidental expenses, printing report, stationery, &c., £7 14s., leaving a balance of £82 2s. 1½d. in Treasurer's hands at the close of the year. The income during 1876 has exceeded that of any former year in the history of the fund, notwithstanding the general depression prevailing in trade. This circumstance the committee would regard as an indication of the growing interest felt by the brethren in this work of charity. The general committee during the year appointed several sub-committees to visit the lodges in the interest of the fund. In all cases the deputies were warmly received by the brethren, and good hopes are entertained that those visits will bear fruit in additional subscriptions during the ensuing year. The committee have to renew their thanks to the Rev. Dr. MacLwaine for his steady and generous support of this charity; and it is cause of thankfulness to him, as to them, that the receipts from the services in St. George's Church on St. John's Day, 24th June, have been the largest yet received from that source. The committee are glad to be in a position to state that the hope expressed in their last year's report, of having a memorial tablet erected in the Borough Cemetery, has been so far realised as that they have approved plans for same, and that the work is in course of execution by the contractors. The committee would remind the subscribers that the balance which now appears to the credit of the fund may be considered as reduced by the sum of £52 10s., which amount has been voted as their portion of the cost of memorial tablet, which they, in conjunction with the Widows' Fund, have now in course of erection."

Bro. Adrain, in the absence of the Treasurer, read the statement of accounts, from which it appeared that there was a balance in hand of £80 2s. 1½d.

Bro. Rainey moved the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, and in doing so, said he had very great pleasure in moving the adoption of the report, inasmuch as that report was of such a satisfactory character. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Scott seconded the motion.

The Chairman said he thought they would all agree with that resolution. It was only necessary that such an institution should be well known in order to be supported. They were a large-hearted people, and all that they wanted to know was where to give vent to that large-heartedness. (Applause.)

The motion was passed.

Bro. Nesbitt moved the next resolution,—"That this meeting, whilst recording its gratitude for the past success of the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund, earnestly desire to impress upon the brethren the duty and necessity of still further effort to develop its usefulness and promote the virtue of charity, which is the keystone of the Masonic Order, and which should be the aim of all Freemasons to foster and extend." He thought it was unnecessary for him to make any lengthened remarks in support of the resolution. The usefulness of the charity testified for itself. He knew the great service it had rendered in cases of distress. It had been the means of relieving misery and destitution. He was sure it needed only a little pressure to make the fund a still greater success. The object was beyond all doubt a good one, and deserving of the encouragement of every member of the Masonic body. The past success of the fund had been very gratifying, but he trusted that next year would show a still further and larger increase to the Belfast Masonic Charity Fund. (Applause.)

Bro. Clements, in seconding the motion, said that no deserving needy brother had ever applied in vain to them for help—(hear, hear)—and he also knew cases in which they had been willing to give a little additional luxuries to those brethren who were in some of the public institutions. He could only say it afforded him very great pleasure to second the motion. (Applause.)

The Chairman, in putting the motion, said, as far as he knew, charity was really the text of the Masonic Order. (Hear, hear.) They had been told that of all the virtues that man can possess charity was the greatest, and that text was one which they would hear occasionally on Sundays read from the book inspired by the Great Architect of the Universe. He would ask them to develop, by still further effort, the usefulness of the fund, and promote the virtue of charity. The report which had been read showed the benefit of having these annual meetings. By last year's report there were nine lodges in Belfast which did not send in contributions. Now, was it not astonishing to think that there were nine lodges, not one of which sent one shilling to the fund? But that number had been reduced this year by one, and now there were eight which did not subscribe.

The motion was put and passed.

Bro. James Allen read the fourth annual report of the committee of the Belfast Masonic Widows' Fund, from which we extract the following:—"The total income of the year amounts to £307 15s. 3d. Of this £146 3s. 6d. has been received in annual subscriptions, and £132 16s. in donations; showing, as compared with last year, a decrease in subscriptions of £20 4s., and an increase in donations of £87 1s. The committee are glad to record that the Provincial Grand Lodge has this year made a grant of £10 to the charity; and that two brethren, having duly qualified themselves, are added to the roll of life members. They gratefully acknowledge, also, the sum of £20, as contributed on St. John's Day in St. George's Church, Belfast; and they desire to express their deep sense of the cordial and untiring efforts of the incumbent of that church—the Rev. Wm. Macilwaine, D.D.—on this, as on former occasions, to ensure the success of the proceedings of the day. It is with great pleasure that your committee have to report that a purse (containing £15 18s. 6d.), being the first presentation of the kind, had been presented by two ladies (Mrs. Rankin and Mrs. Henderson), the widows of deceased brethren, who have thus nobly shown their sympathy with the objects of this institution. A donation has also been received from another lady in token of her approbation of the aid given to a widow in whom she was interested. During the year grants of various sums amounting to £105 were made to twelve widows, and, as their families number in all thirty-five children, it will be seen how considerable was the relief thus afforded. In making such grants the committee endeavour to exercise the greatest care and discrimination. In reviewing what has been done, the committee desire to express their humble thanks to Almighty God for the success of the Widows' Fund. They believe that the institution may now be fairly considered as having justified its formation, and as having established itself in the good opinion of the Masons of the province. But the committee would once more earnestly appeal to the Masons of this province, and especially to those who had not yet contributed to this useful work, generously to aid in maintaining and enlarging the operations of this fund; and they are confident that they will not appeal in vain. In the dark hour of distress the star of Masonry ever shines with redoubled lustre; and a charity like this will not be suffered to fail, which enters the homes of departed brethren—once bright and happy, now shadowed by loss and pressed by care—to comfort the grieving heart of the widow, and to relieve the wants of the orphan.

Bro. Ireland (Treasurer) read the statement of accounts. It appeared that there was a balance in hand of £41 13s.

Bro. Mooney moved the adoption of the report and statement of accounts. He thought that the balance in hand should be a source of gratification. The number of subscribers had fallen off, but that was a matter easy to be explained. They had been passing through a very dull time in trade in Belfast, indeed, he might say over the world. They should not, however, let this discourage them in any way. He hoped the report would stimulate them to greater exertions, and that they would build up the fund so as to leave it as an enduring monument when they had shuffled off this mortal coil.

Bro. J. G. McGee had great pleasure in seconding the motion. It was very gratifying to him to hear that report read, and to learn that the fund was in such a satisfactory condition. It was a gratifying thing to know that, although the fund was so short a time in existence, it had done so much good. (Applause.)

The motion was passed, and the report adopted.

Bro. John Hanna moved—"That, whilst thankful to Almighty God for the good already attained, this meeting would urge on lodges and members who have not yet subscribed the importance of doing so, in order to meet the increasing obligations of this charity in the future." He said it was most gratifying to them all to hear the report that had been presented to them. He trusted that next year they would have a still more encouraging one. (Hear, hear.)

Bro. Rev. T. J. Welland seconded the motion, which was passed.

On the motion of Bro. Clements, seconded by Bro. Brown, a vote of thanks was passed to the committee of both funds.

Bros. Adrain and Allen having returned thanks, Bro. Rev. T. J. Welland was called to the second chair.

Bro. Ireland moved a vote of thanks to Bro. Seeds for his kindness in presiding.

Bro. Alex. Tate seconded the motion, which was passed with great warmth.

Bro. Seeds having returned thanks, the proceedings terminated.

ILLUMINATED MASONIC ALMANACK FOR 1877.—Upwards of 14000 of these artistic almanacks have been supplied. As the number is now limited, early application by those who wish to possess a copy, is very necessary. Gratis on application, or will be sent post free to any part of the world on receipt of name and address, legibly written, accompanied by two penny stamps.

Bro. J. L. Mather, P.M. 65, 1227 and 1471, will work the installation ceremony on Tuesday next in the Islington Lodge of Instruction. Brethren are invited to attend.

GRAND LODGE OF SCOTLAND.

A special meeting of the Grand Lodge of Scotland was held on Monday afternoon in the Freemasons' Hall, Edinburgh, for the purpose of electing a Secretary. The throne was occupied by Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart, Bart., M.W. G.M. of Scotland, who was assisted in the discharge of his duties by Bro. Mann, S.W., and Bro. William Hay, acting J.W. Among those on the dais were Bros. Roger Montgomerie, M.P. prox. R.W.M. Kilwinning; Captain Harriott, Prov. G.M., Wigtown and Kirkcudbright; H. Inglis of Torrance, D.G.M.; Dr. Loth, representative of the Grand Orient of France; Dr. Middleton, Prox. M. 363; Alex. Hay, Grand Jeweller; W. L. Mair, Prox. M. 89; A. N. Clark, Prox. M. 367; Rev. J. H. Tait, S.W. 57; F. A. Barrow, Prox. D.M., Glasgow; W. Officer Prox. M. 11; R. Wadler, R.W.M. 145. The hall was crowded, and there was a very large attendance of brethren from the Western provinces, among whom were Bros. J. Munro, R.W.M., Ollver, D.M., and Finlay, S.W. 360; Kyle, R.W.M., and J. Baird, P.M. 34; W. H. Bickerton, Prov. G.S. Glasgow; Fisher, R.W.M. 129; W. Nelson, R.W.M. Athole; T. Stobo, R.W.M. 581, &c. Several brethren endeavoured to obtain proxies, but they were not available, for voting upon that day, as they had not been sustained by a quarterly communication of Grand Lodge.

Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart opened the lodge in the E.A. Degree, and it was afterwards raised to the sublime degree of M.M. The report of the committee appointed at last communication was then read, from which it appeared that applications had been received from 15 candidates for the office of Grand Secretary, and this had been reduced to 3. They proposed that a salary of £400 per annum should be paid, and an allowance of £100 a year granted for a clerk.

Bro. Officer said that he had an amendment to propose to the recommendations of the committee. Personally he had no objection that the sum should be paid, provided they had money wherewith to give it. At present the income of the Grand Lodge had been insufficient by £200 or £300 a year to meet the expenditure. He had no doubt from what he knew of the Grand Lodge and its affairs that they might by-and-by have the balance on the proper side of the account. Until that change took place he had to propose that they should discharge their duties as members of the Grand Lodge in the same way and with the same degree of prudence as they would show in administering their own affairs. (Applause.) It would only be eating the head off the Grand Lodge if they did not pay such expenses from funds coming in. They had also to take into consideration, along with the recommendation of the committee, that the office of cashier was to be separated, and some one appointed to this post at a salary of £200. With this £200, £400 recommended for Secretary and another £100 for an assistant, they would raise the cost of management to the large sum of £700. They had hitherto been paying Bro. Laurie a salary of 300 guineas, and without giving anything for the Grand Secretary's clerk; they now wanted to more than double that sum. Seeing that they were not able from their income to pay 300 guineas without encroaching on the capital, he thought it would be very absurd to give £400 or £500 away. He proposed a salary of £300 be fixed, and £100 for a clerk.

Bro. Hay, acting J.W., seconded the motion.

Bro. Mackenzie moved that the recommendation of the Grand Committee should be adopted.

Bro. Kennedy, R.W.M. No. 391, supported the motion proposed by Bro. Officer. It was but reasonable that the salary of Secretary should be reduced if the lodges were not able to pay the sum mentioned. ("They are able.") It had been explained that the Grand Lodge was in difficulties, and it would be a serious matter and a growing cancer were they to increase their responsibilities when they were not able to overtake those they had at present. (Applause.) It was a scandal to Masonry in Scotland that circulars had been sent round the lodges stating that the Grand Lodge was £13,000 behind, while that of England was paying £4000 to the Lifeboat Institution, and proposing to build a temple on the Thames Embankment. (Applause.)

Bro. A. Thomson, Galashiels, seconded the motion that the recommendation of the committee should be adopted. He thought this was only a fair sum to pay for a Secretary, if they wished to obtain an intelligent business man. (Applause.) Bro. Officer told them that their income was not sufficient, but the fact was they could not tell anything about their income. (Applause.) Nobody could tell what had come in, and nobody could tell what had gone out. (Applause.) It had been stated again and again that all the confusion which had arisen was caused by the Grand Secretary having been underpaid, and were they to repeat that? ("No.") In regard to the statement made by Bro. Officer that the cashier was to get £200, he said that this sum had not been fixed by the Grand Lodge, and it was merely a matter for future consideration. His opinion was that the whole business ought to be conducted for £400.

Bro. Officer said he did not wish to reply, but simply to state that he did not grudge £400 provided they had the money. Before they put their hands in their pockets to give away anything they should know that they had got it. (Applause.)

A show of hands was then taken, when there voted for the recommendation of the committee 217, and for Bro. Officer's motion 131.

A number of brethren alleged that a mistake had been committed, and demanded that the roll should be called. Bro. Officer expressed himself satisfied, but as it was formally moved and seconded, the roll was called, with the following result:—For the recommendation of the committee, 187; for Bro. Officer's motion, 196—which was, therefore, declared carried.

The Chairman then stated that the next business before the meeting was the election of a Grand Secretary. The committee had reduced the list of applicants to three, namely, Bro. Heath, of London; Bro. D. Murray Lyon, Ayr; and Bro. Wylie, Kilwinning.

Bro. Mann, S.W., said that although he did not think he would be successful in carrying the gentleman he had to propose, it was right that his name should be brought forward, especially as they had advertised for candidates in England. He begged to propose that Bro. Heath, London, should be appointed Secretary, as that gentleman had received some very flattering testimonials from office-bearers and other gentlemen connected with the Grand Lodge of England.

Bro. Christie seconded the nomination.

A show of hands was then taken, but only six were held up in favour of Bro. Heath.

Bro. Barrow proposed Bro. D. Murray Lyon, of Ayr. At that late hour he did not mean to say much in regard to Bro. Lyon, but from the recommendation which had been placed in their hands they would easily see that this gentleman was well qualified to discharge the duties of Grand Secretary. He had met Bro. Lyon both in and out of Grand Lodge, and could state with confidence that no one was more fitted to discharge the duties of this office. They all knew he had bestowed a great amount of labour on Masonry, and his works on that subject were acknowledged standards, not only in Scotland, but all over the world. (Applause.) Moreover, he was a man of business, and had managed a large establishment in Ayr, and was, in fact, the fittest man they could appoint.

Bro. D. Robinson, B.B., seconded the motion. As a member of the Grand Lodge he had had a great deal to do with the province of Ayrshire, and there was no one they could more rely on than Bro. Lyon in all their difficulties. He did not mean to say a single word against any of the other candidates, but Bro. Lyon was better known amongst members of the Grand Lodge for the way he had already acted, the services he had already rendered, and the way he always conducted himself amongst the brethren. (Applause.) He paid no attention to the fact whether he was an ordained or unordained elder of the Church of Scotland. What they wanted was an active, energetic man, qualified to discharge the duties of Secretary. (Applause.)

Bro. Roger Montgomerie, M.P., said he had taken the responsibility upon himself, as proxy Master of Lodge Mother Kilwinning, to propose for election Bro. Wylie, who for many years had been Secretary to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire. (Applause.) At that late hour, and after the lively entertainment they had had of hearing the names read, he was not going to detain them long by enumerating the good qualities of Bro. Wylie. (Applause.) In submitting his name along with Bro. Lyon, for whom he had the greatest respect, he only asked them to give their vote to the person whom they considered best qualified to fill the post. (Applause.) If their choice fell on Bro. Wylie, he had not the slightest hesitation in saying they would make a choice which would be beneficial to Masonry in Scotland, and a great satisfaction to the Provincial Grand Lodge of Ayrshire. (Applause.) During the last fifteen years Bro. Wylie had done good service to the Mother Lodge of Kilwinning. He was a man in the prime of life, trained up to business habits, and had thorough practical experience. (Applause.)

Bro. M'Cosh, R.W.M. 290, seconded the nomination of Bro. Wylie.

A show of hands was afterwards taken, when there voted for Bro. Murray Lyon 210, and for Bro. Wylie 128.

Bro. Lyon was afterwards called in, and Sir Michael Shaw-Stewart intimated the appointment.

Bro. Lyon acknowledged the compliment, and was then installed.

This concluded the business, and the Grand Lodge was subsequently closed in due and ancient form.

TESTIMONIAL TO BRO. HENRY MUGGERIDGE.

At a preliminary meeting, held at the Masonic Rooms, Aldersgate-street, March 15th, present Bros. E. M. Hub-buck, Grand Stewards' Lodge, P.M. 140 and 1320; Henry Birdseye, P.M. Panmure Lodge, 715; F. D. R. Copestick, P.M. Gresham Lodge, and P.G.S. Bearer, Herts, M.E.Z. Lion and Lamb Chapter, 192; S. G. Myers, P.M. and Treas. Panmure Lodge, 715; E. F. Storr, W.M. Neptune Lodge, 22; F. Fellows, J.W. Lion and Lamb Lodge, 192; George Kenning, P.M. and Treasurer Lion and Lamb Lodge, 192, Treasurer Aldersgate Lodge, 1657, P.G.D. Middlesex—it was considered that the time had arrived when the brethren should recognise, in some substantial form, the many valuable services Bro. H. Muggeridge has rendered to the cause of Freemasonry, both as a Preceptor and as a great supporter of all the Masonic Charities. It was, therefore, resolved that a request should at once be made to the Craft generally in support of this object.

Bro. E. M. Hubbuck has kindly consented to act as Chairman and Treasurer, and Bro. Francis Fellows as Secretary.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Glad Tidings.—Some constitutions have a tendency to rheumatism, and are throughout the year borne down by its protracted tortures. Let all sufferers bathe the affected parts with warm brine, and afterwards rub in this soothing Ointment. They will find it the best means of lessening their agony, and, assisted by Holloway's Pills, the surest way of overcoming their disease. More need not be said than to request a few days' trial of this safe and soothing treatment, by which the disease will ultimately be completely swept away. Pains that would make a giant shudder are assuaged without difficulty by Holloway's easy and inexpensive remedies, which comfort by moderating the throbbing vessels and calming the excited nerves.—ADVN

WHAT MIGHT BE.

If we look over the written history of our fraternity, we shall find that very shortly after the revival of 1717 in London it was brought to this country, and, finding congenial soil, it took root and grew, slowly at first, as was but natural in a sparsely settled country, and more vigorously when the colonies had become a nation, so that Ben Franklin and his lodge, at the Hoop, in Water-street, Philadelphia, have grown into ten thousand lodges and more than half a million Masons. The end is not yet, for annually there is an increase in the number of the brethren and the family circles, called lodges, where they meet and transact business. During the period of little more than a century, in which the transformation from a handful to a vast army has taken place, we shall find that, apart from the mere routine, the reception of profanes, the making of laws and supervising their execution, the giving to the needy—of which we desire, in the spirit of the institution, to make no boast, rather wishing that, in so far as that particular branch of our labour is concerned, the right hand may not know what the left is doing—during this period we may say that we have devoted ourselves to growing. We have so cared for our stewardship that its roots have deeply penetrated the soil, and its leaves and branches spread themselves abroad until in every estate of humanity we find it represented, and within its grasp a power not equally possessed by any other human association, for the reason that within our assemblies there is nothing to arouse the divisions and animosities among men that naturally grow out of their varying opinions on matters pertinent to this or the other world—to this in the scramble for wealth, position, power; the heart-burnings of rank and caste and station—to the other in that old battle between Armageddon, and the rest, in which, as a general rule, you can only go to heaven if you see your way through my spectacles, or, vice versa, you are sure to bring up in outer darkness if you look through your own. This at least then we have accomplished, that we have gathered together a half million of intelligent men, not one of whom has given up or been expected to give up an iota of his religious faith, or of his political convictions, but yet who see for themselves that it is possible for men to entertain the most thoroughly opposite ideas, and yet recognise the fact that they are still men, and may live in accord, and work happily together for good, notwithstanding that they vote different tickets, or take different roads to reach the final rest. That in reaching this result we have been the disciples and the exemplars of toleration in the largest and most beneficial way cannot be successfully contradicted, and this especially, because while we have no special faith to advocate, neither have we any to oppose, and so leaving every-one unmolested in the pursuit of what may be happiness to him, we are, so to speak, the custodians of a pleasant retreat, where men may forget for a time the world and its strife in the enjoyment of friendship and social communion unmarred by jarring incentives.

But the question presents itself, are we not capable as an organisation of more extended usefulness? Are we, considering the material of which our association is composed, exercising our real weight in community and demonstrating, as we might do, the real value of associated effort? Every thinking man will at once say No—decidedly No. Take an illustration. Masonry has a literature, as witness its thousands of published volumes, from the balderdash of the parrot up to the effusions of the scholar and philosopher, and yet, except the mere manuals and guides to the ceremonial, we doubt whether any Masonic author ever got as much for his labour as he could have earned with a shovel, in the same length of time. No Masonic journal has ever had more than a temporary success; not one has ever been permanently established, and there is not, to the best of our belief, one brother who has devoted himself to the literature of Masonry, to the instruction of the brethren, and to the championship of the Institution, who has not poverty for his reward. And yet how different all this might be. If only one brother in ten would feel called by his pride in the Craft to remember the agency by which, more than all others, it has been enabled to resist the attacks of its enemies, and stand before the world as proudly as to-day it does, its power and security would be still further enhanced, and its servants have some brighter visions in the future than that of a pauper's grave.—New York Dispatch.

Obituary.

BRO. R. S. M. VAUGHAN.

On the 6th inst. a large number of Freemasons attended the funeral of the late Bro. R. S. M. Vaughan, at Concham, near Redcar, Yorkshire. The W.M.'s of the Marwood Lodge (Cleveland) and of the Restoration Lodge (Darlington) were present, and among other brethren were Bros. John Hodgson, J. C. Martin, J. Morrell, J. H. Bell, W. Bell, Rev. J. Buswell, Dr. Arrowsmith, and — Waller, P.M. Marwood Lodge. The service was choral, the Rev. J. B. Towne officiating. The deceased brother, who was only 27 years of age, was well known in Darlington and adjacent towns, having established a thriving patent business in connection with the well-known firm of Messrs. Vaughan & Son, London. During the past few months our deceased brother had suffered several domestic bereavements, his wife and second child having died within little more than two months before his death. His untimely decease has occasioned poignant sorrow to his brethren and numerous friends.

A full report of the proceedings at the consecration of the Stuart Lodge, No. 1632, which takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, will be given in our next.

MASONIC BALL IN LIVERPOOL.

The last Masonic Ball of the festive season, but certainly one of the most enjoyable and jolliest of the series, took place at the Great George-street Assembly Rooms, Liverpool, on Thursday evening, the 15th inst. The arrangements were admirable, and the absence of anything like stiffness gave the assembly quite a "happy family" tone. The ball was organised and carried out by prominent members of various lodges in the neighbourhood, and, thanks to their exertions, "Our Fifth Annual Ball" was decidedly a great success in every respect. The guests numbered upwards of 100, and amongst those present were Bro. A. Morrison, S.W. 1540, Mrs. Morrison, and the Misses Morrison; Bro. H. Gregory, Sec. 667, and Mrs. Gregory; Bro. W. Doyle, P.P.G.J.D.; Bro. W. Coates, 1356 and 1609, and Miss Dudleston; Bro. J. E. Jackson, P.M. 667, and Miss Jackson; H. Eve, 667, and Mrs. Eve; Bro. E. Carter, 667, and Mrs. Carter; Bro. H. Firth, J.W. 667, and Mrs. Firth; Bro. B. Myers, P.M. 1182, and Mrs. Myers; Bro. A. Bucknall, 667, and Mrs. Bucknall; Bro. S. Bushell, 667, and Miss Bramley; Bro. Barton, Mrs. Barton, Mrs. Richard Brown; Bro. R. Martin, jun., W.M. 1182, and Miss Thorn; Bro. W. T. May, P.M. 673, Mrs. May, and Miss B. May; Bro. E. O. C. Rothwell, P.M. 1356, Mrs. Rothwell, and Miss Rothwell; Bro. J. H. Martin, Bro. J. Skeaf, P.G.O., and Mrs. Skeaf; Bros. Preston, 1182; J. Weston, 1182; R. Ing, P.M. 594, and Mrs. Ing, and others. Dancing commenced about 9 o'clock and was kept up with unflagging spirit till an early hour, to the strains of Mr. Martin's quadrille band. The fame which Bro. Henry Eve has secured as a caterer was fully sustained on this occasion, as both supper and lighter refreshments were of a kind. The ball arrangements were enthusiastically carried out by the following committee: Bros. A. Morrison, Chairman; H. Gregory, Vice Chairman; W. Doyle, J. E. Jackson, R. Douglass, H. Eve, W. Coates, E. Carter, B. Myers, H. Firth (an excellent Master of the Ceremonies), and A. Bucknall (an indefatigable Hon. Sec. and Treas.)

REPORTS OF MASONIC MEETINGS.

Craft Masonry.

KENT LODGE (No. 15).—This lodge held its March meeting at Freemasons' Hall, on Wednesday, 14th inst. Present: Bros. Pindar, W.M.; Wharman, S.W.; Cambridge, J.W.; Gliman, S.D.; Ball, J.D.; Levy, I.G.; Dukes, P.M. and Hon. Sec.; Sleeman, P.M., Treas.; and a strong muster of the brethren. The lodge was opened in due form. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed. Bros. Rogers, Winkley, and Burford were passed to the degree of Fellow Craft by Bro. Sleeman, P.M., in the absence of the W.M. On the arrival of Bro. Pindar, W.M., the installation of Bro. Wharman, W.M. elect, who is the first Hebrew Master of the Kent Lodge, was proceeded with, and worked in a very able manner. Bro. Wharman then invested the following officers: Bros. Pindar, I.P.M.; Cambridge, S.W.; Gliman, J.W.; Sleeman, P.M., Treas.; Ball, S.D.; Levy, J.D.; Lipscomb, I.G.; Barton, P.M., W.S.; Wells, D.C.; Dukes, P.M., Sec. The lodge was resumed to the First Degree. Mr. Walter Lipscombe and Mr. Thomas Holloway were then initiated into Freemasonry. The lodge was then closed in due form, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet room, where a sumptuous repast was partaken of. The usual Masonic toasts were given and responded to, interspersed with harmony. The toast of "The Visitors," who were many, was responded to by Bros. Gottlieb, Posener, Hollands, How, and J. Levy. Amongst the visitors were Bros. Holt, 928; Back, 1227; Pigo, 1228; Taylor, 172; Bailey, 1445; Hooper, 1260; Southwood, 1260, W.M. elect; Williams, 65. The meeting broke up at a late hour, after a very gratifying and harmonious evening.

PHOENIX LODGE (No. 173).—An exceedingly strong meeting of this lodge was held on the 10th inst., at the Freemasons' Tavern. There were present Bros. Massey, W.M.; Phillips, S.W.; Finch, J.W.; Wiles, I.P.M.; Matthews, Sec.; Burford, Treas.; Allen, S.D.; Blyth, J.D.; Vine, Steward; Andrews, I.G.; Speight, P.M.; Tyler, and Past Masters Wilson, Vine, Watson, Green, Salmon. Amongst the visitors we noticed Bros. Crouch, W.M. 857; T. C. Walls, J.W. 1381, &c.; Farquharson, 99; Foot, 1260; Holcombe, 1298; Treemer, 1309; Currey, 1425; and Jones, 1425. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M. passed Bro. Filler most ably to the Second Degree. There being no other business before the lodge it was duly closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. The customary loyal and Craft toasts having been duly honoured, the W.M.'s health was proposed by the I.P.M., who congratulated him upon the able manner in which he had performed his duties throughout his year of office, and which term was now drawing to a close. However, he would not be idle, as he had succeeded in establishing a chapter in connection with the lodge, and of which he would be the First Principal, and, in conclusion, the speaker hoped that the consecration of the chapter on the 7th proximo would be a great success. The W.M. in reply said that he had endeavoured to do his duty, and if he had succeeded in pleasing the members of the lodge he was amply satisfied, and as long as he was blessed with health he should always endeavour to be an active member of No. 173. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was responded to by those present. In giving "The Past Masters," the W.M. said that the "Phoenix" was to be congratulated upon possessing so very strong and talented an array of those officers. In his remarks he called attention to the appeal by one of their number, Bro. W. Watson, for the benefits of the R.M.B.I., and which solicitation he hoped would meet with their hearty support. In conclusion he called upon the brethren to receive this toast most cordially, and coupled it with the name of Bro. Watson. The veteran Past Master thus honoured in his reply stated that he was almost overpowered by the kind expressions that had fallen from the lips of the W.M. in lodge that day, and also at the banquet table. He had been connected with the Phoenix Lodge for 23 years, but his Masonic career extended over 38 years, and he had lived some years over the allotted space of man, but, thanks to the blessings of the Great Architect of the Universe, he was still hale and hearty. In conclusion, upon behalf of the Past Masters of the lodge, he thanked them sincerely for the manner in which their health had been received. The toast of "The Officers" came next, and drew from the W.M. a very high commendation upon their individual merits. This toast having been responded to at length by those brethren, the Tyler's toast was called and the proceedings terminated. The brethren were entertained during the evening by the instrumental, dramatic, and vocal contributions of Bros. Farquharson, Walls, Treemer, and others.

RANELAGH LODGE (No. 834).—This promising lodge held an emergency meeting on Tuesday, the 13th inst., at the Bell and Anchor Hotel, West Kensington Gardens. The W.M., Bro. T. Knowles, who was well supported by his officers, raised three brethren, and afterwards initiated Mr. Richard Josey. The ceremonies were rendered in a faultless and most impressive manner. After the closing of the lodge the brethren adjourned to an excellent supper, which seemed to give great satisfaction to all present. The usual loyal and Masonic toasts having been given, the I.P.M., Bro. Butt, gave that of "The W.M.," whom he stated had given a great deal of his valuable time in so admirably carrying out his duties. The W.M. suitably replied, adding that the lodge would always find in him one whom it could rely on to support its character. The toast of "The Visitors" was responded to by Bro. Cumming, 534, and another, who both expressed themselves highly gratified at the kind manner in which they had been received by the brethren. The musical arrangements were carried out by Bro. Oliver, the Organist of the lodge.

ST. MARK'S LODGE (No. 857).—The installation meeting of the above was held at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell, on Tuesday, the 20th inst. There were present Bros. Crouch, W.M.; S. J. Adams, S.W.; W.M. elect; Harrison, P.M., Treas.; Frances, P.P.G.S.D., Sec.; Wynn Williams, M.D., S.D.; Green, J.D.; W. Newton, I.G.; Schuck, P.M.; Seaton, M.D., P.M.; King, P.M.; also Bros. Atkins, D.C.; Hamilton, Armstrong, Lavington, Bilton, Satchell, Lloyd, Beardmore, Russell, Harris, Cocks, and Edwards, M.D. Visitors were Bros. H. de Vines, 540; Mothershead, 398; S. Turquand, P.M. 1556; Drought, 163; Keeble, P.M. 1559; Carlam, 913; Tipping, 318; Thompson, 1549; Hesket, 1383; Birchell, 1503; Winslow, 857. The business of the evening was to pass Bro. Armstrong, and to install the W.M. for the ensuing year. Bro. Crouch having ably performed the ceremony of passing, very kindly waived his privilege of installing Bro. Adams in favour of Bro. Harrison, as that brother had introduced the incoming Master into Freemasonry. Bro. Harrison having taken the chair, Bro. Adams was duly installed by him into the chair of K.S., the ceremony being most creditably performed. Bro. Adams having made some remarks expressive of the regret he felt that Bro. Goden, the late J.W., had resigned the lodge, proceeded to appoint and invest his officers as follows: Bro. Wynn Williams, M.D., S.W.; Wm. Newton, J.W.; H. G. Green, S.D.; Atkins, J.D.; Edwards, M.D., I.G.; Frances, P.P.G.D. Surrey, Sec.; and re-invested Bro. Harrison, Treas. Bro. Adams, in presenting the I.P.M., Bro. Crouch, with a Past Master's jewel, took occasion to refer to the admirable manner in which that brother had discharged the duties of his office. He was sure Bro. Crouch had merited and possessed the esteem of every brother in the lodge, and he felt his own position difficult in following the steps of so worthy a predecessor. Bro. Crouch having thanked the lodge for the valuable gift, and the routine business being disposed of, the lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to an excellent banquet, where the usual loyal and Masonic toasts were duly honoured, the toasts of the W.M., I.P.M., Treasurer, and Secretary meeting with most cordial responses, the evening's enjoyment being enhanced by the excellent musical abilities of Bros. Atkins, Harris, Lavington, and Crouch.

WANDSWORTH LODGE (No. 1044).—An excellent gathering of this lodge, including many visitors, was held at the Spread Eagle Hotel on the 21st inst. Bro. Landon was very ably raised to the Third Degree by Bro. Body, P.M. Mr. A. A. Denham was then most impressively initiated into Freemasonry by Bro. J. G. Carter, P.M., in the unavoidable temporary absence of Bro. P. Cooke, W.M. The lodge was then closed in due form, and a banquet followed. "The Queen and Craft" and other Masonic toasts were ably given by the W.M., followed by "The Health of the Initiate." This having been acknowledged, Bro. A. A. Denham responded, and thanked his brethren heartily for the honour they had conferred on him. The Tyler's toast concluded a very happy evening.

ST. DUNSTAN'S LODGE (No. 1589).—This lodge held its last regular meeting of the season at Anderton's Hotel, Fleet-street, on the 16th inst., when there were present Bros. Wellsman, P.M., W.M.; Dalwood, P.M., S.W.; Dodson, J.W.; Turner, S.D.; Woodbridge, J.D.; Manners, I.G.; Dwarber, P.M., I.P.M.; Tisley, Sec.; Low, D.C.; and Bull, S. The visitors were Bros. Williams, P.A.G.P.; Guest, W.M. 1531; T. C. Walls, J.W. 1381, &c.; the Rev. W. H. W. Casely, 625; Osmond, 890; and Egan, 890. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, the W.M., with the assistance of his officers, raised Bros. R. H. Clemow, Benningfield, Bamber, and Giscard, passed Bro. Tilby, and initiated Mr. Robert Skelton. The three difficult ceremonies were exceedingly well carried out, and in the rendering of the numerous addresses appertaining to the degrees the W.M. displayed great ability. Three guineas having been voted to the testimonial of Bro. Smith, and several propositions having been handed in, the lodge was formally closed, and the brethren adjourned to the banquet. Upon the cloth being withdrawn the W.M. gave the customary loyal and Craft toasts, briefly but pertinently. The I.P.M., in proposing "The Health of the W.M.," dwelt at length upon his services to St. Dunstan's, which parish he described as having been from time immemorial a distinguished one. He had known Bro. Wellsman from childhood, and he was gratified at seeing him not only holding the highest position in the lodge but also in the parish. He firmly believed that there were many advantages to be derived by establishing local lodges, and he hoped that their example would be copied by neighbouring parishes. In conclusion he called attention to the fact that Bro. Wellsman served the office of Steward recently to the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution, had passed the chair in another lodge, and had in every way deported himself as a good man and true. The W.M., in the course of an excellent speech, which space prevents us giving in extenso, said he felt highly gratified at the remarks which had fallen from the I.P.M., who had known him from his youth. He then, after apologising for wandering from the subject matter, went into some very interesting details upon the increase of the Craft in the metropolis. He said that since the St. Dunstan's was established two other parishes had taken the initiative, and he believed that Masonic lodges would in time supersede the old City clubs, which, in consequence of the non-residence of those engaged in trade, and who were the principal supporters of those ancient institutions, were fast dying out. Masonry was Catholic—this was evinced by the number of men of all creeds who not only eagerly joined it, but remained its steadfast supporters; and he directed their attention to the interest taken by some of the most distinguished members of the Established Church in its prosperity. In conclusion he thanked them all, and hoped that No. 1589 would continue to prosper. The W.M. then gave "The Initiate," which having been duly honoured, was acknowledged by Bro. Skelton, who briefly said that he had many times felt a desire to enter the Craft, but had lacked the opportunity; but he now felt pleased at having received that privilege from the hands of a very old friend of his in the person of their W.M., and he hoped always to be worthy the commendation of the members of his mother lodge. "The Health of the Visitors" followed, and was acknowledged by Bros. Guest and Casely. In giving "The I.P.M.," the W.M. dwelt at length upon the services of Bro. Dwarber, who, in the character of first Master of the lodge, had won golden encomiums from every one. This toast having been most warmly received, elicited from the I.P.M. a very characteristic reply. "The Health of the Officers" followed in due course. The W.M., in proposing this, stated that he felt honoured at being supported by so many worthy brethren who in other Masonic fields had done good service. The Senior and Junior Wardens were most efficient officers. The Treasurer, Bro. Praed, occupied a very high social and Masonic position. The Secretary, Bro. Tisley, was a most indefatigable worker, and worthy of all praise for his general management, and the junior officers would do credit to any lodge. In conclusion he said that thus officered the lodge must flourish. The officers present having severally replied, the Tyler was called upon to discharge his duty, and the proceedings, which were throughout eminently successful, terminated. The brethren were entertained by Bros. Dodson, Tisley, Eason, Walls, Williams, Clemow, Egan, Osmond, and others.

VALPARAISO.—Lodge of Harmony (No. 1411).—The brethren of this lodge met for their annual celebration and installation of officers for the present year. The whole affair went off in a most successful manner. The officers installed are as follows:—Bros. W. R. Betteley, W.M.; James G. Rowe, S.W.; G. R. Gepp, J.W.; C. D. Rowe, Treas.; F. M. Mole, Sec.; Jas. H. Thomson, S.D.; E. W. Cowell, J.D.; S. S. Oxley, S.S.; J. T. Christie, J.S.; W. F. Bradshaw, I.G.; W. Darley, Tyler; and W. D. Vaughan, M.C.; all of whom were duly installed in the presence of a numerous attendance of brethren from the various lodges in this city on the 12th ult.

HAMPTON.—Hemming Lodge (No. 1512).—The members of this lodge met in good numbers at the Lion Hotel on the 15th instant. There were present Bros. J. Hurst, W.M.; J. Hammond, S.W.; B. Sharp, acting J.W.; W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of Middlesex, Secretary; E. Hopwood, I.P.M., Treas.; Fox, S.D.; Jessett, J.D.; T. Ockenden, I.G.; T. C. Walls, D.C.; Gutteridge, W.S.; Kent, A.W.S. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and confirmed, Bro. Kraeutler, J.W. 1303, was elected a joining member. This being election night, Bro. John Hammond, P.M. 201, S.W., was unanimously elected W.M., and Bro. E. Hopwood, P.M. 141, I.P.M., unanimously re-elected Treasurer. The widow and family of a deceased member of the lodge was voted the sum of £5 from the funds, which amount, later in the evening, was supplemented by the private contributions of the brethren. The lodge having been closed, the brethren adjourned to a banquet, well served by the host, Bro. Murphy. The toasts of "The Queen and Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The P.G.M., the D.G.M., and the rest of the G.O.'s, Past and Present," "The R.W.P.G.M. of Middlesex," "The D.P.G.M. and the rest of the P.G.O.'s of Middlesex, Past and Present," were given with most commendable brevity by the W.M. The latter toast having been duly acknowledged by Bro. W. Hammond, P.P.G.D. of the province, the I.P.M. proposed "The Health of the W.M.," who, he said, had endeavoured to discharge the duties of the chair, in and out of lodge, most zealously. The W.M. in reply said that he had tried the best he could, compatible with his business requirements, to carry out his responsibilities creditably, and he hoped that his shortcomings would on that account be kindly overlooked. In concluding his remarks he said that as that perhaps was the last time he should have the opportunity of addressing them at the banquet table in the character of a Master, he wished the lodge "God speed," and hoped that Bro. John Hammond would have a most prosperous year of office. "The Health of the Visitor" followed, and was duly acknowledged by Bro. Scott, 1636. The W.M. then gave in very kindly terms "The Health of the W.M. elect." The toast having been received with most excellent "fire," Bro. J. Hammond replied. In the progress of his reply he said that he was honoured and gratified at having been unanimously elected Master of the Hemming Lodge. He was also pleased at the kind manner in which the W.M. had proposed the toast, and with the warmth it had been responded to by the brethren. He then went on to say that throughout his life he had always endeavoured to be a man of acts and not of words, and hoped that at the expiration of his year of office the members of the lodge would be in a position to pronounce a verdict upon his capabilities in the chair, which fiat he trusted would not be an adverse one. The remaining toasts were but briefly given and responded to. They were "The Treasurer and Secretary," "The Past Masters," "The Officers," and "The Masonic Charities." The latter was coupled with the name of Bro. T. W. Ockenden, I.G., Secretary 1876, who will represent the lodge at the forthcoming festival in May next, in connection with that excellent institution, the R.M.I. for Girls. Numerous contributions of harmony were given during the proceedings by Bros. Hurst, W. Hammond, Walls, Knowles, and others. The next regular meeting of this lodge will be held on the third Thursday in October next, when Bro. John Hammond, S.W., W.M. elect, will be duly installed into the chair of K.S.

SWANSEA.—Caradoc Lodge (No. 1573).—The members of this young but prosperous lodge met at the Masonic Hall, Swansea, on Monday, March 5th, when Bro. James Livingston, S.W., was duly installed into the chair of King Solomon by the retiring Worshipful Master, Bro. John Rogers, P.P.G.S.B., who performed the ceremony in such a manner as to elicit great praise from the brethren present, of whom, both visitors and members, there was a goodly number. The ceremony concluded, the W.M. appointed and invested his officers for the ensuing year, offering a few words of encouragement to each. At the conclusion of the ceremony the W.M. rose and stated that his first duty was a most pleasant one, namely to present Bro. Rogers, I.P.M., on behalf of the lodge, with a massive Past Master's jewel, in token of the high esteem in which he (Bro. Rogers) was held, and as some slight recognition of the eminent services he had rendered the lodge during the first year of its formation. He (the W.M.) felt some anxiety in following such an able and expert Mason, who had ruled over the lodge with such tact and ability, but with the assistance of his officers and the members, he trusted to keep up the prestige of the lodge which it had attained during its first year. The jewel had been fairly earned, and he (the W.M.) trusted Bro. Rogers would be spared very many years to wear it. Bro. Rogers returned his grateful thanks to the W.M. and brethren for the handsome gift presented to him, and he assured the brethren that he should wear it with pride and satisfaction, as a memento of the kindness and good feeling which had been shown towards him during a very pleasant year. The W.M. afterwards proposed a vote of condolence to Bro. James Goodall, P.M., who was suffering from a very severe illness, and whose absence was much regretted on account of the very high regard in which Bro. Goodall is held. The I.P.M. seconded the resolution, which was unanimously carried. The lodge was then closed in ancient form, and the brethren adjourned to the Cameron Arms Hotel, where a sumptuous banquet was served by Bro. Geo. Clare. The W.M. presided and was supported by several Past Prov. Grand Officers, W.M.'s, and Past Masters, and a goodly number of brethren. The several loyal and Masonic toasts were given and received with acclamation. There were some capital speeches, and a most enjoyable evening, enhanced by some good singing, was spent by all present, the Tyler's toast being given at its close.

THAMES DITTON.—Brownrigg Lodge (No. 1638).—At an emergency meeting of this lodge, held at the Swan Hotel, Thames Ditton, on Monday evening, the 19th inst., Bro. P.M. W. D. May, W.M., in the chair; Bros. F. Buckland, S.W.; G. Porter, J.W.; Lindors, S.D.; A. Stone, J.D.; and C. Phillips, I.G., the minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The ballot was then taken for Messrs. John Horne, A. Bowers, and W. A. Rock. The lodge was then opened in the Second Degree, when Bros. Oldridge, Wadbrook, and Brewster were questioned, and afterwards raised to the Sublime Degree of Master Mason. The lodge was then closed down, when Bros. Moore, Neave, and Roche were presented and passed into the Degree of Fellow Craft. The lodge then resumed to the First Degree, when Messrs. Bowers and Horne were duly initiated into the mysteries of the Craft. The brethren then adjourned to refreshment, which was most admirably served by the host, Bro. Harris. Among the visitors were Bros. P.M.'s Littlewood, Lockwood, Styles, and Macauley, and several other brethren. The usual toasts having been duly responded to, the evening was enlivened by Bros. Llewellyn, Winter, and several other brethren.

Boyal Arch.

LIVERPOOL.—St. John of Jerusalem Chapter (No. 203).—At the last convocation of this excellent chapter, held at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, there was a good attendance of companions. The Principals present were Comps. T. Evans, Z.; P. J. F. Neill, H.; J. Winsor, J.; and the other officers were Comps. T. Sergeant, P.Z.; Henry James, P.Z.; B. W. Rowson, P.Z.; P.P.G.P.S.; E. Johnstone, S.E.; John T. Alston, P.S.; Chas. Bromley, Treas.; and P. Ball, Tyler. The members present were Comps. Kyneston, Lecomber, Birch, F. Fairclough, J. Keet, W. Whittaker, Thos. Atherton, James Tyler, J. Plag, J. Jones, A. Woolrich, R. Webster, J. Kenwright, J. Hilton, T. Halton, J. Frank, F. Mausley, A. Benton, W. Wilson, and J. R. Japha. The only visitors were Comps. Joseph Wood, Treas. 249 (Freemason); H. S. Alpass, P.G.S.E.; and A. Morrison, 249. The candidates on the circular for exaltation were Bros. M. Hart, W.M. 1502; S. Schönstadt, J.W. 1502; and Wm. Donnelly, 203. The work was exceedingly well performed, the manner in which the lectures were given eliciting universal admiration.

LIVERPOOL.—Mariners' Chapter (No. 249).—The members of this chapter were summoned to the performance of their duties recently at the Masonic Hall, Liverpool, where there was a good attendance. The chapter was opened at 5 o'clock by M.E. Comp. Henry Pearson, Z., assisted by M.E. Comps. P. B. Gee, H.; J. E. Jackson, J.; Comps. Wm. Doyle, P.Z.; Joseph Healing, P.Z.; J. Ellis, E.; Thos. Ockleshaw, N.; Philip Haines, P.S.; and W. H. Ball, Janitor. The other companions present were Peter Robbie, James Bailey, W. R. Bernson, James Norminton, Wm. C. Webb, C. J. Jones, W. Jennings, Robert Carter, James Savage, Henry Firth, Joseph Hughes, Wm. Creak, Charles Fothergill, G. W. Webster, D. Lloyd, John S. Dixon, Edwd. Carter, A. Morrison, W. Fish, J. Archdeacon, Alexander Cotter, F. H. Davidson, Thos. H. Hall. Visitor: Comp. Hugh Williams, P.Z. 580, 1094, P. Prov. G. Swd. Bearer West Lancashire. The minutes having been read and confirmed, the ballot was taken for Bros. T. Mason, 667; R. Black, 1264; and T. Walton, 1264, for exaltation; and for Comp. J. Cramer, Chapter 203, for joining, each of whom was unanimously elected. Bros. Black and Mason being present were duly exalted, the various lectures being given by the three Principals—Comps. Pearson, Z.; Gee, H.; and Jackson, J. The election of chiefs and other officers resulted as follows:—Comps. P. B. Gee, Z.; J. E. Jackson, H.; T. Ockleshaw, J.; J. Wood, Treas. (re-elected); J. Ellis, S.E.; H. Firth, S.N.; and A. Cotter, P.S. The bye-laws were read and approved, and Comps. Ellis, Jennings, and E. Carter were elected Auditors. The chapter was closed after a proposition for exaltation, and the companions afterwards adjourned to supper.

BARNSTAPLE.—Chapter of Loyalty and Virtue (No. 251).—A quarterly meeting of this old chapter was held on Wednesday, 21st inst., at the Masonic Hall, Barnstaple: Principals, M.E. Comps. Hancock, P.Z., Pr. Z.; J. T. Shapland, H.; and W. C. Oliver, J. The meeting was well attended. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read by Comp. J. Brewer, Scribe E., and confirmed, the Treasurer, Comp. J. List, P.Z., produced and read his account for the past year, which was of a most satisfactory nature. Bro. Wadham, of Lodge 251, was then balloted for, unanimously elected, and duly exalted in the Sublime Degree of H.R.A. Masonry.

HERTFORD.—Hertford Chapter (No. 403).—The installation meeting of this chapter was held on the 21st inst. The companions present were Ex. Comps. R. T. Andrews, P.G. Standard Bearer, M.E.Z.; T. S. Carter, P.G.N., H.; E. A. Simon, J.; H. C. Finch, P.G.H.; J. R. Cocks, P.G.J., S.E.; Comps. David Roberts, S.N.; Willson, 1st A.S.; Hargreaves, 2nd A.S. Ex. Comps. J. Terry, P.G.D.C.; H. L. Thomas, C. C. Dick, P.Z.; Comps. Rev. L. Deedes, Warrener, and Francis. Ex. Comp. T. S. Carter was installed M.E.Z.; Simson, H.; and David Roberts, J. Comp. Cocks was appointed S.E.; J. Shilcock, S.N.; Willson, P. Soj.; the Rev. L. Deedes, 1st A.S.; E. R. P. Francis, 2nd A.S.; and Wright, Janitor, for the ensuing year. Visitors: Comps. Craven, Cobham, 1329, and J. Linzell, 174.

The sixtieth anniversary of the Stability Lodge of Instruction (No. 217) will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel, on Friday, the 27th proximo, at 5.30 p.m., precisely. Selections from the Three Degrees will be worked by the following brethren: First Degree, 1st Section, Bro. E. H. Hewett, S.W. 235; 2nd Section, Bro. J. W. Clever, J.W. 171; 3rd Section, E. F. Storr, W.M. 22; 7th Section, A. H. Diaper, P.M. 5. Second Degree, Bro. H. Muggidge will lecture on the Six Grand Periods, and the Moral Advantages of Geometry. Third Degree, Bro. J. B. Scriven, P.G. Steward, will lecture on the Lodge Board of this degree. The banquet will take place at 8 o'clock.

EASTER AT RYE HOUSE.—Easter Monday will be the opening day of the season at this most attractive place for London and country holiday-makers. There is a change in one respect—the kindly and genial presence of the late highly esteemed proprietor, Bro. Teale, will be seen there no more; but we are glad to say that the management of the Rye House will remain in the family as hitherto, and the old familiar faces will be seen there still. All the attractions of the house, hall, gardens, and grounds will be at the service of the visitors. The country walks in the vicinity are diversified and pleasant. A display of fireworks will be given in the evening. The Great Eastern Railway Company offer facilities for visiting the Rye by issuing return tickets along the route from London, also on the Hertford and Buntingford branches, at a single fare.

In the action for compensation brought by the Rev. Bro. Gardner, Vicar of Box, near Bath, against the Great Western Railway Company, for injuries sustained while travelling to Bath in November, 1875, the Jury awarded the plaintiff £5,500 damages. Our reverend brother was returning from Chippenham, where he had been installed Provincial Grand Chaplain for Wiltshire.

There have been several art sales lately. In the pottery and porcelain belonging to Bro. the Right Hon. the Earl of Limerick, R.W.P.G.M. Bristol, sold at Messrs. Christie's, on Friday, the 16th, there were some interesting specimens of old English pottery, and some tolerably good specimens of Worcester and Chelsea china; and on the same day some valuable specimens of old Dresden and Oriental china were sold.

The Book of Constitutions of the Grand Lodge of England may be obtained at the Office of this Paper, 198, Fleet-st., London, price 1s. 6d.; with the Three Charges and E. A. Song, 2s.; or will be sent post free to any part of the United Kingdom on receipt of stamps value 1s. 7d. or 2s. 1d.—ADVT.

MARK MASONRY IN NEW ZEALAND.

Prior to the formation of the Union Lodge of Mark Masters (No. 154) at Auckland, the members of the Craft lodges under different constitutions did not visit other lodges very frequently, and a considerable amount of shyness existed among the brethren. This disinclination to visit does not now exist to nearly the same extent, and there is much cordiality between these constitutions.

At the meeting held on the 13th February, the following officers were installed into their respective chairs:—

Bros. J. H. Burns, W.M.; Robinson, S.W.; Brock, J.W.; Rev. C. M. Nelson, Chap.; Wade, P.M., Treas.; Pooley, M.O.; Levy, S.D.; J. S. Hendry, J.D.; Lombard, I.G.; Porter, Tyler.

In making the appointments the W.M. distributed the seats amongst the members of the different Craft lodges in Auckland, Lodge Manukar, Onchunga, providing one of the junior officers.

The abstract of accounts for the past year was read and considered satisfactory.

After thanks had been returned by Bro. Niccol, the I.P.M., and Burns, the W.M., Bro. Wade, P.M., made a short, humorous speech, anent the payment of dues by the members.

Some routine business was gone through, and the lodge then closed with the usual ceremonies.

JUBILEE FESTIVAL OF ST. DAVID'S LODGE, No. 384, BANGOR.

This lodge held its 50th anniversary on the 20th inst. The brethren present: Archibald McMillan, W.M.; Josiah Hughes, I.P.M.; Wm. Jarvis, S.W.; D. Wynn Williams, J.W.; Robert Owen, P.M., Treas.; D. Cameron, S.D.; Ellis Roberts, J.D. and Sec.; Wm. Jones, I.G.; J. T. Purvis, D.C.; J. B. Brown, S.S.; W. E. Thomas, J.S.; T. Hathaway, P.M., P.P.G.S.B.; R. Roberts, P.M.; Watson Robinson, P.M.; Henry Owen, Thos. Williams, Meshach Roberts, M. H. Roberts, Robert Edwards, Rd. Williams, W. J. Parry, E. J. Lloyd, (M.D.), John William, John Jones, Rt. Jones, J. E. Evans, R. O. Morris, J. Hughes, Jno. Pritchard. Visitors: Bros. W. L. Banks, P.M. 936, R.A.C. 404, P.P.G.S.B. N.W. and Salop, P.P. S.G.D. Eastern Div. S.W.; James Salmon, P.M. 721, 1477, P.G.J.W. N.W. and Salop; J. W. Poole, P.M. 606; G. L. Woodley, P.M. 755, P.P.G.S.D. N.W. and Salop; C. H. Rees, P.M. 606; R. J. Davids, I.P.M. 606; J. Sidney Boucher, W.M. 606; C. A. Jones, J.W. 606; R. F. Halahan, 606; W. Elliott, S.W. 597; E. Elliott, 597; R. Edwards, S.W. 597.

The lodge being opened in due form, according to ancient custom, proceeded to business according to circular.

Letters of apology for non-attendance were read from the W.D.P.G.M., Bro. Wm. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P.; Bros. T. C. Roden, P.M. 755, and P.P.S.G.W.; the R.W.P.G. Master East Aberdeenshire, and from several brethren. Bro. Wm. Bulkeley Hughes, M.P., D.P.G.M., was unanimously elected an honorary member, and Mr. John Hughes, the son of Bro. Hughes, I.P.M., was initiated into the Craft.

The I.P.M. presented the lodge with a set of Tracing Boards, for which he received the hearty thanks of the lodge, and also Bro. R. Lloyd, P.M., for three kneeling stools.

Bro. R. Owen proposed that the sum of £16, in addition to the £5 voted in the December meeting, be voted out of the lodge funds to the North Wales and Shropshire Masonic Charitable Association, to constitute the lodge a patron of the association, with 20 votes during existence, in commemoration of the Jubilee.

Bro. R. Roberts, P.M., seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously.

Bro. P. M. Salmon returned thanks on behalf of the Committee of the Association.

The next business was to consider the proposition of the W.M., that P.M.'s jewels be presented to Bros. R. Roberts, P.M., and Robert Owen, P.M., for their valuable services rendered to the lodge; when the two were politely asked to retire for a short time. On their re-admission the W.M. addressed them:

Bros. Roberts and Owen, I am happy to inform you that the lodge passed unanimously that each of you be presented with a P.M.'s jewel, to show their appreciation of the valuable services rendered by you to the lodge. In the name of the lodge I have great pleasure in investing you both with P.M.'s jewels, trusting that you will have health and be long spared to wear them.

P.M. Roberts returned thanks to the W.M., officers, and brethren for their very kind consideration in presenting him with a Past Master's jewel, for which he thought he was only doing his duty as a brother and a Mason; but was glad to find those humble services appreciated by the brethren; and when I consider that it is not a practice in St. David's to present Past Masters' jewels, I take it as a great honour done to me, especially when I know of only two instances that Past Masters' jewels have been presented by this lodge. W.M. and brethren, allow me once more to thank you for the manner in which it has been presented.

Bro. Owen addressed the W.M., officers, and brethren in a few words, and said he remembered well the evening he was initiated; it created in him such feeling for knowledge in the mystic art, that he resolved to lose no opportunity afforded to him for improvement, and having endorsed Bro. Robert's sentiments, concluded by thanking the brethren one and all for their present.

The visiting brethren congratulated St. David's on its jubilee, and conveyed the hearty good wishes of their respective provinces and lodges.

The lodge was closed in perfect harmony.

The brethren retired to the Castle Hotel, where Mr. Denman had prepared a sumptuous banquet for the occasion, the W.M. being in the chair. Justice was done and the cloth removed. The W.M. gave the usual loyal and Masonic toasts.

Bro. Pritchard, sang "God Save the Queen;" Bro. Brown, "God Bless the Prince of Wales," and "Can Sir Watkin." After the toast of "The Lodge W.M., P.M.'s, and Officers," the W.M. called upon Bro. R. Owen, P.M., for a short history of St. David's. The following is epitomized from the epitome. The warrant was granted by His Royal Highness the Duke of Sussex, the M.W.G.M., on the 19th Dec., 1826, then No. 811. The first lodge held on the 7th of March, 1827, Bro. Thos. Heywood, W.M., in the chair; the lodge closed in good harmony at 10 o'clock. Oct. 3rd, 1828, proposed and carried unanimously that the W.M. be fined 2s. 6d.; officers, 1s. 6d.; and each of the brethren, 6d. for absenting themselves from the lodge.

Also the W.M. and officers presented to the G.M. an address while staying in the neighbourhood. Being admitted to his presence, the W.M. delivered the address. The answer being in the G.M.'s own handwriting, was placed in a gold frame, and now adorns the walls of the lodge.

The number of the lodge changed from 811 to 540, 5th Sept., 1852.

March 6th, 1847.—A Committee formed to memorialise the G.L. that the St. David's Lodge, 540, be designated the P.G.L. of N. Wales.

Feb. 9th, 1852.—Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart., M.P., being appointed on the 13th of Jan., 1852, the P.G.M. of North Wales and Shropshire. The lodge presented an address, engrossed on vellum, congratulating the P.G.M. on his appointment.

March 5.—A letter was received from the P.G. Sec., informing the W.M. that the R.W.P.G.M. had been pleased to appoint Bro. Pritchard, P.M., P.G.S.D., and Bro. Stevenson, P.G.J.D.

April 20th, 1858.—The P.G.M., with his Deputy and P.G.S., was received with royal honours, when an address of sympathy and condolence with the P.G.M. and Lady Williams Wynn, after the destruction of their mansion, The Wynnstay, Denbighshire, was destroyed by fire. The R.W.P.G. Master returned thanks on behalf of himself and Lady Wynn.

Oct. 20, 1863.—The Grand Lodge informed the W.M. that the number of the lodge will be 384 from this date.

The lodge has been removed from place to place thirteen times. The regular night of meeting changed eight times. The present third Tuesday was settled 3rd June, 1854.

There have been thirty W.M.'s, one served four years at different times; two served three years at different times; and seven served two years at different times.

In the year 1726 the brethren of Wales first united themselves under the banner of the Grand Lodge in London. In the following year the office of P.G. Master was instituted. The first deputation was granted by G.M. Earl Inchiquin on the 10th May, 1727, to Hugh Warburton, Esq., for North Wales, just 150 years ago, and on the 24th June following to Sir Edward Mansel, Bart., for South Wales.

On the 13th of Jan., 1852, the M.W.G.M., the Earl of Zetland, appointed the present P.G.M., Bro. Sir Watkin Williams Wynn, Bart., M.P., who has held the important office for a quarter of a century, during which time nineteen new lodges has been added to the province. And last year a brother who first saw light in St. David's Lodge, was appointed D.P.G.M.

CONSECRATION OF THE STUART LODGE, No. 1632.

This new lodge was consecrated on Saturday last, at the Surrey Masonic Hall, Camberwell. The consecrating officer was Bro. R. Wentworth Little, Deputy Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, who was assisted by Bro. W. Hyde Pullen, P.D.G.M. Isle of Wight, as S.W.; Bro. Francis, as J.W.; Bro. the Rev. P. M. Holden, Prov. G. Chap. Middlesex, as Chaplain; Bro. H. A. Dubois, as D.C.; Bro. M.S. Larham, as I.G.; and Bro. T. Poore, as Secretary.

Among the other brethren present were Bros. H. Crittenden, P.M. 503; D. J. R. Clark, 1416; Geo. Lilley, 720; A. Barfield, P.M. 511; B. Browne, 503; E. W. Braine, S.W. 1471; E. A. Francis, C. Stuart Barker, C. H. Renton, Alfred Curnover, 1426; T. Poore, P.M.; H. A. Dubois, P.G.S.D. Middlesex; C. H. Perrot, P.G. Org., West Yorks.; H. E. Francis, P.P.G.S.D.; M. S. Larham, W.M. 1216; P. W. Reynolds, I.G. 1479; W. G. Moore, P.M. 534; C. Burley, P.M. 184; George W. F. Smeeth, jun., W. H. Hook, S.W. 186; G. W. Saul, J.W. 1201; George Moss, I.G. 1201; P. A. Nairne, W.M. 1329, P.M. 176; P. M. Holden, W.M. City of Westminster; E. Gorham, P.M. 184; H. Thompson, P.M. 177, 1158, 1426; J. W. Boote, 1426; Chas. Hines, W.M. 72; Hyde Pullen, P.G.S.B.; John Seex, W.M. 1426; M. Spiegel, J.W. 188; E. P. McKay, S.D. 720; E. B. Grabham, Prov. S.G.W. Middlesex; Chas. Sims; Sugden; H. Massey (Freemason); George Kenning, P.M., P.Z. 192, P.G.D. Middlesex; and Kellaway, 192.

The musical arrangements were under the direction of Bro. W. H. Hook, Choir Master of St. James's Church, Camberwell, who was assisted by several other musical brethren, and some of the boys of the choir.

After the lodge had been opened the Consecrating Officer, addressing the brethren, said that as his Rev. Bro. P.M. Holden would shortly deliver an oration it would not be necessary for him to address the brethren. All he would say was that he hoped the new Masonic barque would be launched successfully, and that with fair winds and good officers, in the shape of the W.M. and the Wardens, it might arrive at a haven of prosperity.

The ceremony was then proceeded with, and the Rev. P. M. Holden delivered the following oration:—

As it is customary on these occasions for the Chaplain to deliver what is called an oration, and as I have been called upon by your Consecrating Officer to do so, I will detain you a few minutes while I say a few words on the principles of the Craft which we have to day assembled to take another opportunity of diffusing throughout the community. W. Sir, and brethren all, although the art and science of Freemasonry dates from the creation of man, the great subject of it, I might almost say, from the creation itself, yet the building of King Solomon's Temple is the great and all important era from whence is derived most of the Freemasonry, as it exists among us at the present day, and to the wise and glorious King of Israel, we are indebted for many of its mystic forms and hieroglyphic ceremonies. Now this Temple of King Solomon was erected in imitation of the Tabernacle of Moses, and the Court thereof from a design which his father, King David, received in a vision from the Great Architect of the Universe, but far exceeding the tabernacle in grandeur and magnificence. King Solomon dedicated this temple to the Most High by assembling all the people, by bringing thither the ark of the covenant and the holy things, by devout prayer, by music and praises, by a feast of seven days, and a vast multitude of sacrifices. Every part of the temple had a symbolic meaning; its porch, its courts, its pillars, its altars, its decorations and vessels. The services, moreover, were of a typical and symbolic character, and most admirably calculated to impress the minds of the most ignorant among the worshippers with feelings of the deepest respect, awe and reverence to the Great Creator. The highest acts of adoration were accompanied with the sounds of many instruments, with the swelling chorus of a trained multitude of singers; whilst the prayers of the faithful ascended to the Great Architect amidst the perfume of incense which flowed from golden censers. Symbolic worship has ever been used from the very earliest times by all nations in their religious rites and ceremonies; but nothing so imposing and gorgeous has ever been seen or heard of in the world's history as the celebrated temple worship of Jerusalem. Now, brethren, a Freemason's lodge is neither more nor less than a very humble representation of King Solomon's Temple; and however feeble an imitation it may be, it enjoins by its symbolic teaching such estimable tenets and principles that if Masons will only strive to the utmost to make themselves acquainted with its ceremonies and mysteries they must become better fitted for the society of their brethren of the Craft, and certainly better members of the popular world at large. So full of meaning are the simple but beautiful symbols constantly before our eyes that the very poorest memory can retain their significance and practise the principles they represent in daily life and conduct. To carry the illustration further, the human body I need scarcely remind you, has been described as "The Temple of the Most High," and as our "earthly tabernacle;" and the peculiar system of Freemasonry is such that by it we are enabled to build up body and soul "perfect in its parts," and full of "wisdom, strength, and beauty." Moreover, supported by fortitude, chastened by temperance, and guided in all our actions by faith and justice, we shall be able rightly and properly to maintain the fabric of this our earthly temple until time for us shall be no more. Then may we hope to obtain the passport to eternal life, and so at last gain admittance into the glorious lodge of our Supreme Grand Master above. The outside world, I am aware, sometimes brings the charge against us that Freemasonry is inconsistent with pure religion, or, indeed, with any form of religion—a most unjust, cruel, and wicked charge; for in the ceremonial of Freemasonry, and more especially in the consecration ceremony, religion is always prominently, emphatically, and impressively brought forth. Now, the volume of the Sacred Law which always lies open in lodge, contains the unmistakable command of the great Architect himself that His name should not be taken in vain; and while we therefore in our ceremonies invariably invoke His Name and implore a Divine blessing upon all our endeavours, it must be a very great hypocrisy on our part, and hypocrisy of the very blackest description, if we do not act under the feeling of religion with a desire to please God. Freemasonry must be one thing or the other; it must either be what I firmly believe it to be, a grand system of morality, or else a form of hypocrisy of which we, as honest men, should be thoroughly and heartily ashamed. It is also with infinite pride and satisfaction that we can all bear witness and acknowledge that Freemasonry, though ranging under its banners men of every variety of creed, is wholly and entirely free from any religious controversy or bitterness. Those who are not Masons sometimes think it is a kind of religion of our own; but it is not so, for this simple reason that Freemasonry never touches on the mode or manner of the worship of God; it simply inculcates and enforces as strongly as it possibly can the one thing which must form a part of every true religion, that we should do to our neighbours as we would our neighbours should do to us, and act honourably, honestly, and unselfishly in all our dealings with mankind, not merely from the idea of doing them good, still less for the idea of getting credit to ourselves; but for the highest and grandest motive of all, to please the Most High God. I do not for one moment consider that Freemasonry is a higher principle or a loftier inducement to right action than religion. It is not a substitute for religion in this respect, and God forbid that I should say so; but at any rate Freemasonry unquestionably does this, my brethren, it includes those men who perhaps have hardly any one thing in common; whose profession, whose business, and whose position in life would naturally always keep them entirely apart; and it enables them, I say, to meet together, to know one another, to esteem and respect one another, to love one another, and above all, to speak upon questions which probably they would never touch upon otherwise—questions as to what is right and what is wrong, as to what is noble and what is mean, and in fact, that which is the sum total of religion is the subject about which Masons can openly talk in lodge, and which they would never think of doing without that feeling of shyness and reserve which exists in a greater or lesser degree in every man's mind and bosom where there is not this open communion which Freemasons so thoroughly enjoy and appreciate. In this way I am positive that Freemasonry does an incalculable amount of good. I mention this at the establishment of a new lodge because it is of the greatest importance than these points should be more or less made known to new members before they are initiated. I say advisedly "before they are initiated," for although a candidate comes into Freemasonry blind with regard to our secrets and mysteries and our ceremonies, he should at any rate, I think, be acquainted with the grand principle upon which the ancient Order is founded, and as to what will be expected of him should he become a member of the Craft. May I venture to add Worshipful Sir, and I am sure, from what you have said, you will bear me out in the expression of this opinion, and also other distinguished Freemasons present, that the greatest care, I feel, should be taken in the admission for candidates, and I feel sure this should be strictly attended to, as I feel positive, with you, sir, that upon it depends the future prosperity and success of this lodge. It only remains for me, Worshipful Sir, to thank you and all the brethren present, for the very kind manner in which they have been pleased to listen to this very imperfect address, I admit, and which, perhaps, I cannot better conclude than, with your permission, sir, reciting the following lines, which were delivered at the installation meeting of an American Lodge:—

"When, ages back, the Temple rose,
Majestic 'neath the rising sun,
The Sacred Scroll was then unrolled,
The glorious Brotherhood begun,
And proudly down the tide of years,
Amid the rocks that frowning lay,
The vessel with Masonic flag,
Has kept its safe and steady way.

The crew are pledged to noble deeds,
To battle bravely for the right,
To hold truth's standard ever up,
To scatter darkness by the light,
To help a fallen brother rise,
To feed the poor, assist the weak,
To dry with tender pitying hand,
The tear from off the widow's cheek.

Base slander, serpent-like, and foul,
Shall die beneath Masonic heel,
The sword shall from its scabbard leap,
When woman's honour makes appeal.
When raging heat on battle field,
Strives every battered soul to smother,
The feeble foe with sinking strength,
Gives mystic sign that makes him brother.

On land or sea, in every clime,
Where'er the tongue of man is spoken,
Is found the pure and spotless square,
The Masons' ever honoured token.
Their creed holds all that's good and true,
No Christian teacher can be surer
The prayer we lip at mother's knee
In spirit is not better, purer.

Curs'd be the man who falsely takes
The sacred oath for selfish gain,
Who stains his armour caltiff like,
And brings reproach upon the name.
But blessed shall the brother be
Who purely wears the signet given
Till God, the Great High Priest, shall call
The sacred lodge above in Heaven.

The Rev. brother was much applauded as he resumed his seat on the termination of the above address.

The ceremony of consecration was then proceeded with, and the manner in which it was conducted elicited the warmest approval of the brethren. Before the installation of the W.M. the Rev. P. M. Holden left the lodge, but before doing so expressed his great regret that other engagements compelled him to relinquish the pleasure of remaining longer among the brethren. The brethren expressed their thanks to him for the part he had taken in the ceremony of consecration, and with this the rev. brother left the lodge.

Bro. C. Stuart Barker, jun., was then installed, and the following brethren were appointed to office:—J. Walmsley, S.W.; Samuel Browne, J.W.; C. Stuart Barker, Treas.; Thos. Poore, P.M., Sec.; G. T. Thomes, S.D.; George Harry Gilham, J.D.; Donald J. R. Clark, I.G.; and W. Steedman, Tyler. Bro. Hyde Pullen delivered the charges, after which the thanks of the lodge were voted to the Consecrating Officer and those brethren who had assisted him, and honorary membership of the lodge was conferred upon them. Propositions for initiation and joining membership were read by the Secretary. The lodge was closed, and the brethren adjourned to a beautiful banquet.

After the banquet the customary loyal and Masonic toasts were proposed and drunk. After giving "The Queen and the Craft," "The M.W.G.M.," "The Pro Grand Master," "The Dep. G.M. and the rest of the Grand Officers," the W.M. called upon Bro. Hyde Pullen to respond to the last toast. The W.M. having in the course of his remarks upon this toast referred to the pleasure he experienced at the last festival of the Emulation Lodge of Improvement, when he saw the working of the Grand Officers on that occasion, Bro. Pullen said he was one of the Grand Officers referred to, and it was always a pleasure to them to do anything they could on behalf of Masonry. He then complimented the W.M. on having established this new lodge, and wished all prosperity to the lodge and happiness to its members.

The W.M. next gave "The Consecrating Officer," but as the brethren had seen the working of the ceremonies by Bro. Little it was not necessary for him to dwell on the fact. The brethren need not ask him for any expression of opinion as to how the ceremony was performed, but he might add that he had never seen the ceremony performed so perfectly.

Bro. Little responded. It was as much a pleasure to him to perform the ceremony of consecration as it was to the brethren to witness it. He had been ably assisted by some other brethren, and he was happy to believe that in installing Bro. Stuart Barker, jun., as W.M. he had placed in the chair of the lodge the right man. It would be the duty of the other officers to follow the W.M.'s example. As it was always a more pleasing thing to speak of others than of himself, it was with much gratification he acknowledged the able assistance of other brethren in the ceremony performed that day. He now came to a very pleasing duty, the proposal of "The Health of the W.M." The worth of the W.M. was well known. Having been placed in the chair of the lodge by the suffrages of the brethren, confirmed finally by the Grand Master, it was the duty of the brethren to support him to the utmost. To the W.M. he offered "the right hand of fellowship," and he trusted he might experience nothing but kindness and good fellowship during his year of office. Should any difficulties arise, as unfortunately they would arise in lodges sometimes, the skill and ability of the W.M. would set matters right, and the Stuart Lodge would go on to a haven of peace and prosperity that would redound to its honour. (Hear, hear.)
